John de Alleber (Delabere) held one yard land in Stapleton, by the ſervice of carrying the king's writs one day's journey from the caſtle of Glouceſter at his own charges, and the reſt of the journey at the king's expence, 5 H. 3. Roger de Goſſenton was ſeized of lands in Stapleton for guarding the king's foreſt of Kingſwood 15 E. 1. Roger Kemys, a lunatick, held lands in Stapleton 21 E. 4. John White levied a fine of lands in this place to Roger Walroon 1 E. 6.

HAMLETS. 1. Oldbury. William Dodiſham levied a fine of the manor of Oldbury in Stapleton, to the uſe of William Dodiſham his ſon, and Joan his wife, in taille, 8 H. 6. Thomas Winſtone, eſq; died ſeized of it in 1757, and gave it to Mrs. Winſtone, his widow; in virtue of whoſe will it paſſed afterwards to Thomas Hayward, (ſecond ſon of her brother Thomas Hayward, of Quedgley, eſq;) who marrying a niece of the late Mr. Winſtone's, aſſumed his family name, and is the preſent proprietor of Oldbury, and high ſheriff of this county, 1777.

2. Ruggeway, or Ridgway, is a diſtinct manor, lying one part in this pariſh, the other in Mangotsfield, under which head ſome account of it has already been given. Sir Jarrit Smyth, baronet, is lord of the manor.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a curacy, in the deanery of Briſtol, worth about 20*l.* a year, before it was augmented, in the year 1720, by a donation from Edward Colſton and Thomas Edwards, eſq" and with the queen's bounty. Mrs. Whitchurch is patroneſs, and the reverend Mr. Shute is the preſent incumbent.

The impropriation belonged to St. James's monaſtery in Briſtol, and was granted to —— Brain 35 H. 8. It came afterwards to the Walters, and is now veſted in Mrs. Mary Whitchurch, widow of the late Joſeph Whitchurch, eſq; and ſole heireſs of the Walter family. The arms of the Walters are, Azure, upon a nut bough iſſuing from the ſiniſter baſe proper, a ſquirrel ſeiant Or.

The church is ſmall, but neat, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, and has a low pinnacled tower at the weſt end, with ſix bells in it.

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

A braſs plate, fixt to a flat ſtone in the chancel, bears this inſcription:

Hic jacet Sepultum Corpus
Matthæi Walteri Generoſi hujus Parochiæ
Incolæ qui e uita deceſſit die Aprilis uigeſimo octauo Anno Domini 1680
Ætatisq; Suæ Octogeſimo.

Quod me genuit idem occidit Ex inquinato Semine ortus ejuſdem ueneno mortuus ſum Ah ſæua genitrix ipſoq;
Struthio camelo crudelior quæ ſuam ipſius auſa eſt necare prolem Alte . . . .
beatus Phœnix ille qui moriendo e cineribus hiſce faciet uivus reſurgerem ac in æternum viverem.

Againſt the north wall, near the communion table, there is a very handſome marble monument, with the following inſcription:

In the Family Vault near this Place
reſt in Hopes of a bleſſed Reſurrection,
THOMAS WALTER, *Eſq*r who dyed 28th December 1728.
He married MARY, Daughter of WILLIAM ROWLES, *Eſq*r of Newnham in this County, who dyed 25th January 1744.
ROWLES WALTER their Son dyed 24th April 1733.
He married 3d January 1712, JANE Daughter of NATHANIEL PYRKE of Little Dean in this County *Eſq*r:
by whom he left one Son THOMAS, & one Daughter MARY.
THO* Son of ROWLES & JANE, dyed 8th October 1738 aged 19.
JOSEPH WHITCHURCH, *Eſq*r: dyed 6th Auguſt 1772.
He married 19th Auguſt 1736 MARY Daughter of ROWLES WALTER, *Eſq*r: by whom he left an only Daughter JANE, married 11th Auguſt 1767, to THO* SMITH of Long-Aſhton, in the County of Somerſet, *Eſq*r.
This Monument was erected by MARY WHITCHURCH, in reſpectful Memory of her much beloved Huſband & Friends.

Arms, Gules, three talbots heads 2 and 1 erazed Or; on a chief argent, gutty du ſang, a lion paſſant ſable, for Whitchurch.

Upon a braſs plate in the chancel,

Under this Stone by his own appointment lie interred the Relicks of JOSEPH WHITCHURCH, Eſq; who dyed 6th Auguſt 1772. He was an affectionate Huſband, a kind Father, and a ſincere Friend, and rejoiced in every Opportunity of rendering Service to the Diſtreſſed.

Upon the vaſe of a neat marble monument againſt the ſouth wall, it is thus inſcribed:

SACRED TO THE MEMORY
of
THOMAS WINSTONE of this Pariſh Eſq*r*
A Gentleman of unblemiſhed Honour & Integrity; who died July 4th 1757 in the 60th Year of his Age.
IN TESTIMONY of her Love and Gratitude, this Monument was erected by his faithful Relict ALBINA WINSTONE.

The arms upon this monument are, Per pale gules and azure, over all a lion rampant argent, holding in his paws a tree proper.

Againſt the north wall of the church,

M. S.

Hic juxta inhumatur Thomas Bubb hujuſce Parochiæ Generoſus, ex Natis Thomæ Bubb ibidem Armigeri Primogenitus et Hæres. Vir Ingenio Sagaci admodum ac faceto, Scientiâ literis et Artibus omnimodò excultus, aliiſq; Virtutibus ornatus; Quibus tamen illuſtrandis nimis obſtrarunt ſua Verecundia et Receſſûs Amor. Obijt decimo ſexto Calend. Maij Anno poſt Natum D. Chriſtum MDCCIX Ætatis ſuæ 64.

Lactea perſequitur Genius Veſtigia Cœlis
Dum tuus, atq; Choros micat inter (amice) beatos,
Hoc jaceant Cineres ſub ſacro limine dulces
Immortæ donec (terrâ flagrante) reſurgent,
Sollicitæ tandem geniales quærere ſedes,
Quas facile invenient, cœleſti Lampade ductæ,
Ac inibi æternum requie potientur amenâ.

At the top of the monument are theſe arms, Per pale Or and ermine, over all on a bend gules three unicorns heads erazed ſable.

There is likewiſe a memorial for John Wyatt, of this pariſh, gent. who died in 1713, aged 90; for Anne his wife, daughter of William Self, of Milſham, in the county of Wilts, who died in 1696, aged 70; and for two of their children, Mary, the wife of Thomas Webb, who died in 1729, aged 80; and Elizabeth, who died an infant; with their arms, viz. Baron and femme, 1. Or, on a feſs gules between three boars heads couped ſable, as many mullets of the firſt. 2. Ermine, three chevronels gules.

Benefactions.

Mrs. Anne Whittington gave 5*l. per ann.* together with the intereſt of 115*l.* 16*s.* to be diſtributed to the poor; alſo, 1*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.* to the miniſter, at Chriſtmas, for ever.

Thomas Webb, eſq; gave the intereſt of 50*l.* to the poor; and Mrs. Mary Webb gave 10*s.* a year to the miniſter for a ſermon, 2*s.* to the clerk, and 2*s.* in bread to the poor on Good Friday, for ever.

Mrs. Sarah Packer, in 1754, and Mrs. Mary Packer, in 1757, gave the intereſt of 100*l.* each to ſuch poor people as do not receive alms.

Mrs. Frances Berkeley gave 20*s.* yearly for ever, for a ſermon on the 30th of January, and the like ſum to the poor in bread on that day.

Thomas Bubb, eſq; gave 10*s.* a year for a ſermon on Trinity Sunday, for ever. And Mr. John Widlake gave 10*s.* a year to the rector of St. Peter's church in Briſtol, for a ſermon here on St. John's day, for ever.

Here is a charity ſchool, founded and ſupported by the following contributions: Mrs. Mary Webb, in 1729, gave 45*l.* A perſon unknown, in 1731, gave 100*l.* Mr. Berkeley, in 1744, gave 85*l.* 10*s.* George Packer, eſq; in 1745, gave 50*l.* And in 1754, Miſs Elizabeth Bayly gave 50*l.* So that from the intereſt the ſchool-maſter's income is about 24*l.* a year, beſides a houſe to live in.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 131	0	0
Poll-tax — 1694, —	83	16	0
Land-tax — 1694, —	195	4	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	141	13	6

At the beginning of this century, there were about 160 houſes, and 700 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 30 were freeholders; yearly births 16, burials 13. Atkyns. Since that time population has very much increaſed, for the average of annual baptiſms from 1773 to 1776, both incluſive, have been 41, of burials 42. And deducting 10 from the burials, on account of perſons brought hither from other places, and then reckoning the number of living in the proportion of 40 to 1 of the annual burials, the preſent number of inhabitants will be about 1280.

STAVERTON

IS a ſmall pariſh, in the lower diviſion of the hundred of Derhurſt, five miles diſtant ſouth from Tewkeſbury, four weſt from Cheltenham, and five north from Glouceſter.

It lies in the Vale, yet the greater part is in tillage, and moſt of the arable lands in common fields.

fields. It has nothing curious in natural hiſtory or antiquity.

The turnpike-road from Glouceſter to Cheltenham leads thro' the ſouth part of the pariſh, and all beſides are very miry and founderous. The poor are chiefly employ'd in huſbandry.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

The following is all that is recorded of this manor in Domeſday:

'The church of St. Dyoniſius at Paris holds 'three hides in Starventon.' p. 72.

John Browning held the manor of Staverton and Yenington 3 H. 5. Sir Richard Baker was lord of the manor of Staverton in the year 1608. The earl of Oxford was proprietor of it, and of Uckington in the pariſh of Elmſton, at the beginning of this century. From his heirs it paſſed, by purchaſe, as a member of the manor of Uckington, to Mr. Rogers of Dowdeſwell, and Mrs. Rogers, widow of the late John Rogers, eſq; is the preſent lady of the manor of Uckington in Elmſton, where ſhe holds a court leet, at which the inhabitants of Staverton attend.

Edward Brugge, eſq; held lands in Staverton 15 H. 6.

Part of Haydon lies in Staverton, and pays to the parochial levies; the other part is in the pariſh of Bodington.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, within the peculiar of Derhurſt, worth about 120*l.* a year, to which Bodington is annexed. Mrs. Lock is patroneſs, and Mr. Kipling is the preſent incumbent. The vicar has the great tithes of the manor of Staverton.

The advowſon of the church, as well as the manor, formerly belonged to the priory of Derhurſt; but when that houſe was ſuppreſſed with other alien priories, the advowſon was granted to the abbey of Tewkeſbury, in which it continued 'till the general diſſolution of religious foundations, in the reign of king Henry the Eighth. It was afterwards granted to Thomas Gatwick and Anſelm Lamb, 5 Mariæ.

The church has a very low tower, with three bells, at the weſt end, and is dedicated to St. Catherine, who is ſaid to have been a virgin, martyred in the year 307, by means of a wheel ſtuck full of iron hooks, which from her is called a Catherine Wheel.

Firſt fruits	£. 12	0	0	Synodals	£.
Tenths	— 1	4	0	Pentecoſt.	0 0 4½
Procurations

Benefactions.

Lands worth 6*l.* a year are given for the uſe of the poor, and there is beſides, a ſmall donation of 6*s.* a year left for ſuch poor people as do not receive pariſh collection. The lands given to the poor were formerly of much greater value, but a conſiderable part has been long ſince loſt.

Uckington, tho' a hamlet in Elmſton, is joined in ſome payments with this pariſh.

Staverton and Uckington.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 69	0	0
Poll-tax —— 1694, —	11	0	0
Land-tax —— 1694, —	64	7	4
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	49	14	0

About the beginning of the preſent century, according to ſir Robert Atkyns, there were 40 houſes in the pariſh, and about 200 inhabitants, 8 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 6, burials 6. But ſir Robert's eſtimate muſt have been much too high; for I am informed by a perſon who has reſided in the pariſh upwards of ſeventy years, that there are now three houſes more than when he firſt knew it, and the preſent number is only 24. His extract from the regiſter is equally incorrect, for in ten years, from 1700 to 1709 incluſive, there are entered 34 baptiſms, and 19 burials; and in the ſame number of years, from 1760 to 1769 incluſive, there are regiſtered 58 baptiſms, and 29 burials. The people are ſuppoſed to have increaſed ſince the beginning of this century, and are now eſtimated at about 120.

STINCHCOMBE

IS a pariſh in the hundred of Berkeley, four miles diſtant eaſt from the town of that name, two weſt from Durſley, and fifteen ſouth from Glouceſter.

It adjoins to the pariſh of Cam, of which it was formerly a part, and conſiſts chiefly of fine paſture land, with ſome good arable, and produces excellent cheeſe, and pretty good cyder.

This village is ſheltered on the eaſt by a lofty hill, on whoſe top there is a large plain, which formerly the people of this part of the country very much frequented to play at the robuſt game of ſtoball. The weſt ſummit of this hill commands a bird's-eye view of Berkeley-caſtle, and a moſt extenſive proſpect into Somerſetſhire, Monmouthſhire, Herefordſhire, Worceſterſhire, and ſeveral parts of South Wales. Some indeed pretend, that thirteen counties, and thirty pariſh churches may be ſeen from it in a very fair day, but I mention this only from Dr. Parſons's manuſcript Collections, and not from my own knowledge. The ſeveral proſpects are no leſs rich than extenſive. North-weſtward, the fine verdure and beautiful incloſures in the Vale, and the long courſe of the river Severn, with its windings, make the fore ground of the landſcape; beyond, are the venerable oaks of Dean foreſt, towering one above the other, and waving in all the grandeur of ſylvan majeſty; and laſtly, the Welch Mountains, at a great diſtance behind, appear like a cloud faintly coloured, and cloſe the proſpect.

Great quantities of foſſils, conſiſting of petrifications of the cockle, muſcle, ſcallop, and other fiſh fiſh of the bivalvular kind, are found incorporated in a reddiſh ſtone, of a coarſe grit, at a place called Newnham's quarry; and ſeveral of the Cornua Ammonis have alſo been found there. Theſe are all the curious natural productions which the pariſh affords, and it ſeems to be totally deſtitute of antiquities.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

William de Alba Mara held the manor of Stinchcombe and Thorp 40 H. 3.

Thomas de Braddeſton, a very eminent perſon in his time, was advanced to the dignity of a peer of the realm 16 E. 3. and died ſeized of the manors of Stinchcombe, Horton, and Bradeſtone (from the latter of which he took his name) in the 34th year of the ſame reign. Agnes, the widow of Thomas de Braddeſton, died ſeized of Stinchcombe, Arlingham, and Horton, in dower, 43 E. 3. Thomas lord Braddeſton, ſon of Robert, and grandſon of Thomas, was poſſeſſed of the manors of Stinchcombe, Arlingham, Horton, and Bradeſtone in Berkeley, at the time of his death, 48 E. 3. and Ela, his widow, died ſeized of Stinchcombe and Stancombe 11 H. 4.

Richard Seimour ſeems to have been a truſtee of the Bradſtones, for he was poſſeſſed of all the before-mentioned manors 2 H. 4.

Sir Walter de la Pool, in right of Elizabeth his wife, daughter and heireſs of the laſt Thomas de Braddeſton, was ſeized of Stinchcombe, Arlingham, Draycot's Place in Horton, and Bradſtone in Berkeley, 12 H. 6. And ſir Edward Ingoldſthorp was ſeized of this manor, and of others which had belonged to the Bradſtones, in the 35th year of the laſt-mentioned reign.

Stinchcombe came afterwards to lord Wentworth, who ſold it to divers perſons, in the reign of queen Elizabeth. John Hollifter was lord of it in the year 1608. It was veſted in Thomas Pinfold, eſq; when ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his account of it, and John Pinfold, eſq; is the preſent lord of the manor, and reſides at Peer's-Court in this pariſh. His arms are, Azure, two couple cloſes Or, between three hickwalls, or French pies, argent, beak'd and member'd of the ſecond.

The Tyndales, (from whom the reverend Mr. Richard Tyndale of Charfield is deſcended) were a very reſpectable family, long reſident in this pariſh, where they had a good eſtate. Thomas Tyndale died ſome time before 33 H. 8. as appears by a deed of that date, to which Edward Tyndale of Pull Court in Worceſterſhire, (anceſtor of the preſent Tyndales of Bathford) was a party. By Alicia his wife, daughter and ſole heir of Thomas Hunt, he had iſſue five ſons, Richard, William, Henry, Thomas, and John; and one daughter Elizabeth. Richard, the eldeſt ſon, had a ſon and heir Richard, who had iſſue eight ſons, and four daughters. Thomas Tyndale of Stinchcombe, clothier, was his eldeſt ſon and heir. He married Catherine, the daughter and heir of John Harris, gent. by whom he had iſſue Thomas Tyndale, and making his will, died in 1637, as appears by the Probat dated Oct. 12, the ſame year. Thomas Tyndale, his ſon, lived at Stinchcombe in the reign of king Charles the Firſt, and being inimical to the king's cauſe, fled from his houſe at the approach of a party of royaliſts, and hid himſelf for three days and nights in a large yew-tree, now growing at the top of Stinchcombe wood, whence he had the mortification to ſee Mr. Pinfold's houſe and his own burnt to the ground.

Richard Tyndale, uncle to the laſt Thomas, and fourth ſon of the laſt Richard, had iſſue Daniel Tyndale of Stinchcombe, who married Katherine, daughter and heir of John Wilkins, by whom he had two ſons, Richard, who died a batchelor, and John Tyndale, clerk; which ſaid John, about the year 1724, married Mary, daughter of Thomas Lodge, clerk, and had iſſue four ſons, and one daughter, Mary. William, the firſt ſon, married Mary, daughter and heir of Nicholas Lodge, of Briſtol, and had iſſue one ſon William, who died an infant; and one daughter Mary. He died rector of Charfield in 1764. John and Daniel, the ſecond and fourth ſons, died without iſſue; and Richard, the third ſon, is now rector of Charfield. See more of the Tyndales under the account of Eaſtwood, in the pariſh of Thornbury.

Langley-hill in Stinchcombe, with the chapel called St. Michael's chapel, and lands in Stancombe, were granted to Thomas lord Seimour, after whoſe attainder, they were granted to William marquis of Northampton, 5 E. 6.

HAMLETS. 1. Clinger. 'Roger [de 'Berchelai] holds one hide in Claenhangare, part 'of the land of this manor [Berchelai].' D.B. p. 68.

2. Stancombe is another hamlet.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a curacy, in the deanery of Durſley, worth about 45*l.* a year. The biſhop of Glouceſter is patron and impropriator, and the rev. Mr. John Webb is the preſent incumbent.

The living has been augmented by a donation from Mr. Pinfold, and the queen's bounty, with which lands in Bradſtone have been purchaſed, now let at 25*l. per ann.* 'Till then, the incumbent only received 20*l.* a year from the leſſee of the great tithes.

The church is dedicated to St. Cyril, and has a ſmall ſteeple with one bell in it. The whole building was repaired in the year 1763, and is now both handſome and convenient.

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Againſt the ſouth wall of the chancel, is this inſcription:

M. S.
Ionathani Smith,
Viri in S. Scripturis docti,
Verbi divini præconis aſſidui,
Pietatis, humilitatis, hoſpitj, et Chriſtianæ vrbanitatis exemplaris viri, in vita dilecti, in morte defleti.

Natus

Natus fuit in Civitate Roffenſi Aprilis xvi Anno MDCIX in Hibernia vero educatus, inde reverſus
Vxorem duxit
Abigail filiam unigenitam Richardi Miles Civis Cantuarienſis defunctam poſtquam peperiſſet filium unicum Ionathanum
Poſtea duxit Ianam ſororem Iohannis Markey Armigeri Superſtitem:
In Eccleſia Roſſiana in agro Herefordienſi per duodecim annos Chriſti Evangelium publice docuit, et poſt regis ingreſſum inde expulſus manſit tamen in vinea domini quotidie ad finem uſque laborans
Ex hac vitâ migravit, Febri duplici quartanâ decimo die decembris Anno Domini M. DCLXX
ætatis vero ſuæ
LXII.
Et jacet hic ſepultus:
Quid opus unimodæ legis ſolvantur habenæ
(Gloria in Excelſis) lingua ſoluta canit.
From preaching Chriſt to us, to Chriſt he's gone
Praiſes to ſing before his glorious throne.

In the ſame chancel, is the following inſcription in gold letters:

H. S. E.
Elizabetha Compeer, Uxor Roberti Compeer, Gen:
Filia unica Iohanis King, A.M. hujus Eccleᵃᵉ. Paſtoris,
Ingenuæ Indolis, judicii ſupra Sexum et ætatem ſublimis.
Probitatum Modeſtiæ, utramq; Pietati et Charitati
Eo modo Superaddidit, quo Solo melius Religioni, Uti par eſt, Ancillarentur.
Sic divinas Virtutes cum humanis in ſe una conjuxit,
Conjunctas excoluit, excultas exemplo ſuo inſignivit.
Filiam obſequentem Parentes,
Amantiſſimam Conjugem Maritus,
Amicam comem et benignam Neceſſarij,
Singuli quia charam Univerſis Deſiderant.
Obijt gravida, Maij 20, A. D. 1713 Ætat. 23°
Quam juxta etiam jacet condita,
Elizabetha,
Filia unica, quæ cum annos duos vix numeraſſet,
Et vel hac ætatula egregia ingenij edidit ſpecimina,
Mortalitati valedixit Octob. die 4ᵗᵒ
A. D. 1712
Monumentum hoc Iohanes King
Pater Mœrens poſuit.

And near it,

To the Memory of Robert Compeer Gent. who was buried the 22ᵈ Day of June 1720 Aged 28 Years.

A handſome monument of white marble, placed againſt the north wall of the church, is thus inſcribed:

In the Churchyard
Near this place lie interred the Remains of JOHN PINFOLD Senʳ of this Pariſh, and ELIZABETH his Wife [MAN)
{one of the Daughters of JOHN and ELIZABETH TROT-
He } died { Janʸ 30ᵗʰ. 1705 } Aged { 94 } Years.
She } { Mar. 14ᵗʰ. 1701 } { 83 }
Alſo of JOHN their eldeſt Son and CATHERINE his Wife;
He } Died { Decʳ 26ᵗʰ 1726 } Aged { 82 } Years.
She } { May 10ᵗʰ 1723 } { 72 }
Alſo of THOMAS ANNA and MARY Son and Daughters of the aforeſaid JOHN and ELIZABETH PINFOLD.
THOMAS } { Janʸ 14ᵗʰ 1738 } { 83 }
ANNA } died { Augˢᵗ 10ᵗʰ 1667 } Aged { 24 } Years.
MARY } { Septʳ 10ᵗʰ 1716 } { 68 } [FOLD
Alſo of JOHN Son of the ſaid JOHN and CATHERINE PIN- and MARY his Wife:
He } Died { Janʳʸ 17ᵗʰ 1732 } Aged { 59 } Years.
She } { Oᶜᵗʳ 11ᵗʰ 1739 } { 66 }
Alſo of ELIZABETH Daughter of the aforeſaid JOHN and CATHERINE PINFOLD, who died May 10ᵗʰ 1708 aged 24 years
Alſo of MARTHA Wife of JOHN PINFOLD Junʳ who Died May 9ᵗʰ 1756 Aged 51 Years.

The monument is ornamented at top with a ſcutcheon of two coats, Baron and femme, 1. Azure, a chevron voided Or between three hickwalls, or French pies, argent, for Pinfold. 2. Azure, on a chevron between three owls argent, as many mullets ſable, within a bordure ingrailed ermine, for Hill.

There is likewiſe a memorial for Samuel Tyndale, merchant, ſon of William Tyndale of Stinchcombe, who died in 1673; but the whole of the inſcription is not legible.

Benefactions.

Lands worth 7*l.* a year were veſted in feoffees for charitable uſes, by a perſon unknown, 1 Jac. 1. Matthew Tyndale of London, merchant, in 1676, gave two grounds, worth about 8*l. per ann.* the income of which to be thus diſpoſed of; one third to the miniſter, one third for teaching children to read, and the remainder to the poor. And Mr. Henry Stubbs, a diſſenting miniſter, left 10*s.* a year to buy New Teſtaments for poor children.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 92	2	0
Poll-tax —— 1694, —	16	15	0
Land-tax — 1694, —	74	12	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	74	14	3

At the beginning of this century, there were 120 houſes in the pariſh, and about 500 inhabitants, 18 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 15, burials 14. Atkyns. The inhabitants are now eſtimated to be about 450.

STOKE GIFFARD.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Henbury, four miles diſtant northward from Briſtol, nine ſouth-weſt from Chipping Sodbury, and twenty-two ſouth-weſtward from Glouceſter.

It is a large pariſh, conſiſting of ſome arable and woodlands, but the greater part is paſturage.

There are ſeveral Stokes in this county, as Stoke Archer, Stoke Biſhop, and this Stoke, which received the additional name of Giffard, by way of diſtinction, from the family of that name, who enjoyed it for many generations immediately after the conqueſt.

Stoke Houſe is the ſeat of the dutcheſs dowager of Beaufort. It was built originally in the time of queen Elizabeth, by ſir Richard Berkeley, and was greatly damaged in the civil wars in the reign of king Charles the Firſt. The preſent houſe was partly rebuilt, and otherwiſe beautified and repaired, by the late lord Botetourt, about the year 1760; and the motto, (MIHI VOBISQVE) placed in the front by his lordſhip, is ſtrongly expreſſive of the amiable diſpoſition and generoſity that ſo eminently diſtinguiſhed its owner.

It is a noble pile, exquiſitely ſituated, like Windſor Caſtle, to command a great extent of rich country to the eaſt and ſouth of it, with a large view of the city of Briſtol, and its populous environs. The proſpect cloſes with the great chain of hills about Sodbury on one ſide, and with the Somerſetſhire hills on the other.

The lofty terras in front gives it an air of grandeur and magnificence not to be deſcribed. It ſtands about three hundred yards diſtant from one of the great roads leading to Briſtol, and a beautiful lawn, interſperſed with trees, ſlopes down from it, in all the unaffected elegance of nature.

The muſe that ſung of Clifton, paid her devoirs to Stoke; but, like the writer of this account, ſhe was too deficient in deſcriptive powers to do it juſtice.

I cannot find, upon inquiry, that Stoke affords any curious natural productions, or antiquities.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

Oſbern Gifard aſſiſted king William the Firſt in the conqueſt of England, and was rewarded, for his ſervices, with twenty manors, of which four were in Glouceſterſhire, viz. Rochemtune, Brimesfelde, Aldeberie, and Stoche; which latter is the ſubject under immediate conſideration, and Domeſday gives the following particulars of it:

'Oſbern Gifard holds Stoche, in Letberg hundred. There are five hides taxed. Dunne held it. In demean are four plow-tillages, and eight villeins, and three bordars, and a prieſt, with eight plow-tillages. There are four ſervi. It was worth 6*l*. and is now worth 8*l*.' p. 76.

The Giffards had a caſtle at Brimpsfield, which was the reſidence of the family, and continued in the name, 'till John Giffard was taken priſoner at the battle of Boroughbridge, in open rebellion againſt king Edward the Second, and afterwards attainted, and executed at Glouceſter as a traitor; 'till which time this manor of Stoke deſcended in ſucceſſion, like Brimpsfield, to the ſeveral branches of that family.

The manor of Stoke was held of the honour of Glouceſter, and was granted to ſir Maurice de Berkeley, after the death of Margaret Giffard, the third wife of John Giffard, 11 E. 3. This Maurice de Berkeley was the ſecond ſon of Maurice lord Berkeley, of Berkeley caſtle, by Eve his firſt wife, daughter of Eudo la Zouch, lord Zouch, as may be ſeen more at large, (p. 274) in the account of the anceſtors of the earl of Berkeley. He died at Calais, 21 E. 3. leaving iſſue by Margaret his wife,

Sir Thomas Berkeley, who married Catherine, daughter of ſir John de Bitton, knight, and dying in the year 1360, left iſſue one ſon,

Maurice, who married Catherine, youngeſt daughter and coheir of John lord Botetourt. He was ſeated at Stoke Giffard, and dying in 1361, left iſſue,

Sir Maurice Berkeley, who took to wife Joan, daughter of ſir John Dynham, knight, and dying in the year 1400, left her with child of Maurice Berkeley, who held Stoke Giffard and Uley 10 H. 5. He married Ellen, daughter of ſir William Montford, knight, and died 4 E. 4. leaving by her an only ſon,

Sir William Berkeley, who was made a knight of the Bath at the coronation of Richard the Third, and was high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire in the third year of that reign. He left the kingdom when king Richard was ſlain in Boſworth-field, and being attainted 1 H. 7. his eſtates were ſeized into the king's hands, and the manor of Stoke Giffard was granted the ſame year to Jaſper duke of Bedford, and his heirs males; but ſir William was afterwards received into favour, and Stoke Giffard was granted to him 4 H. 7. after the entail on the duke of Bedford, who died without iſſue 11 H. 7. when ſir William came into poſſeſſion again; but his eſtates were much impaired during the alienation. He died ſeized of Stoke Giffard in 1501, leaving iſſue, by his wife Anne, daughter of ſir Humphry Stafford, knight, one ſon,

Sir Richard Berkeley, who married Elizabeth, daughter of ſir Humphry Coningſby, knight, and by her had iſſue two ſons, and three daughters, viz. ſir John, ſir Maurice, afterwards of Bruton in Somerſetſhire, anceſtor of the lords Berkeley of Stratton; Mary, Frances, and Anne, married to Thomas Speke, eſq. He died in 1514, and was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon,

Sir John Berkeley, of Stoke Giffard, who died in 1546, having married Iſabel, daughter of ſir William Dennis, knight, by whom he had iſſue a ſon and heir,

Sir Richard Berkeley, who received the honour of knighthood Aug. 1, 1574. He married two wives, viz. Elizabeth, daughter of ſir William Read, of Glouceſter, knight, and Elianor, daughter of Robert Jermie, of Norfolk, eſq; and relict of ſir Robert Roe, knight, and alderman of London. By the former he had iſſue two ſons, Henry and William; and three daughters, Elizabeth, Mary, and Catherine; and dying in 1604, was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon,

Henry Berkeley, eſq; who dying Feb. 7, 1607, left iſſue by his wife Mariel, or Myrriel, daughter of Thomas Throckmorton, of Coughton in Warwickſhire, eſq; an only ſon,

Richard Berkeley, eſq; who had two wives, Mary, daughter of Robert Roe, eſq; by whom he had a ſon Maurice; and Jane, daughter of Thomas Mariet, of Berkſhire, by whom he had no iſſue. He deceaſed May 12, 1661, and was ſucceeded by his grandſon Richard, ſon of ſir Maurice Berkeley, who died in his father's life-time, in 1654. This ſir Maurice was twice married, firſt to Elizabeth, daughter of ſir Edward Coke, lord chief juſtice of the king's bench, by whom he had one daughter Frances, who died in 1660, without iſſue; ſecondly, to Mary, daughter of ſir George Tipping, of the county of Oxford, knight, by whom he had iſſue the ſaid

Richard Berkeley, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Symes, of Frampton Cotterel in Glouceſterſhire, eſq; by whom, at his death in 1671, he had iſſue two ſons, George, and John-Symes.

George Berkeley, eſq; married Jane, daughter of Maurice Berkeley, viſcount Fitz-Harding, and died without iſſue in 1685, and was ſucceeded by his brother,

John-

John-Symes Berkeley, who married firſt, Suſan, daughter and ſole heireſs of ſir Thomas Fowles, knight, banker, and citizen of London, but by her, who died in 1696, had no iſſue. His ſecond wife was Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of Walter Norborne, of Caln in Wiltſhire, eſq; (by his wife Frances, daughter and coheir of ſir Edmund Bacon, of Redgrave in Suffolk, baronet,) and relict of Edward viſcount Hereford, by whom he had iſſue a ſon Norborne, and a daughter Elizabeth, married to Charles-Noel, duke of Beaufort, by whom ſhe is mother of the preſent duke of Beaufort.

Norborne Berkeley, eſq; claiming the barony of Botetourt, which had long been in abeyance, after a ſolemn hearing in the houſe of peers, had his claim allowed; and his majeſty was pleaſed to ſummon him to parliament, as baron Botetourt, by deſcent, 5 Geo. 3. While his lordſhip was a commoner, he ſerved in the 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th parliaments of Great Britain, as knight of the ſhire for the county of Glouceſter; and upon his preſent majeſty's acceſſion to the throne, was appointed groom of the bed-chamber, which he reſigned when he took his ſeat in the houſe of peers. In 1768, the government of Virginia was committed to his care, and during his reſidence in that colony, he was ſeized with a fever, of which he died, unmarried, greatly lamented by all, in 1770, and in the 53d year of his age. He was ſucceeded in this eſtate by his ſiſter,

Elizabeth, dutcheſs dowager of Beaufort, who is the preſent lady of the manor of Stoke Giffard. The Beaufort arms are given under Badminton. Her grace's paternal coat is thus blazoned, Gules, a chevron ermine, between ten croſſes pattee (ſix above, and four below) argent.

HAMLETS. 1. Great Stoke, of which already.

2. Little Stoke.

3. Harris Stoke. Elias de Filton was ſeized of Stoke Herry 4 E. 3. Edward Blount and Margaret his wife were ſeized of the manor of Harriſtoke 4 R. 2. Sir Thomas Fitz-Nichols held the ſame manor 7 R. 2. and Thomas Fitz-Nichols, ſon of ſir Thomas, was ſeized thereof 6 H. 5. John Browning, ſon of John, was ſeized alſo of this manor 8 H. 5.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is in the deanery of Briſtol, but in the dioceſe of Glouceſter. It is a vicarage, valued at 6*l.* in 1534; and now of the clear value of 20*l.* 12*s.* 5*d.* It was antiently appropriated to the priory of Little Malvern in Worceſterſhire, for which John Giffard was ſeized of the advowſon, in truſt, 20 E. 1. The dutcheſs dowager of Beaufort is patroneſs, and the reverend Mr. Shute is the preſent incumbent.

The church is ſaid to be dedicated to St. Michael. It is neatly and uniformly pewed, and has a north aile ſeparated from the nave by two fluted pillars, and as many pillaſters, with capitals. The inhabitants of one part of the pariſh bury at Stapleton; and others bury at Almondſbury.

Firſt fruits £.			Synodals £.	0	1 0
Tenths —			Pentecoſt.	0	1 6
Procurations	0	6 8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a monument againſt the ſouth wall of the chancel, with the following inſcriptions, on two plates of braſs:

TO RICHARD BERKELEY ESQ^r AND MARY HIS WIFE (DAUGHTER OF ROBERT ROB OF LONDON, ESQ^r) HIS DEARE FATHER AND MOTHER, A DUE TO THEIR LOVE, OF WHOM ROBERT BERKELEY THEIR YOUNGEST SON AND ONLY NOW LIVING HATH SET UP THIS REMEMBRANCE OF THEM.

SHEE WHEN SHEE HAD PASSED NEARE 36 YEARES IN THE EXERCISE OF RELIGIOVS AND MORALL DUTIES, AND THEY BOATH HAD LIVED TOGETHER ALMOST HALFE A YEARE UPWARDS OF 17 (WITHOVT KNOWEING THE OTHER 2: WHOSE COMFORTS THEY ENVYED) DIED THE 24^th OF IVLY IN THE YEARE OF OVR LORD 1615.

HEE LIVED VPWARDS OF 46 YERES AFTER AND DYED IN THE 83^d YERE OF HIS AGE THE 12^th DAY OF MAY 1661: THEIRE SOVLES ARE IN HEAVEN, THEIRE BODIES LYE HERE: HERE HEE LAYD HERS, AND HERE WHEN DEATH SHOVLD DIVIDE HIM HIS WILL WAS HIS BODIE SHOVLD BE LAID, TRUSTING IN GODS MERCY HIS SOULE SHOULD SOONE BE WITH HERS, AND THEIRE BODIES IN THE MEANE TIME LYINGE HERE TOGETHER, TOGETHER FROM THENCE AT OUR SAVIOURS CALL SHOULD ARISE: FOR EVER AFTER BODIES AND SOULES TO ENIOY THE ALL HAPPYING VISION.

HERE LYETH THE BODY OF Henry Berkeley ESQ^r SON AND HEIRE OF S^r Richard Berkeley KN^t: THIS BLESSED CHANGE HE MADE ABOUT THE 48 YEARE OF HIS AGE VPON THE 7^th OF FEB: IN THE YERE OF OUR SAVIOUR 1607: HE HAD BY MYRRIELL HIS WIFE (DAVGHTER OF Thomas Throgmerton ESQ^r) DIVERS SONNES AND DAUGHTERS: THE OTHERS DYED YOUNG THERE ONELY SURVIVED VIZ^t. RICHARD, ELIZABETH AND MARGARET.

ELIZABETH DYED IN THE YEARE OF OUR LORD 1605 (IN THE 22^d YEARE OF HER AGE AND WAS HERE INTERRED.

There are, upon the monument, theſe arms, 1ſt and 4th Berkeley of Stoke. 2d and 3d, Argent, a ſaltire engrailed ſable; with this motto, DESPICIT QVAE VULGVS SVSPICIT.

Oppoſite to the above, is a ſuperb marble monument, with the Berkeleys arms only, and upon the table this memorial:

Near this Place
Lyeth the Body of JOHN SIMES BERKELEY Eſq;
(Second Son of RICHARD BERKELEY Eſq.)
Who ſucceeded his Anceſtors in the Lordſhip of this Mannor,
Which has been enjoyed by the Family
For ſome Hundred Years.
He was twice Knight of the Shire for this County,
A N D Married firſt SUSAN daughter and ſole Heireſs of
S^r THOMAS FOWLES Knight,
Banker and Citizen of London,
And Relict of JONATHAN COPE
Of Ranton Abbey in Staffordſhire Eſq:
His ſecond Wife was ELIZABETH Viſcounteſs Hereford,
Relict of EDWARD Lord Viſcount Hereford
And Coheireſs of WALTER NORBORNE Eſq:
Of Caln in the County of Wilts,
By whom he had one Son Norborne,
And one Daughter Elizabeth,
Who are now living.
He died December the 13^th 1736
In the 74^th Year of his Age.

On a plain table of white marble, on the ſouth ſide of the chancel, it is thus written:

SACRED

SACRED
To the Memory of NORBORNE BERKELEY
BARON De BOTETOURT, who was only Son of JOHN BERKELEY Esq^r.
of Stoke Gifford, and the LADY VISCOUNTESS HEREFORD, Daughter of WALTER NORBORNE, Esq^r.
of Calne in the County of Wilts.
In four succeſſive Parliaments
He was unanimouſly elected
KNIGHT of the SHIRE for this County.
In 1760
He was appointed one of the Grooms of his MAJESTY's Bedchamber.
In 1762
Lord Lieutenant and Cuſtos Rotulorum
For the County of Glouceſter, &c.
The BARONY of BOTETOURT having been long in Abeyance,
In 1764
His MAJESTY was graciouſly pleaſed to reſtore to him
Thoſe antient Honours,
And ſoon after appointed him
One of the Lords of his Bedchamber.
In 1768
The Government of Virginia was committed to his Care.
During his Reſidence in that Colony,
He was ſeized with a Fever,
Which on the 15^th of October, in 1770,
In the 53^d Year of his Age,
Put a Period to his Life.
His Body was depoſited
In the College of William and Mary
In the Town of WILLIAMSBOURG.
How much the Virginians ow'd
To his Paternal, and well-conducted Government,
They have gratefully teſtified,
By unanimouſly voting
In their Council and Aſſembly,
A magnificent Statue to his Memory.
Thus were his public Virtues acknowledged.
But how ſhall his Relations
And his more intimate Friends
Who alone could truly eſtimate
The private Qualities of his Heart,
In Words expreſſive of their Grief, lament
Their irreparable Loſs?
Extenſive Charity, unbounded Generoſity,
Ardent Friendſhip, and Affection;
An unwearied Attention to every public Good,
A ſtrict and zealous Loyalty,
The politeſt, the moſt engaging Manners
Gave him an indiſputable Claim
To this moſt enviable Title,
THE FRIEND OF MANKIND.
He directed
Long before his Death,
This plain Marble to be here affixed.
His Friends have only inſcribed
His true Character.

On a flat ſtone in the church,

Here lyeth the Body of John Silcocks of this Pariſh Yeoman, who died November the 14^th 1741 Aged 58.
He was a Man of ſtrict Honeſty,
Integrity, and friendly Behaviour,
And tho' theſe good Qualities
Became extinct with him,
Yet his
Proviſion for an early Knowledge of Religion,
And his great Benefaction to the Poor,
Are lively Inſtances
And will remain laſting Examples of his Piety, and Charity.

Benefaction.

In 1741, John Silcocks of this pariſh, yeoman, left by will the intereſt of 200*l.* to be given weekly in bread to twelve poor people, not receiving alms; and the intereſt of 100*l.* in reverſion, to be applied to the ſame uſe. He alſo gave the intereſt of 50*l.* for teaching poor children to read; and the intereſt of 50*l.* for preaching four ſermons yearly, one on the firſt Sunday after each quarter day for ever.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	167	4	0
Poll-tax — 1694, —		31	18	0
Land-tax — 1694, —		147	2	4
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		110	5	0

At the beginning of this century, there were 42 houſes, and about 200 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 8 were freeholders; yearly births 5, burials 4. Atkyns. There are now about 60 families, and 283 inhabitants.

STONE

IS a ſmall pariſh, in the hundred of Berkeley, two miles diſtant ſouth from the town of that name, five weſt from Wotton-underedge, and nineteen ſouth from Glouceſter.

It is generally accounted but a tithing to the pariſh of Berkeley. The turnpike-road from Glouceſter to Briſtol runs thro' it, croſſing a large brook, collected from ſeveral heads riſing about Boxwell and Wotton-underedge, and forming the Berkeley Avon, which empties itſelf into the Severn, below that town.

Mr. Jenkins has a good houſe near the church.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

This manor is not diſtinctly mentioned in Domeſday, but is undoubtedly included in the particulars of the barony of Berkeley. There are records, however, of the following dates, which mention others to have been poſſeſſors of the manor. Joan, the widow of Robert Grendour, or Grinder, was ſeized of it 24 H. 6. and ſo was ſir John Bar 22 E. 4. But it reverted to the Berkeley family, and the earl of Berkeley is the preſent lord of the manor.

John Sergeant was ſeized of lands in Stone 36 & 47 E. 3.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is in the deanery of Durſley. It is a curacy annexed to Berkeley. The vicar of Berkeley pays 8*l.* a year, and there is another donation of 40*s.* a year to the curate, who has a houſe, with an orchard and garden. About thirty years ago, Mr. Morſe left 300*l.* to purchaſe land, and directed that 10*l.* of the profits of it ſhould be paid to the curate, on condition of his reſiding there; the reſt to be diſtributed to the poor. And by means of this donation, the queen's bounty has been obtained, ſo that the curacy is now worth about 40*l.* a year.

The tithes of this place belonged to the priory of Bradenſtoke in Wiltſhire, and were granted to the dean and chapter of Briſtol 34 H. 8.

The church or chapel is dedicated to All Saints. It is a handſome building, adorned with battlements, and has a pretty ſpire at the weſt end.

There

There were two chantries in this chapel, one founded by John Sergeant 30 E. 3. Richard Lane, the laſt incumbent, received a penſion of 6*l.* in the year 1553. The revenues of it were granted to Thomas Throckmorton 6 E. 6. The other chantry, dedicated to All Saints, Mr. Willis gives no account of. It was endowed with lands in Ham, Alkinton, Cam, and Berkeley, which were granted to ſir John Thynn 6 E. 6.

The benefactions have been mentioned in the account of the curacy.

The public payments, and yearly baptiſms and burials, are ſet down under Berkeley.

Sir Robert Atkyns reckoned 44 houſes, and about 200 inhabitants in this pariſh, and there are now about the ſame number of houſes and people.

STONEHOUSE.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Whitſton, four miles diſtant weſt from Stroud, ſeven north from Durſley, and nine ſouth from Glouceſter.

It is ſituated in the Vale, and conſiſts chiefly of paſture, with ſome good arable land. It was ſo called from the chief or manor houſe being of ſtone, which was not common in the vale. The ſame thing gave denomination to other places, as obſerved under Stanley.

The turnpike-road from the town of Stroud to the next paſſages over the Severn, at Framilode and Arlingham, runs thro' this pariſh; and a canal is now cutting thro' it, to open a navigation from that town to the above-mentioned river.

Mr. Ellis has a very handſome new houſe at Ebley, built by his uncle Mr. Joſeph Ellis, who acquired a large fortune in the clothing buſineſs, with the higheſt reputation, and was in the commiſſion of the peace for this county when he died, in the year 1771. Mr. Elliott, Mr. Reddall, and Mr. Andrews have alſo very good houſes and eſtates in this pariſh.

The clothing buſineſs has flouriſhed here for many generations, to which the fine appearance and improved condition of this country is to be attributed; for nothing is more certain, than that trade and manufactures encourage agriculture.

Here are no antiquities, nor curious plants. The natural productions of the place conſiſt at preſent of grain, cheeſe, and cyder, all excellent in their kinds. But it appears on record, that there was a vineyard in this pariſh above ſeven hundred years ago. The expreſſion is, Ibi duo arpenz vinee, which ſir Robert Atkyns tranſlates two acres of orchard, for he had conceited that there could be no vineyards in England, becauſe our climate is not ſo favourable to the ripening of the grape as ſome others. But that way of reaſoning might be extended to prove, with equal truth and certainty, that melons and cucumbers do not grow in our country, becauſe there are climates that ſuit them better.

Here are two fairs in the year, one on the 1ſt of May, the other on the 10th of October.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

The following is a tranſlation from Domeſday:

'William de Ow holds Stanhus in Blachelew 'hundred. Tovi held it in the time of king 'Edward. There were ſeven hides. In demean 'are two plow-tillages, and twenty-one villeins, 'and nine bordars, with twenty plow-tillages. 'There are four ſervi, and two mills of 17*ſol.* and '6 den. There are two arpenz of vineyard. It is 'worth and was worth 8*l.* This manor pays tax.' Domeſday, p. 73.

This manor was held of the biſhop of Worceſter. John Giffard of Brimpsfield had a grant of free warren in Stonehouſe 9 E. 1. Upon the attainder of another John Giffard, the laſt male heir of that family, in the reign of king Edward the Second, Stonehouſe came to the crown, and was granted to John lord Maltravers by king Edward the Third, who procured a releaſe and confirmation from John Calew, heir to the Giffards by one of their daughters, 4 E. 3. But John lord Maltravers incurring the king's diſpleaſure by committing certain miſdemeanours, his lands were ſeized by the crown, and Stonehouſe was granted to Maurice de Berkeley, after the death of Margaret Giffard 11 E. 3.

The lord Maltravers being ſoon afterwards reſtored to the king's favour, and to his eſtates, joins with Agnes his wife in levying a fine of this manor to the uſe of themſelves in ſpecial taille, the remainder to the right heirs of the lord Maltravers, 30 E. 3. and he died in the 31ſt year of that king. Another John lord Maltravers, with the before-mentioned Agnes, levied a fine of this manor to the uſe of themſelves in taille; the remainder to John, ſon of Richard earl of Arundel, and to Eleanor the wife of John in taille, for John Fitz-Alan, ſecond ſon of Richard earl of Arundel, had married Eleanor, the daughter of John lord Maltravers, and ſiſter and heireſs of Henry lord Maltravers, whereby the manor of Stonehouſe came by deſcent to the Fitz-Alans, earls of Arundel, deſcended from Alan lord of Clun in Shropſhire, who came into England with king William the Conqueror; for John Fitz-Alan, grandſon[k] of John and of Eleanor, came to be earl of Arundel, by the death of Thomas earl of Arundel without iſſue. The before-mentioned Eleanor Maltravers married to her ſecond huſband Reginald Cobham the elder, of Sternbrugh, by whom ſhe had no iſſue; and ſurviving him, died ſeized of Stonehouſe, Shurdington, and other eſtates in this county, 6 H. 4.

[k] Sir Robert Atkyns ſays ſon of John in this place; but he has made him to be the grandſon, who became lord Arundel after the death of Thomas earl of Arundel, in his account of theſe perſons under King's Stanley.

This eſtate continued for ſeveral generations in the earls of Arundel. Thomas earl of Arundel died ſeized of it 16 H. 8. and was ſucceeded by his ſon William earl of Arundel, upon whoſe death 35 H. 8. livery was granted to Henry earl of Arundel, ſon of William.

This manor came ſoon afterwards to the Sandford family. William Sandford was ſeized of it 9 Eliz. and in that year aſſigned it to William Fowler, who died ſeized of it 41 Eliz. as appears by the eſcheator's inquiſition taken that year. Daniel Fowler, his ſon and heir, was upwards of thirty years old at his father's death, and was lord of the manor in the year 1608. Daniel Fowler was his ſon and heir, whoſe daughter and heireſs, Mary, was married to Thomas Smyth, eſq; of the family of that name then reſiding at Nibley in this county, who, in her right, was lord of this manor, and was ſucceeded by Thomas Smyth, his ſon and heir, who died in 1684. He left a daughter and heireſs, married to Mr. Ball of London, whereby the manor paſſed into another name; and Mrs. Ball, widow of Robert Ball, eſq; is the preſent lady of the manor. The family arms of Ball, as I find them in the church, are, A lion rampant, holding a ball or roundlet in his dexter paw.

The hamlets of Ebley and Weſtrip lie partly in this pariſh. Richard, ſon of John Browning, was ſeized of Ebbelegh 2 H. 4.

William Elland and his wife levied a fine of lands in Stonehouſe and Ebley to Robert Kyll 7 H. 7. John Stanſhaw and Humphry his brother joined in levying a fine of lands in Stonehouſe 12 H. 7. The abbey of Glouceſter had a water mill here, and a fulling mill, called Coneham Mill, with ſome lands, 8 H. 8. A meſſuage and a mill in Stonehouſe belonged to the priory of Lanthony, and were granted to the city of Glouceſter 34 H. 8.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage endowed, in the deanery of its own name, worth 180*l.* a year. It is in the immediate preſentation of the crown, and the rev. John Pettat, M. A. is the preſent incumbent.

The advowſon formerly belonged to the nunnery of Hellenſtow, to which houſe the vicar paid 6*l.* a year, and the ſame annual ſum is ſtill due to the crown.

Twenty-one acres of paſture, and ten of arable land, belong to the glebe.

The church is dedicated to St. Cyril, and has a low tower at the weſt end, in which are ſix bells. It was newly roofed, leaded, and otherwiſe beautified, and repaired, in 1713. And I find the following memorandum in the regiſter: The congregation being much larger than the church would receive with convenience, and the church itſelf darkened and deformed by two galleries in the midſt of it; in the year 1746 I built a new iſle, with ſtone from Dovro wood, which was given by Robert Ball, eſq; and brought gratis to the church-yard by Mr. Richard Merret of Ebley; beſides this, I had great encouragement by fair promiſes, but no other aſſiſtance, ſo that the building coſt me above 150l. which I ſhall think well laid out, if it ſerves, as I intended it ſhould, to the Glory of God, the convenience of the people, and for the benefit of my ſucceſſors. S. Harris.

The miniſter receives an annual ſum for the pews in this aile.

Firſt fruits	£. 22	0	0	Synodals	£. 0	2	0
Tenths —	2	4	0	Pentecoſt.	0	0	9
Procurations	0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

On a flat ſtone in the chancel,

Hic Jacet Thomas Smyth de Stonehouſe in Comitatu Glouc. Armiger, Obijt Sexto die Martij Anno Ætatis ſuæ Sexageſimo tertio, Annoq; Salutis 1684.

There is a ſcutcheon at top, containing three coats palewiſe. 1. Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, A lure; 2d and 3d, obliterated. 2. On a chevron between ſeven [by miſtake for ſix] croſſes paty fitchy 4 and 3, three fleurs de lis, for Smyth. 3. A lion rampant holding in his dexter paw a roſe.

Againſt the ſouth wall of the chancel,

In Memory of Mary y^e^ Wife of Thomas Smyth of Stonehouſe Gent. who departed this Life the Firſt day of October in the Yeare of our Lord God 1675.

Reſurgam
Solus Chriſtus Mihi Sola Salus.

Near this place alſo lies y^e^ Body of Mary y^e^ Wife of John Ball of London Gent. & Daughter of y^e^ s^d^ Thomas Smyth by the abovementioned Mary his Wife, who died y^e^ 15^th^ of June 1703.

The Smyths arms on this monument are, Azure, on a chevron between ſix croſſes paty fitchy Or, three fleurs de lis of the field.

Againſt the ſame wall,

In Memory of Anſelm Fowler of Moorehalls in this Pariſh Gent. who died Auguſt y^e^ 4^th^ in the Yeare 1700, in the 63^d^ Year of his Age.

Alſo in memory of Rebeccah his Wife, and Daughter of Henry Partridge Gent. who died March the 18^th^ in the year 1707, being about the 75^th^ Year of her Age.

Arms at top, Baron and femme, 1. Quarterly azure and Or, in the firſt a lure of the ſecond. This coat was granted to Daniel Fowler of this pariſh, ſon of William Fowler, by William Camden, Clarencieux King at Arms, Mar. 13, 1606. 2. Checky argent and ſable, on a bend gules three eſcallops Or, for Partridge.

Upon a flat ſtone,

Here lyeth the Body of John Ball, Eſq; Son of John Ball of London Gent. by Mary his Wife, Exempt & Captain of his Majeſties 1ſt Troop of Horſe Guards, who departed this life the 31^ſt^ of July 1729, in the 32 year of his Age.

Arms at top, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, A lion rampant holding a ball or roundlet in his dexter paw. 2d and 3d, Smyth, as before.

On another flat ſtone,

Underneath are depoſited the Remains of Robert Ball, Eſq; Lord of this Manor. A Gentleman of refined Senſe and Politeneſs; a Magiſtrate of diſtinguiſhed Abilities, and an affectionate Huſband, Father, and Friend. He died Oct. 19, 1760, aged 51. Alſo Robert his Son, aged 5 Months.

Arms, Baron and femme, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Ball. 2d and 3d, Smyth. 2. A chevron between three croſſes paty, in chief a quarterfoil.

Upon a monument in the church-yard, incloſed within paliſadoes, is this inſcription:

This Monument is erected to perpetuate the Memory
Of the late Rev^d^ Samſon Harris M. A.
(Thirty five Years Vicar of this Pariſh)
A Divine
Eminently diſtinguiſhed for his exemplary piety
Learning, and indefatigable Diligence
In the Work of the Miniſtry:
Deeply impreſſed with the ſacred Truths of the Goſpel,
He recommended them to others with with a moſt perſwaſive Energy, & truly Xtian Example, Diſplaying

In his own Conduct the moſt lively Evidence of Sincerity,
His whole Life being one continued Practice
Of every Chriſtian and Social Virtue.
He died deſervedly lamented Nov^r. 10^th 1763;
in the 66^th Year of his Age.
Reader, Go, & imitate.

On the other ſide is this inſcription:

Here alſo is inter'd the Body of Sophia Relict of the late Rev^d Samſon Harris, who departed this Life April 10^th 1767, in the 80^th Year of her Age.

Another tomb, likewiſe incloſed with paliſadoes, bears the following inſcription:

This Monument is erected in ſincere regard to the Memory of M^rs Sophia Pettat, late Wife of the Rev^d John Pettat, the preſent Vicar of y^e Pariſh And Niece to his worthy Predeceſſor y^e Rev^d Samſon Harris.
The unaffected Piety and Affability
Which regulated her Conduct Might reflect ample Evidence to the Value of her Character
Did not reſpect to that Modeſty
Which ſhunn'd all public Teſtimony to her Merits check the Enlargement of this Tribute
Even to her lifeleſs Remains.
The Submiſſion and Fortitude
With which ſhe ſuſtained the Torture
Of a long and painful Illneſs, Until Patience had her perfect Work, gave amazing Proofs of the Amiableneſs of her Temper;
And ſtrongly illuſtrated the comforts
Of the Chriſtian Hope.
By the Merciful Call of divine Providence
She was admitted to that Place
Where the Weary be at reſt
April the 24^th 1764:
Aged 24 Years.

Cloſe to the above, upon a tomb,

Underneath this Tomb are depoſited the Remains of Thomas Pettat, Eſq; late of this Pariſh, who departed this Life the firſt Day of February 1767, aged 78 Years. Alſo are depoſited the Remains of Catherine late Wife of the above Thomas Pettat, who departed this Life the Sixth Day of May 1766, aged 66 Years.

On another tomb,

In Memory of
ROBERT RATCLIFF B. D.
Born in Devonſhire, Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford
Chaplain to the forces of King Charles & King Iames y^e Second
In America, in which he lived ten Years
By Royal Licence of King Charles the Second
And Direction of the Biſhop of London
Conſtituted the Epiſcopal Miniſter at Boſton in New England
(where he founded a Church)
And in the Iſland of Saint Chriſtophers
Chaplain to their Majeſties houſhold
Vicar of Stonehouſe eighteen } Years And Rector of Coln-Rogers ten } who departed this life Ian: y^e 7^th
Anno { Salutis } 1707
{ Ætatis Suæ } 53.

On the top of the ſame tomb, engraven on braſs,

In Memory of JOHN RATCLIFF D. D.
Maſter of Pembroke College Oxford and Prebendary of Glouceſter, the laſt Survivor of the Deſcendants of ROBERT RATCLIFF, B. D. and MARY his Wife, He departed this Life
July 13^th 1775 Aged 76 Years and lies Interred in the Pariſh Church of S^t. Mary de Crypt in the City of Glouceſter.

On the other ſide of the tomb,

Here alſo lieth Interred three Children of Robert Ratcliff and Mary his Wife

Viz. Richard, Mary, Anne } Buried { Nov. 10^th, Dec. 9^th, Nov. 13^th } An° Do^mi { 1701, 1704, 1707

Alſo by this Tomb lyeth the Body of Robert Eldeſt Son of Mr. Robert Ratcliff late Vicar of Stonehouſe who departed this life the 26 day of July 1711
Aged 14 Years.

Arms, Baron and femme, 1. [Argent] a bend ingrailed [ſable] for Ratcliff. 2. A feſs between three creſcents, ſuppoſed for Hodges.

There was a handſome monument erected in the church-yard, in the year 1776, which is now taken down to be repaired. Upon one table was the following memorial:

This Monument is erected to the Memory of JOSEPH ELLIS, Eſq^r.
of Ebley in this Pariſh, who died greatly regretted
Sep^r. 3^d, 1771, Aged 53, at Spa in Germany; and his Remains lie interred in the Chancel of the Proteſtant Chapel of Olne, in the adjacent Dutch Territory.

On the other table, this inſcription:

Beneath this Tomb are interred the Remains of CHRISTIAN ELLIS,
Widow and Relict of JOSEPH ELLIS, Eſq^r.
of Ebley in this Pariſh, to whoſe Memory
ſhe erected this Tomb.
She died March 28^th 1776, in the 57^th Year of her Age.

On the north ſide of the church-yard, incloſed within iron rails, is a handſome marble tomb, in memory of Giles Naſh, eſq; who ſerved the office of high ſheriff of this county in the year 1764, and was for many years in the commiſſion of the peace. He departed this life the 12th of January, 1767, aged 63. This gentleman, for a long time, employed a very large fortune in the clothing buſineſs, with the greateſt honour and integrity, and was ſuppoſed to be the beſt ſcarlet dyer in the kingdom. There are alſo two old tombs adjoining, in memory of perſons of this reſpectable family.—Sir Nathaniel Naſh, knight, (the laſt of his name and family) younger brother of the late Giles Naſh, eſq; and for ſome years alderman of Caſtle-baynard ward, in the city of London, died Auguſt 28th, 1769, and his remains are depoſited in the ſame grave with his lady, in St. Paul's cathedral.

Benefactions.

In the year 1775, the principal inhabitants raiſed upwards of 600*l.* by ſubſcription, for the eſtabliſhment of two ſchools, one at each end of the pariſh, for teaching the poor children to read, and inſtructing them in the principles of the Chriſtian religion. Some part of the money has been ſince laid out in the purchaſe of a ſchool-houſe, with an orchard adjoining; and the remainder placed out on government ſecurity, and the intereſt duly applied to the maintenance of thoſe ſchools, wherein about forty children are taught by this charity.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 155	12	8
Poll-tax — 1694, —	42	9	0
Land-tax — 1694, —	268	18	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	196	1	0

About the beginning of this century, there were, according to ſir Robert Atkyns, 100 houſes in the pariſh, and about 500 inhabitants, of whom 30 were reputed to be freeholders; yearly births 18, burials 16. But by an accurate ſurvey, taken a few years ago, the people were found to be increaſed to 759.

****

S T O W.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Slaughter, ten miles diſtant ſouth from Campden, nine north-weſt from Burford in Oxfordſhire, and twenty-five north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

Stow, in the Saxon language, ſignifies a Dwelling. It is ſometimes called Stow on the Wold, becauſe it lies in the high Coteſwold country; but in antient deeds it is written Edwardeſtou, and Stow St. Edward's, for king Athelred gave one hide of land in this place to the church of St. Edward.

It is a market town, ſituated, in a very peculiar manner, on the ſummit of a high hill, about three miles diameter in baſe, and expoſed to every inclemency of the weather, without the leaſt ſhelter or protection. The baſe of the hill is encircled by a kind of narrow valley, and the great Roman Foſs Way runs a little northward of the town.

It is commonly ſaid, that Stow wants three elements out of the four. It wants water, from its high ſituation, and having little or no land belonging to the town, and conſequently no produce of fewel, it is deficient in earth and fire; but it has air enough, which in this mountainous and expoſed ſituation, muſt neceſſarily be very ſharp and piercing, tho' pure, and perhaps, for ſtrong conſtitutions, healthy. The church is pretty lofty, and as there is nothing to obſtruct the view, it is ſeen, like a land mark, from every place for many miles all round that part of the country.

The town is ſmall, and very irregularly built, with two or three mean houſes in the midſt of the principal ſtreet. It has a weekly market on Thurſday, pretty well frequented; and two fairs in the year, held, ſince the rectification of our Calendar, on the 12th of May, and the 24th of October, for all ſorts of cattle, hops, cheeſe, Birmingham wares, linen of the manufacture of this part of the country, and other valuable commodities. The fairs were formerly very large, but are much declined; tho' it is ſaid, that the tolls of them, and of the markets, are at preſent worth 80*l.* a year.

Its charter for fairs and a market was granted in the fourth year of king Edward the Third, and has ſince been confirmed by king James the Firſt.

The turnpike-road from Coventry and Warwick leads thro' this town to Bath and Briſtol, and the antient Roman Foſs is high, and very viſible in many places, for miles between this town and Cirenceſter.

There is a free-ſchool, hoſpital, and almſhouſe in this place, of antient eſtabliſhments, of which further particulars are given under the account of Benefactions.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

At the time of the general ſurvey, Stow does not ſeem to be a manor diſtinct from Maugerſbury, and as both places are connected in the antient record, I have placed the account of them under this head, as follows:

'The church of St. Mary of Eveſham holds 'Malgereſberie at Edwardeſtou, in Salemones 'hundred. There were eight hides in the time 'of king Edward, and the ninth hide, which 'adjoins to the church of St. Edward, king Adel-'red gave quit from tax. There are three plow-'tillages in demean, and twelve villeins, and one 'free man, and a prieſt, having amongſt them 'ſeven plow-tillages. There are ſix ſervi, and a 'mill of 8 ſolid. and a little quantity of meadow. 'In the time of king Edward, it was worth 100 ſol. 'and is now worth 7 lib.' Domeſday, p. 72.

The abbey of Eveſham purchaſed a charter of free warren in Stow, Maugereſbury, &c. 35 H. 3. and had a grant of markets and fairs in Stow 4 E. 3. of which it was ſeized in the 45th year of that reign. It is mentioned, notwithſtanding, in another record, that Thomas de Beauchamp, earl of Warwick, and others, were ſeized of Stow St. Edward, Donington, and Maugerſbury 24 E. 3. but it does not appear on what account, and the manor continued in the abbey of Eveſham 'till its diſſolution.

The manor of Stow, and of Nethercot near Stow, and a yearly rent of 20*s.* in Stow, lately belonging to the abbey of Eveſham, were granted to ſir Thomas Seymour 1 E. 6. and upon his attainder, were afterwards granted to John earl Warwick, 3 E. 6. It was again granted to —— Willoughby; for Henry Willoughby, upon the death of his father, had livery thereof granted to him 4 Eliz.

It paſſed, ſoon afterwards, to the Chamberlains, and the reverend John Chamberlain is the preſent lord of the manor, and reſides at Maugerſbury, a hamlet in this pariſh, under which head there is ſome account of his family.

HAMLETS. 1. Donnington, where lord Aſton was totally defeated by colonel Morgan, on the 21ſt of March, 1645; upon which all hopes of preſerving the king's garriſon in Oxford were loſt. Gilbert de Clare, earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, was ſeized of Donnington 7 E. 2. Livery of this manor was granted to the coheireſſes of Thomas Hale 1 & 15 Eliz. In the year 1765, the common fields here were incloſed by act of parliament, and lands allotted to the rector in lieu of tithes.

2. Maugerſbury. The abbey of Eveſham purchaſed a charter of free warren in Malgerſbiry and Dinington 35 H. 3. After the diſſolution of religious foundations, Maugerſbury was granted to ſir Thomas Leigh. Rowland Leigh, ſon of ſir Thomas, had livery of Maugerſbury granted to him 15 Eliz. It ſoon afterwards came to the Cham-

Chamberlaynes. The reverend Mr. John Chamberlayne[1] is the preſent lord of the manor of Maugerſbury, and has a handſome ſeat in this place, and a large eſtate in this and other parts of the county.

John Rouſe and others were ſeized of lands in Stow St. Edward, and Malgerſbury, 49 E. 3. Lands in Stow belonged to the abbey of Bruern in Oxfordſhire. They were in the poſſeſſion of Richard Jirvis, 36 H. 8. and were then granted to Edward Powell.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is in the deanery of Stow, to which it gives name. It is a rectory worth 400*l.* a year. The reverend Mr. Hippiſley is patron and incumbent. The rector had only a third part of the great tithes in Donnington and Maugerſbury, and the other two parts belonged to the impropriators of thoſe places; but in the years 1765 and 1766, the common fields of both places were incloſed by act of parliament, and then the rector had lands allotted to him in lieu of tithes.

The rectory of Stow on the Wold, and a portion of tithes, formerly belonging to the abbey of Eveſham, were granted to William Wright, eſq; and William Breme, 8 Jac. The rectory pays 5*s.* yearly to the crown, and 20*s.* yearly to the patron.

The church is large, and the tower, which is 81 feet high, and adorned with battlements and pinnacles, ſtands on the ſouth ſide of it. The original church was built in the 10th century, by Ethelmare, (ſometimes called Ailmere) earl of Cornwall, and of Devonſhire, on a ground then called St. Edward's Cloſe, and dedicated to St. Edward, who is ſaid to have been an hermit of great ſanctity, and an eminent confeſſor.

There was a chantry founded in this church 4 H. 6. by William Cheſtre, and dedicated to the Holy Trinity. It was valued at 15*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.* a year 21 E. 4. and the officiating prieſt had a ſalary of 5*l.* There was another chantry, dedicated to All Saints, which was endowed with a meſſuage in Overſwell.

Firſt fruits	£.	18	0	0	Synodals	£. 0	2 0
Tenths	—	1	16	0	Pentecoſtals	0	1 1½
Procurations		0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Near the veſtry door in the chancel, is a marble monument, with this inſcription:

Adeſdum lector, qualis quantuſq; cinis hic juxta conditus, paucis te monitu velim.

Dormit humatus Joannes Chamberlayn Armiger, Vir multis notus, nulli non mirabilis; clarus proſapia, ſed virtute clarior; ſuis multa debens avis, at plura ſibi; fidelis Principi (vel exulanti) Subditus, devotiſſimus Eccleſ: Anglicanæ (vel ſpoliatæ) filius;

[1] This antient family is deſcended from John count de Tankerville, of Tankerville-caſtle in Normandy, who came into England with king William the Conqueror, but returned again into Normandy. John de Tankerville was a younger ſon of the former earl, and was lord chamberlain to king Henry the Firſt. Richard Chamberlayne, ſon of the laſt John, was lord chamberlain to king Stephen, and thereupon aſſumed the ſurname of Chamberlayne. He married the daughter of ——— Galfrey. William Chamberlayne, lord of North Riſton, was ſon of Richard. He alſo was lord chamberlain to king Henry the Second, and married the daughter of —— — Cliſton. He had taken priſoner Robert de Bellemont, earl of Millain in Normandy, and earl of Leiceſter in England, commonly called Blanchmains, who had taken part with young king Henry againſt the king his father; and for that ſervice the king granted him to quarter the arms of the earl of Leiceſter with thoſe of Tankerville, in the year 1174. Robert Chamberlayne was ſon of William, and ſir Richard Chamberlayne was ſon of Robert. He married Jane, daughter and heir of John Gateſden. Sir Robert Chamberlayne, ſon of ſir Richard, married the daughter of ——— Griffeth of Northamptonſhire; by whom he had iſſue ſir John Chamberlayne, who married Jane, daughter and heir of John Mortein, deſcended from an antient family of that name, and whoſe mother was an heireſs of the name of Ekney.

Sir Richard Chamberlayne, ſon of ſir John, married Jane, daughter of ſir John Reins, of Cliſton Reins. Their eldeſt ſon, ſir Richard Chamberlayne, ſettled at Sherborne in Oxfordſhire, where his poſterity continued 'till John Chamberlayne, the laſt of that branch, died in the reign of king James the Firſt, and left two daughters coheireſſes, the elder of whom was firſt married to ſir Thomas Gage, and afterwards, to ſir William Goring of Suſſex; and the younger daughter was married to the lord Abergavenny.

John Chamberlayne, of Hopton in Derbyſhire, was ſecond ſon of ſir Richard, the elder, and brother to ſir Richard Chamberlayne, the younger. He married the daughter of ——— Benſted, and had iſſue Thomas Chamberlayne, who married Iſabel, the daughter of ——— Knifton. John Chamberlayne, ſon of Thomas, married the daughter of ——— Elton, and had a ſon John, who married Agnes, the daughter of ——— Keynes. William Chamberlayne, ſon of the laſt John, married Elizabeth, daughter of ——— Fleming, of Dartmouth.

Sir Thomas Chamberlayne of Preſbury, ſon of William, married Anne Vander Zenny, of the houſe of Naſſaw in the Low Countries. His ſecond wife was Elizabeth, daughter of ſir John Luddington, and widow of ——— Machine, from whom are deſcended the Chamberlaynes of Maugerſbury. His third wife was Anne, ſiſter of ſir ——— Monke of Devonſhire, grandfather to the duke of Albemarle, from whom the Chamberlaynes of Oddington were deſcended. This ſir Thomas was eminent for his many embaſſies in the reigns of king Henry the Eighth, king Edward the Sixth, and queen Elizabeth.

Edmond Chamberlayne, of Maugerſbury, eſq; was ſon of ſir Thomas, and brother and heir to ſir John Chamberlayne of Preſbury. He married Anne, the widow of ——— Moulton, of Surry. His ſecond wife was Grace, daughter of John Strangeways, of Melbury in Dorſetſhire. He was high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire 39 Eliz. and died in 1634. John Chamberlayne, ſon of Edmond by his ſecond wife, married Elizabeth, daughter of ſir William Leigh of Longborough; and having been ſequeſtered for his loyalty to king Charles the Firſt, paid 1246*l.* for compoſition. He died in 1668, and was ſucceeded by his ſon John Chamberlayne, who married Mary, daughter of Walter Savage, of Broadway in Worceſterſhire, eſq; and died in 1691. Edmund Chamberlayne, ſon of John, married Emma, the daughter of James lord Chandos, and ſerved the office of high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire 4 Anne. He died in the year 1755, and was ſucceeded by his only ſon Edmund, who married one of the daughters and coheireſſes of Robert Atkyns, of Nether Swell in this county, eſq; by whom he had a numerous iſſue. He died in the year 1774, and was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon, John, rector of Little Ilford in the county of Eſſex, who married Martha, third daughter of Henry Doughty, of Broadwell, in this county, eſq; by whom he has one ſon and one daughter. This family bears two coats, Quarterly, 1ſt and 4th, Gules, an inescutcheon argent between eight ſtars in orle Or, for Chamberlain; 2d and 3d, Gules, a chevron between three eſcallops Or, for Tankerville.

To the above pedigree, ſir Robert Atkyns ſubjoins, that ſir John Chamberlayne, of this family, was a great ſoldier, and eminent in the court of king Edward the Third. It appears by a record in the tower of London, that the king granted to him, by the name of count Chamberlayne, earl of Tankerville, viſcount de Millaine, and high conſtable of Normandy, a warrant to receive 10,000 marks, which he had lent to the king's ſon in the wars with France. He married the daughter and heir of the lord Harling, governor of Paris, who was ſeized of the manor and caſtle of Eaſt Harling in Norfolk, and of many other conſiderable eſtates in that and other counties. She was reputed the greateſt heireſs in England, and refuſed many ſuitors of the chiefeſt nobility, and with leave of the king, married this ſir John Chamberlayne. She afterwards married the lord Scrope, and had for her third huſband ——— Benefield, of Norfolk; but ſhe choſe to be buried near her huſband ſir John Chamberlayne, in the church of Eaſt Harling; all which was inſcribed in the window of the great chamber of Eaſt Harling caſtle.

ſtrenuus patriæ patronus. Neſcio an legum peritior an pacis ſtudioſior. Juſticiarius veriſſime ſic dictus curiæ ſediſq; Judicialis ornamentum ac decus ingens. Ingenio ſimul & facundia præpollens, Moribus ipſe ille quem ſinguli optarint, ut verbo dicam, omnium vivus deſiderium et dolor mortuus. In hujus tam chari capitis memoriam Monumentum hoc Conjux Relicta L. M. Q. P. pium ſeris nepotibus amoreq; teſtatura. Obiit in Menſe Februarij 1667.

There is a ſcutcheon over the monument, Parted per pale baron and femme, 1. Chamberlayne. 2. Gules, a croſs engrailed, and in the dexter quarter, a lozenge argent.

There is a memorial on a flat ſtone in the chancel, for colonel Edmund Chamberlayne, who died in 1676; and an inſcription upon another flat ſtone there, for Edmund Chamberlayne, gent. eldeſt ſurviving ſon of colonel Edmund Chamberlayne, who died in 1696, aged 52. And upon another flat ſtone, it is thus written:

Quieſcit hic humatus inclytus atq; eruditus Vir Johannes Chamberlayne, nuper de Maugerſbury Armiger. Spiritum efflavit ſexto Nonarum Martij 49 annos 3 menſes 12q; dies natus Annoq; Salutis humanæ M. DCLXXXI.

There is alſo a handſome mural monument in the chancel, and upon the table this inſcription:

H. S. E.
Johannes Chamberlayne
Filius natu maximus Edmundi Chamberlayne
De Maugerſbury in Com. Gloceſtrenſi Armig. et Uxoris ejus Emmæ filiæ Prænobilis Jacobi Domini Chandos
Baronis de Sudely
Antiquiſſimæ familiæ
Quamdu vixerit Decus
Per duodecem fere Annos unica ſpes
Et Proli ex ejuſdem demum Parentibus Ortæ optimum Exemplum.
Oxonii in Collegio Wadhamenſi bonis Literis
Et virtutis præceptis inſtitutus
In Templi interioris Hoſpitio
Patriis legibus fideliter ſtuduit.
Hiſce dotibus ornatus a Burgenſibus
De Rye in Com. Suſſex ad Parliamentum
Electus erat vicesimo primo Æt. anno.
Menſe Februarij 1713-14 ad peregrinas ſedes inviſendas proceſſit
Ut nihil generoſo Animo deeſſet
Vel quod ipſi ornamento
Vel quo ipſe Alijs eſſet Præſidio.
Sed Eheu! Pariſiis Sphaſelo correptus
Deſiderium ſui reliquit omnibus bonis
Parentibus præcipue et ſuis.
Quicquid matura ingenij vis et ſumma potuit induſtria
Optimus juvenis Patriæ Foro et Senatui promiſit;
Quicquid ſevera potuit Religionis Reverentia
Pientiſſimus Filius Eccleſiæ reddidit Matri.
Hiſce Artibus hâc Pietatis diſciplinâ
Nobilitatem veram adeptus;
Et vivere didicit et mori.
Nat. Mart. 30. 1693 Obijt Julij 31 1714
Pridie illius Diei
{Mœſtiſſimæ Britannis Æræ}
Quâ interiit
Anna Principum Optima.

This monument is ornamented with a ſcutcheon, bearing the family arms, quartered as already mentioned in the cloſe of their pedigree.

There is alſo upon a flat ſtone, a latin inſcription for James-Montague Chamberlayne, eldeſt ſon of Edmund Chamberlayne, eſq; who died in 1754, in the 25th year of his age. And another for Edmund Chamberlayne, eſq; who died in 1755, aged 84; and for the honourable Emma Chamberlayne, his wife, who died in 1738.

On another flat ſtone in the chancel,

Depoſitum Roulandi Wilde, Clerici, in ſpe certa reſurrectionis.

H. S. E.
R. Hippiſley A. M.
huj. Eccle. Rector
ob. Nov. xxvi
MDCCLXIV.

On a very large raiſed tomb ſtanding in the middle of the chancel, is engraven the burſt of a ſoldier, and this memorial beneath it:

Sacræ Memoriæ
Inclytiſſimi Ducis Haſtings Keyt Filii Johannis Keyt de Ebrington Agro Glouceſtrenſi Armigeri Wigorniæ Cohortium ex Parte Regis Præfecti, in Prælio juxta Stow 21mo die Martij 1645 occiſi.

Over the buſt, and round the tomb, are ſcutcheons of the arms of Keyt, late of Ebrington.

Benefactions.

Ethelmere, founder of the church, erected an hoſpital in this place, which was valued at 25*l.* 4*s.* 8*d.* yearly, and is charged, in the firſt fruits office, with the annual ſum of 13*s.* 4*d.*

Thomas Belleny, chief juſtice of England, Henry Spelman, and others, were ſeized of lands called the Gleame, ſituate in the pariſh of St. Olave, Southwark, and conveyed them to William Cheſtre, Richard Cheſtre, &c. and their heirs. William Cheſtre, by his will, dated in May 16 E. 4. gave thoſe lands for divers uſes, viz. part for an almſhouſe in Stow for eight poor men and women, and a woman to waſh for them, each to have 8*d.* weekly, but a man and his wife 12*d.* Another part was for the maintenance of Trinity chantry. Theſe lands came to Richard Cheſtre by ſurvivorſhip, having only one daughter, Joan, married to Thomas Bittleſden, againſt whom William Martin recovered in Trinity term 3 H. 7. and he conveyed the ſame lands, then worth 18*l. per ann.* to ſeven truſtees in Stow, to be applied to the above uſes, and appointed 6*l.* a year to the chantry prieſt, who was to keep a ſchool, and inſtruct the children of the town. At length the leſſees of thoſe lands built upon them, and greatly improved the rents, ſo that they now amount to ſeveral hundred pounds a year; and the eſtate is charged with 40*l.* a year for the uſe of the ſchool and almſhouſe. In the front of the ſchool-houſe is this inſcription:

Schola Institvtionis Pverorvm Impensis Richardi Stepham Civis et Mercatoris Londinensis extructa Anno Domini 1594.

Lands in Maugerſbury, worth upwards of 3*l.* a year, are given for the repair of the church; and 5*s.* yearly are paid out of the meadows there, which formerly belonged to ſir James Ruſhout, in lieu of ruſhes, which by cuſtom were cut in thoſe meadows, to be ſpread over the floor of the church.

Mr. Thomas Chadwell, Mr. Richard Hodges, and Mr. Anthony Hodges have given 20*s.* a year each to the poor.

George Townſend, eſq; gave 4*l.* yearly to teach children to read, and 2*s.* weekly in bread for the poor.

In 1690, William Cope, of Icombe in this county, eſq; gave 12*l.* a year for the uſe of the poor, and 5*l.* a year for ever for apprenticing out poor children. He alſo gave 100*l.* for ſtock to ſet the poor at work.

In 1702, lady Juliana Tracy gave 50*s.* a year for ever. In 1715, Mr. Thomas Compere, of London, don, gave the intereſt of 150*l.* In 1716, Mr. John Grayhurſt, of Bledington, gave the intereſt of 50*l.* In 1720, Joſhua Aylworth, of Aylworth, eſq; gave the intereſt of 100*l.* all to be diſtributed yearly in bread to the poor.

In 1744, Richard Freeman, of Batsford, eſq; gave 20*l.* a year for ever to the uſe of the poor. And about the year 1767, Mr. Mince, by his will, gave the intereſt of 200*l.* to buy clothes, to be given, on New-years day, to the nine poor people in the almſhouſes.

The town of Stow, and the two hamlets of Maugerſbury and Donnington, are rated diſtinctly to the land-tax.

Stow.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	46	14	0
	Poll-tax —— 1694, —		54	0	0
	Land-tax — 1694, —		47	2	8
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		32	9	0

Maugerſbury.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	114	10	8
	Poll-tax —— 1694, —		23	7	0
	Land-tax —— 1694, —		82	13	4
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		63	16	3

Donnington.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	84	4	0
	Poll-tax —— 1694, —		15	8	8
	Land-tax —— 1694, —		34	14	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		27	1	3

At the beginning of this century, there were 329 houſes, and about 1300 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 60 were freeholders; yearly births 32, burials 31. Atkyns. I examined the pariſh regiſter, and found that the average of annual baptiſms in ten years, begining with 1700, was 39.1; and of burials in the ſame number of years, (beginning with 1708, the burials not being entered 'till that time) 29.2. Again, the medium of annual baptims for ten years, beginning at 1760, was 36.9; and of burials 23.6; whereby it appears that the pariſh declines in population. And reckoning the proportion of the living to the medium of annual burials as 50 to 1, the preſent number of ſouls will then be 1180, which is ſuppoſed to be very near the truth.

STOWELL.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Bradley, two miles ſouth-weſtward from Northleach, nine northward from Cirenceſter, and eighteen eaſt from Glouceſter.

The great Roman Foſs leads along the eaſt ſide of it, and the river Coln waters it on the ſouth-weſt ſide, on whoſe banks there are ſome meadow grounds; but the greater part of the pariſh lies high, and is of a light ſtony ſoil, moſt ſuitable to, and chiefly employ'd in tillage.

The antient name of it was Stanuuelle. And ſince the little river Lech, in this neighbourhood, which in the Britiſh language ſignifies a ſtone, was ſo called on account of the petrifying quality of its water; it is not improbable that the name of Stanuuelle, i.e. Stone-well, was given to this place, from a ſpring within it, that incruſts with a ſtrong ſtony ſubſtance, ſticks, and other things lying in its courſe. The ſoil is naturally ſtony; and there is plenty of petrified ſhell-fiſh, of the ſmaller kinds, turned up in the fields almoſt every where about it.

Lord Chedworth has a ſeat here, where he reſides. The turnpike-road upon the Foſs runs above a mile along the ſide of the deer park, and his lordſhip's houſe is ſituated about half a mile north-weſtward from it, but the plantations prevent its being ſeen from that quarter. It ſtands upon an eminence fronting to the weſtward, with the river Coln about a quarter of a mile below it, and very pleaſant woods on the oppoſite ſlope, on the other ſide of the bourn. The houſe was built about the reign of king James the Firſt, by one of the Atkinſons, as appears by the arms of that family, carved in freeſtone over the north door, viz. Azure, a croſs flory argent, between four lions rampant Or.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

This ſeems antiently to have been a member of the large manor of Northleach, for which reaſon I have given the extract from Domeſday concerning it under that head; but it may be proper to repeat it in this place, and thus ſays the record:

'Stanuuelle adjoins to this manor [Lecce.] 'There are two plow-tillages in demean, and five 'villeins, with five plow-tillages, and a mill of 40*d.* 'and four ſervi, and two ancillæ, and there is one 'hide in Culberlege belonging to this manor.' [i.e. to Lecce, and not to Stanuuelle]. p. 70.

Richard Martell died ſeized of the manor of Stowell 56 H. 3. and Adam Martell, a deſcendant from Richard, purchaſed a charter of free warren in it 19 E. 3. How long it continued in that name and family I cannot tell; but it paſſed afterwards to the Tames, the elder houſe of which family reſided at Stowell in the time of John Leland the antiquary. Mr. Horne of Oxfordſhire, ſays he, dwelling by Langeley, hath maried this Tame doughter and heir, and ſhal have by her a 80li. land by the yere. Itin. vol. 6, p. 16. Edmond Horn levied two fines of the manor and advowſon of Stowell, 1 & 4 E. 6. His only daughter and heireſs was married to Anthony Bourn, who had livery of the manor granted to him, in right of his wife, 2 Mar.

Stowell paſſed afterwards to the Atkinſons, and Henry Atkinſon, eſq; was lord of it in 1608. He was ſon of Robert Atkinſon, of the Inner Temple, and grandſon of Richard Atkinſon, of the city of Briſtol. Anne, his eldeſt ſiſter, was married to ſir William Wentworth, of Wentworth-Woodhouſe in Yorkſhire; and ſir Henry Atkinſon Atkinſon, the laſt heir male of this family, dying without iſſue, gave this manor to William earl of Strafford, ſon of Thomas earl of Strafford, and grandſon of the before-mentioned William Wentworth.

John How, eſq; purchaſed the manor of the earl of Strafford, and it has deſcended from him in a direct line to Henry-Frederick How,[m] lord Chedworth, the preſent lord of the manor.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is in the deanery of Cirenceſter. It was annexed to Hampnet in the year 1660, by the conſent of the biſhop and patron. Agnes Harcourt, the widow of John Harcourt, preſented to it in 1503.

The church was built in the form of a croſs, but the north aile has been long ſince taken down. Divine ſervice is not performed in it.

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Some of the Atkinſons have been buried in the church; as was John How, father of the firſt lord Chedworth, but there are no monuments for them. Upon a plain marble table, againſt the north wall of the chancel, is this memorial:

In Memory of the Truly Pious the Lady ANNABELLA HOWE, one of the Daughters of Emmanuel Lord Scrope, earl of Sunderland, the Widow of JOHN-GRUBHAM HOWE of Compton; and the moſt Indulgent Mother of JOHN-GRUBHAM HOWE of Stowell in the County of Glouceſter. She died the 20th of March, 1703-4.

Quem ſemper Acerbum
Semper Honoratum . . . . . Habebo.

---

[m] This family has been long ſeated in Somerſetſhire and Wiltſhire, John How, of Stanligth, in the dioceſe of Bath and Wells, by his will, dated in 1529, (to which Henry How was one of the witneſſes) among other things, bequeathed 6*s.* 8*d.* each, to fifteen churches where he had lands, and to three others 3*s.* 4*d.* each.

Henry How was father of John How, gent. who dwelt in the pariſh of St. Helen's London. Which John, by his will 16 Eliz. among other things, bequeaths to his ſon John Howe, his beſt chain of gold, weighing 16 ounces; and to the poor of the pariſh of Uſculme, where he was born, 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* His will was ſealed with his ſeal, a feſs ingrailed, between three wolves heads, as born by his deſcendants. He had lands in the counties of Somerſet, Devon, Eſſex, and in the city and ſuburbs of London; and bequeathed his manor and lordſhip of Hunſpel de la Heies, with many other eſtates in London and elſewhere, to John his ſon and heir.

Which John took to wife Jane, daughter of Nicholas Grubham, of Biſhop's Lidiard, com. Somerſet, who brought him a very large fortune. He had iſſue by her three ſons, John, George, and Lawrence; and one daughter Elizabeth, married to John Bainton, eſq. George the ſecond ſon, was created a baronet on the reſtoration of king Charles the Second; but the title became extinct with his ſon James, who died without iſſue.

John, the eldeſt ſon, had the manor of Compton in Glouceſterſhire, and Wiſhford, and other eſtates in Wiltſhire, by the gift of his uncle ſir Richard Grubham. He was created a baronet in 1660, and had iſſue by Bridget, daughter of Thomas Rich of North Cerney, maſter in chancery, three ſons, ſir Richard-Grubham How; John, anceſtor to the preſent lord Chedworth; and ſir Thomas How, who died without iſſue.

Sir Richard-Grubham How married Anne, daughter of John King, biſhop of London, and widow of John Dutton of Sherbourn, in the county of Glouceſter, eſq; and had by her one ſon Richard, his heir.

Which Richard married Mary, daughter of ſir Henry-Frederick Thynne, of Kempsford in the county of Glouceſter, baronet, and was one of the repreſentatives for the county of Wilts in nine parliaments. But dying without iſſue in 1730, the title became extinct.

John How, eſq; ſecond ſon of ſir John How, baronet, abovementioned, married Annabella, third daughter of Emanuel Scrope, earl of Sunderland, and had, in her right, the manor and ſeat of Langar in Nottinghamſhire, with other eſtates. She ſurvived him, and dying in 1703-4, was buried at Stowell, having had iſſue by her ſaid huſband, four ſons and five daughters, whereof Bridget was married to John Bennet, lord Oſulſton; Elizabeth to ſir John Guiſe, of Rendcombe in this county, baronet; and Diana to ſir Francis Molineux, of Tiverſall in Nottinghamſhire, baronet; but of the two others I find no account. The ſons were Scrope, John, Charles, and Emanuel.

Scrope How was born in 1648, and ſerved in ſeveral parliaments as knight of the ſhire for the county of Nottingham, in the reign of king Charles the Second, by whom he was knighted, and in ſeveral parliaments afterwards. He concerted with the earl of Devonſhire the means of bringing the prince of Orange into England, and on his landing, united with the earl of Nottingham in a declaration of their principles, on Nov. 22, 1688, We own it rebellion to reſiſt a king that governs by law; but he was always accounted a tyrant that made his will the law; and to reſiſt ſuch a one, we juſtly eſteem no rebellion, but a neceſſary and juſt defence. He was one of the grooms of the bed chamber to king William, and was created baron of Clenawly, in the county of Fermanagh, and lord viſcount How, of the kingdom of Ireland, by patent dated May 6, 1701. He died Jan 16, 1712-13, having been twice married. By his firſt wife, lady Anne, daughter of John, 8th earl of Rutland, he had iſſue one ſon, John-Scrope How, and two daughters. By his ſecond wife, Juliana, daughter of William lord Allington, he had Emanuel-Scrope lord viſcount How, and three daughters. Which Emanuel-Scrope lord viſcount How, was appointed governor of Barbadoes in 1732, and died there in 1735; leaving iſſue by his lady Mary-Sophia-Charlot, daughter of the baron Kilmanſegg, three ſons, George-Auguſtus, Richard, and William; beſides ſix daughters. George-Auguſtus, ſucceeded his father, but being killed on July 6, 1758, near Ticonderoga in North America, the honours and eſtate devolved upon his brother Richard, the preſent lord viſcount How, who is an admiral in the Britiſh navy. But I leave this elder branch, and return to John How, ſecond ſon of the before-mentioned John How, and lady Annabella. He ſerved in ſeveral parliaments for the borough of Cirenceſter, and afterwards as knight of the ſhire for the county of Glouceſter, and diſtinguiſhed himſelf very remarkably by his ſpeeches in the houſe of commons, which ſhewed his extenſive knowledge in the laws, and averſion to unconſtitutional meaſures. It is ſaid, that when the partition treaty was under conſideration of that houſe, he expreſſed his ſentiments of it in ſuch terms, that king William declared, that if it were not for the diſparity of their rank, he would demand ſatisfaction with the ſword. In the reign of queen Anne, he was ſworn of the privy council, conſtituted vice-admiral of the county of Glouceſter, and pay-maſter general of her majeſty's guards and garriſons, which laſt place he enjoy'd 'till after the acceſſion of king George the Firſt. He married Mary, daughter and coheireſs of Humphry Baſkerville, of Pentryllos in Herefordſhire, eſq; and widow of ſir Edward Morgan, of Llanternam in Monmouthſhire, bart. and dying in 1721, left iſſue by her, his ſon and heir

John How, of Stowell, eſq; who, on the deceaſe of ſir Richard How, of Compton in Glouceſterſhire, and Wiſhford in Wiltſhire, bart. in 1730, without iſſue, ſucceeded to thoſe eſtates, and was ſeveral times elected one of the knights of the ſhire for the county of Wilts. In 1741, he was created lord Chedworth, baron of Chedworth in Glouceſterſhire. His lordſhip married Dorothy, eldeſt daughter of Henry-Frederick Thynne, eſq; and had iſſue by her ſix ſons and two daughters; John-Thynne How, his ſucceſſor; Henry-Frederick, now lord Chedworth; Thomas; Charles; James, who in 1755, married —— daughter and heir of Humphry Howorth, of Maſelwych in Radnorſhire, knight; and William. The daughters were Mary, and Anne. His lordſhip departed this life in April 1742, and was ſucceeded in honour and eſtate by his eldeſt ſon,

John-Thynne How, ſecond lord Chedworth, who in 1758, was declared lord lieutenant and Cuſtos Rotulorum of the county of Glouceſter, and conſtable of the caſtle of St. Briavell's, upon the reſignation of Matthew lord Ducie. His lordſhip married, on Sept. 23, 1751, Martha, daughter and coheir of ſir Philip-Parker Long, of Arwarton in Suffolk, baronet, but died without iſſue May 10, 1762, and was ſucceeded in title and eſtate by his next brother, Henry-Frederick, now lord Chedworth.

His Lordſhip's ARMS are, Or, a feſs between three wolves heads couped ſable, a creſcent for difference.

CREST. On a wreath, a dexter arm in armour, erazed below the elbow, lying feſs-ways, and holding in the hand a ſcimetar erected, all proper, hilted and pomelled Or, pierced through a boars head couped ſable.

SUPPORTERS. On the dexter ſide a lion argent, pelleted, armed and langued gules; and on the ſiniſter ſide an angel proper, the face profile, with browniſh hair, habited crimſon, the under garment azure, the wings argent, pinioned of the fourth, and ſupporting the ſhield with both hands.

MOTTO. JUSTUS ET PROPOSITI TENAX.

Over the table, in a lozenge, are, 1. the arms of How, impaling 2, Azure, a bend Or, for Scrope.

Oppoſite to the above, on a ſmall marble monument, is this inſcription:

In Memory of the truly excellent Mrs ANNE MORGAN Daughter and Coheireſs of Sr EDWARD MORGAN late of Llanternam in the County of Monmouth, Bart. who dyed the 24th of Augst 1712, in the 35th Year of Her Age.

Her Perſon was Beautifully Agreeable. She had Wit without Levity, Knowledge without Affectation, a penetrating Underſtanding, with a ſound Judgment. She was Pleaſant in Converſation, Modeſtly Reſerved, without Severity; Juſt, Beneficient, Charitable, and Generous. Endued with a Sweetneſs and Firmneſs of Temper above the power of common Accidents, civil & well-bred towards all; but where ſhe profeſſed Friendſhip, in every Part of that Duty without Equal. For ever to be Honoured, Lov'd, and Lamented.

The Lord giveth, and the Lord taketh away. Bleſſed be the Name of the Lord.

Over the monument, are her family arms, viz. Or, a griphon rampant ſable. The ſame arms are given by the Morgans of Fairford alſo, as well as thoſe emblazoned p. 444; for both families ſprung from one common ſtock; which is mentioned here, becauſe it was not taken notice of under Fairford.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 31	7	0
Poll-tax — — 1694, —	8	4	0
Land-tax —— 1694, —	28	0	0
The ſame, at 3s. 1770, —	19	9	0

Sir Robert Atkyns obſerved, that in his time there was only the manor-houſe within the pariſh; and there is only that houſe at preſent.

STRATTON

IS a ſmall pariſh, in the hundred of Crowthorne and Minety, one mile north-weſtward from Cirenceſter, ſeven eaſtward from Biſley, and ſixteen ſouth-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

The village is ſeated in a little bottom, thro' which the Dunteſbourn water runs, and falls into the river Churn at Cirenceſter. The lands in the upper part of the pariſh are employ'd in tillage, and like moſt in the Coteſwold country, are light and ſtony; but ſince the common fields were incloſed, about the year 1771, few places have received greater improvement.

The Irminſtreet, one of the great Roman ways, paſſes through and undoubtedly gives name to this place, for Bede and other antient writers call the Roman ways Stratæ; and it is obſervable, that there are other villages of the ſame name, ſituated upon Roman ways; particularly Stratton St. Margaret, in the north part of Wiltſhire, which lies upon the ſame road.

Mr. Camden was of opinion, that the Irminſtreet was ſo called in honour of Mercury, who is repreſented, in heathen mythology, as preſiding over highways, and was worſhiped by the Germans under the name of Irmunſul. But I cannot help thinking that the explanation of the name is to be ſought nearer home, in the language of our anceſtors; and ſince Þeþe is an army, and Þeþeman a ſoldier, it ſeems pretty clear that Irminſtreet ſignifies the ſoldier's road, and is nothing more than the term Via Militaris, tranſlated into the Saxon language.

Sir Robert Atkyns obſerves, that a buſh called Crowthorn, in Stratton field, gives name to Crowthorn hundred. But from what has been ſaid of this matter under Minety, it may ſeem wonderful that the learned author ſhould adopt a notion ſo vulgar and improbable.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

'Roger de Laci holds Stratone in Cireceſtre 'hundred. There are five hides taxed beſides the 'demean. Edmund held it in the time of king 'Edward. There are three plow-tillages in de-'mean, and ſixteen villeins, and ſeven bordars, 'with a prieſt, having nine plow-tillages. There 'are five ſervi, and two mills of 20s. It was 'worth 8*l*. now 6*l*.' Domeſday-book, p. 75.

The pariſhes of Stratton and Daglingworth ſeem to have been but one vill, when the above-mentioned record was compiled, and very probably were known by both names indifferently for many generations; for tho' we find Stratton in Domeſday, there is no mention of Daglingworth. On the contrary, Daglingworth ſtands in the liſt of vills, 9 E. 1. but Stratton is unnoticed.

Walter de Laci, ſon of Roger, ſucceeded his father in this manor, and gave one villein, one villeinage, and two thirds of the tithes of his demeans in Stratton to the priory of St. Peter in Hereford, which he had founded, and the grant was confirmed by king William the Firſt. Hugh de Laci, ſon of Walter, confirmed the beforementioned donation, and in the year 1101, gave the ſaid priory with all its appurtenances, to the abbey of Glouceſter, to which it thence-forward became a cell.

Richard Martin levied a fine of the manor of Stratton, and of other lands belonging to the dutchy of Lancaſter, to king Edward the Fourth, to the uſe of himſelf for one month, remainder to Elizabeth the queen, to the archbiſhop of Canterbury, and to others, 15 E. 4.

William Caſſey, ſon of John Caſſey, eſq; died ſeized of this manor, and of Caſſey Compton in Withington, 1 H. 8. leaving three infant ſons, Leonard, William, and Robert, who ſucceeded each other, and the latter died ſeized of Stratton, Caſſey Compton, and Wightfield in Derhurſt, 1 E. 6. leaving Henry Caſſey his ſon and heir.

Thomas Watſon died 12 Eliz. ſeized of the manor of Stratton, and left Thomas his ſon and heir eleven years old. Thomas Nicholas, eſq; was lord of the manor in the year 1608, and died in 1638. It came afterwards to the Sheldons, from one of which family it was purchaſed by Jaſper Chapman, eſq; who died in the year 1713. Thomas Maſter, eſq; married Joanna, ſole daughter and heireſs of Jaſper Chapman, and with her had the manor of Stratton, which is now the property of his grandſon, Thomas Maſter, of the Abbey at Cirenceſter, eſq.

Adam de Rolby levied a fine of lands called Mead's Croft in Stratton, to Adam de Stratton, 6 E. 1. Eight acres of land in Stratton belonged to the hoſpital of St. John the Baptiſt in Cirenceſter 33 E. 1. and a conſiderable eſtate in the ſame place now belongs to that hoſpital. Walter Wrilock, and others, granted one plow-tillage in Stratton to the abbey of Cirenceſter, 13 E. 2. William Boys, and others, held lands in Stratton, 32 E. 3. William Nottingham and Elizabeth his wife levied a fine of lands in this place to John Kendall, and the heirs of Elizabeth, who regranted them to William Nottingham and Elizabeth his wife in ſpecial taille, 20 H. 6. Humphry Brydges of Cirenceſter, died 40 Eliz. ſeized, among other things, of a capital meſſuage in Caſtle-ſtreet in Cirenceſter, and of two cloſes of paſture thereto adjoining and appertaining, called Ayſhcroftes; of two meſſuages, two cottages, two tofts, a dove houſe, three orchards, 200 acres of land, ten of meadow, ſixteen of paſture, the Myll Hames, formerly parcel of the manor, and of a meadow called Mayms Meade, alias Our Lady's Meade, in Stratton, then in the occupation of Edward Chapman; all which particulars he gave by will to Anthony Brydges, his ſecond ſon. Eſch.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Cirenceſter, worth about 180*l.* a year. Thomas Maſter, eſq; is patron, and the reverend Mr. Daubeny is the preſent incumbent.

Fifteen acres of paſture, and forty-eight acres of arable in each common field, belonged to the glebe, before the pariſh was incloſed by act of parliament, about the year 1771, when lands were allotted to the rector in lieu of his former glebe and tithes.

The church, dedicated to St. Peter, is very ſmall, and has a low ſlated tower in the middle, with two bells in it.

First fruits	£.	12	7	9	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths —		1	4	9	Pentecoſt.	0	1	1½
Procurations		0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a marble monument againſt the ſouth wall of the chancel, with the buſts of a man and his two wives; and under them is the following inſcription, in gold letters:

Here reſteth the Body of Thomas Nicholas Eſqvire late Lord of this Manovr, and Patron of this Chvrch, ſometime high Sheriffe of this Covnty, and a lover of Hoſpitalitie, who had to his firſt wife, Iane Avdley, worthily deſcended of the antient family of the Avdleys, and to his ſecond wife Bridget Strange, davghter to Michael Strange of Somerford, Eſq; who changed this Lyfe the 14 day of Avgvſt 1638.

Memoriæ eivſdem Tho: Nicholas Armig. ſacrvm.

Hic ſitus eſt Iri ac Crœſi communis amator,
Doctrinæ fautor, religionis honos;
Qui ſatur annorum, famæq; euaſit ad auras
Ethereas, novus & gratus vbi hoſpes adeſt.
Hoſpes at interea ſolitus, ſolita oſtia fruſtra
Pulſat, & eſuriens nunc miſer Irus abit.
Dum ſpectas imitare, fidem ſic exprime factis.
Diuide, da, cura, dilige, talis eris.
Ætat. 63.

Over the man's buſt are theſe arms, Argent, on a chevron ſable between three blackbirds two lions rampant Or, for Nicholas. Over his firſt wife's buſt, Nicholas, as before; impaling, Gules, a fret Or, for Audley. And over his ſecond wife's buſt, Nicholas, impaling, Gules, two lions paſſant argent debruiſed by a bend ermine, for Strange.

In the chancel is likewiſe this inſcription, but now covered by the pews:

Conduntur hic ingentis viri Exuviæ
Radulphi Willett A.M. hujuſq; Eccleſiæ non ita pridem
Rectoris digniſſimi.
Qui præclaro ingenii acumine, eximiis animi Dotibus
Omnigenâ, qua prodeſſe poſſet, Literatura exornatus,
Vel Ruris obſcuritate Emicuit
Haud mediocriter illuſtris.
In concionibus
Doctrinæ Sanitate Bullum;
Concinna Styli Simplicitate, Tillotſonum;
Rationum Soliditate ſe unum Referebat:
Concionator urbi Aulæve Petendus;
Medicinæ Juriſq;
Longe ſupra Sortem peritum fatentur omnes
Quibus, Morbis Litibuſve vexatis, fidiſſimum erat Subſidium et Tutamen.
Quum vero Diu Deo, Proximo, ſibiq; Vixiſſet
Vir optimus, abſq; omni fuco faſtuve Pius,
Senio tandem confectus
Mortalitati placide ceſſit Aug. 20° A. D. 1738, Ætatis fuæ 84°.

Taxes:

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	40	12	0
Poll-tax — 1694,	—	19	14	0
Land-tax — 1694,	—	36	16	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	28	1	0

At the beginning of this century, there were 30 houſes, and about 150 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 7 were freeholders; yearly births 3, burials 3. Atkyns. But the regiſter ſhews that in ten years, beginning with 1720, the baptiſms were 42, the burials 45. And in the ſame number of years, beginning with 1760, the baptiſms were 43, and the burials 58. The exceſs in the burials is owing to ſeveral families at Cirenceſter having ſepulture here. The preſent number of families is 35, of inhabitants exactly 173.

STROUD.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Biſley, betwixt three and four miles north-weſt from Minchin Hampton, about the ſame diſtance weſt from Biſley, and nearly ten ſouth from Glouceſter.

The firſt mention I have found of the name is in a compoſition between the rectors of the church of Biſley and the inhabitants of La Stroud, dated 1304. Sir Robert Atkyns was of opinion that it was ſo called from Strod, which in the Saxon language ſignifies ſcattered, from their houſes being diſperſed at a diſtance. But ſome perſons have taken Stroud and Strand for ſynonimous expreſſions; and it ſeems not improbable that this place obtained its name from thoſe houſes which were firſt built here, ſtanding on the ſtrand or banks of the river Froom, which runs through and ſeparates it from the pariſhes of Hampton and Rodborough on the ſouth.

Froom, or Froome, (perhaps from the Britiſh ffrom, rapid) is an appellation given to many rivers vers in this kingdom. This river has been erroneouſly called the Stroud. It riſes at Brimpsfield, and is known there by its proper name, which it communicates to ſeveral places lying in its courſe, as Frampton, Froomill, Froombridge, another Frampton, and laſtly Framilode, where it falls into the Severn, about nine miles below Stroud.

Beſide the Froom, Stroud is extremely well watered by ſeveral rivulets, ſome of which conſtitute the boundaries between it and neighbouring places. One riſes near Lypiat, and running thro' Todeſmore-bottom, divides part of this pariſh from Biſley eaſtward; another runs through the Slade-bottom, and divides a part from Painſwick northward; a third comes from, and ſeparates Painſwick from Pakenhill on the eaſt; and a fourth divides part of Stroud from Randwick.

The pariſh is in ſome places five miles long, and two broad, and conſiſts of high grounds, and declivities thence on all ſides to the waters, where the meadow and paſture-lands are. Above them, the ſoil being moſtly light and ſtony, is employ'd in tillage; but the upper part of the declivities conſiſts of beech woods, which are continually ſuffering a diminution by the incroachment of the huſbandman, and a deſire of turning the land to a more immediate account.

The intermixture of gently riſing hills and dales, with woods and lawns, produces in this country a great variety of pleaſing landſcapes and proſpects, ſtill heightened and improved by the beautiful tints of fine woollen clothes ſtretched upon the tenters, and villages of good ſtone-buildings, all whitened, every where interſperſed, and almoſt contiguous; ſo that ſtrangers are greatly ſtruck with the proſpects, and think them ſuperior to moſt they have ſeen.

Within the pariſh there is a market-town of the ſame name, ſituated on the ridge of a declivity, near the confluence of the river Froom and the Slade-water, in the midſt of the principal clothing country of Glouceſterſhire, with which it maintains a good trade; but there is not much travelling through it, becauſe of the ſteep hills that encompaſs it almoſt on every ſide except to the weſtward. It is not large, in proportion to the populouſneſs of the country; for the clothiers don't reſide in the town, but generally near the rivulets where their reſpective mills ſtand; whence the Bottoms, as they are called, are an almoſt continued range of houſes and villages, and from the hills exhibit a moſt pleaſing view of a populous country.

This town has a weekly market on Friday, and two fairs, one on the 12th of May, the other on St. Lawrence's day, but now held on the 21ſt of Auguſt, for cattle, &c. the profits of which belong to Mr. Hoard and Mr. Chamberlayne.

One turnpike-road leads from it through Painſwick to Glouceſter; another by Cain's-croſs, Stonehouſe, and Whitminſter to Frampton on the Severn, which is ten miles diſtant; and a third to Rodborough and Hampton-common, where it divides, the right hand branch leading to Tetbury; the left to Cirenceſter, and ſo onwards to London.

The latitude of the town was accurately taken ſome years ſince by the ingenious Mr. Canton, who was a native of this place, and F.R.S. and it was found to be 51° : 44′ : 21″ north.

The trade of this part of the country, tho' frequently fluctuating, is in general conſiderable. They make here a great variety of broad clothes, both for home conſumption and foreign trade, from thoſe of low value to the beſt Spaniſh. Theſe are ſent away either white, or dyed in the cloth; and in particular great quantities are dyed ſcarlet, for which branch of trade the place is noted. The beauty of their colours is very great, to the perfection of which the Froom water has been erroneouſly ſuppoſed to contribute, for it is moſt aſſuredly owing to the ſkill of the artiſt. Many hands are employ'd in the various branches of the manufacture, as in cleanſing the wool by picking and waſhing it; in ſcribbling and ſpinning it; ſpooling and warping the yarn; weaving the cloth; burling, milling, and rowing it; then in ſhearing and dreſſing it; and, if to be ſent off coloured, in dying it; and laſtly, in preſſing and packing it; and moſt of theſe proceſſes are carried on by diſtinct workmen. As ſpinning requires moſt hands, ſome of the clothiers ſend their wool to the diſtance of twenty miles or more, and the poor women and children, for that extent of country, work at this branch, which makes it difficult to aſcertain the numbers employ'd in the manufacture. Moſt of the other branches are carried on at the mills, or at the clothiers houſes; but the weavers work at home. There are in this pariſh eighteen clothing mills, and about thirty maſter clothiers. The editor of the Magna Britannia eſtimates the returns of the clothiers of theſe parts at 50,000*l. per ann.* "ſome making" ſays he, "1000 clothes a year for their own ſhare." What he means by theſe parts is not very certain; but his calculation is much too low, and eſpecially for the preſent time; for the cloth made annually within this pariſh only, is ſuppoſed to amount to near 200,000*l.* and there is one perſon that makes above 3000 clothes a year. Very large fortunes have been acquired in this buſineſs, and it is an obſervation of Mr. Camden's, that ſeveral of the moſt eminent families among the nobility in this nation have had their riſe from it.

This large trade has brought together a very numerous poor, who are not, however, ſo burthenſome in proportion to their number as in many other places. In common years, when trade has been good, and proviſions reaſonable, four levies of 82*l.* each, have been ſufficient for the ſupport of the poor of the whole pariſh; but ever ever ſince the year 1766, ſix or ſeven ſuch levies have been expended upon them annually.

Lands let here at a high rate; paſture and meadow ground from 30*s.* to 3*l.* the acre, and arable from 10*s.* to 20*s.* And conſequently the produce ſells almoſt as dear as in any part of the kingdom, which makes ſome amends to the landed intereſt for the burthen of the poor.

The great trade and populouſneſs of the country occaſioned an application to parliament for a power to make the Froom navigable from this town to the Severn, and an act paſſed for that purpoſe in 1730, but from an apprehenſion afterwards of injuring the clothing mills upon the river, it was never carried into execution. In 1759, a ſcheme offered to obviate all objections reſpecting the mills, by which it was propoſed that all loading ſhould be laid in ſquare cheſts to be placed in boats, two of which to ply on the river between every two mills, and that at each mill a crane ſhould be erected to ſhift the cheſts of loading from one boat to another, through the whole navigation. This ſcheme was tried for a ſmall part of the way, but it did not ſucceed. In 1775, an act paſſed for making a navigable canal from Walbridge, near Stroud, to the Severn, near Framilode; in conſequence whereof a handſome canal, forty-two feet wide, is already cut part of the way, and when compleated, will be of great advantage to this country and the neighbouring parts, by the importation of all heavy goods, and eſpecially of coal, of which there is a great conſumption amongſt the clothiers and dyers. There is a remarkable circumſtance attending this navigation: From Walbridge to Framilode along the turnpike-road is ten miles and two furlongs, whereas it is only eight miles down the canal, which makes it two miles and a quarter farther by land than water.

The natural hiſtory of the pariſh of Stroud may be comprized in a ſmall compaſs. Above the town of Stroud, the hill gradually aſcends to the higher grounds. On the ſides of this acclivity, to the north and ſouth, are two plentiful ſprings, called Gainey's and Hemlock's Wells, that pour out a great quantity of water in a ſhort time. They both iſſue immediately from a great depth under ground; and by obſervations made with a thermometer, the water has been found of an equal temperature, within one degree, in winter and ſummer. The water of Gainey's Well has been lately conveyed to the town in leaden pipes, to the great convenience of the inhabitants.

In Manſel's mead, ſouth of the town, is a chalybeate, mineral ſpring, that tinges lightly with galls, and is uſed for ſore eyes; and above this ſpring, and in other parts of the neighbourhood, in the blue clay, and the earth near it, are found pyrites, in very ponderous, yellow, irregular balls, or nodules, ſome of which, I am informed, have been tried at Redbrook works, and yielded a ſmall proportion of copper.

The higher grounds are every where lined with ſtone, which lies near the ſurface, and conſiſts chiefly of free-ſtone, and what is called here weather-ſtone. The former appears like a congeries of the ovula of fiſh, and the minuter ſhells. The latter is full of ſhells of the larger ſort, moſtly of the bivalvular kind, as cockles, anomiæ, and oyſter-ſhells, tho' many other different ſpecies may be obſerved. In many places the ſubſtance of the ſhell may be ſeen ſufficiently diſtinct, but in general they are incruſted and filled with a hard ſtony concretion, ſo ſtrongly adhering that they are not ſeparable from it. Nautuli and Cornua Ammonis are found in plenty in the beds of blue clay and marle; lac lunæ, ſtalactitæ, and incruſtations are found in the cavities and quarries, and a variety of ſpars in the ſtones every where. But I am informed that there are no plants worth the curious botaniſt's notice growing in the pariſh.

The following anecdote, which ſir Robert Atkyns has told imperfectly, is found in Dr. Parſons's MS. Collections. It is ſaid that ſometime in the reign of queen Elizabeth, the earl of Tyrone's daughter, Florence, fled with her jewels and valuables from her father's houſe, with a ſervant, to London, and there lived privately married to him; but burying her huſband, ſhe came into this country, and married a cloth-worker, concealing her birth and parentage for many years. At laſt, falling deſperately ſick, ſhe diſcovers the whole, and left in money and jewels 1000*l.* a piece to her ſons, and 500*l.* each to her daughters, and was interred in Stroud church-yard.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

Domeſday takes no notice of this place, for when that record was compiled, this was part of the pariſh and manor of Biſley. Sir Robert Atkyns ſays, the Whitingtons were formerly lords of this manor. The Whitingtons were indeed lords of the manor of Rodborough, in the reigns of king Henry the Sixth, and king Henry the Eighth. They contributed to the building of the ſouth aile of the church of Stroud, as may be preſumed from their arms being carved in the ſtone-work of the porch, where they are ſtill to be ſeen; but what eſtate, if any, they had in Stroud, I have not been able to diſcover. The ſame learned author obſerves, that the manor was in his time divided amongſt many conſiderable freeholders; but I am informed that it belongs at preſent to John Stephens, eſq; who is alſo lord of the manor of Biſley.

William Nottingham, and Elizabeth his wife, levied a fine of lands in Stroud to John Kendal and the heirs of Elizabeth, who regranted the ſame to William Nottingham and to Elizabeth, in taille, 20 H. 6. Robert Hill and his wife levied a fine of lands in Stroud to the uſe of John Maſon 1 H. 7.

TITHINGS

TITHINGS and HAMLETS.

1. Upper Lypiat, or Over Lypiat. This manor was held of the honour of Hereford, and was antiently in the family of the Manſells. William Manſell died ſeized of Over Lupeyate, which he had by the grant of Alexander de Domeſbourne, as appears by an inquiſition after his death, 18 E. 2. and Philip Manſell died ſeized of the ſame 19 R. 2. It was for ſeveral ſucceeding generations in the family of the Wyes, who are mentioned by Leland (Itin. V. 6.) as reſiding at Lipiate. Thomas Wye died ſeized of this manor, and of ten meſſuages, two hundred acres of land, ſixty of meadow, one hundred of paſture, forty of wood, and other particulars in Overlypiat, Stroud, Biſley, and Winſton, as appears by the eſcheator's inquiſition taken at Cirenceſter 18 Sept. 26 Eliz. The manor, according to ſir Robert Atkyns, belonged afterwards to Throckmorton, who was concerned in the popiſh powder-plot. However that might be, they now ſhew a room in the manor-houſe where it is ſaid that plot was concerted; but I don't remember that hiſtory takes notice of any one of the name of Throckmorton concerned in it. There was a ſir Nicholas Throckmorton tried for high treaſon, and acquitted, in the firſt year of the reign of queen Mary, who may poſſibly be the perſon ſir Robert alludes to. This manor was afterwards purchaſed in the reign of king James the Firſt, by Thomas Stephens, eſq; who was attorney-general to prince Henry and prince Charles, and a younger brother of the Stephens's of Eaſington. He died in 1613, and left three ſons; the eldeſt was anceſtor to the Stephens's of Sodbury; the ſecond progenitor to the Stephens's at Lypiat; and the youngeſt anceſtor to the Stephens's of Cherington. John Stephens, eſq; ſecond ſon of Thomas, ſucceeded him in the manor of Lypiat. Thomas Stephens, ſon of John, married Anne, daughter of —— Child, of Northwick in Worceſterſhire, and ſerved the office of high ſheriff of this county in the year 1693, and was afterwards choſen one of the knights of the ſhire. Thomas Stephens, was ſon and heir of Thomas, whoſe ſon, John Stephens, is the preſent lord of the manor of Upper Lypiat, and has a very antient ſeat, with a chapel, and a great eſtate in this place, where he reſides.

In the time of the great civil wars, colonel Maſſy placed a garriſon of the parliament's forces in this houſe, which was afterwards taken by ſir Jacob Aſhly, in the abſence of the captain who commanded there.

Richard Arundell died ſeized of a capital meſſuage called Huckevale's Place, with lands thereto belonging, together with Prowle-grove in Lyppiate Superior, as appears by the eſcheator's inquiſition 42 Eliz.

2. Lower Lypiat. This manor was alſo held of the honour of Hereford. The Freames were an antient family, and had a ſeat here, called Lypiat Hall. Robert Freame died ſeized in fee-taille of Nether Lyppiate 41 Eliz. Eſch. Charles Coxe, eſq; married one of the heireſſes of that family, and with her had this manor. He was deſervedly appointed one of the judges of Wales, and ſerved in ſeveral parliaments for the borough of Cirenceſter. He was ſucceeded in this eſtate by his ſon, John Coxe, eſq; who was alſo elected a repreſentative in parliament for the borough of Cirenceſter, in the year 1748, and is the preſent proprietor of Lower Lypiat, where he has a handſome houſe, and a large eſtate. His arms are blazoned under Rodmarton.

There was alſo another Lypiat, which belonged to the knights hoſpitallers of St. John of Jeruſalem. It was granted to John Pope 36 H. 8. and is now the eſtate of Mr. Peter Leverſedge.

Brimſcomb is a little hamlet in the Lower Lypiat diviſion, ſituated in a pleaſant valley, on the banks of the Froom, ſurrounded with woods, and lies in the common road between Minchin Hampton and Stroud. There is in this place an antient houſe, formerly called Bigge's Place, with clothing-mills adjoining, which was the property of the late William Dallaway, eſq; who ſerved the office of high ſheriff of this county in the year 1776, and carried on a large trade in the clothing buſineſs 'till the time of his death, in the year 1775. The lands belonging to it are ſaid to have been part of the poſſeſſions of the priory of Stanley St. Leonard's, and ſome pieces retain the name of the Friers meadows to this time. The arms of this family are, Or, on a bend gules between ſix martlets a javelin.

New Houſe, in this hamlet, is a very handſome building, the reſidence of Joſeph Wathen, eſq; who is in the commiſſion of the peace, and one of the greateſt clothiers in the county.

3. Pakenhill, or Pagan Hull. This diviſion lies in the weſt part of the pariſh, intirely ſeparated from the reſt, by the intervening of part of Painſwick pariſh, which runs down to the Froom, or Stroud river. This manor, and Upper and Lower Lypiat, were held of Humphry de Bohun, earl of Hereford and Eſſex, and of Joan his wife, 46 E. 3. Henry de Dean died ſeized of the manor of Pagenhul 20 E. 1. John Baſſet was ſeized thereof, and had a confirmation of free warren, 28 E. 3. and William Laſborough had another ſuch confirmation in Paganhull 4 R. 2. Thomas Warner died ſeized of Pakenhill 17 C. 1. and was ſucceeded by his ſon William, who was twelve years old at his father's death. To him ſucceeded Thomas Warner, whoſe ſon, Thomas Warner, eſq; died in 1736, and his ſiſter's ſon, Henry Wyatt, eſq; is the preſent poſſeſſor of the Warners eſtate at Pakenhill.

The Fields were an antient family long reſident in this diviſion. Thomas Field, eſq; of Pakenhill, died in the year 1510, and was buried on the ſouth ſide in Stroud church, where his effigy was placed. His eſtate deſcended from father to ſon, down to Thomas Field, eſq; who enjoyed it in the preſent century, and it is now the property of the deſcendants of his nephew, the late John de la Field Phelps, of Durſley, eſq.

4. Steanbridge. In this diviſion Mr. Thomas Baylis has a handſome and ſpacious new-built houſe, called the New Mills, of which he has obliged the editor with the engraving annexed.

There are ſeveral other good houſes and eſtates in this pariſh; as at Griffin's Mill, which is the eſtate and reſidence of Thomas Griffin, eſq; one of his majeſty's acting juſtices of the peace for this county; at the Thrup, the property of James Clutterbuck, eſq; at Gannicock's, belonging to William Knight, eſq; at The Field, near the town, the property of Fream Arundell, eſq; and at Stretford, where Mrs. Gardiner has a good eſtate.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is in the deanery of Stonehouſe. It is an impropriation, belonging to the earl of Coventry, out of which the curate receives 10*l.* a year. In 1722, and 1728, the curacy received a double augmentation from monies raiſed by Mr. Bond, the miniſter, and ſome of the principal inhabitants, and from queen Anne's bounty, which were laid out on the purchaſe of an eſtate called the Radways, worth 32*l.* a year; ſo that, with other revenues herein after mentioned, and the contributions of the inhabitants, the miniſter's income is pretty conſiderable. The inhabitants have nominated to the curacy, but the biſhop of Glouceſter preſented to it on the two laſt vacancies, and the reverend Mr. James Webſter is the preſent incumbent.

This was antiently a chapel of eaſe to Biſley, and in the year 1304, a certain compoſition was made between the rectors of the firſt and ſecond portion of the church of Biſley, and the inhabitants of Stroud, in which, after repreſenting, 'That 'whereas between the ſaid chapel of Stroud, and 'the mother church of Biſley, there is ſo great and 'dangerous a diſtance, that men can't well paſs 'betwixt, by means of which great danger of ſouls 'may very likely happen, in baptizing of infants 'and adminiſtring other eccleſiaſtical ſacraments: 'It is agreed, that at the charge of the inhabi-'tants, baptiſms ſhall be uſed in the ſame chapel 'of Stroud, and a chaplain choſen by the fore-'ſaid perſons ſhall continually remain. And that 'the ſaid inhabitants ſhall take on themſelves the 'repairs of the chancel of the ſaid chapel, and 'that in conſideration of theſe things, the ſaid 'rectors give up a certain vacant plot of ground 'called Area ſeu Tenementum in La Stroud quam 'vel quod Jobes de Pridie pro Certa Reditu hactenus 'tenuit de Rectoribus antedictis,' which plot of ground the ſaid inhabitants are competently to build upon, and to keep the buildings in re-'pair at their proper coſts and charges, paying 'therefore yearly to the ſaid rectors eighteen 'pence as before accuſtomed, and to the aforeſaid 'chaplain fifteen ſhillings yearly.' This compoſition was ſince confirmed in the eccleſiaſtical court, in the years 1493 and 1598. On the aforeſaid plot of ground, it is ſuppoſed the market-houſe and ſeveral adjacent houſes were ſince built. Theſe, with three other houſes in the town, of antient donation, and two acres of ground, called Church Furlong, yielding now in the whole about 129*l. per ann.* ſubject to taxes, are veſted in feoffees, and by an order of chancery in 1741, 20*l. per ann.* are to be paid to the curate of Stroud out of the rents and profits, in full ſatisfaction for all his right in the ſame, and the reſt is left for the reparation of the church, and the ſupport of the poor.

The preſent church is handſomely pewed with Dutch oak. It conſiſts of the nave, with two ailes, and two chancels, with a ſpire ſteeple and eight bells at the weſt end, where are two galleries, and there is one alſo in each aile. The original chapel is now the inner chancel, with a ſmall kind of ſpire, in whoſe baſe hung two little bells, juſt above the roof of the chapel. That which is now the nave, with the ſteeple, ſeems to be the firſt addition to the chapel; but the people ſtill inceaſing, the ſouth aile and chancel were next built, very probably by the aſſiſtance of the Whitingtons, as their arms are placed on the left hand of the entrance, in the wall of the porch adjoining to that aile. So on the right were the arms (tho' now defaced) of another family, who, it is ſuppoſed, were large contributors to the building of the ſame aile. The north aile was built in 1759, by the joint contributions of thoſe perſons whoſe names appear in the liſt of Benefactions, and who have the property of the ſeats veſted in them; but the congregation is ſo numerous that the church is ſtill inſufficient for the inhabitants.

There are, beſide the pariſh church, two meeting houſes in the town, one for independents, the other for the followers of Mr. Weſtley.

Pentecoſtals - - - 6*d.*

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a very handſome monument in the ſouth chancel, with the figure, in full proportion, of a gentleman habited in a doctor of law's gown, and kneeling; and upon a ſmall tablet it is thus written in letters of gold:

THOMAS STEPHENS Armiger legum municipalium Regni Angliæ peritiſſimus, HENRICO et CAROLO principibus Walliæ Attornatus generalis, obiit 26 Aprilis An. Dom. 1613 Ætatis ſuæ 55.

Lege perit Stephanus? væ nobis lege perimus
Omnes peccanti lex datur una mori:
Non periit Stephanus: Fertur lex altera Chriſti,
Quæ Stephanon Staphano dat prohibetq; mori.

In a ſcutcheon at the top of the monument are theſe arms: Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Per chevron azure and argent, in chief two falcons with wings elevated Or, for Stephens; 2d and 3d, Gules, a bend cotoiſed argent a ſable.

Near the above, on a ſmall tablet:

In Memory of Edward Field, late of Field Place in this Pariſh Eſq; many years one of his Majeſties Juſtices of the Peace for NEW MILLS.

T. Bonnor delin. et Sculp.

To Thomas Baylis Esq.r of NEW-MILLS, in the County of Gloucester.

This Plate is Inscribed by his most obliged humble Servant S: Rudder.

Publish'd as the Act directs. Octobr 1.st 1779 this County, who died the thirtyeth day of March, 1736, aged 67 years.

This Monument is erected by Anne his Widow and Relict who was his Second Wife and one of the daughters of Richard Plummer of this Pariſh Gentleman.

There is a ſcutcheon at bottom, bearing Or, a feſs between an eagle diſplay'd in chief, and a buck's head caboſhed in baſe ſable.

Upon a mural monument in the ſouth aile,

In Memory of Rich[d]. Field of Field's Place Gent. and Eliz[th] his Wife Daughter of Edw[d] Hill of Cam in y[e] County Eſq[r]

He } dyed { Oct. 3, 1693 } Aged { 42.
She } { March 8, 1715 } { 78.

Joan[a] Field Edvardi Field Armigeri, de Loco Fieldi, ſupra dicto, Uxor indulgentiſſima: Iohannis Delaberi, Armigeri, de Southam, in Parochia Epiſcop. Cliev. in Comit. Gloceſtr. Filia dilectiſſima, Ob. 15° Maij Anno Æt[s] 63° currente, Redemptionis MDCCXXX[mo].

There is a ſcutcheon at the top of the monument, Party per pale, 1ſt, Field; 2d, Azure, on a chevron Or within a bordure ingrailed and between three owls, as many mullets ſable.

Upon a flat ſtone in the ſame aile,

Here lyeth the Body of Elizabeth eldeſt Daughter of S[r] Edward Fuſt Baronet of Hill Court in this County, and Wife of Thomas Warner, Junior of this Pariſh Eſquire now living at Paynſwicke who departed this Life the 24[th] Day of April An° Do. 1718.

Here lyes Interred the Body of Thomas Warner Eſq; who lived many Years in this Pariſh much eſteemed and well beloved of his Neighbours. He was an affectionate Huſband, a kind Father, a good Maſter, a generous and ſincere Friend, a charitable Benefactor to the Poor, and in all other Offices and Relations of Life, always behaved himſelf with Integrity and Honour. He departed this Life on the 11th of April 1736 much lamented and regretted by all about him.

The arms on this ſtone are, Baron and femme, 1ſt, Or, a chevron between three boars heads couped ſable. 2d, Fuſt, as at Hill.

On the table of a monument againſt the ſouth wall,

In Memory of Sarah, Wife of Richard Aldridge, who died Sept[r] 10[th] 1761 aged 44. Thomas their ſon died Dec[r]. 29[th] 1748; Benjamina their Daughter April 9, 1753; Sarah their Daughter Apr. 19[th] 1757.

The arms on this monument are, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Argent, on a croſs ſable a leopard's head caboſhed Or; 2d, Or, a pile azure; 3d, Argent, a feſs between three martlets ſable.——Note, there are other inſcriptions for perſons of this family name, with the ſame arms.

There is a mural monument in the north chancel, ornamented with ſeveral emblematical figures, and upon the table it is thus written:

Thomas Freame, Armiger, ex cohorte Centurio obiit 18 Aprilis an. dni. 1664 ætatis ſuæ 63.

Non cecidit Frœmus licet hîc cecidiſſe videtur
Ad ſuperas abijt, venerat vnde, domos:
Viua fides, charitas, ſpes, mens ſua firma manebant:
Cætera depoſuit, mors meliora dedit.
Hic etiam Anna Fream Thomæ quoundam Uxor
poſt xxx Viduitatis annos iterum Viro conjuncta fuit Iun. 26° 1694.

And upon a ſmall tablet beneath,

In Memory of Thomas Clutterbuck the Son of Samuel Clutterbuck Great grandſon of Thomas Freame of Lower Lyppiat Eſq[r] who died the 14th of March in the 9[th] year of his Age 1715.

At the top of the monument are theſe arms, Baron and femme, 1. Argent, a feſs ingrailed gules, and a chevron in baſe ſable. 2. Gules, a dexter arm vambraced Or.

Near to the laſt is this memorial, of Freame Clutterbuck (an Infant) the Son of Freame Clutterbuck Eſq; of this pariſh by his Wife Anne y[e] Daught[r] of Francis Sims of Kempſcot in the County of Oxon Gent. who departed this life the 17[th] of July A. D. 1711 Aged one Year and ſeven Months.

M. S.

When CHRIST commands away
'Tis Sin to wiſh to ſtay
Tho' ſoon thy Glaſs be run
For Heav'n thou'rt not too young
For all are like thee there
Go then and be Heav'n's Heir.

This monument is ornamented with the family arms, viz. Argent, a lion rampant azure, in chief three eſcallops of the ſecond.

In the ſame chancel is the following memorial,

Near this place was interr'd John Gryffin Gent. and Elizabeth his Wife in the year 1627. Alſo Elizabeth his Grandaughter wife of John Webb of the Throp Clothier was buried the 31[st] of July 1681. Alſo Elizabeth the Daughter of John Gryffin of this Pariſh Gent. Wife of Thomas Cliſſold, Clothier, was buried the 18th day of October 1703.

John Gryffin of this Pariſh Gent. died the 28[th] of March 1719.

In the ſcutcheon over the monument are theſe arms, viz. Baron and femme, 1. Sable, a griphon rampant argent. 2. Webb, as at Painſwick.

Upon a table, againſt a pillar at the weſt end of the church, it is thus written:

H. S. E.
DANIEL CAPEL A.M.
Coll. Pemb. apud Oxon Socius et Ornamentum
Doctrina potius quam annis maturus,
Parentibus, Amicis, Eccleſ. Anglicanæ, ob pietatem ingenium et fidē carus.
Non modo nomine, ſed et virtutibus
Reverendum Avum Proavumq; expreſſit
Gravis et Urbanus, Prudens et facetus;
Politioribus quibus inclaruit artibus
Phæbæum Medicinæ Studium adjunxit,
In quâ tantum profecit Adoleſcens
Ut alterum Hippocratem Sponderet;
Donec Libitina imperij metuens
Hunc juvenem peremit
Ne de illâ provectior ſine modo triumpharet
Ob. Iul: 30 anō dōni 1709 Ætat. 24

DANIEL CAPEL Dicti Pater
Vir Pius, Probus, Gravis;
Medicus Peritiſſimus, qui Praxin
Non minus ſibi laborioſam,
Quam ægris ſuis commodam ſuſtinuit:
Sed Proh dolor! dum aliorum ſaluti
Attente nimis invigilavit,
Amiſit ſuam.
Obijt die Iunij 27 Anō Salutis Chriſtianæ 1714 Ætat. 55.

Over the tablet are the family arms, viz. Checky Or and azure, on a feſs of the firſt, three lozenges of the ſecond.

There is a neat monument, with this inſcription, at the eaſt end of the north aile:

To the Memory of JOHN HEART of this Pariſh Gentleman, who died the 19th of March 1763 aged 52 years. ELIZABETH Daughter of the ſaid JOHN HEART, by BETTY his Wife, died November 2[d] 1767, aged 21.

There are two coats upon this monument, viz. Baron and femme, 1. Gules, on a chief argent three hearts of the firſt. 2. Quarterly argent and ſable, over all, on a bend Or, three lions paſſant gules.

On a ſmall marble tablet, at the weſt end of the ſame aile,

To the Memory of Tho[s]. Arundel Gent. & Anne his Wife (daug[r] of Tho[s]. Gregory of Hordley in Oxfordſhire Eſq;) He died the 26[th] day of March 1742 aged 48 years. She the 29[th] of July in the ſame year, aged 50.

Fream Arundel their Son, died in the year 1721, aged one year and 6 months. Jn° Gregory Arundel died July the 5[th] 1752 aged 6 months.

In a ſcutcheon placed at the bottom, are two coats, viz. Baron and femme, 1. Sable, a chevron between three ſwallows argent. 2. Azure, on a feſs argent between three ſaltires creſſed Or, as many corniſh choughs ſable.

Benefactions.

I have given the particulars of ſome antient donations in my account of the church, to which the reader is referred.

In 1636, Samuel Watts of London, merchant, gave 200*l.* afterwards laid out on lands in Colthrop, worth 10*l.* a year, one moiety of which by a decree in chancery in 1741, is directed to be applied to the maintenance of a Friday's lecture; the other to the uſe of the poor.

In 1642, Mr. Thomas Webb of the Hill, by his will, gave his houſe oppoſite the church for charitable uſes; and 10*l.* a year out of his lands at Huc-

Hucclecot, for the maintenance of a free-ſchool in Stroud, in which four poor children are to be taught to read, write, and caſt account; 20*l.* a year for their maintenance whilſt at ſchool; 6*l.* a year for their clothing, and keeping the houſe in repair; and 4*l.* a year out of the ſame lands, for two poor widows, to live in the ſaid houſe, and take care of the children. And in 1734, Henry Windowe, eſq; by his will, gave an eſtate in this pariſh, for ever, now worth 20*l.* a year, for the further advancement of Mr. Webb's ſchool; 5*l.* part of the rent, to the maſter for teaching two other boys; 4*l.* to the widows, and the remainder to be applied towards the maintenance, clothing, and placing out as apprentices the ſame two boys.

In 1676, William Hawker gave a rent-charge on his houſe and mills at Badbrook, of 2*l.* 10*s.* a year to the miniſter, and 3*l.* 10*s.* to the uſe of the poor, for ever.

Nathaniel Gardiner, by will, gave 20*s.* a year for ever, to be laid out in bread for the poor; and James Winchcombe, in the year 1731, gave 3*l.* a year out of lands in this pariſh to the ſame uſe.

In 1720, William Johns, clerk, by his will, gave the rents and profits of his houſe and orchard called the Knap, for ever, to the following uſes, viz. 20*s.* a year to the charity ſchool at Stroud; 10*s.* a year to keep the pump at the croſs in repair; 10*s.* a year for ringing the bell at eight o'clock at night, and four in the morning; 20*s.* to keep the church-clock and chimes in repair; and the reſidue to put out poor children apprentices.

There are four charity ſchools in this pariſh, for teaching the children of the poor to read, ſupported by a ſubſcription of the principal inhabitants, and a yearly collection at the church, on which occaſion there is a ſuitable ſermon, and the contributions of late have been liberal.

It appears by a table in the church, that the north aile, with the deſk and pulpit, were erected in the year 1759, at the ſole expence of the following perſons, viz. William Dallaway, Joſeph Wathen, Thomas Pegler, Fream Arundel, Samuel Arundel, Thomas Baylis, Samuel Baylis, Robert Ellis, Richard Aldridge, Peter Playne, William Knight, and Richard Capel.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid	in 1692,	£.	200	10	8
Poll-tax —	1694,	—	100	11	0
Land-tax —	1694,	—	314	4	0
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770,	—	243	10	6

At the beginning of this century, there were 750 houſes, and about 3000 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 100 were freeholders; yearly births 86, burials 84. Atkyns. By an exact account taken in the year 1756, there were 415 families, and 2024 inhabitants in the town of Stroud, and it is apprehended they have not varied much ſince. The proportion of adults, to thoſe under ſixteen, was obſerved to be as 21 to 11, or nearly as 2 to 1; and that of males to females, as 7 to 8. The number of inhabitants in the whole pariſh, including the town, is about 4000, of whom 120 are freeholders. The medium of births for twenty years, from 1747, has been 67 males, and 60 females, in the year; in all 127;—of burials for the ſame time, 38 males, and 41 females, in all 79; the births being to the burials as 16 to 10. And the medium of weddings from 1754 to 1766, incluſively, 36 in the year.

From this ſurvey, as well as from the ſtate of the buildings for many years, it appears that there has been no great increaſe or decreaſe of inhabitants; and that 48 may be ſpared yearly to ſupply the demands of the army, the navy, and our capital towns, without any diminution in the number of people in this pariſh.

SUDLEY.

THIS pariſh lies in the lower diviſion of the hundred of Kiftſgate, near a mile diſtant ſouth from the town of Winchcombe, nine eaſtward from Tewkeſbury, and ſixteen north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

It conſiſts of rich meadow and paſture ground, and is ſituated on the north ſide of that great chain of hills which runs through the county, and divides the deep vale from the high Coteſwolds of Glouceſterſhire. There was a large deer-park here, but it is now thrown open.

The name was antiently written Sudlege, which ſignifies the South Place, from the Saxon Sub, and leza, and has an obvious reference to Winchcombe, which lies a little northward of it. It is pronounced Sewdley, and ſometimes written Sudely, but without ſufficient authority.

Sudley was ſucceſſively the place of reſidence of great perſons from very early ages. It appears by Domeſday to have been the property of Ralph Medantine, or de Maunt, earl of Hereford, before the conqueſt, whoſe ſon Harold, was lord of Sudley, and his ſucceſſors took the name of De Sudley, after the manner of thoſe times.

There was an antient caſtle here, built, as ſuppoſed, about the time of king Stephen. Ralph Botiller, or Boteler, lord treaſurer of England, was created baron of Sudley by king Henry the Sixth, and had an annuity of two hundred marks given him out of the profits of Lincolnſhire, for the better and more honourable ſupport of his dignity, which Mr. Sheldon takes notice of in his Titles of Honour. This Ralph lord Sudley had ſerved as admiral of the Britiſh fleet, and with the ſpoils he had got in the wars with France, rebuilt the old caſtle, and made ſome additions to it; or rather, built a new one upon the old ſcite, for Leland expreſſly mentions that he made the caſtle a fundamentis. One part of it was called Portmare's Tower, after the name of the French admiral, who, if tradition may be credited, was taken priſoner

S. & N. Buck delin 1732

Boyle sculpt 1778.

SUDLEY CASTLE, inscribed to the Right Honourable GEORGE Lord RIVERS,

By His Lordship's most obliged and very dutiful Humble Servant - Samuel Rudder.

priſoner by lord Sudley, to whom the king gave his randſom, which was ſuppoſed nearly ſufficient to build the caſtle.

But ſo fluctuating was the ſtate of public affairs in his time, that the ſubject was ſafe neither in perſon nor property; and the favourite of one reign was generally obnoxious to the ſucceeding. Ralph lord Sudley was ſuſpected of a ſtrong attachment to the Lancaſtrian family, and king Edward the Fourth attaining the crown, cauſed him to be apprehended at his caſtle, whence he was carried priſoner to London. Coming to the top of Sudley hill, he looked back, and ſaid, Sudley-caſtle, thou art the traitor, not I; apprehending the king's deſign of ſeizing his caſtle, tho' he had committed no act that would legally ſubject his eſtate to confiſcation. Accordingly, he found himſelf obliged to ſell it to king Edward the Fourth; and conſtables were afterwards appointed by the crown.

Sir John Bruges, eldeſt ſon of ſir Giles, was conſtituted conſtable of Sudley-caſtle 29 H. 8. and had a new grant of the conſtableſhip in the 34th year of the ſame reign, wherein Edmund, his ſon and heir, then one of the eſquires of the king's body, was joined in that truſt with him.

He afterwards obtained a grant in fee of the caſtle and manor, 1 Mar. and in 1554, her majeſty was pleaſed to create him a peer of Great Britain, by the title of baron Chandos of Sudley; and the caſtle and manor belonging to it continued in his family for many generations.

At the breaking out of the civil war, in the reign of king Charles the Firſt, this caſtle was garriſoned by about ſixty men of the king's party, under the command of captain Bridges. In the evening of the firſt of January, 1642, colonel Maſſie, at the head of about 300 muſketeers, with two ſakers, from Glouceſter, aſſiſted by 80 horſe, and four companies of dragoons, from Cirenceſter, drew up before it, and diſcharged ſeveral ſhot, with ſome execution. The next morning preparations were made for an aſſault, when a party of horſe and dragoons poſſeſſing themſelves of a garden cloſe to the caſtle, ſet fire to ſome hay and ſtraw, under the ſmoak of which the ordnance was brought up undiſcovered. The garriſon then beat a parley, and ſurrendered, on condition to return to their own houſes, and never to ſerve againſt the parliament.

Soon afterwards, Cirenceſter was taken by prince Rupert, and the caſtle fell again into the king's hands, and for a long time greatly interrupted the intercourſe between the parliament's garriſons at Glouceſter and London, through Warwick, which was the only way of communication; ſo that even a ſcout could not paſs without extreme hazard. But in the year 1644, when the king's army retreated from Oxford, before ſir William Waller, the latter ordered Maſſie, governor of Glouceſter, to meet him before Sudley-caſtle. Maſſie came up firſt, and fell in with a party of the garriſon, who retreated within the walls, after a little ſkirmiſhing; and ſir William Waller arriving within a few hours afterwards, ſummoned ſir William Morton, the governor of the caſtle, who refuſed to ſurrender. But an accidental ſhot taking off the head of their cannoner, is thought to have daunted the common ſoldiery, and tho' the governor was an active man in the king's ſervice, and had great reputation for his valour and general underſtanding, he gave up the caſtle and himſelf to the parliament, without providing for the indemnity of his perſon.[n] Nine captains, and twenty-two inferior officers were made priſoners of war, and a quantity of cloth was found in it, to the value of 4000*l.*

At that time it is ſuppoſed the caſtle was intire, but a great part has been ſince demoliſhed. The remains ſhew it to have been a very beautiful building, and according to Leland, the windows of the hall had round beryls in them for glaſs. The beryl is a kind of precious ſtone, of a deeper and brighter red, and more tranſparent that the common cornelian, tho' ſomething of the ſame kind. The fine ruins of this caſtle, in its preſent ſtate, are well delineated in the annexed engraving, for which the editor and the public are indebted to the generoſity of lord Rivers, the preſent owner.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

The records furniſh the following particulars of this manor:

'Herald the ſon of earl Radulf holds Sudlege of 'the king, and Radulf his father held it. There 'are ten hides taxed, and four plow-tillages in 'demean, and eighteen villeins, and eight bordars, 'with thirteen plow-tillages. There are fourteen 'between the ſervi and ancillæ, and ſix mills of '52*s.* [rent] a wood three miles long, and two 'broad.' Domeſday, p. 77.

This was a valuable manor, not ſo much from its great extent, as improved ſtate; for as the richer ſoils were likely to turn to the beſt account, ſo were they earlieſt and beſt cultivated. The ſame Herald was lord of the manor of Todintun, and it appears by Domeſday, that thoſe two manors were worth 40*l.* in the time of king Edward the Confeſſor, as well as at the compiling that record.

The ſame family which held Sudley before the conqueſt, was continued in the poſſeſſion of it afterwards; which is a rare inſtance for laymen; and Harold, who found ſuch ſingular favour with the Conqueror, may thence be ſuſpected of having been falſe to his country. He was deſcended from Goda, daughter of king Ethelred, and wife to Walter de Medantine. Radulf, or Ralph, ſon of the ſaid Walter and Goda, and father of Harold, was official earl of Hereford, and ſo infamous for cowardice, that William the Conqueror removed him from his office.

John de Sudley was ſon and heir of Harold. Ralph de Sudley, ſon of John, married Emme, daughter of William de Beauchamp, and was ſucceeded by Otnell his ſon; who dying without iſſue, his brother, Ralph de Sudley had livery of the manor granted to him 10 R. 1. Ralph de Sudley, ſon of Ralph, had alſo livery thereof 6 H. 3. and marrying Joan, ſiſter of William de Beauchamp, the firſt earl of Warwick, had iſſue Bartholomew de Sudley, his ſucceſſor, who purchaſed a charter of free warren in this manor 51 H. 3. and died 8 E. 1. John de Sudley, ſon and heir of Bartholomew, pleaded his charter of free warren in a writ of Quo warranto brought againſt him, and his claim was allowed 15 E. 1. He was afterwards lord chamberlain to king Edward the Second, and died without iſſue 10 E. 3.

[n] Corbet's Military Government of Glouceſter.

John de Sudley, ſon of another Bartholomew, and next heir to the laſt John, married Eleanor, daughter of the lord Scales, who ſurviving her huſband, died ſeized of this manor, of which ſhe was endowed, 35 E. 3. whereupon their ſon John de Sudley had livery thereof; but he died without iſſue, 41 E. 3. and left Joan and Margery, his two ſiſters, coheireſſes.

Joan, the elder ſiſter of John de Sudley, was ſecond wife to William le Boteler, of Wem in Shropſhire, deſcended from Ralph le Boteler, who bore the office of butler to Robert earl of Mellent and Leiceſter, in the reign of king Henry the Firſt. The ſaid William and Joan had iſſue Thomas le Boteler, who upon partition of his father's eſtate, made 42 E. 3. had the manor of Sudley aſſigned to him, and died ſeized thereof 22 R. 2. leaving iſſue two ſons, John, and Ralph. John dying without iſſue, Ralph le Boteler was his heir. He was created baron of Sudley 20 H. 6. and built the caſtle, as already obſerved, and having ſold both that and the manor to king Edward the Fourth, died without iſſue 13 E. 4. leaving his ſiſters ſons, ſir John Norbury and William Belknap, his heirs.

The manor was granted many times afterwards by the crown to court favourites, and almoſt as often forfeited by the treaſon of its owners, 'till it came into the Chandos family. But to be more particular. King Henry the Seventh granted it to his uncle Jaſper duke of Bedford, and to his heirs male, 1 H. 7. It was again granted to Thomas lord Seymour 1 E. 6. who was created baron of Sudley; and the laſt abbat of Winchcombe being made the firſt dean of Weſtminſter, granted to the ſame lord Sudley, nineteen manors in Glouceſterſhire, for ninety-nine years. Upon the attainder of Thomas lord Seymour, the manor of Sudley was granted to William marquis of Northampton, 5 E. 6.

Upon the attainder of the marquis of Northampton, queen Mary, in the firſt year of her reign, granted both the caſtle and manor of Sudley to ſir John Bruges, who was created lord Chandos of Sudley, 4 Mar. and was anceſtor to the preſent duke of Chandos. His lordſhip married Elizabeth, daughter to Edmund lord Grey of Wilton, and died in the year 1557, ſeized of the caſtle and manor of Sudley, and was buried in the church there. Edmund lord Chandos, ſon and heir of John, married Dorothy, daughter and coheir of Edmund lord Bray, and dying 14 Eliz. was ſucceeded by his ſon, Giles lord Chandos, who had livery of Sudley the ſame year. He married Frances, the daughter of Edward earl of Lincoln, and dying without iſſue male, was buried at Sudley 36 Eliz. whereby his lordſhip's brother William ſucceeded to the honour, and by deed of entail, was intituled to the manor of Sudley. He married Mary, daughter of ſir Owen Hopton, and died 44 Eliz.

Grey lord Chandos was ſon of William. This lord was a noble houſekeeper, and by an engaging behaviour, gained ſo great an intereſt in Glouceſterſhire, and had ſo many attendants with him at court, that he was commonly called The King of Coteſwold. He married Anne, eldeſt daughter and coheir to Ferdinand earl of Derby, and dying 19 Jac. was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon, George ſixth lord Chandos, who was lord of the manor of Sudley. He diſtinguiſhed himſelf by his loyalty to king Charles the Firſt, and had three horſes killed under him, at the head of his regiment, in the battle of Newbury. In conſideration of his exemplary valour, the king would have made him earl of Newbury, which he modeſtly declined, 'till his majeſty ſhould be reſtored to the peaceable enjoyment of his crown. He died in 1654, and left the inheritance of the manor and caſtle of Sudley to Jane his ſecond wife, daughter of John earl of Rivers.

Jane, relict of George ſixth lord Chandos, was afterwards married to George Pitt, of Stratfield-Say in Hampſhire, eſq; whoſe deſcendant, George lord Rivers°, is the preſent lord of the manor of Sudley. Of ° His lordſhip's anceſtor, Nicholas Pitt, was living in the firſt year of king Henry the Sixth. He had a ſon, William Pitt, who lived in the time of king Henry the Eighth, and married Eleanor, daughter of ——— Naviland, by whom he had iſſue one ſon, John Pitt, who was a clerk of the exchequer in the reign of queen Elizabeth. He married Joane, daughter of John Swayne, and by her had iſſue three ſons and two daughters, Agnes, married to Anthony Bennet; and Elizabeth, married to Jonadab Shirley. The ſons were 1. ſir William Pitt, knight, of whom hereafter; John Pitt, who ſettled in Ireland; and Thomas Pitt, of Blandford in the county of Dorſet, who took to wife Priſcilla, daughter of ——— Scarle, of Kayle in the county of Devon. This Thomas Pitt purchaſed the advowſon of St. Mary, at Blandford, and was anceſtor to the Pitts of Boconnock, the earls of Londonderry, &c.

Which ſaid ſir William Pitt, eldeſt ſon of John Pitt, was ſeated at Stepleton in the county of Dorſet, and at Stratfield-Say in Hants. He was employed as a commiſſioner in ſeveral weighty affairs tranſacted 1 Jac. 1. and is ſaid to have been comptroller of the houſhold, and a principal officer in the exchequer, in the reigns of Elizabeth, James the Firſt, and Charles the Firſt; or he was, as it is expreſſed upon his monument at Stratfield-Say, Ærarii Miniſtrum Claſſis curandæ ac Aulæ Sumptibus corrigendis delectum. He bore for his arms, Sable, a feſs checky argent and azure, between three bezants, which were granted to him by the name of William Pitt, of Ewern Stepleton, eſq; by William Camden, Clarencieux, in 1604, and it is ſuppoſed that the feſs checky was given in alluſion to his office in the exchequer. He was knighted at Newmarket in 1618, and died on the 29th of May, 1636, in the 77th year of his age, poſſeſſed of the manors of Ewern Stepleton, and Stratfield-Say, which he had purchaſed, and of the priory of Wareham, the manor and tithes of Little Preſton, the borough of Stowborough, and Redcliff-tenements there, with other very conſiderable eſtates in thoſe

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Winchcombe, worth about 60*l.* a year in tithes, beſides a ſmall manor, lying within the manor of Sudley; and the lord of the manor of Sudley pays 20*l.* a year compoſition for tithes. Lord Rivers is patron. The rector holds a court baron.

There is nothing remaining of the church but the ſhell, or outer walls, (by which it appears to have been a neat building, adorned with battlements and pinnacles all round) except a ſmall aile, called the chapel, where divine ſervice is performed once a fortnight.

Firſt fruits	£.	6	11	4	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths	—	0	13	1½	Pentecoſt.	0	0	6
Procurations		0	6	8

Queen Catherine Parre, daughter of ſir William Parre, knight, was firſt married to Edward Burghe; ſecondly to John Nevill, lord Latimer; thirdly to king Henry the Eighth, (being his ſixth and laſt wife) and fourthly to Thomas lord Seymour, baron of Sudley, and high admiral of England. She died in child-bed, Sept. 5, 1548, and was buried, with much funeral pomp, in the chapel of Sudley-caſtle; of whoſe interment the following is a curious account, extracted from a MS. in the college of arms in London, intituled, A Boke of Buryalls of trew noble P'ſons. N°. 1. 15. p. 98, 99.

A Brevyate of thentirement of the ladye Katheryn Parre Quene Dowager, late wiefe to Kinge Henrye theight, and aftre wiefe to S^r^ Thomas lord Seymer of Sudeley & highe Admyrall of Englond.

Itm. on Wenyſdaye the V^th^ of Septembre betwene ij & iij of the Clocke in the Morninge died the aforſeid Ladye late Quene Dowager at the Caſtle of Sudley in Gloceſtre Shyre 1548 and lyethe buried in the Chappell of the ſeid Caſtle.

Itm. She was cearid & cheſtid in leade accordinglie, and ſo remaynid in her pryvie Chambre, untill things were in Aredynes.

Heraftre followethe the P'viſion in the Chappell.

Itm. hit was hangid w^th^ blacke clothe garniſhid w^th^ Schoocheons of maryagys, vidz Kinge thoſe parts, as appears by the eſcheator's inquiſition without date, and other evidences. He married Edith, daughter and coheir of Nicholas Cadbury, of Arne, by whom he had iſſue three ſons, and four daughters, 1. Frances, married to Clement Walker, 2. Elizabeth, who had to her firſt huſband Richard Wheeler, after whoſe deceaſe, ſhe was wedded to ſir Francis Brandling, knight; 3. Mary, married firſt to ſir Alexander Chocke, knight, and ſecondly, to John Rudhale; 4. Catherine, married to —— Venables. The ſons were 1. Edward, of whom hereafter; 2. John; 3. William, who married Abigail, daughter of ſir William Wake, baronet, and by her had iſſue three ſons, Edward, Baldwin, and William, who all died ſine prole; and one daughter Abigail, married to Ralph lord Stowell. I now return to Edward the eldeſt ſon of ſir William Pitt.

---

The ſaid Edward Pitt was ſeated at Stratfield-Say, and married Rachel, daughter of ſir George Morton, of Milborn St. Andrew, in the county of Dorſet, baronet, and by her had a very numerous iſſue, viz. ten ſons, and four daughters. 1. Edith, the eldeſt daughter, was married to Charles Sydenham, ſon of ſir Edward Sydenham, knight-marſhal; 2. Rachel, wedded to John Kingſmill, of Sandelford in the county of Berks; 3. Catherine, wife of Francis Whitaker, of St. Martin's in the county of Middleſex; 4. Elizabeth, who died in her infancy. The ſons were 1. William, 2. Edward, who both died without iſſue; 3. George, the continuator of the elder branch of this family; 4. John Pitt, who by his wife Catherine, daughter of Nicholas Venables of Andover, had a ſon George-Morton Pitt, ſeated at Twickenham, com. Middleſex, whoſe only daughter and heir Harriet, was married to Brownlow Bertie, brother to Peregrine duke of Ancaſter; 5. Thomas Pitt, who took to wife Frances, daughter of Giles Caſſey, of Compton in the county of Glouceſter; 6. Nicholas; 7. Samuel; 8. Francis, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Jeffery Jeffereys, of Abercunick in com. Brecon; 9. Edward; 10. Chriſtopher.

George Pitt, third ſon, by the death of his ſaid two elder brothers, ſucceeded his father. He was an officer in the royal army during the civil wars in the reign of king Charles I. and compounded for his eſtate at 244*l.* 6*s.* He married Jane, relict of George lord Chandos, and the eldeſt of the four daughters of John earl Rivers, who were coheireſſes of their nephew lord Morley and Montegle; and died 27 July, 1694. He had iſſue by her ladyſhip, 1. George, his ſon and heir; 2. William; 3. Edward; which two laſt died ſine prole; 4. John, whoſe firſt wife was Mary, daughter of —— Scrope. By his ſecond wife Iſabella, daughter of —— Condon, he had two daughters, Lora, who died unmarried; and Iſabella. The daughters of George Pitt, by lady Jane, were, 1. Mary, married to ſir Charles Brown, baronet; 2. Elizabeth, wedded to Thomas viſcount Fitz-Williams; 3. Jane, married to Chriſtopher Hildyard; and 4. Anne, the wife of Frederick Tylney.

George Pitt, eldeſt ſon of George by the lady Jane Chandos, made great additions to the family eſtate, and was poſſeſſed of a noble fortune. He repreſented the borough of Wareham in parliament, and was afterwards one of the knights of the ſhire for the county of Hants. He married firſt, Lucy, daughter of Thomas Pile, of Buverſtock in the county of Wilts, and relict of Lawrence Low of Shafteſbury, and by her had iſſue, 1. George Pitt, his eldeſt ſon and heir; 2. Thomas, who died without iſſue; and one daughter Lucy, who died unmarried. He had alſo a ſecond wife, Lora, daughter and heireſs of Auckley Grey, of Kingſton in the county of Dorſet, and had iſſue by this marriage, 1. Grey Pitt, who died an infant in 1700; 2. William Pitt, who married Elizabeth, daughter of —— Wyndham, but died ſine prole; 3. John Pitt, of Encombe, who took to wife Marcia, daughter of Marcus Morgan, and by her had William-Morton Pitt; and George, Charles, and John, which three laſt died very young; and one daughter Marcia. 4. Thomas Pitt, who died without iſſue. The daughters of the ſecond marriage were, 1. Elizabeth, married to William Burton; 2. Lora, wedded to Francis Gwyn of Ford Abbey; 3. Anne, unmarried; 4. & 5. both of the name of Mary, and died unmarried. The ſaid George Pitt died February 28, 1734, and has a monument erected for him in the church of Stinsford, whereon his character is inſcribed by his ſecond wife Lora, who alſo died June 12, 1750.

George Pitt, eldeſt ſon of the ſaid George, by his firſt wife Lucy, ſucceeded his father, and took to wife Louiſa, daughter of —— Bernier, by whom he had iſſue four ſons, viz. George Pitt, now lord Rivers; 2. James, 3. Thomas, both dead ſine prole; 4. William-Auguſtus Pitt, of Heckfield in the county of Hants, a major-general, who married Mary, daughter of Scrope viſcount Howe. He had alſo two daughters, viz. Lucy, married to James Kerr, of Scotland, eſq; and Mary, buried Aug. 17, 1744. He died, and was buried Oct. 26, 1745.

George Pitt, eldeſt ſon of the laſt George, was appointed envoy extraordinary and miniſter plenipotentiary to the court of Turin, in November 1761; alſo in the year 1770, he was ſent ambaſſador extraordinary and miniſter plenipotentiary to the court of Spain. And in conſideration of his great abilities, and eminent ſervices in thoſe employments, his majeſty was pleaſed to advance him to the dignity of a baron of Great Britain, by the title of baron Rivers, by letters patent, dated May 20, 1776. His lordſhip married Penelope, daughter of ſir Henry Atkyns, and ſiſter and heir of ſir Richard Atkyns, and by her has iſſue one ſon, the honourable George Pitt; and three daughters, 1. Penelope, married to the preſent earl Ligonier; 2. Louiſa, married to Peter Beckford, of Stepleton in the county of Dorſet; and 3. Marcia.

His lordſhip's ARMS are, Sable, a feſs checky argent and azure, between three bezants.

SUPPORTERS. On the dexter ſide, A falcon with wings elevated; on the ſiniſter ſide, an unicorn argent.

MOTTO. ÆQUAM SERVARE MENTEM.

His lordſhip reſides at Stratfield-Say in Hampſhire, the antient ſeat of his family.

Henrye

Henrye theight & her in pale undre the Crowne, her owne in lozenge undre the Crowne, Allſo tharmes of the lorde Admyrall & hers in pale w^th^out crowne.

Itm. Rayles cov'ed w^th^ blacke clothe ffor the Mourners to ſytt in w^th^ Stooles and Cuſsheons accordinglie w^th^owt eyther herſe ma^tie^ & vallence or tapres Savinge ij tapres wheron were ij Scoocheons w^ch^ ſtode uppon the Corps duringe the Servyce.

Thordre in proceadinge to the Chappell.

Ffyrſt ij conductors in blacke w^th^ blacke ſtaves.
Then Gentlemen and Eſquiers.
Then Knights.
Then Offycers of howſholde w^th^ theyre whyte ſtaves.
Then the Gentlemen huiſshers.
Then Som^r^ſett heraulde in the Ks cote.
Then the Corps borne by vj Gentlemen in blacke gownes w^th^ theire hodes on theyre heades.
Then xl ſtaffe Torchis borne on Eche ſide by Yeomen rounde abowte the Corps And at eche corner a Knight for Aſſyſtunce iiij w^th^ theyre hodes on theyre heades.
Then the ladye Jane (Doughter to the lorde M^r^ques Dorſſett) chefe mourner, ledde by aeſtate, her trayne borne uppe by a yonge ladye.
Then vj other ladie mourners ij & ij.
Then all ladies & gentlewomen ij & ij.
Then Yeomen iij & iij in a Ranke.
Then all other ffollowinge.

The Mann^r^ of the Seruice in the Churche.

Itm. when the Corps was ſett w^th^in the Rayles and the mourners placid, the hole Quere began & ſonge certen Salmes in Engliſhe & reade iij leſſons; And aftre the iij^de^ leſſon the mourners accordinge to theyre degrees & as yt ys accuſtomyd offerid into the almes boxe And when they hadde don, all other as Gentlemen or Gentlewomen that wolde.

The Offeringe don Doctor Cov'dall the Quenes Almner began his Sermonde w^ch^ was verie good and godlie And in one place therof he toke A occaſion to declare unto the people howe that thei ſhulle none there thinke Seye nor ſpreade abrode that the offeringe w^ch^ was there don was don anye thinge to p^r^ffytt the deade but ffor the poore onlye And alſo the lights w^ch^ were caried & ſtode abowte the Corps were ffor the honnour of the parſson & for none other entente nor purpoſe, And ſo went thorowghe w^th^ hys Sermonde, & made a Godlye prayer, And thole Churche aunſwerid and praied the ſame w^th^ hym in thende.

The Sermonde don the Corps was buried duringe w^ch^ tyme the Quere ſonge Te Deum in Engliſse.

And this don aftre Dinn^r^ the mourners and the reſt that wolde returnid homewarde agayne all w^ch^ aforſeid was don in a mornynge.

Doctor Parkhurſt compoſed the following Latin epitaph on this lady:

Incomparabilis fœminæ Catharinæ nuper Angliæ Franciæ et Hiberniæ reginæ dominæ meæ clementiſſimæ Epitaphium, 1548.

Hoc regina novo dormit Catharina ſupulchro
Sexus fœminei flos, honor atque decus.
Hæc fuit HENRICO conjux fidiſſima regi
Quem poſtquam e vivis Parca tuliſſet atrox, Thomæ Seymero (cui tu Neptune tridentem Porrigis) eximio nupſerat illa viro
Huic peperit natam: a partu cum ſeptimus orbem
Sol illuſtraſſet, mors truculenta necat.
Defunctam madidis famuli deflemus ocellis
Humeſcat triſtis terra Britannica genas.
Nos infelices mœror conſumit acerbus
Inter cœleſtes gaudet at illa choras.

Engliſhed thus:

The Epitaph of the incomparable lady Catharine, late queen of England, France, and Ireland, my moſt indulgent miſtreſs, 1548.

In this new tomb the royal Cath'rine lies,
Flow'r of her ſex, renowned, great, and wife!
A wife by ev'ry nuptial virtue known,
And faithful partner once of HENRY's throne.
To Seymour next her plighted hands ſhe yields,
(Seymour, who Neptune's trident juſtly wields)
From him a beauteous daughter bleſs'd her arms,
An infant copy of her parent's charms:
When now ſeven days this tender flow'r had bloom'd
Heaven in its wrath the mother's ſoul reſum'd.
Great Cath'rine's merit in our grief appears;
While fair Britannia dews her cheek with tears.
Our loyal breaſts with riſing ſighs are torn,
With ſaints ſhe triumphs,—we with mortals mourn.

Sudley.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692, £. 276 17 0
Poll-tax —— 1694, — 15 18 0
Land-tax —— 1694, — 248 11 4
The ſame, at 3s. 1770, — 175 15 2

Sudley Tenements.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692, £. 28 2 0
Poll-tax —— 1694, — 12 14 0
Land-tax —— 1694, — 122 16 8
The ſame, at 3s. 1770, — 84 3 0

There are only five families in this pariſh.

SUTTON under BRAYLES.

THIS pariſh lies in the upper diviſion of Weſtminſter hundred, ſeven miles diſtant eaſt from Campden, ten north-eaſt from Stow, and about thirty-five north-eaſt from Glouceſter.

It lies in a fine, rich country, on the bank of the Stour, and (tho' a part of Glouceſterſhire) is intirely ſurrounded by Warwickſhire, and many miles diſtant from any part of the county of which it is a member.

The antient name, Sudtune, i.e. the ſouth town, has a reference to Brayles, an adjoining pariſh in Warwickſhire.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

This manor belonged to the church of Weſtminſter before the Norman conqueſt, and is mentioned in Domeſday-book among the poſſeſſions of that houſe in Glouceſterſhire. The record, after enumerating the particulars of the large manor of Derheſt, recites that 'Sudtune was a 'berewic,

'berewic, or member, belonging to it'. See the whole account in the original language, p. 72.

The manor was held of the honour of Glouceſter by the fifth part of a knight's fee, 10 R. 2. It continued to be part of the poſſeſſions of the abbey of Weſtminſter 'till the general diſſolution of monaſteries, when it was given to the chapter of Weſtminſter, 34 H. 8. But the manor of Sutton, a water-mill, and a tenement called Smith's Place, together with the manor of Todenham, were granted by the crown to ſir William Petre and Anne his wife, in exchange for lands in Warwickſhire, 36 H. 8. and Robert-Edward lord Petre[p] is the preſent proprietor of the manors of Sutton and Todenham. His lordſhip's arms are, Gules, a bend Or between two eſcallop ſhells argent. CREST. On a wreath two lions heads erazed and addorſed, the firſt Or, the ſecond azure, each gorged with a plain collar counterchanged. SUPPORTERS. On the dexter ſide, A lion regardant azure, collared Or; on the ſiniſter, A lion regardant Or, collared azure. MOTTO. SANS DIEU RIEN.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Stow, worth about 140*l.* a year. The biſhop of London is patron, and the reverend Mr. George Upton is the preſent incumbent.

The advowſon antiently belonged to the abbey of Weſtminſter, after the diſſolution of which [p] By an inquiſition taken 12 E. 4. after the death of Alice Storke (wife of John Storke, and formerly the wife of John Petre) it was found that William Petre was her grandſon and heir, viz. ſon of John Petre, ſon of the ſaid Alice, and at that time twenty-four years old.

This William Petre had a ſon John Petre, ſettled at Torre-Brian in Devonſhire, who, by his wife Alice, daughter of John Collins, of Woodland in the ſame county, had iſſue five ſons, and three daughters. The ſons were, ſir William, his heir; John, ſeated at Torre-Newton in Torre-Brian; ----------, head cuſtomer of Exeter; Richard, chancellor of Exeter, and archdeacon of Buckingham; and Robert, an officer in the Exchequer.

Sir William Petre, eldeſt ſon and heir of John, was born at Exeter about the beginning of the reign of king Henry the Eighth, and having his education at Exeter college Oxford, made ſo great a proficiency in his ſtudies there, that he was elected fellow of All Souls college, became principal of Peckwater's Inn, and in 24 H. 8. took the degree of doctor of laws. In 1535, 27 H. 8. he was commiſſioned, with ſome others, by Thomas Cromwell, the viſitor general, to inquire into the behaviour of the monks and nuns throughout England, in order to collect ſufficient matter for accuſation againſt them, and to pave the way to the ſuppreſſion of the monaſtic ſtate; which great work being ſoon after fully accompliſhed, the king, in the 30th year of his reign, in conſideration of the good ſervice of this ſir William therein, granted to him, and Gertrude his wife, in fee, the priory of Clattercote in Oxfordſhire; and the next year he had a grant of the manor of Gyng-Abbats in Eſſex, (part of the poſſeſſions of the then diſſolved monaſtery of Berkyng) with the advowſon of the rectory of Ingarſton, alias Gyng ad Petram. In 35 H. 8. he was ſworn of the privy council, and appointed one of the principal ſecretaries of ſtate; and in 36 H. 8. the king deſigning to invade France, for the proſecuting his claim to that crown, appoints this ſir William one of the council to aſſiſt queen Catherine, his conſort, in the adminiſtration of affairs during his abſence. And in the laſt year of that reign, the king lying upon his death bed, nominated him one of the aſſiſtants to the council to king Edward the Sixth, his ſon and ſucceſſor. He was very high in the eſteem of Edward the Sixth, and queen Mary, in whoſe reign, foreſeeing that the reſtoration of the Romiſh religion might endanger the enjoyment of thoſe abbey lands he had acquired, he obtained a ſpecial diſpenſation from pope Paul IV. for the retaining them, by a bull, bearing date 4 cal. Dec. 1555. He was for ſome time principal ſecretary of ſtate to queen Elizabeth, and one of her privy council 'till his death, Jan. 13, 1572, at which time he was poſſeſſed of ſeven manors in Devonſhire, one in Dorſetſhire, nine in Eſſex, three in Somerſetſhire, one in Kent, one in Suffolk, and of the manors of Sutton and Todenham in Glouceſterſhire. By Gertrude, his firſt wife, daughter of ſir John Tirrell of Warley in Eſſex, knight, he had one child Dorothy, married to Nicholas Wadham, of Merrifield in Somerſetſhire, eſq; the founder of Wadham college in Oxford. By Anne, his ſecond wife, daughter of ſir William Browne, knight, (lord mayor of London in 1514) and widow of ſir Thomas Tirrell, of Heron Place in Eſſex, knight, he had iſſue John, his only ſon; and three daughters; Elizabeth, married to John Goſtwick, of Willington in Bedfordſhire, eſq; Catherine, to John Talbot, of Grafton in Worceſterſhire, anceſtor to the earls of Shrewſbury; and Thomaſine, to Lodowick Grevil, of Milcot in Warwickſhire.

John Petre, only ſon of ſir William, was advanced to the dignity of a baron of England, by the title of lord Petre of Writtle in the county of Eſſex, (by letters patent, dated July 21, 1603, 1 Jac. 1.) and died Oct. 11, 11 Jac. 1. He married Mary, daughter of ſir Edward Walgrave, of Berclay in Eſſex, knight, and by her had iſſue four ſons, William, John, Thomas, and Robert; and four daughters, Mary, Elizabeth, Margaret, and Anne; but the daughters all died infants.

William, ſecond lord Petre, (eldeſt ſon of John firſt lord Petre) taking to wife Catherine, ſecond daughter of Edward Somerſet, earl of Worceſter, had iſſue ſeven ſons, Robert, William, Edward, John, Thomas, Henry, and George; and alſo three daughters, Elizabeth, Mary, and Catherine. His lordſhip departing this life May 5, 1637, was ſucceeded by his eldeſt ſon, Robert, third lord Petre, who in 1620, married Mary, daughter of Anthony viſcount Montague, and by her had iſſue three ſons, William, John, and Thomas, ſucceſſively lords Petre; and two daughters, Mary, married to Edward, eldeſt ſon of William lord Stourton; and Dorothy, the wife of John Thimelby, of Irnham in Lincolnſhire, eſq. His lordſhip died Oct. 23, 1638, and by inquiſition taken Dec. 14 following, it was found that he was ſeized of the following manors, beſides lands &c. in other places; viz. The manor, rectory, and advowſon of the vicarage of Great Burſteed, alias Burſteed-grange; the manors of Gurney's, alias Gurner's, White's, Challiveden, Writtle, Eaſt Horndon, Weſt Horndon, Crondon, Blount's-walls, Waterman's, and Bacon's; the rectory of Butterſbury, and the manors of Cowbridge, Margaretting, Ingarſton, Ging-Petre, Hanley, Mountneyſing, Ingrave, alias Ging-Raffe, Triſtinghall, Fieldhouſe, and Eaſt, Weſt, and South Hanningfield, all in the county of Eſſex; the manor and rectory of Oſmington in Dorſetſhire; the manors of Tatworth in Chatworth, and Chard in Somerſetſhire; the manors of South Brent, Churchſtowe, Kingſbridge, Shute, South Leigh, Axminſter, North Leigh, Wermingſton, Laytwey, Uphay, Humfravile, Dowlſhards, Haccomb-ſee, Challonger, Comb-payne, and Downe-Humfravile, in the county of Devon; the manors of Tuddenham and Sutton in Glouceſterſhire; and the manor of Kennet in Kentford, in the county of Cambridge.

William, fourth lord Petre, was eleven years old at his father's death. He married firſt, Elizabeth, daughter of John earl Rivers, by whom having no iſſue, he married ſecondly, Bridget, daughter of John Pincheon, of Writtle in Eſſex, eſq; and by her had an only child, Mary, born in 1679, and married to George Heneage, of Hainton in Lincolnſhire, eſq. In 1678, William lord Petre, William Herbert, earl of Powis, William Howard, viſcount Stafford, Henry lord Arundel of Wardour, and John lord Bellaſis were committed priſoners to the tower, and impeached, by the commons, of treaſon and other high crimes and miſdemeanours. Lord Petre dying under his confinement, Jan. 5, 1683, the title devolved on his brother,

John, fifth lord Petre, who likewiſe became poſſeſſed of this eſtate by virtue of deeds of ſettlement. His lordſhip died unmarried in the year 1684, and was ſucceeded by his next brother, Thomas, ſixth lord Petre, who died June 4, 1707, leaving iſſue by Mary, daughter of ſir Thomas Clifton, of Letham in Lancaſhire, bart. Robert, his only ſon, and a daughter Mary.

Robert, ſeventh lord Petre, married (Mar. 1, 1711-12) Catharine, daughter of Bartholomew, and ſiſter and heir of Francis Walmeſley, of Dunkehalgh in Lancaſhire, eſq; and dying of the ſmall-pox, Mar. 22, 1712-13, in the 23d year of his age, left her with child of Robert, eighth lord Petre, born June 3, 1713. His lordſhip, on May 2, 1732, married Anne, daughter of James earl of Derwentwater, by whom he had iſſue one ſon, and three daughters, Catharine, Barbara, and Juliana; and dying in July 1742, was ſucceeded by his only ſon, Robert-Edward, ninth lord Petre, who on April 19, 1762, married the honourable Miſs Howard, niece to the duke of Norfolk, and is the preſent lord of the manors of Sutton under Brayles and Todenham, in this county.

houſe, it was granted to Thomas biſhop of Weſtminſter, 32 H. 8. It was afterwards given to the biſhop of London, 4 E. 6. and the grant was confirmed by the crown, 1 Mariæ.

One yard-land belongs to the glebe.

The church conſiſts of the nave only, with a tower on the ſouth ſide, and is dedicated to Thomas Becket, who was canonized by the Roman pontiff for the great forwardneſs he ſhewed to extend the papal authority.

Firſt fruits	£.	13	13	4	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths	—	1	7	4	Pentecoſt.	0	0	9½
Procurations		0	8	8

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in	1692,	£.	94	4	0
Poll-tax —	1694,	—	30	17	8
Land-tax —	1694,	—	74	9	6
The ſame, at 3 s.	1770,	—	55	17	1½

At the beginning of the preſent century, according to ſir Robert Atkyns, there were 33 houſes in the pariſh, and about 130 inhabitants, 4 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 3, burials 3. But I am informed that the people are ſince increaſed to at leaſt 150.

SWELL (LOWER)

LIES in the hundred of Slaughter, in the Coteſwold country, one mile ſouth-weſtward from Stow, and about twenty-four north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

The village is pleaſantly ſituated in a little valley, that like a moat ſurrounds the baſe of that hill on which the town of Stow is built; and a little rivulet called the Dickler, riſes at Donnington, and runs through this place in its courſe to Bourton on the Water, where it falls into the river Winruſh.

Thomas Hoard, eſq; has a good houſe here, ſituated on the bourn, with a pleaſant look-out over the meadows towards the ſouth.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

'Radulf de Todeni holds Suelle, in Salemaneſ-'berie hundred, and Drogo holds it of him. 'Erneſi held it. There are ſeven hides taxed. 'In demean are four plow-tillages, and ten vil-'leins, with ſix plow-tillages, and a mill of 7*s.* 6*d.* 'It was worth 8*l.* and is now worth 7*l.*' Domeſday-book, p. 76.

'William de Ow holds Suelle, in Salemaneſ-'berie hundred. Erneſi held it in the time of 'king Edward. There are three hides taxed. 'It was worth 40*s.* now only 10*s.*' Ibid. p. 73.

The ſheriff returned that the abbat of Hayles was lord of the manor of Netherſwell in Salmoneſburye hundred 9 E. 1. and the abbat pleaded his right to a court leet, waifs, ſtrays, and felons goods, in the proceedings on a writ of Quo warranto brought againſt him in the 15th year of that reign, and his claim was allowed.

The abbey of Fiſchamp in Normandy ſued the abbey of Hayles for hindering the tenants of Lower Swell from attending the court leet in the hundred of Salemaneſberie, which had been granted to them by king Henry the Third, and obtained judgment 16 E. 1.

A wood and paſture in Nether Swell were held of the honour of Wallingford 20 E. 1.

The abbey of Hayles was ſeized of the manor, with lands, woods, and a paſture ground called the Park, containing 250 acres, 14 E. 2.

The manor was held of the honour of Glouceſter, by the ſervice of five knights fees, 16 R. 2. in which year the laſt-mentioned abbey had a grant of the hundred of Slaughter.

The manor came to the crown at the diſſolution of religious foundations, and was not long afterwards veſted in the Bartlets; of the heirs of which family it was purchaſed by Mr. Carter, and by him ſold to ſir William Courteen, after whoſe death it was purchaſed by ſir Robert Atkyns, about the year 1659. He died in the year 1709, and was ſucceeded by his ſon ſir Robert Atkyns of Saperton, who likewiſe died in the year 1711. Robert Atkyns, of Swell, eſq; leaving two daughters coheireſſes, the elder was married to Edmund Chamberlayne, of Maugerſbury, eſq; whoſe ſon, the reverend John Chamberlayne, and Thomas Hoard, eſq; who married the other coheireſs, are joint lords of this manor.

Edmond earl of Cornwall, (ſon of Richard earl of Cornwall, king of the Romans) held 140 acres of paſture in Lower Swell for the abbey of Hayles, and was buried in that monaſtery in the year 1300. The abbey of Hayles purchaſed two yard-lands, and nineteen acres of arable, and one acre and a half of meadow in Lower Swell of John Sage, 6 E. 2. By inquiſition taken 8 E. 2. after the death of Gilbert de Clare, earl of Glouceſter, it was found that Hugo le Poins held of him ſix knights fees in Tockinton and Swell, valued at 170*l. per ann.* Thomas Cole, and others, were ſeized of one meſſuage, one toft, and four yard-lands in Nether Swell, for the abbey of Hayles, 15 R. 2.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the deanery of Stow, worth about 50*l.* a year. Chriſt-church college, Oxford, has the patronage, and the reverend Mr. Henry Brown is the preſent incumbent.

The rectory, vicarage, and church of Nether Swell belonged to the priory of Oſney in Oxfordſhire, and were granted to the chapter of Oxford 34 H. 8. The impropriation belongs to Chriſt-church college, and is now in leaſe to Mrs. Mercy Ayſhcombe, of the family of that name at Lyford, near Wantage, Berks, whoſe arms are, Or, a lion rampant double queue gules, on a chief azure a creſcent for difference.

But there is a record which mentions that the manor of Lower Swell, with the procurations and tithes, tithes, was granted to the biſhop of London and his ſucceſſors, in exchange for lands in Eſſex, 37 H. 8.

The abbey of Tewkeſbury had tithes in Swell, as appears by two deeds without date, which I have here inſerted from Stevens's Supplement to the Monaſticon, Vol. 2, Appendix, N^os^. CLXI. 25, and 26.

De decima Dominii de Suella.

CARTA Simonis filii Poinz concedentis Eccleſiæ de Theok. tempore Simonis Wigornienſis Epiſcopi, in perpetuam Elemoſynam Decimam totius Dominii ſui de Suella, tam de Aldebiz quam de alio Dominico. Et ne aliqua in perpetuum oriretur controverſia inter prædictam Eccleſiam de Theok. & Capellam de Suelle, dedit eidem Capellæ in perpetuum unam virgatam terræ, præter illas duas virgatas quas prius habebat.

Controverſia inter Eccleſiam de Theok. & Capellam de Suelle ſic quievit ſuper Decimas Dominii.

COMPOSITIO facta inter Eccleſiam de Theok. & Mattheum Capellanum de Suelle ſuper Decimis de Dominico auctoritate literarum Domini Papæ demandata Abbati de Buttleſden & R. de Northampton & ——— de Bukinham Archidiacono; ſcil. quod Monachi de Theok. percipient omnes Decimas de Dominico de Suelles, ita tamen quod ſi parochiani de Capella poſuerint oves ſuas in ovili Domini de Suvella & in paſtura de Dominico hiemaverint, rector Capellæ percipiet medietatem Decimarum illarum & Monaci reliquam medietatem. Monaci etiam percipient omnes decimas omnium ſervientium Domini quæ erunt in ovili Capellæ de Suvelle, 6*d.* pro loco Berthanæ quamdiu ſtabit in vilenagio. Erunt tamen quieti a præſtatione eorum eo anno quo parochiani habuerint oves ſuas in Berthana Domini & in Dominico; & ſi remota fuerit Berthana; pœna etiam 100*s.* ſub fidei præſtatione interpoſita eſt, ſi aliter utraque partium a compoſitione reſilient, parti eam obſervanti præſtanda. Hanc compoſitionem prædicti Judices confirmaverunt.

One yard-land belongs to the glebe. The manor land, the church-piece, Tracy's ground, and four yard-lands of the impropriation are tithe free. The vicar has the third part of the corn tithes in all the tithable lands.

The church is a very ſmall, mean building, without either aile or ſteeple.

Firſt fruits	£.	6	12	3	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths —		0	13	2¼	Pentecoſtals	0	0	6½
Procurations		0	6	8

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in	1692, £.	99	4	8
Poll-tax ——	1694, —	25	7	0
Land-tax —	1694, —	98	8	4
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	64	18	7½

There were 37 houſes, and about 160 inhabitants in this pariſh, 5 of whom were freeholders, when ſir Robert Atkyns wrote his Hiſtory of this county; yearly births 4, burials 4. The preſent number of houſes is 44, and the people, by a late ſurvey, were found to be exactly 213.

SWELL (UPPER)

IS a pariſh in the upper diviſion of Kiftſgate hundred, one mile north-weſtward from Stow on the Wold, and about twenty-four north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

The village is called Upper Swell, becauſe it lies higher upon the ſtream than the preceding pariſh. There is nothing in it worthy the traveller's notice.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

In the abſtract from Domeſday which ſir Robert Atkyns has given concerning this manor, it is repreſented as belonging to the church of Winchcombe in the reign of king William the Conqueror; whereas it was then the property of the abbey of Eveſham, as appears by the record, of which the following is an exact tranſlation. This miſtake aroſe from his uſing an incorrect copy of Domeſday, as I have before had occaſion to obſerve under Broadwell.

'The ſame church [St. Mary of Eveſham] holds 'Svelle in Widelei hundred. There are three 'hides, and nine villeins, and two bordars, and 'a prieſt, with four plow-tillages amongſt them 'all. There are ſix ſervi. It was worth 4*l.* now '5*l.* There are three plow-tillages in demean, 'and three mills of 20 ſol.' Domeſday-book, p. 72.

The abbey of Eveſham pleaded their right of court leet in a writ of Quo warranto, 15 E. 1. and continued poſſeſſed of the manor 'till the general diſſolution of religious foundations,

The manor of Over Swell, and the tithes of corn, wool, and lamb, lately belonging to the abbey of Eveſham, and then in the tenure of William Fox, were granted to Richard Andrews, in truſt, 33 H. 8.

The manor came afterwards to the Stratfords, and William Stratford died ſeized of it 9 Eliz. whereupon Anthony Stratford, his ſon, had livery the ſame year, and was lord of it in 1608. It was veſted in ſir James Ruſhout, of Northwick in Worceſterſhire, at the beginning of this century, and paſſed afterwards to ſir Hildebrand Jacob, who ſold it, about five years ago, to Mr. Fitz-Herbert, and others.

A meſſuage, and one acre of land in Over Swell, belonged to the chantry of All Saints in the church of Stow, and were granted to Francis Philips and Richard Moor 6 Jac.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Stow, worth 90*l.* a year. The advowſon is veſted, by purchaſe, in the reverend Mr. Henry Brown, and Mr. Lindſey is the preſent incumbent.

The advowſon belonged to the abbey of Hayles, and after the diſſolution of that monaſtery, was granted to Richard Andrews and Leonard Chamberlain 34 H. 8.

Formerly, four yard-lands, 240 ſheep paſtures, and thirteen beaſt paſtures belonged to the glebe; but upon the incloſure of the pariſh, it was ſettled that the rector ſhould receive 80*l.* a year, clear of all deductions, and he has beſides a glebe worth 10*l. per ann.*

The church conſiſts of the nave only, and is a ſmall, mean building.

Firſt fruits	£.	7	0	0	Synodals £.	0	1	0
Tenths —		0	14	0	Pentecoſtals	0	1	3½
Procurations		0	6	8

Monument

Monument and Inſcription.

A ſmall mural monument in the chancel bears the following inſcription:

M. S.
Hic juxta ſitus
JOHANNES CHAMBERLAYNE,
Medicinæ Baccalaureus,
Thomæ Chamberlayne, Armigeri,
Oddingtoniæ ſepulti,
Filius natu ſecundus.
Natus eſt MDCI,
Cœlebs denatus MDCLXVIII.
Hoc Monumentum
Amoris juxta et Mœroris
Teſtimonium
Poſuit Chariſſima Soror
MARIA OLDISWORTH.

The monument is ornamented at top with the arms of Chamberlayne and Tankerville, quarterly.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	34	18	0
Poll-tax —— 1694, —		5	7	0
Land-tax —— 1694, —		21	9	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		16	16	9

About ſeventy years ago, according to ſir Robert Atkyns, there were 19 houſes in the pariſh, and about 82 inhabitants, 3 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 2, burials 1. There are now only 14 families, and the people are decreaſed to 69.

SWINDON

IS a ſmall pariſh, in the hundred of Cheltenham, one mile north-weſt from the town of that name, eight ſouth-eaſtward from Tewkeſbury, and nine north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

It lies in the Vale, upon the banks of the little river Swilyate, which runs from hence to Tewkeſbury, where it empties itſelf into the Avon. The ſoil in ſome parts inclines to ſand, but in general is a ſtrong clay, and the lands are chiefly employed in paſture.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

The manor of Suindone belonged to the priory of St. Oſwald in Glouceſter before the compilation of Domeſday-book, but at that time it was held by Thomas archbiſhop of York, (as it had been by Stigand archbiſhop of Canterbury) to whoſe juriſdiction the priory of St. Oſwald was ſubject. The following is a tranſlation of the record:

'Stigand the archbiſhop held Suindone in 'Cilteham hundred. There were three hides, 'and two plow-tillages in demean, and ſeven 'villeins, and two bordars, having ſeven plow-'tillages [among them]. There are four ſervi. 'It was then worth 3*l.* now 4*l.* 10*s.* Thomas '[of Baieux] archbiſhop [of York] holds this 'manor, part of the eſtate of St. Oſuuald, and it 'pays tax.' Domeſday, p. 69.

The manor of Swindon was part of the poſſeſſions of St. Oſwald's priory, 'till that houſe was diſſolved, and then it paſſed into lay hands. James Clifford, eſq; of the antient family of that name, ſettled at Frampton upon Severn, was lord of this manor in the year 1608. It was afterwards purchaſed by Mr. Trotman, who ſold it to Mr. Aſhmead, from whom it paſſed in the ſame manner to Mr. Sturmy. Mr. John Sturmy was lord of the manor about the beginning of this century, and John Stratford, eſq; is the preſent proprietor.

John Hanborough, and Thomas Bruges and Maud his wife, levied a fine of lands in Swindone to William Whitington, and others, to the uſe of John Hanborough, and the heirs of John and Maud, 36 H. 6. John Garing and Elizabeth his wife levied a fine of lands in Swindon to the uſe of Thomas Bruges, and others, 2 E. 4. Lands in Swindon and Clopley belonged to the biſhoprick of Hereford, and were granted to Chriſtopher Hatton, 18 Eliz.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Winchcombe, worth about 60*l.* a year.

The church is dedicated to St. Lawrence. It has a low tower at the weſt end, without battlements, of an hexagonal form, but its ſides and angles are not equal.

Firſt fruits	£. 13	0	1½	Synodals	£. 0	2	0
Tenths —	1	6	1¼	Pentecoſt.	0	0	4½
Procurations	0	6	8

Benefactions.

A ſmall parcel of land, which lets for about 10*s.* a year, is given for the repair of the church; and Mr. John Walwyn has given a rent-charge of 50*s.* a year for the uſe of the poor.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	59	14	4
Poll-tax — — 1694, —		10	13	0
Land-tax —— 1694, —		47	17	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		40	1	9

Sir Robert Atkyns ſets down the number of houſes in the pariſh at 24, and the inhabitants at about 90, of whom 6 were freeholders; the yearly births 2, and the burials 2. Examining the regiſter, I find that in ten years collectively, from 1760, there are entered 19 baptiſms, and 25 burials, which agrees pretty well with ſir Robert's eſtimate. But the people are now increaſed to exactly 105.

TAINTON.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Botloe, in the Vale country, about four miles diſtant ſouth-eaſtward from Newent, ſix north-eaſtward from Mitchel Dean, and ſeven weſtward from Glouceſter.

The roads at Rudford, Tibberton, and Tainton, are almoſt impaſſable in the winter. The ſoil is deep, and the lands are pretty equally divided between paſture and arable, but the occupiers ſeem not not to be the moſt ſkilful nor the moſt induſtrious. Buſhes, brambles, and branches of trees lie in the courſe of the little brooks, whoſe waters ſo impeded, deluge the low lands on every conſiderable fall of rain, and overflow the public road, particularly at Tainton. Thoſe lands, from a wet ſtate, produce a coarſe herbage, intermixt with ruſhes, much inferior in quality and quantity to what they would bear if kept healthy, as might eaſily be done. Their corn-fields are no better managed, but from the natural ſtrength of ſoil, produce crops ſufficient to ſatisfy the farmer. Here, too, that execrable practice prevails with the tenant, of heading the young oaks, undoubtedly becauſe when once polled, they are intituled to the lop.

Some of our topographical books mention, that about the year 1700, there was an ore found at Tainton, from which the refiners extracted gold; and that they took a leaſe of the mine where the ore was found, but did not go on with the work, becauſe the quantity of metal was ſo ſmall as not always to anſwer the expence of ſeparation. I have made ſome inquiry into this matter, but without obtaining any ſatisfactory account. This however is certain, that an inexhauſtible treaſure will be found by a proper cultivation of the ſoil, which is deep and exceedingly fertile. This pariſh is famous for producing a very rich and pleaſant cyder, like that of Herefordſhire, in whoſe neighbourhood it lies, and for an excellent kind of perry, made of a fruit called the Tainton Squaſh-Pear.

Of the Manors and other Eſtates.

'William Goizenboded holds Tetinton, in 'Botelau hundred. Aluuin held it. There are 'ſix hides. In demean is one plow-tillage, and 'nine villeins, and ſeven bordars, with nine plow-'tillages. It was worth 6 l. now 3 l.' Domeſday-book, p. 74.

This manor was granted to Peter Burdune 2 Joh. John de Abernoon purchaſed a charter of free warren in Teynton 37 H. 3. It came ſoon after to the Muſgroſes. Robert de Muſgroſe died ſeized of the manor, and left Cecilia his widow, who held the bailiwick of Bicknor, in the foreſt of Dean, 10 E. 1. and pleaded, in the proceedings on a writ of Quo warranto, that ſhe and her anceſtors had held this manor, with court leet and waifs, time out of mind, and her claim was allowed 15 E. 1. She died in the 29th year of the ſame reign, at which time ſhe was ſeized of Tainton, and of a wood, 28 acres of aſſart land at Greenway, and of nine yard-lands and a half at Brat-Forton, all in the foreſt of Dean.

Robert de Muſgroſe, ſon of Robert, died 9 E. 1. leaving Hawiſe, an only daughter and heireſs, then the wife of ſir William Mortimer, younger ſon of Roger earl of March. She was likewiſe heireſs to Cecilia de Muſgroſe, her grandmother, who was ſeized of divers lands of inheritance, and being afterwards married to John de Ferrers, baron of Chartley, carried this manor into that name and family; for lord Ferrers had livery of it 30 E. 1. and died ſeized of it 18 E. 2. Robert lord Ferrers, ſon of John, was fifteen years old at his father's death, and diſtinguiſhed himſelf in the wars with France, in the reign of king Edward the Third, being with the king and prince of Wales at the memorable battle of Creſſy, fought Aug. 26, 1346, but died ſoon after. John lord Ferrers, ſon of Robert, married Elizabeth, daughter of Ralph de Stafford, and widow of Fulk le Strange, and with her had the manor of Engliſh Bicknor. He died 41 E. 3. Elizabeth, his widow, was afterwards married to Reginald Cobham, whom ſhe likewiſe ſurvived, and died ſeized of Tainton and Bicknor 49 E. 3. Robert lord Ferrers, ſon of John, married Margaret, daughter of Edward lord Spencer, and was poſſeſſed of the above manors, and of Bodington in this county, at the time of his death, 1 H. 5. whereupon they paſſed to his ſon Edmond lord Ferrers, who accompanied the gallant and victorious king Henry the Fifth in his wars in France, and died in the 14th year of the following reign, ſeized of all the before-mentioned eſtates, and of a woodwardſhip in the foreſt of Dean. William lord Ferrers, ſon of Edmond, being of full age, had livery of the manors of Teynton and Bicknor ſoon after his father's death; and deceaſing himſelf 28 H. 6. left Anne, his only child, eleven years and eight months old, who being married to Walter Devereux, eſq; carried the title of baron Ferrers to her huſband and his family; but the manor of Tainton was entailed on the male heirs, and ſo did not paſs to the Devereuxes, for Edmond Ferrers, brother to William, ſucceeded to this eſtate. And Elizabeth, the widow of William lord Ferrers, levied a fine of the manors of Tainton and Bicknor to the archbiſhop of Canterbury, and other great perſons, 32 H. 6. in which year Martin Ferrers was ſeized of a third part of this manor, and a perſon of the ſame name was ſeized of Great Teinton 1 R. 3.

This eſtate came ſoon afterwards to the Whitingtons. Thomas Whitington, of Pauntley, eſq; died poſſeſſed of it 38 H. 8. and left his eſtates to be divided among his ſix daughters and coheireſſes. Sir Chriſtopher Blount was ſeized of it, but he being attainted, it was granted to ſir Simon Weſton and John Wakeman, 1 Jac. 1.

Mr. Thomas Pury, jun. lord of the manors of Tainton and Minſterworth, died in 1693, in the 74th year of his age. He was one of thoſe principal citizens of Glouceſter who ſubſcribed the anſwer returned to the king's ſummons of ſurrender, Aug. 10, 1643, and took an active part in the management of public affairs during the ſiege of that city, of which he was afterwards mayor, in 1653. Piety, learning, great abilities, and extenſive charity, gained him the love and reſpect of his cotemporaries, and preſerved his memory from that obloquy which few eminent perſons of his time had the good fortune to eſcape. Mr. Grove is owner of the Grove eſtate; and Mr. William Holder has another good eſtate in this pariſh.

HAMLET. Little Tainton is a hamlet and manor, to which, I apprehend, the following record ſhould be applied:

'William the ſon of Norman holds Tatinton, 'in Botelau hundred. Ulgar held it of king 'Edward. This land is free [from tax]. There 'are ſix bordars, with one plow-tillage. It is 'worth and was worth 20*s.* There is one yard-'land in the ſame place which lies in the foreſt '[of Dean], and pays 12*d.*' Domeſday, p. 74.

Hugh de Kilpec held the manor of Little Tainton of the king, by the ſervice of guarding a hay, or wood, near Hereford, at his own charge. He died 32 H. 3. leaving two daughters coheireſſes. Joan, the eldeſt, was married to Philip Marmion; and Iſabel, the other daughter, was granted in ward to William de Cantelupe, the ſame year, and afterwards married to William Waleran. Maud Waleran died ſeized of Little Tainton 1 E. 1. Maud de Evors was likewiſe poſſeſſed of it, and of the manor of Kilcot in Hawkeſbury, and pleaded her right to privileges in thoſe manors 15 E. 1.

Bogo, or Bevis de Knoville, ſheriff of Shropſhire and Staffordſhire, purchaſed this manor of William Waleran, and died ſeized of it, and of Kilcot in Newent, Knote Cleeve, and Yenington, 9 E. 1. Bogo de Knoville, ſon of Bogo, purchaſed a charter of free warren in Tainton 13 E. 1. and had a grant of the like privilege in Kilcot in Newent, the ſame year. A third Bogo de Knoville, ſon of the laſt Bogo, and Joan his wife, levied a fine of Tainton and Kilcot, to the uſe of themſelves in ſpecial taille, 12 E. 2. and he died 12 E. 3. at which time he was likewiſe poſſeſſed of aſſart lands at Gravenhull and Zerkeley, near Lidney, in the foreſt of Dean.

Tainton paſſed to the Verdunes in the ſame reign. Sir John de Verdune levied a fine of it, and of Kilcot; and ſir Thomas Moyne, knight, held this manor of the heirs of ſir John de Verdune, at the time of his death, 1362, as appears by an inquiſition taken 37 E. 3. and he left it to Edmund Moyne, his ſon and heir.

Little Tainton came afterwards to the Caſſeys of Caſſey-Compton. William Caſſey died ſeized of it 1 H. 8. leaving three infant ſons, Leonard, William, and Robert, who ſucceeded each other, and the laſt died 1 E. 6. Henry Caſſey, ſon of Robert, had livery 2 Mariæ, and died 38 Eliz. John Viney, eſq; was lord of the manor at the beginning of this century, and Mr. Viney, of Glouceſter, a deſcendant from him, is the preſent proprietor. His arms are, Argent, a cluſter of grapes, with its ſtalk truncated proper.

Little Oakley in this pariſh, was parcel of the manor of Monmouth, and was granted to Edward Sallus and William Blake, ſcrivener, 3 Jac. 1.

William Nottingham, and Elizabeth his wife, levied a fine of lands in Teinton Great, to John Kendal, and the heirs of Elizabeth; and Kendal reconveys to William Nottingham and Elizabeth in taille, 20 H. 6.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the foreſt deanery, worth about 100*l.* a year. The dean and chapter of Glouceſter are patrons, and the reverend Mr. Parker is the preſent incumbent.

Maud de Teynton gave the church of Teynton to St. Peter's abbey at Glouceſter, to find lights; and Radulf Avenel confirmed it, and likewiſe gave a hermitage in this place, with a villein and his family, to the ſame houſe; which donations were confirmed by Gilbert Foliot, biſhop of Hereford, when Hameline was abbat.

The old church, which ſtood at the north end of the pariſh, was burnt down, together with the parſonage, in the civil wars, probably about the time of the ſiege of Glouceſter. The preſent church ſtands at a conſiderable diſtance from the ſcite of the old one, and was built during the protectorſhip of Oliver Cromwell, principally by the procurement and aſſiſtance of Thomas Pury, jun. who likewiſe founded, and was a great benefactor to the college library at Glouceſter. It is dedicated to St. Lawrence, and has this remarkable circumſtance attending it, that it is placed north and ſouth, contrary to the prevailing cuſtom, from which the truly pious builder choſe perhaps to deviate, from a contempt of religious ſuperſtition in things of no moment.

Firſt fruits	£.	9	6	8	Synodals	£.	0	2	6
Tenths	—	0	18	8	Pentecoſt.		0	1	6
Procurations		0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Four tombs in the church-yard bear the following inſcriptions:

Poſt vitam occupatiſſimam & fere octoginta annorum faſtidio gravatam; hic tandem requieſcit THOMAS PURY, Qui indolem natura vegetam, ac ad ſumma comparatam, vel ſtudijs humanioribus ita excoluit, vel rebus agendis adeò exercuit, ut ſive artium peritia, ſive negotiorum varietate, vix in pari fortuna quenquam ſibi habuerit parem. Tot privatis occupationibus, tantiſq; publicis aliquando motibus agitato, quidquam (temporum vitio magis quam ſuo) humanitùs accidiſſe non tam culpandum, quàm mirandum potius, cuiquam inter rebelles verſanti pietatem & religionem, inter milites, artes & Scientias impenſius placuiſſe: Ædificatum in proximo Templum extructaq; in celebriori Loco Bibliotheca hoc eouſq; teſtantur: ut nec hiſce literarum monumentis, nec ſacrato lapide, nec poſterorum memoria indignus eſſe videatur.

Ob. Aug. 26, A. D. 1693, Ætat. 74.

The arms upon the tomb are, Baron and femme, 1. Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, [Argent,] on a feſs between three martlets [ſable,] as many mullets of the field for Pury. 2d and 3d, A chevron ingrailed between three fighting cocks. On the femme ſide, [Azure,] a chevron between three fleurs de lis [Or,] for Kyrle.

Sub hujus Ædiculæ Moenibus
Quam Parentibus ſuis Thomæ Pury Pietas extruxit
Fas eſt
Ut Filiæ Saræ piæ Virginis cineres inviolati quieſcant:
Quæ
Cum cætera omnia bonæ feminæ munia,
Vigili in Rebus domeſticis ſedulitate,
Voluntate erga Pauperes ſublevandos propenſa,
Benevoloque in vicinis excipiendis vultu,

Uſque

Uſque ad an. Ætat. LIV Salutiſque MDCCIX
Cum laude peregiſſet
Coelo matura (Jun. I) terras reliquit.

Reducem Expectans Animam
H. S. I.

Pius atq; Eruditus ille Iohannes Guiſe Gen. ab Antiqua et Egregia ſtirpe D. Iohannis Guiſe de Elmore In Agro Glo. Baronetti Oriundus. Wilhelmi Guiſe De Civit. Glo: Armig. Filius natu Maximus:

Qui
In Meritis Chriſti totam fiduciam reponens et de Miſericordiâ Dei plene ac firmiter perſuaſus
4 Iulij A. D. 1703, Ætatis 21,
Ex hac Vita ad Cœlos Emigravit.
Filio optime Merenti
Mœrens Pater
H. M.

The arms of Guiſe are at the end of the tomb.

M. S.

Mortalitatis Exuvias hic depoſuit Reverendus Vir Samuel Whittington, A. M. Eccleſiæ Anglicanæ Preſbyter, Eruditione non Vulgari ornatus Scientiâ cum Graviori tum Politiori Egregia inſtructus Et Morum Candore Spectabilis Qui Animi Dotibus inſignis At corporis Diuturna Confectus Invaletudine in Domino requievit 3° die Iulij

Anno { Salutis MDCCXXIV / Ætatis ſuæ XLII° }

Hoc Amoris Monumentum Mater Mœſtiſſima Elizabetha Whittington (Thomæ Pury Ar. juxta ſepulti Filia) Nato Optime Merenti P. C.

At the end of the tomb are theſe arms, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Gules, a feſs chucky Or and azure, for Whittington. 2d and 3d, Pury, as before.

There are likewiſe memorials for Barbara, wife of Thomas Pury, gent. and daughter of James Kyrle, of Walford in Herefordſhire, eſq; who died Dec. 6, 1688, aged 65: For Thomas, eldeſt ſon of Thomas Huggins, prebend of Limerick in Ireland, and of Barbara his wife, daughter of Thomas Pury, gent. who died March 12, 1694: And for Elizabeth Whittington, daughter of Thomas Pury, but the laſt is not legible.

Benefaction.

Some ſmall pieces of land, worth about 40*s.* or 50*s.* a year, were given to the poor (according to tradition) by dame Cecilia Muſgroſe, antiently lady of the manor.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	121	12	0
Poll-tax —— 1694,	—	19	2	0
Land-tax —— 1694,	—	112	0	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	84	0	0

Sir Robert Atkyns computed the number of houſes in this pariſh at 45, and the inhabitants at about 200, 16 of whom were reputed to be freeholders; yearly birth 5, burials 4. And there are now about 250 inhabitants.

TETBURY.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Longtree, five miles north from Malmeſbury in Wiltſhire, ten weſtward from Cirenceſter, twenty-ſix eaſtward from Briſtol, and nineteen ſouth from Glouceſter.

It is about five miles long from eaſt to weſt, and in ſome places more than two miles broad. The ſoil is moſtly light and ſtony, but it has been greatly improved of late, and the lands now let at a high rate. It is ſituated upon high ground, on the ſouth ſide of the county, bordering upon Wiltſhire, from which it is ſeparated by a rivulet, whoſe waters, in the winter, are here augmented by another little ſtream, and take their courſe to Malmeſbury, Chippenham, Lacock, Bradford, and Bath, and are unqueſtionably the head, or higheſt ſource of the Briſtol Avon; but in the ſummer thoſe rivulets are frequently dry. Almoſt the whole pariſh is the property of its own inhabitants, but it is divided between ſo many owners, that no perſon has any great eſtate in it.

Within the pariſh, there is a market-town of the ſame name, with a bailiff for its chief officer, choſen annually for the better management of the public revenues. It is not large, but well frequented, and deſervedly claims the third place in precedence among the towns in Glouceſterſhire. It is pleaſantly ſituated upon the top of a knoll, which it almoſt covers, and ſurrounded with a deep and narrow dell, or bottom, greatly reſembling the moat of a caſtle. The town is about a mile and a half in circumference, with four ſtreets croſſing in the center of it, conſiſting of about four hundred houſes, chiefly built of ſtone, and which make a handſome appearance.

On the ſouth-eaſt ſide of the town, there was a very antient, ſtrong camp, and there is a tradition, that before the camp was made, a caſtle ſtood upon the ſame ſpot of ground, called Swinnerdown-Caſtle, 'but it is now ſo intirely demoliſhed,' ſays the Magna Britannia, 'that the ruins of it are ſcarce viſible,' whence it might be inferred, that ſome faint traces of it were then to be ſeen. But I am clearly of opinion that the author never ſaw them, and in ſhort, that no ſuch thing as a caſtle ever exiſted there. Camden, who ſurveyed this country above a century before that book was compiled, and who was no curſory obſerver of antiquities, mentions the caſtles at Berkeley, Durſley, Beverſtone, and that which had been long demoliſhed at Cirenceſter; and if there had been any veſtige of ſuch a thing at Tetbury, or any account of it in the antient records, he would certainly have taken notice of it. But we will ſuppoſe for a moment that Camden overlooked it, yet it could hardly eſcape the many reſearches of the great antiquary Leland, and others both before and ſince his time, yet nobody pretends to have found any ſuch account in them.

Speed relates, indeed, but I know not upon what authority, that one Donwallo Mulmutius, a king of the Britons, built this caſtle, about two thouſand years ago, and that it was called Caer Bladon. But the very exiſtence of that king is uncertain, and the whole ſtory incredible; for who can believe that the Britons had any buildings like caſtles at that time, ſince Giraldus Cambrenſis informs us what kind of fortifications were called caſtles in the reign of king Henry the Firſt, and ſpeaking

ſpeaking of the town of Pembroke, tells us, that Arnulf of Montgomery, brother to Robert earl of Shrewſbury, fortified that place with a caſtle of ſtakes and turves. Beſides, Cæſar, Tacitus, and all the writers on the Roman affairs in Britain, are totally ſilent on this head, and yet they deſcribe the method of fighting, and the warlike inſtruments of the Britons, and would not have omitted to mention their caſtles, if they had found any among them.

The Britons, we are told, called the place Caer Bladon, which was afterwards the Saxon Tettebeopȝ, or Tetteberg, and by gradual and ſucceſſive changes, came to be written Teteberie, or Tetbury, as it ſtands at the head of this account. As for Tette, I know not what it can mean, unleſs it be ſome great perſon's name who occupied the camp, or was proprietor of the manor. Caer originally ſignified a wall, and incloſure, and became at length to be uſed for a camp, caſtle, or any kind of fortreſs. The Saxon Beopȝ is nearly ſynonimous and equivalent to the Britiſh Caer, and doubtleſs the town took its name from this camp; and the extenſive ſignification of thoſe Britiſh and Saxon words, gave riſe to the notion of a caſtle, grounded, I think, chiefly on Speed's authority, who moſt probably took his account of Mulmutius from Geofry of Monmouth, and tranſlated the word Caer by caſtle; whereas the Britiſh writer meant nothing more by that word than ſome camp, or intrenchments. Thus I account for the miſtake concerning it, which is not peculiar to this place, for the ſame has happened reſpecting the camps, called Caſtles, on the heights at Saintbury, Titherington, Horton, and ſeveral other places in this county, where the inhabitants fancy that caſtles once ſtood, notwithſtanding it is very certain that there never was any ſuch thing at either of thoſe places.

There is, however, a gentleman of learning, and of laudable veneration for the antiquities of this town, who finding it difficult to remove the idea which tradition has early fixt in his mind, can hardly give up the point of a Britiſh caſtle. And if I have the leaſt doubt about the matter, it ariſes ſolely from that deference which I owe, in general, to his better judgment.

The camp here was levelled a few years ago by the owner of the field, when the workmen found ſeveral heads of arrows and javelins, with horſeſhoes of the antient form, and ſpurs without rowels, ſuch as were uſed by our firſt kings after the conqueſt, as they are repreſented on their ſeals in Speed's Hiſtory: And under the agger were found ſeveral antient Engliſh coins, particularly one of Edward the Confeſſor, one of king Stephen, and two of king Henry the Third. Roman coins have alſo been frequently found in and near the town, of the emperors Hadrian, Antonimus Pius, Conſtantine and his ſons, ſome of Poſthumus, Magnentius, and a very fine one of Caraufius in braſs, which are in the cabinet of the reverend Mr. Wight, the miniſter of the pariſh, who is well verſed in medallic hiſtory and antiquities. There were alſo ſeveral hewn ſtones found, which thoſe who had adopted the notion of the caſtle ſuppoſed to have belonged to that building; but it ſeems probable, from many circumſtances, that there was an antient houſe on this ſpot, belonging to the Braoſes, or Mowbrays, who were lords of the manor, and that theſe were ſome of its remains; and it is not unlikely, that ſome of the ſtones from that building were uſed in the walls of the tower, upon which the Mowbrays arms are now to be ſeen.

The field where the camp was is now improved into a kind of pleaſure-ground, with plantations of firs, and agreeable ſlopes and walks on the ſide next the rivulet; and there is a very pleaſant proſpect of the London, Bath, and Wiltſhire roads from the top of it.

There was formerly in this town a religious houſe, to which the monks removed, when they left the Grange at Haſleton, (as related under Rodmarton) for want of water. It ſtood at the eaſt end of the town, and was afterwards called Hacket's Court, belonging to the Denny's half a century back, upon part of the ſcite of which Mr. Matthew Sloper built a very handſome houſe, about the year 1765. But the monks being obliged to fetch wood for their uſe from Kingſwood, found Tetbury a very inconvenient ſituation for them, and ſo they removed a ſecond time to that place, whence they originally came. Beſide this, there were two other houſes, which ſome judicious perſons have ſuppoſed, from what is ſtill to be ſeen of them, to have been originally the habitations of perſons leading a monaſtic life; but tradition ſays little, and hiſtory ſtill leſs, or nothing at all about them. The one is in the Chipping, lately in the poſſeſſion of Mr. Thomas Pyke, and Mr. Gabriel Hadnot; and the other is the old vicarage houſe.

The Chipping is a ſpacious area in the north-eaſt quarter of the town, encompaſſed with houſes, where two fairs are held annually, on Aſhwedneſday, and the 22d of July, for horſes and other cattle; and it took its name from the Saxon Leapan, to buy, becauſe it was the place where, at thoſe fairs, things were bought and ſold.

The market is held on Wedneſday, about the center of the town, where are two market-houſes, appropriated to diſtinct uſes; one for cheeſe and bacon, of which vaſt quantities were formerly brought from the great dairy countries in the Vale of Glouceſterſhire, and the north part of Wiltſhire; but very little of thoſe great neceſſaries of life come now to market, owing to the dealers buying them up in the countries that produce them. This practice manifeſtly tends to enhance the price of them, to the advantage of the land holder, but, as I conceive, to the injury of the community in general. The other market houſe is for wool and yarn, the tolls of which are reduced reduced to about a fourth of what they were forty or fifty years ago; which, however, is not to be attributed to the decline of trade in thoſe commodities, but to the prevailing practice of ſelling them out of the market.

There was formerly ſome woollen cloth made here, but manufactures always decline under natural diſadvantages, and the clothing buſineſs could not long ſubſiſt at Tetbury, for want of conſtant water to drive the fulling-mills, ſo neceſſary in that buſineſs. The chief manufactures now carried on here, are woolſtapling and woolcombing, in which latter about one hundred and fifty perſons find conſtant employment; and the combed wool is ſold at Coventry, Kidderminſter, Leiceſter, and other markets.

The inhabitants enjoy a fine, healthy air, and live to a great age, as appears from the following ſhort hiſtory of a family of five women lately dwelling in one houſe. Honour Powell, relict of the famous Mr. Powell mentioned in the Tatler, was one of thoſe perſons, who died at the age of ninety; a ſecond died in 1767, aged eighty-nine, and the other three were living when this account was taken, aged eighty-ſix, eighty-one, and fifty, the laſt being the daughter of one of the others; and all theſe, when living together, were able to wait on themſelves and each other, without aſſiſtance from abroad. But the moſt extraordinary inſtance of longevity to be produced in this county, is of one Henry Weſt, who reſided at Upton, a hamlet in this pariſh, in the time of king James the Firſt. He lived to be one hundred and fifty-two years of age, and it is written in a Bible, now in the poſſeſſion of one of his deſcendants, that he had five wives, but no child by the firſt four; that he had ten by the fifth, and lived to ſee a hundred grandchildren; and there is a traditional account that he gave to each of them a braſs pot, or kettle.

Tho' the elevated ſituation of the town gives it a pure air, yet it has been attended with a conſiderable inconvenience, the want of water, which the inhabitants uſed to purchaſe at 6*d.* and ſometimes at 10*d.* the hogſhead, 'till, in the year 1749, an antient well in the wool-market was ſunk lower, by ſubſcription, to the depth of 104 feet, and the preſent miniſter of the pariſh fixed a lead pump in it at his own expence; ſince that time many other wells have been ſunk for the uſe of private families, and the town is now pretty well ſupplied with water. But an accident that lately happened, in ſinking a quarry for the uſe of the turnpike-road, ſhews how it might be much better ſupplied, at no great expence; for the labourers ſtruck upon, and diſcovered an old aqueduct, which is ſuppoſed to have led from a ſpring called Whorwell, to ſome religious houſe in the town; and it ſeems unaccountable how a thing ſo neceſſary, where water was very ſcarce, could be neglected, and at length totally forgotten.

There is a petrifying ſpring, on the north ſide of the town, which incruſts pieces of wood, and other things, with a ſtrong ſtony ſubſtance, at a conſiderable diſtance from its riſe; and Mr. Wight, the miniſter, is poſſeſſed of a perfect ſtone, taken out of the courſe of that water, which ſeems formerly to have been a ſtick, with ſeveral rings, or concentrick circles at the end, indicating the years of its growth.

Two turnpike-roads run through the town, and croſs each other there. One leads eaſtward to Cirenceſter, and ſo to Oxford, or London; but weſtward from Tetbury, it leads to Bath and Briſtol. The other runs northward from this town to Minchin Hampton, Stroud, and Glouceſter; but ſouthward to Chippenham, Devizes, Saliſbury, and Southampton. At the weſt end of the town is a very deep hollow, part of the natural moat already taken notice of, over which the commiſſioners of the roads built a high bridge, of four large arches, in the year 1775, which makes the entrance into the town on that ſide exceedingly commodious, that before was up a ſteep acclivity, very difficult for carriages to aſcend.

The annual races are run upon a large common, about a mile eaſtward of the town, and are much frequented by the neighbouring gentry.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

In Domeſday it is recorded after this manner:

'Roger de Lurei holds Teteberie in Langetrewes hundred. There are twenty-three hides 'which pay tax. Siuuard held it in the time of 'king Edward. There are eight plow-tillages in 'demean, and thirty-two villeins, and two bordars, 'and two redcheniſters, with a prieſt, having 'amongſt them all fourteen plow-tillages. There 'are nineteen ſervi, and a mill of 15*d.* [rent] and 'paſture of 10*s.* and ten acres of meadow. The 'ſame Roger holds Uptone. There are two 'hides, and one yard-land taxed. Aluricus held 'it of king Edward. There are two plow-tillages 'in demean, and five villeins, and three bordars, 'with three plow-tillages. There are eight ſervi. 'Theſe two manors were worth 33*l.* in the time 'of king Edward, and they are now at farm for '50*l.*' Domeſday, p. 75.

Tetbury, ſoon after the Norman conqueſt, belonged to the family of St. Waleric, who took their name from the port of Saint Valeric in Normandy. Reginald de Saint Waleric founded a monaſtery of Ciſtercians at Haſleden, who, for want of water, removed from thence to Tetbury; and afterwards, for want of wood, removed from Tetbury to Kingſwood, where they continued 'till the diſſolution of that abbey.

Maud de St. Waleric, the heireſs of that family, was married to the great William de Braoſe, eldeſt ſon and heir of William de Braoſe, lord of Brecknock, and deſcended from William de Braoſe, who was one of thoſe who came into England to try their fortunes with the Conqueror; and by this marriage the manor of Tetbury paſſed into the family of de Braoſe. Maud was a lady of high ſpirit, and encouraged her huſband to oppoſe king John. Her huſband was greatly in debt for the province of Munſter in Ireland, which he farmed of the king, and his lands being ſeized for default of payment, he broke out in open rebellion, and was forced to fly into France, where he died in exile, whilſt Maud his wife, and their ſon William, were made priſoners, and both died in Corfe caſtle. But the hiſtory of the founders of Lanthony priory gives a different account of the king's diſpleaſure, and relates, that William fought with one Guenhunewyn, at Elwel, on the morrow after the feſtival of St. Lawrence, in the year 1198, and vanquiſhed him, with a ſlaughter of three thouſand of his followers, who were Welchmen; wherefore the king turned him out of all his eſtates, and baniſhed him the kingdom, without any legal proceedings, and ſo he died in exile.

William de Braoſe, deſcended from the laſt William, held the borough of Tetbury, with markets, fairs, courts-leet, waifs, and free warren, and his right was allowed in the proceedings on a writ of Quo warranto, 15 E. 1. This William left four daughters, coheireſſes, but the manor of Tetbury, notwithſtanding, continued in the ſame name; for Peter de Braoſe was ſeized of Rodmarton, Tetbury, Upton, and Charlton, with free warren, as part of the barony of Brembre, 29 E. 1. and died 5 E. 2. Thomas de Braoſe, ſon of Peter, had the grant of a fair in Tetbury 29 E. 3. and ſir John de Braoſe died ſeized of the manor in the 41ſt year of that reign. Richard de Braoſe was ſeized of the borough of Tetbury, with markets, fairs, and other liberties, 4 R. 2. which was at the time of his death; and he was ſucceeded, the ſame year, by William de Braoſe, whoſe right was allowed before the judges itinerant. Beatrix the widow of ſir Thomas de Braoſe was ſeized thereof 7 R. 2. And Margaret the widow of John Berkeley, and formerly the wife of another ſir Thomas de Braoſe, died ſeized of Tetbury 23 H. 6.

The manor of Tetbury deſcended to Maurice lord Berkeley, the fifth of that name, and brother to William marquis of Berkeley, as coheir to the laſt lord Braoſe, and it continued in that family 'till George lord Berkeley ſold it, with the borough, and tolls of the town, for the uſe of the inhabitants, in the year 1632, and they are now veſted in truſtees for the ſame uſe.

The Warren is a large common, ſtinted and regulated as the truſtees for the town think proper, and uſually brings in about 30*l.* a year for the winter paſture of ſheep.

The arms of the town are, Two dolphins nayant.

HAMLETS. 1. Upton, ſo called becauſe it lies high. It appears, by ſeveral foundations of houſes in the fields, that this village was much more populous than at preſent, and there have been coins found among the ruins, particularly one of king Henry the Second, and ſome of king Henry the Third. Perhaps it ſuffered in the civil wars. The Domeſday account of this manor is joined to that of Tetbury. Upton was held of Richard earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, 47 H. 3. Peter de Braoſa had free warren in Upton, Dufton, Elmundeſtree, and Charleton, 29 E. 1. and George Braoſa, eſq; was ſeized of Upton 6 H. 5. Sir Edmund Tame was lord of this manor, and leaving three ſiſters, coheireſſes, Alice was married to ſir Thomas Verney, who, in her right, was ſeized of the third part of ſir Edmund Tame's eſtates. Richard Verney, ſon and heir of Thomas, died July 26, 9 Eliz. ſeized in Glouceſterſhire, (as appears by the inquiſition taken at Glouceſter after his deceaſe) of the intire manor of Upton, and of two meſſuages and lands in Eaſtleech, twelve meſſuages with their appurtenances in Upton-Tedbury, Charleton, Doughton, and Tedbury; fifty-one meſſuages in Eaſtleech-Turville, Willingſtrup, and Colne Alwyns; and of the manor of Nymsfield; for it is expreſſly declared by the ſame inquiſition, that he, with his father, purchaſed the other two parts of theſe eſtates by indenture tripartite bearing date Feb. 26, 1 E. 6. George Verney, ſon of Richard, died ſeized of Upton 16 Eliz. leaving Richard Verney, his ſon, ten years of age at his father's death, who became a very eminent perſon, and was choſen one of the knights of the ſhire for the county of Warwick, 31, 35, 39, 43 Eliz. and 1 Jac. 1. Upton was afterwards part of the eſtate of ſir George Huntley, who entertained queen Elizabeth at Froceſter-court, in her way to Berkeley-caſtle. Thomas Cripps, eſq; is the preſent principal inhabitant, who has a good eſtate, and an elegant new-built houſe in this hamlet, where his family has reſided for many generations, and once enjoy'd a larger eſtate than it does at preſent.

The Grove eſtate at Upton, is the property of Samuel Saunders, of Tetbury, eſq; who is a branch of the Saunders's of Berkſhire. His arms are, Per chevron, ſable and argent, three elephants heads erazed counterchanged.

2. Dufton, or Doughton. This manor formerly belonged to the Stonors. Edward de Stonor was ſeized of Doughton 5 R. 2. as was Gilbert de Stonor, ſon of Robert, 3 H. 5. There is a large barrow in a field here, which was probably thrown up immediately after the battle fought at Sherſton, between the Engliſh and the Danes, about the year 1016, wherein the latter were routed, and have left their name to another field juſt by it, called Danes End. This hamlet belongs to ſeveral perſons, but Mr. Talboys, and Mr. Clark, have the principal eſtates. The former has a large old houſe here, built by Richard Talboys, eſq; who was high ſheriff of this county, and had an eſtate eſtate of about 1500*l.* a year. This family is deſcended from one of the ſame name at Whiſton in Wiltſhire, whoſe arms are, Argent, a ſaltire gules, on a chief of the ſecond three eſcallops of the firſt.

3. Elmſtree, or Elmudeſtre, that is, Elmude's place. Reginald de St. Waleric gave the manor of Elmudeſtree to the monks of the Benedictine abbey of St. Ebrulph in Normandy. Alien monaſteries being deprived of their eſtates in England, by act of parliament, king Edward the Fourth, in the 4th year of his reign, granted to Henry Sampſon, dean of Weſtbury college, and to the chapter of the ſame, and to their ſucceſſors, the manor of Alminſtree, or Elminſtree, to hold in free and perpetual alms, with courts leet, frankpledge, &c. to pray for the ſouls of his father, mother, and brother, and for his own welfare. This eſtate continued in the college 'till the diſſolution, and was afterwards veſted in —— Tooke, who lies buried in Tetbury church; ſince whoſe time it paſſed to Thomas Deacon, eſq; formerly a ſilk-mercer in London, who married Mary, daughter of Thomas Haynes, a merchant in the city of Briſtol, and it continued in his family 'till the death of Mrs. Deacon, in the year 1769, who, by her will, deviſed this eſtate to Thomas Jenner, eſq; a member of the univerſity of Oxford, and a fellow of Merton college there, who is the preſent proprietor.

4. Charlton. William de Ballecot held ſix yard lands in Cherlington and Tetbury 33 E. 1. and another William Ballecot died ſeized thereof 20 E. 3. Edward de Mortimer, earl of March and Ulſter, was ſeized of a yearly rent of 41*s.* iſſuing out of Cherleton, a member of the manor of Tetbury, 5 R. 2. and died ſeized of the manor 3 H. 6. It was granted to Cicely dutcheſs of York, for her life, 38 H. 6. and confirmed to her 1 E. 4. It was afterwards made part of the dowry of Catherine, queen dowager of king Henry the Eighth, and was granted to Drew Drurey, and Edward Downing, 16 Eliz. An anceſtor to lord Ducie purchaſed it afterwards, and his lordſhip is the preſent lord of this manor.

5. The Grange. This is not properly a hamlet, but claims to be conſidered diſtinctly, as it formerly belonged to the abbey of Kingſwood, at the diſſolution of which it was granted to Richard Andrews, and Thomas Hyſley, 36 H. 8. It was afterwards the ſeat and eſtate of the Gaſtrells, who continued there ſeveral generations; but the houſe, with part of the eſtate, is now the property of Mr. William Fiſher. This eſtate is tithe free. Here was formerly a chapel, but it is now converted to common uſes. Mr. Fiſher's arms are, a chevron vaire between three lioncels rampant.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is in the deanery of Stonehouſe. It is a vicarage, endowed with all the tithes of Duſton, and with all but grain in every other part of the pariſh, except Upton, where the incumbent has only the ſmall tithes, and receives 5*s.* in lieu of tithe of hay; and except the Grange eſtate, which is exempt from tithes.

The rectory and advowſon were granted to the abbey of Eynſham, by Thomas de Waleric, and confirmed by the biſhop of Worceſter. See the grant and confirmation in the Appendix to Stevens's Supplement to the Monaſticon, pp. 99, 101. At the diſſolution of that abbey, they were granted to Chriſt Church college, Oxford, to which the impropriation ſtill belongs. The college, about the year 1563, granted the advowſon to Henry lord Berkeley, and his heirs, and George lord Berkeley ſold it to the inhabitants of Tetbury, who are patrons, and Mr. John Wight is the preſent incumbent. The glebe is very conſiderable, and the vicarage is worth upwards of 200*l.* a year.

The church was dedicated to the virgin Mary, and is ſaid to have been built originally by Reginald de Waleric, not long after the conqueſt. It appeared by the workmanſhip to have been ſince rebuilt at ſeveral times, and being very ruinous, is now taking down. The inhabitants have raiſed a large ſum of money themſelves, and received a few benefactions from others, particularly from the late doctor Johnſon, biſhop of Worceſter, the late lord Botetourt, Thomas Eſtcourt, eſq; captain Warren of Briſtol, Mr. Spencer of London, (a native of the town) Mr. William Earl of Malmeſbury, and Mr. Jackſon of Sneed Park; with which they are preparing to erect an elegant church, upon the ſcite of the old one, preſerving the preſent ſteeple, which is handſome, and in good condition; and the miniſter himſelf has given about 1500*l.* towards this neceſſary work. There is an exceeding fine ring of eight bells, with a clock, and a good ſet of chimes in the tower, on the weſt ſide of which, without, is a ſcutcheon, with A lion rampant, part of the arms of the Mowbrays.

A chantry was erected in this church 37 E. 3. by Walter de Tetbury, John de Weſton, Ralph Hale, and John de Colburn, dedicated to the virgin Mary, of which William Potte was the laſt incumbent, and had a penſion of 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* in 1553. Willis. The lands belonging to it were granted to Edward Newport and John Crompton 5 Jac. There was another chantry erected by John de Grevil 19 E. 4. dedicated to the holy Trinity, and William Wotton, the laſt incumbent, had a penſion of 6*l.* in 1553. The lands belonging to this chantry were granted to Simon Wiſeman, and Richard Moor, 4 Jac. 1. There was alſo another, called Herne's chantry, of which Thomas Harman, the laſt incumbent, received a penſion of 4*l.* in the ſame year.

Firſt fruits	£. 36	13 4	Synodals	£. 0	2 0
Tenths —	3	13 4	Pentecoſtals	0	2 6
Procurations	0	10 0

Monuments

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

On the ſouth ſide of the church was Braoſe's aile, where was a chapel belonging to that family, now deſtroy'd, and a vault beneath it full of bones. Near it ſtood an antient tomb, with the figure of a lord de Braoſe, lying in armour, with his legs acroſs, but it is wretchedly defaced, and broken to pieces.

There was a tomb in the north aile, with two very large figures of a man and woman lying along; the man in armour, with his feet reſting on a lion, to denote the courage and magnanimity that ſhould diſtinguiſh the ſoldier. At the woman's feet lies a dog, the proper emblem of fidelity and affection. There was no inſcription beſides the date, Anno Domi 1586; but it was deſigned for one of the Gaſtrells, as appears by the arms, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Checky, argent and ſable, on a chief Or, three bucks heads couped of the ſecond, for Gaſtrell. 2d and 3d, Ten billets, 4, 3, 2, 1, a creſcent in chief. On the femme ſide, 1ſt and 4th, either plain or obliterated. 2d and 3d, An eagle diſplayed. Doctor Gaſtrell, late biſhop of Cheſter, and one of the canons of Chriſt Church, was deſcended from a branch of this family, of whom many have been buried here without memorials.

On the tablet of a monument in the chancel was this inſcription:

Eſto fidelis vsque ad mortem, et dabo tibi Coronam Vitæ.
In Remembrance of that Graue Gentleman,
RICHARD TALBOYS, ESQ.
Who after a Pilgrimage of 87 years
Departed this Life 3° Aug. A. D. 1663
KATHERINE HIS WIFE,
as a Pledge of ſurviving Loue hath erected. [this monument.]
Senibus mors eſt in Januis, Juvenibus vero in inſidiis. Attende tibiipſi viator.

At the top, are the arms of Talboys, impaling, Sable, a chevron between three croſs croſlets fitchy gules.

There was a monument on the north ſide of the church for John Savage, who was repreſented kneeling before an altar, and this quaint inſcription upon the table in capital letters:

Our Bodyes all receiv'd of Earth, Earth muſt againe them keepe,
Untill the Lord ſhall raiſe them up, to Life from deadly Sleepe;
Our Soules aloft to Heaven ſhall mount, where Death them cannot preſſe
Death only is a Dore to us, the true Life to poſſeſſe;
Our Glory here ſtill vaniſhing, prone to decaye to fall:
Shall after Death be ſtabliſhed, be made Angelicall. (ſlayne
What then! what then! though Savage Death, our Savage thus hath Regard it not, tis nothing, for it was with Chriſt to raigne.
John Savage, Gent. deceas'd the 28 of Maye Anno Do 1608.

Many other perſons of the name of Savage, but of a different family, have been buried under flat ſtones in the ſouth aile, particularly Francis Savage, gent. who died in 1740, aged 63; Sarah, wife of William Savage, who died in 1767, aged 73; and ſome with only initial letters upon the ſtones; for the long expectation of a new church has prevented the erecting monuments in the old one. Upon two of thoſe ſtones were the Savages arms [q], viz. Argent, ſix lioncels rampant ſable.

Upon a flat ſtone in the ſouth aile,

Here reſteth y^e^ body of MARY the Wife of NATHANIEL CRIPPS Gent. Daughter of SAMUEL BURCOME of Sodbury, Gent. who departed this Life the 13^th^ day of July, 1710, Ætatis ſuæ 35.

Her body Earthly was, and to the Earth
Deſcended is, from whence it took its Birth.
Her Soul from a more High Original
Mounted aloft, became Angelical.
Clog not her Wings, then, with your dewy tears
On which She's rais'd above the Starry Spheres.
Ceaſe Huſband, Children, ceaſe, give God the Praiſe
Which She now warbles in immortal Layes.

Alſo Margaret the Daughter of y^e^ ſaid Nathaniel and Margaret Departed y^e^ Life y^e^ 13^th^ of July 1710.

Here alſo lyeth the Body of the aboveſaid NATHANIEL CRIPPS, who departed this Life the 23^d^ Day of March Anno Dom. 1739-40 Ætatis ſuæ 65.

On a ſmall marble tablet againſt the wall,

M. S.

Deboræ Uxoris Jacobi Roche de Merriott in Comitatu Somerſetenſi Generoſi, Quæ obijt quinto Die menſis Julij A. D. MDCCXX anno ſuæ ætat. XXIX. Nec non Patricij eorum filij infantuli, qui obijt ultimo die ejuſdem menſis et Anni.

At the top are theſe arms, Gules, three roaches in pale proper.

On flat ſtones in various parts of the church, were the following memorials, amongſt many others, with only dates and names.

Here lieth the Body of M^rs^ Mary Deacon Widow, eldeſt Daughter of M^r^. Thomas Haynes of the City of Briſtol, Merch^t^ who departed this life February the 22^d^ Anno Dom. 1731-2 in the 73^d^ year of her Age.

Here lyeth the Body of M^rs^. ESTHER DEACON, Daughter of THOMAS DEACON Gent. (late of ELMESTREE in this Pariſh) and of MARY his Wife, who lies buried near this Place. She died September y^e^ 2^nd^ in the Year of our Lord 1747, aged 56.

Upon both ſtones are theſe arms, Argent, a croſs between four lions rampant ſable, on a chief azure three roſes proper.

Benefactions.

There has been a free grammar-ſchool in the town for many years. It was founded in the reign of king James, by ſir William Rumney, alderman and ſheriff of London, who was a native of this town, to which he gave a leaſe for years, of the profits of the fairs and markets, and the produce was applied towards purchaſing the advowſon of the church, the tolls of the borough, the manor and commons, which were bought of George lord Berkeley. The truſtees continued the ſchool 'till the death of Mr. Henry Wightwick, a few years ago, ſince whoſe time no maſter has been appointed, as the tolls of the markets have not been ſufficient to raiſe a ſalary for one. Mr. Oldham, the poet, received part of his education at this ſchool, as did doctor Biſſe, biſhop of Hereford. Doctor Joſeph Trapp, born at Cherington in this neighbourhood, miniſter of Chriſt Church in London, and author of ſeveral valuable books, was here qualified for the univerſity; verſity; and ſo was Mr. Gore, formerly of Sopworth in Wiltſhire, a gentleman remarkable for his learning.

[q] This family is deſcended from the Le Savages of Clifton and Rock-Savage, in Cheſhire, and they from John le Savage of Sarcliffe in Derbyſhire, who was living 3 E. 2. John Savage married Margaret, the daughter and heir of ſir Thomas Daniel, of Bradley in Appleton, Cheſhire, knight; and Margaret ſurviving her huſband, granted to her ſon John Savage, and to his heirs, the right of bearing her coat of arms, Argent, a pale fuſilly ſable, by deed dated 3 H. 5. and the poſterity of Savage bore the arms of Daniel accordingly, with the creſt, An unicorn's head couped argent, 'till ſir John Savage of Clifton took the ſix black lions, in the reign of queen Elizabeth, as I find it in ſir Peter Leiceſter's Hiſtorical Collections, pp. 230, 231. There was a ſir John Savage, who married a daughter of ſir Henry Pool, of Saperton in this county, by which alliance this family came to be ſettled at Tetbury, where the reverend Mr. John Savage has now a good houſe, and a good eſtate.

Out of the annual profits of the borough, &c. the truſtees apply 10*l.* to buy garments for the poor; 5*l.* to bind out apprentices; and 10*l.* for a weekly lecture on Thurſdays, by five neighbouring miniſters. Doctor George Bull, afterwards biſhop of St. David's, was one of the lecturers. The truſtees alſo pay 5*l.* out of the tolls, to the poor, in lieu of money given to them by the wills of Mr. William Langſtone, and Mr. John Malby.

Another ſchool has been ſince founded here, by Mrs. Anne Hodges, of Shipton Moyne in this county, who, by her will, left 30*l.* a year to teach fifteen boys of this pariſh to read, write, and account; and 10*l.* a year to the ſecond poor, charged on the Shipton eſtate.

Sir Thomas Eſtcourt, in the year 1624, gave 10*l.* yearly, ariſing from chief-rents in Tetbury, for the benefit of the poor, and 40*s.* yearly for ſermons, which ſums are charged on houſes in Tetbury. John Veizey, in 1677, gave 30*s.* yearly, charged on lands, to the uſe of the poor, and for a ſermon. Mr. John Savage gave 20*l.* to be let for four years, without intereſt, to four tradeſmen. Mr. John Sheppard and his wife gave 30*l.* to the like uſe, which being loſt by the inſolvency of the borrowers, Charles Savage, eſq; gave the like ſum to the ſame uſe.

N. B. The benefactions from Mrs. Hodges and ſir Thomas Eſtcourt were ſo long in arrear, that about the year 1765, they amounted to the ſum of 420*l.* which was laid out on conſolidated three per cent. annuities, veſted in Mr. William Fiſher, Mr. Robert Clark, Mr. Thomas Wight, and Mr. Edward Tugwell, truſtees for the uſe of the poor.

Mr. Matthew Sloper, by his will, about the year 1770, gave 10*l.* to be laid out on the ſame ſecurity, and veſted in the above-named truſtees for the ſame uſe.

Mr. John Avery, late of the city of Briſtol, has given eight ſixpenny loaves, to be diſtributed every Sunday to the ſecond poor for ever; and 10*s.* to the vicar, for a ſermon on the anniverſary of his death, with 3*s.* to the clerk, and 2*s.* to the ſexton, for their attendance on that day. And a houſe in Briſtol is charged with theſe benefactions.

Mr. Elton gave 20*s.* to the poor, and 10*s.* for an annual ſermon, to the vicar.

Mrs. Mary Hone, (daughter of Mr. John Hone,) who was buried April 11, 1776, left 150*l.* (which legacy is enrolled in the court of chancery) the intereſt of which is to be equally divided between poor widows that are members of the eſtabliſhed church, every year, on Chriſtmas-day, by the vicar of the pariſh for the time being.

Mr. Giles Stedman gave 30*s.* to be diſpoſed of in bread to the poor.

Mr. William Talboys gave 20*s.* yearly to buy books for the poor boys at the grammar-ſchool; and both the two laſt charities are charged on a piece of ground in Tetbury, called Barley Croft.

Mr. Jonathan Shippen, clothier, gave 20*s.* in bread to the poor, and 10*s.* for a ſermon. Mr. Hopeful Vokins and Mr. Joſeph Lockey gave 50*s.* in bread to the poor. And Mr. Gilbert Gaſtrell gave 20*s.* to be diſpoſed of in like manner, and 10*s.* for a ſermon.

Thomas Talboys, of Hoxton in Middleſex, eſq; who died in the year 1731, and was buried in Tetbury church, left 20*l.* a year for ever to the following uſes, 4*l.* in bread, and 15*l.* in money, to the poor; and 20*s.* to the miniſter for a ſermon on St. Thomas day. He alſo left 50*l.* to erect a monument for him in Tetbury church, which has not hitherto been done. There are ſeveral other ſums of money left for monuments, which, it is preſumed, will be erected in the new church.

Tetbury.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	107	5	4
	Poll-tax ——	1694, —	77	17	0
	Land-tax ——	1694, —	175	3	8
	The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	133	0	0

Upton, Dufton, and Elmſtree.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	93	11	4
	Poll-tax ——	1694, —	15	4	0
	Land-tax —	1694, —	95	8	4
	The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	71	11	$0\frac{1}{2}$
Land-tax in Charlton		1770, —	36	10	$2\frac{1}{2}$

When ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his account of this place, about ſeventy years ago, there were, according to him, 300 houſes, and about 1200 inhabitants in the pariſh, whereof 80 were freeholders; yearly births 57, burials 55. About the year 1729, the people were numbered, and there were then 3115 ſouls, ſince which time they are increaſed to the number of about 3500.

TEWKESBURY.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Tewkeſbury, about ten miles north-weſt from Cheltenham, nine weſtward from Winchcombe, and ten north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

It is ſituated in a fine rich vale, near the confines of Worceſterſhire, and watered by four rivers, like the garden of Eden. It has a corporation and borough-town within it, which gives name to the hundred; and is peninſulated by three of thoſe rivers, the Avon, the Swilyate, and the Carrant. The firſt, after receiving the Swilyate, falls into the Severn at the Lower Lode, a little weſtward, or below the town; and the Carrant empties itſelf into the Avon a little above it. This is called the Upper Avon, to diſtinguiſh it from the river of the ſame name that runs from Bath to Briſtol. It is navigable as high as Stratford in Warwickſhire, and viſits Eveſham and Perſhore in its courſe to Tewkeſbury; whence, by means of the Severn, (in which it is said the tide sometimes flows to this place) the navigation is continued to Gloucester, Bristol, Worcester, and to all places lying upon that river, or that have a communication with it.

It is the prevailing opinion that this place derives its name from one Theocus, who, as some say, was an eminent hermit, that dwelt here about the year 700, and had a chapel on the banks of the Severn. Leland, by a kind of unwarrantable licence, or at least by mistake, calls the town Theoci Curia, for Theoci Buria. But William of Malmesbury, as if he had never heard of such hermit, derives the name from the Greek word Theotocos, the mother of God, because the first monastery that was built here was dedicated to the virgin mother. As to the first explanation, I am not without suspicion that the story of the hermit is fabulous; nor is the monk of Malmesbury's derivation satisfactory, for who can suppose that Britons or Saxons would give names to places from a language they were almost totally ignorant of? Having first given the opinions of others, I shall take the liberty of subjoining my own. The earliest account we have of this place, is in the reign of Cenred, king of Mercia, when, we are told, two brothers, Odo and Dodo, great noblemen of that kingdom, were lords of this manor. And from this Dodo, or Thodo, (for in Saxon names the D and Th are often substituted for each other) comes Thodocus, the same name, only written after the Latin manner; and hence, probably Teodechesberie, as it is in Domesday. The Saxon writers, by contraction, call the town Deocrbury, and we their successors, Teuxbury, or Tewkesbury, as at the head of this account. The termination indicates that here was a camp or place of defence, now perhaps levelled and destroy'd, but there is no doubt of its once existing; and it was most probably in Oldbury field, for Oldbury signifies the old camp; and upon this supposition, Teodechesberie signifies the camp of Theocus.

In the year 715, one of the above noblemen, or both, (for it is variously related) built a monastery here, as will be shewn more at large in the account of church affairs; and from the resort to that monastery, the town very probably took its rise, and seems to have increased gradually as the abbey flourished. Upwards of three hundred years after that period, Domesday was compiled, which takes notice of the particulars belonging to the manor, and that there were thirteen burgesses in the town, who paid twenty shillings a year; and that the queen established a market, which paid eleven shillings and eight pence. A few ages afterwards, the town and the abbey were both improved and enlarged, by the patronage and munificence of the great earls of Gloucester, who resided here part of their time, and were lords of the large manor of Tewkesbury.

King John, before he came to the crown, held this manor, and the honour of Gloucester. He built the long bridge at Tewkesbury, leading towards Worcester, and gave the profits of the fairs and markets to keep it in repair. This bridge was very beneficial to the town, the approaches to which were subject to floods, from the frequent overflowing of the rivers that almost encompass it; and from that time Tewkesbury was more frequented, because more accessible.

After John acceded to the crown, the Clares were earls of Gloucester, and lords of the borough and great manor of Tewkesbury. They resided part of their time at Holmes Castle, built upon an eminence near the town, and were great benefactors both to that and to the abbey. By the inquisition taken after the death of Gilbert de Clare, which happened 7 E. 2. it appears, that there were then belonging to him, One hundred and fourteen burgages and a half, and a quarter part of a burgage, which paid 6*l.* 7*s.* 10*d.* and the toll of the borough was worth 100*s.* which was at that time a very considerable sum, perhaps more than equal in value to the tolls of the borough at present. There were two views of frank pledge, one at Michaelmas, the other at Easter; the certain fines amounted to 7*l.* 12*s.* and the pleas and perquisites of the court of the borough were worth 100*s.* beside what arose from the other parts of the manor. These particulars, compared with the foregoing, shew that the town was then greatly improved, and it became still more and more populous 'till the time of the reformation.

In the reign of queen Elizabeth, when the nation was arming against the expected Spanish invasion, the city of Gloucester was appointed to provide one hundred men, and the borough of Tewkesbury forty-six men for its quota. And in the year 1647, the county of Gloucester was rated at 1212*l.* 3*s.* 4*d per* month for the maintenance of forces within the kingdom, and for carrying on the war in Ireland; at which time this borough was assessed 10*l.* 10*s.*

But to come nearer to our own times: When the new militia law was carried into execution in this county, in the years 1758, 1759, and 1760, one man out of every twenty-nine upon the lists was taken by ballot, throughout the county, and there were fourteen men raised in Tewkesbury, eighteen in Cirencester, and twenty-six in the city of Gloucester; which shews the comparative state of population in those places, as far as the lists can be relied on.

The town is an antient borough, but the sheriff of Gloucestershire did not return it as such 9 E. 1. and therefore it could not then be so reputed. It was first incorporated by charter 14 Eliz. by the name of the bailiffs, burgesses, and commonalty of the borough of Tewkesbury; and king James the First granted them another charter much like the former, in the 3d year of his reign.

This

This laſt was ſurrendered, by writing under the common ſeal of the corporation, to king James the Second; and that king reincorporated them in the ſecond year of his reign, by the name of the mayor, aldermen, and common council, &c. However there was no mayor choſen by virtue of that new charter, and the government of the town, as a corporation, totally ceaſed 'till the thirteenth year of king William the Third, when that king granted the town their preſent charter, a tranſlation of which will be found in the Appendix, N°. XXVI.

The corporation conſiſts of twenty-four burgeſſes, out of whom two bailiffs are annually elected, who, with two aldermen, are the magiſtrates for the borough and corporation; and the juſtices of the peace for the county, by expreſs exemption in the charter, have no authority to act within the borough.

This town firſt elected two burgeſſes to parliament in the year 1609, as I find it in the black book belonging to the corporation; but Willis's liſt, in his Notitia Parliamentaria, commences in the year 1614.

The right of election is in the freeholders and freemen of the corporation, who together amount to above 500.

The town has had the honour of giving title to ſeveral noble perſons. There was a William earl of Tewkeſbury in the reign of king Henry the Firſt. Sir Henry Capel, brother to the earl of Eſſex, was created baron of Tewkeſbury, by king William the Third. And the electoral prince of Hanover, afterwards king George the Firſt, in the year 1706, was created baron of Tewkeſbury in the county of Glouceſter, viſcount Northallerton in the county of York, earl of Milford-Haven in the county of Pembroke, marquis and duke of Cambridge, &c.

But the place is moſt diſtinguiſhed in hiſtory for its celebrated abbey, and for the battle fought near it, between the houſes of York and Lancaſter, wherein the latter were ſo totally defeated, that they were never afterwards able to make head againſt king Edward the Fourth. The chief of thoſe that were killed in the field, and of thoſe who were made priſoners, and afterwards beheaded, or otherwiſe ſlain, were buried in the abbey church, wherefore Leland writes thus of the town:

Ampla foro, et partis ſpoliis præclara Theoci
Curia, Sabrinæ qua ſe committit Avona
Fulget; nobilium ſacriſq; recondit in antris
Multorum cineres, quondam inclyta corpora bello.

Which is thus tranſlated by the editor of Camden:

Where Avon's friendly ſtreams with Severn join,
Great Tewkeſbury's walls, renown'd for trophies, ſhine;
And keep the ſad remains with pious care,
Of noble ſouls, the honour of the war.

Of that deciſive battle our hiſtorians give the following particulars: Margaret, queen to king Henry the Sixth, landed on Eaſter-day, 1471, at Weymouth in Dorſetſhire, accompanied by her ſon, Edward prince of Wales, and Edmund Beaufort, duke of Somerſet, with a ſmall body of French forces; and ſoon taking the field, marched through Devonſhire, and Somerſetſhire, to the city of Briſtol. Her followers being increaſed to a very conſiderable army, ſhe advanced to Glouceſter, whence ſhe propoſed marching towards Wales to join the earl of Pembroke, but having been refuſed admittance into that city, ſhe proceeded to Tewkeſbury with the ſame deſign; but her ſcheme was defeated by the vigilance of king Edward, who proſcribed her and all her adherents by proclamation, and followed with his army ſo cloſe at her heels, that ſhe could not paſs the Severn without expoſing her rear to certain deſtruction. It was therefore reſolved, in a council of war, that the army ſhould be intrenched in the park adjoining to the town, and remain in that ſituation 'till the arrival of the earl of Pembroke, who had already ſent her ſome ſupplies, and was himſelf on his march to join her with a conſiderable body of forces raiſed in Wales. This plan was immediately put in execution, and Edward coming up, reſolved to attack them in their intrenchments, before they ſhould be more ſtrongly fortified or reinforced. He drew up his army in two lines, and gave the command of the firſt to his younger brother Richard duke of Glouceſter, and commanded the ſecond line himſelf, aſſiſted by his brother George duke of Clarence.

The duke of Somerſet diſpoſed the queen's army in three lines within the intrenchments, and he himſelf commanded the van, that he might ſuſtain the firſt ſhock of the enemy. The ſecond line was commanded by the lord Wenlock, under the prince of Wales, who was conſidered as general in chief; and the rear was conducted by John Courtnay, earl of Devonſhire.

King Edward obſerving that the duke of Somerſet had left ſome openings in the front, thro' which he might ſally; and being well acquainted with the impetuous diſpoſition of that nobleman, directed his brother Glouceſter, who began the attack, to decoy Somerſet from his intrenchments, by giving ground, and retreating with precipitation, until he ſhould ſee Somerſet and his line in the open plain, and then to turn and renew the charge, in which caſe he ſhould be properly ſuſtained.

Glouceſter having received his inſtructions, attacked the intrenchments with great vigour, and meeting with a very warm reception, retired with ſuch hurry and ſeeming confuſion, that Somerſet believing they fled, ſallied out of his intrenchments to purſue them, and at the ſame time ſent orders to lord Wenlock to follow and ſupport him in caſe of emergency. Glouceſter having by this ſtratagem drawn his antagoniſt into the open plain, immediately halted his troops, who inſtantly formed, and he led them back to the charge, which was made with ſo much fury, that the Lancaſtrians, who had begun the purſuit in in disorder, gave way, and retreated with the greatest precipitation into their intrenchments; upon which the duke of Somerset, perceiving that lord Wenlock had not made any advance from his station to support the first line, was so incensed, that he rode up to him, and cleft his skull with a battle ax; and the duke of Gloucester entering the intrenchments with the fugitives, made a terrible carnage. The young prince of Wales, being then but eighteen years of age, seeing all his army in confusion, did not know on which side to turn; and the duke of Somerset was so choaked with indignation, that he could hardly speak, much less take the necessary steps for reducing his troops to order. King Edward following his brother with the second line, compleated the overthrow of the queen's army, which was routed with great slaughter, the second and third lines having run away without striking a blow.

The earl of Devonshire, sir John Beaufort, brother to the duke of Somerset, sir John Delves, and other great men, were found among the dead, which amounted to 3000 men. The duke of Somerset, John Langstrother, great prior of St. John, sir Humphry Handley, sir Edmund Havarde, sir William Wickingham, sir John Leukenor, sir William Vaule, sir Gervase Clifton, sir William Carr, sir Henry Ros, sir Thomas Tresham, sir William Lirmouthe, sir John Urman, sir Thomas Seinar, sir William Rowys, sir William Newborow, knights; John, son of sir John Delves, Henry Wateley, esq; Henry Barow, esq; and —— Fielding, esq; retired to the abbey church, thinking they should be safe in that sanctuary, from which, however, they were forcibly dragged and executed. The prince of Wales falling into the hands of his enemies, was brought into the presence of king Edward, who with an air of insolence demanded how he durst presume to enter his kingdom in arms? To this question the prince replied with great fortitude and dignity, That he came to recover his father's crown and his own inheritance, which Edward had unjustly usurped. He had no sooner pronounced these words, than king Edward struck him on the face with his gauntlet and retired, and immediately the dukes of Clarence and Gloucester, the lord Hastings and sir Thomas Grey fell upon him like so many wild beasts, and stabbed him in several places with their daggers. His mother, queen Margaret, being found on the field of battle in a waggon, where she lay almost lifeless, was sent prisoner to the tower of London, and kept there about four years, 'till the king of France redeemed her for 50,000 crowns.

The prince of Wales is supposed to have been murdered in the house belonging to, and in the possession of Mr. Webb, an ironmonger; and the open plain where the battle was fought, is now called Glaston meadow.

This town had some share also in the military transactions in the reign of king Charles the First, of which Corbet gives the following account: 'Sir William Vavasour, sir Walter Pye, and 'colonel Wroughton possessed themselves of the 'town of Tewkesbury on behalf of the king, and 'fortified it after the siege of Gloucester. But 'before that siege, the king's forces under sir 'Matthew Carew were possessed of Tewkesbury, 'which they quitted on the first news of the 'Welch army being made prisoners near Glou'cester, and in less than twelve hours the town 'of Tewkesbury was repossessed by the parlia'ment's forces, who immediately received an 'alarm, that the former forces were returned with 'a greater power: 'Twas a gallant brigade of 'horse, commanded by lord Grandison, which 'came from Cheltenham. Captain Fiennes, with 'his party, had certainly been surprized by them, 'but for a ridiculous accident. Lord Grandison 'meeting with a man going from the town about 'a mile off, questioned him whether any forces 'were there, of what strength, and by whom 'commanded. The man supposing them part 'of the parliament's forces, and willing to curry 'favour, talked of vast numbers, great strength, 'and defied the cavaliers with much affected 'indignation. Upon this, they held a council of 'war, and were once about to turn back. This 'delay gave an hour's respite to those within to 'prepare for flight, who had no sooner recovered 'the end of the town, than the horse entered it 'at the other, amazed to see themselves so miser'ably deluded.

'This town was afterwards fortified by the 'king's party, and became a bad neighbour to 'Gloucester, the parliament's head garrison; 'wherefore governor Massie, on the 5th of June, 'in the year 1644, with one hundred and twenty 'horse, about thirty dragoons, and three hun'dred foot, resolved to attempt the taking of it. 'The horse and dragoons, commanded by major 'Hammond, advanced some few hours before 'the foot and atillery, and were to alarm the 'enemy 'till the foot came up. They made 'a halt about a mile from the town, and drew 'out a pretty strong forlorn hope, conceiving 'they might possibly surprize them, if they had 'not as yet taken the alarm. And first, three 'men were sent before to espy if the draw-bridge 'were down, and six more behind went undis'covered; next unto these marched the forlorn 'hope, and the main body in the rear. In this 'posture they advanced up to the town, where 'they found the bridge down, the guards slender, 'the enemy without intelligence, and supinely 'negligent. On went the first party, killed the 'centinels, a pikeman, and a musketier without 'match, and made good the bridge. The forlorn 'hope rushed in, and after them a full body of 'horse and dragoons fell upon the guards, came 'up to the main guard before the alarm was 'taken, overturned their ordnance, and charged 'through the streets as far as the bridge, Wor'cester-

'ceſter-way, where they took major Myn, gover'nor of the town. The enemy threw down their 'arms, many eſcaped by flight, and many were 'taken priſoners. Of the king's party, colonel
'Godfrey, the quarter-maſter-general, and a lieu'tenant, with a few private ſoldiers, were ſlain in
'the firſt charge. But the parliament's forces
'diſmounting, and neglecting to make good the 'bridge at which they entered, and to diſarm the
'main guard, the latter at length took courage,
'charged ſome of them, and beat them out of the 'town. However, colonel Maſſie coming up 'with a few horſe in the van of the foot, ordered
'the dragoons to fire on thoſe that defended the 'works at the bridge next Glouceſter, whilſt he 'drew the foot round the town, it being now
'dark night; but before he could reach the 'further end, where he entered about midnight,
'the garriſon were fled towards Worceſter. There
'were found in the town two braſs drakes, eigh'teen barrels of powder, and a few other military
'ſtores. The town itſelf was of great conſequence
'to the parliament, as a frontier town, ſecuring
'that ſide of the county, and commanding a
'great part of Worceſterſhire.'

In theſe actions ſeveral very extraordinary defects in generalſhip are obſervable in both parties, for which the time it relates to was remarkable. Both officers and men were moſtly unexperienced countrymen, whom the confuſion of action had bereft of memory and underſtanding; and whilſt they were buſied in every thing, could hardly effect any thing.

Having done with military affairs, it will not be improper to take notice of ſome other remarkable incidents that have happened here, as I find them recorded in the Black Book belonging to the corporation.

In 1586, there was a dearth in this country that bordered upon famine, and the juſtices of the peace joined with the bailiffs of the town to abridge the liberty of buying grain; and malting was intirely prohibited. And again in 1595, grain was ſo high before the harveſt, that proclamations were publiſhed to reſtrain the prices to the rates they were at two months before. In 1597, wheat was at 12*s.* 6*d.* the buſhel; barley at 8*s.* malt at 8*s.* and beans at 8*s.* which were exceſſive prices, conſidering the ſcarcity of money. During thoſe times, the citizens of Glouceſter ſtretched a chain acroſs the Severn, that no veſſel with proviſions might paſs beyond them; but the town of Tewkeſbury petitioning the lords of the privy council, they cauſed the chain to be taken down. Peſtilence commonly ſucceeds to famine, and accordingly the plague made its appearance the following year, tho' it carried off about forty perſons only at that time; but four years afterwards it raged very furiouſly, when no leſs than 560 perſons died of it within the year. And breaking out again in 1603, all thoſe that died of it, ſays the book, 'to avoid the perill, were 'buried in coffins of bourde'; which ſhews that wood coffins were not then commonly in uſe.

It ſtands upon the credit of the ſame manuſcript, that in 1604, there was ſo great a drought, that the river Avon was dry from Whitſuntide to Bartholomew-tide following; and in Wantner's papers in the Bodleyan library, is this very extraordinary ſtory: On July 24, 1571, being fair-day, ſuch a quantity of bats came floating down the Avon at this town, that they covered the ſurface of the water for above a land's length, in heaps above a foot thick; which ſo dammed up the mills for three days, that they could not go 'till the bats were dug out with ſhovels.

The county aſſizes were held in this town on the 4th of July, 1580, the plague, I ſuppoſe, being then at Glouceſter. And the bailiffs, in their account with the chamberlain, charged 11*s.* for wine, and 13*s.* 4*d.* for tent, with which they had treated the court and their friends, and theſe ſums were allowed them; which I mention as an example of the frugality of thoſe times. What would two of his majeſty's juſtices think of ſuch a treat now-a-days?

The aſſizes were held here again, 14 C. 1. before ſir Humphry Davenport, chief baron of the exchequer, and ſir William Jones, knight; when the court made the following order:

Glouc. ſſ. WHEREAS a certain bridge called the Long Bridge, lying at the north end of the towne of Tewkeſbury, and leading towards the cittie of Worceſter, conteining above ſeven hundred yards in length is growne into great decay, and ſo hath beene for many yeeres laſt paſt, by reaſon whereof divers of his Majeſties ſubjects travelling that way have beene unfortunately drowned: And for that it doth not appeare who in the memory of man have repayred the ſaid bridge, nor who by law ought to do itt: Therefore to the end ſo neceſſary a worke ſhould bee effected, IT IS ORDERED by aſſent, that the county of Glouceſter ſhall forthwith rayſe by way of contribution a competent ſome of money towards the repayre of the ſaid bridge, which being once effected, the corporation of Tewkeſbury doth offer to keepe and mainteyne the ſame: PROVIDED that the contribution of the whole county with the pariſh of Tewkeſbury be no prejudice to the county, nor drawne into example for the future.

Per Curiam.

The town was divided into five wards in the year 1596, over which two high conſtables preſided. They were 1. Bridge-ward. 2. Church-ward. 3. Barton-ward. Theſe three had each a petty conſtable. 4. St. Mary's-ward, with two petty conſtables. 5. The Middle-ward, which the high high conſtables themſelves took charge of. There are now only four conſtables for the borough.

It conſiſts of three principal ſtreets, beſide lanes. The High-ſtreet is of great length, ſufficiently ſpacious and handſome, and well paved on each ſide for the convenience of walking. It leads from the town hall northwards towards Worceſter. The modern houſes are built of brick, and the more antient ones of timber, as there is very little ſtone for building in this part of the country. Not long ſince, the roads about the town were ſo founderous, that a carriage could not poſſibly paſs; but for the laſt twenty years, the repreſentatives of the borough have given large ſums towards putting them in repair, and the turnpikes now ſupport them.

This town had formerly ſome ſhare in the clothing buſineſs, but that has been long ſince loſt. Its chief trade, at preſent, is malting, ſtocking-frame knitting, eſpecially of cotton, and a little nailing. But the making of muſtard-balls, as taken notice of in every book that treats of this place, has been ſo long diſcontinued, as not to be within the remembrance of any perſon living.

Here are five yearly fairs, viz. on St. Matthew's day, on the 3d of May, the 11th of June, the 24th of Auguſt, and the 29th of September; and two weekly markets, on Wedneſday and Saturday, which are plentifully ſupply'd from the rich country round about; ſo that proviſions are generally cheaper here than in any other part of the county.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

Domeſday gives the following ample account of this large manor:

'In Teodecheſberie were fourſcore and fifteen 'hides in the time of king Edward. Of theſe 'forty-five were in demean, and free from all 'royal ſervice and tax, except the ſervice due to 'the lord of the manor. The manor was in capite. 'There were in demean twelve plow-tillages, and 'fifty between the ſervi and ancillæ, and ſix-'teen bordars in waiting about the hall, and two 'mills of 20 ſol. and one fiſhery, and a ſalt-pit at 'Wich belonging to the manor.

'There were three hides at Sudwich, ſix in 'Trotintune, ſix in Fitentone, eight in Pamintonie, 'three and a half in Natone, three in Waltone, 'and ſix in Eſtone. There were twenty-one 'villeins, and nine radcheniſters, having twenty-'ſix plow-tillages, and five coliberti, and one bor-'dar, with five plow-tillages. Theſe radcheniſters 'plowed and harrowed for the ſuſtenance of the 'lord's court.

'There were eight burgeſſes in Glouuecestre, 'paying 5 ſol. and 4 den. and doing ſervice at the 'court.

'In all Teodecheſberie there are 120 acres of 'meadow, and a wood one mile and a half long, 'and as much broad.

'There are now thirteen burgeſſes at Teodekeſ-'berie, paying 20 ſol. a year; a market eſtabliſhed 'by the queen, pays 11 ſol. and 8 den. And there 'is one plow-tillage more, and twenty-two be-'tween the ſervi and ancillæ; a fiſhery, and a 'ſalt-pit at Wich.

'Three radcheniſters belonged [to the eſtate] 'there in the time of king Edward. One of them 'held ſix hides in Eſtone, which Girard now 'holds. Another held three hides in Waltone, 'which Radulf now holds. The third held two 'hides in Fitentone, which Bernard holds. In 'theſe eleven hides, ten plow-tillages are in de-'mean, and there are four villeins, and one bor-'dar, and nine ſervi, with one plow-tillage. There 'are eighteen acres of meadow. The whole was 'worth 10 lib. in the time of king Edward, and 'it is worth as much now.

'There was a country-ſeat, and five hides at 'Oxendone, belonging to Teodekeſberie, in the 'time of king Edward. There are five plow-'tillages in demean, and five villeins, and two 'radcheniſters, having ſeven plow-tillages, and 'twelve between the ſervi and ancillæ. There 'are twenty-four acres of meadow. At Wince-'combe are three burgeſſes paying 40 den. All 'this manor is worth and was worth 8 lib.'

'There are four hides in Hanlege, belonging 'to the ſame manor of Teodekeſberie, without 'demean, but there were two plow-tillages in 'demean in the time of king Edward, and forty 'among the villeins and bordars, and eight among 'the ſervi and ancillæ, and a mill of 16 d. a wood 'in which there is an incloſure. This was earl 'William's eſtate, but it now belongs to the king's 'farm in Hereford. It was worth 15 lib. in the 'time of king Edward, now only 10 lib.

'Nine hides in Fortemeltone belonged to this 'manor. There are two plow-tillages in demean, 'and twenty among the villeins and bordars, 'and ſix among the ſervi and ancillæ; and a 'wood. It was worth 10 lib. in the time of king 'Edward, and is now worth 8 lib. Earl William 'held theſe two eſtates, and paid tax on account 'of Tedekeſberie.

'Ten hides in Senendone belong to the ſame 'manor. There are four plow-tillages, and eight 'villeins, and four bordars, and five radcheniſters, 'with eight plow-tillages. There are twelve 'ſervi, and a mill of 3 ſol. This eſtate pays tax 'for ſeven hides. It was worth 20 lib. in the time 'of king Edward, now only 8 lib. It is now in 'the king's hands, and Robert de Olgi farms it.

'Seven hides in Clifort belong to the ſame 'manor. There are three plow-tillages in de-'mean, and fourteen villeins, with five plow-'tillages, and a mill of 12 ſol. and two acres of 'meadow. There were thirteen among the ſervi 'and ancillæ; and a church, and a prieſt with 'one plow-tillage. It was worth 8 lib. now only '6 lib. The queen gave this eſtate to Roger de 'Buſli, and it paid tax for four hides in Tedechef-'berie.

'The

'The fifty hides above-mentioned, made up 'the fourscore and fifteen hides which belonged 'to Tedechesberie, quit and free from all tax 'and royal service.

'This manor of Tedekesberie, when intire in 'the time of king Edward, was worth 100 lib. 'whereas Radulf received 12 lib. because it was 'spoiled and disordered. Radulf is now rated '40 l. nevertheless he pays 50 lib.

'Brictric the son of Algar held this manor in 'the time of king Edward, and at that time had 'the underwritten estates of other thanes under 'his jurisdiction.

'One thane held a manor of four hides in 'Essetone. Girard holds it now, and has there 'one plow-tillage, and two villeins, with one 'plow-tillage. It is worth and was worth 40 sol.

'Let held a manor of eight hides in Chenemer-'tone. Girard holds it now, and has there three 'plow-tillages, and fourteen villeins, with four 'plow-tillages. There are eight servi, and three 'mills of 15 sol. It was worth 8 lib. now only 6 lib.

'Three hides in Botintone belong to this 'manor. The same Girard holds them, and has 'there two plow-tillages, and four villeins, with 'three plow-tillages. And there are three servi, 'and a mill of 8 sol. and eight acres of meadow. 'It is worth and was worth 40 sol.

'A thane held three hides in Wenecote. The 'queen gave this estate to Rainald the chaplain. 'There are three villeins, with half a plow-tillage. 'It was worth 40 sol.

'Dunning held six hides and a half in Aldri-'tone, and four hides and a half in Dridedone. 'And a thane held one hide in Hundeuuic.

'Hunfrid holds these estates of the king, and 'has there four plow-tillages in demean, and five 'villeins, and eight bordars, with three plow-'tillages, and one radchenister, with one plow-'tillage, and one burgess in Wicecombe, and it 'is computed that there are twelve acres of 'meadow. The whole was worth 11 lib. in the 'time of king Edward, now only 6 lib.

'Four villeins held two hides, and a thane held 'half a hide in Tuninge. There are four plow-'tillages, and three acres of meadow. The queen 'gave this estate to John the chamberlain. It is 'worth and was worth 35 sol.

'Hermer and Aluuin held three hides, less one 'yard-land, in Stoches. Bernard holds them now 'of the king, and has there one plow-tillage in 'demean, and four acres of meadow. It was 'worth 60 sol. now only 40 sol.

'They who held these estates in the time of 'king Edward, were, together with their lands, 'under the jurisdiction of Brictric.' Dom. p. 68.

This Brictric was a principal man in his country, and had the honour of Gloucester, which was a noble seigneury, and many other great estates, by inheritance from his grandfather, Hailward Snow. Having incurred the displeasure of Maud, queen to William the Conqueror, and daughter to Baldwin earl of Flanders, by refusing to marry her, when he was ambassador at her father's court, she revenged the insult by procuring his imprisonment, and the confiscation of all his possessions.

The large manors of Tewkesbury and Thornbury, and the honour of Gloucester, were granted to queen Maud, and after her death, continued to be the demeans of the crown, 'till king William the Second granted them to Robert Fitz-Haiman, or Hayman, lord of Corboil and Thorigny in Normandy, kinsman and assistant to the Conqueror. He married Sybelle, daughter of Roger Montgomery, and sister of Robert de Belaime, earl of Shrewsbury, and by her had four daughters, Mabelle, Cicily, Hawise, and Amice.

Mabel was married to Robert Melhent, or Fitz-Roy, sometimes called Robert Rufus, consul and earl of Gloucester. He was natural son of king Henry the First, and had with her not only the manor of Tewkesbury, and all her other paternal estates, but also all the land of Hamo Dapifer her uncle. He died in the year 1147, and left issue by his said wife, four sons, William, his successor; Roger, bishop of Worcester; Haman, and Philip; and one daughter, named Maud.

William earl of Gloucester, son of Robert, succeeded to the manor of Tewkesbury. He married Hawise, daughter of Robert earl of Leicester, by whom he had a son Robert, who died before him; and three daughters, Mabel, Amice, and Isabel, or rather Avisa.

Isabel, or Avisa, the youngest daughter of William earl of Gloucester, was married to John, commonly called Sans-Terre, or Lack-land, fourth son to king Henry the Second, who had with her this manor, and the whole honour of Gloucester. He was afterwards king of England, and having no child by his wife, was divorced from her in the first year of his reign. It is said the king sold her afterwards, with all her lands and fees, except the castle of Bristol, and the chaces belonging to it, to Geofry de Mandeville, earl of Essex, for 20,000 marks; after whose death, she was married to Hugh de Burgh, justice of England; but she had no issue by either of her husbands, whereby Almeric, son to the earl of Eureux in Normandy, by Maud, another daughter of William earl of Gloucester, succeeded to this manor, and the earldom of Gloucester. He married the daughter of Hugh de Gournai, but dying without issue, the manor of Tewkesbury devolved on Amice, the second and only surviving daughter of William earl of Gloucester.

Richard de Clare, earl of Hertford, had married the said Amice, in whose right he became earl of Gloucester, and lord of the manor of Tewkesbury. He was descended from Giflebert, surnamed Crispin, earl of Brien in Normandy, son of Jeffery, who was natural son to Richard the First, duke of Normandy. Richard, the eldest son of Giflebert earl of Brien, distinguished himself in favour of the Conqueror in the great battle of Haſtings, and was rewarded with great eſtates in England, and ſeized of thirty-eight manors in Surrey, thirty-five in Eſſex, three in Cambridgeſhire, two in Kent, one in Middleſex, one in Wiltſhire, one in Devonſhire, and ninety-five in Suffolk, of which Clare was the principal, and therefore he was ſometimes ſtiled Richard de Clare; but having purchaſed the caſtle of Tunbridge of the archbiſhop of Canterbury, he was more generally ſtiled Richard de Tonebrugge. He married Roheſe, daughter of Walter Giffard, earl of Buckingham, and was ſlain by the Welch near Abergavenny, about the year 1100. Gilbert, ſon and heir of Richard, married Adeliza, daughter of the earl of Clermont, by whom he had four ſons. Richard de Tonebrugge, or de Clare, was his ſon and heir, and had the title of earl of Hertford. Gilbert, his brother, ſurnamed Strongbow, from his ſtrength in drawing a ſtrong bow, obtained great victories and large territories in Wales. His ſon Richard Strongbow, obtained great victories in Ireland, and was earl of Pembroke and Strigule, now Chepſtow.

But to return to the Clares: Gilbert de Clare was the eldeſt ſon and heir of Richard, and ſucceeded him in the earldom of Hertford, and was alſo ſtiled earl of Clare. He died without iſſue in 1151, and was ſucceeded by Roger his brother, who married Maud, the daughter of James de St. Hillary, and died in 1173.

Richard de Clare, earl of Hertford, was ſon of Roger. He it was that married Amice, the laſt ſurviving daughter of the earl of Glouceſter, as before repreſented, and dying in 1206, was ſucceeded by his ſon and heir Gilbert de Clare, who was earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, and lord of the manor of Tewkeſbury. He married Iſabel, one of the daughters, and afterwards coheir to the earl of Pembroke, and dying 14 H. 3. was buried in the choir of Tewkeſbury church.

Richard de Clare, earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, was ſon and heir of Gilbert. He married Maud, the eldeſt daughter of John de Lacy, earl of Lincoln, and dying in 1262, was buried in the choir at Tewkeſbury.

Gilbert de Clare, ſirnamed the Red, from his red hair, was ſon and ſucceſſor to the above Richard. He married the daughter of Guy earl of Angouleſme, from whom he was divorced; and then married Joan d'Acres, daughter of king Edward the Firſt, and dying in 1295, left iſſue by her his ſon and heir, Gilbert de Clare, earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, who being ſlain at the battle of Bannockſburn in Scotland, 7 E. 2. without iſſue, his three ſiſters became his heirs. The inquiſition after his death, found, among other things, that he died ſeized of a park here, containing eighty acres, whoſe underwood and herbage were worth 30*s.* a year; of four hundred and ſixty acres of arable land, at 4*d.* the acre; of eighty-five acres and a half of meadow, at 2*s.* and of fifty acres of paſture, at 1*s.* the acre; of the rent of free tenants, 12*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.* of a mill worth 20*s.* of De la Home farm, in manu cuſtomaria, which paid 11*s.* 8*d.* of a meſſuage which the chaplain of Ayſhchurch held, worth 5*s.* of a meſſuage which Walter —— held, worth 4*s.* and of the More farm, worth 16*s.* a year: That there were one hundred and fourteen burgages and a half, and a quarter part of a burgage, which paid 6*l.* 7*s.* 10*d.* and that the burgeſſes rented lands within the hundred of the ſaid town, containing ſeventy acres and a half, and a third part of an acre, at 35*s.* 5*d.* and paid 20*s.* per ann. for a cuſtom called Fulſtall, and 12*s.* per ann. for ſtallage. That there were forty-ſeven cuſtomary lands and a half, every one of which was a virgate, and held in villeinage. That the total value of the whole manor, with the burg, was 131*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.* that there were two views of frankpledge, at Michaelmas and Eaſter, and the certain fines were 7*l.* 12*s.* The pleas and perquiſites of the court were worth 100*s.* the toll of the burg 100*s.* and the pleas and perquiſites of the ſaid burg, by itſelf, 100*s.* per ann. Eſch.

Hugh le Deſpencer the younger married Elianor, the eldeſt ſiſter of the laſt mentioned Gilbert, 7 E. 2. and in right of his wife, had livery of the manor of Tewkeſbury. But he dying an untimely death, as already related, left iſſue four ſons, Hugh, Edward, Gilbert, and Philip; and one daughter, the wife of Richard Fitz-Alan, earl of Arundel. Eleanor wife of the ſaid Hugh le Deſpencer ſurvived him, and was afterwards married to William la Zouch of Mortimer, and died ſeized of Tewkeſbury, Fairford, Sodbury, and Archer Stoke, June 30, 1337.

The reader may ſee a larger detail of the foregoing lords of this manor p. 93, under the account of the earls of Glouceſter.

Hugh le Deſpencer, ſon of the laſt mentioned Hugh, by Elianor his wife, married Elizabeth, widow of Giles de Badleſmere, and daughter of William de Montacute, earl of Saliſbury. He was ſummoned as a peer to parliament, but died without iſſue, ſeized of Tewkeſbury, Fairford, &c. Elizabeth his wife ſurvived him, and was endowed with the manor of Tewkeſbury, and was afterwards married to Guy de Brien, and died Feb. 8, 1349, 23 E. 3. Collins's Peerage.

Edward le Deſpencer was brother of the laſt Hugh, and ſecond ſon of Hugh le Deſpencer the younger, by Elianor his wife. He died in 1342, leaving by Anne his wife, daughter of Henry lord Ferrers of Groby, three ſons, Edward, heir to his uncle; Thomas le Deſpencer; and Henry, the warlike biſhop of Norwich.

Sir Edward, the eldeſt ſon, was made knight of the garter, and ſummoned to parliament among the barons 31 E. 3. He wedded Elizabeth, daughter and heir of ſir Bartholomew de Berghurſt, and dying at Caerdiff Nov. 11, 1375, was buried on the ſouth ſide of Tewkeſbury church, before before the door of the veſtry, leaving two ſons, Thomas, his heir; and Hugh le Deſpencer; and five daughters. His lady built the chapel of the Holy Trinity, in memory of him, and died in July 1409, endowed with a very great eſtate in Wales, and with the manors of Tewkeſbury and Fairford.

Thomas le Deſpencer, ſon of Edward, was created earl of Glouceſter. He married Conſtance, daughter of Edmund de Langley, duke of York, fifth ſon of king Edward the Third, and conſpiring with the earls of Kent, Saliſbury, and Huntingdon, to dethrone king Henry the Fourth, was taken and beheaded at Briſtol, as more particularly related in the account of Cirenceſter. He had by his ſaid lady, one ſon Richard, who being under age at his father's death, was granted in ward to Edward duke of York, who married him to Elizabeth, daughter of Ralph Nevil, earl of Weſtmoreland; but he died before he was fourteen years old, without iſſue. Earl Thomas had alſo two daughters; Elizabeth, who died an infant; and Iſabel, born after her father's death, who was married to Richard Beauchamp, lord Bergavenny, and earl of Worceſter; who, in right of his wife, had livery of the manor of Tewkeſbury 2 H. 5. but dying ſoon after, Iſabel his widow was married, by diſpenſation from the pope, to Richard de Beauchamp, earl of Warwick.

This Richard de Beauchamp, earl of Warwick, had a large paternal eſtate, beſides great poſſeſſions which came by his mother, who was ſiſter and coheireſs of Thomas earl of Arundel; and now marrying Iſabel, who was the ſole heireſs of the family of the Deſpencers, he was ſeized of a vaſt eſtate. This earl was eminent not only for his wealth, but acknowledged by the emperor of Germany, and other foreign princes, to exceed all his cotemporaries in wiſdom, valour, and courteſy. He was governor of Calais, and gained great honour to the Engliſh nation by his generous and ſplendid way of living. His firſt wife was Elizabeth, heireſs to Thomas lord Berkeley, by whom he had three daughters, all married into noble families. He died 17 H. 6. and was buried at the collegiate church at Warwick, leaving iſſue by his ſecond wife Iſabel, one ſon Henry, and one daughter Anne.

Which Henry de Beauchamp, earl of Warwick, was fourteen years old at his father's death, and was crowned king of the iſle of Wight by the king's own hand, and at the age of nineteen, was created duke of Warwick. He married Cecily, daughter of Richard Nevil, earl of Saliſbury, and had by her an only child Anne, who died an infant; and the duke himſelf was taken away by death, in the twenty-ſecond year of his age, 23 H. 6. leaving Anne, his ſiſter, ſole heireſs to all his great inheritance.

Which Anne was married to Richard Nevil, earl of Saliſbury, deſcended from Gilbert de Nevil, who came into England with king William, commonly called the Conqueror, and was progenitor to the earls of Weſtmoreland. But Richard Nevil, father of this Richard, marrying Alice, daughter and heir of Thomas de Montacute, earl of Saliſbury, Richard the ſon was created earl of Saliſbury, and was afterwards, in right of his wife, earl of Warwick. He is celebrated in the Engliſh annals for his power and martial atchievements, and commonly called the Stout Earl of Warwick, and the King Maker; for king Henry the Sixth and king Edward the Fourth held the crown by turns, as this earl favoured the ſide; but he was at laſt killed at the battle of Barnet, April 14, 1471, wherein, and in the battle fought a few days after at this place, king Edward ſecured the crown to himſelf. This great earl was buried at the monaſtery of Biſham in Berkſhire, leaving iſſue by his counteſs Anne, the great heireſs, two daughters, Iſabel, (by ſome called Alice) and Anne.

Iſabel, the eldeſt daughter, was married to George duke of Clarence, brother to king Edward the Fourth, who was afterwards attainted by act of parliament, and drowned in a butt of Malmeſey wine, (his brother, Richard duke of Glouceſter, aſſiſting at the execution) and was buried at Tewkeſbury. His children were Edward Plantagenet, earl of Warwick, and Margaret counteſs of Saliſbury. Edward was beheaded, unmarried, 15 H. 7. in the 24th year of his age, for a pretended conſpiracy with Perkin Warbeck; for the king viewed him with a jealous eye, as being the only heir male of the houſe of York. Margaret his ſiſter was wedded to ſir Richard Pole, and was beheaded 33 H. 8. upon an act of attainder paſſed againſt her for correſponding with her ſon cardinal Reginald Pole.

Anne, the younger daughter of Richard earl of Saliſbury and Warwick, was married, firſt, to king Henry the Sixth's only ſon, Edward prince of Wales, who being made priſoner at the battle of Tewkeſbury, May 4, 1471, was baſely aſſaſſinated by Richard duke of Glouceſter. She was afterwards married to the murderer, and by him had Edward prince of Wales, who died in 1484, in the eleventh year of his age, not long before his mother; who is ſaid to have been poiſoned by Richard to facilitate his intended marriage with his niece the princeſs Elizabeth, afterwards queen to king Henry the Seventh. The acts of cruelty and inhumanity which are related of this duke are not to be parallelled in the Engliſh annals. He procured the murder of his two nephews, the ſons of king Edward the Fourth, to make way for himſelf to the crown; and having thus glorioufly attained it, fell himſelf a victim to juſtice in a deciſive battle at Boſworth-field in Leiceſterſhire, about two years afterwards, when king Henry the Seventh was victorious, and obtainted the crown.

King Edward the Fourth had procured an act of parliament to diveſt Anne, the great heireſs, of her large inheritance, after the death of her husband the earl of Warwick, and had settled it on her daughters and their issue; but king Henry the Seventh obtaining the crown, alledged the injustice of it, and procured another act, in the beginning of his reign, to reinstate the mother. The king pretended justice, but was actuated by interest, and prevailed with the countess dowager to levy a fine of her estate, and settle it on himself, which she did 3 H. 7. and died two years afterwards; whereby that large estate came to the crown, and amongst many other manors, the following were in Gloucestershire: Tewkesbury, Stoke-Archer, Whittington, Fairford, Sodbury, Tredington, Pamington, Fidington, Northway, the Mythe, King's Barton near Bristol, Barton hundred, Kemmerton, Chedworth, and Lidney.

The manor of Tewkesbury was granted from the crown to sir Thomas Seymour 1 E. 6. and upon his attainder reverted back again; and was again granted, with the borough, and with many free tenements, Severnham, and other lands, to the corporation of Tewkesbury 7 Jac. who are the present lords of the manor.

TITHINGS and HAMLETS.

1. The Mythe, and part of Mythe-Hook, situated a little northward of the town. Mr. Richard Jackson, and Mr. William Buckle, have both very good houses in this hamlet, and are proprietors of the greatest part of the lands within it. Their houses stand on high ground, on the west side of the Avon, and command a fine prospect over the rivers, and the neighbouring vale.

Mythe-wood, now intirely assarted, formerly belonged to the abbey of Tewkesbury, to which it was given by Gilbert de Clare, earl of Gloucester and Hertford, in the year 1230; and the abbey obtained a licence to inclose the wood 47 E. 3. The manor of Mythe belonged successively to the lords of the manor of Tewkesbury, and sir Thomas Seymour had a grant of it, wherein it was called Warwick's lands, 1 E. 6. After lord Seymour's attainder, it reverted to the crown, and was granted, together with Mythe-Hook, and a meadow called King's Mead, a fishery in the Severn, and another in the Avon, to Daniel Pert, and Alexander Pert, in trust, 7 E. 6. And it is now divided amongst several freeholders.

2. Southwick. This hamlet is briefly mentioned in the large extract from Domesday, standing at the beginning of the account of the manor of Tewkesbury.

Robert le Pearl was seized of lands in Supishull and Southwick 37 E. 3. Sir John Tracy was also seized of the manor of Southwick 37 E. 3. It afterwards belonged to the abbey of Tewkesbury, and together with lands called Gosebuts, was granted to Thomas Stroud, Walter Earl, and James Paget, 36 H. 8. A close in Southwick, called Panter's, was granted to Walter Compton; and lands in Southwick, in the tenure of John Jones, were granted to John Pope, 36 H. 8. Lands called Culverhouse, in Southwick, were granted to Edward Cooper and Valentine Fairweather, 7 E. 6. Lands called Dearhurst Place, in Southwick, were granted to William Read, and John Read, 7 E. 6. Other lands called Walton's Field, in Southwick, were granted to William Fitz-Williams, and Arthur Hilton, 7 E. 6.

Of the Abbey of Tewkesbury.

It is not to be expected that in the history of this abbey, which according to all accounts was founded above a thousand years ago, there should be every particular recorded to make it complete. There is indeed a large account of it in the Monasticon, chiefly collected from the Chronicle of Tewkesbury, in the Cotton Library, and from the writings of William of Malmesbury, and of Ordericus Vitalis, whence the following is chiefly extracted.

Odo and Dodo were two noble dukes of Mercia, who flourished in the reigns of Ethelred, Kenred, and Ethelbald, kings of Mercia, and were possessed of large estates in various parts. About the year 715, these noblemen founded a monastery, to the honour of the virgin Mary, upon their own estate near the Severn, where, says the Chronicle, a certain hermit, called Theocus, had made his abode, from whom the place was called Tewxbury: And they granted the manor of Stanway, with its members, and other smaller possessions, for the maintenance of the monks, who were few in number, not exceeding four or five, placed under the government of a prior, to live after the rule of St. Benedict. These noble persons dying, were buried in the church of Pershore, to which they had been great benefactors, as they also had been to several other monasteries, built by themselves or their ancestors.

From this time, for almost a century, we have no certain account who had the patronage of this little monastery, which it is said suffered, with others, by the civil wars that distracted Britain during the heptarchy, and from the incursions of the Danes. The monks were often driven away, the monastery plundered, and twice consumed by fire.

In the year 800, Hugh, a great nobleman of Mercia, was patron of this priory, and Brictric, king of the West Saxons, dying the preceding year, was buried, by his procurement, in the chapel of St. Faith there; and the same Hugh dying in the year 812, was himself buried in this priory.

Here again is a large vacancy in our account, for I find nothing material mentioned of this monastery 'till about the year 930, when there flourished a noble knight called Haylward, or Ailward, surnamed Snew, or Snow, from his fair complexion. He was royally descended from king Edward the Elder, and was patron of this priory. He founded a small monastery on his demean lands at Cranbourn in the county of Dorset, Dorſet, and ſubjected the priory of Tewkeſbury to that abbey, where at length he was buried. His wife's name was Algive, by whom he had a ſon Algar, father of that Brictric ſo often mentioned in Domeſday, as proprietor of many large eſtates in Glouceſterſhire; and he was alſo lord of the vaſt ſeigneury of Glouceſter. This Brictric finiſhed and much enlarged the church of Cranbourn, which was founded by his anceſtors.

At the conqueſt of Britain by William duke of Normandy, Brictric's perſon was ſeized and impriſoned, and all his eſtates confiſcated by that monarch, as already more largely related in the deſcent of the manor of Tewkeſbury, and other parts of this work. By which means the patronage of the before-mentioned monaſteries was veſted in the crown, and ſo continued during that reign; but in the next, William Rufus gave the honour of Glouceſter, and all Brictric's eſtates, with the patronage of theſe monaſteries, to Robert Fitz-Haimon; and from that time the latter was veſted in the great lords of the manor of Tewkeſbury. And as they have been already ſet down in the account of the manor, the reader is referred to that account, as it would be equally tedious and unneceſſary to go over them again. I ſhall therefore take notice, in this place, of ſuch of them only who have been Particular Benefactors to the Abbey.

In the year 1102, the above Robert Fitz-Hamon, or Haimon, at the inſtance of his wife Sybil, and of Girald the abbat of Cranbourn, rebuilt and enlarged the church of Tewkeſbury, with all the offices, and endowed it with many lands, rents, and large poſſeſſions. And becauſe it was thought to exceed Cranbourn in fruitfulneſs of ſoil, and pleaſantneſs of ſituation near a navigable river, he removed abbat Girald and his monks from Cranbourn to Tewkeſbury, leaving only a prior and two monks at the former, to keep up the memory of the founders of that church, which was now reduced to a priory, and made ſubject in future to that of Tewkeſbury, thus advanced to the high honour of an abbey. At the ſame time the following charter of ordination was made, and entered in the Regiſter-book of the abbey. Stevens, V. 2. Appendix, 206.

Carta Ordinationis Eccleſiæ Theokeſburienſis, tempore Giraldi Abbatis, & Roberti filii Haimonis.

IN nomine Patris & Filii & Spiritus Sancti, Amen. Ordinata eſt Eccleſia Sanctæ Mariæ Theokeſburienſis Cœnobii. Diviſa ſunt viz. ejuſdem Eccleſiæ quæque Miniſteria; & nominatim ſunt diſtributa quæque quibuſque & ſingulis miniſteriis pertinentia in eiſdem miniſteriis perpetualiter, quamdiu ſcilicet ſeculum duraverit Deo opitulante firma aſſertione permanſura & convenienter & diviſe ſunt conſtituta ad ſingulas utilitates Domus Dei regendas & promovenda quæque neceſſaria, ſicut ſubſequenti capitulatione inſcribitur. Sunt autem hæc ad Monachorum menſam pertinentia. In ipſa Theodekeſburia Molendina duo, piſcaria una, terra de Phytentona, Decima Domini & hominum ejuſdem villæ, Decimæ quorundam vicinorum, tertia pars omnium Elemoſynarum quæ fiunt in Eccleſia, vel in Capitulo quocunque modo fiunt in eadem Domo Dei, præter Conſuetudines Parochiæ, Eccleſia Sancti Petri de Briſtol, Obedentia de Wallis præter terram quæ fuit Walchelini Belingehopa, juxta Hereford, Waſſeburna, Stanleya, Staneweya, Tatintona, Leomintona, Amenel, Altentuna, Werſtona, Tarenta. Hoc autem Manerium Tarenta dedit Abbas ejuſdem Eccleſiæ nomine Gyraldus, prece Roberti filii Haymonis ad emendationem victus Monachorum die hujus ordinationis. Unde tunc definita fuit fore cotidiana melioratio victus eorum 12*d.*

Erant vero tunc in Eccleſia Monachi numero 57.

Ad veſtes Monachorum pertinet Eccleſia de Wairford, terra de Middelonda, omnes Eccleſiæ quæ fuerunt Roberti Capellani, Kingeſtona, poſtquam Cœnobium edificatum fuerit. De manu Abbatis centum ſolidi, donec conſtituantur in terra.

Ad ſecretariam pertinent omnes conſuetudines Parochiæ, præter Decimas. De Elemoſyna Dominici 40*s.* tertia pars omnium extrinſecarum Elemoſynarum quæ fiunt in eadem Eccleſia.

Ad emendum Parcamentum, pertinet quædam terra in Wallis quæ fuit Walchelini, Decima Roberti de Baſkereville.

Ad Elemoſynam pertinet Ceotel in Dorſete, terra de Pequemintona, una Haya ad Wyncelcumbam, Decima totius victus Coenobii, Decima Cenſus de Briſtol.

Cæteri redditus & terræ quas privilegium Eccleſiæ nominando diſtinguit, ad emendum terras, ornamenta, ad ſupplenda omnia deficientia prædictorum, ad agenda quælibet opera, ad explendas omnes res Abbatis ordinantur.

Facta eſt hæc Ordinatio a prædicto Abbate monitu & conſilio Roberti filii Haymonis ejuſdem Eccleſiæ Fundatoris & Domini, ipſo præſente & Sibilia uxore ſua, atque filia ſua Mabilia, Gylbertoque de Deulframvilla, Ricardo de Croyle, multiſque aliis, preſente etiam toto Conventu ipſius Eccleſiæ, 5° Kal. Octobris, anno ſcilicet ab Incarnatione Domini 1105: quo eodem Henricus Rex Anglorum deſtruxit Baiocas incendio.' Hujus Ordinationis Violatorem, ſi forte ullo tempore ſurrexerit, excommunicavit eodem die Abbas prædictus ut a conſortio cœleſti ſeparatus in pœnis gehennalibus permaneat ſine fine cruciandus, niſi ſatisfaciens recipuerit, toto Conventu Eccleſiæ & omnibus qui aderant reſpondentibus AMEN.

It cannot be eaſily conceived, ſays William of Malmeſbury, how much Robert Fitz-Haimon adorned and beautified this monaſtery, where the ſtatelineſs of the buildings raviſhed the eyes, and the pious charity of the monks the affections of all perſons that came thither.

Robert Fitz-Roy, earl of Glouceſter, who married Mabile, the eldeſt daughter of Robert Fitz-Haimon, built a priory, dedicated to St. James, on his own demeans at Briſtol, endowed it with lands, ornaments, and poſſeſſions, and made it ſubject to the abbey of Tewkeſbury. He died in 1147, and William, his ſon, confirmed all the charters, confirmations, liberties and donations which his father and all his anceſtors had granted to the abbey. Not long afterwards the abbey was burnt down, a common accident in thoſe days, but it was ſoon rebuilt, and the abbat entertained king John, and many of his royal retinue; and Matthew Paris mentions that the ſame king afterwards kept his Chriſtmas there.

In the year 1230, Gilbert de Clare gave the Mythe wood to the abbey; and about a century afterwards Hugh le Deſpencer, the third of that name, amongſt other good gifts, appropriated the church of Lantriſſa to the abbat and convent in ſucceſſion, from which they received fifty marks annually.

Guido de Brien, who lived in the reign of king Edward the Third, alſo appropriated certain rents in Briſtol, and annexed the profits to the office of Sacriſt in Tewkeſbury, and to the prieſt who ſhould ſay the firſt maſs for the ſaid Guido every day at the altar of St. Margaret, in the church there, with theſe prayers, God of his mercy, &c. for his ſurviving kindred; and Incline, O Lord, &c. for the dead kindred; the maſs of the Trinity on Sunday; the maſs of the Holy Ghoſt on Monday; the maſs of St. Thomas on Tueſday; the maſs of the the Holy Reſt on Wedneſday; the maſs of the Aſcenſion on Thurſday; the maſs of the Holy Croſs on Friday; the maſs of St. Mary on Saturday; and whatever prieſt ſhould ſo officiate for a week, ſhould receive 21 d. and whoſoever ſhould celebrate maſs on his anniverſary day, or on the anniverſary of his wife Elizabeth, if the abbat, he ſhould receive 5 s. if the prior 3 s. 4 d. who reads the Goſpel on thoſe days ſhould have 8 d. who reads the Epiſtle ſhould have 8 d. who holds the paten 8 d. the præcentor and his two aſſiſtants 8 d. a piece; the prior 12 d. and every monk ſhould have 4 d.

Edward le Deſpencer, great grandſon of Hugh earl of Wincheſter, gave a gold cup to the monaſtery, and a precious jewel, ſays the Chronicle, neatly contrived, to hold the ſacrament on ſolemn days. And the lady Elizabeth, his wife, gave a ſuit of ſcarlet veſtments, embroidered with lions of gold; viz. one coat with three royal robes and white veſtments, and fifteen mantles or copes.

Iſabel counteſs of Warwick gave three hundred marks a year to this abbey, that ſix monks more might be added to pray for her ſoul, and for the ſouls of her anceſtors and ſucceſſors. She alſo gave all the ornaments which ſhe wore when alive, valued at three hundred marks, and procured the church of Tarrande in the dioceſe of Saliſbury, and the church of Penmarſhe in the dioceſe of Landaffe, to be appropriated to the abbey.

Robert de Chandos, in the year 1113, founded the church of Goldclive, for a prior and twelve brethren, to follow the rule of St. Benedict, and made it ſubject to the abbey of Bec in Normandy; but after his death, the patronage of Goldclive priory was ſeized by the crown, and held by the kings of England 'till the reign of king Henry the Sixth. This king granted the patronage to Henry duke of Warwick, and the priory itſelf to the abbat and monks of Tewkeſbury, in the year 1442; and king Henry confirmed all former donations to the church of Tewkeſbury at the ſame time. The duke alſo gave the church of Sherſton to this abbey, and all the ornaments which he wore, to make veſtments for the monks.

Richard Nevil, earl of Saliſbury and Warwick, confirmed the appropriation of the church of Sherſton, and all former charters which the duke of Warwick had granted, particularly that of fiſhing in the Severn, the Avon, and in the Taff at Caerdiff.

The royal charters and confirmations to this church are printed in the Appendix to this book, N°. 25. And various other charters of donations, confirmations, compoſitions, and inſtruments of leſs conſequence, copied out of the Regiſter-book of the abbey, are publiſhed in Mr. Stevens's Supplement to the Monaſticon, V. 2. Appendix N°. CLXI. from 1 to 86.

Abbats, from Mr. Willis's Catalogue.

1. Giraldus, formerly a monk of Wincheſter. He was brought hither from Cranbourn in the year 1104, and made the firſt abbat by Robert Fitz-Haimon the founder. Not caring to gratifiy the covetous diſpoſition of king Henry the Firſt, he was forced to leave his abbey, and return to Wincheſter, as appears by the annals of that monaſtery, publiſhed in the Anglia Sacra; whereupon, the year following

2. Robert was made abbat. He died in 1124, and was ſucceeded by

3. Benedict, who dying anno 1137, was alſo ſucceeded the ſame year by

4. Roger, ſometimes called Robert, who dying in 1161,

5. Fromond was made abbat, in whoſe time the church of Tewkeſbury was burnt anno 1178; and he died the ſame year, whereupon there ſeems to be a vacancy, for

6. Robert, who was the next abbat after him, did not receive the benediction 'till September 29, 1182. After him

7. Alan, prior of Canterbury, was made abbat, and received the benediction 17 Cal. Julij, 1187. He was a man of great learning, and on his death, which happened in the year 1202,

8. Walter became abbat. He dying in 1213, was ſucceeded by

9. Hugh, who had been prior of this place. He received the benediction from Giles, biſhop of Hereford, by the permiſſion of the biſhop of Worceſter, the year after which he died, and was ſucceeded by

10. Bernard, one of the monks of this place; but his election not being approved of,

11. Peter, a monk of Worceſter, was appointed abbat, and received the benediction April 3, 1216, from the biſhop of Worceſter. He died in 1232, and was ſucceeded by

12. Robert, prior of this place, whoſe ſurname, as I take it, was Fortington. He died in 1253, and had for his ſucceſſor

13. Thomas de Stokes, who died in 1275, and was ſucceeded by

14. Richard de Norton, confirmed abbat in 1276. He died in 1282, and was ſucceeded the ſame year by

15. Thomas Kemſey; after whoſe deceaſe, in the year 1328,

16. John Cotes was made abbat, who dying in 1347,

17. Tho: de Legh was elected abbat Aug. 20, 1347. He died Oct. 17, 1361, and was ſucceeded the ſame year by

18. Thomas Cheſterton, elected Nov. 24, 1361, who preſided thirty-ſeven years, and dying in 1398, was ſucceeded by

19. Thomas Parker, alias Pakare, who was a great benefactor to this monaſtery; and in the year 1397, cauſed a very handſome chapel of carved ſtone work to be erected over the grave of Robert Fitz-Haimon, who had been the principal benefactor to the abbey, and was conſidered as its founder; for whom, and for his wife, this abbat alſo appointed a maſs for the dead to be daily celebrated in perpetual memory of them. Abbat Parker died in 1421, and was ſucceeded by

20. William Briſtow, of whom I know nothing further than that he was in great favour with his patrons, and dying about the year 1442, was ſucceeded by

21. John Abingdon, who in the year 1443, ſtood godfather to Anne, daughter of Henry duke of Warwick, but Mr. Willis, by miſtake, ſays it was the daughter of Richard Nevill, earl of Saliſbury. When this abbat died I cannot find, neither the inſtitution or death of

22. John de Salis, the next abbat, who occurs in 1468, and was ſucceeded by

23. John Strenſham, in whoſe time, or his ſucceſſor's, as I judge, this was made a parliamentary abbey. He died in 1481, and was ſucceeded by

24. Richard Cheltenham, elected the ſame year. He re-edified and augmented Stanway manor-place in the time of king Henry the Seventh, and died 1 H. 8.

25. Henery Beoly ſucceeded in the year 1509. He occurs in 1519, and 1529. It does not appear when he died, but his ſucceſſor was

26. John Walker, who deceaſing in 1531, 23 H. 8. was buried in this abbey church under a marble ſtone, whereon was his coat of arms affixed. On his death

27. John Wich, alias Wakeman, (whom A. Wood calls Robert) ſucceeded; who continuing 'till the Diſſolution, on Jan. 9, 1539, then ſurrendered up his monaſtery, with thirty-five of his monks, and obtained a penſion of 266*l.* 13*s.* 4*d. per ann.* which he gave up on being conſecrated, in September 1541, to the ſee of Glouceſter; and there is ſome further account of him in the catalogue of the biſhops of that ſee, p. 155.

This abbey was the laſt of the religious foundations in Glouceſterſhire that ſurrendered to the king. The introduction to the ſurrender was the ſame as moſt of the reſt, and in this form:

'To all Chriſtian people to whom theſe preſents ſhall come, We the abbat, &c. and brothers of the ſaid monaſtery, ſend greeting. Know ye that we, upon full conſideration, certain knowledge, and mere motion, and for divers cauſes juſt and reaſonable, moving

'moving our ſouls and conſciences, have freely and 'voluntarily given and granted to our lord the king, '&c. &c.

About half the number of the monks were living and unpreferred in the year 1553, and received the penſions ſet down againſt their names, viz. Robert Cirecester 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Phill. Cardiff 8*l.* Tho: Newport 7*l.* John Welneforde 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Richard Winbole 6*l.* Tho. Twining 6*l.* William Stremiſh 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Robert Aſton 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* John Gates 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Tho. Briſtow 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* John Hertland 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Tho. Thornborough 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Hen. Worceſter 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Richard Cheltenham 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Thomas Stanwey 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* John Aſton 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*

In biſhop Burnet's Hiſtory of the Reformation, Vol. 1, p. 151, in the Appendix, is the following inventory of the goods and revenues of this monaſtery, together with an eſtimate of the lands and buildings belonging to it, which is here inſerted as a ſpecimen of the proceedings in ſuppreſſing monaſteries. Dr. Burnet took it from a book in the augmentation office, which begins thus:

'The Certificate of Robert Southwell, Eſq; &c. Will. Petre, 'Edward Kairne, and John London, Doctors of Law; John 'Aprice, John Kingſman, Richard Paulet, and Will. Bernars, 'Eſqs; Commiſſioners aſſigned by the King's Majeſty, to take 'the Surrenders of divers Monaſteries, by force of his Grace's 'Commiſſion to them, ſix, five, four, or three of them, in that 'behalf directed, bearing Date at his Highneſs's Palace of Weſt-'minſter, the 7th Day of November, in the 31st Year of the 'Reign of our moſt dread Sovereign Lord Henry the VIIIth, by 'the Grace of God, King of England and France, Defender of the Faith, Lord of Ireland, and in Earth immediately under 'Chriſt ſupreme Head of the Church of England; of all and 'ſingular their Proceedings, as well in and of theſe Monaſteries 'by his Majeſty appointed to be altered, as of others to be 'diſſolved, according to the Tenours, Purport and Effect of his 'Grace's ſaid Commiſſion; with Inſtructions to them likewiſe 'delivered, as hereafter enſueth.

Co. GLOCESTER.

Teuxbury late monaſtery ſurrendered to the uſe of the king's majeſty, and of his heirs and ſucceſſors for ever, made bearing date under the convent ſeal of the ſame late monaſtery, the 9th day of January, in the 31st year of the reign of our moſt dread victorious ſovereign lord king Henry the 8th; and the ſaid day and year clearly diſſolved and ſuppreſſed.

The clear yearly value of all the poſſeſſions belonging to the ſaid monaſtery, as well ſpiritual as temporal, over and beſides 136*l.* 8*s.* 1*d.* in fees, annuities, and corrodies, granted to divers perſons by letters patents under the convent ſeal of the ſaid late monaſtery, for term of their lives, 1595*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.*

Penſions aſſigned to the late religious diſpatched, That is to ſay, To John Wich, late abbat there, 266*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* John Beley, late prior there, 16*l.* J. Bromeſgrove, late prior of Delehurſt, [i. e. Deerhurſt, co. Glouceſter] 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Robert Circeſter, prior of St. James, [Briſtol] 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Will. Didcote, prior of Cranbourn, [co. Dorſet] 10*l.* Robert Cheltenham, B. D. 10*l.* two monks 8*l.* a piece, 16*l.* one monk 7*l.* twenty-ſeven monks 6*l.* 13*s* 4*d.* each, 180*l.* in all 551*l* 6*s.* 8*d.* and ſo remains clear 1044*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.*

Records and evidences belonging to the late monaſtery, remain in the treaſury there, under the coſtody of John Whittington, Kt. the keys thereof being delivered to Richard Paulet receiver.

Houſes and buildings aſſigned to remain undefaced, viz. the lodgings called the Newark, leading from the gate to the late abbat's lodging, with Buttery, Pantery, Cellar, Kitchin, Larder, and Paſtry thereto adjoyning; the late abbat's lodging; the Hoſtery; the great gate entering into the court, with the lodging over the ſame; the abbat's Stable, Bakehouſe, Brewhouſe, and Slaughterhouſe; the Almry, Barn, Daryhouſe; the great Barn next Aven; the Maltinghouſe, with the garnes in the ſame, the Oxhouſe in the Barton gate, and the lodging over the ſame, committed to the coſtody of John Whittington Kt.

Deemed to be ſuperfluous, viz. the Church, with Chapels, Cloiſter, Chapter-houſe, Miſericord; the two Dormitaries, Infirmary, with chapels and lodgings within the ſame; the Workhouſe, with another houſe adjoyning to the ſame; the convent Kitching; the Library; the old Hoſtery; the chambers, lodgings; the new Hall; the old Parlor, adjoyning to the abbat's lodging, the cellarer's lodging; the Poulter-houſe; the Gardner; the Almary, and all other houſes and lodgings not above reſerved, committed as aboveſaid.

Leads remaining upon the choir, iſles, and chapels annext; the cloyſter, chapter-houſe, frater, St. Michael's chapel, Hall's fermory, and gate-houſe, eſteemed to 180 foder.

Bells remaining in the ſteeple there, are 8 poize, by eſtimation 14600 weight.

Jewels reſerved to the uſe of the king's majeſty, viz. two mitres garniſhed with gilt rugged pearls, and counterfeit ſtones.

Plate of ſilver reſerved to the ſaid uſe, viz. ſilver gilt 329 oz. ſilver, parcel gilt 605 oz. ſilver white 497 oz. Total 1431 oz.

Ornaments reſerved to the ſaid uſe, viz. one cope of ſilver tiſſue, with one cheſible, and one tunicle of the ſame, one cope of gold tiſſue, with one cles, and two tunicles of the ſame.

Sum of all the ornaments, goods and chattels belonging to the ſaid late monaſtery, ſold by the ſaid commiſſioners, as in a particular book of ſales thereof, made ready to be ſhewed, as more at large may appear, 194*l.* 8*s.*

Payments by the late religious ſervants diſpatched, viz. to 38 late religious perſons of the ſaid late monaſtery, of the king's majeſty's reward, 80*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*

To an 144 late ſervants of the ſaid late monaſtery, for their wages and liveries, 75*l.* 10*s.*

Payments for debts owing to the ſaid late monaſtery, viz. To divers perſons for victuals and neceſſaries of them had to the uſe of the ſaid monaſtery, with 10*l.* paid to the late abbat there; for and in full payment of 124*l.* 5*s.* 4*d.* by him to be paid to certain creditors of the ſaid late monaſtery, by covenants made with the aforeſaid commiſſioners, 18*l.* 12*s.* And ſo remains clear, 19*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.*

[Then follows a liſt of ſome ſmall debts owing to and by the ſaid monaſtery, of no conſequence at preſent; and a general account of the livings in their gift, viz.]

Co. Glouceſt. 4 parſonages, and 10 vicarages. Co. Wigorn. 2 parſonages, and 2 vicarages. Co. Warwic. 2 parſonages. Co. villæ Briſtoll. 5 parſonages, and 1 vicarage. Co. Wilts 2 vicarages. Co. Oxon. 1 parſonage, and 2 vicarages. Co. Dorſ. 4 parſonages, and 2 vicarages. Co. Somerſ. 3 parſonages. Co. Devon. 1 vicarage. Co. Cornub. 2 vicarages. Co. Glamorg. and Morgan. 5 vicarages. In all 21 parſonages, and 27 vicarages.

It appears by an antient deed tranſcribed into an old council-book, that before, and at the time of the diſſolution, the body of the abbey church was uſed as the pariſh church, and that the pariſh purchaſed of the king the chancel, ſteeple, and bells, with the clock and chimes, for 483*l.*

The cloiſters, chapter-houſe, &c. of this monaſtery, are reported to have been burnt down at the diſſolution by the king's viſitors, on account, as 'tis ſaid, of the monks reſiſting them at their firſt coming.

The arms of the abbey were, Gules, a croſs Or.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a curacy, worth about 130*l.* a year. The patronage is in the crown, and the reverend Mr. James Tatterſall is the preſent incumbent. The curate has no houſe nor glebe. The impropriation is divided, but the greater part belongs to lord Craven.

In the year 1609, king James the Firſt, by letters patent, charged the rectory of Tewkeſbury with the payment of 10*l.* yearly to the vicar. And in 1616, granted 5*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.* yearly to be paid by his auditor to the aſſiſtant, or curate of the church.

The donations for the augmentation of the curacy are particularly ſet down with other public benefactions.

There is a plate of this church in the Monaſticon, and in Stevens's Supplement to it is another plate of the ichnography of it. It is a magnificent building, in the form of a croſs, vaulted at top with ſtone work, and ſupported by two rows of large round pillars, ſeven in each row. It has an aile on each ſide, and the whole is covered with lead, but not kept in very good repair. The chancel is divided from the choir by an organ, erected at the expence of the pariſhoners in the year 1736. The Lady-chapel, long ſince deſtroy'd, and the ſcite of it turned into a garden ground, ſtood at the eaſt end, and is ſaid to have been a 100 feet long. The preſent building from eaſt to weſt is 300 feet; the length of the great croſs aile 120 feet; the breadth of the body and ſide ailes 70 feet; and of the weſt front 100 feet. The tower, in which are eight muſical bells and a ſet of chimes, ſtands in the middle, upon four arches. It is very large, 132 feet high, and had formerly a lofty wooden ſpire on the top of it, which fell down in the time of divine ſervice on Eaſter-day, 1559.

The choir and chancel are likewiſe ſupported by ſix pillars, and enlightened by ſeven large windows, placed at a great height, and ornamented with painted glaſs. The two firſt windows, at the entrance, viz. one on each hand, are divided into four compartments each, in which are painted the figures in armour of eight earls of Glouceſter, diſtinguiſhed by their arms. In the next window on the right, is the prophet Daniel; and on the left, Jeremiah; in the middle window king Solomon; next to him on the right, the prophet Joel; on the left a ſcutcheon parted per pale, 1ſt, Argent, a lion rampant ſable. 2d, Quarterly argent and gules, in the 2d and 3d a fret Or, over all on a bend ſable three eſcallops of the firſt, for le Deſpencer.

There are beſides in theſe windows, 1. The arms of the Clares, Or, three chevrons gules. 2. Thoſe of the abbey, Gules, a croſs Or. 3. Argent, five bars azure. 4. Barry undy Argent and Gules, a baton in bend azure, for Damory. 5. A lion ſable crown'd Or. 6. Azure, a lion rampant gardant Or, for Fitz-Haimon. 7. Gules, ten bezants, for Le Zouch.

In the weſt front of the church are ſeveral coats, viz. 1. Gules, a lion rampant regardant Or. 2. Or, a feſs vaire between ſix labels of three points ſable. 3. Gules, a croſs raguly Or. 4. Gules, a ſaltire argent. 5. Per bend Or and ſable, a lion rampant counterchanged.

Under the weſt window within the church, 1. Or, between two bends ruby an eſcallop in the chief point ſable, for Tracy of Stanway; impaling, Gules, a bend Or. 2. Azure, a lion rampant argent, for Pool of Saperton. 3. Baron and femme 1. Gules, a dexter hand couped argent, on a chief of the ſecond three fighting cocks of the firſt; impaling, 2. Or, a feſs wavy between ſix labels of three points ſable. viz. Hancock of Twining impaling Baugh of the ſame place.. Theſe families were probably benefactors to the church, amongſt many others, whoſe arms are diſplay'd in various parts of it, and are ſo numerous, that to emblazon them would fill ſeveral pages.

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Robert Fitz-Haimon was buried in the chapter-houſe in the year 1107, but removed into the preſbytery in 1241, and thence in 1397, to the north ſide of the choir, where his bones, wrapt in fine diaper, were laid in a tomb of grey marble, which had braſſes at top, with his figure and ornaments, long ſince torn off. Abbat Parker incloſed the tomb in a chapel, now ſtanding, and round the top was written, In iſta capella jacet D^nus Robertus Filius Hammonis, hujus loci Fundator.

Near the above, is another chapel, with a very curious arched roof, originally ſupported by ſix ſmall marble pillars, of which only two are intire. It was ornamented with the pictures of our ſaviour and his apoſtles, and with many coats of arms; and round the upper part of it is written,

Mementote d'ne Iſabelle ledeſpenſer Cometiſſe de Warrewick que hanc capellam fundauit in honorē vir' Marie Magdalene Et obiit Londiniis apud Mīnores A° dnī M° CCCC° XXXIX die ſcī Jhīs eūnglie Et ſepulta ē ī chora ī dextrā patris ſui cuj' aie ppiciet' deus Amen.

On the ſame ſide, under a canopy of very curious arched work of four ſtories, gradually diminiſhing, and finiſhing at top in one arch, highly ornamented in the Gothic taſte, are the figures, in white marble, of George duke of Clarence and Iſabel his dutcheſs, lying at full length. She was buried in 1479, in a vault behind the high altar, over-againſt the door of the chapel of St. Edmund the martyr, known by the ſymbols of him on the top of the chapel. He was ſhot with arrows, and beheaded, and a wolf is ſaid to have defended his head from other beaſts.

The ceremonial of the funeral of the dutcheſs of Clarence, taken from the Chronicle of Tewkeſbury, may ſerve as an example of the cuſtom among the great in thoſe days. Her body was brought from Warwick to Tewkeſbury on the 4th of January, 1476. John Strenſham, abbat of Tewkeſbury, with divers other abbats, in their prieſtly habits, and the whole convent, receiving it in the middle of the choir; and the funeral office was preſently after performed by the ſuffragans of the biſhop of Worceſter, and the biſhop of Landaff, and by the dean and chaplains of the lord duke; and the vigils were obſerved by the duke's own family all night to the next day, which was the vigil of the Epiphany. The ſuffragan of the biſhop of Landaff celebrated the firſt maſs of St. Mary, in the chapel of St. Mary; the ſecond maſs of the Trinity was celebrated by the lord abbat, at the high altar. The ſuffragan of the biſhop of Worceſter celebrated the third maſs, of eternal Reſt, at which Peter Weld, doctor of divinity, and of the order of the Minors at Worceſter, preached a ſermon in the choir, before the prelates and the reſt there preſent. Maſs being ended, the body of the dutcheſs was left under the herſe, in the middle of the choir for thirty-five days, and on every one of thoſe days ſolemn exequies

exequies were performed in the convent, for the good of her ſoul. Afterwards, a week before the feaſt of the purification of the bleſſed Mary, the ſame day after maſs ended, her body was committed to be buried in a vault behind the high altar, and before the door of the chapel of the bleſſed virgin, in the abbey church, over againſt the door of the chapel of St. Edmund the martyr.

The chapel on the ſouth ſide of the choir was erected by Cicely dutcheſs of Warwick, in memory of the duke her huſband, and over it is the effigy of Richard Nevil, the earl of Warwick, in armour, kneeling, with his hands in a ſupplicating poſture.

Oppoſite to the duke and dutcheſs of Clarence, under another arch of hollow work, lies the figure of lord O'Brien, with ſcutcheons of his arms round the tomb, Or, three piles meeting near the baſe azure; impaling his wife's family arms, viz. Argent, three fuſils in feſs gules, for Montacute, earl of Saliſbury. They were both buried in the aile near the high altar.

At the upper end of the ſouth aile, near the choir, is an altar monument under an arch, for Edmund Beaufort, duke of Somerſet.

Directly oppoſite to it in the north aile, is ſuch another, in a niche, with the effigy of lord Wenlock lying thereon, and upon a ſhield over the left arm this coat, Gules, a chevron Or between three lions argent.

In the middle ſpace under the tower, is a large grey marble, which had braſs plates affixed to it, and is ſaid to have been for the unfortunate prince Edward, only ſon to king Henry the Sixth.

On the ſouth ſide of the choir, under two arches, are two grey marble altar-monuments for two abbats; and beyond them is the effigy of another abbat lying in full proportion, with theſe arms, A chevron between three eſcallops, over all a palmer's ſtaff in pale, ſuppoſed to be for Robert Fortington, or Forthampton, abbat of this place, who died in 1253.

On the ſouth ſide of the choir is another antient altar-monument, with a croſs on the top, and round the verge IOþANNES ABBAS þVIVS LOCI. and above this is a monument for another abbat.

There were alſo buried in this church, for whom there are now no monuments:

1. Gilbert de Clare, earl of Glouceſter, buried in 1290, near the communion-table, under a plain ſtone, with an inſcription round the edge, now defaced.

2. John, ſon of the third Gilbert de Clare, buried in the virgin Mary chapel.

3. Edward le Deſpencer, who died in 1375, and was buried before the door of the veſtry near the preſbytery, or chancel, where his wife, daughter of Bartholomew de Burghurſt, built a chapel, dedicated to the Holy Trinity; and in 1401 ſhe died, and was buried under a marble ſtone in the choir, on the left hand of her huſband.

In the body of the church, round a flat ſtone, it is thus written: + LELER: DE: PARR: LYT: YCY · DYEVX: DE: SA: ALME: EN: EYT: MERCI.

There are very few modern inſcriptions in the church worth tranſcribing. I ſhall however inſert two or three of them, and take notice of the family arms on the monuments. In the north croſs aile is the following:

Edwardus Wakeman Armiger qui obijt 3° die Decembris An° Dni 1634. Reſurget et Vivet per illum qui dixit Ego ſum Reſurrectio et Vita.——Arms, Vert, a ſaltire wavy ermine.

On a flat ſtone,

Here lies the Hon^ble^ Elianor Stanford, Daughter of Edward Stanford, Eſq; of Sawford in the County of Warwick, by his Wife Katherine Cocks of Northey in the County of Glouceſter. She was Wife of the Hon^ble^ Francis Stafford, Son of William Lord Viſcount Stafford, and Lady Mary Counteſſe of Stafford, his Wife, deſcended from the antient Princes, the Staffords Dukes of Buckingham, and Earls of Stafford, &c. She had Iſſue by him one Son named Henry, who puts this Stone upon her, in Memory of a pious Wife and tender Mother. She departed this Life the 26th Day of October, Anno Dni 1707.——The arms on this ſtone are, within a lozenge, Party per pale, 1. Stafford, viz. Or, a chevron gules, a mullet for difference. 2. Quarterly, 1ſt and 4th, three bars, for Stanford; 2d and 3d, Cocks, as at Dumbleton.

On a monument againſt the wall,

This Monument is erected by Thomas Hale, Gent. in Memory of his Pious and Virtuous Conſort Letitia the Daughter of the Honourable S^r^ Thomas Penniſton, late of Cornwell in the County of Oxon Baronet, deceaſed, & Dame Elizabeth his Wife, ſole Daughter and Heireſs of S^r^ Cornelius Fairmeadow deceaſed. She died the 3d of November, 1700, aged 32 Years.

The monument is ornamented with theſe arms, viz. Baron and femme, 1. Argent, a feſs ſable, and in chief three cinquefoils vert. 2. Argent, three Corniſh choughs proper, for Penniſton.

There are various other inſcriptions in ſeveral parts of the church, viz. for John Roberts of Fiddington, gent. who died in 1631; with his arms, Per pale, argent and gules, over all a lion rampant ſable. For Mary Oldiſworth, (daughter of Thomas Chamberlayne) who died in 1684; with a ſcutcheon, Oldiſworth impaling Chamberlayne. For ſeveral of the Bridges's of Wilton caſtle, with the arms of Bridges. For Richard, Samuel, and Marmaduke Roſe, who died reſpectively in the years 1726, 1757, and 1770; with three roſes on a bend. For Edward Popham of Tewkeſbury Lodge, who died in 1753; and Dorothy his wife, and Letitia their daughter; with the arms of Popham, impaling, Vert, a chevron between three greyhounds courant argent. For Thomas Kemble, gent. who died in 1707, with his arms, Azure, on a bend Or three bulls heads couped ſable, gutty du ſang.

Benefactions to the Poor.

The abbey, by its foundation, was obliged to maintain thirteen almſmen with 10*d.* a week each for diet, 6*s.* 8*d.* a year for gowns; and 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* for the rent of all their houſes. This charity was continued by king Henry the Eighth after the reformation, and queen Mary, on the 3d of April, 1553, granted thoſe ſums to be paid by the auditors for this county for ever.

Mr.

Mr. Gyles Geest by his will, in 1558, gave the rent of twenty-two houses, and as many gardens, near the Church-street, Mrs. Margaret Hicks, by will in 1562, gave the rent of a messuage in Barton-street. Also the rent of half an acre in Avonham was given by a person unknown, and has been received ever since 1564. Mrs. Juliana Best, gave a rent charge of 3*s.* 4*d.* out of a house in High-street. The rent of two acres in Severnham is received and annually distributed by Mr. Geest's trustees. Mrs. Anne Slaughter, by her deed in 1618, gave the great Saffron garden near Swilyate. William Ferrers, of London, esq; in 1625, gave 5*l.* a year out of Shellingthorp manor in Lincolnshire. Mr. William Alye, of London, gent. by his will in 1625, gave 100*l.* which purchased the Seek-rents. The Right Hon. Baptist viscount Camden, by will in 1629, settled the rectory and church of St. Ismaels, in Rose in Pembrokeshire, half to the poor, and half to the minister. Mr. John Roberts of Fiddington, by will in 1631, gave the interest of 20*l.* for ever, to buy coals. John Wright, by deed in 1636, gave a rent charge of 20*s.* a year on a messuage in Kemmerton, and lands in Breedon meadow. Lord Coventry, in 1652, gave a rent charge of lands in Breedon of 15*l.* a year, and 200*l.* for a stock to set the poor to work. And Mr. Edward Richardson, by his will in 1651, gave 60*l.* for a stock, with which were purchased seven houses and six gardens in Gander-lane. Sir Francis Russel, baronet, by his deed in 1674, confirmed his mother's gift of ten houses and a garden near the church-yard, with some land in Smith's lane. Mr. William Curtis, by deed in 1681, gave the Moors in Twining. William Wakeman, gent. by will in 1681, charged lands called Red Pools and Middle grounds with 20*s.* a year to the poor, and 10*s.* for a sermon. Mr. John Read, by his will in 1683, gave 50*l.* since laid out on lands called the Abbat's-lays in Gretton. Mr. John Porter, by will in 1698, gave two thirds of two acres in Severn-ham. The reverend Mr. Robert Wriggan, by will in 1701, gave 5*l.* William Wilson, gent. by will in 1720, gave 100*l.* capital stock in the South Sea company. Mr. William Hayward, by will in 1727, gave the interest of 50*l.* to the poor, and of 20*l.* to the minister for two sermons. Mrs. Elizabeth Hopton of Bristol, by will in 1732, gave 100*l.* since laid out in land in the parish of Upton. Daniel Kemble, esq; by will in 1732, gave his lands in Severn-ham, adjoining to those given by Mr. Porter, also the profits of 100*l.* now laid out in land in Upton parish. Sir William Strachan, baronet, by deed, vested an estate at Castle Morton in Worcestershire, worth 8*l.* a year, in trustees for the use of the poor.

To repair the Church, and augment the Living.

Mr. Cook, by will, about 1558, gave a messuage in High-street for repairing the church; and Mrs. Ellyne Eckynsale, in 1568, by her will, gave 12*d.* a year for the same purpose.

Mr. Thomas Poulton, in 1607, gave 20*s.* yearly towards maintaining a preaching minister. Also 40*l.* to be lent without interest, which are now lost.

In 1629, lord viscount Camden settled half the rectory and church of St. Ismaels in Rose, in Pembrokeshire, on the minister for ever.

In 1681, William Wakeman, gent, gave 10*s.* a year for a sermon on Good Friday.

In 1683, Edwin Skrimshire of Aquilat in Staffordshire, by his deed, gave the tithes of Tredington and Fiddington, out of which to pay the minister of Tredington and Ashchurch 12*l.* yearly each, the rest to the minister of this place.

In 1685, Thomas Geers, by his deed, settled the privy or small tithes of this town and borough on the reader, or assistant to the minister of this church for ever.

In 1685, Mrs. Elizabeth Townsend, by will, gave 200*l.* since laid out on land in Gretton, for the minister.

In 1716, Charles Wynde, esq; by his will, charged his estate in Stoke Prior, com. Wigorn. with 20*s.* a year for a sermon, and 5*s.* for prayers on the anniversary of his death, and 40*s.* for reading prayers on Sunday evenings, between Lady-day and Michaelmas.

In 1722, Mrs. Elizabeth Dowdeswell, by will, gave 100*l.* for the better maintenance of the minister, and 50*l.* to repair the church, both which sums are laid out in the purchase of the Abbat's Lays in Gretton. Also 20*l.* to buy a silver flaggon for the church.

Mrs. Catherine Hancock gave a large silver cup and cover to the church, since exchanged for two silver plates. Also 50*l.* laid out on land towards repairing the church windows.

In 1727, Mr. William Hayward gave the interest of 20*l.* for two annual sermons.

In 1732, Mrs. Elizabeth Hopton gave Williams's Meadow, and one butt and two lands in Oldbury field to the minister, to preach six sermons preparatory to the sacrament on the last Friday in every month, between Lady-day and Michaelmas for ever.

To the Schools.

In 1609, sir Dudley Diggs gave 160*l.* with which land called the Holms, one acre in the Oldbury, and lands in Downbell's meadow were purchased and settled to the use of the free school.

In 1625, William Ferrers gave 20*l.* a year out of Shillingthorp in Lincolnshire.

In 1625, William Alye gave 70*l.* with which chief-rents were purchased, for the education of six poor children in the grammar school.

In 1722, Mrs. Elizabeth Dowdeswell gave 40*l.*

In 1724, Mr. Thomas Merret charged his lands with the payment of 50*s.* yearly to the charity school.

In 1721, lady Capel gave her estate called Perry Court, in the county of Kent, to support twelve charity schools, one twelfth part of which to the charity school here.

To

To the Roads and Bridge.

In 1562, Mrs. Margaret Hicks gave the rent of an acre of land in Oldbury to repair the roads.

In 1567, Mrs. Beſt gave 3*s.* 4*d.* yearly to repair the long bridge.

In 1665, Mr. Richard Mince gave 40*s.* a year out of the latter-math of Avon-ham to repair the long bridge.

Borough of Tewkeſbury.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in	1692,	£. 347	4	6
	Poll-tax ——	1694, —	207	7	0
	Land-tax ——	1694, —	350	12	8
	The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	267	1	3

Mythe, and Mythe Wood.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in	1692,	£. 94	0	0
	Poll-tax ——	1694, —	6	16	0
	Land-tax ——	1694, —	70	13	4
	The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	54	7	3

Southwick and Park.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in	1692,	£. 255	15	0
	Poll-tax ——	1694, —	10	3	4
	Land-tax ——	1694, —	225	15	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	47	15	$3\frac{3}{4}$

When ſir Robert Atkyns compiled the account of this place, he eſtimated the houſes in the pariſh to be 470, and the inhabitants 2500; but the latter are now ſaid to be upwards of 3000; however, no calculation can be made from the pariſh regiſter, as the diſſenters (including the quakers) have ſepulture in their reſpective burying yards.

THORNBURY.

THIS large pariſh lies in the lower part of the Vale of Glouceſterſhire, within the hundred of its own name. It is bounded for ſeveral miles on the north-weſt by the river Severn, from whence to the oppoſite extremity, it is upwards of ſix miles in length, and croſſing that direction, it is above five miles in breadth.

Thro' all this extent of rich country, there is at preſent but very little tillage-land, and it is obſervable, that for the laſt forty or fifty years paſt, the corn fields here, as well as in general throughout the vale, have been gradually converted to paſture, whilſt the very contrary practice takes place on the hills.

Large quantities of Wormwood and Marſh-mallows grow in the meadows, alſo Aſparagus and ſeed Purſlain, which the inhabitants gather for their tables. And there are many other plants growing ſpontaneouſly, that the curious botaniſt would not paſs over unnoticed; among which are the Acanthus, or Bear's Breech, the black Maidenhair, Agrimony, the wholeſome Wolfeſbane, common Maidenhair, yellow Centaury, Wild Germander, great Celadine, Pilewort, Hounds Tongue, Eyebright, Fumitory, Wild Clary, St. John's Wort, Betony, Wild Marjoram, Polypody of the wall, Comfry, common Vervain, Heartſeaſe, Miſſeltoe, and ſome others.

A great part of the pariſh next the Severn is very ſubject to inundations from that river. Near two thouſand acres of land are rated to the repair of the ſea walls in the upper level, but a much greater tract is liable to floods, whoſe waters ſtagnate on the marſhes and low lands. Hence the inhabitants of that part of the pariſh are very unhealthy from the putrid air they breathe; and if any go from the hill-country to reſide there, ſuch perſons are uſually attacked with a violent ague on their firſt ſettling, which emaciates them, and proves fatal in a little time. Doctor Franklin's ſentiments on moiſt ſituations, in a letter to his friend Dr. Percival, are new and ſingular, and merit conſideration. 'The gentry of England,' ſays he, 'are remarkably afraid of moiſture and 'of air. But ſeamen, who live perpetually in 'moiſt air, are always healthy if they have good 'proviſions. The inhabitants of Bermudas, St. 'Helen, and other iſlands far from continents, 'ſurrounded with rocks, againſt which the waves 'continually daſhing, fill the air with ſpray and 'vapour, and where no wind can ariſe that does 'not paſs over much ſea, and of courſe bring 'much moiſture, are remarkably healthy. And 'I have long thought mere moiſt air has no ill 'effect on the conſtitution; though air impregnated with vapours from putrid marſhes is 'found pernicious, not from the moiſture, but 'from the putridity. It ſeems ſtrange that a man, 'whoſe body is compoſed in great part of moiſt 'fluids, whoſe blood and juices are ſo watery, who 'can ſwallow quantities of water and ſmall beer 'daily without inconvenience, ſhould fancy that 'a little more or leſs moiſture in the air ſhould 'be of ſuch importance. But we abound in abſurdity and inconſiſtency. Thus, though it is 'generally agreed that taking the air is a good 'thing, yet what caution againſt air! what ſtopping of crevices! what wrapping up in warm 'cloaths! what ſhutting of doors and windows! 'even in the midſt of ſummer. Many London 'families go out once a day to take the air, three 'or four perſons in a coach, one perhaps ſick; 'theſe go three or four miles, or as many turns 'in Hyde Park, with both the glaſſes up, all 'breathing over and over again the ſame air they 'brought out of town with them in the coach, 'with the leaſt change poſſible, and rendered 'worſe and worſe every moment; and this they 'call taking the air. From many years obſervations on myſelf and others, I am perſuaded 'we are on a wrong ſcent in ſuppoſing moiſt or 'cold air, the cauſe of that diſorder we call a cold: 'ſome unknown quality in the air may ſometimes 'produce colds, as in the influenza; but generally 'I apprehend they are the effects of too full 'living, in proportion to our exerciſe.'

The town of Thornbury ſtands in the midſt of the pariſh, a little above the marſhes, but the air

there is in ſome degree contaminated by the ſtagnated waters on the low lands. It is ſeven miles diſtant ſouth from Berkeley, ſix weſtward from Wickwar, eleven north from Briſtol, and twenty-four ſouth-weſtward from Glouceſter. It is a borough by preſcription, and is governed by a mayor and twelve aldermen, but ſends no repreſentatives to parliament. The mayor is annually choſen out of the aldermen, and the latter, upon a vacancy, out of the freeholders reſiding in the borough. The mayor attends the borough court, collects the lord's chief-rents, and examines weights and meaſures; but it is difficult to aſcertain the duties of his office with any degree of preciſion, as I find them no where deſcribed. And it may be preſumed that much of that power which was antiently delegated to him, is loſt for want of uſing it, ſo that his office is now become little more than nominal.

We know very little of the antient ſtate of this borough. About the Norman conqueſt it had a market, whoſe profits were then worth twenty ſhillings, according to Domeſday. Leland made a viſit to it in the reign of king Henry the Eighth, and deſcribes it in his Itinerary as 'ſet almoſte 'upon an equalle grounde, [i.e. nearly level] 'beinge large to the proportion of the letter Y, 'havinge firſt one longe ſtrete, and two hornes 'goyne owt of it. There hathe bene, (ſays he) 'good clothing in Thornebyry, but now Idelnes 'muche reynithe there.' To which I ſhall ſubjoin, that the clothing buſineſs is now intirely loſt, and no manufacture ſupplies its room, except that the women and children are furniſhed with ſpinning work by maſter clothiers from other places.

The town ſtretches from north-eaſt to ſouth-weſt, parallel to the courſe of the Severn, at the diſtance of about two miles and a half from that river. It conſiſts, as in Leland's time, of one ſtreet of a good breadth, and about three quarters of a mile long, with two other ſtreets, or rather lanes, of very little account.

The great turnpike-road from the north of England, through Glouceſter to Briſtol, runs upon a conſiderable eminence by the town, but there are only the church and a few houſes to be ſeen from the road, becauſe many lofty trees intercept the view on that ſide. The beſt proſpect of the town is from the heights at Lidney and Woollaſton, in the foreſt of Dean, about five or ſix miles diſtant on the oppoſite ſide of the Severn, whence it ſeems to be larger than it really is. Some of the houſes are built of brick, a few of ſtone, but the greater part ſeem to be wood buildings; and from the preſent condition of them, the town appears to be declining. It has loſt its market from its vicinity to Briſtol, and carrying the road by the ſide of it, has deprived it of the benefit of travelling buſineſs, whereas, before the turnpike was erected, the great road led through it. Theſe loſſes, and the defect of its manufacture, muſt neceſſarily impoveriſh and depopulate the place.

The market, of which there is very little appearance, is held on Saturday, and there are three yearly fairs for the ſale of horned cattle and hogs, viz. on Eaſter-monday, on the 15th of Auguſt, and on the Monday before St. Thomas-day.

The public buildings are the Boothall, the corn market-houſe, and the Shambles. There are four diſtinct courts held in the Boothall, viz.

1. The court of the Honour of Glouceſter. Of this Honour I have already given ſome account, p. 91. It remains only to obſerve, that in it pleas are held for the recovery of debts from 40*s.* to any amount, within its juriſdiction, which extends over the following places in the county of Glouceſter, viz. Thornbury, Kington, Oldbury upon Severn, Cowhill, Morton, Mars, alias Mares and Falfield, Philpots, Saltmarſh, [i.e. the Marſhes in Olveſton and Almondeſbury] Rowles, Buckover, Hope, Rangeworthy, Titherington, Iron Acton, Charfield, Dodington, Marſhfield, Mangotsfield, Bitton, Upton Cheney, Beech, Barr's Court, Oldland, Hanham, Doynton, Gaunt's Erdicot, Over, Tockington, Coate, Tewkeſbury, Oxendon, Alderton, Boddington, Walton Cardiff, Kemmerton, Frampton Cotel, Hampton Meſey, and Holyrood Amney. The action commences by affidavit of the debt before the ſteward or his deputy, who iſſues an attachment againſt the defendant's goods, to be condemned and forfeited at the next court, unleſs two ſufficient perſons reſiding within the juriſdiction become pledges, in the nature of bail, for the debt and coſts, if the defendant ſhould be condemned in the action. Pledges being given, the goods are releaſed, and the plantiff proceeds by declaration, as in the courſe of common law. Matthew Hale, eſq; is the preſent ſteward of this court.

2. The hundred court, held on Thurſday every three weeks, before the ſteward, and two free ſuitors, for the recovery of debts under 40*s.* ariſing within the hundred.

3. The borough court, held alſo on Thurſday every three weeks, before the ſteward of the manor, in the preſence of the mayor, attended by the ſerjeant at mace, where are tried actions of debt under 40*s.* ariſing within the borough.

4. The manor court, or court baron, held occaſionally before the ſteward of the manor and tenants, where, beſides ordinary buſineſs, tenants are admitted to their copyholds. And the cuſtom of the manor is, that ſuch eſtates deſcend to the next heir like freeholds, with this exception, that the tenants children being all daughters, the eldeſt inherits, and ſo of nieces.

Of Thornbury Caſtle.

There was very antiently a caſtle at this place, but by whom it was originally built is at this time altogether uncertain. Hugh de Audley, earl of Glou-

Glouceſter, refuſing to obey the ſummons of king Edward the Second, to come to the king at Glouceſter on the 3d of April, in the 14th year of that reign, the earl's caſtle at Thornbury, and his other eſtates, were ſeized into the king's hands; but they were reſtored in the firſt year of the next reign. Doctor Holland obſerves that Ralph lord Stafford built a houſe at Thornbury, in the reign of king Edward the Third. Perhaps this was done upon the ſcite of the old caſtle. And in the ſecond year of the reign of king Henry the Eighth, Edward duke of Buckingham took down part of the houſe built by Ralph lord Stafford, and began a caſtle near the church, at the north end of the town; but he was prevented from finiſhing it by his attainder and death in the thirteenth year of the ſame reign. John Leland ſaw it ſoon after the duke was beheaded, and gives the following account of it in the ſeventh volume of his Itinerary:

'There was of auncient Tyme a Maner Place, 'but of no great eſtimation, hard by the Northe 'Syde of the Paroche Churche. Edward late 'Duke of Bukkyngeham likynge the Soyle aboute, 'and the Site of the Howſe, and ſette up magni-'ficently in good ſquared Stone, the Southe Syde 'of it, and accompliſhyd the Weſt Parte alſo 'withe a right comely Gatehouſe to the firſt Soyle; 'and ſo it ſtondithe yet withe a Rofe forced for 'a tyme. This Inſcription on the fronte of the 'Gatehowſe: This Gate was begun in the yere 'of Our Lorde Gode M CCCCC XI The ii yere 'Of The Reyne Of Kynge Henri the VIII By me 'EDW duc of Bukkingh̄ Erlle of Harforde 'Stafforde ande Northamtō. The Dukes Worde: 'DORENTE SAVANT, [upon a label]. The 'Foundation of a very ſpacious Baſe Courte was 'there begon, and certeyne Gates and Towres in 'it Caſtelle lyke. It is of a iiii or v Yardes highe, 'and ſo remaynithe a Token of a noble Peace of 'Worke purpoſid. There was a Gallery of 'Tymbre in the Bake Syde of the Houſe joyning 'to the Northe Syde of the Paroche Churche.— 'Edward Duke of Bukkyngham made a fayre 'Parke hard by the Caſtle, and tooke muche faire 'Ground in it very frutefull of Corne, now fayr 'Launds for Courſynge. The Inhabytaunts 'curſyd the Duke for the Lands ſo incloſyd.

'There cummithe an Armlet of Severne eb-'bynge and flowyng into this Parke. Duke 'Edward had Thowght to have trenchyd there 'and to have browght it up to the Caſtle.—There 'was a Parke by the Maner of Thornebyry afore, 'and yet is caullyd Morlewodde.—There was 'alſo afore Duke Edward's Tyme a Parke at 'Eſtewood, a Myle or more of: But Duke Edward 'at 2 Tymes enlarged it to the Compace of 6 'Myles, not without many Curſes of the Poore 'Tenaunts. The Severne Se lyethe a Myle and 'more from Thornebyrie, the Marches lyenge 'betwene.'

Thus far Leland. But I have been favoured with a more particular deſcription of this caſtle, written, as I conjecture, about the time of king James the Firſt, which, as it may be acceptable to many readers, is here inſerted in the language of the writer.

'The houſe or caſtle of Thornbury ſtandeth 'within two miles of the river Seaverne, which 'runneth on the north ſide thereof. It is ad-'joining unto the church-yard of the pariſh 'church of Thornbury on the ſouth part; the 'parke there, called New Parke, on the north 'and eaſt parts, and a piece of ground called the 'Pitties on the weſt part. At the firſt entry is a 'faire back court containing two acres and a 'halfe, compaſſed about with buildings of ſtone 'for ſervants lodgings, to the hight of 14 or 15 'foote, left unfiniſhed without timber or covering, 'ſet forth with windows of freeſtone, ſome having 'bars of iron in them, ſome none.

'At the entry into the caſtle on the weſt ſide 'are two gates, a greater and a leſſer, with a 'wicket in the ſame. At the left hand thereof is 'a porter's lodge, conteyning three roomes, with a 'dungeon or place of impriſonment underneath. 'Next adjoining is a faire roome called the Duke's 'Wardrobbe, and within the ſame a faire roome 'or lodging chamber with a cellar or vaught 'underneath; over all which are fower lodging 'chambers with chimneys. On the right hand 'of the gates are two faire roomes called the 'Duches Wardrobbe, and over the ſame are two 'faire chambers called the Steward's Chambers.

'Within all which is a court paved with ſtone, 'conteyning halfe an acre, encompaſſed with the 'caſtle buildings and leading from the gates afore-'ſaid to the great hall, at the entry whereof is a 'porch, and on the right hand a ſmall room 'called the Ewery.

'On the left or north ſide of the court is a 'faire wett larder, a dry larder, a privy bakehouſe, 'and a boyling houſe, with an entry leading from 'all the ſaid houſes of offices to the great kitchin, 'over all which are five chambers for privet 'lodgings, & over all the ſame againe is one long 'roome called the Cockloft. The great kitchin 'having two great large flewes or chimneys, & 'one leſſer chimney, & within the ſame kitchin 'is a privy kitchin with two flewes or chimneys 'in it, over the which laſt recited kitchin is a 'lodging chamber for cookes.

'On the backſide of all which recited buildings 'are certaine decayed buildings ſometimes uſed 'for a bakehouſe, & an armory wth certaine de-'cayed lodgings over the ſame. From the great 'kitchin leading to the great hall is an entry, on 'the one ſide is a decayed roome called the ſkul-'lery, with a large flew or chimney therein, & a 'pantry adjoyning. On the other ſide of the 'entry are two old decayed roomes heretofore 'uſed for cellars, on the backſide whereof is a 'little court adjoyning to the great kitchin, & in 'the 'the ſame is a faire well or pump for water, 'partley decayed; betweene the decayed cellars 'and the lower end of the great hall is a buttery; 'over all which laſt recited roomes are fower 'chambers called the Earle of Stafford's Lodgings, 'partly decayed, with one roome thereunto ad-'joyning called the Clerkes Treaſury.

'From the lower end of the great hall is an 'entry leading unto the chappell, at the corner of 'which entry is a ſellar. The utter part of the 'chappell is a faire roome for people to ſtand in 'at ſervice time, & over the ſame are two roomes 'or partitions with each of them a chimney, 'where the duke & the duches uſed to ſitt & 'heare ſervice. The body of the chappell it ſelfe 'fairely built, having twenty & two ſettles of 'waineſcott about the ſame, for prieſts, clerkes, '& quieriſters.

'The great hall, faire and large, with a hearth 'to make fire on in the mideſt thereof. Adjoyning 'to the upp end of the ſame is one faire roome 'called the Old Hall, with a chimney in the ſame. 'Next adjoyning to the ſame is a faire cloyſter 'walke paved with bricke, leading from the 'Duke's Lodging to the privy garden, which 'garden is fower ſquare, conteyning about one 'third part of an acre, three ſquares whereof are 'compaſſed about with a faire Cloyſter or walke 'paved with bricke, & the fowerth ſquare is 'bounded with the principal parts of the Caſtle 'called the New Buildings; over all which laſt 'recited Cloyſter is a faire large gallery, & out of 'the ſame gallery goeth another gallery leading 'to the pariſh church of Thornbury, at the end 'whereof is a faire roome with a Chimney, and a 'Window into the ſaid Church, where the Duke 'uſed ſometime to heare ſervice. Neere adjoyn-'ing unto the ſaid large gallery are certain roomes 'or lodgings called the Earle of Bedford's 'lodgings, conteyning 13 roomes, whereof ſix 'are below, three of them having chimneys in 'them, & ſeaven above, whereof fower have 'chimneys likewiſe. All which houſes, buildings '& roomes aforementioned are for the moſt part 'built with freeſtone, & covered with ſlatt or tyle.

'The lower part of the principall buildings of 'the caſtle is called the New Buildings, at the weſt 'end whereof is a faire tower, in which lower 'buildings is conteyned one great chamber, with 'a chimney in the ſame, the ſealing & timber 'worke whereof is decayed. Within the ſame is 'another faire chamber with a chimney therein. 'And within the ſame againe is another faire 'lodging chamber, with a chimney therein, called 'the Duke's Lodging, with one little Roome or 'Cloſſett betweene the two laſt recited chambers. 'Within all which is one roome, being the foun-'dation or lowermoſt part of the tower called the 'Duke's Cloſſett, with a Chimney therein. From 'the which ſaid Duke's lodging leadeth a faire 'gallery paved with bricke, & a ſtayer at the end 'thereof aſcending to the Duke's Lodging, being 'over the ſame, uſed for a privy way.

'From the upp end of the great hall a ſtayer 'aſcendeth up towards the great chamber, at the 'top whereof are two lodging roomes. Leading 'from the ſtayers head to the great chamber is a 'faire roome paved with bricke, & a chimney 'therein, at the end whereof doth meete a faire 'gallery leading from the great Chamber to the 'Earle of Bedford's Lodging on the one ſide, & 'the Chappell on the other ſide.

'The great Chamber very faire with a chimney 'therein. Within the ſame is one other faire 'Chamber, called the Dineing Chamber, with a 'chimney therein likewiſe. And within that 'againe, is one other faire chamber alſoe, called 'the Privy Chamber, with a chimney in that 'likewiſe. And within the ſame againe is one 'other chamber or cloſſett called the Duke's 'Jewell Chamber. Next unto the Privy Cham-'ber on the inner part thereof, is a faire round 'chamber, being the ſecond ſtory of the Tower, 'called the Duke's Bedchamber, with a chimney 'in the ſame. From the Privy Chamber a Stayer 'leadeth up into another faire round chamber 'over the Duke's Bedchamber, like unto the 'former, being the third ſtory over the Tower, '& ſoe upwards into another like chamber over 'the ſame, called the Treaſury, where the Evi-'dences do lye. All which laſt recited buildings, 'called the New Buildings, are built faire with 'freeſtone, covered with lead, & embattelled.

'On the eaſt ſide of the Caſtle is one other 'garden, conteyning three quarters of an acre, 'adjoining upon the Earle of Bedford's Lodgings, 'at the weſt corner whereof is a little void court 'of waſt ground. On the north ſide of the Caſtle, 'adjoyning upon the Chappell, is a little Orchard 'conteyning half an acre, well ſett with trees of 'diverſe kinds of fruites. All which Caſtle 'buildings, with Orchards & Gardens aforeſaid, 'are walled about with a Wall of Stone, part 'embattelled, ruined and decayed in diverſe places 'thereof, conteyning in circuit and quantity, by 'eſtimation, twelve Acres of Ground, or there-'abouts. On the eaſt Side of the ſaid Caſtle, 'adjoining unto the outer Side of the Walls 'thereof, is one faire Orchard quadrente, con-'teyning by Eſtimation fower Acres, palled about 'well, & thick ſett with trees of diverſe Kinds of 'fruites.'

I ſhall cloſe this account of the caſtle by ob-ſerving, that the gatehouſe, and much of the caſtle walls, and the outer wall that incloſed the whole, with loop holes at convenient diſtances to ſhoot thro' with bows and croſs bows, are now ſtanding; and ſome of the rooms of the caſtle are occupied as a farm houſe. The foregoing inſcription on the gatehouſe is as I found it myſelf, and not exactly as in the Itinerary, for Leland had not copied it accurately. Beſides the inſcription, there there are ſeveral ornamental devices upon it, with the Staffords Knot; and the preſent remains of the caſtle ſhew the deſign to have been noble and magnificent, tho' imperfectly executed.

In the year 1539, king Henry the Eighth and Anne of Bulloigne were entertained at this place for ten days.

The town of Thornbury was fortified for the king in the great rebellion, by ſir William St. Leger, to reſtrain the garriſon at Glouceſter.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

The following abſtract from Domeſday ſtands under the title Terra Regis:

'Brictric the ſon of Algar held Turneberie in 'Langelei hundred. In the time of king Edward 'there were eleven hides, and four plow-tillages 'in demean, and forty-two villeins, and eighteen 'radcheniſters, with twenty-one plow-tillages; 'and twenty-four bordars, and fifteen ſervi, and 'four coliberti. There were two mills of 6*s*. 4*d*. 'a wood a mile long, and a mile broad. There 'was a market of 20*s*. The ſteward hath now 'added a mill there of 8*d*.

'This manor was queen Maud's. Hunfrid 'paid 50*l*. for it by tale. In this manor is a 'meadow of 40*s*. and at Wiche, forty ſextaries 'of ſalt, or 20*d*. and the fiſhery of Glouceſter of '58*d*.' Domeſday, p. 68.

The manor of Thornbury deſcended like that of Tewkeſbury, and the honour of Glouceſter, 'till it came into the poſſeſſion of Ralph lord Stafford, in right of his wife Margaret, ſole daughter and heireſs to Hugh de Audley, earl of Glouceſter.

The above Ralph lord Stafford was deſcended from Roger de Toeni, who was ſtandard-bearer of Normandy, and deſcended from Malahulctus, uncle to Rollo duke of Normandy. Robert, a younger ſon of Roger, was founder of the abbey of Conches. Nicholas Toeni was ſon of Robert, and another Robert, ſon of Nicholas, came into England with king William the Firſt, who rewarded him with one hundred and thirty-one manors, whereof eighty-one were in Staffordſhire. He was alſo made governor of a caſtle in Stafford, and thence he aſſumed the name of Stafford. He married Avice de Clare, and lies buried at Stone in Staffordſhire, where he had founded a priory for canons regular, of the order of St. Auguſtin.

Nicholas de Stafford, ſon and heir of Robert, was high ſheriff of Staffordſhire in the reign of king Henry the Firſt, and was buried with Maud his wife in the monaſtery of Stone. Robert de Stafford, ſon and heir of Nicholas, was alſo high ſheriff of Staffordſhire from the 2d to the 6th year of king Henry the Second. He likewiſe was buried at Stone, and left a ſon named Robert, who died without iſſue, whereby Miliſent, ſiſter to this laſt Robert, became his heir.

Which Miliſent was married to Hervey Bagot, of an antient family in the ſame county, who, in her right, ſucceeded to the barony of Stafford.

Hervey Bagot, ſon and heir of Hervey and of Miliſent, aſſumed the name of his mother, which was the cuſtom of thoſe times, when the mother was a conſiderable heireſs. He married Petronilla, ſiſter to William de Ferrers, earl of Derby, and died 21 H. 3. A third Hervey de Stafford, ſon of the laſt, ſucceeded to the barony and eſtate, but dying without iſſue, his brother, Robert lord Stafford, became his heir, and had livery granted to him of all his brother's lands 25 H. 3. He married Alice, one of the coheirs of Thomas Corbet, of Caus in Shropſhire, and dying 10 E. 1. was buried with his anceſtors at Stone.

Edmond lord Stafford, ſon of Robert, married Margaret, daughter of Ralph lord Baſſet, of Draiton, whereby the eſtate of the Baſſet family, for want of heirs male, deſcended afterwards to the Staffords. He died 2 E. 2. and was buried in the monaſtery of the Friers Minors in Stafford.

Ralph lord Stafford, ſon of Edmond, was nine years old at his father's death. He had livery of his paternal eſtate 17 E. 2. and became eminent in military employments. He married Margaret, the daughter and heir of Hugh de Audley, earl of Glouceſter, and was created earl of Stafford. He died ſeized of the manors of Thornbury and Rendcombe, in right of his wife, 46 E. 3. and was buried at Tunbridge in Kent. Ralph his eldeſt ſon had married Maud, daughter of Henry de Lancaſter, earl of Derby, but died without iſſue before his father.

Hugh earl of Stafford, ſurviving ſon and heir of Ralph, and of Margaret de Audley, was twenty-eight years old at the death of his father, whom he ſucceeded in title and eſtate. He followed the wars in France and Scotland, and married Philippa, daughter of Thomas Beauchamp, earl of Warwick. Dying at Rhodes, in his return from a pilgrimage to Jeruſalem, 9 R. 2. his body was brought into England, and buried at Stone. He died ſeized of Thornbury, with its members, Oldbury, Kington, Morton, Falfield and Mares, and of the manors of Rendcombe and Eſtington; and was ſucceeded by his ſon

Thomas earl of Stafford, who married Anne, the daughter of Thomas of Woodſtock, duke of Glouceſter, by his wife Eleanor, eldeſt daughter and coheireſs of Humphry de Bohun, earl of Hereford. But this Thomas died before he could conſummate the marriage, and was buried at Stone 16 R. 2. whereby his brother William, who was his next heir, ſucceeded to the title and eſtates; but he died unmarried 18 R. 2.

Edmond earl of Stafford was brother and heir to William, and by ſpecial licence from the king, he married Anne, his brother Thomas's widow, with whom he had the manor of Wheatenhurſt. He was ſlain at the battle of Shrewſbury, fighting for king Henry the Fourth againſt Hotſpur, ſon of Henry earl of Northumberland, 4 H. 4. and was buried in the Auguſtine friery at Stafford. He died ſeized of Thornbury, with its members aforeſaid, and of the manors of Rendcombe and Wheatenhurſt, and of the caſtle of Caldecot in Glouceſterſhire. The counteſs Anne, his relict, died 17 H. 6. and was then buried at the priory of Lanthony, near Glouceſter.

Humphry earl of Stafford, ſon and heir of Edmond, was very young at his father's death, and married Anne, daughter of Ralph Nevil earl of Weſtmoreland. He was governor of Calais, and was created duke of Buckingham 23 H. 6. A diſpute ariſing concerning precedency between him and Henry Beauchamp, duke of Warwick, it was decided by act of parliament, and ordered, that theſe two dukes ſhould take precedency by turns, one one year, the other the next; and that precedency ſhould be given to ſuch of the poſterity of each as ſhould firſt have livery of their lands. He was ſlain at the battle of Northampton 38 H. 6. wherein king Henry the Sixth was taken priſoner.

Humphry earl of Stafford was the eldeſt ſon of Humphry duke of Buckingham. He married Margaret, daughter and coheir of Edmond duke of Somerſet, and was ſlain at the battle of St. Albans, in his father's life-time.

Henry duke of Buckingham, ſon of Humphry earl of Stafford, and grandſon of Humphry duke of Buckingham, ſucceeded his grandfather in honour, and in the manor of Thornbury. Being under age at his grandfather's death, he was in ward to the king, and the care of his education was aſſigned to Anne, dutcheſs of Exeter, the king's ſiſter. He married Catherine, daughter of Richard Wodeville, earl of Rivers. He was highly inſtrumental in king Richard the Third's unjuſtly obtaining the crown, and afterwards, thro' remorſe of conſcience, took up arms againſt him, and being taken, he was beheaded at Saliſbury 1 R. 3. without any judicial proceedings. A proclamation had been iſſued, offering a thouſand pounds reward to whomever ſhould apprehend the duke, which tempted Humphry Banniſter, his ſervant, to betray him; but he went without the reward, for king Richard ſaid, That he who would betray ſo good a maſter would be falſe to all others. This, however, was no juſtification for the king's breaking his faith. Richard's morals and politics were equally bad, and as by this inſtance of his conduct he appeared to be one that could not be relied on, ſo very few would have entered into his ſervice on future occaſions.

Edward duke of Buckingham was ſon of the laſt Humphry. He had livery of his lands 14 H. 7. and obtained a licence to impark a thouſand acres of land in Thornbury 2 H. 8. He married Alianora, daughter of Henry Percy, earl of Northumberland. The king conceived a jealouſy of him for ſome very hot and indiſcreet expreſſions, for which he was tried by his peers upon an accuſation of high treaſon, and found guilty; and diſdaining to aſk his life, was beheaded 13 H. 8. The principal witneſs againſt him was Charles Knevet, whom he had diſcharged of his ſervice at the clamour of his tenants His haughty ſpirit, and contemptuous carriage towards cardinal Wolſey, contributed to his ruin. The duke was preſenting the baſon on his knees for the king to waſh his hands after dinner, and when the king had done, and was turned away, the cardinal ſportingly dipt his hand in the baſon whilſt the duke was on his knees. The duke reſented it as an affront, and riſing up, poured the water into the cardinal's ſhoes. The eccleſiaſtic was nettled in his turn, and threatened the duke to ſit upon his ſkirts. The duke, therefore, came the next day to court, without ſkirts to his doublet, and being aſked the reaſon of it, told the king that it was to avoid the cardinal's anger, for he had threatened to ſit upon his ſkirts. The duke had his jeſt, but the cardinal had his head afterwards. All the monuments of this great family, upon the diſſolution of the priory of Stone, were removed, 30 H. 8. to the friers Auguſtins at Stafford, in hopes that the Mendicant friers might be ſpared; but thoſe coſtly tombs were deſtroy'd, and buried in the ruins of that monaſtery.

Henry Stafford, eldeſt ſon of Edward duke of Buckingham, was by act of parliament reſtored in blood, but not to his father's honours and eſtate, 14 H. 8. However, the king ſoon afterwards granted ſeveral of the lands of the late duke of Buckingham to this Henry Stafford, and to Urſula his wife, and their heirs. She was the daughter of ſir Richard Pole, by Margaret his wife, who was the daughter of George duke of Clarence, brother to king Edward the Fourth. The manor, caſtle, town, and park, &c. of Thornbury, and the manor of Bedellanam in Thornbury, were granted to Henry lord Stafford, and to Urſula his wife, 2 Mar. He was a perſon of great learning and virtue, and having tranſlated ſeveral pieces of divinity, died in the year 1558.

Edward lord Stafford, ſon and heir of Henry, married Mary, daughter of Edward earl of Derby, and left Edward lord Stafford his ſon and heir, who had livery of the manor of Thornbury, and of the reſt of his father's lands, in 1592. He married Iſabel, daughter of Thomas Foſter, of Tonge in Shropſhire, and died in 1625.

Edward lord Stafford, ſon of the laſt Edward, married Anne, daughter of James Wilfords, of Newnham-hall in Eſſex, and died before his father, leaving a ſon Henry, and a daughter Mary. Henry died young in 1637.

Mary Stafford, daughter of the laſt-mentioned Edward, and heireſs of the family, was married to William Howard, a younger ſon of Thomas earl of Arundel and Surry, who, in her right, was ſeized of the manor of Thornbury. He was created viſcount Stafford by king Charles the Firſt, and was beheaded in the reign of king Charles the Second, upon the teſtimony of the famous doctor Oates, as being guilty of the popiſh plot. In the reign of king James the Second, an attempt was made to reverſe the attainder of this lord by a bill in parliament, againſt which ſome of the lords proteſted, and the commons threw it out.

Henry

Henry-Stafford Howard, ſon of William viſcount Stafford, was created earl of Stafford by king James the Second, and was lord of the manor of Thornbury at the beginning of the preſent century. The duke of Norfolk is the preſent lord of the manor.

William Heron, of London, haberdaſher, and Joan his wife, levied a fine of lands in Thornbury to the uſe of themſelves 33 H. 6. John Stanſhaw, and Humphry his brother, levied a fine of lands in Thornbury 12 H. 7. Richard Forſter levied a fine of the moiety of lands in Thornbury, Oldbury, and Falfield, 12 H. 7.

TITHINGS and HAMLETS.

By an act paſſed in the reign of king Charles the Second, the tithings of Oldbury, Kington, Morton, and Falfield, all in the pariſh of Thornbury, were conſolidated into one manor, called the manor of Thornbury. Of which tithings in their order.

1. Oldbury, ſometimes written Aldbury, and Ealdbury, from the Saxon Ealb-beꝛȝ. We now call it Oldbury upon Severn, to diſtinguiſh it from Oldbury upon the Hill, in the hundred of Grumbald's Aſh. It ſtretches along the ſhore of the Severn, and is ſuppoſed to be the Roman ſtation called the Trajectus, or ferry, mentioned in Antoninus's fourteenth Iter, from Iſca, now Caerleon in Monmouthſhire, to Calleva, now Wallingford in Berkſhire. It received its preſent name from the Saxons, on account of the antient camps which they found there, and of which ſome traces ſtill remain. The ſmaller one, or Campus Minor, was on the eaſt ſide of the hill near the church, where every thing paſſing upon the Severn hereabout might be ſeen, and many Roman coins have been found upon the ſpot. A little eaſtward of that, about a quarter of a mile on the plain, was the Campus Major; and part of the intrenchments, with high banks, forming two ſides of a ſquare, ſtill remain pretty perfect, tho' the other parts are levelled. Juſt by theſe, in a piece of ground which ſtill ſhews many tumps and unevenneſſes, a great many old foundations have been dug up in the memory of perſons living in the place. Theſe circumſtances very much corroborate the opinion that here was the Roman Trajectus, and not at Auſt, as ſome have fancied. The diſtance between the Abone, another Roman ſtation, and the Trajectus, is ſet down to be nine miles by Antoninus, which not agreeing with the real diſtance between the places where thoſe ſtations are ſuppoſed to have been, has occaſioned much difficulty in fixing the ſituation of the Abone; but as this ſubject has been fully diſcuſſed under Lidney, the reader is referred to that head for further ſatisfaction.

This part of the pariſh is very unhealthy, from ſtagnated water lying on ſome of the lands; and it is made more ſo from the great number of Elm trees ſtanding ſo thick about the houſes, that the air has not a free current.

Sir Robert Atkyns has miſapplied the account of Edward the Elder paſſing over the Severn at this place, to meet Leoline prince of Wales; for according to Mapes, and others, it happened at Auſt, and not here.

The Deſpencers are ſaid to have been ſometime ſeized of this manor, in the reign of king Edward the Second. Eubulo le Strange, and Aleria his wife, levied a fine of Oldbury to the uſe of Hugh le Deſpencer 18 E. 2.

The knights templars were ſeized of Oldbury 2 E. 3. and upon the diſſolution of that order, the manor was granted to the Veals. John Veal died ſeized of the manor of Oldbury 36 H. 6. as did Robert Veal, ſon of John, 13 E. 4.

The Kemyſes ſucceeded the Veals. Roger Kemys, who was found by inquiſition to be a lunatick, died ſeized of Oldbury 21 E. 4. Hugh Kemys and John Kemys levied a fine of the manor of Oldbury to William George, and William Overton, 4 E. 6. Sir James Harrington was lord of this manor in the year 1608, but it is now conſolidated with Thornbury.

John Newton and Joan his wife levied a fine of lands in Oldbury to the uſe of themſelves in taille, 8 H. 5. Lands in Oldbury and Holeham belonged to the abbey of Tewkeſbury, and were granted to Daniel Pert and Alexander Pert, in truſt, 7 E. 6. A portion of tithes in Oldbury, and a meadow called Holeham, which belonged to the abbey of Tewkeſbury, were granted to the lord Fenton 5 Jac.

There is a chapel in Oldbury, and the chapelry is annexed to Thornbury. It is called the Rectory of Oldbury in the preſentation, and is worth 50*l.* a year. The chapel ſtands on the top of a hill. The inhabitants ſay, that their anceſtors attempted to build it on Shaw's Green, near the middle of the village; but what they effected in the day was deſtroy'd by night, which made them deſiſt. They were then adviſed to yoke two heifers that never had been milked, and whereſoever they ſhould firſt ſtop, there to build the chapel. The poor beaſts ſtraggling along, at laſt halted on the top of the hill, and ſo the chapel was built there.

Cowhill, or Cowell, is a hamlet in this tithing. Henry Campneys was ſeized of Cowhull 15 E. 4. Anthony Campneys died ſeized thereof 27 H. 8. and livery was granted to Henry Campneys, brother and heir to Anthony, the next year. Livery of Cowell was alſo granted to John Campneys 13 Eliz. Cowell was lately purchaſed out of the family of ſir Thomas Campneſs, by Peter Holford, of Weſton Birt in this county, eſq.

Mr. Thomas Adams has a good eſtate at Cowhill.

2. Kington. The church of Thornbury ſtands in this tithing. The lands antiently belonged to the the family of the Staffords, and were granted to Dorothy Stafford, and to her ſons, in taille, 26 Eliz. Aryld, a virgin, is ſaid to have been murdered here by one Muncius, a tyrant, who cut off her head. She was afterwards canonized, and buried in St. Peter's abbey at Glouceſter.

Marlewood is within this tithing, where was an antient ſeat and a park belonging to the Staffords, which Edward Stafford ſold, about the beginning of this century, and Mr. Knight, whoſe anceſtor purchaſed it, is the preſent owner of it.

3. Morton. Eaſtwood is a very large eſtate in this tithing, where was formerly a park. It is ſituated on a fine eminence, on the eaſt ſide of the town, and has a large manſion houſe belonging to it, now converted to a farm houſe. This eſtate came to the crown by the attainder of Edward duke of Buckingham, and was granted to Thomas Tyndale[r] 7 Eliz. Sir Richard Rogers, ſon of Robert Rogers of Briſtol, died ſeized of Eaſtwood in 1635. It afterwards paſſed to ſir Richard [r] This family came antiently from Tyndale in the north of England, ſo called from the north Tyne, which riſes in the mountains on the borders of England, and waters that dale. Robert de Tyndale had three ſons, Adam, Robert, and John. Adam de Tyndale was living in 1199, and had iſſue by Helewiſa his wife, one daughter Philippa, married to Nicholas, baron of Bolteby, in the time of king Henry the Third. Robert, the ſecond ſon, ſeated himſelf at Tranſover in Northamptonſhire, temp. E. 1. and had iſſue two ſons, ſir William Tyndale, knight, who died without iſſue; and Robert Tyndale, living in 1293. Which Robert had iſſue two ſons, Richard, and William. Richard died ſine prole; but ſir William Tyndale of Tranſover, the ſecond ſon, married Elizabeth, the niece and heir of ſir Henry Deane, of Deane in Northamptonſhire.

John Tyndale, ſon of ſir William, was living in the year 1391, and by his wife Catharine Zouch, had iſſue two ſons, Richard, who died 3 H. 5. ſine prole; and ſir William Tyndale, who by his wife Alana, (daughter and heir of ſir Simon Bigod, alias Felbrigge, of Felbrigge in Norfolk, knight of the garter, by his wife Margaret, daughter to the duke of Theiſe, and niece to the king of Bohemia) had iſſue ſir Thomas Tyndale, of Deane, knight. Which ſir Thomas Tyndale married Margaret, daughter of ſir William Yelverton, and by her had ſir William Tyndale, of Hockwold in Norfolk, made knight of the Bath in 1496; and three daughters, Anne, married to Henry St. Germain; Jane, wedded to John Blanerhaſſet; and Elizabeth.

The ſaid ſir William Tyndale of Hockwold, by Mary his wife, daughter and heir of Oſbert Montford, of Norfolk, had iſſue four ſons, viz. 1. ſir John; 2. William, the anceſtor of the Tyndales of Bathford, of whom hereafter; 3. Robert; and 4. Edward, ſettled at Pull-court in Worceſterſhire. Sir John Tyndale, eldeſt ſon of ſir William Tyndale of Hockwold, married Amphillis, daughter of —— Coningſby, and by her was father of two ſons, ſir Thomas, and Humphry; and four daughters, Anne, Mary, Beatrix, and Dorothy. Sir Thomas Tyndale, the eldeſt ſon, married firſt, Anne, daughter of ſir William Paſton, by whom he had iſſue a ſon William, who died in 1591, having married a daughter of ſir Ambroſe Germain, by whom he was father of one ſon, Felix Tyndale, who died without iſſue. Sir Thomas Tyndale's ſecond wife was Anne, daughter of ſir Henry Fermer, by whom he had iſſue ſix ſons, ſir John; ——; Francis, who died a batchelor, and his will was proved in 1631; Henry; Humphry, D. D. dean of Ely, preſident of Queen's college, Cambridge, and chancellor of Litchfield, who died and was buried at Ely in 1614; and Arthur: The daughters were Suſan, Urſula, Elizabeth, Anne, and Amye.

Sir John, eldeſt ſon of ſir Thomas Tyndale, by Anne his ſecond wife, ſettled at Great Mapleſtead in Eſſex, where he built a houſe called New Chelmeſhoo Houſe. He was a maſter in chancery, and was murdered by John Bertram, as he was going to his chambers in Lincoln's Inn, Nov. 12, 1616. He married Anne, daughter of Thomas Egerton, eſq; and widow of ſir William Deane, of Great Mapleſtead, and by her had iſſue three ſons and three daughters, viz. Deane, Arthur, Roger; Sarah, Margaret, and Heſter. Deane Tyndale, eldeſt ſon of ſir John, married Amye, daughter and heir of Robert Weſton, of Preſted Hall in Eſſex, and died in 1678, aged 92. He had iſſue by his ſaid wife four ſons, viz. Deane, buried March 23, 1633; Francis, who died young; John, of whom preſently; Drue, a Hamborough merchant; and two daughters, Anne, and Elizabeth. John, the third but only ſurviving ſon of Deane Tyndale of Mapleſtead, married Elizabeth, daughter of Anthony Deane, of Dynes Hall, eſq; by whom he had iſſue an only daughter Elizabeth, wedded to Jaſper Blitheman. At the death of the ſaid John Tyndale, the male heirs of this branch became extinct: I return therefore to the other ſons of ſir William Tyndale, of Hockwold in Norfolk, who, as before recited, were William, of whom hereafter; Robert; and Edward.

Edward Tyndale, fourth ſon of ſir William, ſettled at the Pull, otherwiſe called Pull-court, in Worceſterſhire, and married two wives. By the firſt he had iſſue two ſons, Thomas, and William; and five daughters: By Joan his ſecond wife, daughter of William Lawrence, he had three ſons, John, Edward, and Henry; and three daughters. He died in the year 1546, as appears by the probat. of his will.

Thomas Tyndale, eldeſt ſon of Edward, ſettled at Eaſtwood in the pariſh of Thornbury, in the county of Glouceſter, of which he had a grant 7 Eliz. 1565, and by Avice his wife, daughter of John Bodie, had an only ſon Edward, and one only daughter Elizabeth, who both died before their father. Thomas ſurvived 'till the year 1571, and by his will gave the eſtate at Eaſtwood to his couſin Thomas Tyndale, a minor, whoſe deſcent I ſhall now proceed to trace from ſir William Tyndale, of Hockwold in Norfolk.

William Tyndale, ſecond ſon of ſir William Tyndale of Hockwold, and brother of Edward of Pull-court, died about the year 1558, leaving iſſue one ſon Thomas; and two daughters, Joan, and Faith.

Thomas Tyndale, ſon of William, married a daughter of —— Lloyd, of Griſmond-caſtle in Monmouthſhire, and of Whitminſter in Glouceſterſhire, and had iſſue

Thomas, to whom Thomas Tyndale of Eaſtwood left that eſtate, in the year 1571. Thomas, the ſon, died in 1619, having married Oriana le Bon, daughter of John le Bon, counſellor in the parliament of Roan in Normandy, and one of the ſiſters and heirs of Claudius le Bon, of Farnaux in that province. By her he had iſſue four ſons, Thomas, Francis, Edmund, and George, of whom the three laſt had no children; and three daughters, who all died unmarried.

Thomas Tyndale, the eldeſt ſon, ſold the eſtate at Eaſtwood in this pariſh, to ſir Richard Rogers, a grocer in Briſtol, about the year 1628, and went to reſide at the priory at Kington St. Michael, near Calne in Wiltſhire, where he died Feb. 22, 1671. The following curious letter from this gentleman to his couſin, Mr. —— Tyndale, of Stinchcombe in this county, may be acceptable to ſome of my readers:

'Couſin,

'I have received your late letter, and am very glad to hear ſo well of you; and ſhall much rejoyce to underſtand of any good which may arrive to the familie of Stinchcombe, ſo as I can not but hope that the thing you write of to me looks that way, tho' you mention it not. The name of Tyndale is well known in the Harold's office to be of great antiquity and reputation, but branched out into many and divers families, as all ancient names have been from age to age, without obſerving or keeping any knowledge of the times, or any certain genealogie of their deſcents, albeit they are of the ſame extraction and originall with the reſt. The firſt familie of Tyndale in credit and reputation was of Dale caſtle in South Tyndale in Northumberland, and called, by writ, to the upper houſe of parliament in the time of Edward the 1ſt, and were barons of Langley in South Tyndale. That houſe extinguiſhed by an heir general married to Boulteby, whoſe heir general was after married unto Percie. The ſecond brother of that Tyndale ſeated himſelf in Northamptonſhire, at a place called Tranſover, and after they married the heir of ſir Henry Deane, of Deane by Tranſover, and then the heir of ſir Symond Byged, of Felbrigge, one of the knights of the garter, and it was a great match, and with one of the heirs of the lord Scales of Nacelles, dividing that inheritance with the earl of Oxford; afterwards they married the heir of Montfort in Norfolke, whether Tyndale removed his ſeat to Hockwold. This familie was in great reputation 'till the beginning of queen Elizabethe, at what time ſir Thomas Tyndale made an end of all which his father ſir John Tyndale had not ſpent before. Sir John Tyndale, ſecond ſon to ſir Thomas Tyndale, did leave his ſon Deane Tyndale, who (if living) is juſt my age, and dwelleth in Eſſex, near Heningham-caſtle, and hath ſome eight hundred Pound per annum left, and is the beſt Tyndale now remaining. From that familie my great grandfather came. There is alſo another familie of Tyndale of Brotherton in Yorkſhire, of good eſtate and reputation, but giving ſome what a different coat, as you may perceive by what I have ſet down here underneath; but I cannot at this time ſee certain to blazon Brotherton's coat aright. I have heretofore heard that the firſt of your familie came out of the North in the times of the wars between the houſes of York and Lancaſter, at what time many of good ſort (their ſide going down) did fly for refuge and ſuccor where they could

Richard Aſhfield, in right of Mary his wife, eldeſt daughter, and one of the coheireſſes of ſir Richard Rogers; and is at preſent the eſtate of ſir Banks Jenkinſon, of Oxfordſhire, baronet, whoſe arms are given under Hawkeſbury.

Hope is the name of a place in the pariſh of Thornbury. Sir William Compton died ſeized of ten meſſuages, five hundred acres of arable, and two hundred acres of paſture, and of other lands in Hope, near Thornbury, 20 H. 8. Mr. Thomas Morris has a good eſtate at Hope.

Buckover is the name of another place. Lands in Buckover in Thornbury, lately belonging to Edward duke of Buckingham, were granted to Elizabeth Harwell 15 H. 8. Lands called the Barrys, late the duke of Buckingham's, were granted to Thomas Henege, and Catherine his wife, for their lives, 23 H. 8.

4. Falfield, ſo called from the Saxon Falb, an incloſure. It was reputed a manor, and belonged to ſir John Berkeley, of Beverſtone, 6 H. 6. and to ſir Maurice Berkeley 14 E. 4. William Berkeley was ſeized of it, and being outlawed for treaſon, it was granted to Thomas Brug, and his heirs male, 1 H. 7. But William Berkeley was afterwards reſtored to his eſtates. Sir William Berkeley died ſeized of Falfield 5 E. 6. and John Berkeley, ſon of ſir William, had livery of it granted to him 6 E. 6. Livery of the manor of Falfield was alſo granted to Edward lord Stafford 9 Eliz. This manor, as before obſerved, is conſolidated with that of Thornbury. Mr. Thomas Skey has a good eſtate here, which has been in his family for many generations.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the deanery of Durſley, worth about 200*l.* a year. Chriſt Church college, Oxford, are patrons, and the reverend Mr. Holwell is the preſent incumbent. It was formerly given to the abbey of Tewkeſbury, by Gilbert de Clare earl of Glouceſter; and the abbey recovered it from the biſhop of Worceſter 26 E. 1. It was appropriated to the uſe of the monaſtery

---

'could find it. That it was your predeceſſor his fortune to come into 'Glouceſterſhire, changing his name to that of Huchins, and that after- 'wards he married there, and ſo having children, he did before his 'death declare his right name, and from whence and upon what ſubject 'he came thither; and ſo taking his own name, did leave it unto his 'children, who have ſince continued it, as it was fit they ſhould. This 'I have heard from your good father himſelf. Two of my ſons do know 'them of Brotherton and my ſon Thomas (now married in London) 'hath been there. I have made you now (as you ſee) an ample relation 'of all that I can at preſent call to mind that may be proper to acquaint 'you withal, and ſhall think well thereof if it may any way ſatisfie your 'deſires. My ſon William is now with me, and deſires to be very 'kindly remembered unto you, as having (by his ſaying) been known 'and received courteſies from you in the Low Countreys. If you 'pleaſe to write any more unto me, you ſhall not need to put my name 'Thomas, nor the priory to the ſuperſcription; I am much known 'without theſe additions. My wife is alſo yet living, though in a ſad 'condition this long time, but ſhe hath not forgotten you, praying me 'to remember her love unto you. It is now time to give over and make 'an end, ſo concluding with my affectionate reſpects and good wiſhes 'to yourſelf and to your nephew, tho' unknown, I reſt

'Your loving kinſman, and 'Kington St. Michael, 'aſſured friend,

'Febr. 3d 1663. 'Thomas Tyndale.'

This Thomas Tyndale took to wife Dorothy, daughter of William Stafford, of Northamptonſhire, by whom he had five ſons and four daughters, viz. Stafford, who died childleſs; William, Thomas, George, and John; and four daughters, Frances, married to John Poree, of Roan in Normandy; Anne, wedded to captain Doughty; Dorothy, and Orian.

William Tyndale, of Kington St. Michael, ſecond ſon of Thomas, died Nov. 3, 1675. He took to wife Margaret, daughter of Anderſon Atcherley, of Shropſhire, and by her had five ſons, Thomas, George, John, Athelſtan, and Henry.

Thomas Tyndale, the eldeſt ſon, born June 2, 1667, removed to Bathford near Bath, where he died in the year 1747. He married firſt, a daughter of —— Winchcombe, of Witney in Oxfordſhire, and by her had a ſon Thomas, who died young, and one daughter, Dorothy. By Elizabeth his ſecond wife, daughter of George Booth, of Woodford in Cheſhire, eſq; he had iſſue two ſons, John, who died unmarried in 1728; and George; and four daughters, Martha-Maria, Elizabeth, Mary, and Arabella.

George Tyndale, ſecond ſon of Thomas, married to his firſt wife, Vere, daughter of the honourable and reverend Robert Booth, D.D. and dean of Briſtol, fifth ſon of George lord Delamere, by whom he hath iſſue one ſon, George-Booth Tyndale, born Sep. 8, 1743; who being bred to the law in the Inner Temple, was called to the bar in 1768; and one daughter, Elizabeth-Vere, who died young. His ſecond wife was Margaretta, daughter of John Bamfylde, of Heſtercombe in Somerſetſhire, eſq; by whom he has iſſue two ſons, John, and Thomas-Bamfylde; and three daughters, Margaretta, Elizabeth, and Charlotta-Maria. Which George Tyndale, eſq; reſides at Bathford in Somerſetſhire, where he has a good houſe and eſtate. His arms are, Argent, a feſs gules between three garbs ſable.

' In the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, the laity began to think they had done enough for monaſteries; therefore the monks ſought out other means to increaſe their revenues, by deſpoiling the ſecular clergy, who were the true labourers in the church, and thereupon appropriation of tithes to regular monks became more frequent. The following is a tranſlation of the appropriation, as given by ſir Robert Atkyns:

TO all ſons of holy mother the church, to whom theſe preſents ſhall come, Walter, by God's permiſſion, biſhop of Worceſter, ſendeth grace, health, and eternal benediction. Tho' we are obliged out of the duty of common charity, to extend ſome favour to all perſons in miſery, towards the relief of their neceſſities; we are however bound more principally to exert ourſelves in the aſſiſtance of the religious under our care, who whilſt they are buſied in the fruits of good works, we ſee reduced and fallen into great want, and not by any fault of their own. Therefore we having a due regard to the monaſtery of Tewkeſbury, and to the religious men the abbat and monks of the ſaid monaſtery, within our dioceſe, which was heretofore founded by the progenitors of famous memory of the lord Gilbert de Clare, late earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, and endowed with ſpiritualties and temporalties ſituated in remote parts, and particularly in Wales, which was ſubject to the frequent incurſions of enemies, by which means it is but meanly endowed, and not able to ſubſiſt the convent, and maintain the poor, and other neceſſary charges and burthens of the ſame monaſtery, as ought to be; and it alſo lies oppreſt under divers calamities of fire, and inundation of waters on their lands and poſſeſſions, and by other adverſities and malice of this preſent world, will be daily brought into great and notorious decay, which unleſs timely relieved, can ſcarce in probability be ever recovered. And we taking notice that the pariſh church of Thornbury within our dioceſe, is under the patronage of the ſaid monaſtery, and that it was heretofore duly and canonically appropriated to the ſaid abbat and monks for the time being, and to their ſucceſſors, for the better ſupport of the burthens and charges aforeſaid; and that they for a long time had actually and peaceably enjoyed the poſſeſſion thereof, and that a great part of the revenue of the ſaid monaſtery, at the time of the appropriation did conſiſt herein, and that ſince they have been deprived of the ſame by ſome ſecular men, upheld with the power of ſome great nobles, who have divers times wrongfully preſented to the ſaid church, by their own damnable unjuſtice, and not thro' any fault of the ſaid monaſtery, who, notwithſtanding, have continued to maintain the functions of their monaſtery, in like manner as if they had enjoyed the profits of that impropriation, in as full manner as at their firſt foundation and appropriation, and their expences by theſe means have exceeded their yearly revenue, whereby they have unavoidably incurred on themſelves and their monaſtery, a heavy and inſupportable debt. And further, they are at this monaſtery by Walter biſhop of Worceſter, in the year 1314. The impropriation is now veſted in Chriſt Church college, by grant from the crown 38 H. 8. But the rectory of Thornbury was granted to William Fitz-Williams, and Arthur Hilton, 7 E. 6.

The tithes of lady Symonds's lands, and all the ſmall tithes, belong to the vicarage. There are three chapels annexed to this church, Oldbury, Rangeworthy, and Falfield.

The church is dedicated to the virgin Mary. It is large and handſome, with a ſpacious aile on each ſide the nave, and two croſs ailes, and a beautiful high tower at the weſt end. The great chancel belongs to Chriſt Church college. It is ſaid that the body of the church and the tower were built by Fitz-Harding, who dwelt at Roll's Place; and that the ſouth aile was built by Hugh lord Stafford.

There were four chantries in this church, one day ſubject to a great and unuſual charge, by reaſon of the great travelling which is thro' that place both by land and water, it being ſituated between two great rivers, the Severn and the Avon, which bring a great concourſe of people, who expect to be entertained by the ſaid monaſtery, and has brought a charge upon the monaſtery, beyond what it is able to bear, and has neceſſarily reduced the monaſtery, and abbat, and monks, to great poverty, which can no way be relieved and redreſſed without the augmentation of their poſſeſſions and revenues. And we being fully adviſed of the truth of all and ſingular of theſe circumſtances, we therefore beholding with grief and an eye of compaſſion, the oppreſſion and miſery of theſe ſaid religious men and the monaſtery, and deſirous to aſſiſt them to the beſt of our power, as becomes our holy office, and that theſe religious men ſhould not be incumbred with the anxious neceſſities of this life, who have devoted themſelves to the ſervice of God alone, during their whole lives, under the obſervance of pious rules; and we further conſidering how we may deliver them out of this impendent ruin into which they have fallen, and reſtore them to a more eaſy and plentiful augmentation of their profit, whereby they may keep better hoſpitality for the future, and may perform greater acts of charity, and may uphold the chapel founded by the aforeſaid earl, to the honour of the bleſſed Mary mother of God, and glorious virgin, which chapel hath lately been built anew, at the burthen and charge of the ſaid abbat and monks of the ſaid monaſtery, and that the maſs of the bleſſed virgin may be daily ſaid therein, to the praiſe of God and of his mother, and of All Saints, to the increaſe of divine worſhip, for the proſperity of the living, and the reſt of the ſouls of the dead; and that the officers and miniſters who aſſiſt in the celebration of the ſame, and the other charges thereunto belonging, may be ſuſtained, we, by the influence of divine piety and pontifical authority, do give, grant, aſſign and appropriate the pariſh church of Thornbury within our dioceſe aforeſaid, in which the ſaid religious men have a juſt right of patronage, to the ſaid monaſtery of Tewkeſbury, and to the abbat and monks of that place, and to their own proper uſe for ever, having a due regard to the right and intereſt of the ſaid maſter Roger Marſhall the preſent rector of Thornbury, and all others who can have any intereſt or claim, being firſt ſummoned, and their conſent on this behalf being firſt obtained.

We further will and grant, that after the ceſſion or death of the ſaid maſter Roger, the preſent rector of the church, the actual poſſeſſions of the ſame church, with all its chapels thereon depending, and all its rights, members, and appurtenances whatſoever, without any interpoſition of us or any of our ſucceſſors, ſhall be converted to the proper uſe of the ſaid monaſtery, for the better ſupport of their charges, reſerving nevertheleſs a moderate portion to the vicarage of the ſaid church of Thornbury, which we do fix to be the ſum of 25 marks ſterling, yearly to be received out of the profits of the ſaid church, by the vicar, to be preſented by the ſaid religious men, for the performing the duty of the ſaid church and chapels thereunto belonging, ſaving all rights which belong to our cathedral church at Worceſter.

In witneſs whereof we have hereunto fixt our ſeal, dated at London in the year of our Lord 1314, and in the ſecond year of our conſecration.

The ſame biſhop Walter eſtabliſhed an endowment for the vicar, which is thus tranſlated by ſir Robert Atkyns:

TO all ſons of holy mother the church, to whom theſe preſents ſhall come, Walter, by divine permiſſion, biſhop of Worceſter, ſendeth eternal health in our Lord. Know ye, that whereas for certain good cauſes we have lately appropriated the church of Thornbury in the deanery of Durſley, within our dioceſe, to the religious men the abbat and convent of Tewkeſbury, and to their ſucceſſors, and to the monaſtery of that place, reſerving to ourſelves the power of ordering and taxing unto the value of 25 marks, for the uſe of the vicar of the church, all which does in our ſaid appropriation more fully appear. Therefore, by a legal inquiſition of divers worthy rectors and vicars of the ſaid deanery, and others, laymen, in form of law being ſummoned, who being rightly informed of the true value of all the oblations, obventions, and other the leſſer tithes, rights, and appurtenances of the ſaid parochial church of Thornbury, and therein certified by them, that the oblations, obventions, and the other leſſer tithes due to the altar, to wit, of milk, wool, lambs, cows, calves, ſwine, poultry, pidgeon-houſes, eggs, bees, herbs, flax, fiſhings, and gardens, and likewiſe the tithes of the hay in the whole pariſh, whether a ſum of money be paid for it, or elſe gathered in kind: Beſides and except the tithes of hay of the demean lands of the manor of Thornbury, lying within the bounds, limits, and tithing places of the ſaid church, belonging to the lady Symonds, are eſtimated at 18 marks and 10ſ. and being willing to tax and make up the reſt of the intended revenue of the vicarage to the full, (as in juſtice ought to be) out of money ariſing by the wax, which thro' devotion and reverence to the holy virgin Mary, whoſe image is placed in the chancel of the ſaid church, or the ready money, or gold or ſilver, which may be there offered, and alſo with a ſufficient houſe in the town of Thornbury, ſtanding on the ground belonging to the church, lately held by one Relibron for his life, together with a garden adjoining to the ſaid houſe, and belonging to the rectory before the appropriation was made.

Wherefore we the biſhop, having ſummoned the above mentioned perſons, and all things being obſerved in form as ought to be, and conſidering that the aforeſaid taxation and aſſignation to be juſt and equal in all reſpects, and that the ſaid oblations, obventions, and leſſer tithes, together with the houſe and garden, and other contingent profits, will one with another ariſe to make five marks, and will be ſufficient to maintain the vicarage and vicar, with his and all the charges of the vicarage, do appoint, decree, and confirm, that the further ſupply to the vicarage ought to conſiſt in thoſe ſaid portions, and that the ſaid vicar at preſent, and all the vicars his ſucceſſors, ought to be contented with the ſaid offerings, obventions, ſmall tithes, and other portions, as is above enumerated, without any further profit to be demanded from the ſaid religious men.

We do moreover order, appoint, and decree, that the ſaid vicar in the church of Thornbury, now canonically inſtituted, and all the vicars his ſucceſſors in the ſame, ſhall be firmly obliged and bound to diſcharge all procurations to the archbiſhop, and ſhall furniſh lights in the cathedral ſynods, and ſhall find and keep in repair all books and veſtments, and other ornaments neceſſary to the ſaid church, as heretofore has been accuſtomed by the rectors of the ſaid church, and by right they ought to have done; and to ſuſtain all theſe afore-mentioned things, and all other uſual and ordinary burthens whatſoever and howſoever, at their own proper coſts and charges, excepting the reparation, amendment, and building of the chancel of the church of Thornbury aforeſaid; for which end all other extraordinary charges which are impoſed on the church of Thornbury, or ſhall any way hereafter be impoſed, the ſaid vicar and his ſucceſſors, ſhall be rated for their ſhare at the proportion of 15 marks, except in the payment of four marks, which by the conſent and aſſent of the ſaid abbat and convent, we have ordered and reſerved, and by them truly ſubmitted unto on their part (which ſubmiſſion has been made appear unto us) to be yearly paid unto us and our ſucceſſors, when the ſee of Worſter ſhall be full, and unto the chapter of the place when the ſee ſhall be vacant, which burthen we have laid upon the church of Thornbury for our proper uſe, by authority of an ordinary, with their conſent as aforeſaid, and do impoſe the ſame on the ſaid church, under the name of an annuity. In witneſs therefore of this our free and perpetual decree, we have cauſed it to be drawn in three parts, whereof we will one, ſigned with our ſeal, and with the ſeal of the vicar of Thornbury, ſhall remain with the ſaid abbat and convent; another part ſigned with our ſeal, and the ſeal of the abbat and convent, ſhall remain with the ſaid vicar and his ſucceſſors; and a third part ſigned with the ſeal of the abbat and convent, in token of their ſubmiſſion and conſent to all the premiſſes, ſhall remain to us and our ſucceſſors.

We the abbat and convent aforeſaid, in ſign and confirmation of our ſubmiſſion, and conſent to all the premiſſes, have hereunto affixed our ſeal.

Dated at our chapter in Tewkeſbury, the eleventh day of Auguſt, in the year of our Lord 1315.

dedicated dedicated to the virgin Mary, and erected in the year 1499; another called Barne's chantry, of which Thomas Smyth was the laſt incumbent, and received a penſion of 5*l.* in 1553; the others were Bruis chantry, and Slimbridge chantry, whereof the abbat of St. Auguſtin's in Briſtol was patron. The lands belonging to the two latter were granted to ſir Arthur Darcie 7 E. 6.

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

At the foot of the altar, there formerly ſtood a large raiſed tomb of black marble, inlaid with braſs. But when the chancel was afterwards repaired, the tomb was taken down, and the upper ſlab fixed in the floor, with the following inſcription on a plate of braſs:

Thomas Tyndale dyed the 28 of April, buried 31st May, 1571.

Ye ſe how death doth Spare no age no Kynd
How I am lapt in Claye and dead you fynde
My Wife and Childeren lye here with me
No Gould, no friend, no Strength could randſome bee
The End of Vayne delighte and Ill Intente,
The end of Care and Matter to repent,
The End of faere for frynd and Worldly Wo,
By Death we have; and of lyke Thouſande mo.
And death of Tymes in us hath made an End,
So that nothing can ower Eſtate amend.
Who would not be Content ſuch Change to make For Worldly thinges Eternal Life to Take.

A free-ſtone monument, againſt the north wall of the chancel, is thus odly inſcribed:

Here Lieth the Body of *S*r. Iohn Stafford Knight. A Gentleman Penſioner During the Space of 47 yeares to Qveene ELizabeth and King Iames Hee had as A Reward of his vaLour & fideLity conferred vpon him by her Matie, the Conſtableſhip of Briſtoll Caſtle wherein hee continued a long time. hee liued (as himſeLfe on his death bed confeſſed) in the fraiLe and sLippery courſe of a SouLdier and a Courtier from the time of his manhood neere vnto the time of his death: Notwith*ſtanding* ſenſible of his end and that accompt hee was to give at the laſt Day, HEe did fvlly and freely forgiue all men Sealing the ſame by calling for and Receiuing the bLeſſed Sacrament, as a pledge of his forgiving other men, and of the forgiveneſſe of his owne sinnes, for whatsoeuer the frailty of his life or bitter*nes* of the diſeaſe whereof hee died might be, his hope of a better Life through *the mer*cies and ſufferings of his redeemer made him a conquerovr over and beYond thoſe humane fraiLties, hee dying in the sovnd faith of a penitent sinner, a Loyall ſervant to his prince, a Lover of his Country, *where*in hee did beare the chiefeſt offices of tvſt and credit, and a founder of an ALmeshouſe in the Pariſh where hee Liued endowing the ſame with 10 pounds p' Annū to be payd for euer. Obiit 28° die Septemb: A° Dnī 1624.

In cuius memoriā, et veritatis huius teſtimonium Nepos eius sciens videnſque, hoc Monumentū poſuit, hac fretus ſpe, votoque inquiens, Non aLiter cineres *m*ando iacere Meos.

Within a ſcutcheon, upon the ſtone, are theſe inſignia, Gules, in feſs, on the dexter ſide, the Stafford's knot, on the ſiniſter ſide, A wolfe's head erazed Or.

Oppoſite to the above, againſt the ſouth wall,

Heere lyeth the Body of Richard, Son & Heire to S*r* Richard Aſhfield Bar*t*. of Neither-Hall in Suffolke, by Mary his Wife eldeſt Davghter, & one of the Coheires of S*r*. Richard Rogers K*t*. who deceaſed May y*e* 17*th* Ano Dni 1656, Ætat. ſvæ 5.

Vnhappy Loſſe! Nay happy Gaine bee't se'd
When by Earth's Loſſe Heauen's Kingdom's pvrchased
Chriſt's bloud the price, God's word y*e* evidence
Heauen ſettle's Crounes on Childrens Innocence.
This Branch ſoe ſoone cropt' off, earth caſt thereon
Add's tvrfe to twig, and giues possession.
Thy title's good, thy tenure's capite;
Death paſt the fine, Chriſt the recoverie.

Againſt the ſouth wall of the church,

In Memory of Iane the wife of John Baker Gent. and Daughter of Richard Newman Gent. whoe had Iſſue by the ſaid Iohn Baker 15 childrē 11 of which ſurvived her. She was buried 20° die Octob: 1646: As for her Life and Converſation ſhee imitated her Parents in vertue: was conſtant in her Love to her huſband: tender to her children, provident in her family, charitable to all, and zealous in God's ſervice, which crowneth the Reſt. The ſaid Iohn Baker hath as his laſt Farewell erected (at the Place where hee firſt brought and laſt left her) this Monument.

Hoc tumulo incluſa virtus pietaſq; perennant
Mors licet eripuit, Fama Superſtes erit.

Arms, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Sable, three mullets argent.

Near it is an inſcription on a monument for John Baker, of this pariſh, gent. with theſe arms, Barry of ten pieces, argent and azure, on ſix ſcutcheons ſable as many lions rampant of the firſt.

Upon a table of a large handſome marble monument, againſt the ſame wall, it is thus written:

In the middle Iſle under a marble Stone lies with his Anceſtors, the Body of John Atwells, Gent. who died Feb. y*e* 18*th* 1729-30, Having by his laſt Will dated May 16, 1729 (Which was proved in the Prerogative Court of Chancery) bequeathed to this and other Pariſhes, for charitable Uſes, the Sum of 1200*l.* He was the only Son and Heir of Richard Atwells lately of this Town Gent. by Jane his Wife, one of the Daughters of John Ridley Gent. formerly of Shrivenham in the county of Berks, who are all extinct.

The arms on this monument are, Argent, a pile ſable, over all a chevron counterchanged.

On a white marble monument, againſt the wall of the north aile, is this inſcription:

In Memory of William Raymond late of this Pariſh, Eſq; who died the 28th of July, 1729, aged 56.

Alſo in Memory of Heſter, Daughter of John Tayer of this Pariſh Gent. and Relict of William Raymond Eſq; who departed this Life the 4th of April 1764, Aged 76.

DOMINE
Notum fac Mihi Salutis viam;
Tuum enim Vultum ſemper commitatur Summa Felicitas
Ps. xvi. 12.

Arms, Sable, a chevron argent between three eagles diſplay'd Or, on a chief of the third three martlets gules.

Near it, on another marble monument,

In the Church Yard
Behind this Monument are depoſited the Remains of WILLIAM RAYMOND of SIBLAND, in this Pariſh Eſq;
Who died the 14th April 1756, aged 57.
He married MARY Daughter of JACOB VANDERESCH of HAGUE
In the Province of HOLLAND, Eſq;
By whom he had ELIZABETH, Wife to
Mr. RALPH GROVE
Of the Borough of Thornbury.
By Mary his next Wife,
Third Daughter and Coheir of Philip Hampton, of Westbury, in the Foreſt of Dean, and Anne his Wife, Daughter and Coheir of Thomas Symonds of Cleer-Well, in this County Eſq; he had Iſſue five Sons and ſix Daughters: of whom ſix lie buried with their Mother at Westbury, Two, Philip and Anne, with their Father. The Survivors, Mary, Wife to Richard Bigland, of Frocester in this County, Florence Raymond, and Thomas Raymond, from Duty and Affection, have erected this Monument to the Memory of the Deceaſed, A. D. 1770.

At bottom, on the dexter ſide, Raymond, impaling Azure, an eſtoile Or; on a chief of the ſecond two carpenters ſquares in ſaltire of the firſt. On the ſiniſter ſide, Raymond, and on an eſcutcheon of pretence, Argent, a chevron gules between three cinquefoils azure.

In the ſame aile, is a ſmall monument for the Tyſons of Hope-farm, in this pariſh, with their arms, Vert, three lions rampant regardant argent, ducally crowned Or.

Benefactions.

Mr. William Edwards of Alveſton built a free-ſchool in the town, which Mr. White afterwards endowed with 14*l.* a year.

Sir

Sir John Stafford built an almſhouſe for ſix poor people, and endowed it with 10*l.* a year, charged on his eſtate at Buckover.

Thomas Slimbridge built an almſhouſe for four poor people, and endowed it with lands worth 11*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.* a year. And by his will dated Sept. 27, 1605, gave all his houſes, gardens, and lands within the borough and lordſhip of Thornbury, to the uſe of the poor of the ſaid borough, at the diſpoſal of the mayor and eldeſt burgeſſes for ever.

John Hilp of Thornbury, gent. by deed dated the 1ſt of June, 2 Jac. 1. gave 52*s.* a year charged on his houſes and lands there, to be diſtributed weekly to the poor. Alſo a meſſuage, with a garden in the ſaid borough, called the lower almſhouſe, for four poor people for ever.

John White of Thornbury, by his will in 1590, gave 17*s.* 4*d.* charged on a tavern in that borough, to the uſe of the poor.

Katherine Rippe of Thornbury, by her will, proved in 1594, gave a houſe there for an almſhouſe, and charged her tan-houſe there with 3*s.* 4*d.* a year for the reparation of the ſame almſhouſe.

Cecily Harwood, of the city of Glouceſter, widow, by her will in 1668, gave the intereſt of 20*l.* for placing out poor children of this pariſh apprentices.

Chriſtian Morſe gave the intereſt of 20*l.* to the ſame uſe.

Mr. Thomas Haynes of Wick, gave 20*l.* to the poor, which was diſtributed accordingly.

John Atwells of Thornbury, gent. by his will, proved in 1730, gave 500*l.* for eſtabliſhing a free ſchool in Thornbury, for teaching to read, write, knit, and ſew. Alſo a further ſum of 200*l.* to be laid out on lands, the rents to be applied to apprentice out poor boys of Thornbury to trades.

William Stephens, of Littleton upon Severn, gave 20*l.* a year to ſuch poor of Thornbury as have not relief of the pariſh.

Here is alſo a free grammar ſchool, but I could not obtain the exact particulars of its eſtabliſhment.

Thornbury and Coat.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 45	16	0
	Poll-tax — — 1694, —	40	3	0
	Land-tax —— 1694, —	82	6	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	40	10	0

Oldbury upon Severn.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 250	8	0
	Poll-tax —— 1694, —	27	13	0
	Land-tax —— 1694, —	174	14	5
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	161	18	3

Morton.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 186	4	0
	Poll-tax — 1694, —	33	12	0
	Land-tax — 1694, —	207	16	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	154	19	0

Kington.

	Land-tax at 3*s.* 1770, —	167	2	9

According to ſir Robert Atkyns, when he compiled his account of this pariſh, there were 270 houſes, and about 1100 inhabitants, whereof 100 were freeholders; yearly births 33, burials 31. The inhabitants are now about 1971.

TIBERTON

IS a ſmall pariſh in the Foreſt diviſion, and in the hundred of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, about four miles diſtant ſouth-eaſtward from Newent, ſeven north-eaſtward from Mitchel-Dean, and ſix north-weſtward from Glouceſter.

The name is ſometimes written Tibberton, but the antient orthography is Tebriſton, as in Domeſday; and it ſeems to indicate that the place belonged to one Tebri, or in other words, that it was Tebri's Town, perhaps early in the Saxon times.

The pariſh was comprized in the hundred of Botloe, 'till, by act of parliament, in the fiftieth year of the reign of king Edward the Third, Lancaſhire was erected into a county palatine, and John of Gaunt, ſon of that king, was honoured with the title of duke of Lancaſter. Then all thoſe eſtates in Glouceſterſhire which came to him in right of Blanch his wife, daughter of the preceding duke of Lancaſter, of which Tiberton was one, were ſevered from the hundreds to which they antiently belonged, and erected into a new one, then firſt, and ever ſince, called the hundred of the dutchy of Lancaſter.

Tiberton enjoys an unlimitted right of common in the foreſt of Dean, and in Huntley common. It lies in the vale, and the ſoil is naturally rich and fertile; but, like the adjoining pariſhes of Tainton and Rudford, is not in the higheſt ſtate of cultivation. Here, and in moſt other parts of the foreſt diviſion, is plenty of iron ore, and ſome orcharding, from which they make an excellent ſort of cyder, much eſteemed for its rich and pleaſant flavour. They alſo make good cheeſe, and the corn fields produce fine wheat and other grain. But the place affords no other curious productions of art or nature.

A brook divides this pariſh from Tainton and Newent, and taking its courſe to Rudford, runs through two arches under the river Leden. This under paſſage was enlarged when thoſe arches were made, about ſix years ago, and by that means the meadows, which before were almoſt continually in a wet and rotten ſtate, have been drained and very much improved.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

'William the ſon of Baderon holds Tebriſton, 'in Botelau hundred. There are five hides. 'Ulfelin held it of king Edward, and could go 'where he pleaſed. There are three plow-tillages 'in demean, and ten villeins, and eight bordars, 'with eight plow-tillages. There are four ſervi, 'and a wood three miles long, and one broad. 'It was worth 6*l.* 10*s.* now 100*s.*' Domeſday, p. 73.

Henry

Henry earl of Lancaſter, deſcended from Edmond earl of Lancaſter, ſon of king Henry the Third, was lord of this manor 2 E. 3. at which time the lands were held under him by ſeveral tenants, viz. William Lunge held Tiberton by the ſervice of one knight's fee; Jeffry de Feerre held other lands here by the fifth part; as did Ralph Marmion by the eighth part; William Franklyn by the twentieth part; and John ſon of Stephen by the fortieth part of a knight's fee. The above Henry became duke of Lancaſter, and dying of the plague 35 E. 3. left two daughters, Maud, and Blanch. Maud was married to the duke of Bavaria, and had the manor of Tiberton aſſigned to her, but dying without iſſue, her eſtates came to Blanch, the younger ſiſter, married, in 1359, to John of Gaunt, (fourth ſon of king Edward the Third) who, in her right, ſucceeded to the eſtates of the former duke of Lancaſter; and he and Blanch his wife levied a fine of Tiberton, Rodley in Weſtbury, and Minſterworth, to the uſe of themſelves in taille, 39 E. 3. He died in 1399, and his ſon Henry became king of England the ſame year, by the reſignation of Richard the Second, whereupon this manor came to the crown.

But, leſt the houſe of York ſhould recover the crown, king Henry the Fourth procured an act of parliament to be paſſed, in the firſt year of his reign, whereby the dutchy of Lancaſter was ſevered from the crown, and entailed on his heirs. And king Henry the Fifth, in the year 1414, probably with the ſame view, procured another act of parliament, by which all thoſe great eſtates that deſcended to him from Mary his mother, daughter and coheireſs of Humphry de Bohun, earl of Hereford, were likewiſe annexed to the dutchy of Lancaſter.

Notwithſtanding theſe precautions, the houſe of York became poſſeſſed of Tiberton, together with the crown, in the perſon of king Edward the Fourth, who levied a fine of it to the uſe of Elizabeth his queen, in the 15th year of his reign. The manor was in the crown in the year 1608, and was granted to Edward Ramſey, and Robert Ramſey his brother, by king James the Firſt. Mr. Payne, and Mr. Twitty, both of Worceſter, were joint proprietors of it about the beginning of this century, but Mr. Edward Elton, of the city of Glouceſter, is the preſent lord of the manor. He is deſcended from an antient family, ſeated near Ledbury in Herefordſhire, and gives for his arms, Paly of ſix, Or and gules, on a bend ſable three mullets pierced of the firſt.

The abbey of Glouceſter held Hawker's Place in Tiberton, and granted a leaſe of it 2 H. 8. It is now the property of the dean and chapter of Glouceſter, and is in the poſſeſſion of Mr. Daniel Ellis, as leſſee under the college. Almoſt all the other lands are copyholds of inheritance.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the Foreſt deanery, worth 100*l.* a year. There has been a diſpute about the advowſon. Mr. Elton claims the whole, and the heirs of Mr. Somerſet Jones claim two preſentations out of three. The reverend Mr. Joſeph Parry is the preſent incumbent.

John de Langley held the advowſon of the church, of Henry earl of Lancaſter, 2 E. 3.

The church is a ſmall building, in good repair, dedicated to the Trinity, with a low tower at the weſt end, covered with tiles.

There is a parſonage houſe and garden, with a new barn, and about ſeven or eight acres of glebe land.

Firſt fruits	£.	7	16 0	Proc. & Syn. £.	0 10 0
Tenths —		15	7¼	Pentecoſtals -	0 1 6

Benefaction.

Four acres of land, worth about 40*s.* a year, are given for the repair of the church.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	97 12	0
Poll-tax —— 1694,	—	10 19	0
Land-tax — 1694,	—	92 12	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	65 9	6

At the beginning of this century, according to ſir Robert Atkyns, there were 33 houſes in the pariſh, and about 150 inhabitants, 8 of whom were reputed to be freeholders; yearly births 5, burials 5. There are now about 230 inhabitants.

TIDENHAM.

THIS pariſh formerly conſtituted the intire hundred of Tedeneham, but it now lies in the hundred of Weſtbury, in the Foreſt diviſion. It is ſituated eaſtward from the town and pariſh of Chepſtow, from which it is ſeparated by the river Wye. It is ſeven miles diſtant ſouth from Colford, and twenty-five ſouth-weſt from Glouceſter; and there is a turnpike-road leading through it to that city from the ſouth of Monmouthſhire. The lands are chiefly paſture, with ſome good arable; and there is plenty of coal here, and in moſt other parts of the foreſt. Some petrifications of ſhell fiſh are found in the cliffs and banks of the Wye and the Severn; but Tidenham produces no plants that are curious and uncommon.

The ſouth-weſt part of the pariſh is hemmed in by the Severn on one ſide, and the Wye on the other, and forming a narrow promontory, runs into the broad channel of the Severn where the waters of the two rivers join; and ſir Robert Atkyns was of opinion that Tidenham took its name from the high tides which aſſault both ſides of it. About two miles above the mouth of the Wye, there is a bridge over that river, commonly called Chepſtow Bridge, becauſe one end ſtands in the pariſh of Chepſtow, and leads to the town of that name. The other end is in Tidenham, and by a ſtatute, 28 Eliz. it was enacted, that one half of the bridge ſhould be repaired by Monmouthſhire, the other by Glouceſterſhire. It is built of timber, at a prodigious height above low water, for the tide here flows ſixty feet high at particular times, and it is thought that it does not riſe higher in any part of the world.

The famous intrenchment, called by the Britons Claudh Offa, i.e. Offa's Dyke, which was thrown up by the Mercian king of that name, about the year 760, to divide and protect his dominions from the Welch, began in this pariſh; and there are at this time large remains of it, extending almoſt from the Severn to the Wye, in length near half a mile, croſſing the turnpike-road that leads from Chepſtow to Beachley, at a place called Buttington's Tump. It was a prodigious work, and was carried from this place northward, to the mouth of the river Dee, in Flintſhire, croſſing Radnorſhire near Knighton, to which town the Welch, upon that account, gave the name of Tref-y-claudh, that is, the place of the ditch. And John of Saliſbury writes, that king Harold made a law, that if any Welchman ſhould be found with a weapon on this ſide the dyke, he ſhould loſe his right hand.

The dyke now ſeparates Beachley from Sudbury, two hamlets in this pariſh, the latter of which was ſo called in reference to the bulwarks, or camp, about two miles northward of it. Beſides theſe, there are traces of other old fortifications upon Beachley-green, which at this time alſo go by the name of the Bulwarks.

When or by whom theſe works were made is altogether uncertain, but moſt likely at different times; for as Beachley is a ſtrip of land running out between the before-mentioned great rivers, it was eaſily fortified, and the poſſeſſion of it was thought of importance in the many civil wars which this kingdom has ſo frequently and fatally experienced.

In the reign of king Charles the Firſt, as Corbet relates it, prince Rupert ſent five hundred horſe and foot into the foreſt, who began to fortify Beachley for a laſting guard, and which was then the only commodious ferry, or paſſage, from Wales to Briſtol, and the weſtern parts. 'The 'governor,' (ſays my author) meaning colonel Maſſie, 'advanced upon them four days after they 'began the fortifications, and had drawn the 'trench half way from the banks of one river to 'the other, when the other part was well guarded 'with an high quick-ſet hedge, which they lined 'with muſquetteers, and a ditch within, with a 'meadow beyond, wherein they had made a re-'intrenchment. At high water the place was 'inacceſſible, by reaſon of their ſhips which 'guarded each river with ordnance, lying level 'with the banks, and clearing the face of the 'approach from Wye to Severn. Wherefore the 'governor taking the advantage of low water, 'ten muſquetteers were ſelected out of the for-'lorn hope, to creep along the hedges. Theſe 'gave the firſt alarm, and cauſed the enemy to 'ſpend their firſt ſhot in vain. Upon the gover-'nor's ſignal, the forlorn hope ruſhed on, being 'followed by the reſerve, and fell upon the hack, 'when the whole and each part of the action was 'carried on without interruption. Of the king's 'troops ſome were killed, the reſt taken priſoners, 'beſides ſome few that recovered the boats, and 'many of them that took the water were drowned.

'The king's friends attempted a ſecond time 'to fortify this place, but before the works were 'compleat, colonel Maſſie attacked and defeated 'them, but had like to have fallen in the attempt, 'for the foremoſt of his party forcing two or 'three palliſadoes, found themſelves between the 'line of palliſadoes and a quick-ſet hedge lined 'with muſquetteers. The governor, in this 'critical ſituation, who was now the leader of 'the forlorn hope, with not a little difficulty 'forced his horſe over the hedge, fell in among 'the king's men, by whom he was furiouſly re-'charged, his head-piece knocked off with the 'but-end of a muſket, and was in the utmoſt 'danger, when ſome of his men came to his 'aſſiſtance, and bore down the enemy before 'them, ſlew thirty, and took priſoners a lieu-'tenant-colonel, a major, two captains, three lieu-'tenants, three enſigns, with other officers and 'ſoldiers to the amount of two hundred and 'twenty. They forced ſir John Winter down 'the cliff into the river, where a little boat lay to 'receive him. Many took the water and were 'drowned, others by recovering the boats ſaved 'themſelves.'

Theſe particulars are extracted from Corbet's Military Government of the City of Glouceſter, and have a connexion with the hiſtory of the village. The place where ſir John Winter eſcaped is called Winter's Leap, and there is a tradition that he leaped his horſe, at once, from the high rock on the ſide of the Wye, into the water. But that could not be the fact, for both horſe and rider muſt have been daſhed to pieces againſt the declivity of the rock in the attempt.

It is ſaid that antiently, near the confluence of the Severn and the Wye, there ſtood a chapel, dedicated, according to Leland, to St. Terendake, but others ſay to St. Tecla, who was martyred in the year 47. What they call the ruins of it may be ſeen among the rocks, at low water, but at high water they are overflowed, and at leaſt a hundred yards diſtant from the ſhore. Hence it may be inferred, with ſome degree of probability, that if it really was a chapel, either the tides did not flow ſo high as they now do, when it was firſt built; or elſe, that it muſt ever have been an uſeleſs building.

At Beachley in this pariſh is a ferry or paſſage over the Severn, between Briſtol and Wales. It is is called Beachley, or the Old Paſſage, and 'till lately was the loweſt upon the river. The oppoſite paſſage-houſe is at Auſt, in the pariſh of Henbury. The times for paſſing are already ſet down in the 47th page of this book, to which the reader is referred. I come now to treat

Of the Manors and other Eſtates.

When Domeſday was compiled, there were ſeveral great proprietors of eſtates in this pariſh, as appears by the following tranſlation of the paſſages in the record concerning it.

'The abbey of Bath had one manor, Tedene-'ham by name, in Tedeneham hundred. They 'had thirty hides there, of which ten were in 'demean. There were thirty-eight villeins, hav-'ing thirty-eight plow-tillages, and ten bordars, 'eleven fiſheries in the Severn in demean, and 'forty-two fiſheries of the villeins; one fiſhery 'in the Wye, and two fiſheries and a half of the 'villeins.

'Earl Roger added two fiſheries in the Wye. 'There is a wood two miles long, and half a mile 'broad, and twelve other bordars.

'Earl William gave one yard-land of this 'eſtate, with one villein, to O. the biſhop, his 'brother. And he gave two fiſheries in the 'Severn, and half a fiſhery in the Wye, with one 'villein, to Walter de Laci. And he gave two 'fiſheries in the Wye, with one villein, to Ralph 'de Limeſi. And he gave half a hide of land, 'and the church, with the tithes of the manor, 'to the abbey of Lyra.

'This manor paid no tax in the time of 'king Edward, except proviſions for the monks. 'Archbiſhop Stigand held it when earl William 'took to it. Now it pays 25 lib. twenty of it in 'Ora and white money. There is now a mill 'of 40 den.' Domeſday, p. 69.

'William de Ow holds one yard-land and a 'half in Tideham, and they were taxed. Stigand 'the archbiſhop held them. There is one villein, 'with one plow-tillage, and two fiſheries. It is 'worth and was worth 10 ſol.' Ib. p. 73.

'Roger de Laci holds half a hide in Tedeham. 'Archbiſhop Stigand held it. There is one 'villein, with one plow-tillage, and four fiſheries 'and a half. It is worth and was worth 20*s.*' Ib. p. 75.

Some time after the compilation of Domeſday, the Welch poſſeſſed themſelves of Tidenham and Woolaſton, from whom they were taken by Walter and Roger, younger brothers of Gilbert earl of Clare, which happened in the year 1160, in the reign of king Henry the Second. Gilbert de Clare, ſurnamed Strongbow, left Richard Strongbow his ſon and heir, who became earl of Pembroke and Strigule, now called Chepſtow. His only daughter Iſabel was married to William Mareſchal, who, in right of his wife, was earl of Pembroke, whereby this manor came into that family. They were deſcended from Gilbert Mareſchal, who bore the office of Mareſchal to king Henry the Firſt; which office deſcended hereditarily in that family to the famous William earl of Pembroke, who died 3 H. 3. and left five ſons and four daughters.

William earl of Pembroke, ſon of William, gave a conſiderable eſtate in the manor of Tudeham to the abbey of St. Mary of Tintern in Monmouthſhire, founded by Walter de Clare in 1131, with common of paſture, and of wood, and other benefits in his chaſe of Tudeham, 8 H. 3. All the five brothers were ſucceſſively earls of Pembroke, and all died without iſſue, whereby the ſiſters became coheireſſes. Maud, the eldeſt, was married to Hugh Bigot, earl of Norfolk, who, in her right, and for her ſhare, was ſeized of the manor of Tidenham.

This Hugh Bigot was deſcended from Roger Bigot, who came into England with king William the Conqueror, and died 7 H. 1. William Bigot, ſon of Roger, was ſteward of the houſhold to king Henry the Firſt, and was drowned coming from Normandy with the king's childred 20 H. 1. Hugh Bigot was brother and heir to William, and alſo ſteward to the king. He is eminent in hiſtory for making oath that king Henry the Firſt, on his death bed, gave the crown of England to king Stephen, in diſinheriſon of his own daughter Maud, the empreſs. He died in pilgrimage to the Holy Land 23 H. 2.

Roger Bigot ſucceeded Hugh his father in the earldom of Norfolk, and ſtewardſhip of the king's houſhold, and died 5 H. 3. Hugh earl of Norfolk, ſon of Roger, married Maud, coheireſs of William Mareſchal earl of Pembroke, as aboveſaid, by whom he had a ſon Roger, earl of Norfolk, who died ſeized of Tidenham, and of 10*s.* rent in the village of Beteſlegh, and of the hamlet of Lancaut, 25 E. 1. This earl Roger had levied a fine of his honour, and of his lands, to the king, taking back an eſtate taille to himſelf and Alice his wife, and dying without iſſue, the manor of Tidenham came to the crown.

King Edward the Second granted the title of earl of Norfolk, and all the eſtate of the former earl of Norfolk, 6 E. 2. to his brother Thomas, the fifth ſon of king Edward the Firſt, generally called Thomas of Brotherton, a place in Yorkſhire, where he was born. He died ſeized of the manor of Tidenham 12 E. 3. leaving two daughters coheireſſes, Margaret, and Alice.

Margaret was firſt married to John de Segrave, and afterwards to ſir Walter de Manny, who, in her right, was ſeized of the manor of Tidenham 46 E. 3. She was afterwards created dutcheſs of Norfolk for life, 21 R. 2. Elizabeth, ſole daughter and heireſs of Margaret, by her firſt huſband John de Segrave, was married to John de Mowbray, who was therefore created earl of Norfolk, and earl Mareſchal.

The family of the Mowbrays deſcended from Nigel de Albini, who was of noble extraction, and and together with his brother William de Albini, came into England with king William the Conqueror. Nigel, by his mother's ſide, was a Mowbray, and had done eminent ſervice in the wars for king William, and alſo for king William the Second, and king Henry the Firſt, and was therefore rewarded with all the eſtates of Robert Mowbray, earl of Northumberland, who had been guilty of treaſonable conſpiracies. He married Maud, the wife of that earl, whilſt her huſband was living, by a ſpecial diſpenſation from the pope; but having no children by her, was the cauſe of their divorce. He then married Gundred, daughter of Girald de Gournay.

Roger de Mowbray was ſon and heir of Nigel de Albini, and of Gundred; and by command of king Henry the Firſt, took the name of Mowbray. He married Alice de Gaunt, and was buried near Gundred his mother, in the abbey of Biland in Yorkſhire, which he had founded for Ciſtercian monks, in 1138. Nigel de Mowbray, ſon and heir of Roger, married Mabel, daughter of the earl of Clare, and died in pilgrimage to the Holy Land.

William de Mowbray, ſon of Nigel, married Agnes, daughter of the earl of Arundel, and fiercely eſpouſed the cauſe of the barons againſt king John. Nigel Mowbray was ſon of William, and married the daughter and heir of Roger de Camvil, but died without iſſue 13 H. 3. Roger de Mowbray, brother and heir of Nigel, married Maud, the daughter of William Beauchamp, of Bedford, and came of age 25 H. 3. He had a ſon Roger, who had livery of his lands 6 E. 1. and was ſummoned as a baron to parliament. He married Roſe, ſiſter to Gilbert earl of Clare, and died 26 E. 1. John de Mowbray, ſon of the laſt Roger, married Aliva, daughter, and afterwards coheir, of William de Brewes of Gowher. He was governor of York, and ſheriff of Yorkſhire, and being taken in rebellion againſt king Edward the Second, was hanged at York. John de Mowbray, ſon of John, was in favour of king Edward the Third. He married Joan, one of the daughters of Henry earl of Lancaſter, and died of the plague at York 35 E. 3. John de Mowbray, ſon and heir of the laſt John, married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of John lord Segrave, by Margaret, daughter and heir of Thomas of Brotherton, as before related, and was, in her right, created earl of Norfolk, and earl Mareſchal, and was lord of the manor of Tidenham. He was ſlain by the Turks, near Conſtantinople, 42 E. 3.

John de Mowbray, ſon of the laſt John, was four years old at his father's death. He was created earl of Nottingham 1 R. 2. and died 6 R. 2. whereupon his brother Thomas de Mowbray was created earl of Nottingham. He married, firſt, Elizabeth, daughter and heir of John le Strange, of Blackmore, and was created earl Mareſchal for life. His ſecond wife was Elizabeth, the daughter of Richard earl of Arundel, and had the grant to him and his heirs to be earls Mareſchal, and to bear a golden truncheon. He joined with the debauched favourites of king Richard the Second, and to gratify them promoted the death of his father-in-law the earl of Arundel, and guarded him to execution. He was a principal contriver of the death of Thomas of Woodſtock, duke of Glouceſter, uncle to the king, who was murdered at Calais, which obtained him ſuch favour from the king, that he was created duke of Norfolk; but that day twelve-month, on which the duke of Glouceſter was murdered, this duke of Norfolk was baniſhed the realm, and died of the plague at Venice, in his return from Jeruſalem, 1 H. 4. and that year the manor of Tidenham was ſeized by the crown. He left two ſons, Thomas, and John; and two daughters, Iſabel, married to James lord Berkeley, and Margaret, married to ſir Robert Howard.

Thomas Mowbray, eldeſt ſon of Thomas duke of Norfolk, had no other title than Earl Mareſchal. He married Conſtance, daughter of John Holland, earl of Huntingdon, which drew him into rebellion againſt king Henry the Fourth, and he was beheaded at York 6 H. 4. John, his brother, and next heir, married Catherine, daughter to Ralph Nevil earl of Weſtmoreland, and was reſtored to the dukedom of Norfolk. He died 11 H. 6. and Catherine his widow was endowed with many great eſtates, and with the manor of Tidenham. He was ſucceeded by his ſon John, duke of Norfolk, who married Elizabeth, daughter of John the firſt earl of Shrewſbury, and died 15 E. 4. leaving an only daughter, Anne, who was married to Richard duke of York, ſecond ſon of king Edward the Fourth, but died without iſſue, whereby a vaſt eſtate came to the families of Berkeley and Howard, whoſe anceſtors had married Iſabel and Margaret, daughters of Thomas Mowbray, the firſt duke of Norfolk; and a partition of that great eſtate was made between their heirs 14 H. 7.

The manor of Tidenham came ſoon afterwards to the earls of Worceſter. Henry earl of Worceſter died ſeized of it 3 E. 6. from whom it has regularly deſcended down to Henry duke of Beaufort, the preſent lord of the manor of Tidenham.

John ap Adam held one mill in Tudenham, and one hundred and ſixty acres of land lying within the liberties of Chepſtow, 6 E. 2. And by the eſcheator's inquiſition taken 9 E. 4. n. 21. it appears, that William Herbert earl of Pembroke, who was taken priſoner in the battle near Banbury, between the Yorkiſts and Lancaſtrians, and beheaded the next day, died ſeized of the caſtle, manor and lordſhip of Chepſtow, of the manor of Tudenham, and of other very great eſtates. But this muſt not be underſtood of the principal manor of Tidenham. Thomas Atkyns was ſeized of fifty acres of arable land, twenty of meadow, meadow, thirty of paſture, and twenty of wood in Tudenham, by the grant of Henry earl of Worceſter, 4 H. 8.

HAMLETS, and places of diſtinct names.

1. Church-End, in which are twenty families. Mr. Charles Williams has a good houſe near the church, late the property of Mr. William Jones.

2. Biſhton, formerly written Biſten, containing nineteen families.

3. Sudbury, in which are nineteen families. William Webley, of Chancery Lane, London, eſq; has a handſome houſe called the Mead, and a good eſtate in this hamlet.

4. Beachley, antiently Betteſley, containing eleven families. There is a houſe of good accommodation, and a paſſage over the Severn, at this place, very much frequented in the route between Wales and the city of Briſtol. The river is upwards of two miles over, and the oppoſite paſſage-houſe is at Auſt, in the pariſh of Henbury. It is called the Old Paſſage, in reference to another lately ſet up a few miles below, at St. Pierre in Monmouthſhire. It is high water at new and full moon, a little after ſeven o'clock, in general, but the wind may occaſion a ſmall variation. Proper directions for paſſing are given at p. 47. Henry Lewis, eſq; was ſeized of the manor of Betteſley, from whom it deſcended to George Lewis, his ſon, who died ſeized thereof 10 Car. 1. and left William his ſon and heir ſeven years old. Morgan Lewis, eſq; is the preſent lord of this manor; but the ferry belongs to four proprietaries, viz. the ſame Morgan Lewis, eſq; William-Bromley Cheſter, eſq; Mr. Samuel Hill, and Mr. Charles Williams. There was formerly a chapel dedicated to St. Ewin, near the paſſage-houſe, now totally demoliſhed.

5. Wibden, or Widden, formerly belonging to John Madocke, eſq; who had a good eſtate and a handſome ſeat here, now fallen into ruins, and the eſtate is gone out of the name. The ſame John Madocke was deſcended from Owen Gwineth, a prince of South Wales. Some of his anceſtors reſided for ſeveral generations at Alvington, and removed thence to Wibden. John Madocke died ſeized of Wibden in 1587, and the eſtate continued in the ſame name and family 'till within our memory; but it now belongs to William Sheldon, of Weſton in Warwickſhire, eſq. Morgan Lewis, eſq; has the manor of Walden in this hamlet. There are twenty-ſix families in Wibden.

6. Stroat, or Strote, where the James's have for many ages enjoy'd a good eſtate, which is now the property of Mr. Selwyn James. There are fourteen families here.

7. Lancaut, containing three families. There is a chapel in this hamlet dedicated to St. James, where divine ſervice is performed once a month. It was formerly a diſtinct rectory, to which Henry earl of Worceſter preſented in 1548; but it has lately been annexed to Wollaſton.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the Foreſt deanery, worth about 100*l.* a year. James Davis, eſq; is patron, and the reverend Mr. William Seys the preſent incumbent.

The impropriation formerly belonged to the priory of Sheen in Surrey, who gave thirteen buſhels of wheat, and 13*d.* in money yearly to the poor, on the Thurſday before Eaſter; and it was granted to Thomas James, 5 Jac. reſerving that yearly payment, which has been continued to the poor ever ſince. Mr. William Webley, and Mr. Charles Williams are the preſent impropriators.

The church is dedicated to St. Mary. It is a double building, ſupported by pillars in the middle, and has a low tower, with ſix bells, at the weſt end. It ſtands on high ground, and is ſeen from many parts at a conſiderable diſtance on the other ſide of the Severn.

Firſt fruits	£.	9	0	0	Proc. & Syn. £.	0	9	2
Tenths —		0	18	0	Pentecoſtals	0	1	6

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a raiſed tomb in the church-yard, incloſed with iron palliſadoes, with ſhort inſcriptions for the following perſons, who died in the years ſet after their names, viz. John Madocke of Wibden, gent. in 1587; Edmund his ſon, 1626; Anſelm ſon of Edmund, 1615; John ſon of Anſelm, 1643; Edmund ſon of John, 1693; John ſon of Edmund, 1732-3. At one end of the tomb are the family arms, viz. Argent, a chevron between three foxes heads erazed ſable.

On another raiſed tomb are inſcriptions for the following perſons, with the dates of their deceaſe, viz. William Webley, 1712; Walter Webley, his ſon, 1763, &c. &c. And their family arms, viz. Or, a bend between three mullets pierced ſable.

Benefactions.

Thirteen buſhels of wheat, and 13*d.* in money are given annually out of the impropriation to the poor.

Mrs. Bridget Madocke of Wibden, by her will, proved in chancery in 1736, gave 5*l.* a year in land, 50*s.* part thereof, for teaching poor children to read; 40*s.* to the miniſter for catechiſm in the church, from the firſt ſunday in April to the firſt ſunday in June; and 10*s.* a year for keeping the tomb of her anceſtors in the church-yard in repair.

William Stevens gave 5*s.* a year to the poor; and John Stevens of Briſtol gave 10*s.* a year to the ſame uſe.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	229	0	0
	Poll-tax — — 1694, —		55	6	0
	Land-tax —— 1694, -		250	8	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		187	16	0

There were 140 houſes in this pariſh at the beginning of this century, and about 600 inhabitants, whereof 32 were freeholders; yearly births 16, burials 15. Atkyns. In ten years, from 1708, to 1717, both inclusive, there were entered in the parish register 165 baptisms, and 138 burials; and in the same period of time, from 1767 to 1776, the baptisms were 163, and the burials 150. The present number of families is 112, and of inhabitants about 500.

TITHERINGTON.

THIS parish lies in two hundreds. The hamlet of Itchington is in the hundred of Henbury. The part called Titherington is in that of Thornbury, distant three miles south-eastward from the town of that name, three and a half westward from Wickwar, and twenty-four southward from Gloucester. It is bounded on the east by Cromhal, on the west by Alveston, on the north by Thornbury, and on the south and south-east by Iron Acton and Wickwar.

The village is seated on the south side and at the foot of a high rock, called Tower Hill, whose top is pretty level, and adjoins to Milbury Heath, which lies part in Thornbury, and part in this parish. To the south of the village the lands form a flat vale of very rich pasture ground.

About a quarter of a mile westward from the church, there is a strong intrenchment on an eminence called Castle Hill. It is an oblong square, inclosing about four or five acres of ground, and overlooks the vale to the east and south-east. It is generally supposed, from its construction and other circumstances, to be the work of the Romans, who had certainly a lodgment here, as may be concluded from a tessellated pavement dug up at Stidcot in this parish, towards the close of the last century. This was one of those forts supposed to have been thrown up by that people to protect their road between the Trajectus and Aqua Solis. There is a prevailing notion in the neighbourhood, that a castle formerly stood upon this ground, but that is a mistake arising from the name of the place, which was called Castle Hill from the camp there, in like manner as several other intrenchments in this county have obtained the name of castles.

About the year 1772, some persons employed to dig materials in this parish for repairing the roads, found a large stone like a step, not far below the surface of the ground, and then another such stone, and searching further, discovered two perfect skeletons, inclosed in stone coffins, lying in a direction to the north and south; whence some persons have concluded, but I think upon very slender foundation, that the corps were placed there before the general establishment of Christianity in this country. One of the skeletons was six feet and a half long, as a gentleman who measured it assured me, but they both fell to pieces on being slightly touched; and no coin, armour, nor other thing that I can hear of, was found in the sepulchre to give any light as to the time of interment, or the people to whom these reliques belonged.

A small brook, called the Laden, runs from hence, and empties itself into the Lower Froom, which falls into the Bristol Avon.

Of the Manor and other Estates.

'Osbern bishop of Execeſtre holds Tidrentune 'in Bacheſtanes hundred. Aluui held it in the 'time of king Edward. There are five hides, 'and two plow-tillages in demean, and one villein, 'and five bordars, and two ſervi, and twenty 'acres of meadow. A wood half a mile in length 'and breadth. It was worth 100*s.* now 40*s.*' Domeſday, p. 70.

This manor was held of the honour of Gloucester, and is now within the jurisdiction of the honour court.

Walter de Stukeley, sheriff of Gloucestershire, being commanded by the king's writ, to return into the exchequer the names of all the vills in his county, with their respective proprietors, certified that William Corbet was lord of Tederinton 9 E. 1. and Roger Corbet was seized of it in the 15th and 18th years of the same reign. William Corbet, son of Roger, purchased a charter of free warren in Titherington 33 E. 1. By an inquisition taken 8 E. 2. after the death of Gilbert de Clare, earl of Gloucester, it was found that Roger de Corbet held Tetherington of the said Gilbert, by the service of one knight's fee, value 34*l.* William Corbet of Chadsey held the same 17 E. 2.

Thomas de Bradeston, a very eminent person, was summoned to parliament among the barons 16 E. 3. and died seized of Titherington, Ichenton, Stinchcombe, Horton, Winterbourne, and Bradestone in Berkeley, 34 E. 3. Agnes the widow of Thomas lord Bradeston held the four first of these manors, together with Arlingham, in dower, and died 43 E. 3. Thomas lord Bradeston, son of Robert, succeeded his grandfather Thomas in all the before-mentioned estates, of which he died seized 48 E. 3. leaving Elizabeth his only daughter and heiress, afterwards married to Walter de la Pool, who had livery of her lands 13 R. 2. the same year in which she came of age.

Robert, second lord Willoughby of Broke, was seized of this manor at the time of his death, 1521, 13 H. 8. He was son of Robert lord Willoughby of Broke, and grandson of John, and great grandson of Thomas Willoughby, the third son of Robert lord Willoughby (and of Alice his wife, the daughter of sir William Skipwith, of Ormesby in Lincolnshire, knight, who died chief baron of the exchequer, 1366, 40 E. 3.) lineally descended from sir John de Willoughby, a Norman knight, who had the lordship of Willoughby in Lincolnshire, by the gift of king William the First, with whom he came into England.

England. The before-mentioned Robert, ſecond lord Willoughby of Broke, married, to his firſt wife, Elizabeth, eldeſt of the three daughters and coheireſſes of Richard lord Beauchamp, by whom he had an only ſon Edward, who died before his father, but left iſſue, by Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Richard Nevil lord Latimer, three daughters, coheireſſes, Elizabeth, Anne, and Blanch.

Elizabeth, eldeſt daughter of Edward Willoughby, was granted in ward to ſir Edward Greville, of Milcot in Warwickſhire, and after the death of her two ſiſters, without iſſue, became one of the richeſt heireſſes in England. Her guardian deſigned to have matched her with John his eldeſt ſon, but ſhe choſe, and took for her huſband, ſir Fulke Grevil, the ſecond ſon, who died ſeized of this manor 1 Eliz. leaving by his ſaid wife three ſons, and four daughters.

Sir Fulke Grevil, the eldeſt ſon, was knighted 7 Eliz. and having married Anne, daughter of Ralph Nevil, earl of Weſtmoreland, died in 1606, 4 Jac. 1. leaving an only ſon Fulke, and a daughter Margaret, married to ſir Richard Verney.

Fulke Grevil, ſon of ſir Fulke, was alſo knighted, and made a conſpicuous figure both as ſtateſman and ſoldier, in the reigns of queen Elizabeth, king James, and king Charles the Firſt. He obtained a grant of the ruined caſtle of Warwick, 2 Jac. 1. and converted it into a magnificent ſeat, at the expence of 20,000*l.* In the 18th year of the ſame reign, he was advanced to the dignity of baron Brooke, by letters patent, Jan. 9, 1620-21, with remainder (in default of male heirs of his own body) to Robert ſon of Fulke, and grandſon of Robert the ſecond ſon of Fulke Grevil and Elizabeth Willoughby before-mentioned. Neglecting to reward one Hayward, or Haywood, an old ſervant, he was ſtabed by him at Brookehouſe in London, and dying unmarried Sep. 30, 1628, in the 75th year of his age, was buried at Warwick, under a monument he had erected for himſelf, with this remarkable inſcription:

Fulke Greville,
Servant to Queen Elizabeth,
Councellor to King James,
and Friend to Sir Philip Sidney.
Trophæum Peccati.

Upon the death of Fulke lord Brooke without iſſue, the title devolved on his kinſman Robert, but the manor of Titherington deſcended to ſir Richard Verney, knight, who had married Margaret Grevile, as before recited, and by her had iſſue four ſons, Grevile, John, Richard, and George; and four daughters.

Sir Grevile Verney, knight, ſucceeded his father in this eſtate, and died May 12, 1642, having married Catherine, daughter of ſir Robert Southwell, of Woodriſing in Norfolk, by whom he had four ſons, and one daughter; Grevile, John, Richard, George, and Elizabeth.

Sir Richard Verney, of Belton in Rutlandſhire, third ſon, on the death of William, great grandſon of Grevile his elder brother, without iſſue, in the year 1683, ſucceeded to this eſtate; and laying claim to the antient barony of Willoughby, it was allowed him in parliament, and he had ſummons accordingly, as baron Willoughby of Brooke by deſcent, Mar. 25, 1695, and died July 18, 1711, in the 91ſt year of his age. By Mary his firſt wife, daughter of ſir John Prettiman, of Lodington in Leiceſterſhire, bart. he had three ſons, John, George, and Thomas.

George lord Willoughby, D.D. the ſecond ſon, ſucceeded his father in honour, and was proprietor of Titherington when ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his account of it. He died Dec. 26, 1728.

The manor of Titherington paſſed afterwards to James Hardwicke, eſq. Joſeph Hardwicke, eſq; was afterwards proprietor of it, and dying in the year 1771, was ſucceeded by his ſon John Hardwicke, eſq; who is the preſent lord of the manor of Titherington. His arms are, Argent, a ſaltire ingrailed azure; on a chief of the ſecond three roſes of the firſt.

Sir Walter de la Pool and Elizabeth his wife, daughter of Thomas lord Bradeſton, were ſeized of eighteen acres of meadow in Titherington 12 H. 6.

HAMLETS. 1. Itchington, which lies in the hundred of Henbury. 2. Stidcot, where the remains of a Roman teſſellated pavement were diſcovered, about the cloſe of the laſt century.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the deanery of Hawkeſbury, worth 95*l.* a year. John Hardwick, eſq; is patron, and the reverend Mr. Shellard is the preſent incumbent, and holds the impropriation for life; after which it devolves to the lord of the manor. It was formerly appropriated to the priory of Lanthony.

The parſonage houſe was built in the year 1662, by William Eldridge, vicar, who died Nov. 20, 1677, and lies buried in the chancel.

The church conſiſts of the nave, with an aile on each ſide, and a tower at the weſt end, in which are three bells. It is ſeventy-one feet long, and fifty broad, including the chancel and ſide ailes, and is kept in good repair.

From the top of the ſcar, or hill, above the church, there is an extenſive proſpect over the Severn; and I am told that ſeventeen or eighteen pariſh churches may be ſeen from it in a fair day.

Firſt fruits	£.	10	0	0	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths	—	1	0	0	Pentecoſt.	0	1	0
Procurations		0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Againſt the north wall of the chancel, is this inſcription,

S. M.
Reuerendiſſimi viri Dni Richardi Bridges, filij Roberti Bridges de Wood-cheſter gen: natu 3^tii^ Art. Mag. & Eccles: paroch: de Cromhall (dū inter viuos fuerat) Rect: qui duxit in Vxorē Eleanoram, Eleanoram, filiam Guil: Lawrence de Shurdington gen. ex quâ 5 ſuſcepit Liberos; quorū 2 reliquit ſuperſtites Richardū & Elizabetham, & febre tandem correptus, quicquid habuit mortale depoſuit 4^to^ iduū maij A° Dni 1657 Anoq; Ætat. 45.

Hoc Eleanora relicta L. M. Q. P.

Siſte o viator Quisquis hùc venis gradū;
Fletuſq; ſolve debitos loco tuos.
Pauper ades? olim pede quē calcas cinis,
Clarum Patroni nobiLis corpus erat:
Seu Dives? infra conditur quem vel tibi
Fortuna fecit ampla Mens atq; parem.
Divina pandis Myſtes Oracla? fratris
Curare Mortem Literas fata negant.
Iactas Amici nomen? en fidum caput,
Integritatis veteris exemplar novum!
Commune quam ſit vir bonus Loci Bonū,
Et quam caducum docuit, ac moræ brevis.
Abi, et fac SimiLe.

Stay Paſſenger, whoer Thou art,
And dropp a teare ere Thou depart:
Grieſe clayms that tribute as a due
From aLL Who this Inſcription view.
If Poore, here Lye's Thy Patron, he Who whiL'ſt he Liv'd breath'd charity:
If Rich, Thy FeLLow, who by none
In Courteſyes Would be out-gone.
Art of the Learn'd fraternity?
The book Saves no man; cLerks muſt dye.
A friend? Lament en-tomb'd to ſee
True friend-ſhipp's None-ſuch, this was He.
His Life made Vertue's Value knowne,
His Death hath beſt men's frailty ſhowne.
Goe hence, & Imitate.

On the monument are the arms of Bridges, as already blazoned in ſeveral places of this work.

On a marble monument againſt a pillar, is this inſcription,

Near this Place lies Interred ALICE HOBBS (Spinſter) one of the Daughters of Edward and Sarah Hobbs of this Pariſh Clothier; who died Aug^st^. 28^th^. 1750, Aged 28, To whoſe Memory this Monument was erected.

In Memory of MARTHA HOBBS (Spinſter) Siſter to the above; who departed this Life Octo^r^. 24^th^ 1765, Aged 42.

A real example of Patience Meekneſs and Fortitude;
Her Submiſſion to the decrees of Providence;
Her effectionate Behaviour to all her Relations; were ever uniform and exemplary; A tender & ſincere Friend
A ſhining pattern of Chriſtian Piety.

Arms, Argent, a bend wavy between two hawks, or hobbys, proper.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	103	18	0
	Poll-tax — 1694,	—	33	5	0
	Land-tax — 1694,	—	115	17	0
	The ſame, at 3s. 1770,	—	86	18	4½

Sir Robert Atkyns ſet down the number of houſes in this pariſh at 85, and eſtimated the people at 320, of whom 15 were freeholders; yearly births 6, burials 5. It appears by the pariſh regiſter, that in ten years, from 1760, the baptiſms were 96, burials 81; and the people now amount to about 310, of whom 132 were upwards of fourteen years of age at the time this account was taken.

TODENHAM.

THIS pariſh lies in the upper diviſion of Weſtminſter hundred, about eight miles diſtant northward from Stow on the Wold, ſix eaſtward from Campden, and about thirty-four north-eaſt from Glouceſter.

Sir Robert Atkyns aſſerts, that the name is derived from Toedoen, a noble family which came in with king William the Conqueror; but I apprehend he was miſtaken, for before, as well at the time of the conqueſt, and afterwards, the manor belonged to the abbey of Weſtminſter, and not to any of that family. In Domeſday it is written Teodeham, and it ſeems probable that the place took its name from Thodo, or Dodo, one of the dukes of Mercia, who lived about the beginning of the eighth century. He had a palace at Derhuſt in this county, which he converted into a monaſtery, and was lord of that large manor, of which this place was a member; and ſo it might from him be called Thodham, or Teodeham, with great propriety.

There is nothing very curious or remarkable in this pariſh. It lies at the north-eaſt extremity of the county, where Worceſterſhire, Warwickſhire, and Glouceſterſhire are very much intermixt. It is bounded on the eaſt, north, and ſouth by Warwickſhire, from which it is ſeparated by two brooks that empty themſelves into the Stour; on the weſt by a detached part of Worceſterſhire; and on the ſouth-weſt by Lemington in Glouceſterſhire.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

This manor belonged to the abbey of Weſtminſter at the time of the general ſurvey, and is ſet down, in Domeſday-book, as one of thoſe berewics, or hamlets, dependant on the extenſive manor of Derhurſt. See the whole account in the original language of the record, p. 72.

Robert Fitz-Hamon took Todenham from the abbey of Weſtminſter, in the reign of king William the Second; but Lawrence, the twenty-fifth abbat, recovered it by a ſuit at law, in the reign of king Henry the Second.

Ralph de Papilion, the twenty-eighth abbat of Weſtminſter, was deprived for dilapidations, by Nicholas biſhop of Tuſcany, by the ceremony of breaking his ſeals; and the abbat of Waltham (to whom the making proviſion for his maintenance had been referred) aſſigned him the manor of Todenham for life, in the poſſeſſion of which he was confirmed by William de Hume, the ſucceeding abbat of Weſtminſter.

After the diſſolution of the abbey, and erection of the ſee of Weſtminſter, this manor was granted to that ſhort-lived biſhoprick, 34 H. 8. from which it was afterwards taken, and granted to ſir William Petre and Anne his wife, in exchange for lands in Warwickſhire, in the 36th year of the ſame reign. From this time the manors of Todenham and Sutton under Brayles have been enjoyed by the ſame owners, and lord Petre is the preſent proprietor of both. His lordſhip's pedigree and arms are given p. 721.

A rent in Todenham, formerly belonging to the biſhop of Weſtminſter, and afterwards to the biſhop of London, was granted to ſir William Petre 7 E. 6.

HAMLET. Upper Lemington is a hamlet in this pariſh, and is ſet down in Domeſday among thoſe thoſe members of the great manor of Derhurſt that were held by radcheniſters in the reign of king Edward the Confeſſor, and belonged to the abbey of Weſtminſter at the time of the general ſurvey. See p. 72.

Richard Grevill levied a fine of the manor of Lemington Over to Thomas Grevill, and others, 8 H. 7. William Palmer, and Anne his wife, levied a fine of the manor of Lemington Over, and of lands in Todenham, to John Newdegate, 2 Mariæ. It belonged to ſir William Juxton at the beginning of this century, and is now the property of lady Fane.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Campden, worth 150*l.* a year. The biſhop of London is patron, and the reverend Mr. George Upton is the preſent incumbent.

One yard-land belongs to the glebe.

The advowſon formerly belonged to the abbey of Weſtminſter, and was granted to Thomas biſhop of Weſtminſter, by king Henry the Eighth; but the ſee of Weſtminſter being ſoon ſuppreſſed, the advowſon was granted to Nicholas biſhop of London, 4 E. 6. and confirmed 1 Mariæ.

Tithes in Todenham, which had belonged to the abbey of Tewkeſbury, were granted to Daniel Perte and Alexander Perte, in truſt, 7 E. 6.

Sir Robert Atkyns ſays, 'the abbat of Weſtminſter reſerved the tithes of his own farm, 'which now belong to lord Petre, and are in leaſe 'to Mr. Kite.' But I am informed by the rector, that no tithes appear to have been reſerved. The leaſe granted to Mr. Keyte was of lands worth 200*l.* a year, which, by the death of Mrs. Agnes Keyte, are now fallen into lord Petre's hands, and that eſtate pays tithes.

Dr. Parſons, in his MS. Collections, which he made about the cloſe of the laſt century, obſerves, that the pariſh clerk's name was John Green, and that the names of all the pariſh clerks for near two hundred years paſt had been the ſame, which is remarkable.

Robert Wickens, rector of this church, and maſter of the free-ſchool at Campden, publiſhed a Concordance to the Engliſh Bible, and wrote ſeveral grammatical treatiſes. He died in 1682.

The church has an aile on the north ſide, called Upper Lemington chapel, another on the ſouth ſide, and a handſome ſpire at the weſt end, in which are ſix bells. It is dedicated to Thomas Becket, archbiſhop of Canterbury.

Firſt fruits	£. 18	19	9½	Synodals £. 0	2 0
Tenths —	1	17	11	Pentecoſtals 0	1 1½
Procurations	0	6	8

Benefactions.

A tenement is given to the poor; and archbiſhop Juxton gave 50*l.* to the ſame uſe. Mrs. Mary Rawlinſon gave 20*l.* to teach poor children to read.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 175	2	0
Poll-tax —— 1694, —	30	8	0
Land-tax —— 1694, —	125	0	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	88	10	0

About the beginning of this century, according to ſir Robert Atkyns, there were 38 houſes in the pariſh, and about 160 inhabitants, 7 of whom were reputed to be freeholders; yearly births 5, burials 5. But the people have increaſed very much ſince ſir Robert's time, and are now eſtimated at upwards of 450.

TODINGTON.

THIS pariſh lies in the lower diviſion of Kiftſgate hundred, nine miles eaſtward from Tewkeſbury, eleven north-weſtward from Stow on the Wold, and ſixteen north-eaſt from Glouceſter.

The river Iſbourne runs through it from Winchcombe, in its courſe to the upper Avon, which it joins a little below the town of Eveſham in Worceſterſhire.

This village lies in the vale, and is diſtinguiſhed for the richneſs of its ſoil, but more particularly for its being the reſidence of the lord viſcount Tracy. His lordſhip's houſe is large and handſome, and was built about the cloſe of the laſt century, ſince which it has undergone but little alteration. There is a large oak chimney-piece in the great hall, brought from Hayles Abbey, where it was ſet up by the Hobbys, as appears by a large ſcutcheon in the centre of it, divided into ſix quarterings, the firſt being the Hobbys arms, viz. A feſs between three hobbies or hawks, but the colours are not expreſſed in the carving. The hall windows are ornamented with painted glaſs, brought from the ſame place, and among other things, have in them the arms of France and England quarterly, and thoſe of Richard duke of Cornwall in a large ſcutcheon, viz. Or, an eagle diſplay'd with two heads ſable, and round, Ricard. Plantagenet Semper auguſtus fundator Noſter.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

Todington exhibits a very extraordinary inſtance of an eſtate deſcending for upwards of ſeven hundred years in the male line of the ſame family, in uninterrupted ſucceſſion. The preſent noble proprietor is deſcended from the blood of the antient Saxon kings of England.

Ethelred the Second, ſon of Edgar, was crowned at Kingſton upon Thames, April 14, 979. During his reign, the Danes frequently invaded the kingdom, but were ſometimes prevented from committing depredations, by the payment of a large ſum of money; which however, being only a preſent relief, the king planned a general maſſacre of them, which was accordingly executed, Nov. 13, 1002. He died at London in 1016, after an unhappy reign of thirty-ſeven years.

Goda, the youngeſt of king Ethelred's daughters, was the wife of Walter de Medantine, or de Maigne, a noble Norman, and by him was mother of Radulf earl of Hereford, lord of the manors of Sudley and Todington, in the reign of king Edward the Confeſſor. He was ſucceeded in both eſtates by his ſon

Herald, who was poſſeſſed of them in the reign of king William the Firſt, as appears by the record, of which the following is a tranſlation:

'The ſame Herald holds Todintun. His father [earl Radulph] held it. There are ten hides taxed. In demean are three plow-tillages, and ſeventeen villeins, and ſeven bordars, and two free men, having among them all eight plow-tillages. There are ten [plow-tillages] among the ſervi and ancillæ, and two mills of 20*s*. A ſalt pit pays fifty meaſures [mittas] of ſalt. Theſe two manors [Sudlege and Todinton] are worth and were worth 40*l*.' Domeſday, p. 77.

John de Sudley, ſon and heir of Herald, ſucceeded his father, and married Grace, the daughter of Henry de Traci, lord of the honour of Barnſtaple in Devonſhire, which he had by the gift of king Stephen, as a reward for his valour and faithful ſervices in the Weſt. This family of the Tracies took their name from the town of Traci in Normandy, and accompanied king William in his invaſion of England, in 1066. By this lady, John had two ſons, Radulph, or Ralph, who ſucceeded to the barony of Sudley, and William, who aſſumed his mother's family name, and lived in the time of king Henry the Second. He held lands (probably the Todington eſtate) of his brother Ralph de Sudley, by the ſervice of one knight's fee, in the laſt-mentioned reign, and is ſuppoſed to be one of thoſe four knights who killed Thomas Becket,[t] archbiſhop of Canterbury, Dec. 29, 1171.

Oliver de Tracy, ſon of William, occurs among the knights in Glouceſterſhire who paid ſcutage 2 Joh. and was father of William de Tracy, who preſented to the church of Todington 53 H. 3. In 1289, 17 E. 1. he is recorded among the knights of the county of Glouceſter, and, with Ralph de Sudley, his kinſman, commanded under that king in his victorious expedition into Scotland. He left a minor ſon, Sir William Tracy of Todington, who in a return of the gentry in Glouceſterſhire, made 25 E. 1. 1298, being then in ward to Lawrence Treſham, is certified among thoſe who had 40*l*. a year in lands, and were qualified to receive the honour of knighthood. He was ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire 12 & 17 E. 2. and left iſſue a ſon Henry, and a daughter Margery, wedded to John, ſon of John Archer, of Umberſlade in Warwickſhire, and anceſtor to the preſent lord Archer.

Henry Tracy, ſon of ſir William, had likewiſe a ſon

Henry, whoſe ſon and heir,

Thomas Tracy, was high ſheriff of this county in 1359, and ſo continued for four years ſucceſſively.

John Tracy, ſon of Thomas, was knighted by king Edward the Third, and, together with Thomas Moygne, John Clifford, and John Slogher, commiſſioned to view and take order for the repair of the banks and drains for the preſervation of the low lands upon the Severn between Briſtol and Glouceſter, 36 & 38 E. 3. He gave the advowſon of the church, and an acre of land in Todington, to the abbey of Hayles, 37 E. 3. and was high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire in 1366, and ſerved as knight of the ſhire in the parliaments convened in the 32d, 37th, 40th, and 43d years of that reign.

Henry Tracy, ſon of John, was father of John Tracy, high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire in 1379, 2 R. 2. whoſe ſon

William Tracy likewiſe ſerved that office in the 18th year of the ſame reign, 1395.

William Tracy, ſon of William, was high ſheriff in 1416, and married Alice, one of the daughters and coheireſſes of Guido de la Spine, lord of Coughton, (whoſe great grandfather, William de la Spine, had to wife Joan, daughter and heireſs of ſir Simon de Cocton) and by her had iſſue William, his heir; John, living 27 H. 6. and Alice, wife of Hugh Culme, or Cullum, anceſtor to the preſent baronet, ſir John Cullum, of Haſtide in Suffolk.

---

[t] The other three were ſir Richard Brito, ſir Hugh de Morville, and ſir Reginald Fitz-Urſe.—The fickleneſs of the human mind is perhaps in no caſe more obſervable, than in this event; for thoſe who deteſted the pride and arrogance of this eccleſiaſtic when alive, began to worſhip him after his death, and thus they ſang of him:

Tu per Thomæ ſanguinem, quem pro te impendit,
Fac nos, Chriſte, ſcandere quo Thomas aſcendit.

Imitated thus:

By Thomas's blood, which for thee was expended,
O Chriſt, may we riſe whither Thomas aſcended.

Such a prodigious number of miracles were reported to have been performed at his tomb, as neither Chriſt nor his apoſtles wrought in ſupport of the Chriſtian diſpenſation. Indeed the great variety of them exhibited on every trivial occaſion, would, in an age leſs ſuperſtitious, and more enlightened, have utterly deſtroyed their credibility; for the monks paid no attention to Horace's maxim,

Nec Deus interſit, niſi, dignus vindice nodus Inciderit.

Becket's biographers pretend, that all thoſe perſons who had been concerned in his death, died miſerably in three or four years afterwards, as it ſhould ſeem, by ſome particular interpoſition of providence in his behalf. But little or no credit is to be given to monkiſh writers, in matters that affect the reputation of their favourite ſaints, and the champions of papal authority; for it appears upon record, that this ſir William de Tracy was in arms, with other barons, againſt king John, 17 regni, for which offence his lands were ſeized by the crown, but were reſtored to him again 2 H. 3. and that in the 6th year of the laſt mentioned reign, 1222, he ſerved in an expedition againſt the Welch; ſo that he ſurvived the commiſſion of that murder upwards of fifty years: It is equally certain, that Hugh de Morville was living in the reign of king John, and held the manors of Kirk Oſwald and Leſingby in Cumberland, which he enjoyed in right of his wife Heloiſe de Eſtouteville.

William Tracy, eldeſt ſon of the laſt William, was high ſheriff in the years 1442, and 1443, and left a ſon

William Tracy, who was high ſheriff of this county in 1449. By Margery his wife, daughter of ſir John Pauncefoot, he had two ſons, Henry, and Richard.

Henry Tracy, eldeſt ſon of William, married Alice, daughter and heireſs of Thomas Baldington, of Adderbury in Oxfordſhire, eſq; and by her was father of three ſons, William his heir; Richard; and Ralph, a monk; and two daughters.

Sir William Tracy, eldeſt ſon of Henry, was knighted, and ſerved the office of high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire in 1512. He was one of the firſt that embraced the reformed religion in England,[a] and, by Margaret his wife, ſecond daughter of ſir Thomas Throckmorton, of Corſe-court in this county, had iſſue three ſons, William, his heir; Richard, who, as well as his father, was a zealous reformer, and wrote ſeveral treatiſes on religious ſubjects, (ſome of which king Henry the Eighth by proclamation forbad to be read) and was living in 1556; and Robert, who left no iſſue.

William Tracy of Todington, ſon of ſir William, married a daughter of ſir Simon Digby, of Coleſhill in Warwickſhire, and by her was father of Henry, his heir; and of Richard, who had the manor of Stanway ſettled upon him, and became the anceſtor of the baronets of that place, the male line of which family ended in the perſon of ſir John Tracy, in the year 1677.

Henry Tracy, eldeſt ſon of William, took to wife Elizabeth, ſecond daughter of John firſt lord Chandos of Sudley, anceſtor to the duke of Chandos, and dying in 1551, left iſſue John, Giles, Edward, Francis, and Nicholas; and a daughter Eleanor, wife to William Kingſton, of Quenington in this county, eſq.

Sir John Tracy, the eldeſt ſon, was knighted by queen Elizabeth, in her progreſs to Briſtol, 1574, and in the 20th year of that reign, 1578, was high ſheriff of the county of Glouceſter, and died in 1591. By Anne his wife, daughter of ſir Thomas Throckmorton, of Corſe-court, knight, he left iſſue five ſons, viz. John, his heir; Thomas, William, Anthony, and Henry; and two daughters, Dorothy, married firſt, to Edmond Bray, of Barrington in this county, and ſecondly, to ſir Edward Conway, of Arrow in Warwickſhire, created lord Conway; and Mary, wedded firſt to Mr. William Hobby, and ſecondly, to that renowned general, ſir Horatio Vere, baron of Tilbury.

Sir John Tracy, eldeſt ſon of ſir John, was knighted by king James the Firſt, and ſerved the office of high ſheriff in 1609. He was advanced to the dignity of viſcount Tracy of Rathcoole, in the county of Dublin, in the kingdom of Ireland, by king Charles the Firſt, Jan. 12, 1642; and having married Anne, daughter of ſir Thomas Shirley, of Iſfield in Suſſex, knight, left iſſue by that lady,

Robert, ſecond viſcount Tracy, who took to wife Bridget, third daughter of John Lyttelton, of Frankley-court in Worceſterſhire, eſq; by whom he had one ſon John, and a daughter Anne, wedded to William Somerville, of Edſton in Warwickſhire, eſq. His lordſhip married ſecondly, Dorothy, daughter of Thomas Cocks, of Caſtle-ditch in Herefordſhire, and by that lady was father of Robert Tracy, one of the juſtices of the king's bench to king William, and one of the judges of the court of common pleas to queen Anne, and commiſſioner of the great ſeal in 1710: He was again in the commiſſion of the great ſeal, with ſir John Pratt and ſir James Montague, in 1718, but retired from his employments, on [a] Before the Reformation in religion was fully eſtabliſhed, numbers of thoſe who favoured it were cruelly perſecuted and burnt at the ſtake. Sir William Tracy eſcaped the flames in his life-time, yet ſome paſſages in his laſt will, deviating from the ſtandard of church orthodoxy, as then eſtabliſhed, excited ſo violent a reſentment in the popiſh party, that he was condemned as an heretick after his death, and an order was ſent to Parker, chancellor of Worceſter, to raiſe his corps. The officious chancellor, however, deſirous to ingratiate himſelf with his ſuperiors, exceeded the bounds of his commiſſion, and burnt the body, in which proceeding he could not be juſtified, even by the laws of the church of Rome, as ſir William was not a relapſe. So two years after, the chancellor being ſued by Tracy's heirs, was turned out of his office, and fined 400*l.*

The obnoxious paſſages in the will are ſubjoined for the ſatisfaction of the reader, who will eaſily perceive, that ſir William's contempt of purgatory, and of prayers for the dead, gave occaſion of offence.

The WILL.

'IN the name of God, Amen. I William Tracy, of Todington in the county of Glouceſter, eſq; make my Teſtament and laſt Will as hereafter followeth:

'Firſt, and before all other things, I commit myſelf to God, and to his mercy, believing, without any doubt or miſtruſt, that by his grace and the merits of Jeſus Chriſt, and by virtue of his paſſion and reſurrection, I have, and ſhall have remiſſion of all my ſins, and reſurrection of body and ſoul, according as it is written, I believe that my Redeemer liveth, and that at the laſt day I ſhall riſe out of the earth, and in my fleſh ſhall ſee my Saviour: This my hope is laid up in my boſom.

'And touching the wealth of my ſoul, the faith that I have taken and rehearſed is ſufficient (as I ſuppoſe) without any other man's works or merits. My ground and belief is, that there is but one God, and one meditator between God and man, which is Jeſus Chriſt; ſo that I accept none in heaven or in earth to be mediator between me and God, but only Jeſus Chriſt; and all other to be but as petitioners in receiving of grace, but none able to give influence of grace; and therefore will I beſtow no part of my goods for that intent, that any man ſhould ſay or do to help my ſoul, for therein I truſt only to the promiſes of Chriſt. He that believeth and is baptized ſhall be ſaved, and he that believeth not ſhall be damned.

'As touching the burying of my body, it availeth me not whatſoever be done thereto; for St. Auguſtine ſaith, De cura agenda pro mortuis, that the funeral pomps are rather the ſolace of them that live, than the wealth and comfort of them that are dead, and therefore I remit it only to the diſcretion of my executors.

'And touching the diſtribution of my temporal goods, my purpoſe is, by the grace of God, to beſtow them to be accepted as the fruits of faith. So that I do not ſuppoſe that my merit ſhall be by the good beſtowing of them, but my merit is the faith of Jeſus Chriſt only, by whom ſuch works are good, according to the words of our Lord, I was hungry, and thou gaveſt me meat, &c. and it followeth, That ye have done to the leaſt of my brethren, ye have done it to me, &c. And ever we ſhould conſider that true ſaying, That a good work maketh not a good man, but a good man maketh a good work: For faith maketh a man both good and righteous, for a righteous man liveth by faith, and whatſoever ſpringeth not of faith is ſin.

'For my temporal goods, &c.' Dated 22 H. 8.

account

account of his ill health, in 1726, and died Sep. 11, 1735, having filled his ſeveral poſts, equally to the honour and advantage of himſelf and his country.

John, third viſcount Tracy, eldeſt ſon of Robert, married Elizabeth, eldeſt ſurviving daughter of Thomas lord Leigh, of Stoneleigh in Warwickſhire, and by her ladyſhip had iſſue William, his heir; Charles; and Ferdiando, to whom ſir John Tracy, the laſt baronet of Stanway, bequeathed that manor, which continued in the Tracies, his deſcendants, 'till it paſſed, very lately, to the preſent viſcount Hereford, by the marriage of an heireſs. He had alſo one daughter Mary.

William, fourth viſcount Tracy, married firſt, Frances, daughter of Leiceſter Devereux, viſcount Hereford, by whom he was father of Elizabeth, wife to Robert, ſon and heir apparent to ſir Robert Burdet, of Brameſh in Warwickſhire, and mother of ſir Robert Burdet, of Foremark in Derbyſhire, bart. His lordſhip married, ſecondly, Jane, third daughter of ſir Thomas Leigh, and ſiſter of lord Leigh, of Stoneleigh, and by her ladyſhip had one ſon Thomas-Charles, and one daughter Anne, married to ſir William Keyte, of Ebberton in this county, bart.

Thomas-Charles, fifth viſcount Tracy, on Dec. 27, 1712, eſpouſed Elizabeth, eldeſt daughter of William Keyte, eſq; ſon of ſir William Keyte, of Ebberton, bart. and had iſſue William, who died in 1752; Thomas-Charles, his ſucceſſor; and one daughter Jane, wedded to Capel Hanbury, of Pont-y-pool in Monmouthſhire, eſq. His lordſhip took to wife, ſecondly, Frances, daughter of ſir John Packington, of Weſtwood in Worceſterſhire, baronet, by whom he had three ſons, John, D.D. warden of All Souls college, Oxford; Packington, who died young; and Henry; likewiſe three daughters, Frances, woman of the bedchamber to the queen; Anne, the wife of John Smith, of Comb-hay in Somerſetſhire, eſq; and Elizabeth, who died unmarried in 1764. His lordſhip ſurvived his ſecond lady, and departing this life, June 4, 1756, was ſucceeded in title and eſtate by his ſecond but eldeſt ſurviving ſon, Thomas-Charles, the preſent viſcount Tracy, and lord of the manor of Todington. His lordſhip, on February 6, 1755, married Harriot, one of the daughters of Peter Bathurſt, of Clarendon-Park, in the county of Wilts, eſq; by Selina his ſecond lady, daughter of Robert Shirly, earl Rivers; but his lordſhip has no child now living.

His lordſhip's paternal arms are, Or, an eſcallop in the dexter chief ſable, between two bends gules.

CREST. On a cap of maintenance gules, turned up ermine, an eſcallop ſable between two wings erected Or.

SUPPORTERS. Two falcons proper, beak'd and bell'd Or.

MOTTO. MEMORIA PII ÆTERNA.

HAMLET. Stanley Pontlarch is a hamlet in this pariſh, which has its own officers, and a chapel within it, where divine ſervice is performed once a month, but the people bury at Todington.

'Four hides and a half in Stanlege belong to 'the church of Teodekeſberie. There is one 'plow-tillage, and four villeins, with two plow-'tillages, and three bordars, and five ſervi. This 'eſtate was free from tax. It was worth 4*l.* 'now 40*s.*' Domeſday, p. 68.

Robert de Pontlarch, or Pont de L'arch, held this eſtate under the church of Tewkeſbury; and it is probable that it received the addition of Pontlarch, from him, by way of diſtinguiſhing it from two pariſhes in this county of the name of Stanley.

John de Sudley was ſeized of Stanley Pontlarch 41 E. 3. and Hugh Croft, and Agnes and Leon Croft, levied a fine of the ſame manor to ſir William St. Maur 18 H. 7.

Walter Havanage recovered lands in Stanley, and in Thorp, Greet, and Greeton in Winchcombe, againſt Adam Havanage and Alice his wife, 28 E. 1. Lands in Stanley Pontlarch belonged to the viſcount Liſle, and were granted to Thomas earl of Eſſex, upon whoſe attainder they were again granted to ſir William Kingſton 32 H. 8.

This hamlet contains ſeven houſes.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the deanery of Campden, value 32*l.* in the king's books. There are twenty-eight acres of arable land, and eleven of meadow and paſture, belonging to the glebe, which have been let at 23*l.* a year; and there is a compoſition of 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* The chapel of Stanley Pontlarch is annexed to it, on which account the impropriator pays the vicar a further ſum of 4*l.* a year, as I find it in biſhop Benſon's viſitation book.

The advowſon formerly belonged to the Tracies, and was given by ſir John Tracy to the abbey of Hayles, 37 E. 3. And in the year 1403, the biſhop of Worceſter ſettled a compoſition with the abbat of Hayles for the maintenance of the curate of Todington. After the diſſolution of Hayles abbey, the advowſon returned into the ſame family, and Thomas lord viſcount Tracy is patron and impropriator.

The church is ſmall, but neat, and was rebuilt in the year 1723, by Thomas-Charles lord viſcount Tracy.

First fruits	£.	8	13	4	Synodals	£. 0	2	6
Tenths —		0	17	4	Pentecoſt.	0	0	8½
Procurations		0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There are four monuments in the chancel, with the following inſcriptions: Againſt the ſouth wall, Hic jacet Dominus Iohannes Tracy Miles, quondam Dominus de Todington, &c. (Filius et Hæres Henrici Tracy Armigeri, et Elizabethæ Filiæ Iohannis Domini Chandos Baronis de Sudely) qui obijt Septembris 25° Anno Dni 1591.

On the ſame ſide,

The Body of this Church was rebuilt in the Year of our Lord One Thouſand ſeven Hundred and twenty-three, by the Right Honourable Honourable Thomas-Charles Lord Viſcount Tracy, who died on the 4th of June, 1756, in the 66th Year of his Age.

His lordſhip's buſt ſtands over the tablet, and beneath it a ſcutcheon, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Tracy; 2d and 3d, Argent, a chevron between three mullets ſable.

Againſt the north wall,

Here lyeth the Body of Margaret one of the Daughters and Coheires of Thomas Whittington of Pavntley, Eſquior, and Wife of Sir Thomas Throckmorton of Torthworth, Knight, who deceaſed Feb. 1° Anno Dni 1577.

As alſo the Bodies of Anthony Throckmorton and Margaret, her Sonne and Daughter.

On this monument are the arms of Whittington and Throckmorton.

Againſt the eaſt wall,

M. S.

Nobiliſſ[i] juvenis Caroli Tracy, filij tertij Honoratiſſ[i] Dni Ioh: Vice-comitis Tracy. Juvenis non natalibus ſolùm ſed et egregiâ indole, et ſummis ingenij Dotibus illuſtriſſ[i]: Qui poſt pueriles annos fæliciter ſtudijs liberalibus impenſos, migravit Oxonium, ubi ſeſquianno vix dum elapſo, non ſine ſuſpirijs omnium quibus innotuit, immature (proh dolor!) obijt 3° die Maij 1676.

Sed Heus! Lector, oculis cave, ſi enim vivum nôſſes cujus jam mortui Epitaphium legis, verendum eſſet ne inſtar Niobes, indulgens lachrymis rigeres in ſtatuam.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 211	7	0
Poll-tax — — 1694, —	22	15	0
Land-tax —— 1694, -	188	4	0
The ſame, at 3s. 1770, —	104	16	10½
Stanley Pontlarch.
Land-tax at 3s. 1770, —	28	5	9½

At the beginning of this century, there were 48 houſes, and about 200 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 6 were freeholders; yearly births 6, and burials 6. Atkyns. But examining the regiſter, I found, that in ten years, beginning with 1700, there had been 58 baptiſms, and 53 burials; and in a like period, beginning with 1760, the baptiſms were 53, the burials 49; and the inhabitants are now about 186.

TORMARTON

IS a pariſh in the hundred of Grumbald's Aſh, about four miles northward from Marſhfield, four ſouth-eaſtward from Chipping Sodbury, and thirty-two ſouth from Glouceſter.

The village is ſeated upon high ground, in a fine, healthy, champaign country, through which three turnpike-roads are carried; one from Glouceſter and Cirenceſter to Bath, a ſecond from Chippenham to Sodbury and Briſtol, and the third from Chriſtian Malford in Wiltſhire, to Pucklechurch, Mangotsfield, and Briſtol. The pariſh is bounded on the eaſt by Weſt Kyneton in Wiltſhire, on the weſt by Dodington, on the north by Old Sodbury, and has Weſt Littleton on the ſouth, which latter was formerly taken out of it.

The name is of doubtful original, yet ſir Robert Atkyns ſuppoſed it to be taken from the tower of the church, and from Meark, which in the Saxon language ſignifies a boundary; and this town, ſays he, ſtands in the borders between the Mercian and Weſt Saxon kingdoms. But he formed his judgment from the modern name, for Tormentone, as it is written in Domeſday, does not favour his conjecture.

The ſame learned author takes notice of a ſort of ſtones found in the north fields in this pariſh, about the bigneſs of piſtol bullets, which being broke, look ruſty like iron ore. Upon inquiry, I find that thoſe ſtones, as he calls them, are not uncommon at this time, and are really no other than iron bullets, diſcharged, I apprehend, in the battle and ſkirmiſhing that happened in theſe parts in the reign of king Charles the Firſt, between the king's troops, and thoſe under the command of ſir William Waller.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

'Richard the legate holds Tormentone, in 'Hedredeſtan hundred, of the king. There are 'eight hides. Alric held it of king Edward. 'There are ſix plow-tillages in demean, and 'twenty villeins, and four bordars, and a prieſt, 'and one radcheniſter, having among them all 'twelve plow-tillages. There are twelve ſervi. 'It was worth 12*l.* and is now worth 15*l.*' Domeſday-book, p. 76.

The records ſhew, that Henry de Willington, ſon of Ralph de Willington, held Tormarton 23 E. 3. in which year he had livery of the manors of Poulton, Ablington, Yate, Weſtonbirt, Frampton Cotterel, and Sandhurſt, all in the county of Glouceſter. John de Willington, of Willington-court in Sandhurſt, great grandſon of Henry, was ſeized of Tormarton, Littleton, and all the before mentioned manors, at the time of his death, 20 R. 2. and left Joan his ſiſter and heir, who was married to John Wrath.

This manor was held of the Willingtons, as chief lords, by ſome of the perſons following:

Richard de la Rivere, or de Ripariis, had a grant of fairs in Tormarton, and of free warren in all his lands in England, 38 H. 3.

The ſheriff, in his liſt of all the vills in the county, and their reſpective proprietors, 9 E. 1. omits Tormarton and Littleton, but ſays, John, the ſon of John de la Rivere, is lord of Acton Turville, in Grymbaldeaſhe hundred, and in ward to the earl of Arundel; and I conclude that he was then likewiſe proprietor of this manor, for it appears by the eſcheator's inquiſition 8 E. 2. that he died ſeized of Tormarton, and of the hamlet of Littleton, both together worth 30*l.* a year, which he held of John de Wylintone by the ſervice of two knights fees; and alſo of half a knight's fee in Actone Turvyle, worth 6*l. per ann.* which he held of the earl of Arundel, and left John, his ſon and heir, two years old.

Richard de la Rivere forfeited all his lands for rebellion againſt king Edward the Second, and Edward earl of Arundel had a grant of them, and was ſeized of Tormarton in the 20th year of that reign; but Richard de la Rivere recovered poſſeſſion 1 E. 3. The manor was held of Edward earl of Kent, by knight's ſervice, 4 E. 3.

John de la Rivere held Tormarton and the hamlet of Littleton, with markets and fairs, 6 E. 3. and John de la Rivere, his ſon, was ſeized thereof in the 13th year of the ſame reign. Henry de la Rivere had a confirmation of markets and fairs in Tormarton 22 R. 2.

Sir John Drayton held this manor, and Acton Turville, 5 H. 5.

Iſabel, the widow of ſir Thomas de la Rivere, and daughter of ſir Maurice Ruſſel, died ſeized of Tormarton, Littleton, and Skirewell, 15 H. 6. Maurice de la Rivere, ſon of ſir Thomas and Iſabel, had a ſon Robert, whoſe daughter and heireſs, Iſabel, was married to ſir John St. Loe, and carried the inheritance of the manors of Tormarton, Littleton, and Acton Turville, into that name and family. She was afterwards wedded ſucceſſively to ſir John Drayton, ſir Geoffry Scrope, and Stephen Hatfield, eſq; but had no child by the three laſt. Sir John St. Loe, ſon of ſir John, and of Iſabel the heireſs of the de la Riveres, married a daughter of ſir John Guyſe, by whom he had ſir William, his heir; Nicholas, Edward, and Clement. Sir William St. Loe, eldeſt ſon of ſir John, married Elizabeth,* daughter, and at length heireſs of John Hardwicke, of Hardwicke in Derbyſhire, and widow of ſir William Cavendiſh, of Chatſworth in the ſame county, and ſettled upon her the inheritance of this eſtate, which paſſed, on her fourth marriage, to George earl of Shrewſbury, whoſe ſon, Gilbert earl of Shrewſbury, was poſſeſſed of it in 1608. The manor afterwards became the property of William marquis of Newcaſtle, who conveyed it to ſir Francis Top, from whom it deſcended to ſir John Top, baronet, who reſided here. He left two daughters, one of whom was married to —— Hungerford, whoſe only ſon John Hungerford, of Dingley-hall in Northamptonſhire, eſq; is the preſent lord of the manors of Tormarton and Acton Turville. His arms are, Sable, two bars argent, in chief three plates.

John Cotherington and Alice his wife levied a fine of lands in Tormarton, to the uſe of themſelves for life, remainder to their ſons, Humphry, Thomas, and John, ſucceſſively in taille, remainder to Margaret Baſiles, late wife to ſir Peter Baſiles, 49 H. 6. 1470, in which year Henry, that pageant king, recovered and enjoyed his crown for a few months, 'till he was again dethroned in 1471.

Lands in Tormarton belonged to the priory of Black Canons at Bradenſtoke in Wiltſhire, and were granted to John Pope 37 H. 8.

The ſimilarity in names of places frequently produces confuſion, and to this cauſe it muſt be attributed that ſir Robert Atkyns has applied ſome records to Tormarton which evidently belong to Farmington, as already obſerved under the account of that pariſh.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Hawkeſbury, worth upwards of 400*l.* a year. Nathaniel Caſtleton is patron, and the reverend Mr. Newdigate Pointz is the preſent incumbent. He is deſcended from the antient family of that name, formerly lords of the manor of Iron Acton.

The biſhop of Wincheſter appropriated this church to the abbey of Malmeſbury, 35 E. 3.

Ninety-five ſtatute acres belong to the glebe.

The whole pariſh was incloſed about the year 1760, when the glebe was laid together, but the other lands were not exonerated from tithe.

The church is dedicated to St. Mary, and has an aile on the ſouth ſide, and a low embattled tower at the weſt end. It was built by ſir John de la Rivere, who is alſo ſaid to have founded a chantry in this church, dedicated to St. Mary.

Firſt fruits £.	27	0	0	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths —	2	14	0	Pentecoſt.	0	0	10
Procurations	0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Leland ſays, There lyeth buried in the Body of the Paroche Churche of Thormerton one Petrine de la Ryvers, with a Frenche Epitaphie. He was owner of the Lordſhype of Tormerton. And ſir Robert Atkyns obſerves, that in his time, the effigies of ſir John de la Rivere, with the model of the church in his hand, remained in the chancel; but the braſſes of both theſe monuments are now torn off and loſt.

Upon a braſs plate, fixed to a black marble ſtone, in the body of the church, is the effigy of a man, with a purſe hanging before him, and

* This beautiful and accompliſhed lady had been married, at fourteen years of age, to Robert Barley, of Barley in Derbyſhire, who was likewiſe very young, and died ſoon after, Feb. 2, 1532-3; but ſhe enjoyed the whole of his large fortune, by ſettlement on her and her heirs. After living a widow ſome years, ſhe was married, ſecondly, to ſir William Cavendiſh, by whom ſhe was ſo intirely beloved, that at her requeſt, he ſold his poſſeſſions in the ſouthern counties, to purchaſe eſtates in Derbyſhire, where her relations chiefly reſided; and by her perſuaſion, he began building a noble ſeat at Chatſworth, which, however, he did not live to finiſh, dying 4 & 5 Phil. & Mar. She accepted for her third huſband, ſir William St. Loe, captain of the guard to the queen Elizabeth, and proprietor of Tormarton, and other conſiderable eſtates in Glouceſterſhire, all which, in failure of iſſue by him, were ſettled on her and her own heirs. She ſurvived him, but not her charms of wit and beauty, by which ſhe captivated George Talbot, ſixth earl of Shrewſbury, then the greateſt ſubject in the realm, whom ſhe took for her fourth huſband; and had the honour of being keeper to Mary queen of Scots, during ſeventeen years of her impriſonment in England. She was a fourth time left a widow, in 1590, and ſo continued 'till her death, Feb. 13, 1607, in the 87th year of her age. Happy in her ſeveral marriages, ſhe roſe by each huſband to greater wealth and higher honours; but had iſſue only by the ſecond, viz. 1. Henry, who died childleſs in 1616; 2. William, created baron Cavendiſh of Hardwicke, May 4, 1605, and earl of Devonſhire, Aug. 8, 1618; 3. Charles, father of William, earl, marquis, and duke of Newcaſtle; and three daughters. It is not unworthy obſervation, that ſhe built three of the moſt elegant ſeats that were ever raiſed by one perſon in any county in England, viz. Chatſworth, Hardwicke, and Oldcotes, all tranſmitted intire to the firſt duke of Devonſhire.

his

his hands in a ſupplicating poſture. Round the verge, in old character, is this inſcription:

✣ Orate pro Anima Iohannis Ceyſyll quondam famulus Reverendi Dni Iohīs Sendlow militis qui quidem Iohannes Ceyſyll ſuum clauſit extremum in vigilia Sancti Bartholomei Apoſtoli Anno Dni Millimo cccclxxxxiii° Et anno regni Regis Henrici Septimi nono. Cuius anime propitietur D' Altiſſimus Amen.

On a white ſtone in the chancel,

Here lyeth the Body of John Baber, Doctor of Divinity, in his life time parſon of this Church of Tormarton, and Chaplain in ordinary to K. James of bleſſed memory; who by his care preſerved that which remaineth to his ſucceſſors. He departed this life y^e 9 May, 1628, being aged threeſcore and five years, having for many years undergone with great credit ſeveral places of eminency in the commonwealth, and enjoy'd this parſonage of Tormarton 37 years.

Againſt a pillar in the church,

Near by lyeth interred the Body of Edward Topp, Son of Lingen Topp of Witton in the county of Salop, Eſq; late High Sheriffe of that county, and Son of Alexander Topp of Witton Eſq; Son of John Topp of Stockton in the county of Wilts Eſq; who departed this life the 15th Day of May in the 50th yeare of his age, and in the yeare of our Lord 1699.

Arms, Argent, in a canton gules a dexter hand clinched and erected azure. Creſt. On a wreath, a dexter hand holding a ſiniſter arm couped below the elbow gules. Motto. FORTIOR EST QUI SE.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.
Poll-tax — —	1694, —	20	12	0
Land-tax ——	1694, —	95	7	0
The ſame, at 3s.	1770, —	75	3	$11\frac{3}{4}$

When ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his Hiſtory, there were 30 houſes in this pariſh, and about 130 inhabitants, 4 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 4, burials 3. The people are ſince increaſed to 207.

TORTWORTH.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Grumbald's Aſh, four miles diſtant ſouth from Berkeley, four weſt from Wotton-underedge, and twenty ſouth-weſtward from Glouceſter.

It conſiſts of ſome woodland, with a ſmall proportion of arable, but much the greater part is rich paſture ground, and dairy farms, that yield as good cheeſe as any in Glouceſterſhire.

Tortworth, or Torteword, is a name of the ſame claſs with Badgworth, Brockworth, Pebworth, &c. already explained under thoſe heads.

The pariſh is diſtinguiſhed by an antient ſeat near the church, where the anceſtors of the preſent lord Ducie ſometime reſided, and the park ſtill remains incloſed with a high ſtone wall. The houſe is large and irregular, and was built by one of his lordſhip's family. There is a cheſnut-tree in the garden of great antiquity and ſize, having been there, it is ſaid, ever ſince the year 1216. The greater part of it is dead, but ſome of the branches bear fruit every year, and the writer of this account meaſured it two or three years ago, and found it eighteen yards in circumference. Some have ſuppoſed it to be ſeveral trees incorporated together, but the notion is abſurd, and the appearance of the tree is ſufficient to refute it.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

Tortworth is thus deſcribed in the ſurvey, made in the reign of king William the Firſt:

'Turſtin the ſon of Rolf holds Torteword in 'Bacheſtan hundred. There is one hide. Aluuold 'held it. In demean are two plow-tillages, and 'ſix villeins, and ſeven bordars, with ſeven plow-'tillages. There are ſix ſervi, and two mills of '15s. [rent] and ten acres of meadow. A wood 'one mile long, and half a mile broad, pays 5s. 'The manor was worth 7*l.* now 100s.' Domeſday-book, p. 78.

The ſheriff returned that Nicholas de Kyneſton was lord of Totworth 9 E. 1. and it is extremely probable, that his mother was one of the daughters and coheireſſes of a former proprietor; and that Margaret, the other coheireſs, was married to ſir William Manſel, of Lypiat; for ſir William Manſel, and Margaret his wife, releaſed all their right in the manor and advowſon of Tortworth to ſir Nicholas, who at the ſame time releaſed his right in other lands to them, in the 27th year of that reign. He purchaſed the privilege of fairs, markets, and free warren in this manor 32 E. 3. and died ſeized thereof 9 E. 2. Hawiſe, his only daughter and heireſs, had been married to, but was then the widow of Robert de Veel, or le Veel, as appears by ſir Nicholas's charter to the abbey of Kingſwood, 9 E. 2. wherein he releaſes all his right in a piece of meadow called Joneſham in Charfield, which had been given to that houſe by Hawiſe his daughter.

Sir Peter le Veel held Tortworth 14 E. 2. Nicholas le Veel, ſon and heir of ſir Peter, died ſeized of Tortworth, which he left in dower to Margaret his widow, who died 23 E. 3. John Veel was poſſeſſed of Tortworth, at the time of his death, 36 H. 6. and was ſucceeded by Robert his ſon, who married Elizabeth, daughter of John Pointz, eſq; and by her had an only daughter and heireſs Alice, married to ſir David Matthews, of Glamorganſhire, who was lord of this manor, in right of his wife, in the reign of king Henry the Seventh.

William Throckmorton, deſcended from the antient family of that name, ſeated at Fladbury in Worceſterſhire, married Margaret, the eldeſt of the five daughters of ſir David Matthews. He was high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire 21 H. 8. and was ſucceeded by his ſon ſir Thomas Throckmorton, who married Margaret, one of the ſix daughters and coheireſſes of Thomas Whittington, of Pauntley, eſq. He ſerved the office of high ſheriff of this county 6 Phil. & Mar. and was ſucceeded by his ſon

Sir Thomas Throckmorton, who had livery of the manor 9 Eliz. and was high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire in the 30th and 43d years of the ſame reign. He married, firſt, Elizabeth, daughter of ſir Richard Berkeley of Stoke Giffard, and ſecondly, —— daughter of ſir Edward Rogers, and dying in in the year 1607, was ſucceeded by his ſon ſir William Throckmorton, who married Cicely, daughter and coheireſs of Thomas Baynham, of Clowerwall. He was lord of the manors of Charfield and Tortworth in the year 1608, but he ſold the latter to —— Webb.

Sir Robert Ducie, baronet, alderman of London, deſcended from the Ducies in Staffordſhire, purchaſed the manor of Tortworth of —— Webb. Sir Richard Ducie, baronet, ſon of ſir Robert, was high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire 12 C. 1. He was taken priſoner in the civil wars by ſir William Waller, and dying unmarried, was ſucceeded by his next brother, ſir William Ducie, baronet, who ſerved the office of high ſheriff in the year 1660, and was made knight of the Bath at the coronation of king Charles the Second, by whom he was alſo created viſcount Down in the kingdom of Ireland. He died without iſſue, whereupon the manor deſcended to Elizabeth, only child of Robert Ducie, eſq; his younger brother. She was married to Edward Morton, of Morton in Staffordſhire, eſq; and had iſſue Matthew-Ducie Morton, created lord Ducie, June 13, 1720. From him the manor of Tortworth deſcended to Matthew lord Ducie, and after his death, to Thomas the preſent lord Ducie, whoſe pedigree and arms are given under Woodcheſter.

But there was another manor in this pariſh, which was held of the king, as of the hundred of Grumbald's Aſh.

Henry Wogan was ſeized of it, in right of Katherine his wife, and dying 9 H. 8. left an only daughter Joan, then eleven years old, heireſs to her mother. Thomas Hicks, in right of his wife Joan Dorney, was ſeized of lands in Tortworth, and of a fulling mill, which paſſed to John Hicks, his ſon, who died poſſeſſed of them 38 H. 8. leaving John his ſon, three years old.

There are places in this pariſh of the following names, which are too inconſiderable to be conſidered as hamlets, viz. 1. Tafarn-Bàch, corruptly called Tavern-bath, of which already, under Charfield. 2. Avening. 3. Avon's-green. 4. Damery. and 5. Crockley.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Hawkeſbury, worth about 250*l.* a year. The advowſon paſſed with the manor for many ages, but is now veſted in Oriel college, Oxford, and the reverend Dr. Boſworth is the preſent incumbent.

Sixty acres belong to the glebe.

The church is dedicated to St. Leonard, and has an aile on the ſouth ſide, and an embattled tower at the weſt end.

First fruits	£.	16	3	4	Synodals	£. 0	2 0
Tenths	—	1	12	4½	Pentecoſt.	0	1 0
Procurations		0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Near the chancel, there is a handſome monument for ſir Thomas Throckmorton, with his effigy lying upon it in full proportion.

A monument on the ſouth ſide of the church bears the following inſcription:

Near this place lies the body of the Right Honourable Matthew the firſt Lord Ducie, Baron of Moreton in the county of Stafford, who departed this life May the 22d 1735, in the 72d year of his age.

Here alſo is interred the Right Honourable Arabella Lady Ducie, relict of the firſt Lord Ducie, one of the coheireſſes of Sir Thomas Preſtwich of Lancaſhire, baronet. She died Mar. 14, 1749, aged 90.

Over the monument hang a helmet and gauntlet; and beneath it are the Ducies arms, viz. Argent, a chevron gules between three ſquare buckles ſable. Motto. PERSEVERANDO.

Benefactions.

A houſe and land worth about 12*l.* a year are given for the uſe of the church. And the reverend Mr. Brooke, rector of this church, who died Aug. 1, 1757, left a library of books for the uſe of his ſucceſſors.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in	1692,	£.	142	0	0
Poll-tax —	1694,	—	30	17	0
Land-tax —	1694,	—	150	17	0
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770,	—	117	9	0

About the beginning of this century, there were 45 houſes in the pariſh, and about 240 inhabitants, 8 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 8, burials 8. Atkyns. The people having been accurately numbered a few years ago, were found to be 241, ſo that population has remained nearly in the ſame ſtate for the laſt ſixty years.

TREDINGTON

IS a pariſh in the lower diviſion of Tewkeſbury hundred, two miles and a half ſouth-eaſtward from the town of that name, five north-weſtward from Cheltenham, and nine north from Glouceſter.

It lies in a healthy part of the Vale, free from thoſe floods and inundations to which lower ſituations are frequently expoſed; and the face of the pariſh is diverſified by an agreeable variety of gentle ſlopes and ſwells, without any eminence of conſequence; but the traveller is diſguſted with the badneſs of the roads, which have never been attended to 'till within theſe few years, and are ſtill in a miry condition, tho' conſiderably improved.

The little river Swilyate runs through this pariſh, and is here augmented by two ſmall ſtreams, one from Aſton, the other from Stoke Archer, and empties itſelf into the Upper Avon, a little below the town of Tewkeſbury.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

Tredington was appendant to, and dependant on, the great lordſhip of Tewkeſbury, at the time of of the general ſurvey taken in the reign of king William the Firſt, as the reader may ſee in the copy of that record at p. 68 of this book. And the manor deſcended to the ſeveral ſucceſſive proprietors of Tewkeſbury, 'till it came to Anne, widow of Richard Nevil, the great earl of Warwick, who levied a fine of this and many of her other eſtates to the king, 3 H. 7. by which means it came to the crown.

Queen Mary, in the 5th year of her reign, granted the manor, by the name of late Warwick's lands, to Anne Forteſcue, widow of ſir Adrian Forteſcue, and to the heirs males of ſir Adrian. The manor belonged to ſir Francis Forteſcue in the year 1608, and lord Craven is the preſent proprietor of it.

Ralph Seimour and Iſabel his wife levied a fine of lands in Tredington, to ſir Richard Croft, 16 E. 4.

Lands, called Penny-land, belonged to the counteſs of Warwick, and were granted to William Fitz-Williams and Arthur Ingram 7 E. 6.

Tithes in Tredington belonged to the abbey of Tewkeſbury, and were granted to Thomas Stroud, Walter Earl, and James Paget, 36 H. 8. Several lands here, likewiſe belonging to the ſame abbey, were reputed a manor, and granted to Daniel Pert and Alexander Pert, 7 E. 6.

John Surman, eſq; has a houſe and a large eſtate in the pariſh, deſcended to him from his anceſtors. William Surman, eſq; was owner of them at the beginning of this century, and dying in 1742, was ſucceeded by his ſon William-Packer Surman, whoſe ſon William-Packer dying without iſſue, the houſe and eſtate came to John Surman, eſq; his younger brother. The arms of Surman, as I find them on a hatchment in the chancel, are, Or, a lion rampant ſable, armed and langued gules, between three holly leaves ſlipped proper.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a curacy, in the deanery of Winchcombe, worth about 20*l.* a year, to which the biſhop of Glouceſter preſents by ſequeſtration. It was formerly reputed a vicarage, and belonged to the priory of Lanthony.

The church is a ſmall building, dedicated to St. John Baptiſt, with a low wooden tower at the weſt end, in which are five bells.

There was formerly a lofty ſtone croſs in the church-yard, of which nothing remains, at preſent, but the ſteps and column that ſupported it.

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a tomb in the church-yard, formerly ſurrounded with paliſadoes, for John Surman, eſq; who died in 1687, and others of the ſame family.

Near the communion table, in the chancel, are the two following inſcriptions upon a flat blue ſtone:

In Memory of William Surman, of Tredington in the County of Glouceſter, Eſq^r. who died the 14^th Day of July, Ann^o Dom. one Thouſand ſeven Hundred and forty two, Ætat. Suæ 75.

Anne the Wife of William Surman, of this Pariſh Eſq^r. and Sole Daughter and Heir of William Packer, late of Cricklade in the County of Wilts, Gent. who died the 26^th of May, Anno Dom. 1728, Ætat. Suæ 56.

At the top of the ſtone are theſe arms, Baron and femme, 1. Or, a lion rampant ſable, armed and langued gules, between three holly leaves ſlipped proper, for Surman. 2. Gules, a croſs lozengy Or between four roſes argent, for Packer.——Note. The colours are not expreſſed on the ſtone, but are taken from an hatchment over the communion table.

Upon another flat ſtone, cloſe to the laſt,

Here lyeth the Body of W^m Packer Surman, Eſq; who departed this Life y^e 7^th day of January, 1764, Aged 60.

And alſo the Bodys of W^m and Ann Son and Daughter of the above W^m Packer Surman, Eſq^r. Ann died Jan. the 17^th 1747, Aged one year and 10 Months. W^m died March the 9^th 1747, Aged 11 Months.

Here lyeth the Body of Elizabeth Daughter of William Surman, Eſq; who died the Nineteenth day of January, 1761, Aged 60.

There are likewiſe inſcriptions for ſeveral of the Cartwrights, once a conſiderable family in this pariſh, with their arms, A feſs embattled between three cart wheels.

Benefactions.

Several parcels of land are given for the repair of the church. Edwin Scrimſhire, of Aquilat in Staffordſhire, eſq; gave the tithes of Tredington and Fidington to the miniſter of Tewkeſbury, but ſubject to the annual payment of 12*l.* each to the miniſters of Tredington and Aſhchurch.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 78	12	0
	Poll-tax —— 1694, —	21	11	0
	Land-tax — 1694, —	56	0	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	42	12	0

About ſeventy years ago, according to ſir Robert Atkyns, there were 23 houſes in the pariſh, and about 100 inhabitants, 8 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 3, burials 3. But population is very much increaſed, for it appears by an exact liſt taken this year, (1777) that the preſent number of families is 30, of inhabitants 169.

TURKDEAN.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Bradley, three miles diſtant north from Northleach, eight ſouth-weſtward from Stow, and nineteen eaſt from Glouceſter.

It conſiſts chiefly of open fields, and lies in the high Coteſwold country, but affords no antiquities, nor any thing curious in natural hiſtory.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

The lands in this pariſh were divided between two proprietors at the time of the general ſurvey, as appears by the following extract:

'William Leuric holds Turghedene in Bradeleg 'hundred, and Goisfrid holds it of him. Oſgot 'held it. There are five hides, and one yard land 'and a half, but nothing in demean. There are 'two villeins, and three bordars, with one plow-'tillage. This eſtate pays tax. It was worth 4*l.* 'and is now worth 10*l.*' Domeſday, p. 74.

'Robert de Olgi holds Turchedene. There 'are five hides, and two yard lands and a half 'which pay tax. Siuuard held them. There 'are four plow-tillages in demean, and twelve 'villeins, with ſix plow-tillages, and there are 'eight among the ſervi and ancillæ. It was worth '6*l.* now only 100*s.*' Ib. p. 76.

It is difficult to diſtinguiſh theſe manors in their deſcent to their ſeveral proprietors. Two religious houſes were ſeized of the greater part of the pariſh, and the remainder was veſted in lay proprietors, viz.

Upper-Turkdean belonged to Weſtbury college, near Briſtol, and after the diſſolution of that houſe, was granted to ſir Rafe Sadleir 35 H. 8. William Banniſter died ſeized of Turkedeane 2 Jac. 1. leaving Thomas his ſon and heir, as appears by the eſcheator's inquiſition, taken the ſame year. Thomas Banniſter was ſeized of it in 1608, from whom it deſcended to Mr. ſerjeant Banniſter, who enjoy'd it when ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his account of this pariſh: Since which time it paſſed out of that name, and Edmund Waller, eſq; is the preſent proprietor of it.

Lower Turkdean belonged to the priory of Lanthony, near Glouceſter. Richard Poncy gave certain lands in Turchdene to the canons regular of Lanthony, which were afterwards confirmed to them by the king's charter 1 Joh. and a writ of Quo warranto was brought againſt the prior to ſet forth his right to a court leet and waifs in Turkdean, and his claim was allowed 15 E. 1. After the diſſolution of that priory, this eſtate was granted to Richard Andrews and Nicholas Temple, in truſt, 35 H. 8. John Walter, upon the death of his father, had livery of this manor granted to him 1 Eliz. It came afterwards to Oliver lord St. John, who died ſeized thereof 24 Eliz. and John lord St. John, his ſon, had livery of it the ſame year. It paſſed afterwards to Mr. Coxwell, who enjoyed it about half a century ſince; but it is now the property of ſir John Nelthrop, baronet. His arms are, Argent, on a pile ſable, a broad ſword of the field, with a martlet in chief ſiniſter for difference.

Beſide the above-mentioned manors, or reputed manors, there was another which continued in lay hands. Robert de Tormin held Turkdean by one knight's fee 3 Joh. John Langley died ſeized of the manor of Turkdean 2 E. 1. as did another John Langley, eſq; 39 H. 6. Walter Langley was ſurvived by Iſabel his wife, who died ſeized of this manor, and of Upper and Lower Siddington, in dower, 14 E. 4. Sir Ralph Dutton was ſeized of it at the beginning of this century, and was ſucceeded by his ſon ſir John Dutton, baronet; from him it paſſed thro' two deſcents, like Sherbourne, to James Dutton, eſq; who is the preſent lord of the manor.

Of the other eſtates the records ſhew, that Philip Burnell died ſeized of lands in Turkdean 22 E. 1. Thomas Ralegh held one meſſuage and two plow-tillages in Turkdean, of the honour of Wallingford, 21 R. 2. and Thomas his ſon died ſeized of the ſame 6 H. 4. Walter Ralegh, ſon and heir of the laſt Thomas, died ſeized of the manor of Turkdean 8 H. 5.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the deanery of Stow, worth about 60*l.* a year. It has been augmented by the queen's bounty. Chriſt Church college in Oxford, are patrons, and the reverend Mr. Thomas Bowen is the preſent incumbent. It formerly belonged to the priory of Black Canons of Oſney. The rectory and advowſon of the vicarage were granted to Chriſt Church college 34 H. 8. and confirmed 38 H. 8. and the impropriation is now in leaſe to Mr. Miller.

The vicar has all privy tithes, half the hay tithes, and the corn tithes of three yard lands.

The church is ſmall, with an aile on the ſouth ſide, and an embattled tower at the weſt end.

Firſt fruits	£.	10	0	0	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths —		1	0	0	Pentecoſtals	0	1	0
Procurations		0	6	8

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in	1692,	£.	53	18	10
Poll-tax ——	1694,	—	19	1	6
Land-tax ——	1694,	—	56	4	0
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770,	—	34	3	9

There were 32 houſes in this pariſh at the beginning of this century, and about 120 inhabitants, whereof 7 were freeholders; yearly births 3, and burials 3. Atkyns. Thers are now 25 families, and exactly 113 inhabitants.

TURLEY and HAW.

TURLEY is only a part of the pariſh, lying in the lower diviſion of Weſtminſter hundred. The Haw, another part, lies in the lower diviſion of the hundred of Derhurſt. The pariſh is four miles diſtant ſouth-weſt from Tewkeſbury, eight eaſt from Newent, and eight north from Glouceſter. It is ſituated upon the weſt bank of the Severn, and very ſubject to floods from that river.

The etymology of Turley, or Tirley, as it is ſometimes written, is uncertain; but Haw ſignifies a green plot in a valley, and is deſcriptive of the ſituation of the place.

It is a rich, loamy ſoil, with ſome clay, and produces excellent herbage. The houſes in general are mean cottages, built of brick and wattling, notwithſtanding there is a quarry near, if not in the pariſh, of fine blue ſtone, with a very ſtrait ſmoth ſurface, proper for building.

It is a common practice at this place, particularly after floods, to fiſh, as they call it, in the Severn for coals, and the buſineſs is performed in in the following manner: They ſink a net, with its mouth extended by an iron hoop of a ſemi-circular form, and a perſon ſtirs the bottom of the river with a long pole juſt before the net, by which means, and by the aſſiſtance of the current, the coals roll into it. Five or ſix boats are ſometimes employ'd in this buſineſs at a time.

They ſtill retain the antient cuſtom at this place, which formerly prevailed at many others, of ſtrewing the floor of the church over with graſs on Whitſunday and Trinity ſunday, and there is an acre of ground given to maintain it.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

This was part of the manor of Derhurſt at the time of the general ſurvey.

'Edric held two yard-lands and a half at 'Trinleie, in the time of king Edward, but 'William the ſon of Baderon holds them now.' Domeſday, p. 72.

Turley belonged to the abbey of Weſtminſter 'till that houſe was diſſolved. It was then granted to the chapter of Weſtminſter 34 H. 8. But queen Mary coming to the crown, the monaſtery was reſtored, and this manor was regranted to the abbey and convent of Weſtminſter in the fourth year of her reign. After the death of that princeſs, the monaſtery was again diſſolved, and the manor of Turley regranted to the chapter of Weſtminſter 2 Eliz.

Thomas Throckmorton had livery of the manor of Turley 9 Eliz. and ſir William Throckmorton, or Throgmorton, was lord of it in 1608. Thomas earl of Coventry was lord of the manor when ſir Robert Atkyns drew up his account of it, and the preſent earl of Coventry is now lord of the manor. For his lordſhip's arms, ſee Derhurſt.

Lands in this pariſh, given to maintain lamps in the church of Turley, were granted to ſir William Rider 7 Jac. A meadow in Turley, which belonged to the abbey of Tewkeſbury, was granted to Lawrence Baſkerville, and William Blake, ſcrivener, 3 Jac. Chriſtopher Raſtall died ſeized of Woodend and Baul's Meadow in Turley, and left Thomas his ſon thirty years old. Mr. Griffin has a good eſtate in this place, which formerly belonged to Mr. George Hurdman.

The Haw is the other diviſion of the pariſh, where there is a paſſage over the Severn. The prior of Derhurſt was ſeized of Haws 56 H. 3. After the ſuppreſſion of alien priories, the manor of Haws was granted to the abbey of Tewkeſbury 7 E. 4. And after the ſuppreſſion of that abbey, it was granted to Giles Throckmorton 35 H. 8.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, within the peculiar of Derhurſt, worth 40*l.* a year. The lord chancellor is patron, and the reverend Mr. Charles Parker is the preſent incumbent. There is no glebe, and the impropriation belongs to the earl of Coventry.

The church is dedicated to St. Michael. It is ſmall, with a low embattled tower at the weſt end.

Firſt fruits £. 9 6 8 Tenths £. 0 18 8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

The following inſcription is upon the table of a monument in the chancel:

Beneath lyes William the ſon of George Hurdman, of Sandpitts Gent. Grandſon of Edward Hurdman y^e^ firſt Maior of the City of Worceſter. He dy'd Auguſt y^e^ 5th 1684, aged about 55 Y^rs^.

The monument is decorated with the family arms, viz. Argent, upon a feſs between three creſcents gules, as many fleurs de lis Or. —There are alſo inſcriptions for ſeveral others of the ſame name.

Upon a monument, againſt the ſouth wall of the chancel, it is thus written:

To the Pious Memory of M^rs^ Mary Browne, third Daughter of Iohn Browne Sen^r^ of Cumberwood in y^e^ Pariſh Gent., who exchanged this Life for a better Ian^ry^ 18^th^ 1717. She was a Perſon eminent for her Piety, Liberality and Charity, and like Tabitha, was allways employ'd in doing Good and in Diſpenſing her Bounty to all about her: But in a more particular Manner to her Relations.

Upon the monument are theſe arms in a lozenge, Or, on a feſs gules three cheſs rooks of the firſt; in chief as many martlets ſable.

There are inſcriptions for John Brown of Tirley, gent. who died in 1656; for John Brown of Cumberwood, gent. buried in 1681; and for Jane his wife, daughter of Giles Driver, of Rendcombe, gent. who died in 1683; for Henry Browne, ſon of John and Jane, buried in 1688; and for Charles and Anne Browne, ſon and daughter of John and Jane, who were buried in the year 1722.

Benefactions.

A houſe and land called Turley's Elm are charged with 10*l.* a year for the uſe of the poor. Mr. Joſeph Millard, who was buried in 1727, by his will, gave 5*l.* a year for ever out of his eſtate at the Rye, to buy five coats, ſhoes, and ſtockings, for as many poor men. The reverend Mr. Bateman, vicar of this pariſh, gave 20*l.* with which an acre of land in Kingſend was purchaſed, for the uſe of the poor. And Mrs. Suſanna Gwyn gave three acres of land in Harley, and one in Churchfield to the ſame uſe. Mrs. Jane Atwood, and Mrs. Mary Atwood of Tewkeſbury, gave about an acre of paſture ground and orcharding, called Netherſtone Leaſow, in Turley, to the uſe of the miniſter, for a ſermon in the church on Holy Thurſday, and on Aſcention-day, for ever. In default, the profits to go to the poor.

Turley.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	50	6	0
Poll-tax —— 1694, —		12	0	0
Land-tax —— 1694, —		89	4	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		67	8	0

The Haw.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	34	0	0
Poll-tax — 1694, —		18	17	0
Land-tax — 1694, —		80	0	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		61	5	10½

At the beginning of this century, there were 76 houſes in this pariſh, and about 300 inhabitants, whereof 20 were freeholders; yearly births 8, and and burials 7. Atkyns. Examining the pariſh regiſter, I found that in ten years, beginning with 1700, the baptiſms were 111, and the burials 78; and in the ſame number of years, beginning with 1760, the baptiſms were 76, and the burials 87. There are now 65 houſes in the pariſh, and about 280 inhabitants.

TWINING.

THIS pariſh lies in the lower diviſion of Kiftſgate hundred, three miles diſtant north from Tewkeſbury, twelve ſouth-ward from Worceſter, and thirteen north from Glouceſter.

It is pleaſantly ſituated in a point of land between the rivers Severn and Avon, and very probably took its name from Tpi, which in the Saxon language ſignifies two, and inge, a meadow, becauſe it has meadows on the banks of thoſe two rivers.

It is the only pariſh in the county that lies wholly on the north-weſt ſide of the Avon, over which it has a ferry at a place called Twining's Fleet; and the turnpike-road from Glouceſter and Tewkeſbury to Worceſter runs through the midſt of the village.

It conſiſts chiefly of meadow and paſture, with a conſiderable quantity of very good arable land; and is within the juriſdiction of the leet of Winchcombe, where the court is held for Kiftſgate hundred.

The middle part of it lies high, and on the weſt ſide there is a little head of land ſhooting out from the continent, with which it is level, but it ſtands on a great eminence above the meadows next the Severn. The top of it conſiſts of ſeveral acres of ground, and is fortified all round with double intrenchments. This camp is not above a mile diſtant from the river, which it ſurveys for a conſiderable length, and commands a great extent of country on that ſide. It is called Towbery Hill, but Leland miſtakes it for Tetbyri Caſtelle, and ſays, 'It is a 2 miles from Theokeſ-'byri, above it, in ripa leva Sabrinæ. It is now,' continues he, 'overgrowne with Trees and Buſhes 'of Juniper. It longgid to Winchelcumbe Ab-'bay. Peradventure it was King Offa or King 'Kenulphus Houſe.' Itin. V. 6. p. 71.

I don't know why Leland fixed on this for the ſcite of the royal palace; but leaving that matter in uncertainty, as it is ever likely to remain, I ſhall only obſerve, that it was moſt probably a Roman camp; yet upon the ſtricteſt enquiry, I cannot diſcover that any Roman coins have been found thereabout, as might be expected.

The pariſh is well ſupplied with ſprings of water, and in a piece of ground called the Park, where it is ſuppoſed the antient manor houſe formerly ſtood, is a ſpring, whoſe water is ſaid to be a prevalent remedy for cutaneous diſorders, and even the leproſy itſelf. It turns the vegetables that ſtand in its courſe of a reddiſh yellow colour, which ſhews it to have paſſed thro' a bed of ochre.

The order of the different ſtrata near the ſurface of the ground is uncertain and irregular. In ſome places, firſt, a competent depth of loam, then gravel, next marle, then clay; but marle is to be found in almoſt every part of the pariſh, at ſome depth or other, tho' the inhabitants never uſe it for manure.

The principal houſe and eſtate in the village, belong to Mrs. Hancock, relict of the late Peter Hancock, eſq. But there are ſeveral other good houſes, which are taken notice of in the account of the hamlets to which they belong.

Stubbill-gardens, in this pariſh, is a very pleaſant rural place, belonging to Mr. Warren, conſiſting of two or three acres of ground, laid out in walks, with beautiful ſhrubs and flowers, in a very pretty taſte. There is a ſummer-houſe, and pleaſant ſeats agreeably diſpoſed, and kept in the neateſt order; and many perſons of good faſhion reſort thither in the ſummer ſeaſon to a public breakfaſting.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

There were two great proprietaries of lands in this pariſh when Domeſday was compiled, from which the following is extracted:

'The church of St. Mary of Wincelcumbe 'holds Tueninge in Greteſtanes hundred. There 'are three hides taxed, and two plow-tillages in 'demean, and twenty-four villeins, and eight 'bordars, with twenty-ſeven plow-tillages. There 'are eight ſervi, and two ancillæ, and forty acres 'of meadow; a wood two furlongs long, and 'one broad. It was worth 8*l.* now 7*l.*' Domeſday, p. 71.

At the time of the conqueſt, the other eſtate was held under the great but unfortunate Brictric, lord of Tewkeſbury, who was diveſted of it, and the record ſhews how it was diſpoſed of.

'Four villeins held two hides in Tuninge, and 'a thane held half a hide. There are four plow-'tillages, and three acres of meadow. The queen 'gave this eſtate to John the chamberlain. It is 'worth and was worth 35 ſol.' Ibid. p. 68.

The firſt mentioned eſtate continued in the abbey of Winchcombe 'till its diſſolution. The abbat purchaſed a charter of free warren in Twining 35 H. 3. and was impleaded for it in a writ of Quo warranto 15 E. 1. John Cole and others granted one yard land in Twining near Tewkeſbury, to the abbey of Winchcombe 34 E. 1. That abbey aſſigned the manor of Twining to the abbey of St. Ebrulph at Utica in Normandy 2 E. 2. but it reverted again to the monks of Winchcombe.

After the diſſolution of Winchcombe abbey, the manor of Twining, and a meadow ground on the ſide of the Avon, called Upham, were granted to ſir Rafe Sadleir 1 E. 6. and Ralph Sadler, eſq; was was lord of this manor in the year 1608. It paſſed afterwards to Richard Baugh, eſq; who died ſeized of Twining in 1682, and left three daughters coheireſſes, of whom the eldeſt was married to Charles Hancock, eſq; who died ſeized of the manor of Twining in the year 1717. It paſſed afterwards to Peter Hancock, eſq; who dying on the 5th of May, 1776, his widow, Mrs. Anne Hancock, became poſſeſſed of it as part of her jointure. By her he left iſſue two daughters, Anne, married to George Maxwell, of Twining, eſq; and Charlotte, wedded to John Embury, of the ſame place, eſq; to whom, as coheireſſes, the manor will deſcend on the death of their mother. Mr. Maxwell's arms are, Argent, within a bordure gules a ſaltire between two creſcents, one in chief the other in baſe, ſable.

John Conqueſt died ſeized of the manor of Gobe's Hull, within the manor of Tewkeſbury 26 E. 1. The place is now called Gubber Hill. It is an antient ſeat, moated round, formerly belonging to the Reads, but is now the property of HAMLETS. 1. Part of Mythe-Hook, which lies in the hundred of Tewkeſbury.

2. Wood-end, where Thomas Kemble, eſq; has a good eſtate. His arms are given under Tewkeſbury.

3. Church-end, in which is the ſeat of the late Peter Hancock, eſq.

4. Shuthanger, which lies upon the great turnpike-road. Mr. George Turberville died ſeized of a good houſe and eſtate in this hamlet about the year 1775, which are now his widow's. The Turbervilles are an antient family, and bear Checky vert and gules, a feſs ermine.

The Neaſts were a reſpectable family, formerly reſiding here, who enjoyed a good eſtate, now gone out of that name by the marriage of the heir general with the late Mr. Havard, whoſe ſon, Mr. Neaſt Havard of Tewkeſbury is the preſent owner of it. Mr. Havard gives for his arms, Argent, a bull's head caboſhed between three mullets.

The Miſs Woolleys have alſo a good houſe and eſtate here, formerly belonging to the Aycriggs.

5. Hill-end, where John Martyn, of Overbury, eſq; has a good eſtate. Mr. Martyn of Pebworth, who ſerved the office of high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire in the year 1732, gave for his arms, Sable, on a feſs Or three maſcles azure, between as many ſwans heads erazed argent gorged of the ſecond. But I am not abſolutely certain that the Martyns of Overbury bear the ſame arms.

6. Green-end, where Mr. Baldwin's houſe and eſtate lay, now the property of the reverend Mr. Vernon.

Puckrup is not properly a hamlet, but an eſtate formerly Mr. Baldwin's, but now Mr. Phelps's. And Phelps is another good eſtate, belonging to Mr. Warren.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is an impropriation, in the deanery of Winchcombe, worth about 43*l.* a year to the curate. The dean and chapter of Chriſt Church college in Oxford are patrons, and the reverend Mr. Francis Mines is the preſent incumbent. The impropriation and advowſon of the vicarage formerly belonged to the abbey of Winchcombe, and were granted to the chapter of Oxford 38 H. 8. The impropriation pays 30*l.* a year to the curate. The vicarage has no glebe belonging to it.

There was a diſpute in the time of Malger biſhop of Worceſter, and of William abbat of Tewkeſbury, between the church of Tewkeſbury, and that of Twining, concerning certain tithes in this pariſh; which diſpute was amicably adjuſted in the manner expreſſed in the regiſter-book of Tewkeſbury abbey, whence the writing is copied and printed in Mr. Stephens's Supplement to the Monaſticon, p. 201.

Lying near the deanery of Perſhore in Worceſterſhire, this church, by agreement, is viſited by the archdeacon of Worceſterſhire, in exchange for Broadway in the dioceſe of Worceſter, which is viſited by the archdeacon of the dioceſe of Glouceſter.

The church is dedicated to Mary Magdalen, and has a low embattled tower, with ſix muſical bells, at the weſt end.

Firſt fruits	£. 7	9 7	Synodals	£. 0	2 0
Tenths —	0	14 11½	Pentecoſt.	0	1 0
Procurations	0	6 8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a marble monument on the ſouth ſide of the chancel, with the following inſcription:

Qui multa ſolus meruit, unius jacet Monumenti particeps,
Nempe Edwinus Baldwyn,
Patre ſuo Thoma ante annos circiter viginti ſepulto,
Hîc una reconditur.

Generoſus a virtutibus ſuis ſine ære aut marmore celebris futurus, Egregiæ quidem indolis, et qualem paucis contigiſſe ſatis conſtat, Quam autem eâ excoluit induſtriâ, ut hâc ſola minor videretur. Legibus, quibus inſtitutus erat, pari ſucceſſu incubuit, ac integritate Exercuit, utrinq; hominum gratiam et amorem abunde promeruit. Febre tandem hujus unius fato nimium peſtilenti correptus, Virtute, quam annis gravior, et univerſum ſui deſiderium relinquens, occubuit 10^mo die Mart. Anno ætatis ſuæ 55° Æræ Chriſtianæ 1669.

The monument is adorned with theſe arms, Argent, a ſaltire ſable.

Upon another monument, with an exceedingly well finiſhed alabaſter figure of a lady, in the dreſs of her time, and an infant in her arms, it is thus written:

Heare lyeth buried the bodyes of Sybill Clare wyffe to Fraunces Clare Eſquier and Anne their daughter, w^ch Sybill was only daughter & heire apparant unto Gabriel Blycke Eſquier & Margaret his wyffe whoe in y^e 18 yeare of her age gave her in marriage to y^e ſayed Fraunces, a Gentilman bothe worſhipfull in parentage & commendable in good qualites between whom ſuch was the affection & good lykinge as was ſeldom ſeen in their age, ſoe as if they had not ben prevented by deathe they had continewed a rare example, but when they moſte rejoyced their matche they weare ſoneſte devided: for the ſayed Sybill being conceavid with child and after a dewe tyme delivered of a daughter, within one forthnight fell ſycke, & after ſhe had languiſhed certen dayes, ſhe willinglye yealded her innocente ſoule into y^e handes of God the xiii daye of Februarie in the yeare yeare of our Lord 1575, to the unſpeakable loſſe & ſorowe of her deare Parentes, Frendes, and of all that knewe her but moſte eſpeciallye of her lovinge huſband beinge departed from ſo deare a wyffe, well endewed wyth ſondrye rare gyftes bothe of bodye & minde, in whos Remembraunce as an eternal pledge of good will, the ſayed Fraunces cauſed this Monumente to be erected at his proper Coſtes and Charges the 12 of Auguſte in the yeare of our Lord 1577. To whos Soule God graunte a joyfull Reſurrection. Amen.

At the top of the monument are the following arms, Quarterly, 1ſt and 4th, Argent, three chevrons ermine. 2d and 3d quarters are, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Sable, on a chevron argent three pellets, on a chief of the ſecond three black birds. 2d and 3d, Two lions paſſant.

There is a very large monument againſt the eaſt wall of the chancel, with inſcriptions,

For William Hancock, of Norton in the pariſh of Bredon, in the county of Worceſter, eſq; who died in 1676, aged 82.

For William Hancock, his eldeſt ſon, by his firſt wife, who died in 1674, aged 49.

For Charles Hancock, of this pariſh, eſq; who died in 1717, aged 73.

Under the figure of the firſt William Hancock are his arms, viz. Gules, a dexter hand couped argent, on a chief of the ſecond three fighting cocks of the firſt.

The laſt-mentioned monument is ornamented with paintings of ſhips, as if the family had been much concerned in naval affairs.

On the table of another monument in the chancel, it is thus written:

Juxta ſepultæ ſunt mortales Reliquiæ Thomæ Neaſt, Generoſi, Et quod corruptabile eſt, Spe reſurgendi Anima evolavit ſuperiores ad auras, ſanctaſq; ſedes Aprilis duodecimo, Annoq; ſalutis Mileſimo ſexcenteſimo octageſimo octavo, Redamatus ab omnibus, multiſq; deſideratus. Iam pergas, Lector, et ſi poſſis imitare. Anna Neaſt mœrens poſuit.

Over the monument are theſe arms, Per pale, baron and femme, 1. Argent, two lions paws erazed in ſaltire gules, for Neaſt. 2. Argent, on a croſs ſable a leopards face caboſhed Or, for Bridges.

There are ſeveral inſcriptions for the Baughs, particularly for Edward Baugh, gent. late one of the coroners for this county, who died in 1773. Their arms are, Gules, a feſs vaire between three mullets Or.

Benefactions.

Richard Edgock gave a farm in Twining, worth about 25*l.* a year, half to the miniſter, and half to the poor for ever. And Richard Portman, clerk, gave 40*s.* a year for ever, one half to the miniſter, and the other to the poor. As did John Reeks 6*s.* 8*d.* to the miniſter, and 13*s.* 4*d.* to the poor for a term.

John Beſt gave 50*s.* a year to the poor, and John Turberville gave twelve pecks of wheat to be diſtributed to the poor on St. Thomas day, yearly, for ever.

Charles Hancock, eſq; gave two ſilver flaggons for the communion, and 3*s.* 4*d.* a year is charged on a houſe at Tewkeſbury towards the repair of the church.

Twining.

Taxes.			£.
The Royal Aid in	1692,		75	14	0
Poll-tax —	1694,	—	71	8	0
Land-tax —	1694,	—	190	0	0
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770,	—	133	15	6

Mythe.

Taxes.			£.
The Royal Aid in	1692,		94	0	0
Poll-tax —	1694,	—	6	16	0
Land-tax —	1694,	—	70	13	4
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770,	—	54	7	3

There were 140 houſes, and about 600 inhabitants in the pariſh, at the beginning of this century, whereof 37 were freeholders; yearly births 15, burials 13. Atkyns. The number of ſouls is now about 567.

****

U L E Y.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Berkeley, above four miles north-eaſtward from Wotton-underedge, two eaſt from Durſley, and fourteen ſouth from Glouceſter.

The name of it has been variouſly written, as Euuelege, Iweley, and Uley, and was given it on account of the many ſprings that riſe here, for, like that of Durſley, it ſignifies the Watry Place.

The middle, and perhaps the greater part of the pariſh is paſture ground, interſperſed with orcharding, but there is ſome arable, and a great deal of woodland. The herbs Centaury, Lady's Mantle, Maidenhair, Agrimony, Vervain, and ſeveral other medicinal plants, are found in various parts of it.

It is bounded on the eaſt by part of the little village of Olepen, and, together with it, forms a deep comb, or valley, about a mile over, beautifully adorned with borderings of beech-wood, and plantations of fir, on the ſides of the lofty hills that everywhere encompaſs it, except to the weſt. Defended by thoſe hills from the chilling blaſts to which open ſituations are expoſed, vegetation is forward in the ſpring, and the winter not ſo ſevere as in moſt of the neighbouring places. It has an opening weſtward to the Vale, and a ſmall bourn, formed of the ſprings which riſe here, takes its courſe that way, and together with the Durſley water, runs into the Severn at Slimbridge.

Part of the hill on the north ſide of the village ſhoots out in a rocky head, and is united by a narrow neck of land to the open plain adjoining to the pariſh of Nimpsfield. This ſpot of ground is called the Berry, from the oblong camp on the top of it, for Berry, or Bury, is but another name for a camp. Thus we have Berrybank in Staffordſhire, Berryhill in Hampſhire, Egbury, Dunbury, Okebury, and many other Berries in various parts of the kingdom beſides Glouceſterſhire. That which I am now deſcribing is very ſtrong by ſituation, with double intrenchments round the edge of the hill, incloſing the whole ſpace of ground on the top, conſiſting of thirty or forty acres; and the declivity without is ſo great as to ſecure it from any powerful attack, except at the entrance. This was certainly a Roman camp, as I prove by the coins which have been found about about it, (the greater part being of the emperors Antoninus and Conſtantine) of which Mr. Small, late owner of the eſtate, has made a collection.

Our anceſtors delighted in ſheltered ſituations, and Uley, from early ages, ſeems to have been the reſidence of many good families; but leaving the antient ſtate of the village, to be reſumed under the account of the manor, the following places engage our preſent attention.

Stout's-Hill is a handſome new houſe, with octagonal projections, turreted, and ornamented in the Gothic taſte. It ſtands in a lawn of excellent verdure, upon an eminence that commands a view of the village in front, with a curtain of fine beech wood, hanging, as it were, from the ſlope of the hill, at a very agreeable diſtance to the ſouth. It is the property and reſidence of Timothy Gyde, eſq; who has a good eſtate in the pariſh, and gives for his arms, Azure, on a chevron between three fleurs de lis Or, as many mullets of the field. This is alſo the place of the writer's nativity, where he collected his firſt ideas, and for which he ſtill indulges a natural partiality.

Ille terrarum mihi præter omnes
Angulus ridet. . . . . .
Ver ubi longum, tepidaſque præbet
Jupiter brumas. . . . . . Hor. O. vii.

There are two other good houſes at the Green, near the church. One of them is the property of John Holbrow, eſq; where he reſides, and has alſo a very good eſtate in the pariſh. He is the ſon of the late William Holbrow, eſq; who was high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire in the year 1741. The preſent Mr. Holbrow is in the commiſſion of the peace for the county, and gives for his arms, Azure, a bend between ſix mullets argent.

The other was built in the time of king James the Firſt, by one of the Dorneys, (a family of antient ſtanding in this pariſh) as appears by their name in the front, and who then poſſeſſed the eſtate belonging to it. It was afterwards ſold to the Smalls, and is now the property of Mrs. Small, relict of the late Mr. John Small, who died in January, 1778.

Bencombe is a good houſe, where the Dorneys have long reſided, and now belongs to Mr. Edward Dorney, who has a good eſtate there. His arms are, Gules, a chevron vaire between three creſcents Or.

This village, tho' not large, is very populous, from a manufacture of fine broad cloth long eſtabliſhed here. It is ſtill carried on by ſeveral perſons in a very extenſive manner, and furniſhes employment for the lower claſs of people. But idleneſs and debauchery are ſo deeply rooted in them, by means of thoſe ſeminaries of vice called Alehouſes, that the poor are very burthenſome. Theſe houſes are ſcattered all over the country, and are daily increaſing, which we owe either to the magiſtrates inattention, or indulgence; or, perhaps, to a miſtaken notion of ſerving the community by increaſing the public revenue from licences; but they may be aſſured that nothing can compenſate for depravity of morals, and the loſs of induſtry.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

This place was a member of the great lordſhip of Berkeley at the time of the general ſurvey, as appears by a paſſage in Domeſday, p. 68, and by the tranſlation of it under Berkeley, p. 271, where there is nothing further recorded than that 'In 'Euuelege are two hides.'

It has been fully related under the account of the laſt-mentioned town, that the lordſhip of Berkeley, with its members, was given by king Henry the Second to Robert Fitz-Harding, anceſtor to the preſent earl of Berkeley; and this eſtate continued in the elder branch of his lordſhip's family, 'till it was ſettled on Maurice Berkeley, ſecond ſon of Maurice lord Berkeley, ſome time in the reign of king Edward the Third. That Maurice Berkeley was anceſtor to the Berkeleys of Stoke Giffard, whoſe deſcendants held Uley in an uninterrupted ſucceſſion to the end of the reign of king Richard the Third, when ſir William Berkeley took part with that king, and was in the battle of Boſworth. Victory declaring for the earl of Richmond, afterwards king Henry the Seventh, ſir William fled into Britainy, and was attainted 1 H. 7. and his eſtates were ſeized by the crown.

Jaſper duke of Bedford, the king's uncle, had a grant of Uley to himſelf, and the heirs male of his body, 1 H. 7. But afterwards ſir William Berkeley made his peace with the king, and took a grant of the reverſion after the duke's eſtate taille, 4 H. 7. whereby this eſtate returned to his family. The earl of Berkeley is the preſent lord of the manor of Uley.

There were two dependant manors in the pariſh. Baſſet's court was a reputed manor, wherein the Baſſets had an antient ſeat. Sir Anſelm Baſſet married Margaret, daughter of Thomas lord Berkeley, and of Joan, the daughter of Ralph Somery, lord of Campden, and with her had this eſtate. William Baſſet was lord of Baſſet's court in the year 1608. Richard Baſſet was ſequeſtered in the great rebellion, and paid a compoſition of 653*l.* William Baſſet, a deſcendant from the laſt William, left two daughters, Elizabeth and Margaret, coheireſſes, of whom Elizabeth, the ſurvivor, was married to William Weſcombe, who ſold this eſtate to ſeveral perſons upwards of twenty years ſince, and there is now only a ſmall part of the antient manſion houſe remaining. The Baſſets gave for their arms, Ermine, on a canton gules a mullet Or.

The White Court was another reputed manor, which is ſaid to have had two parks formerly belonging to it. The manor houſe has been totally totally demoliſhed time immemorially, but there is a kind of hamlet that ſtill retains the name of the White Court.

Bencombe lies on the ſouth ſide of the pariſh, upon an eminence at the head of the combe, or valley, which gave occaſion to its name, and is mentioned in records.

It belonged to the Berkeley family when they firſt had Uley. Peter de Iweley died ſeized of it 1 R. 1. John de Benecomb died alſo ſeized of it, and left Agnes, his only daughter and heireſs, married to John de Couel (de Coaley) in the reign of king Edward the Third.

It has been obſerved that Mr. Edward Dorney has a good houſe and eſtate there.

The records mention, that Elianor the widow of John de Veel, ſon of ſir Peter le Veel, held lands in Uley for her life. Sir William Rumſey levied a fine of the reverſion of thoſe lands to ſir John Popham and Elizabeth his wife 3 H. 4.

Beſides the above, there are places in Uley of the following names, viz. Toney, Crawley's Shard, Shoreditch, Shadwell, Ellcombe, Rowdon, Bawcot, which in the Britiſh ſignifies a little wood; Angerſton, perhaps more truly Hengaerſton, the town at the antient camp; Reſdon, the Hurn, and ſome others; which names are ſuppoſed to be all ſignificant, and expreſſive of ſome ſtriking circumſtances peculiar to the reſpective places.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Durſley, worth about 140*l.* a year. Roger lord Berkeley gave the advowſon of it to the priory of Stanley St. Leonard's; and thirty acres in the pariſh now pay tithes to Stanley. The lord chancellor is patron, and the reverend Mr. John Gregory is the preſent incumbent. There are ſixteen acres for the glebe. The rectory pays 13*s.* 4*d.* a year to the crown.

Sir Herbert Croftes, baronet, afterwards biſhop of Hereford, was rector of this church in 1667.

The church is dedicated to St. Giles. It has no aile, but there are two handſome galleries at the weſt end, and a low embattled tower on the north ſide.

Firſt fruits	£.	12	3	4	Synodals	£. 0	2	0
Tenths	—	1	4	4	Pentecoſt.	0	0	6
Procurations		0	6	8

Benefactions.

Mr. William Pegler, who died in 1695, gave a parcel of land, and 10*l.* in money, to the uſe of the poor; and an eſtate belonging to Mr. John Holbrow is charged with 10*s.* a year in lieu of the latter.

The reverend Mr. Henry Stubs gave 50*l.* to the pariſh, to eſtabliſh a ſchool for teaching poor children to write. And he alſo gave 10*s.* a year in books for the poor.

Mr. Tether gave 30*s.* a year to be diſtributed to the poor on St. Thomas day, and 10*s.* for a ſermon. And Thomas Parſlow gave 10*s.* a year to the poor.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 103	4	0
Poll-tax — — 1694, —	37	8	0
Land-tax —— 1694, -	114	1	1
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	84	17	6

It is ſaid there were 200 houſes in this pariſh, and about 900 inhabitants, of whom 80 were freeholders, at the beginning of this century; yearly births 21, and burials 19. Atkyns. In the year 1748, the number of ſouls was 1162, and ſince that time they are increaſed to about 1310.

UPLEADEN

IS a ſmall pariſh, in the hundred of Botloe, three miles eaſtward from Newent, and about ſix north-weſtward from Glouceſter.

It lies in the Vale, on the weſt bank of the river Leden, by which it is bounded, and from which it takes its name. The lands, like the circumjacent fine country, are abundantly rich in corn and paſture, but the pariſh has nothing particular to recommend it to the notice of the antiquary or naturaliſt.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

This manor belonged very antiently to the abbey of Glouceſter, as appears by a paſſage in Domeſday-book, of which the following is a tranſlation:

'The ſame church [St. Peter at Glouceſter] 'holds Ledene in Botelawes hundred. There are 'four hides. In demean are two plow-tillages, 'and eight villeins, and one bordar, with eight 'plow-tillages. There are four ſervi, and a mill 'of 4*s.* and ten acres of meadow. A wood two 'miles long, and two furlongs broad. It is worth 'ſcarcely 30 ſol.' Domeſday, p. 71.

The abbat of Glouceſter had a writ of Quo warranto brought againſt him, to oblige him to ſet forth his right to free warren here, and his claim to that privilege was allowed 15 E. 1.

The manor continued in the abbey 'till the general diſſolution, when it paſſed to the crown, by which it was afterwards granted to John Arnold, who died ſeized of it 37 H. 8. and livery was granted to ſir Nicholas Arnold, his ſon and heir, the ſame year. Rowland Arnold, ſon of ſir Nicholas, left an only daughter Dorothy, married to ſir Thomas Lucy, of Charlecot in Warwickſhire, who was lord of the manor in the year 1608. It paſſed afterwards to Thomas Brown, eſq; alderman of Glouceſter, who was owner of it at the beginning of this century, and Mrs. Broxoline is the preſent proprietor.

Of

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a curacy, in the Foreſt deanery, worth 20*l.* a year, to which the dean and chapter of Glouceſter preſent.

The impropriation, formerly belonging to the abbey of Glouceſter, was granted to the chapter of that ſee, 33 H. 8. It is now in leaſe to Mrs. Broxoline, and pays 14*l.* 10*s.* a year to the curate.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in	1692,	£.	78	14	0
Poll-tax — —	1694,	—	7	16	0
Land-tax ——	1694,	—	69	14	0
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770,	—	52	5	6

Sir Robert Atkyns reckoned 25 houſes in this pariſh, and eſtimated the people at about 100, 7 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 2, burials 2. The preſent number of houſes is only 19, and the inhabitants are ſuppoſed to be proportionably decreaſed.

UPTON St. LEONARD's.

THIS pariſh lies in the united hundreds of Dudſton and King's-barton, about three miles north from Painſwick, and three ſouth-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

With reſpect to Upton, or Optune, as it was antiently written, it will be ſufficient juſt to obſerve, that the village is ſeated on a gentle elevation, in the vale, which certainly ſuggeſted the firſt idea of the name.

Creed's Place is a very handſome new brick houſe, the property and reſidence of Robert Campbell, eſq; who built it upon an eſtate which he purchaſed of John Guiſe, eſq; about the year 1770.

Whitley Court is alſo a handſome ſeat, belonging to Peter Snell, eſq; who reſides there.

I don't find that there are any antiquities or curious natural productions here, but the hills adjoining to the ſouthward yield iron ore, or ochre, as appears from a ſpring of water that runs down the road, tinging the ſtones in its courſe of a rediſh yellow colour.

Of the Manors and other Eſtates.

Upton was a member of the great manor of Bertune, before, and at the time of the general ſurvey, and is entered in the record among the demeans of the crown, under the title Terra Regis.

'Aluui, the ſheriff, claims Optune, another 'member [of the manor of Bertune]. There is 'one hide of land, and there are four [free] men. 'Hunfridus holds it.' Domeſday, p. 67.

But ſir Robert Atkyns has placed another abſtract from Domeſday to the account of this pariſh, which has nothing to do with it, but belongs to Utone, or Wotton, near Glouceſter.

There were formerly two manors in this pariſh of the common name of Upton. Want of diſtinction occaſions great difficulty in applying the records with preciſion, but I ſhall endeavour to point out the deſcent of each manor in regular ſucceſſion.

Walkelyn de Fabrica held Uptone of king Edward the Firſt, by the ſervice of paying two hundred arrow heads. He pleaded his right in the proceedings on a writ of Quo warranto brought againſt him 15 E. 1. and his claim was then allowed.

Edmond Fitz-Alan, earl of Arundel, was ſeized of the manor of Upton; but being beheaded at Hereford, in the unſettled reign of king Edward the Second, all his lands here came to the crown, and were granted to Richard de Munemuth 4 E. 3. Richard earl of Arundel, ſon of Edmond, was ſeized of one tenement, and one mill in Upton St. Leonard, and of the hundred of King's Barton, 21 R. 2. Elizabeth, widow of Thomas duke of Norfolk, and daughter of Richard earl of Arundel, was ſeized of Upton 3 H. 6. John duke of Norfolk was ſeized of the manor of Upton St. Leonard's 11 H. 6. John duke of Norfolk, and Elizabeth his wife, levied a fine of it 8 E. 4. Joan, the widow of William de Beauchamp, lord de Bergavenny, one of the ſiſters and heirs of Thomas earl of Arundel, died ſeized of the manor of Upton St. Leonard's 14 H. 6. as did Beatrix, the widow of Thomas earl of Arundel, 18 H. 6. Eleanor, the widow of ſir Walter Hungerford, late wife of ſir Richard Poinings, and formerly the wife of John earl of Arundel, died ſeized of Upton 33 H. 6.

Another manor of the name of Upton belonged to the Berkeley family for ſeveral ages ſucceſſively.

Thomas lord Berkeley died ſeized of Upton St. Leonard's 35 E. 3. as did Maurice lord Berkeley, his ſon, in the 42d year of the ſame reign. Thomas lord Berkeley, ſon of Maurice, had livery the next year, and dying 5 H. 5. left Elizabeth, his only daughter and heir, married to Richard Beauchamp, earl of Warwick. Edward Nevil, lord Bergavenny, married Elizabeth, the daughter of Richard Beauchamp, earl of Warwick, in whoſe right he was ſeized of the manor of Upton, and died 16 E. 4. Thomas lord Berkeley died poſſeſſed of this manor 24 H. 8. whereupon Thomas lord Berkeley, his ſon, had livery granted him the ſame year, and died in the 26th year of that reign. Henry lord Berkeley, ſon of the laſt Thomas, had livery 3 Mariæ.

The manor of Upton was granted to Walter Pye and William Beal 2 Jac. It is now divided among ſeveral freeholders, but the late Mr. Singleton, lord of Dudſton and King's Barton hundred, was lord paramount.

Bullins is a reputed manor in this pariſh, belonging to Mr. Selwyn.

Grove Court is another reputed manor, formerly the property of a family who ſeem to have taken their name from this eſtate. Jeoffery de la Grave held one yard-land in Upton by the ſervice of attending the king, in his wars againſt Wales, with bow and arrows forty days at his own charge, and afterwards at the king's coſt, 5 H. 3. and Sibilla de la Grave held lands in Upton St. Leonard's of the king in capite, by the ſame ſervice, 10 E. 2. Eſch. This eſtate paſſed afterwards to the Berkeleys, and was the property of Richard Walter, eſq; at the beginning of the preſent century. It now belongs to Mrs. Bliſſet, of Chancery Lane, London.

John the ſon of Nicholas le Broke granted divers lands in Upton St. Leonard, Glouceſter, Barton Abbats, Kynemerſbury, and Sneedham, to the abbey of Glouceſter 3 E. 2. and that abbey held two plow-tillages in Upton, each worth 30*s. per ann.* 17 E. 3. William Nottingham, eſq; the king's attorney-general, gave the manor of Sneedham, &c. to the abbey of Glouceſter, for the purpoſe of erecting a chantry in the abbey, 10 E. 4.

Part of Snedeham in the pariſh of Upton St. Leonard, late belonging to the abbey of Glouceſter, and containing twenty-ſix acres and a half, was ſold by the crown, Sep. 11, 34 H. 8. to the mayor and burgeſſes of Glouceſter, who conveyed it to Thomas Lane, eſq; the following year. Theſe lands, with ſome others, were to be held by the 20th part of a knight's fee, and by the payment of 3*s.* 6*d. ob.* to the court of augmentation.

Lands and tithes in Upton belonged to the abbey of Perſhore, and were granted to John Butler 37 H. 8.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a curacy, in the deanery of Glouceſter, worth 20*l.* a year from the impropriation. The rectory and advowſon of the vicarage of Upton St. Leonard belonged to the abbey of Glouceſter, and were granted to the biſhoprick 33 H. 8. and confirmed 6 E. 6. The biſhop of Glouceſter is patron and impropriator, and the reverend Mr. Charles Biſhop is the preſent incumbent.

The church, dedicated to St. Leonard, has an aile on the north ſide, and an embattled tower at the weſt end, in which are five bells.

An eſtate worth about 15*l.* a year is given for the repair of the church.

Synodals 1*s.* Pentecoſtals 1*s.* 2*d.*

Taxes.
	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	151	6	8
	Poll-tax —— 1694, —		17	1	0
	Land-tax —— 1694, —		238	8	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		179	2	0

There were 110 houſes in the pariſh, and about 450 inhabitants at the beginning of this century, 40 of whom were reputed to be freeholders; yearly births 12, burials 10. But the people are now decreaſed to about 300.

WALTON CARDIFFE

IS an inconſiderable pariſh, in the lower diviſion of Tewkeſbury hundred, about one mile ſouth-eaſtward from the town of that name, and nine northward from Glouceſter.

The pariſh conſiſts chiefly of rich meadow and paſture, and is watered by the little river Tirle, or Turle, which comes from Aſhchurch, and after joining the Swilyate at this place, runs down to Tewkeſbury.

What is the ſignification of Walton, I ſhall leave to the determination of others, but the cognomen of Cardiffe was certainly taken from the family of de Kaerdyff, to whom the manor belonged, and diſtinguiſhes this place from Walton in the neighbouring pariſh of Derhurſt.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

Walton was dependant on the great manor of Tewkeſbury in the reign of king Edward the Confeſſor, as appears by the tranſlation from Domeſday-book, inſerted under Tewkeſbury.

It continued to be a member of the ſame lordſhip, and was held of Richard de Clare, earl of Glouceſter and Hertford, 47 H. 3.

In the ſheriff's liſt of all the vills of the county, with their reſpective lords, returned into the exchequer 9 E. 1. it is ſaid, that William de Kerdiffe was lord of Walton Kerdiffe in Tewkeſbury hundred, but that it was then in the hands of Margaret counteſs of Glouceſter and Hertford.

It appears by the eſcheator's inquiſition, taken 8 E. 2. after the death of Gilbert de Clare, earl of Glouceſter, that Paulinus de Kerdyff then held Walton of the ſaid earl; and by another inquiſition, it likewiſe appears, that the ſame Paul de Kaerdyff died 9 E. 2. ſeized of the hamlet of Walton, which he held of the counteſs of Glouceſter, as of the honour of Tewkeſbury, by the fourth part of a knight's fee, and left William de Kaerdyff his ſon and heir, ſixteen years old. Joan the widow of —— Kaerdiff, and afterwards the widow of John de Wynecote, was endowed of Walton Kaerdiff, and died 23 E. 3. Robert Underhill and Evet his wife levied a fine of Walton Kaerdiffe, to Edward de Kaerdiff and Joan his wife, to —— Impringham of Tewkeſbury, to Thomas Geſtock, and to John Bandrip and Elizabeth his wife, 37 E. 3. And Edward de Kaerdiffe and Joan his wife were ſeized thereof in the 43d year of the ſame reign.

William de Cheſterton, and others, were ſeized of the manor of Walton Kaerdiff 7 R. 2. as was Edward earl of Stafford 4 H. 4.

John Baſſet, of Bentbury in Glamorganſhire, in right of Elizabeth his wife, was ſeized of Walton at the time of his death, 4 H. 8. William Baſſet, ſon of John, dying before his father, William Baſſet, ſon of William, became heir to his grandfather, and had livery of the manor granted to him 22 H. 8.

William

William lord Willoughby, and Thomas Hurmage and Catherine his wife, levied a fine of the moiety of the manor of Walton Caerdif to the king, 3 E. 6. James Gunter and Anne his wife, levied a fine of Walton Cardiff, and Walton Baſſet, to Thomas Barew and Margaret his wife, 1 Mar.

The manor came afterwards to the Reads, who enjoyed it for many years. Giles Read, eſq; was lord of it in 1608, and Foulk Read, eſq; was proprietor of it in 1658. The manor is now veſted in the corporation of Tewkeſbury.

Three cloſes in Walton, which had belonged to the abbey of Tewkeſbury, were granted to Thomas Sheldon and Lawrence Poyner, 36 H. 8. The tithes of Walton Caerdiffe, and divers lands, reputed to be a manor, part of the poſſeſſions of Tewkeſbury abbey, were granted, together with a moiety of lands in Derhurſt Place, to William Read and John Read, 7 E. 6. Another portion of tithes, formerly the property of that houſe, was granted to Daniel Perte and Alexander Perte, the ſame year. Another portion of tithes in Nether Gaſton in Walton Cardiff, and tithes of hay in Walton Cardiff, which had belonged to the ſame monaſtery, were granted to Francis Maurice and Francis Phillips, in truſt for ſir William Ryder, 7 Jac.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is an impropriation, in the deanery of Winchcombe, worth 17*l.* 10*s.* to the curate, who is nominated by All Souls college, Oxford. Foulk Read, eſq; in 1658, gave the ſmall tithes to the curate, and the ſame year built the chapel, which is dedicated to St. James. The pariſhioners bury at Tewkeſbury and Aſhchurch.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 79	17	0
Poll-tax —— 1694, —	7	10	0
Land-tax —— 1694, —	116	0	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	88	5	1½

At the beginning of this century, there were 14 houſes in the pariſh, and about 56 inhabitants, 4 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 1, burials 1. Atkyns. There are now 6 families in the pariſh.

WAPLEY and CODRINGTON.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Grumbald's Aſh, about ſix miles diſtant north-weſt from Marſhfield, three ſouth-weſtward from Chipping Sodbury, and about thirty-two ſouthward from Glouceſter.

The ſoil is fruitful, and the greater part of the pariſh is in paſturage. The river Boyd riſes in the hamlet of Codrington, and runs thro' Bitton, where it empties itſelf into the Avon. The face of the country is exceedingly diverſified with ſlopes, ſwells, and agreeable declivities, but the pariſh yields nothing curious for the entertainment of the naturaliſt or antiquary.

The large manor houſe, called Codrington Court, is now occupied as a farm houſe.

Of the Manors and other Eſtates.

A part of Wapley was conſidered as a member of the great manor of Betune, in Suinheve, now Langley and Swineſhead hundred, and is entered under the title Terra Regis in Domeſday-book. There were likewiſe two other eſtates here, which are thus deſcribed in the record:

'The biſhop of St. Laud at Conſtance holds 'Wapelie in Polcrecerce hundred, and Aldred 'holds it of him. The ſame perſon held it in 'the time of king Edward. There is one hide, 'and one plow-tillage in demean, and two ſervi. 'It is worth and was worth 20 ſol.' Domeſday, p. 71.

'Radulf the brother of Roger [de Berchelai] 'holds Wapelie, in Pulchecerce hundred, of the 'king. There is one hide. Godric held it. 'There is one plow-tillage in demean, and four 'ſervi. It is worth and was worth 20 ſol.' Ibid. p. 75.

The manors of Wapley and Codrington were granted by king Henry the Second to Radulph ſon of Stephen, who immediately gave them to the abbey of Stanley, in the dioceſe of Saliſbury, to pray for the ſoul of the king, and for the ſouls of himſelf and his family.

The ſheriff returned that the abbat of Stanley was lord of the manor of Codrinton, in Grymbaldeaſhe hundred, 9 E. 1. and a writ of Quo warranto was brought againſt the abbat, in the 15th year of the ſame reign, to oblige him to ſet forth his right to court leet and felons goods within the manor of Codrington, and his claim to thoſe privileges was then allowed.

The abbat of Stanley obtained a licence for alienating the manor of Wapley, reſerving a rent of 11*l.* a year, for the repair of his abbey. Accordingly it was ſold to John de Codrington, and to the heirs of his body, 33 H. 6. and John de Codrington obtained from pope Martin the Fifth, in the 12th year of his pontificate, a licence for having a portable conſecrated altar for the celebration of maſs in what places he pleaſed.

Simon Codrington, eſq; was lord of the manor in the year 1608, as was his deſcendant, Robert Codrington, of Didmarton, eſq; at the beginning of the preſent century. The manor continued in the Codrington family, 'till it paſſed out of that name to ſir Richard Bamfylde, by his marriage with Jane, daughter and ſole heir of colonel John Codrington, of Wraxall in Somerſetſhire. Sir Richard Bamfylde, baronet, died in the year 1776, and his relict, lady Bamfylde, is the preſent owner of the manors of Wapley and Codrington. The arms of Bamfylde are, Or, upon a bend gules three mullets argent.

HAMLET. Codrington is a conſiderable hamlet, once the reſidence of the Codringtons, who who took their name from it, agreeable to the cuſtom of antient times. The abbey of Stanley in Wiltſhire was ſeized of Cudelington, alias Cotherington, 33 H. 6. John Sloper, lord of this manor, died in the year 1550, and left an only daughter and heireſs, married to ſir Walter Dennys, who likewiſe left an only daughter and heireſs, married to Simon Codrington. From this time the manors of Wapley and Codrington have been enjoyed by the ſame perſons, and lady Bamfylde is the preſent proprietor.

Mouſwell is a place in this pariſh, where ſir Thomas Roe had an eſtate, which he charged with the payment of 25*l.* a year to the town of Cirenceſter for apprenticing out poor boys, &c. Theſe lands now belong to Mrs. Dorrington of Chipping Sodbury.

Robert Stanſhaw, eſq; died ſeized of lands in Wapley 12 E. 4. John Stanſhaw and Humphry his brother levied a fine of lands in Wapley and Codrington 12 H. 7. Lands in Wapeley belonged to St. Auguſtin's abbey in Briſtol, and were granted to the dean and chapter of that city 34 H. 8.

John Cotherington and Alice his wife levied a fine of lands in Cotherington to the uſe of themſelves for life, remainder to Humphry, John, and Thomas, their ſons, ſucceſſively in taille; remainder to Margaret Beſiles, late wife of ſir Peter Beſiles, in taille, 49 H. 6.

Lands in Cotherington belonged to the Benedictine nunnery of Pynely in Warwickſhire, and were granted to Thomas Reeve and Richard Bullet 5 Mariæ. Lands called Magdalen's Croft, in Codrington, belonged to the Magdalen hoſpital in Briſtol, and were granted to Henry Brain and John Marſh 37 H. 8.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the deanery of Hawkeſbury, worth 35*l.* a year, and in the patronage of the lady of the manor, who holds the rectory and advowſon of the vicarage by leaſe from the dean and chapter of Briſtol. The reverend Mr. Gold is the preſent incumbent. The advowſon belonged to St. Auguſtin's abbey in Briſtol, and was granted, together with the impropriation, to the dean and chapter of that ſee, 34 H. 8.

The abbat of Stanley would have erected a chapel in Codrington, but the meaſure was oppoſed by the abbey of St. Auguſtin, as being prejudicial to the church of Wapley, of which they were patrons. This controverſy was ſettled in the year 1280, when the abbat of Stanley had permiſſion to build a chapel for the ſole uſe of the capital meſſuage at Codrington; but no other perſons were to reſort to it without leave from the miniſter of Wapley.

The church, dedicated to St. Peter, is ſmall, and has an aile on the ſouth ſide, which was the burying place of the Codrington family.

Firſt fruits	£. 7	18	0	Synodals £. 0	2	0
Tenths —	0	15	9½	Pentecoſt. 0	1	6
Procurations	0	6	8

Monument and Inſcription.

Several of the Codringtons lie buried in the ſouth aile, particularly John Codrington, eſq; for whom there is an altar monument, and upon a ſmall freeſtone tablet againſt the wall, this inſcription:

Hic jacet Iohēs Codrynton Armiger qui obijt nono die Menſis Octobris Anno Dni M°CCCC°LXXV° Cujus Ætas erat die quo obijt CXI annor. V menſium XIII dierum. Cujus aie p'piciet' de' Amen.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in	1692,	£.	170	2	8
Poll-tax —	1694,	—	18	2	0
Land-tax —	1694,	—	191	12	0
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770,	—	150	7	3

There were 45 houſes in this pariſh at the beginning of the preſent century, and about 180 inhabitants, 5 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 5, burials 4. Atkyns. The people are increaſed within the laſt ſixty years, and are now about 200 in number.

WASHBOURN (GREAT)

IS a ſmall pariſh, in the upper diviſion of Tewkeſbury hundred, ſeven miles eaſtward from the town of that name, five north from Winchcombe, and about fifteen north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

It lies in the Vale, and has a ſmall brook which runs into the river Carrant. It is one of thoſe places of which there is but little mention, except in rent-rolls and books of account, where, I ſuppoſe, it makes a handſome figure; for the ſoil is rich and fertile, and the greater part of the land is paſture. However, Anthony a Wood takes notice, that the great traveller John Cartwright was of this pariſh, and publiſhed his travels into Judea, Perſia, and other eaſtern parts, in the year 1611.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

Waſeborne belonged to the church of Tewkeſbury when Domeſday, was compiled, for the record takes notice that the abbey held three hides in Waſeborne, and that there were two plow-tillages, and ſix villeins, with three plow-tillages; and one bordar, and nine ſervi, with one ancilla. p. 68.

After the diſſolution of the abbey of Tewkeſbury, this manor was granted to Anne Forteſcue, widow of ſir Adrian Forteſcue, and to the heirs males of ſir Adrian, 5 Mariæ. Sir Francis Forteſcue was lord of it in the year 1608. It paſſed afterwards to Mr. Starkey, and is now veſted in lord Craven, who holds a court leet.

Of

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a curacy, in the deanery of Campden, worth 5*l.* 10*s.* a year. Mr. Dark is patron and impropriator, and Mr. Roberts is the preſent incumbent.

The rectory formerly belonged to the abbey of Tewkeſbury, and was granted to Drew Drurey and Edward Downing 16 Eliz. The curate has no houſe nor glebe.

The church is a ſmall building, with a wooden turret in the middle. It is dedicated to St. Mary, and has divine ſervice performed in it only once a fortnight.

Pentecoſtals - - 4½*d.*

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 88	18	0
Poll-tax —— 1694, —	3	10	0
Land-tax — 1694, —	29	14	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	29	14	0

There were 14 houſes in the pariſh, and about 60 inhabitants, 3 of whom were reputed to be freeholders, at the beginning of the preſent century. And the people are about the ſame number at this time.

WELFORD.

THIS pariſh lies in the upper diviſion of Derhurſt hundred, nine miles diſtant north from Campden, four ſouth from Stratford upon Avon in Warwickſhire, and thirty-ſix north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

It is bounded by Weſton upon Avon on the eaſt, by Dorſington on the ſouth, and on the north and north-weſt by the river Avon, which ſeparates it from Warwickſhire.

It is a rich ſoil, abundantly fertile in corn and paſture; but the public roads in all this part of the county are very incommodious, and almoſt impaſſible in the winter ſeaſon. They are either carried through miry lanes, or along head lands in the common fields, ſo that the traveller is obliged to ſhape his courſe in a zig-zag direction, as the ground will permit.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

Domeſday takes notice of Welford among the vills in Derhurſt hundred, which were held by the church of St. Dennis at Paris, and obſerves, that there were fifteen hides. But as the record will not bear abridgment, the reader is referred to p. 72. where he will find the whole account in the original language.

The priory of Derhurſt, which was a cell to the abbey of St. Dennis, held the manor of the earls of Glouceſter, and the ſame houſe continued poſſeſſed of it 'till the diſſolution of alien priories, when this manor was granted to the abbey of Tewkeſbury.

After the general diſſolution of religious houſes, this manor was granted by the crown to William Willington, of Barcheſton in Warwickſhire, in taille, the remainder to Edward Grevil of Milcote, and Margaret his wife, daughter of William Willington, and to her heirs, 7 E. 6.

Lodowick, or Lewis Grevil, only ſon of Edward and Margaret, had livery of this manor granted to him 1 Eliz. Sir Edward Grevil of Milcot, only ſon of Lodowick, was lord of this manor in the year 1608; but being much involved in debt, he ſold his whole eſtate to Lionel Cranfield earl of Middleſex, whoſe daughter Frances carried this manor, by her marriage, to Richard Sackville, fifth earl of Dorſet. Charles Sackville, ſixth earl of Dorſet, died Jan. 29, 1705-6, and was ſucceeded by his only ſon Lionel-Cranfield, ſeventh earl and firſt duke of Dorſet, who was lord of the manor of Welford at the beginning of this century, and the duke of Dorſet is the preſent lord of the manor. His grace's arms are, Quarterly Or and gules, over all a bend vairé. CREST. Out of a ducal coronet Or, an eſtoile of eight points argent. SUPPORTERS. Two leopards argent, ſpotted ſable. MOTTO. AUT NUNQUAM TENTES AUT PERFICE.

The records mention other perſons as proprietors of the manor. Thus it is ſaid, ſir Thomas Weſt and Alice his wife were ſeized of the manor of Welford 10 R. 2. and John Grevil, eſq; died ſeized of it 23 H. 6. But they could only be tenants under the priory of Derhurſt.

William Hoeſe and Margaret his wife purchaſed lands in Welford of Ralph de Welford, which lands had been formerly purchaſed by the ſaid Margaret, and by William Comyn her former huſband, 5 H. 3. A tenement in Welford belonged to the Ciſtercian abbey of Bordeſley in Worceſterſhire, and was granted to Robert earl of Leiceſter 16 Eliz.

HAMLETS. 1. Bickmarſh, containing one family. In the antient ſurvey, made in the reign of king William the Firſt, Bichemerſe is ſaid to be in Ceolflede hundred, which is now comprized in that of Kiftſgate. But how derogatory ſoever it may ſeem to that record, the hamlets belonging to this pariſh now lie in Warwickſhire, and pay land-tax in aid of that county, but contribute to the parochial levies of Welford. Hence it may be inferred, that ſome alterations have taken place in the diviſion of counties, as well as of hundreds, within the laſt ſeven hundred years. The record runs thus:

'Eddiet holds Bichemerſe in Ceolflede hundred, 'of the king. She held it in the time of king 'Edward. There is one hide, and in demean 'two plow-tillages, and one villein, and one 'bordar, and four ſervi. It is worth and was 'worth 20 ſol.' Domeſday, p. 79.

2. Little Dorſington, where are three families.

3. Bedlam, which does not ſeem at preſent intituled to the diſtinction of a hamlet, as the only houſe within it was originally a barn.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Campden, worth 180*l.* a year. The duke of Dorſet is patron, and the reverend Mr. Green is the preſent incumbent.

Two yard-lands in Welford, and two in Bickmarſh belonged to the glebe, but are now intirely loſt from the living.

There was antiently a chapel at Bickmarſh in this pariſh, and a compoſition was made in the reign of king John, between Walter abbat of Tewkeſbury, and Robert Foliot, parſon and patron of the chapel of Bikemareys, concerning tithes, of which the reader may ſee ſome account in Stevens's Supplement to the Monaſticon, Appendix, p. 201.

In the year 1497, the biſhop of Worceſter, at the requeſt of the inhabitants, made a ſpecial viſitation in the pariſh, for which he received four marks.

The advowſon paſſed from the priory of Derhurſt to the abbey of Tewkeſbury, and after the general diſſolution of monaſteries, was granted to ſir Ralph Sadler, 1 E. 6.

The church is dedicated to the Trinity, and has a high tower at the weſt end.

Firſt fruits	£. 29	15 10	Synodals	£. 0	2 0
Tenths —	2	9 7	Pentecoſt.	0	1 0½
Procurations	0	6 8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

On a flat ſtone in the body of the church, is this inſcription:

℔ Hic jacet dns Waltherus Williams quondam Rector iſti' Eccl'ie qui obiit die . . . . . Menſis Auguſti Anno dni MCCCCLXXXIIIJ° Cuj' Aie ppiciet' deus Amen.

Againſt the outſide of the ſouth wall of the chancel,

Underneath is the Grave of Richard Rawlings of Wolford, who by Will bearing Date the 22d Day of October 1727 did give 3 Pounds per Annum charged upon his Half yard land in Welford (one moiety whereof to be paid half year) for the Maintenance of a Schoolmaſter there for ever to teach eight poor boys of the pariſh to read and write Engliſh, to inſtruct them in the Church Catechiſm, in the uſe of figures, & to make them ready Accountants.

This little Charity the Founder Gave to excite the rich who larger Sabſtance have to increaſe its Fund & ſo reſpect his Grave.

Benefactions.

John Frecketon gave 13*s.* 4*d.* and a further ſum of 6*s.* 8*d.* a year, payable out of the Millhams, to the poor for ever. Thomas Mills gave 3*l.* yearly to the poor, and 3*s.* 4*d. per ann.* for the repair of the highways of this pariſh, both which ſums are charged on a meadow called Synderham. A full account of Richard Rawling's charity is given in the inſcription for him.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 200	16	0
Poll-tax — — 1694, —	39	17	0
Land-tax —— 1694, -	202	4	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	140	3	0

At the beginning of this century, there were 98 houſes in the pariſh, and about 450 inhabitants, 18 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 13, burials 11. Atkyns. But at preſent the people fall ſomething ſhort of that number.

WESTBURY.

THIS pariſh lies in the Foreſt diviſion, and in three different hundreds. It is two miles diſtant north-eaſt from Newnham, four ſouth-eaſt from Mitchel Dean, and ten ſouth-weſtward from Glouceſter.

It is bounded for ſeveral miles on the ſouth by the river Severn, and forms a very extenſive tract of rich ground, of which the greater part is meadow and paſture, interſperſed with orcharding and ſome arable land.

The name of the place ſignifies the Weſt Camp, yet I cannot diſcover any traces of antient intrenchments now exiſting.

Weſtbury-Court is an elegant houſe, in modern taſte, with beautiful canals and extenſive pleaſure gardens, ſtanding about half a mile from the Severn, on the ſide of the road leading from Monmouthſhire to Glouceſter. It is the ſeat of Maynard Colcheſter, eſq; who reſides there. In the pediment over the Attic ſtory are the family arms, impaling three creſcents; and the following inſcription ſtands over the door in the front:

D.
O. M.
N. M. M. H. E. P. N. C.

This houſe was built by Maynard Colcheſter, eſq; father of the preſent owner, whoſe piety and gratitude are well expreſſed in the firſt three letters of the inſcription, which I read Deo Optimo Maximo. The ſubſequent line contains the initials of this hexameter:

Nunc mea, mox hujus, et poſtea neſcio cujus.

alluding to the ſucceſſive deſcent of property from one generation to another.

In this large pariſh the ſoils are various, and the natural productions numerous. The Foreſt diviſion is allowed by competent judges to yield the beſt cider in the kingdom, and there is more truth than poetic fiction in the following verſes:

— To the utmoſt bounds of this Wide univerſe, Silurian cider born,
Shall pleaſe all taſtes, and triumph o'er the vine.

So Phillips ſang: And Weſtbury may juſtly claim her ſhare of the general commendation. Iron ore is found not only here, but in almoſt every part of the foreſt; and I have no doubt but that there is plenty of coal in Weſtbury, tho' no particular inducement to ſearch for it, the inhabitants being ſo well accommodated with that moſt uſeful foſſil from the next pariſh.

There is alſo a thin kind of ſtone found in the cliffs next the Severn, of a fine glittering colour on the ſurface like gold, which was lately tried in the the furnace. Much of its ſubſtance evaporates in ſmoak, but it contains no metal of any kind. I believe this to be the only place in Glouceſterſhire where the Carduus Fullonum, or Teaſle, is cultivated for the uſe of the clothing manufacture. Several common medicinal plants grow in different parts of the pariſh, and I obſerve the herb Celery flouriſhes vigorouſly on the banks by the ſides of the high roads, which indicates a great ſtrength of ſoil.

There is a ferry over the Severn at this place, to Framilode on the other ſide, where is an inn for the accommodation of travellers; but no ſuch conveniency on the Weſtbury ſide.

My inquiries for antiquities in this place have not been very ſucceſsful. I viſited the pariſh church in 1776, and ſaw a piece of a bone lying in the chancel window, which was ſaid to be a part of the thigh bone of ſome prodigious giant. It was about two feet long, appearing very porous at the broken end. I could make no eſtimate of the length of it when intire, but it was twenty-two inches in circumference. The inhabitants knew not how it came there, nor indeed any thing about it.

Doctor Hakewill, in his learned Apology of the Power and Providence of God in the Government of the World, relates, that about the year 1634, there were ſeveral bones of a prodigious ſize found not far diſtant from Glouceſter, but does not ſay where; and that king Charles the Firſt appointed lord Herbert of Cherbury to examine them, who collected a huckle bone, a piece of a ſhoulder blade, ſome part of a tooth, and the bone of the noſe, all of aſtoniſhing ſize. Doctor Hervey, a great anatomiſt of that age, and Doctor Clayton, the king's profeſſor of phyſic in Oxford, with ſeveral other judicious perſons, examined them, and concurred in opinion that they were not human, but the bones of an elephant, brought hither, as may be ſuppoſed, by the Romans; for according to Dion, Claudius brought elephants into Britain. The bone of the noſe in particular was not like a man's, which confirmed them the rather in opinion that none of the others were human. They were all found together, mixt with the bones and horns of ſheep and oxen, and the tuſk of a boar, and a great ſquare ſtone, like the top ſtone of an altar, lay by them, whence it is imagined that they were the relicks of ſome great ſacrifice made near the place where they lay. And it is not improbable that the piece of the bone which I ſaw in Weſtbury church was found at the ſame time with the above.

I am next to ſhew what ſhare this pariſh has had in military affairs. In the time of the great civil wars, the governor of Glouceſter placed a garriſon at Weſtbury, to keep the market of that city open, but Corbet relates that the garriſon was loſt 'by the treachery of captain Thomas 'Davis, who ſold them at a rate to ſir John Win-'ter. This Davis,' ſays he, 'commanded the 'guard at Huntley, where himſelf by night, ſome 'diſtance from the houſe, attended the enemy's 'coming, went in before them, as friends from 'Glouceſter, gave them poſſeſſion, and having 'accompliſhed that piece of treaſon, immediately 'marched to Weſtbury, where he was received 'for a friend, and led in his train of cavaleers, ſo 'that both places were ſurprized in two hours, 'and about eighty men and arms loſt in that 'great exigency.' The ſame author relates that afterwards, '150 muſkettiers, and the whole 'ſtrength of horſe were drawn out [from 'Glouceſter] towards the foreſt ſide, and came 'upon Weſtbury. Here the enemy held the 'church, and a ſtrong houſe adjoining. The 'governor [Maſſie] obſerving a place not flanked, 'fell up that way with the forlorn-hope, and 'ſecured them from the danger of ſhot. The 'men got ſtools and ladders to the windows, 'where they ſtood ſafe, caſt in granadoes, and 'fired them out of the church. Having gained 'the church, he quickly beat them out of their 'works, and poſſeſſed himſelf of the houſe, where 'he took about thirty priſoners without the loſs 'of a man.'

Before the reformation, there lived at this place one Mr. James Baynham,[x] who was burnt at the ſtake for religion in the reign of king Henry the Eighth.

Of

[x] The following detail of his ſufferings will excite an abhorrence of the perſecuting principles of the times he lived in, and tend to make the preſent age happy in the religious liberty they enjoy.—Mr. James Baynham was ſon of ſir Alexander Baynham, the elder, who had conſiderable poſſeſſions in this pariſh, in St. Briavel's, and other parts of the foreſt of Dean. The ſon was bred up at the inns of court, and was of a virtuous and religious turn. He married the widow of Simon Fiſh, the author of a famous book intituled the Supplication of the Beggers, which contributed greatly to the reformation of religion. King Henry the Eighth had read and approved the book, and gave his protection to the author to ſkreen him from perſecution. Mr. Baynham was ſuſpected to be of reforming principles, and not long after his marriage, was accuſed to ſir Thomas Moor, then chancellor of England, and taken by a ſerjeant at arms out of the Temple to ſir Thomas's houſe at Chelſea, where he remained a kind of priſoner at large for ſome time. But ſir Thomas not being able to prevail with him to renounce his principles, uſed him with greater ſeverity, caſt him into a priſon in the ſame houſe, whipped him at a tree in his garden, called afterwards the Tree of Truth, and at length ſent him to the tower of London to force him by the rack to accuſe ſuch gentlemen of the Temple as were of his judgment, and to confeſs where his books were, attending in perſon to ſee this cruelty executed on him. And becauſe his wife could not be prevailed with to diſcover his books, ſhe was ſent to the Fleet, and their goods were confiſcated.

When ſir Thomas found all his attempts to reduce him to the church were vain, he ſent him to the biſhop of London, who put him in Lollard's Tower, examined him ſeveral times upon articles and interrogatories, and at laſt, by fair words and threats, brought him to recant; and ſo doing penance at St. Paul's croſs, he was ſoon diſmiſſed and ſent home. But he was ſo troubled in conſcience, that within a month afterwards he aſked forgiveneſs of God, and the proteſtant congregation in Bow-lane; and openly declared in St. Auſtin's church, that he had denied God, and prayed all the people to forgive him. Upon this, he was ſoon apprehended, condemned, and delivered to the ſheriff to be executed. When he came to the ſtake in Smithfield, where he ſuffered April 30, 1531, he ſpoke thus to the people: 'Good 'people, I am come hither to die as an heretic, and theſe be the 'articles I ſuffer for: I ſay that it is lawful for every man and 'woman to have God's book in the mother tongue: That 'the pope is antichriſt: That there are no other keys of 'heaven gate but preaching of the word: That there is no other 'purgatory

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

This and Hueſberie, which we now call Weſtbury upon Trim, were two large manors, and as the accounts ſtand in Domeſday, there appears to be ſome difficulty, at firſt ſight, eſpecially, to diſcriminate between them.

For as Chire, that is Shirehampton, and Cliftone immediately follow the account of Weſtbury in the record, it is natural enough to imagine that the account relates to Weſtbury upon Trim, in whoſe neighbourhood thoſe places lie. But that could not be the caſe, becauſe the record declares Weſberie to be the demeans of the crown, and it appears by the ſame authority, that Hueſberie, now Weſtbury upon Trim, belonged at that time to the church of Worceſter.

This difficulty ſeems to have been the reaſon why ſir Robert Atkyns gave no abſtract from Domeſday concerning this manor. The record runs thus:

'There are thirty hides in Weſberie. King 'Edward had five plow-tillages there in demean, 'and thirty-two villeins, and fifteen bordars, 'with twenty-eight plow-tillages. There is 'one ſervus. This manor paid a farm of one 'night in the time of king Edward, and ſo it did 'likewiſe for four years in the time of king 'William. But ſix hides were afterwards taken 'from the manor. There are ten hides in Chire 'and Cliftone, eight in Noent and Chingeſtune, 'and one in Ladenent.

'The abbey of Cormeile, and Oſbern, and 'William the ſon of Richard, hold theſe lands 'now, but nevertheleſs the ſheriff pays the whole 'farm for the remainder.

'The men of the county ſay, that Sapina be-'longed to the farm of king Edward in Weſtberie.' p. 67.

Beſides the principal manor, there were two ſmall eſtates in Weſtberie hundred, held of the king's farm, and a third that was independent of it, as appears by Domeſday-book.

'William ſon of Baderon holds two yard lands 'and a half, and has there one villein, and one 'bordar. Wihanoc his anceſtor held it, but the 'county affirms that this eſtate is held of the 'king's demean farm in Weſtberie, and is worth '3 ſol.' p. 74.

'William Goizenboded holds half a hide of 'land, and half a fiſhery in Weſtberie hundred. 'Aluuin the ſheriff held it, and gave it to his 'wife. This eſtate belonged to the king's farm 'in Weſtberie.' p. 74.

'Durand the ſheriff holds one manor of three 'hides in Weſtberie hundred. Aluuold held it 'and paid tax. There is one plow-tillage in 'demean, and four villeins, and three bordars, 'with four plow-tillages. There are two ſervi, 'and it was worth 60 ſol. now only 40 ſol.' p. 76.

It is obſervable that the book does not mention what pariſh theſe eſtates lay in, but only the hundred; yet there is reaſon to ſuppoſe they were a part of Weſtbury, and that the records of the following dates relate chiefly to theſe, and not to the principal manor.

Henry de Myners reſided in this pariſh, and purchaſed a licence to incloſe a park near his houſe 2 Joh.

The manor of Weſtbury was granted to Ralph de Beauchamp 18 Joh. and paſſed afterwards to the Burghulls, or Bornhulls, for Baſilia de Burghull died endowed thereof 55 H. 3. Roger de Burghull, ſon of Roger, died ſeized of the ſame manor, and of the hundred of Weſtbury, 31 E. 1. Roger Burghull, ſon of the laſt Roger, died ſeized of Weſtbury 1 E. 3. and Robert de Sapy held it 10 E. 3.

Jeffery de Mareſchal was ſeized of Weſtbury 32 E. 3. It was held of Humphry de Bohun, earl of Hereford and Eſſex, and of Joan his wife, 46 E. 3.

Sir John de Aylesford, alias Eynesford, died ſeized of the manors of Weſtbury and Bolley 19 R. 2. Iſabel the wife of ſir John de Aylesford ſurvived him, and was endowed with the manor of Weſtbury, and afterwards married Richard de la More, whom ſhe likewiſe ſurvived, and died ſeized of Weſtbury 9 H. 5.

John Milborn and Elizabeth his wife were ſeized of the manor of Weſtbury 1 & 15 H. 6. John earl of Shrewſbury was ſeized thereof in the 32d year of the ſame reign; as was Alice the widow of William Codder 34 H. 6.

This manor paſſed afterwards to the Baynhams, for John Baynham died ſeized thereof, and of twenty meſſuages, and three hundred acres of paſture, &c. in Weſtbury, 20 H. 8. William Baynham, ſon of John, had livery of it 26 H. 8. Robert Baynham had alſo livery granted to him 9 Eliz. as had Joſeph Baynham in the 14th year of the ſame reign.

The hundred of Weſtbury is now in the crown, and the court leet is kept by the ſheriff. But Maynard Colcheſter, eſq; is lord of the manor. His arms are, Or, a chevron between three eſtoiles gules.

Of the other eſtates the records ſhew, that Nicholas de Bath was ſeized of one meſſuage, 260 acres of arable, &c. in the pariſh of Weſtbury next Newnham, 20 E. 2. John Knight and others were ſeized of ſix acres in Weſtbury, and of the advowſon of the church, and of twenty libratas of land in Whitington and Weſtbury,

---

'purgatory but Chriſt's blood; and that the ſouls of the faithful 'go immediately to heaven: That Thomas Becket was no 'ſaint, but a traitor: That there is no tranſubſtantiation in 'the ſacrament, but that 'tis idolatry to worſhip the bread, &c.' ——One Pavy gave him the lie in thus ſpeaking, and haſtened to burn him.

While he was in the midſt of the flames, and his arms and legs were half conſumed, he cried out, 'O ye papiſts, ye look 'for miracles, behold here ye may ſee one, for in this fire I feel 'no more pain than if I were in a bed of down, but it is to me 'as a bed of roſes:' And then expired ſoon after.

for

for the uſe of the church of St. Athelbert in Hereford, 4 R. 2. which church was founded by Milefrid king of the Mercians in the year 825. William Aſton was ſeized of a tenement called Aſton's Court in the pariſh of Weſtbury 3 H. 4. Richard Beke levied a fine of lands in Weſtbury to Edward Veel 1 Mar. The manor of Cellers in Weſtbury belonged to the priory of Lanthony, and was granted to Thomas Reeve, William Ryvet, and William Hechins, 6 Eliz.

HAMLETS. There are ſeveral large hamlets in this pariſh, of which in their order.

1. Rodley, which lies in the hundred of the dutchy of Lancaſter, and is ſituated about two miles eaſtward from the church. Domeſday gives the following particulars of the manor. 'Walter 'Baliſtarius holds Rodele. There is one hide 'taxed. Tovi held it. There is one plow-tillage 'in demean, and two villeins, and four bordars, 'with two plow-tillages. It was worth 40 ſol. 'but now only 10 ſol.' p. 77.

Sir Robert Atkyns, in his account of this manor, has confounded it with Ruddle in the pariſh of Newnham, which was given to the abbey of Glouceſter; but the manor of Rodele in Weſtbury was never any part of the poſſeſſions of that monaſtery, as ſir Robert aſſerts.

The records ſhew, that Henry de Bohun releaſed all his right in Rodley to king John, in the firſt year of that king's reign; and Simon Montfort, the great earl of Leiceſter, died ſeized of Rodleigh 43 H. 3.

Gilbert Talbot, ſon of Richard and of Aliva, daughter of Alan Baſſet, juſticiar of England, married Guenthlian, or Guendoline, daughter of Rheſe ap Griffith, prince of Wales, and died ſeized of Rodleigh and Longhope 2 E. 1. In an inquiſition taken 4 E. 1. it is ſaid, Rodeley was of the antient demeans of kings, and was then in the hands of Richard Talebott, but the jury did not know by what means; and that it uſed to yield to the king a revenue of 42 l. a year.

Edmond earl of Lancaſter, ſecond ſon of king Henry the Third, was ſeized of Rodleghe, and had his right of court leet allowed in a writ of Quo warranto 15 E. 1. Henry earl of Lancaſter, ſecond ſon of earl Edmond, and brother and heir to Thomas earl of Lancaſter, was ſeized of Rodeley, and of twelve acres of paſture in the foreſt of Dean belonging to the manor of Rodeley, 10 E. 2. Henry earl of Lancaſter, ſon of earl Henry, and afterwards duke of Lancaſter, was ſeized of Rodleye, and of eſtovers in the foreſt of Dean, 10 E. 3. He died of the plague at Leiceſter-caſtle 35 E. 3. and left two daughters coheireſſes. Maud, the elder, was married to the duke of Bavaria, and had the manors of Rodelegh, Tiberton, and Minſterworth aſſigned to her, but dying without iſſue, her ſiſter Blanch, married in 1359, to John of Gaunt, duke of Lancaſter, became her heir, from whom are deſcended the kings of England of the line of Lancaſter. John duke of Lancaſter and Blanch his wife levied a fine of the manors of Rodleyh, Tiberton, and Minſterworth, to the uſe of themſelves in taille 39 E. 3. Joan the widow of Robert Grinder died endowed with Rodley 24 H. 6. This manor is part of the dutchy of Lancaſter, and king Edward the Fourth levied a fine of it to Richard Martin to hold for one month, the remainder to Elizabeth the queen, and to the archbiſhop and other great perſons, 15 E. 4. Sir William Guiſe, baronet, is the preſent lord of this manor.

The records alſo ſhew, that William de Dean died ſeized of Rodeley, which he held of Thomas le Blount by the ſervice of 12 s. he was alſo ſeized of one yard-land worth 6 s. a year, and of ſix borachs in the Severn worth 6 s. a year, and of two acres of meadow worth 5 s. a year. Eſch. Richard de Blenſedon was ſeized of two meſſuages, ſixty acres of arable land, and of a fiſhery in the Severn at Rodeley 20 E. 2. Philip Hook of Little Dean died ſeized of the manor of Stantways in Rodeley, 16 H. 6. and it was granted the ſame year to Richard Barton and Morgan Merideth, to hold for their lives.

The tenants of this manor antiently paid, and ſtill continue to pay, to the lord, a rent called Pridgavel, for liberty of fiſhing in the Severn, of which ſee more under Minſterworth.

2. Walmer is a diſtinct manor within this pariſh, conſiſting of very large commons by the ſide of the Severn. Ralph de Abbenhall was ſeized of ten acres of meadow in Walmer 29 E. 1. Richard de Poulton held Walmore and Northwoode in capite, paying to the king three bearded arrows as often as he ſhould hunt in propria perſona in the foreſt of Dean; and he died ſeized of the ſame, and of one meſſuage, fifty acres of arable, and three acres of meadow, 12 E. 2. Eſch. John Ate-Yate was ſeized of Walmore and Littlemore within the manor of Rodley, as parcel of the manor of Stanteway 41 E. 3. Sir Brian Tuke died ſeized of Walmer 37 H. 8. and Charles Tuke, ſon of ſir Brian, had livery the ſame year. Richard Andrews and Urſula his wife levied a fine of the manor of Walmer to Edward Wilmot and others 2 Mar. of which manor, and of a large houſe called the Grange, Anthony Kemp, eſq; of Slyndon in Eſſex, was ſeized at the beginning of the preſent century. The manor of Walmer, and the Grange, are now, by marriage, veſted in the earl of Newburgh.

3. Chaxhill, which lies eaſtward from the church.

4. Bolloe, which alſo lies eaſtward from the church. The two hamlets of Bolloe and Chaxhill have one tithingman.

5. Upperleigh, which lies about two miles north-eaſt from the church. This place belonged to the chantry of St. Mary in Weſtbury, and was granted to ſir Anthony Cope 10 Jac.

6. Northwood,

6. Northwood, which lies north from the church. Northwood and Upperleigh have one tithingman.

7. Netherleigh, which lies about two miles north-eaſt from the church. Nicholas Gamage died ſeized of this manor 24 E. 3. It belonged afterwards to ſir John Scudamore, who being attainted, it was granted to ſir Richard Herbert, and his heirs males, 4 E. 4. George Rawleigh, eſq; died ſeized of the manor of Netherlaugh 37 H. 8. and left Simon his ſon twenty-two years old, and Leonard a brother, who had a ſon Thomas. The manor then paſſed to the Baynhams. Sir George Baynham died ſeized thereof 38 H. 8. and livery was granted to his ſon ſir Chriſtopher Baynham 3 E. 6. and Richard Baynham, brother of Chriſtopher, had livery of it 5 Mar. This place has its own tithingman.

8. Boſeley, which lies north-weſtward from the church. John Sabyn and others held one meſſuage, one toft, and one plow-tillage in Boſely, Leye, and Rodlegh, 10 R. 2. This place hath a tithingman.

9. Cleeve, which lies ſouth-eaſtward from the church. 10. Adſet, lying north-eaſtward from the church. 11. Stanteway. Theſe three have one tithingman.

12. Elton, which lies weſtward from the church, is a large hamlet, and has its proper tithingman.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the Foreſt deanery, worth about 140*l.* a year. The Vicars Choral of the cathedral of Hereford are patrons, and the reverend Mr. Kidley is the preſent incumbent. The impropriation, which belongs to the ſame Vicars of the church of Hereford, is worth 300*l.* a year, and is in leaſe to Doctor John Cam, a phyſician at Hereford, whoſe arms are, Paly of ſix argent and azure.

There are two churches in the church-yard. The old church has a handſome wooden ſpire at the weſt end. The new one, in which divine ſervice is performed, was built in the year 1530, and ſtands at a conſiderable diſtance from the other. It conſiſts of the nave, with an aile on each ſide, ſupported by pillars, and is dedicated to the virgin Mary.

There were two chantries in Weſtbury church, whereof one was dedicated to St. Nicholas, and the lands belonging to it were granted to ſir Nicholas Arnold 5 Eliz. The other chantry was dedicated to the virgin Mary, and John Shawe was the laſt incumbent, who enjoyed a penſion of 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* in 1553. The lands, and a meſſuage in Adſet, which belonged to this chantry, were granted to Anthony Cope and others 10 Jac.

A licence was granted to the vicar of Weſtbury to purchaſe land to enlarge his houſe 26 E. 3. Doctor John Hooper, biſhop of Glouceſter, at the deſire of the inhabitants, made a ſpecial viſitation in this pariſh, for which was paid 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* for procuration.

Firſt fruits	£.	20	2	10	Proc. & Syn.	£.	0	9	2
Tenths	—	2	0	3¼	Pentecoſtals	-	0	1	4

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Upon a tablet in the chancel,

MEMORIÆ NICHOLAI ROBERTS AR. QVONDAM HVIVS MANERIJ DOM. QVI MORTALITATEM EXUIT 19 IAN. 1636.
HOC QVALECVNQ; CHARISSIMI AVUNCVLI
MERITIS QVAM LONGE IMPAR
SACRATVM VOLUIT
E SORORE NEPOS RICHVS COLCHESTER AR.
MODERNVS EIVSDEM MANERIJ DNS.

This monument is ornamented with two coats, the one Party per pale ermine and gules, a lion rampant ſable, for Roberts. The other Colcheſter, as already given.

There are alſo four very handſome marble monuments in the chancel, with the following inſcriptions:

Deo Opt. Max. Sacrum
Ut laudetur in Pia Memoria
DUNCUMBI COLCHESTER, Eq. Aurati,
Qui obiit Maij 25^to^ A° D^ni^ 1694° Æt. 65.
Hic (ut olim SOLOMON) in viis Cordis ſui
Pede heu! libero nimis AMBULANS,
Non infructuoſo tandem EXPERIMENTO didicit,
VANA OMNIA PRÆTER NUMINIS CULTUM.
Eximiis NATURÆ dotibus pollens,
MUNERA PUBLICA non unius generis obivit;
Nec ſine LAUDE Sæculi.
Sola defuit MATURA SANCTITAS,
Sed MORBO tandem, velut NUNCIO Cœlitus miſſo, admonitus,
Quicquid Supererat VITÆ
Id totum PIETATIS ſtudijs impendit.
Nec ſufficere ſibi ratus PRIVATAM POENITENTIAM,
OMNIBUS, quotquot EXEMPLO ſuo nocuiſſe videri poterat,
POENITENTIAM, etiam ſuam NOTAM eſſe voluit.
Non metuens de FAMA, nec moratus
Dicacem IMPROBORUM hominum ſtultitiam.
REM etiam in TEMPLIS PUBLICARI curavit ipſe,
NOVO et SINGULARI Exemplo
SE VIVUM præſtans OMNIBUS, Maxime DIERUM VANITATIS ſuæ ſociis, (TUM.
ILLUSTRISSIMUM GENEROSÆ POENITENTIÆ MONUMEN-
Etiam MORTUUS loquitur, LECTOREM ſerio MONENS
Vt DEVM ſibi quam citiſſime AMICUM conciliet,
Quem ASYLUM omnes optabunt.

MAINARDUS COLCHESTER, F. natu maximus,
Hoc Marmor PATRI
P.
Necnon DOROTHEÆ SORORI Chariſſimæ, quæ diu LANGUENS
Pia CURA ÆGROTANTIS Patris, MORTUI DESIDERIO,
TERRENORUM omnium TOEDIO,
Ad COELESTEM Patrem MIGRAVIT
Maij 10^mo^. A°. D^ni^. 1696, Æt. . . .

This monument is decorated with two coats, Baron and femme, 1. Colcheſter. 2. Argent, three ſiniſter hands couped at the wriſt gules, for Maynard.

To the left of the above,

Dominæ Elizabethæ Colcheſter,
Uxoris Duncumb Colcheſter Militis,
Filiæ Iohan. Maynard Equitis Aurati,
Servien. ad Leg: et Regis Conciliarij in Lege peritiſſimi, Cineribus Sacrum.
Vitæ Sanctimoniâ,
Morum Suavitate et Candore,
In rebus Oeconomicis Peritiâ,
Charitate erga Pauperes,
Medicamentis arga Infirmos,
Præceptis erga Errantes,
Clementiâ erga Ignorantes,
In ſe Omnium benevolentiam Conciliantis:
Sed Eheu! per multos annos,
Varijs morbis et cruciantibus conflictata,
Tandem Animam immaculatam
Deo reddidit Septemb: 19, 1681.
Filios duos, tres Filias Superſtites reliquit moriens.
Optimæ Conjugi Amantiſſimus Maritus
Hoc poſuit Monumentum.

There are the ſame arms on this monument as on the foregoing.

On

On the right hand of the communion table,

Near this place are depoſited y^e precious Remains of Maynard Colcheſter, Eſq^r; dec^d. honourably deſcended being y^e eldeſt Son of S^r Duncomb Colcheſter late of this Pariſh by Eliz. daughter of S^r Io. Maynard, dec^d. one of the Lords Commiſſioners of the Great Seal of ENGLAND;
But much more honourable & worthy to be had in everlaſting
Remembrance for thoſe truly noble qualities w^ch by the Grace of God he was early poſſeſſed of, & perſevered in to the laſt & whereby he was enabled to diſcharge w^th great judgment inflexible Integrity, & undaunted Courage the ſeveral Offices & Truſts w^ch without ſeeking he was called to by his Prince & Country, & to deviſe & do many great & liberal things for y^e Honour of God & y^e Good of mankind, having been A principal Founder & Supporter of the Societies for Reformation of Manners & promoting Chriſtian Knowledge by Charity Schools of w^ch he ſet up & maintained ſeveral at his own charges. And likewiſe one of y^e firſt Members of y^e Society for propagating y^e Goſpel in foreign Parts, and A generous Encourager of that & many other good Deſigns.
This excellent Perſon was ſtrictly pious himſelf & zealous to promote true Piety in others within his reach, eſpecially in his own Family, & was thought to have been ſo ſingularly happy herein, as to have even overpaid y^e debt of filial Duty & Gratitude, by being an inſtrument of Spiritual Life to him, from whom he had only Received that which was Natural.
He was an effectionate Huſband,
a tender & careful Parent, A kind and faithfull Friend,
A true lover of all good Men (tho' differing from him)
And ready to every good worke;
particularly to thoſe of Charity to y^e Poor & diſtreſſed,
For whom he yearly ſet apart
A large proportion of his Income, w^ch was ſtrictly, tho' ſecretly applyed to y^e moſt uſefull Charities.
This Chriſtian Hero was exerciſed for many Years with almoſt conſtant ſickneſs and the moſt accute pains, which he bore with exemplary patience, and an intire Submiſſion to y^e Divine Will & Pleaſure, & at length joyfully reſigned up his pious Soul into y^e hands of his faithful Creator & merciful Redeemer y^e 25^th of June
1715 in y^e 51^st year of his Age; leaving 3 Daughters
Anne, Jane, & Eliz. by Jane y^e only Daughter of S^r. Edward Clarke, K^t.
dec. late L^d Mayor of London his loving & dutifull wife & now mournfull widdow.

At top of the monument are the arms of Colcheſter, impaling thoſe of Clarke, viz. Argent, on a bend ſable a croſs croſlet fitchy Or.

Near the laſt,

In Hopes of an happy Reſurrection,
Near this Place lies the Body of MAYNARD COLCHESTER, Eſq^r. Nephew and Heir of COL^l. MAYNARD COLCHESTER, to whoſe Memory a Monument is here erected.
He was Grandſon of S^r. DUNCOMB COLCHESTER, and great Grandſon of that eminent Lawyer and Friend to the Conſtitution and Liberties of England,
SERJEANT MAYNARD.
He retained thro' Life with his own Choice and Judgment an hereditary Affection for the Laws, the Religion, and civil Rights of Engliſhmen, as eſtabliſhed by the Revolution. From this Principle he ever manifeſted a firm Attachment to the illuſtrious Houſe of Hanover, and the proteſtant Succeſſion, particularly during the Rebellion in 1746: and approved himſelf by his Conduct at all Times a vigilant, active, and prudent Magiſtrate, and a Friend to Society.
In private Life he was a good Chriſtian, a kind Father, and indulgent Maſter, was cautious and diſcerning in his Choice of Friends, and ſteady and unchangable towards them when choſen.
His whole Character did himſelf and Family Honour, and needs not Praiſes, but deſerves Imitation.
Died May 25^th 1756. Aged 53 Years.
At the top of this monument are the Colcheſters arms only.

Benefactions, from a Table in the Church.

John Young of Ley, gave by will 7*l.* a year, one moiety for a pariſh ſchool-maſter, the other for ſermons, for ever.

The church lands, let for 4*l.* 16*s.* yearly, are given by a perſon unknown, and are applied towards the repairs of the church.

Several tenements adjoining to the church-yard, and the church houſe, are given by perſons unknown, for the uſe of the poor of this pariſh.

The houſe, garden, and orchard, adjoining to the king's common pound, uſually let at 40*s.* a year, were given by a perſon unknown for the uſe of the pariſh for ever.

A tenement near the above, granted on leaſe formerly to Thomas Cook, and now occupied by Tobias Cowles, was left by a perſon unknown to this pariſh.

Cornelius Draper gave one piece of incloſed land in Huntley, now let to James Drinkwater at 40*s.* a year, to be given in bread to the poor.

Joſeph Bayſe gave the intereſt of 10*l.* (the principal now lying in the pariſh ſtock) to be given in bread to the poor of Elton tithing.

Joſeph Holſtead of Ley, gent. gave the intereſt of 20*l.* for the education of two boys at the ſchool.

John Mayn, of Staintway, gent. by will, gave ſeveral parcels of free-land in Walmore's hill, and one rudge and forehead of leaſe-land during the reſidue of his term, of the yearly value of 1*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* to buy coal for the poor, in November yearly.

A chief-rent of 3*s.* 8*d.* on a tenement now belonging to John Sier, was given to the poor of this pariſh by a perſon unknown.

Mrs. Elizabeth Evans gave 20*l.* the intereſt to be given yearly for ever to the poor of this pariſh.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in	1692,	£. 436	12	0
	Poll-tax ——	1694, —	106	11	6
	Land-tax ——	1694, —	565	18	8
	The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	414	18	6

There were 290 houſes in this pariſh, and about 1200 inhabitants, at the beginning of the preſent century, whereof 100 were reputed freeholders; yearly births 34, and burials 32. Atkyns. But examining the pariſh regiſter, I find that in ten years, beginning with 1700, there were 451 baptiſms, and 308 burials; and in the ſame number of years, beginning with 1760, the baptiſms were 424, and the burials 340; and the inhabitants being numbered in the year 1765, were found to be 1275, and are ſince increaſed to above 1300.

WESTBURY upon TRIM.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Henbury, two miles and a half diſtant northward from the city of Briſtol, thirteen ſouth-weſtward from Chipping Sodbury, and thirty-five ſouth-weſtward from Glouceſter.

The river Avon bounds it on the ſouth-weſt, and the great road from Wales, by the New and Old Paſſages, leads through it to the city of Briſtol.

It

It has its name, ſays ſir Robert Atkyns, from lying on the river Trim, and weſtward from the city of Briſtol. But with due deference to that gentleman, the ſituation of the village, which is directly north from that city, will not juſtify his etymology. Indeed Hueſberie, ſeems to be the true name of the village, as it is found in Domeſday: And if it ſhould be contended that this was the way which the writer of that record expreſſed the ſound of W, the contrary will appear in an inſtance directly in point, where Weſtberie (thus written) ſtands for the name of a village in the foreſt of Dean. The former is compounded of berie, a camp, and Hueſ, (as I conjecture) from Hue, the name of ſome perſon who either occupied the fortifications, or poſſeſſed the lands about them. And that there was ſuch a camp I have not the leaſt doubt, tho' at preſent no traces of it ſhould remain.

In Mr. Wantner's papers, written about the year 1714, and now depoſited in the Bodleian library, it is ſaid, that at Pollbury in this pariſh, where the brook Trim falls into the Avon, 'much 'Roman coin hath been found'; and I am informed that great numbers of them, with pieces of Roman pottery, have been taken up at the ſame place ſince thoſe papers were written: And there are certain veſtiges of a Roman road leading from thence, acroſs Durdham down. Theſe circumſtances ſhew that the Romans had an encampment, or ſmall ſtation, there; but I don't pretend to ſay that it was from that camp, in particular, that the pariſh took its name.

Durdham down lies one part in this pariſh, the other in Clifton. It is a large tract of high and healthy ground, with a good turf for riding, and affords the fineſt opportunity for air and exerciſe to the citizens of Briſtol, and the inhabitants of this part of the country. Weſtbury lying in the vicinity of that opulent city, is ornamented with many gentlemen's houſes, of which the following are the principal:

Stoke Houſe is an exceeding good one, and inferior to few in the county for real comfort and utility. It was built by ſir Robert Cann, about the year 1669, as appears by an inſcription over the porch. It underwent a thorough repair by the late Mr. Jefferis; and Mr. Lippincott, the preſent owner, has ſince added conſiderably to the offices and gardens. It ſtands on a delightful eminence, with a charming view of the Severn and Avon, and of the ſhips as they turn Portſhead Point, and paſs up and down the river. The high road which ran very near the houſe, was turned to an eaſy diſtance, and a much pleaſanter and more open one made, Jan. 6, 1778, under the direction of the commiſſioners of turnpike, but at Mr. Lippincott's expence, by which he has the advantage of a fine lawn before his houſe, and the public are alſo greatly benefited by the alteration.

Sneed Park is another handſome ſeat in the tithing of Stoke Biſhop, under which head ſome deſcription is given of it, with a ſhort account of the family to which it belongs.

Redland Court is one of the moſt elegant houſes in this part of the country. The front is ornamented with Ionic pillaſters, and there is a flight of ſteps to the entrance. The gardens are kept in excellent order, and the green-houſe is ſtored with a well choſen variety of curious exotics. This ſeat ſtands on an eaſy elevation near the great road leading from the village of Weſtbury to Briſtol. It was built by the late Mr. Coſſins, and is now the reſidence of John Innys, eſq. Not far from the houſe is a beautiful chapel, of which a further account will be given in the ſequel.

Weſtbury College claims the precedence of all in point of antiquity. Indeed there is but a ſmall part of the antient College remaining at preſent, which ſtood intire in the former part of the reign of king Charles the Firſt. It was turreted round, and had a large embattled tower on the ſouth ſide, but prince Rupert cauſed it to be ſet on fire in the time of the civil wars, and it was then in a great meaſure deſtroy'd, to prevent its being garriſoned by the parliament's forces, to annoy the city of Briſtol. That part which remains is incorporated with buildings erected ſince that time, and together conſtitute the ſeat of John Hobhouſe, eſq; who has, near adjoining to it, a new farm houſe and farm, remarkable for its neatneſs and elegance of culture. He gives for his arms, Azure, three eſtoiles iſſuing out of as many creſcents Or.

Pen Park is a delightful little villa, about a mile north of the church, with extenſive gardens and pleaſure-grounds, laid out in elegant taſte, from whence there is a proſpect of the country on the ſouth-eaſt ſide of the Severn, and of King-road, the mouth of that river. This little ſeat belongs to John Harmer, eſq; who gives for his arms, Argent, on a chevron between three annulets gules, another of the field.

Cote is a good houſe and eſtate on the north ſide of the road from the village of Weſtbury to Briſtol. It is turreted and embattled, and within the courſe of the laſt twenty years has been ſucceſſively the property of William Phelps, John Thomas, and John Webb, eſquires. By Mr. Phelps's demiſe it went to his widow, and paſſed afterwards by will to Mr. Thomas, who ſold it lately to captain Webb, the preſent owner, whoſe family arms are emblazoned p. 470.

John Fowler, eſq; a conſiderable merchant of Briſtol, has likewiſe a good houſe and eſtate at Cote, which he purchaſed of the creditors of the late Mr. Daniel Saunders, and has fitted up and ornamented the houſe in a genteel and modern taſte.

Mrs. Hort has alſo a good houſe, with a ſuitable eſtate, pleaſantly ſituated near Cote-houſe, upon the edge of Durdham-downs.

Cotham-houſe ſtands about a quarter of a mile from Redland Court. It is a genteel building, with with very handſome ſtables, &c. and there is a good eſtate belonging to it, of which Mr. Charles Partridge is owner. The Partridges family arms occur in the account of Miſerden.

Fig. 1. An East and West Section of PEN-PARK HOLE.

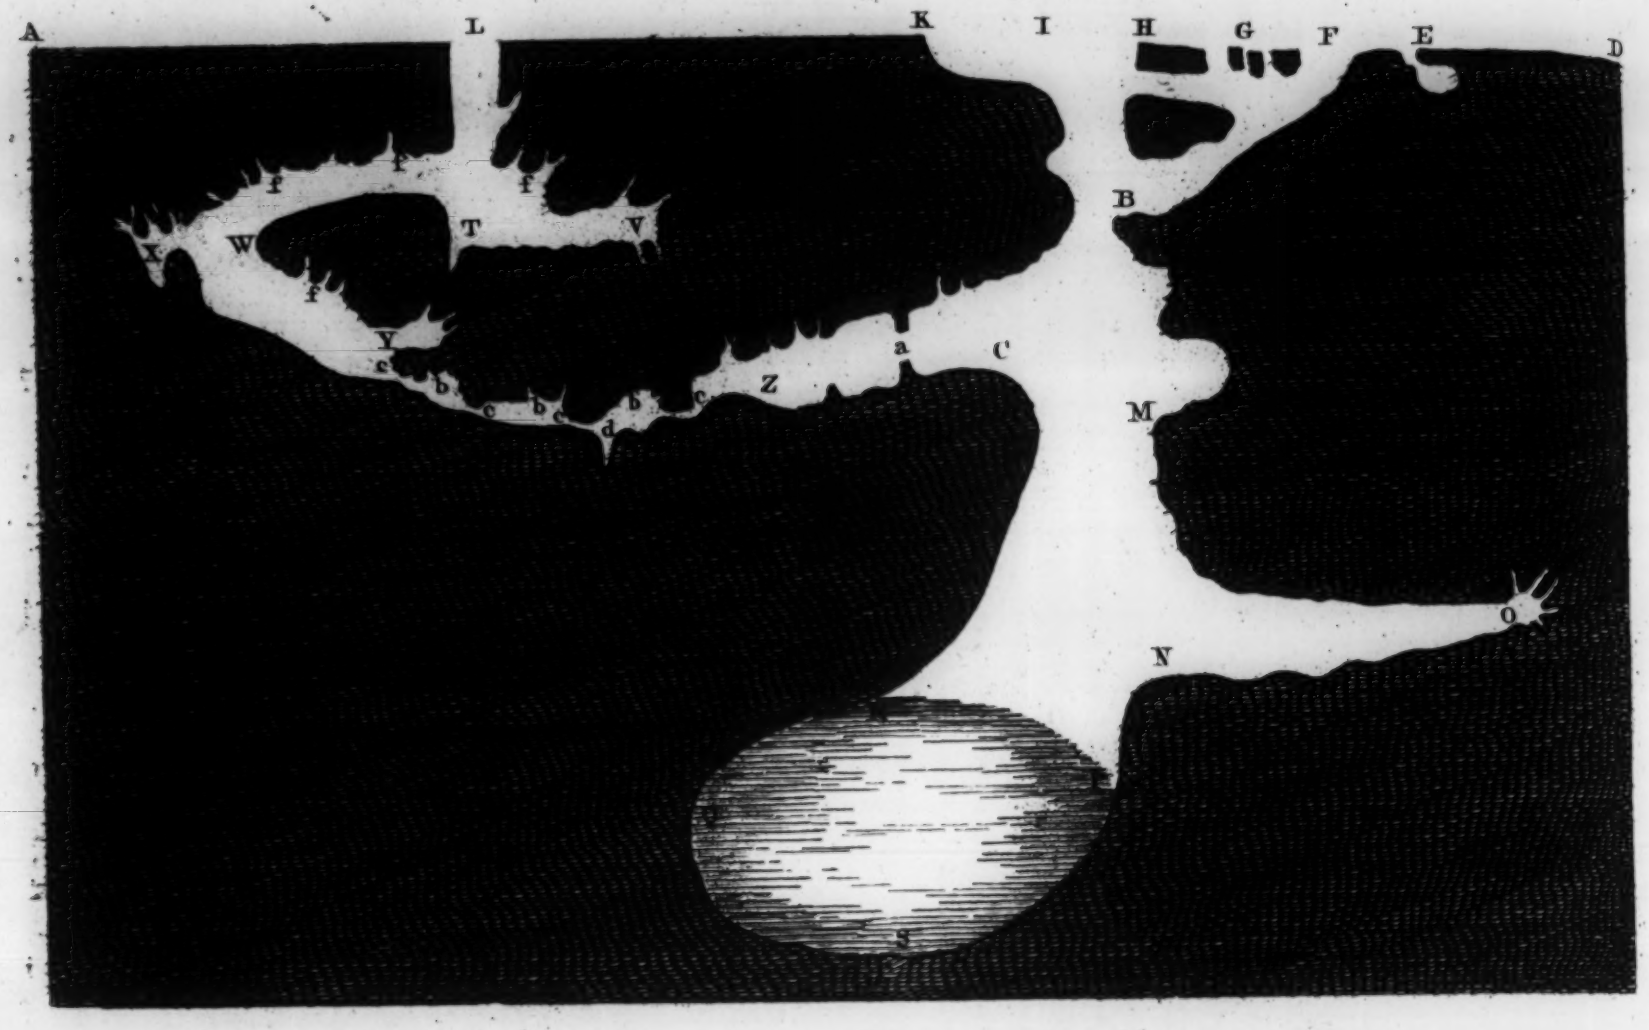

Fig. 2. A North and South Section of the Hole.

Mr. Samuel Lloyd has a good houſe, very agreeably ſituated in the hamlet of Stoke Biſhop, with a garden laid out with great taſte and elegancy, and a conſiderable eſtate belonging to it, which has been for many years in the family.

The Lodge on Durdham down is a very pleaſant houſe, belonging to Thomas Jones, eſq; of the Park, Briſtol, who always makes it his ſummer reſidence.

Of the natural productions of this place the Cotham Stone (ſo called from the place where it is found) is the moſt curious and remarkable. It lies in a detached manner, within the ſurface of the ground. The upper ſide of it is full of nodules and bunches, and the prominences on ſome of theſe ſtones reſemble the interlacings of ivy, growing over each other, as it is ſometimes ſeen againſt old walls. The largeſt of them are about two feet and a half long, and ſeven or eight inches thick. They are uſed rough in the ruſtic work of gateways and other buildings, in which they have a good effect. Cut longitudinally through the thickneſs, and poliſhed, they exhibit a beautiful landſcape, like a drawing in Indian ink, and are often uſed in chimney-pieces. That part which in its native bed lies undermoſt, has the exact appearance of a river; beyond that there is a margin of trees and ſhrubs; next, another river; and a fertile fancy may very well imagine a high bank on the further ſide, covered with ſhrubs and hanging woods. The Cotham ſtones that I have ſeen have in them all the appearance of one or more rivers; but the other objects admit of variety in form and order in different ſtones. To give the reader a more perfect idea of this curious ſtone, there is a good engraving of it, by way of decoration to the map of the county, at the beginning of this work.

Lead ore and the Calamine ſtone are found in many parts of the pariſh, particularly in Pen-Park eſtate, but there is no mine of either worked at preſent.

There is a prodigious cavern in that eſtate, called Pen-Park Hole, about a mile and a half north-eaſt from the village of Weſtbury, and ſix miles eaſtward from the mouth of the Severn, with a vaſt depth of water in it at particular ſeaſons. Some account of this cavern has been publiſhed in the Philoſophical Tranſactions, but the moſt accurate ſurvey of it was taken in 1775, by Mr. White, an eminent land-ſurveyor of Briſtol, who deſcended into it ſeveral times, took the meaſure of its particular parts, and made drawings of two ſections of it, from which the annexed plate is engraven.

Fig. I. is the eaſt and weſt ſection.

A, L, K, I, H, G, F, E, D, repreſent the ſurface of the earth.

A, the eaſt end.

D, the weſt end.

E, a ſmall cave.

F, B, the weſtern paſſage, 13 yards long.

G, ſmall holes leading down to the ſame.

H, I, K, the great mouth of the cavern.

I, B, M, N, P, the paſſage down.

M, a ſhort cave to the weſt of the main funnel.

N, O, the lower weſtern cavity, 78 feet long.

P, Q R, S, the ſurface of the water.

P, Q the length of the water, 80 feet, but ſubject to vary.

R, S, the breadth of the water, 52 feet, alſo ſubject to variation.

L, T, the deſcent into the eaſtern funnel.

T, V, the firſt branch weſtward.

T, W, X, the extent eaſtward.

X, Y, Z, C, the lower branch weſtward.

a, a kind of door-way.

b, b, b, ſmall caves.

c, c, c, c, very ſtrait paſſages leading from one cave to another.

d, ſmall impaſſible chaſms running down in the rocks.

e, a pillar of ſtone.

f, f, f, f, ſmall funnels running upwards in the rocks.

N.B. There is another paſſage near X, that dips and runs a conſiderable way to the eaſtward, the mouth of which, not now diſcoverable, was ſtopt up a few years ago; and a perſon who was in it to ſearch for lead ore, before it was ſtopt up, ſays he was about half an hour going to the end and returning, making ſome obſervations as he went.

Fig. II. is the north and ſouth ſection.

A, I, the ſurface of the earth.

I, the great mouth of the hole.

a, a prop of ſtone.

C, the mouth of the eaſt branch.

R, the roof over the baſon.

T, V, the higheſt ſtate of the water, as appears from the mud left on the ſides, nearly 75 feet deep.

N, O, the height of the water, March 17, 1775, 66 feet.

P, Q its height, 45 feet, the 25th of April following.

W, X, its loweſt ſtate, as found late in October 1777.

S, the bottom of the hole, 100 feet perpendicular from the roof.

I, b, the firſt deſcent, — —	40 feet.
b, c, the firſt perpendicular deſcent,	8
c, d, the ſecond deſcent, — --	12
d, e, the ſecond perpen. deſcent,	8
e, f, the third deſcent to the bay	50
f, h, irregular deſcent to the bottom,	97
I, a, b, c, d, e, f, h, the whole depth of the hole. — —	} 215 feet.

O, the mouth of the lower eaſt branch, near the ſame length and form of the weſt lower branch in Fig. I.

g, a maſſy rock, which appears to have fallen from the roof.

This ſurvey had probably never been taken, but for the following melancholy accident: On Friday the 17th of March, 1775, the reverend Thomas Newman, one of the minor canons of Briſtol cathedral, in company with another gentleman, and two ladies (one his ſiſter, the other his intended wife) went to this place to examine the depth with a line; and approaching the mouth of the pit, laid hold, for the greater ſafety, of a twig that ſprung from the root of an aſh-tree, growing over the mouth of the cavern. But moſt unfortunately his foot ſlipt, the twig broke, and he fell to the bottom in ſight of his friends. Many perſons went down daily for a conſiderable time in ſearch of the body, and it was found thirty-nine days after the accident, floating in the water, with a large contuſion in the back part of the head, the eyes wide open, the face red as ſcarlet, and the body ſwelled nearly to double its natural ſize.

Mr. George Catcott, a gentleman of Briſtol, was one of the many whom curioſity prompted to view this remarkable cavern, and has written a very circumſtantial account of it, which was ſent me in manuſcript, by a gentleman, with his approbation. 'The roof,' ſays he, 'appears to 'be nearly of equal height in every part, and very 'much reſembles the cieling of a Gothic cathedral. 'The ſides are almoſt ſtreight, at leaſt as much 'as was then above water; and, conſidering the 'whole to be intirely the work of nature, are remark-'ably regular. The place is rendered ſtill more 'awful by the great reverberation that attends the 'voice when you ſpeak loud, and if thoroughly 'illuminated muſt have a very beautiful appear-'ance. When you view the place from hence, '[i.e. the bottom] objects of the moſt diſmal 'kind preſent themſelves from every quarter. 'The deep water almoſt directly under your feet, 'rendered ſtill more dreadful by the faint glim-'mering rays of light paſſing through the open-'ings of the chaſms above, and reflected from its 'ſurface; together with the black rugged rocks, 'horrid precipices, and deep caverns over head, 'brought to my remembrance the following lines 'of Milton:

'The diſmal ſituation, waſte and wild,
'A dungeon horrible on all ſides,
'No light, but rather darkneſs viſible,
'Serv'd only to diſcover ſights of woe,
'Regions of horror, doleful ſhades.'

The ſame ingenious gentleman gives the dimenſions of the ſeveral parts of the cavern; but the annexed plate, with the explanation, precludes the uſe of thoſe particulars, as a more perfect idea may be obtained from a drawing, than verbal deſcription is capable of giving. However, I acknowledge my obligations to Mr. Catcott for his papers, tho' I differ in opinion from him as to the origin of Pen-Park Hole.

By the paſſage diſtinguiſhed in Italicks, he declares it to be the work of nature; and ſpeaking of the eaſtern branch of the cavern, (Fig. I.) gives the following and only reaſon in ſupport of his opinion, viz. 'In the roofs of 'theſe caverns, and upper part of the ſides, are a 'great number of cavities in the ſolid rock, in 'form of inverted funnels, (ſee f, f, f, f, in 'the plate, Fig. I.) which as they widen in pro-'portion to their depth, prove they could not 'have been made by art, as ſome have abſurdly 'aſſerted; but by the retreat of the waters which 'flowed through them into the great abyſs be-'neath, at the time of the univerſal deluge, of 'which great and awful event they ſtill remain as 'ſo many undeniable proofs.'

I would by no means attempt to invalidate an argument in ſupport of Sacred Hiſtory; but it would be unfortunate if the truth of it reſpecting the deluge were to reſt on deductions to be made from Pen-Park Hole. If Mr. Catcott had obſerved that many places round about, in the ſame and the adjoining fields, appear to have been opened from the ſurface; and that along the field to the northward, the ground is much higher than in other parts, running into tumps like heaps of rubbiſh brought up out of a mine: If he had been informed of a tradition handed down in the family, that the great grandfather of the preſent owner received fifteen or ſixteen hundred pounds for his ſhare of ore raiſed there; and had known, from the information of the late Mrs. Anne Jefferis, that many places thereabout were worked by the company of Royal miners, he then would moſt likely have been of the general opinion of all competent judges of this matter, that it is no other than a large lead mine. Of that number is captain Hamilton, who has viſited all the principal mines in Europe, and deſcended into this no leſs than ſix times, where he generally continued for four or five hours together. As to the cavities which Mr. Catcott thinks could not have been made by art,—Are they not of the very ſhape commonly made by miners working over head? But that gentleman will have them formed by the retreat of the waters through them into the great abyſs; he ſhould, however, have ſhewn, that they now have, or at leaſt formerly had, a communication upwards through the rock to the ſurface; whereas no ſuch thing appears upon examination.

Upon the ſuppoſition of this being a Swallet hole, how can it be accounted for, that broken pipes of an old make, with very ſmall bowls, pieces of glaſs bottles, and fragments of old leather ſhoes, were found intermixt with ſome gravel and ſpar, brought up out of the eaſtern branch of it, about the year 1770, as I have been informed by Mr. Harmer, a gentleman of the ſtricteſt veracity? The workmen then offered to get out a thouſand tons of ſuch gravelly ſtuff, which had moſt probably been beat off from the ore, and was uniformly formly thrown up on the ſides of the paſſages, ſo as to leave a clear carriage way. I would now aſk, Does not this look like mining? and can there remain a doubt that Pen-Park Hole is any thing but an old mine? Indeed Mr. Catcott himſelf ſeems to have been of the general opinion, when he wrote the beginning of his account, where deſcribing the part a, (Fig. II.) he ſays, It is a prop or pillar of ſtone, which appears to be left with a deſign to keep the north part from falling down. And it was undoubtedly left by the miners with that very deſign. I conjecture, however, from the antient make of the tobacco pipes found in the rubbiſh, that the hole was worked out in the early times of ſmoaking tobacco, and long before the Pen-Park lands were divided amongſt different proprietors, as they now are, which was done in the year 1650.

The only manufacture carried on in this pariſh is a pottery of coarſe, red ware; and it ſeems to be chiefly employ'd in making pans for the ſugar bakers in Briſtol.

Of the College of Weſtbury.

There was an antient monaſtery in this place, but of whoſe foundation is uncertain; and long before the conqueſt, the eſtates with which it had been endowed were appropriated to the church of Worceſter; for in thoſe days the biſhops had the cuſtody of all monaſteries in their dioceſes, and could appropriate their revenues to the colleges of their own cathedrals.

Oſwald was advanced to the ſee of Worceſter about the year 960. He reformed the monaſteries within his dioceſe, expelling the ſecular clergy, and placing monks in their ſtead, and the little monaſtery here partook of the general reform. The biſhop, with the aſſiſtance of king Edgar, was a good benefactor to the college, of which the monks were a new order of inhabitants, and therefore Oſwald was looked upon by ſome to be the founder. But as all human inſtitutions are ſubject to change, ſo this college experienced another alteration in the following century.

Sampſon, a Norman, was made biſhop of Worceſter in 1096. He annulled Oſwald's conſtitution, expelled the monks out of this college, and filled their places with ſecular canons; which gave no ſmall offence to the whole monaſtic order. He died at Weſtbury on the 5th of May, 1112; and the ſeculars kept poſſeſſion of the college during the time of Theulf his ſucceſſor.

In the year 1125, Simon ſucceeded to the ſee of Worceſter, in whoſe time the ſecular clerks ſaw a reverſe of fortune, for he diſplaced them from Weſtbury, and put monks in the poſſeſſion of the college, who maintained their ground there 'till the general diſſolution of monaſteries. Many of theſe particulars are related in the Survey of Worceſter Cathedral.

King Edward the Third gave the hoſpital of St. Lawrence, near Briſtol, towards the maintenance of the monks of this college. And Richard duke of York, and his third ſon Edmond earl of Rutland, were ſo great benefactors, that ſir Robert Atkyns affirms the college was founded by them, at which time it conſiſted of a dean and five canons; but in the particular of its foundation ſir Robert was certainly miſtaken.

King Edward the Fourth gave the manor of Aylminſter, (now Elmſtree) in the pariſh of Tetbury, to the monks of this college, when Henry Sampſon was dean, and a tranſlation of the royal grant is printed in the Appendix to this work, N°. 25.

William Canning, a rich merchant of Briſtol, after he had been five times mayor of that city, retired from buſineſs, and went into prieſt's orders, and ſeven years afterwards was made dean of this college, which, with the aſſiſtance of Dr. Carpenter, he new built, and was a great benefactor to it. He was a man of great generoſity and public ſpirit, and built an almſhouſe in Weſtbury, for poor men and poor women, and directed that the mayor of Briſtol ſhould have the placing in of one of the poor men, and the mayoreſs the appointment of one of the poor women. He alſo ſettled lands for the payment of 44*l.* a year to the ſheriffs, in lieu of toll demanded by them at the gates of the city, for proviſion brought thither. He built the large and beautiful church of Redcliff in Somerſetſhire, adjoining to the city, where he lies buried in the ſouth aile, in his prieſt's robes, cut in white marble. He died in 1474.

Two thirds of the tithes of Biſley and Stroud were appropriated towards the maintenance of two prebendaries in this college; and a licence was obtained to erect the prebend of Auſt 49 E. 3. The college alſo obtained a licence to purchaſe lands of the yearly value of 10*l.* for the maintenance of Richard Fulcher's chantry in their church, 35 H. 6.

At the general diſſolution of monaſteries, the yearly revenues of this houſe were valued at 232*l.* 14*s.*

The dimenſions of the college, in the reign of king Henry the Sixth, are given by William of Worceſter, as follows: Collegium de Weſtberye continet in longitudine 47 virgas, latitudo ejus continet 5 [25] virgas. Eccleſia Collegij Diocenatus de Weſtbery continet in longitudine 42 virgas, vel 60 graſſus. Latitudo ejus continet 24 virgas, vel 25. In Engliſh: The college of Weſtbury is 47 yards long, and 5 [ſuppoſed 25] broad. The college church 42 yards or 60 ſteps long, and 24 or 25 yards broad.

I have already given the ſtate of the building in the reign of king Charles the Firſt, from ſir Robert Atkyns, and its preſent ſtate from my own knowledge.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

It has been already obſerved, that in early ages the biſhops could appropriate the revenues of religious religious houſes to the colleges of their own cathedrals, and, with reſpect to Weſtbury college, that was actually done by the biſhop of Worceſter. Before the Norman conqueſt, the biſhop's reeve, or bailiff, received the profits of all ſuch eſtates, allowing to the monaſtery for ſuſtenance and clothing what the biſhop thought neceſſary. So that in fact there was little or no diſtinction between the proper lands of the biſhoprick, and thoſe antiently given to the uſe of ſuch impropriated monaſteries. This accounts for the manor of Hueſberie ſtanding in Domeſday under the title Terra Eccle' de Wireceſtre, as in the following extract from that record:

'The land of the church of Wireceſtre in 'Bernintreu hundred.

'Saint Mary of Wireceſtre held and ſtill holds 'Hueſberie. There were and are fifty hides. In 'demean are two plow-tillages, and eight villeins, 'and ſix bordars, with eight plow-tillages. There 'are four ſervi, and one ancilla. Theſe mem-'bers, Henberie, Redeuuiche, Stoche, Giete, be-'long to this manor. In theſe are nine plow-'tillages in demean, and twenty-ſeven villeins, 'and twenty-two bordars, with twenty-ſix plow-'tillages. There are twenty ſervi, and two 'ancillæ, and twenty coliberti, with ten plow-'tillages, and a mill of 20 den.

'Six radcheniſters belong to this manor, 'having eight hides, and eight plow-tillages, and 'they could not be ſeparated from the manor. 'And there are two houſes in Briſtou paying '16 den.

'Of the lands of this manor Turſtin the ſon of 'Rolph holds five hides in Auſtreclive, and 'Giſlebert the ſon of Turold three hides and a 'half in Contone, and Conſtantine five hides in 'Icetune. In theſe lands are five plow-tillages 'in demean, and ſixteen villeins, and twelve 'bordars, with twelve plow-tillages, and there 'are eleven ſervi.

'Oſbern Giffard holds five hides of the ſame 'land of this manor, and does no ſervice.

'All the manor, with its members, was worth '24 lib. in the time of king Edward, and now the 'demeans of St. Mary are worth 29 lib. 14 ſol. 6 den. 'That which the men hold is worth 9 lib.' Domeſday, p. 70.

This large manor continued a part of the poſſeſſions of the college of Weſtbury, under the church of Worceſter, 'till the general diſſolution of monaſteries. Weſtbury college was ſurrendered to king Henry the Eighth by John Barlow, dean thereof, on the 18th of February, in the 35th year of that king's reign. The king, by his letters patent, granted the ſame, with all manors, &c. thereunto belonging, to ſir Rafe Sadleir and his heirs for ever, 35 H. 8.

Sir Thomas Sadleir, or Sadler, knight, was ſon of ſir Rafe, and proprietor of the hundred of Henbury, and manors of Henbury, Weſtbury, and Stoke Biſhop, 32 Eliz. Sir Thomas left a ſon, Rafe Sadler, eſq; and a daughter Gertrude. Rafe Sadler leaving no iſſue, Gertrude, his ſiſter, who was wife to ſir Walter Aſton, of Tixal in Staffordſhire, became his heir. Walter lord Aſton, (ſon and heir of the ſame ſir Walter and Gertrude his wife) with lady Mary, wife to Walter lord Aſton, and Walter Aſton, eſq; their ſon and heir apparent, ſold the manor of Weſtbury Bryan, alias Weſtbury upon Trym, lately belonging to the college of Weſtbury, in the county of Glouceſter, to Thomas Yate and Gregory Gearing, eſquires, May 20, 1675.

Sir Samuel Aſtry, of Henbury, knight, purchaſed the ſame, July 2, 1680, of Thomas Yate, of Gray's Inn in the county of Middleſex, and Gregory Gearing, of Denchurch in the county of Berks, eſquires. Sir Samuel Aſtry left three daughters coheireſſes; Elizabeth, married to ſir John Smyth, baronet; Diana, the wife of Richard Orlebar, eſq; and Arabella, the lady of Charles-William earl of Suffolk, whom ſhe ſurvived; and dying without iſſue, ſhe left her third part to ſir John Smyth, baronet; whoſe ſon, ſir John Smyth, ſold a moiety of that third to the heirs of Edward Colſton, eſq; who had purchaſed the third part late Mr. Orlebar's. A moiety of the manor was then in ſir John Smyth, whoſe three ſiſters and coheireſſes ſold it to ſir Jarrit Smith, baronet, who married Florence, one of the ſaid coheireſſes. The other moiety deſcended to the two daughters and coheirs of Thomas Edwards, eſq; one of whom was married to Francis lord Middleton; the other wedded to Alexander Ready, eſq; who afterwards took the name of Colſton, and died in the year 1775. So that ſir Jarrit Smith, baronet, is the preſent owner of one moiety of this manor, and the honourable Thomas Willoughby, ſecond ſon of the late lord Middleton, and Alexander Colſton, eſq; at the time of his death, were proprietors of the other moiety.

This account is abſtracted from the original deeds, in the poſſeſſion of ſir Jarrit Smith.

The ſcite of the college belonged to Mr. Vigaur when ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his account of it, but it is now the property of John Hobhouſe, eſq; as already taken notice of in the account of the gentlemen's ſeats in this pariſh.

John Newton, ſon and heir of John, late merchant in Briſtol, levied a fine of lands in Weſtbury to the uſe of William More, 28 H. 6.

TITHINGS and HAMLETS.

1. Stoke Biſhop is a very conſiderable tithing. It was called Stoke Biſhop, or Biſhop's Stoke, becauſe it belonged to the biſhop of Conſtance in Normandy; and to diſtinguiſh it from Stoke Giffard in this neighbourhood. The particulars of the manor are thus recorded in Domeſday:

'The biſhop of St. Laud holds Eſtoch in 'Bacheſtanes hundred, and Tetbald holds it of 'him. Eldred held it of earl Herald, and could 'go where he pleaſed. There are two hides, one 'taxed,

'taxed, the other not. In demean is one plow-'tillage, and two villeins, and one bordar, with 'one plow-tillage. There are ſix ſervi, and five 'acres of meadow. It was worth 40 ſol. now '20 ſol.' Domeſday, p. 70.

The manor of Stoke Biſhop was afterwards veſted in the biſhops of Worceſter, and held by them in ſucceſſion, 'till it was alienated to the crown, by doctor Heath, 1 E. 6. and that king granted it the ſame year, among other particulars, late parcel of the poſſeſſions of the biſhop of Worceſter, to ſir Rafe Sadler, and his heirs. Sir Thomas Sadler, knight, was lord of the manor of Stoke Biſhop 32 Eliz. from whom it deſcended, like Henbury and Weſtbury, down to the preſent time, and with them is now veſted in the ſame proprietors.

There is a handſome ſeat, and a large eſtate in this tithing, formerly belonging to the Canns. William Cann, of Compton, alderman of Briſtol, married Margaret, ſiſter to ſir Robert Yeomans. Robert Cann, ſon and heir of William and Margaret, married to his firſt wife, Cicely, daughter of Humphry Hooke, alderman of Briſtol. By her he had William, his ſon and heir, who married Elizabeth, daughter of ſir Thomas Langton, of Briſtol, knight. Their ſon and heir, William, married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Cheſter, of Knole, and by her had one daughter and heireſs, Elizabeth, wedded to Thomas Maſter, of the Abbey at Cirenceſter, eſq; which Elizabeth is mother to the preſent Thomas Maſter, of the ſame place, who married Mary, daughter of James-Lenox-Napier Dutton, eſq; and by her has iſſue ſeveral children.

The before-mentioned Robert Cann was knighted by king Charles the Second, Apr. 22, 1662, and created a baronet on the thirteenth of September following. He married, to his ſecond wife, Anne, daughter of ſir Derrick Popley, by whom he had a ſon, Thomas, knighted by king James the Second, Apr. 18, 1686; in favour of whom he made a will, to the diſinheriſon of his ſon William, which cauſed very long and expenſive law-ſuits between the two branches of the family; when, after ſeveral hearings in chancery, and a bill of Revivor brought by the laſt ſir William Cann, bar^t. the will was fully eſtabliſhed. Sir Robert Cann ſerved the office of high ſheriff in the year 1676.

Sir Thomas Cann, knight, ſon of ſir Robert, left iſſue two ſons, Robert and William, of whom the latter was town-clerk of Briſtol; and three daughters, Anne, married to Nicholas Jackſon, of Sneed Park; Catherine, married to John Fog, alderman of Briſtol; and Mary, who died unmarried. He ſerved the office of high ſheriff in the year 1686, and dying, was ſucceeded in eſtate by his eldeſt ſon

Robert Cann, who alſo, on the death of his couſin ſir William Cann, Apr. 27, 1726, ſucceeded to the title of baronet. He ſerved the office of high ſheriff in 1726, and died a batchelor in 1748.

William Cann, town-clerk of Briſtol, was brother to the laſt ſir Robert Cann, whom he ſucceeded in honour and eſtate, and died in the year 1753.

Sir Robert Cann, ſon and heir of the laſt ſir William, ſucceeded his father, and died without iſſue, July 20, 1765. His only ſiſter, Catherine, had been married to Mr. Charles Jeffries, of Briſtol, by whom ſhe had iſſue one ſon, Robert-Cann Jeffries; and one daughter, Catherine.

Robert-Cann Jeffries was heir to his uncle ſir Robert Cann, but dying a batchelor, May 16, 1773, the whole of his fortune deſcended on his ſiſter Catherine, who, Feb. 10, 1774, was married to Henry Lippincott, eſq; the preſent owner, in right of his wife, of the Canns ſeat and eſtate at Stoke Biſhop, and lord of the manors of Compton, Olveſton, and Elberton; and, by a late purchaſe, of Littleton upon Severn. He has likewiſe ſeveral good eſtates in other counties, and in the city of Briſtol. They have iſſue one ſon, Henry-Cann Lippincott, born June 5, 1776. Mr. Lippincott is of an antient family in the county of Devon, and has twice ſerved the office of ſheriff for the city of Briſtol, viz. in 1768, and 1771; and once for the county of Glouceſter, in 1776, when there was an election of a knight of the ſhire, which was ſtrenuouſly conteſted between the honourable George-Cranfield Berkeley, brother to the earl of Berkeley, and William-Bromley Cheſter, eſq. The poll laſted thirteen days; but the buſineſs was afterwards carried, by petition, into the Houſe of Commons, when Mr. Lippincott's conduct appeared ſo unexceptionable to the committee, that they unanimouſly came to the following reſolution, viz. 'The committee, in juſtice to 'the high ſheriff of the county of Glouceſter, 'declare, that they have ſeen no reaſon, by any 'evidence adduced to them, to impeach his con-'duct with partiality, in the diſcharge of his duty 'in taking the poll.' Mr. Lippincott gives for his arms, Quarterly, 1ſt and 4th, Per feſs crenelle gules and ſable, three mountain cats argent, for Lippincott; 2d and 3d, Sable, a chevron argent between three mermaids proper, for Wyvely. Marrying an heireſs, he bears a ſcutcheon of pretence, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Azure, a fret Or, on a chief argent a lion paſſant gules, for Jeffries; 2d and 3d, Azure, fretty argent, on a feſs gules three leopards faces Or, for Cann.

Sneed Park lies in the tithing of Stoke Biſhop, and was formerly a park belonging to the church of Worceſter, but has been long ſince turned into farms, and is remarkable as well for the natural inequality and beautiful variety of the ground, as for the ſtriking views it affords; particularly of the pendent rocks and woods on each ſide the Avon, which bounds it on the ſouth and ſouth-eaſt. After the diſſolution of monaſteries, it became part of the very large eſtate of ſir Rafe Sadler, of whoſe ſon it was purchaſed by Joſeph Jackſon, an anceſtor to the preſent owner. He was fifth ſon of Nicholas Jackſon, by —— daughter of ſir Edward Stradling, knight. He married Mary, daughter of —— Hele, of Devonſhire, eſq; and built Sneed Park houſe, as appears by his arms on the maſonry over the entrance, impaling thoſe of Hele, viz. A bend lozengy ermine.

Joſeph Jackſon, only ſon and heir of the laſt Joſeph, married Catherine, daughter of Thomas Skinner, of Dewliſh in the county of Dorſet, eſq.

Nicholas Jackſon, eldeſt ſon and heir of the ſaid Joſeph and Catherine, married Anne, eldeſt daughter of ſir Thomas Cann, of Stoke Biſhop, by whom he had iſſue two ſons, Robert, and Nicholas; and two daughters, Catherine-Anne, and Mary; all living, except Catherine-Anne, who died in 1752.

Robert Jackſon, eſq; ſon and heir of Nicholas, is the preſent owner of Sneed Park, where he has a good eſtate, beſides others in the neighbourhood, and in the city of Briſtol. He bears Or, on a chevron ſable, between three eagles heads erazed azure, as many cinquefoils of the firſt. This family is originally from the county of York, and has been ſeated at Sneed Park about one hundred and thirty years. There is another branch of it, long ſince ſettled at Pentroilas in Herefordſhire, and is now in two heireſſes, the one married to Henry Shiffner, of the ſame place, eſq; and the other to Jonathan-Morton Pleydell, of the county of Dorſet, eſq.

Sneed Park houſe, tho' ſeated on an agreeable eminence, is ſheltered by hills on every ſide. It had ſuffered much by age, but was faſhed, and thoroughly repaired a few years ago, and is now a chearful and comfortable habitation. The terrace commands the river Avon, and the whole navigation of the city of Briſtol, at leſs than a quarter of a mile below it; and in full view, at the diſtance of two or three miles, on the oppoſite ſide of the river, ſtands the fine old houſe of Mrs. Gordon, one of thoſe places where king Charles the Second lay concealed, after the battle of Worceſter, as fully related by lord Clarendon; but it was then the property of Mr. Norton, and formerly a country houſe belonging to St. Auguſtin's priory in Briſtol. The ground, on every other ſide of Sneed Park houſe, falls, with an eaſy deſcent, to a little rill which feeds ſome fiſh-ponds, beyond which it riſes gradually again, and terminates the view not far from the edge of Durdham down; where, upon a delicious ſituation within the park walls, and near the point of Saint Vincent's rocks, ſtands an octagon tower, which forms a pretty object to the houſe, and to all the country thereabout. It commands a birds-eye view of the rocks, and of both ſides of the river Avon, as well as of the Severn, ſhut in by the mountains of Wales; and conſiſts of three good rooms, with an obſervatory at top. It was built two or three hundred years ago, as ſuppoſed, by one Cook, from whom it vulgarly obtained the name of Cook's Folly. The rooms are fitted up, and the tower is made uſe of as a Belvidere to Sneed Park houſe.

Say-Mills is an eſtate in this tithing, where, at the confluence of the Trim with the Avon, large docks for the preſervation of ſhipping were made ſeventy or eighty years ago. Rowles Scudamore, eſq; ſteward of the ſheriff's court in the city of Briſtol, is leſſee, under lord Clifford, of a good eſtate at Say-Mills, where he has a pretty villa. He is likewiſe the largeſt proprietor of the docks there. Theſe premiſſes are held by leaſe of a thouſand years, unimpeachable of waſte, from Edward Southwell, eſq; great grandfather to the preſent lord Clifford, at the rent of 81 l. per ann. The docks were planned and executed by Mr. Joſhua Franklyn, a wealthy citizen of Briſtol, who divided the ſame into thirty-two ſhares, moſt of which were purchaſed by his friends, and ſtood them in upwards of 300*l.* a piece. Mr. Franklyn ſunk the greateſt part of his fortune in this undertaking, and the ſhares at preſent bear only an ideal value, ſome of them having been ſold at 10*l.* a piece, and the docks have been utterly abandoned for ſeveral years.

Redland is a hamlet in the tithing of Stoke Biſhop. Redland formerly belonged to the abbey of Tewkeſbury, and the privilege of a court leet, waifs, and felons goods therein, was allowed to that abbey in a writ of Quo warranto brought againſt them 15 E. 1. Thomas Janitor, by his deed, reſtored to the church of Tewkeſbury, and to St. James of Briſtol, the land which Maud his wife gave to God and the church of St. James. He likewiſe gave to the ſame church of St. James, beſide other particulars, land worth 12*s.* in Redland [rubea terra] to be held as freely as Robert earl of Glouceſter, his lord, gave it to him, and earl William, ſon of Robert, confirmed it. After the diſſolution of that abbey, it came to the Wilſons. Egion Wilſon and Dorothy his wife, and Miles Wilſon, joined in levying a fine of the manor of Rydland, alias Th' Ridland, to John Foxton 6 E. 6. John Innys, eſq; has an elegant houſe in this hamlet, built by the late Mr. Coſſins.

Thomas-Edwards Freeman, of Batsford in this county, eſq; has a good eſtate here.

This hamlet lying at a conſiderable diſtance from the church, the before-mentioned Mr. Coſſins, in the year 1740, built a chapel for the convenience of the inhabitants, upon an eminence not far diſtant from his houſe; and endowed it with lands, &c. which communibus annis, are worth about 130*l.* a year. He alſo ſoon afterwards built a houſe for the miniſter, at the expence of 1000*l.*

The chapel is of freeſtone. The entrance is at the weſt end, over which there is a pediment of the whole extent, ſupported by four Ionic pillaſters. It has one bell, which hangs under a handſome rotundo.

The

The floor and the ſteps to the altar are of black and white marble. The altar-piece is half an octagon, wainſcotted in compartments, and highly finiſhed with carvings of trophies and feſtoons, and ornamented with an excellent painting of the Embalming of Chriſt. The marble communion table is ſupported by a gilt eagle, and a little before it, upon pedeſtals, ſtand two other eagles, highly gilt, for placing books upon. The cieling is finiſhed in the beſt taſte, and it may be truly ſaid, that this chapel is one of the moſt elegant buildings of its kind.

In a ſmall veſtry room on the right of the entrance, there is a handſome monument, with the following memorials and family arms:

In the Vault under the Communion Table are depoſited the Remains of

Mrs. ANNE INNYS, Siſter to Mrs. COSSINS, who died 5th Decemb. 1747, Aged 69.	NICHOLAS MARISSAL of Edmonton Eſq; who died 29th Auguſt, 1739, (brought from Chriſt Church in Middleſex in Decemb. 1747) Aged 52.	Mrs. MARY MARISSAL his Wife, Siſter to Mr. COSSINS, who died Septemb. 9, 1757, Aged 66.	IOHN COSSINS of REDLAND COURT, Eſq; Founder of this Chapel, who died 19th April, 1759, Aged 77.	Mrs. MARTHA COSSINS his Wife, Daughter of ANDREW INNYS of BRISTOL, Gent.
Beneath in a lozenge, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Argent three ſhoulets azure, for Innys. 2d, Gules, three boars heads couped Or, for Abercherder. 3d, Or, three bars undy gules, for Lovel.	Baron and femme, 1ſt, Azure, a chevron between three cups Or, for Mariſſal. 2d, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Azure, a lion rampant Or, gutty du ſang, for Coſſins. 2d and 3d, Argent, on a bend ſable three owls of the field, for Saville.	In a lozenge, the ſame coats, and alike diſpoſed as in the preceding column.	Baron and femme, 1ſt, Coſſins and Saville quarterly, impaling 2d, Quarterly 1ſt and 4th, Innys. 2d, Abercherder. 3d, Lovel, as in the firſt column.	In a lozenge, the ſame arms, and alike diſpoſed, as in the preceding column.

On one ſide the entrance, within, is the buſt of Mr. Coſſins, the founder, well executed in marble by Ryſbrack; and on the other ſide, that of Mrs. Coſſins, his wife.

2. Shirehampton, is another large tithing, ſouth-weſtward of the church, in the precincts of which are Kingroad, and Hungroad, two eminent ſtations for ſhips. This tithing is intirely detached from the reſt of the pariſh. It occurs by the name of Chire in Domeſday, and was a member of the large manor of Weſtbury, in the foreſt of Dean, as appears by the extract from that record.

Thomas Mallet, eſq; had livery of the manor of Shirehampton granted to him 9 Eliz. He died in the 22d year of the ſame reign, and left John his ſon and heir twelve years old. Henry Lewis, eſq; was ſeized of it, from whom it deſcended to George Lewis, ſon of Henry, who died poſſeſſed of it 10 Car. and left William his ſon ſeven years old.

There is a chapel in this tithing, where divine ſervice is celebrated once a fortnight.

South Mead is a manor within the pariſh of Weſtbury, formerly belonging to the nunnery of St. Mary Magdalen in Briſtol. The prioreſs granted a long leaſe of this manor to Thomas Haines, eſq; who obtained a reverſion in fee from king Henry the Eighth. The manor of South-mead in Weſtbury, lately belonging to the Magdalen nunnery in Briſtol, was granted to Richard Andrews and Thomas Hyſley, in truſt, 36 H. 8. Richard Haines died ſeized of Southmead 20 Eliz. and livery was granted to Thomas Haines, ſon of Richard. The heir of this family ſold it to Mr. Barker, anceſtor to the late Mr. Barker of Fairford, of whom it was purchaſed by Mr. Knight, and having ſince paſſed thro' ſeveral hands, has been lately ſold to Mr. Joſhua James, a diſtiller of Briſtol, who is the preſent lord of the manor of Southmead, and has made very conſiderable improvements on the manſion houſe and eſtate.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is in the deanery of Briſtol. It is an impropriation worth 10*l.* a year to the curate, before it was augmented, in the year 1719, by the queen's bounty, and the joint donations of Edward Colſton and Thomas Edwards, eſquires. The honourable Mr. Henry Fane is the impropriator and patron; and the reverend Mr. Ray is the preſent incumbent.

The church is large and handſome, and dedicated to the Holy Trinity. It conſiſts of the nave, and two ailes, with a large chancel, and has a very handſome pinnacled tower at the weſt end. In the north window of the chancel are painted in the glaſs the figures of St. Auguſtine, St. Gregory, and St. Ambroſe, with their names; and in the windows of the north aile are the arms of ſome of thoſe perſons who contributed to the building of it.

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

At the ſouth-weſt corner of the chancel, upon an altar tomb, lies the figure of a naked man, ill executed in ſtone, without arms or inſcription; but it is ſaid to be intended for doctor Carpenter, biſhop of Worceſter.

Under an arch in the north aile is the figure of a man in armour, and this memorial:

HERE VNDER LIETH INTERRED THE BODIE OF S^r RICHARD HILL, OF REDLAND COVRTE IN THIS PARISH, KNIGHT, WHO DECEASED THE 29^th DAY OF MAY IN Y^e YEARE OF OVR LORD GOD 1627, AGED 70 YEARES.

Over the monument are theſe arms: Quarterly, 1ſt, Gules, a ſaltire vaire between four mullets argent. 2d, Gules, a lion rampant Or debruiſed of a bend ermine. 3d, Sable, a bend Or between ſix roundlets azure. 4th as the 1ſt.

In the chancel, upon a handſome marble monument, it is thus written:

Near this Place lyeth the Body of Giles Hungerford, Son and Heir of Giles Hungerford, late of Willow in the County of Somerſet, Eſq^r; deſcended from the Hon^ble Houſe of the Hungerfords of Farley Caſtle in the ſaid County. He married Martha, eldeſt Daughter of Iohn Iacob of Norton in the County of Wilts, Eſq; by whom he had Iſſue only this Son, who died the twenty-third Day of Auguſt, in the One and twentieth Year of his Age, Anno Domini 1689.

Under the inſcription are theſe arms, Sable, two bars argent, in chief three plates.

On

On the table of another handsome monument:

Juxta tumulatur Corpus Jacob Knight de Southmead Armigeri, filij Johannis Knight Militis, Vico de Temple Civitate Bristol, olim habitantis.

Uxorem duxit Annam Dowdeswell filiam Caroli Dowdeswell, Armigeri, de Forthampton Court Goue. Filios reliquit quatuor Johannem, Thomam, Jacob, & Carolum.

In Piam Memoriam Patris-Patriæ dignissimi, erga Parentes piissimi, Mariti amantissimi, Filiisq; indulgentissimi, Hoc erigi jussit Monumentum Vidua Superstes. Obijt pridie Idus Julij, MDCCXX. Ætat. XXXVI.

Jacob tertius filius supradict. Jacob Knight obiit 28 Nov. 1726, Ætat. 9.

Upon the monument are these arms: Baron and femme, 1st, Argent, three roundlets gules, on a chief of the second a buckle Or. 2d, Dowdeswell, as under Forthampton.

There is also a memorial for Anne Knight, wife of the above Jacob, who died in 1736, aged 47.

On the table of a pyramidal monument:

Near this Place lies the Body of JOHN HENLEY, late of the Red Lodge in the City of Bristol, Esq; descended from an antient Family in the County of Somerset. He married Mary the eldest Daughter of HENRY FANE, Son of Sir FRANCIS FANE, Knight of the Bath. He was an affectionate Friend, a charitable Benefactor to the Poor, and was greatly esteemed and regarded by all his Acquaintance. He departed this Life the 31st Day of December, 1702, in the 59th Year of his Age.

The arms on this monument are, Baron and femme, 1st, Azure, a lion rampant argent, within a bordure of the second semee of roundlets gules, for Henley. 2d, Azure, three gauntlets Or, for Fane.

Upon a flat stone,

Here lie the Remains of Samuel Creswick D. D. late Dean of the Cathedral Church of Wells, who departed this Life Jan. 14th 1766, aged 72 Years.

Upon another flat stone,

Hic
repositum quicquid mortale,
reverendi admodum viri,
GULIELMI STONE,
nuper hujus Ecclesiæ, necnon Comptoniæ,
Pastoris dignissimi.
Vir, integerrimæ vitæ.
Eruditionis, in omni genere, singularis.
Pietate secundum Deum, maxime conspicuus.
diffusa in homines Benevolentia et Charitate, non minus insignis.
Gravitate, mira quadam Comitate condita, spectabilis.
cæteris ad sacram Functionem cunctis
Virtutibus ornatus.
Qui,
Postquam Evangelium summa, tum Constantia, tum Diligentia, quadraginta et sex circiter annos, fidelissime predicâsset,
Mortem obijt,
4to Febii Anno { Salutis nostræ } MDCCXXIII
{ Ætatis suæ } LXXIII.

On the table of a handsome pyramidal monument in the south aile, Near this Place lyes interred (Esqr.

The Body of WILLIAM JEFFERIS, of Pen-Park in this Parish, whose Industry and Integrity in Mercantile Affairs procured him an ample Reward.
Having gone through the Offices of Magistracy in the City of BRISTOL with great Reputation, he died the 17th Day of April, 1752, in the 61st Year of his Age.
Also (FERIS,
ANN, sole Daughter and Heiress of the above WILLIAM JEF-born the 21st of August, 1723, married the 30th of March 1752, to JOHN HARMER then of the City of Bristol, Merchant, and died the 9th of July, 1765.
The Sincerity of her Heart in all the Actions of her Life, illuminated by the Practice of every commendable Virtue, deservedly procured her the Affection and Esteem of Relations, Friends, and Acquaintance; and the solid Hope of a more glorious Reward in a Life of Immortality.

Over the table are these arms: Sable, a lion rampant between three scaling ladders argent, for Jefferis. Beneath, Argent, on a chevron between three annulets gules another of the field. On a scutcheon of pretence, Jefferis, as before.

Upon a neat marble monument in the same aile, it is thus written:

Near this Monument lies interred the Body of James Pipon of London, Merchant, who departed this Life at the Hot Wells, Bristol, the 12th of June, 1759, aged 48 Years. He was the 5th Son of Joshua Pipon, Esq; Lieutenant Bailly, chief Magistrate of the Island of Jersey.

In a scutcheon upon the pyramid are these arms, viz. Party per chevron, azure and Or, in chief between two estoiles of six points a crescent argent.

There is also an elegant monument in the same aile, with the following memorial on the vase:

Near this Place are interred the Bodies of WILLIAM PHELPS, Esq; and MARY his Widow and Relict, both late of Cote, in this Parish: He died the tenth Day of August 1763, aged 43 Years. She died the first Day of January, 1764, aged 53 Years.

This Monument is erected to their Memories in Pursuance of the Directions of the said MARY, in a Codicil to her Will.

The monument is ornamented with a scutcheon of two coats, Baron and femme, 1st. Argent, a lion rampant sable between six cross crosslets fitchy gules, for Phelps. 2d, Or, a fess between three griphons heads erazed sable.

Beside these mentioned in the inscriptions, there are several other eminent persons buried in the chancel, for whom there is no memorial, viz. Thomas earl of Westmoreland, who died about seven years ago; and Henry Fane, of Wormesley in Oxfordshire, esq; his brother: John earl of Westmoreland, (son to the above Thomas) and lady Burghurst, his wife: Mrs. Mary Creswick, relict of doctor Samuel Creswick, dean of Wells, and sister to Thomas earl of Westmoreland: And lady Anne Fane, eldest daughter to the said earl.

Benefactions.

Ralph Sadler, esq; formerly lord of the manor, gave two large houses by the church-yard to the use of the poor. Mr. Robert Ardern gave two houses without Laford's gate, worth 12*l.* a year, to the use of the poor. Mrs. Katherine Rutland gave 50*l.* the interest whereof to be paid to the minister for six annual sermons. Atkyns.

The following particulars are hung up in a written table in the vestry room, viz. Robert Ardern gave the ground on which Robotham's house now stands. William Ashley, the interest of 10*l.* and Honor Bodman, the interest of 50*l.* both to Shirehampton. Humphry Brown, 10*s.* for a sermon, and 40*s.* for bread, to Westbury and Stoke only. William Burgis, six score sacks of coal to six housekeepers of Westbury tithing only. Lady Cann, the interest of 20*l.* Doctor William Cooke, sixty twopenny loaves on New-years day. Edward Colston, esq; 100*l.* towards augmenting the living. Thomas Elbridge, the interest of 100*l.* viz. 20*s.* for a sermon on the 30th of January, the rest in bread. Edward Haines, the interest of 20*l.* Elizabeth Hellen, the interest of 5*l.* Sir Richard Hill, of Redland Court, the interest of 20*l.* Anthony Hill, the interest of 20*l.* Mrs. Betty Hallister, the interest of 100*l.* Thomas Hart, esq; the interest of 50*l.* John Jelf, the interest of 30*l.* Robert Kitchin, 6*s.* 8*d.* for a sermon, and 6*s.* 8*d.* for bread, to the tithings of Westbury and Stoke only. John Knight, the interest of 10*l.* Thomas Moor, the interest of 50*l.*

50*l.* John Morgan, the intereſt of 5*l.* Samuel Roach, for a ſermon at Shirehampton, 10*s.* and 10*s.* for coals to the poor there. Edmund Rutland, ſenior, and Edmund Rutland, junior, the intereſt of 5*l.* each. Mrs. Katherine Rutland, the intereſt of 10*l.* Chriſtopher Smith, 20*s.* for a ſermon at Shirehampton, and 20*s.* to the poor there. Joan Stainer, the intereſt of 75*l.* to Weſtbury and Shirehampton. Thomas Tilladam, the intereſt of 20*l.* Edward Wade, 15*s.* per ann. John Waſborow, the intereſt of 4*l.* George Webb, eſq; the intereſt of 200*l.* Mrs. Mary Webb, 10*s.* a year for a ſermon. William White, the intereſt of 10*l.* Mrs. Mary White, the intereſt of 20*l.* Robert Wood, the intereſt of 10*l.* Mr. Robert Yeomans, the intereſt of 20*l.* Mrs. Mary Innys, gave the intereſt of 200*l.* to the poor. The ſmall ſums are now put together to intereſt, and the produce diſtributed annually on the 6th of December.

Weſtbury.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 135	16	0
Poll-tax — — 1694, —	37	14	0
Land-tax —— 1694, -	144	0	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	106	16	0

Shirehampton.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 135	8	0
Poll-tax — 1694, —	23	5	0
Land-tax — 1694, —	115	4	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	86	17	0

Stoke Biſhop.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£. 139	8	0
Poll-tax —— 1694, —	37	14	0
Land-tax —— 1694, —	232	0	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	176	14	0

When ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his account of this pariſh, there were, according to him, 140 houſes, and about 650 inhabitants, whereof 30 were freeholders; yearly births 23, burials 22. Since that time population is increaſed, and the inhabitants are now eſtimated at upwards of 900.

WESTCOT

IS a pariſh in the hundred of Slaughter, four miles ſouth-eaſtward from Stow, five northward from Burford, and twenty-ſix north-eaſtward from Glouceſter. It lies in a Vale, with Bledington to the eaſt, Little Riſington to the weſt, Icombe to the north, and Idbury in Oxfordſhire to the ſouth of it; and conſiſts chiefly of good meadow and paſture ground.

It is called Icumbe in Domeſday, from Y-cwm, which in the Britiſh language ſignifies a valley; but about the reign of king Stephen, the firſt letter was omitted, and then it was written Combe, and afterwards Combe Baſkerville, from a family who were lords of the manor, and whoſe name was added to diſtinguiſh this place from the adjoining hamlet of Icombe. In proceſs of time, the name of Combe was very little uſed, and the place was then called Weſtcot, as at preſent, perhaps for ſtill greater diſtinction. But there are ſome traces of the antient name ſtill remaining, in that of a wood in this pariſh, called Gocombe, i.e. Combe wood.

The river Evenlode bounds Weſtcot to the eaſt.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

At the time of the general ſurvey, there were two proprietors of eſtates in this place, as appears from two paſſages in Domeſday, of which the following is a tranſlation:

'Radulf de Todeni holds Icumbe, in Sale-'maneſberie hundred, and Roger holds it of him. 'There are ten hides which pay tax. In demean 'are three plow-tillages, and twelve villeins, and 'two bordars, with ſeven plow-tillages. There 'are eight ſervi. It is worth and was worth 7 lib.' Domeſday, p. 76.

'Roger de Laci holds Iccumbe in Salemaneſ-'berie hundred, and Radulf holds it of him. 'Haldene held it. There are two hides. In 'demean are two plow-tillages, and two villeins, 'and two bordars, with one plow-tillage. There 'are four ſervi, and three ancillæ. It is worth 'and was worth 40 ſol. This eſtate pays tax.' Ibid. p. 75.

The Baſkervilles had property here ſoon after the conqueſt, for Hugard de Baſcheville gave one hide of land in Combe to the abbey of Glouceſter, and king Stephen confirmed the donation.

The ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire, in obedience to the king's writ, returned into the exchequer the names of all the vills in his county, with their proprietors, and he then certified that Combe was a vill in the hundred of Salmoneſburye, and that Sibilla Baſkerville was lady thereof, 9 E. 1.

It afterwards belonged to ſir Richard Baſkervill, and paſſed to the family of the Sheldons by the marriage of one of the daughters and coheireſſes of ſir John Blacket.

James Baſkervill levied a fine of Weſtcot Over and Nether Weſtcot, of the advowſon of the church, and of a fiſhery, to the uſe of William Sheldon, eſq; 1 E. 6. Ralph Sheldon had livery of theſe manors granted to him 13 Eliz. and a Ralph Sheldon was lord of Weſtcot in the year 1608. The late Mr. Owen, canon reſidentiary of St. David's, was lord of the manor at the beginning of this century, and had a good houſe near the church, which is now the property of the reverend Dr. Thomas Brookes; but the manor is divided among the freeholders.

Henry Huſee gave one hide and a half of land in Weſtcote, to the knights templars. Dugd. Monaſt. V. 2.

A tenement in Weſtcot, that had belonged to the Ciſtercian abbey of Bruern in Oxfordſhire, was granted to Edward Jewell 36 H. 8.

Benjamin Baron, eſq; enjoyed a good eſtate here, at the time of his death, in 1693. His daughter and heireſs carried it, by her marriage, to ſir Thomas Littleton, treaſurer of the navy, and ſpeaker of the houſe of commons, who was owner of it at the beginning of this century. It paſſed afterwards, by purchaſe, to Mr. Snell, and Powell Snell, of Guiting Grange, eſq; is the preſent proprietor of it. This eſtate was made tithe free, by appropriating a ground, called the Breach, to the rectory, as it was proved and ſettled, by an iſſue at law concerning the ſame, about the beginning of the preſent century.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Stow, worth about 140*l.* a year, of which the reverend Thomas Brookes, D.D. is patron and incumbent. Two yard-lands belong to the glebe.

Firſt fruits	£.	9	7	3	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths	—	0	18	3¾	Pentecoſt.	0	0	7½
Procurations		0	6	8

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	135	17	4
Poll-tax —— 1694,	—	20	8	0
Land-tax — 1694,	—	79	8	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	68	7	3

About the beginning of this century, there were 45 houſes in the pariſh, and about 160 inhabitants, of whom 6 were freeholders; yearly births 3, burials 3. Atkyns. The people are now computed at 120.

WESTERLEIGH.

THIS pariſh lies in the weſt part of the hundred of Pucklechurch, whence its name; three miles diſtant ſouth-weſt from Chipping Sodbury, ſeven north-weſt from Marſhfield, and nine north-eaſtward from the city of Briſtol.

It conſiſts chiefly of paſturage, with large tracts of waſte land, or common, and abounds in coal; ſo that a great part of the laborious inhabitants are employ'd in mining. There is alſo a manufacture of felt hats carried on in the village, which ſeems to be improving.

Doctor Edward Fowler, biſhop of Glouceſter, was a native of this place, and died at Chelſea, Aug. 26, 1714.

The Oſmunda Regalis, a very curious plant, grows ſpontaneouſly in Weſterleigh common.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

Weſterleigh was antiently a member of the extenſive manor of Pucklechurch, which was given to the monks of Glaſtonbury, to pray for the ſoul of king Edmund the Firſt, who was ſtabbed in his palace at Pucklechurch, in the year 946. And being part of that manor at the time of the general ſurvey, it is not particularly mentioned in Domeſday.

The monks of Glaſtonbury quitted claim to the manors of Pucklechurch, Abſton, and Weſterleigh, to Joceline biſhop of Bath and Wells, 7 Joh. on condition that he would reſtore to them the election of their own abbat; and Weſterleigh continued as part of the poſſeſſions of that ſee 'till after the reformation. King Edward the Sixth took it from the biſhoprick of Bath and Wells in the ſecond year of his reign, and it was granted to ſir Nicholas Pointz 6 E. 6. Sir Nicholas Pointz, heir of ſir Anthony Pointz, died ſeized of it 4 Mar. leaving Nicholas, his ſon and heir, twenty-one years old.

John Roberts, alderman of Briſtol, purchaſed the manor of Nicholas Pointz, and was lord of it in the year 1608, as was Thomas Roberts, eſq; at the time of his death, in the year 1673. Sir Samuel Aſtry, knight, died poſſeſſed of it Sep. 22, 1704, and left it to Elizabeth his widow, afterwards the wife of Simon Harcourt, eſq; whom ſhe outlived, and dying Dec. 27, 1708, the manor paſſed to her three ſurviving daughters and coheirs by ſir Samuel Aſtry, viz. Elizabeth, wife of ſir John Smyth, of Long Aſton, com. Somerſet, baronet; Diana, wife to Richard Orlebar, eſq; and Arabella, afterwards lady of Charles-William, earl of Suffolk. From them the manor deſcended like Henbury, to its preſent owners, who are ſir Jarrit Smith, baronet, the honourable Thomas Willoughby, and Mrs. Colſton, relict of the late Alexander Colſton, eſq.

Livery of the chapel of Weſterleigh, and of a meſſuage called Sherwick, was granted to John Dennis 14 Eliz.

HAMLETS, and places of diſtinct names in this pariſh, are as follow: 1. Nibley; 2. May's Hill; 3. Henvild; 4. Wotton's End; 5. Coal-pit Heath; and 6. Kendalſhire; but none of them afford any thing worthy particular notice.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is in the deanery of Hawkeſbury, and is annexed to Pucklechurch. A mortuary of 10*s.* is due to the vicar of the laſt-mentioned church from the executors of all ſuch houſholders of this pariſh as die worth 40*l.*

The church is a neat building, ſupported by eight octagonal pillars, and two pilaſters; and has a handſome gallery at the weſt end, erected at the expence of the pariſh, in the year 1771. In the tower are ſix muſical bells.

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

On a flat ſtone in the chancel, is this inſcription:

P. M.
Richardi Holliſter eximii Eccleſiæ Alumni et columinis, qui obijt Maij 20° 1659. Æt. 47.
Epitaphium.
Vir virtute virens, Chriſti pugil, alter Elias,
Prudens, ſidus homo, jam requieſcit humo.
Mater humus domus eſt, tenebroſa nocte ſed orta
Sole, datur ſanctis luce tenenda Domus.

On

On a monument againſt the ſouth wall of the chancel:

In Memoriam Thomæ Roberts, Armigeri, hujus Manerij dudum Domini, Qui obijt Julij 26° Anno Domini 1673
Ætatis ſuæ 49.

The arms upon this monument are, Baron and femme, 1. Party per pale argent and gules, over all a lion rampant ſable, for Roberts. 2. Sable, a bend argent, on a canton a leopard's head caboſhed.

On a braſs plate,

To the Memory of his dear Mother Mrs. Mary Jones, Wife of William Jones, Eſq; Lord of this Manor. She deceaſed Oct. 22, A. D. 1661, Ætat. 38,
Tho. Jones filius poſuit.

Arms, Baron and femme, 1. Ermine, a ſaltire gules, for Jones. 2. Roberts, as before.

On an oval table, againſt the eaſt wall of the chancel,

Exuvias Mortalitatis ſuæ infra depoſuit Richardus Prigg, Gen. nuper de Ciuitate Briſtol Pharmacopœus. Vir apto preditus Ingenio, Fortuna eminens, Arte ſua præſtans, Amicorum Solatium dum vixit Mortuus ſuſpirium. Natus fuit in hac Parochia, Denatus vero in Civitate prædicta Anno Ætatis ſuæ 65,
Salutis noſtræ 1723.

Over the monument, in a ſcutcheon, are theſe arms: Argent, a lion rampant regardant azure, between three trefoils proper.

Benefactions.

John Roberts, lord of this manor, gave the church houſe, and a cottage called But Hays, to feoffees, for the benefit of the poor, 29 Eliz.

Mr. Edward Hill, who died in 1619, gave 100*l.* which ſum has ſince been laid out on lands that now produce about 14*l.* a year. The income is thus applied: 3*l.* for ten ſermons; 3*l.* 10*s.* to be diſtributed to the poor on Candlemas-day; and the remainder for apprenticing out poor children of this pariſh.

The reverend Thomas Prigg, in 1986, gave a large ſilver flaggon, and other plate, for the communion ſervice.

Mr. Robert Nailer, by will, in 1702, charged a tenement and lands at Acton with the payment of 5*l.* a year, for apprenticing a boy of this pariſh.

Sir John Smyth, in the year 1715, by deſire of his lady, ſettled 20*l.* a year for ever, for teaching poor children of this pariſh to read and write.

Taxes.
	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	225	4	0
	Poll-tax — —	1694, —	58	17	0
	Land-tax ——	1694, —	274	14	8
	The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	217	8	3

Sir Robert Atkyns reckoned the houſes in the pariſh at 120, and the people at about 400, 14 of whom were reputed to be freeholders; yearly births 15, burials 13. Examining the pariſh regiſter, I find, that from 1700 to 1709, both inclusive, the baptiſms were 218, and the burials 125; and in the ſame number of years, beginning with 1760, the baptiſms were 353, and the burials 247. The preſent number of inhabitants is about 930, and therefore they are in proportion to the annual burials nearly as 1 to 38.

WESTON upon AVON

IS a pariſh in the upper part of Kiftſgate hundred, at the northern extremity of the county, four miles weſt from Stratford upon Avon in Warwickſhire, nine north from Campden, and thirty-ſix north-eaſt from Glouceſter.

It lies in that vaſt tract of rich country, ſometimes called the Vale of Eveſham, on the ſouth bank of the Avon, over which there is a bridge at this place; and the lands conſiſt almoſt wholly of meadow and paſture. It has nothing to recommend it to the traveller's notice, but the common productions of nature, which indeed are very abundant.

At the time of the general ſurvey, there were many places in Glouceſterſhire of the common name of Weſtune, or Weſtone, which the experience of after ages found neceſſary to diſtinguiſh by additions, and this pariſh was then called Weſton upon Avon. The addition was given it for a reaſon too obvious to need explanation; and indeed the word Weſton is almoſt as obvious, being nothing more than the Weſt Town, and commonly denotes the ſituation of the place from ſome other of greater conſequence, near which it lies, or from the reſt of the places in the ſame hundred. So Eſtone, or Aſton, Norton, Sutton, are all names of like relative ſignification.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

'The church of St. Mary of Eveſham holds 'Weſtune in Widelei hundred. There are three 'hides, and one free [from tax]. In demean are 'two plow-tillages, and five villeins, and a prieſt, 'with two plow-tillages. It was worth 20*s.* 'now 40*s.*' Domeſday, p. 72.

How the manor paſſed from the abbey of Eveſham does not appear, but it belonged antiently to the Manduits, or Mauduits, earls of Warwick, which great family was deſcended from William Manduit, chamberlain to king William the Conqueror. He married Maud, the daughter and heireſs of Michael de Hanſlape, with whom he had a great eſtate; and this pariſh was frequently called Weſton Mauduit from his poſterity, to whom it belonged.

William Mauduit, baron of Hanſlape in Buckinghamſhire, and hereditary chamberlain to the king in his exchequer, married Alice, daughter and at length heireſs of Waleran earl of Warwick, and dying 41 H. 3. left iſſue William Mauduit, earl of Warwick, and baron of Hanſlape, who died childleſs 52 H. 3. and Iſabel Mauduit, the wife of William de Beauchamp, baron of Elmley in Worceſterſhire. William de Beauchamp, eldeſt ſon of William and Iſabel, was baron of Elmley, hereditary ſheriff of Worceſterſhire, and hereditary conſtable of the caſtle of Worceſter, in right of his father; and earl of Warwick, baron of Hanſlape, and hereditary chamberlain chamberlain to the king, in right of his mother. He died 26 E. 1. and was ſucceeded by his ſon Guy de Beauchamp, who held the manor of Weſton Mauduit, alias Weſton upon Avon, at the time of his death, 9 E. 2. Thomas de Beauchamp, ſon of Guy, married Catherine, daughter of Roger lord Mortimer, and dying ſeized of Weſton Nov. 13, 1370, was ſucceeded by his ſon Thomas earl of Warwick, who likewiſe died ſeized of this manor 2 H. 4.

Weſton ſoon afterwards changed its owners, for John Grevil, eſq; died ſeized of it 23 H. 6. as did his ſon ſir John Grevil, Aug. 6, 20 E. 4. and, by will, deſired to be buried in St. Anne's chapel in the pariſh church of Weſton upon Avon. Lewis Grevil had livery of it, and of Welford in this county, 1 Eliz. Sir Edward Grevil of Milcot was owner of thoſe manors in the year 1608, and ſold them to Lionel Cranfield, earl of Middleſex. Since that time, this manor has deſcended like Welford, and the duke of Dorſet is the preſent proprietor of it.

The abbey of Eveſham had court leet in Weſton 15 E. 1. Jeffery de Langeley was ſeized of Siddington and Weſton 2 E. 1. and John de Langeley, and Ela his wife, levied a fine of Weſton Mauduit to the uſe of themſelves for life, remainder to Jeffery their ſon, and Mary his wife, in taille, 18 E. 2. John Rous, and others, held lands in Weſton upon Avon 49 E. 3. Sir Thomas Weſt, and Alice his wife, held the manor of Weſton 10 R. 2.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the deanery of Campden, worth 32*l.* a year, and in the gift of the duke of Dorſet.

In the reign of king Henry the Fourth, a patent paſſed the ſeal for appropriating the church of Weſton ſuper Avon to the nunnery of Whitſtane, or Wiſtan, in the ſuburbs of Worceſter, the revenue of which nunnery was valued at the diſſolution at 53*l.* 3*s.* 7*d. per ann.* The impropriation is now veſted in the duke of Dorſet.

Twenty-five acres, in ſeveral incloſures, belong to the glebe.

The church is a ſmall building, dedicated to All Saints.

Firſt fruits	£.	7	14	5	Synodals £.	0	1	0
Tenths —		0	15	5	Pentecoſtals	0	0	8
Procurations		0	6	6

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Two ſtones in the chancel, inlaid with braſs, bore the following inſcriptions:

Hic ſitus eſt Johannes Grevillus, Eques auratus, Milcoti olim Dominus, qui fatum implevit Anno Reparationis humanæ ſupra mileſimum quingenteſimum quadrageſim° ſexto, Edvardi vero Sexti Anglorum Regis ſecundo, Calendis Decemb.

Hic ſitus eſt Edvardus Grevillus, Eques Auratus, Milcoti olim Dominus, qui fato conceſſit pridie natalis Chriſti Anno ſalutis humanæ quinquageſimo nono ſupra mileſimum et quingenteſimum, imperante tum Anglis ſereniſſima Regina Elizabetha.

There were ſeveral other inſcriptions for the family of the Grevils, many of whom were buried in St. Anne's chapel in this church; among whom was Edward Greville, who had been at the battle of the Spurs in France, and died 20 H. 8. But thoſe inſcriptions have been defaced time immemorially.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in	1692, £.	115	16	0
Poll-tax ——	1694, —	12	10	0
Land-tax ——	1694, —	133	16	0
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	100	7	0

At the beginning of the preſent century, there were 14 houſes in the pariſh, and about 60 inhabitants, 3 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 1, burials 1. Atkyns. The people are ſince increaſed to between 70 and 80 in number.

WESTONBIRT.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Longtree, three miles diſtant ſouth-weſtward from Tetbury, eleven north-eaſtward from Chipping Sodbury, and about twenty-four ſouthward from Glouceſter.

It was antiently called Weſtone, as being ſituated in the weſt point of the hundred to which it belongs; but the reaſon why birt was afterwards added to it, is not ſo apparent.

The turnpike-road from Tetbury to Bath and Briſtol runs along the north ſide of the pariſh, and the ſouth ſide is bounded by Wiltſhire. The lands are chiefly arable, but there are neither antiquities, curious natural productions, nor any thing obſervable in the village, except the manor houſe, which belongs to Peter Holford, eſq; one of the maſters in ordinary in the high court of chancery, who uſually reſides here in the ſummer ſeaſon.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

'William the ſon of Baderon holds Weſtone, 'in Langetreu hundred. Bricſi held it in the 'time of king Edward. There are three hides. 'In demean are two plow-tillages, and two vil-'leins, and three bordars, with two plow-tillages. 'There are four ſervi, and ſix acres of meadow. 'It was worth 6*l.* now 3*l.*' Domeſday, p. 73.

'Earl Hugh holds Weſtone in Langetreu hun-'dred. Elnod held it in the time of king Edward. 'There are three hides taxed. Leuuin held one 'hide in the ſame hundred.' Ibid.

Sir Robert Atkyns was moſt probably miſtaken in repreſenting Maurice de Gaunt as lord of this manor in the reign of king John. Beverſtone, King's Weſton, and many other eſtates in Glouceſterſhire, belonged to Maurice de Gaunt 17 John, as I have related under Beverſtone. He was a branch of the Berkeley family, and his poſſeſſions deſcended to them. And as this manor and

King's

King's Weſton frequently occur in the records by the name of Weſton, without any diſtinction; ſo there is good reaſon to ſuſpect that ſome of the records which relate to the latter, have been miſapplied by the before-mentioned learned hiſtorian to Weſtonbirt. Thus he ſays,

'This manor, and the manor of Beverſtone did 'belong to Maurice de Gaunt earl of Lincoln '17 Joh. Margaret the widow of John Giffard 'held the ſame 6 E. 3. Thomas lord Berkeley 'held Weſtonbirt 35 E. 3. Sir John Berkeley 'held the ſame 6 H. 6. Sir William Berkeley 'died ſeized of this manor 5 E. 6. and livery there-'of was granted to John Berkeley, ſon of ſir 'William 6 E. 6.'—All theſe particulars are ſuppoſed to relate to King's Weſton.

When there are two or more places in a county of the ſame name, it frequently creates confuſion. The following records are ſuppoſed to concern Weſtonbirt:

Hugh le Diſpencer the younger was ſeized of the manor of Weſtonbirt 5 E. 2.

Sir Ralph de Willington, ſon of John de Willington, died 22 E. 3. ſeized of the manors of Weſtonbirt, Ablington in Bibury, Poulton in Awre, Frampton Cotterel, Yate, and Sandhurſt, of all which his ſon Henry had livery the following year, and was living 26 E. 3. Sir John Paulet and Margaret his wife were ſeized of Weſtonbirt and Poulton 15 R. 2. but it ſeems to have been only in truſt, for John de Willington died without iſſue 20 R. 2. ſeized of the manors of Poulton, Ablington, Weſtonbirt, Frampton Cotterel, Sandhurſt, Culverden, and Moreſlade, all in the county of Glouceſter, and left Joan his ſiſter and heir, who was married to John Wrath.

John Wrath, ſon of John and Joan de Willington, died without iſſue 13 H. 4. leaving his two ſiſters coheireſſes to his great eſtate, of whom Elizabeth was married to ſir William Poulton, and Iſabel was the widow of William Beaumont.

Sir William Poulton and Elizabeth his wife dying without iſſue, Iſabel Beaumont became poſſeſt of her father's eſtate, which after the death of her ſon John Beaumont, without iſſue, deſcended to her daughter Iſabel, who died unmarried 2 H. 6. ſeized of the manors of Ablington, Poulton, Yate, Weſtonbirt, Frampton Cotterel, and Sandhurſt, all which were the patrimony of her anceſtors the Willingtons.

Sir Thomas Beaumont ſucceeded her, and died 29 H. 6. leaving a ſon William Beaumont, eſq; afterwards knighted, who died in the 32d year of the ſame reign. Philip Beaumont, brother and heir of William, died 13 E. 4. ſeized of the manors of Poulton, Ablington, Yate, Weſtonbirt, Frampton Cotterel, and Sandhurſt, of all which Hugh Beaumont and Elizabeth his wife, John Baſſet and Elizabeth his wife, John Beaumont, clerk, John Chicheſter and Margaret his wife, and John Croker and Anne his wife, levied ſeveral fines 16, 18, & 20 H. 7. to Richard biſhop of Durham, and other biſhops, to ſir Giles D'Aubeny, or Giles lord d'Aubeny, and many other great perſons. Giles lord d'Aubeny died ſeized of the ſaid manors 6 H. 8. and livery was granted to his ſon Henry lord d'Aubeny, the ſame year. They afterwards were in the crown, and were granted to Edward duke of Somerſet, upon whoſe attainder they came again to the crown, and this and ſeveral of the before-mentioned manors were granted to James Baſſet 4 Mar. and the grant was confirmed to Arthur Baſſet 7 Eliz.

Nicholas Dymery was lord of this manor in the year 1608. The Crews were afterwards proprietors of it, and it paſſed out of that name and family, by the marriage of an heireſs, to ſir Richard Holford, knight, who was appointed one of the maſters in ordinary in the high court of chancery, in June, 1693. From him the manor deſcended to Robert Holford, eſq; who was appointed a maſter in ordinary of the ſame court, in October, 1712; and from him it deſcended to Peter Holford,[y] eſq; who now poſſeſſes it, and was alſo appointed a maſter in chancery, in the room of his father, by the earl of Hardwicke, in Auguſt, 1750. He is poſſeſſed of other good eſtates in this county, and elſewhere, and gives for his arms, Argent, a greyhound paſſant ſable.

Of

[y] The family of Holford is of great antiquity in Cheſhire, being deſcended from Hugh de Runchamp, who was lord of Loſtock about the reign of king Stephen. He had a ſon Richard de Runchamp, whoſe ſon Gralan, or Gralam de Runchamp, ſold Houlme juxta Nether Pever, in Cheſhire, to Richard ſon of Randle Groſvenor, in the year 1234; and the town of Loſtock was called Loſtock Gralam, after his name. The Loſtocks bore for their arms, Argent, a greyhound paſſant ſable.

Gralam de Loſtock, ſon of the laſt Gralam, had iſſue by Letitia his wife, three ſons, Richard, Robert, and Galfrid. Richard, the eldeſt, married Emme de Merton, by whom he had iſſue two ſons, Richard and Thomas, who both died ſine prole; and one daughter Joan, married, in 1277, to William Toſt, younger ſon of Roger de Toſt, lord of Toſt; whom ſhe ſurvived, and was married, ſecondly, to Thomas Vernon, about the year 1316, from whom the Vernons of Haſlington in Cheſhire deſcended. She was married, after the death of her ſecond huſband, to William de Hallum, in the year 1337. Which ſaid William Toſt gave for his arms, Argent, a chevron between three text tees ſable, and by Joan his wife, had iſſue three ſons, Roger, Henry, and Walter.

Roger de Holford, the eldeſt ſon, was living in the year 1316, and after the manner of thoſe ages, aſſumed the name of Holford from the place of his reſidence. He married Margery, daughter of Richard le Diſpencer, but died without iſſue 5 E. 3. whereby Henry, his next brother, became his heir, and aſſumed the name of Holford. Which Henry de Holford, by Margery his wife, had iſſue two ſons, William and Roger, to which latter he gave lands in Plumley, 1344.

William de Holford, the eldeſt ſon, died in his father's life-time, having married Iſabel, daughter of by whom he had one ſon John.

John de Holford, ſon and heir of William, recovered the manor of Holford againſt Richard Vernon, of Loſtock Gralam, 42 E. 3. and ſealed uſually with a chevron between three text tees; the chevron making the diſtinction between theſe and the arms of Toft of Toft, who bears the Tees without a chevron. He had iſſue by Joan his wife, daughter of Roger Bruyn, of Stapleford, one ſon Thomas, and died 9 H. 4.

Thomas Holford, ſon and heir of John, died before his father, 12 R. 2. having married Alice, daughter of William Buckley, of Oateworth.

William Holford, of Holford, was ſon and heir of Thomas. He married Margaret, daughter of ſir Richard Venables, of Kinderton, and by her had iſſue three ſons, Thomas, his heir; John, and Hugh; and two daughters, Jonet, wife of

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Hawkeſbury, worth about 80*l.* a year. Peter Holford, eſq; is patron. The living was augmented about the year 1725, by the donations of Robert Holford, eſq; and Doctor Godolphin, who gave 100*l.* each, and by queen Anne's bounty.

About forty acres belong to the glebe.

The church is ſmall, with a low tower at the weſt end.

First fruits	£.	6	2	0	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths	—	0	12	2½	Pentecoſt.	0	1	0
Procurations		0	6	8

Benefactions.

A houſe and garden, and an acre in the common field, are given for the benefit of the poor.

Mrs. Hodges left 3*l.* a year for teaching the poor children to read.

Land-tax at 3*s.* 1770, £ 47 5 0

The ſtate of population in this pariſh, about the beginning of the preſent century, as given by ſir Robert Atkyns, was 18 houſes, and about 80 inhabitants, whereof 5 were freeholders. There are now 22 families, and 106 inhabitants.

WESTON SUBEDGE

LIES in the upper diviſion of Kiftſgate hundred, about one mile weſt from Campden, ſix ſouth-eaſt from Eveſham in Worceſterſhire, and about twenty-eight north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

The village is ſeated under the ſide of a hill, whence it received the addition of Subedge, but in all probability it was called Weſton from its ſituation from the town of Campden, or elſe from its weſtern aſpect on the ſide of the hill.

It is ſaid that the hundred court was formerly kept on the top of the hill, above the village; and ſir Robert Atkyns was of opinion, that the hundred received the name of Kiftſgate, from a gate near the place where the court was held.

Here is no great manufacture, but the women and girls are commonly employ'd in ſpinning flax.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

The lands in this pariſh were divided between two great proprietaries, when Domeſday was compiled, as appears by the record, of which the following is a tranſlation:

'Hugo de Grentemaiſnil holds Weſtone in 'Ceolflede hundred, and Roger holds it of him. 'There are four hides. Balduin held it. In de-'mean are two plow-tillages, and ſix villeins, with 'three plow-tillages. There are four ſervi, and 'five ancillæ, and a mill of 10*s.* It was worth 7*l.* 'now 6*l.*' Domeſday, p. 77.

'Anſfrid de Cormeliis holds Weſtone in Celfle-'ſtorn hundred. Two thanes (one a free man 'of earl Herald's, the other Leuric's) held ten 'hides there, for two manors, and could go where 'they pleaſed. In demean are four plow-tillages,

---

Randle Brereton of Malpas; and Margery. He died 38 H. 6. and was ſucceeded by Thomas Holford, of Holford, eſq; his ſon and heir. Which Thomas, by his wife Joan, daughter of Richard Legh de Weſt-Hall, in High Leigh, had an only ſon Thomas Holford, and died in 1464.

Thomas Holford, of Holford, the younger, eſq; ſon of the laſt mentioned Thomas, married Maud, daughter of William Buckley, deputy judge of Cheſter, 1444, and by her had iſſue George, his ſon and heir; Randle, who had iſſue Humphry and Richard; Robert Holford, who had iſſue John, Philip, Bartholomew, Owen, Matthew, and Bryan. This Thomas died about 13 E. 4.

Sir George Holford, of Holford, knight, ſon and heir of Thomas, married Iſabel, daughter of Robert Legh, of Adlington, eſq; and widow of Lawrence Warren, and by her had two ſons, John, and George; and one daughter Conſtance, married to William, ſon of Edward Bradſhaw. Sir George was ſheriff of Cheſhire 16 H. 8. and bore Loſtock's arms on his ſeal, viz. Argent, a greyhound paſſant ſable. He had alſo four baſtard ſons, 1. Thomas, 2. Arthur, from whom the Holfords of Davenham; 3. Rauſe, 4. Robert. Alſo Ellen, a baſe daughter, all living 22 H. 7.

Sir John Holford, of Holford, knight, ſon of ſir George, was ſheriff of Cheſhire 33 H. 8. He married Margery, ſole daughter and heir of Rauſe Brereton, of Iſcoit in Flintſhire, 22 H. 7. and had iſſue two ſons, Thomas, his heir; and Chriſtopher, who married Margaret, daughter of Thomas Danyell, of Over-Tabley, eſq; 1555; from whom the Holfords of London and Eſſex are deſcended. Alſo one daughter Alice, married to Piers Leyceſter, of Nether-Tabley, eſq. Sir John died in 1545.

Thomas Holford, of Holford, eſq; ſon and heir of ſir John, married, firſt, Margaret, daughter of ſir Thomas Butler, of Bewſy in Lancaſhire, by whom he had one ſon Chriſtopher. After the death of his ſaid wife, he married, ſecondly, Jane, the widow of Hugh Dutton, and daughter of ſir William Booth, of Dunham-Maſſey, by whom he had iſſue George Holford, of Newborough in Dutton, gentleman, the continuator of this family, of whom hereafter; Thomas, the ſecond ſon; and John. Alſo Ellen, married to John Carrington, of Carrington in Cheſhire, eſq; Dorothy, married to John Bruyn, of Stapleford in Cheſhire, eſq; and Elizabeth, married to Charles Manwaring, of Croxton in Cheſhire, eſq; 1560. This Thomas Holford died in 1569.

Chriſtopher Holford, of Holford, eſq; ſon of Thomas by the firſt venter, had alſo two wives; firſt, Anne, daughter of Hugh Dutton and Jane aforeſaid, by whom he had iſſue Thomas Holford; and another ſon John, and a daughter Anne, who both died infants. His ſecond wife was Elizabeth, the widow of Peter Shakerley, and daughter and coheir of ſir Randle Manwaring, of Over-Pever, by whom he had iſſue one daughter Mary.

Thomas Holford, ſon and heir of Chriſtopher, having married Dorothy, daughter of Peter Shakerley, of Hulme, eſq; and Elizabeth, aforeſaid, died without iſſue, and was buried at Nether Pever, in 1561; whereby the ſaid Mary Holford became ſole heir to Chriſtopher her father, and was married to ſir Hugh Cholmondley, of Cholmondley in Cheſhire, and had a numerous iſſue.

I return now to George Holford, brother to Chriſtopher, and next heir male of the Holfords. Between whom and the ſaid Mary Cholmondley were law ſuits concerning the Holford eſtates for upwards of forty years, which at laſt were ſettled by mediation of friends, and the eſtates were parted between them. The ſaid George Holford married Jane, daughter and heir of Charles Awbrey, of Camriff in Brecknockſhire, and widow of Henry Maſterſon, and by her had iſſue ſeven ſons, Thomas and John, twins; Edward, Peter, (continuator of the male line) George, Charles, and William; and one daughter Mary, married to William Harcourt, of Winſham, gentleman. He died in 1635; and Thomas Holford of Iſcoit, his ſon and heir, died without iſſue male, wherefore the inheritance deſcended to James Holford, of Newborough, ſon and heir of Peter, fourth ſon of George; for all the brothers of Peter died without iſſue male. Which James Holford married Margaret, daughter of Matthew Carleton, of Lincoln's-inn, London, and dying in 1666, left iſſue one ſon Thomas, and one daughter Mary.

Sir Richard Holford, knight, lord of the manor of Weſtonbirt, by family tradition, was a branch of this houſe; but no care having been taken to continue the Holfords pedigree, neither in the heralds office, nor in family papers, it is uncertain where he ought to be joined to the antient ſtock.

Robert Holford, eſq; was ſon of ſir Richard, and dying in the year 1750, was ſucceeded by his ſon Peter Holford, eſq; the preſent lord of the manor of Weſtonbirt.——This pedigree is chiefly extracted from ſir Peter Leiceſter's Hiſtorical Antiquities, and the particulars are authenticated by antient deeds from which he extracted them.

'and

'and eighteen villeins, and one bordar, with nine 'plow-tillages, and twelve ſervi. It was worth '100*s*. now 7*l*.' Ibid. p. 78.

Theſe manors are deſcribed in the records by the ſame common name; which making it difficult to apply the accounts of them with certainty, they are therefore ſet down in chronological order.

Jeffry Giffard, archbiſhop of York, was ſeized of the manor of Weſton Subedge 7 E. 1. and Henry de Penbrugge held it the ſame year. The ſheriff returned that John Giffard was lord of Weſton 9 E. 1.

Godfrey Giffard, was lord chancellor of England, and biſhop of Worceſter. A court leet and free warren in Weſton and Norton were allowed him in the proceedings on a writ of Quo warranto 15 E. 1. and he died ſeized of thoſe manors in the 30th year of that reign. The Giffards of Weſton, afterwards, the better to announce their deſcent from this prelate, gave for their arms, Argent, ten torteauxes, which are thoſe of the biſhoprick of Worceſter.

John de Feckenham was ſeized of the manors of Weſton and Norton 34 E. 1. John Giffard of Weſton, or of Doyton, died 13 E. 2. poſſeſſed of the manors of Weſton Underegge, and Norton Underegge, and of the advowſon of the church of Weſton; and the eſcheator's inquiſition found, that John Giffard, his ſon, held the ſame of the king for life. A John Giffard, probably the ſame perſon noticed in the inquiſition, held the beforementioned eſtates 1 & 38 E. 3.

Thomas de Eveſham held Weſton Underegge 17 E. 3. as did William de Acton 47 E. 3. John Solers was ſeized of two yard-lands, and of ſeven acres of meadow, in Weſton Underegge, 20 R. 2. and William Solers was poſſeſſed of an eſtate dignified in the records by the name of Weſton Underegge 5 H. 4. Thomas Weſton, the chaplain, was likewiſe ſeized of an eſtate of the ſame name, 6 H. 4.

Roger Giffard, eſq; was ſeized of the manors of Weſton Underegge, and Norton Underegge, 25 H. 6. Margaret, the widow of Thomas Herward, was ſeized of the manor of Weſton Subege 12 E. 4. Joan the widow of ſir John Merney, late wife of Robert Giffard, and formerly the wife of —— Barendine, was poſſeſſed of the manors of Weſton Underegge, and Norton, 18 E. 4. Livery of the manor, park, and advowſon of Weſton Underegge, and of Norton, was granted to George Giffard 15 Eliz.

Sir Edward Grevil was lord of this manor in the year 1608. Francis Throgmorton was alſo ſeized of it, but being attainted of treaſon, it was granted by the crown to Henry Spiller, eſq; and others, in truſt for George Giffard, 7 Jac. 1. It was again granted to the ſame perſons, 9 Jac. and they ſold it to Henry Fleetwood, eſq; and others.

Richard Graves, eſq; purchaſed the manors of Weſton Subedge, Aſton Subedge, and Mickleton, with the royalty of the hundred of Kiftſgate, about the middle of the laſt century. He ſold Weſton Subedge to William Morgan, eſq; who had married one of his daughters. Richard Morgan, grandſon of William, by his will, dated May 29, 1740, gave this manor to Morgan Graves, eſq; great grandſon of Richard Graves, before-mentioned; and his ſon, Walwyn Graves, eſq; is the preſent lord of the manors of Weſton Subedge, Aſton Subedge, and Mickleton, all in this county.

Nicholas le Chamberlain held two yard-lands in Weſton Subedge 29 E. 1. Agnes de la Chambre held lands here 2 E. 3. and Alice at Chambre was likewiſe ſeized of lands in this place 37 E. 3. Thomas Biſhop was ſeized of one meſſuage, and of one yard-land in Weſton, 18 E. 2.

A large wood, called Weſton Park, on the ſide of the hill, together with ſome other lands, were ſold from the manor, by Henry Fleetwood and the other owners, to ſir Baptiſt Hicks, in the year 1610. This eſtate, by deſcent, is now veſted in the earl of Gainſborough.

HAMLETS. There are three hamlets in this pariſh of the name of Norton.

'Anſfrid de Cormeliis holds five hides in 'Nortune, in Celfleſtorn hundred. Two thanes 'held them for two manors, and could go where 'they pleaſed. In demean are four plow-tillages, 'and nine villeins, and two bordars, with four 'plow-tillages, and ten ſervi. They were worth '4*l*. now 6*l*.' Domeſday, p. 78.

It has already been ſhewn, that the Giffards enjoyed this eſtate (called Norton Giffard from them, but generally Norton Underedge) for many ſucceſſive generations; but it afterwards became divided into three diſtinct hamlets, and ſo it continues.

1. Upper Norton. Richard Fiennes, lord Say and Seal, ſon of Richard lord Say, died 11 Jac. ſeized of the manors of Weſton and Norton, and left William lord Say, his ſon and heir, twenty-eight years old. This eſtate paſſed afterwards to ſir William Keyt, baronet, who being burnt in his own houſe, in the year 1741, his ſon ſold it to ſir Dudley Ryder, lord chief juſtice of England, whoſe ſon, Nathaniel Ryder, eſq; is the preſent proprietor of Upper Norton.

2. Middle Norton, which belonged to Mr. Sprig at the beginning of this century, is now, by purchaſe, the property of Mr. Ryder.

3. Lower Norton, where was formerly a chapel of eaſe. Lady Langley, of New-Houſe in Herefordſhire, and Laurence Fiennes, eſq; were proprietors of Lower Norton at the beginning of this century. The Fiennes family ſold it to Mr. Maunder, of whom it was purchaſed by Thomas Eden, eſq; the preſent owner.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Campden, worth 500*l.* a year. The reverend Mr. Peeley is patron and incumbent.

Tithes

Tithes in Weſton Subedge belonged to Winchcombe abbey, and were granted to ſir Thomas Seymour 1 E. 6.

The church land, worth 40*s.* a year, is aſſigned to the uſe of the pariſh clerk. Three yard lands belong to the glebe.

The parſonage houſe is of good hewn ſtone, and, together with the gardens, is ſurrounded with a ſtrong wall of conſiderable antiquity. In one of the rooms the letters W. L. are many times expreſſed on the painted glaſs, and are ſuppoſed to be the initials of the perſon's name who built it.

The church is a ſtrong building, dedicated to St. John Baptiſt, with a tower at the weſt end. The walls have been decorated with paintings, as of the Aſcenſion, the four Evangeliſts, &c. but time has much impaired the colours.

John Bell, rector of this church, was archdeacon of Glouceſter, prebendary of Lincoln and Litchfield, warden of the collegiate church of Stratford upon Avon, vicar-general of the dioceſe of Worceſter, and afterwards biſhop of that ſee in 1539. But he reſigned his biſhoprick in 1543, and retired to a private life at Clerkenwell, where he died in 1556.

Firſt fruits	£.	31	0	0	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths	—	3	2	0	Pentecoſt.	0	1	0½
Procurations		0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

On a braſs plate, fixed to a blue marble ſtone, is the figure of a man, and underneath this inſcription:

Here lyeth the bodye of William Hodges, who Maried y^e^ Daughter of Sir George Throgmorton of Kawghton, knyght, and was the wyddowe of John Gifford, of Weſton Underedge, Eſquire, who Departed this lyfe the xxiii of Auguſte An°. 1590.

H. S. E.

Iohannes Ballard, M. B. Vir perquam doctus, artiſq; præſertim Apollineæ, quam ſumma cum laude ſucceſſuq; admodum felici exercebat, Peritiſſimus. Anatomiam, Chymiam, herbas, adeo calluit, ut nemo magis dignus qui vel Gallenum ætate ſuperaret; nondum annos ſeptuaginta natus, Oxonii (inter Muſas & literatos ſibi gratiſſimos) animam efflavit, Maij 2, Anno Dom. 1678, Ætatis ſuæ 66.

On the table of a marble monument, againſt the north wall of the chancel, is this inſcription:

H. S. E.
Pharamus Fiennes LL. D.
Gulielmi Vicecomitis Say et Seal
Nepos;
Collegij Winton Socius;
Hujus Parochiæ Rector.
In quâ Domum Dei et Rectoris,
Illam Vaſis deauratis;
Hanc Ædificijs hortiſq; Cultiſſimis, (Hoſpitalitate vero magis et Liberalitate)
Utramq; ſuâ ſuorumq; pietate et moribus ſanctiſſimis Ornavit.
Populum ſibi concreditum
Fideliter docuit,
Prudenter rexit,
Unice amavit.
Obijt Dec. Anno { Dni MDCCVIII / Ætatis LXII.

Over the monument are theſe arms, Baron and femme, 1. Azure, three lions rampant Or. 2. Argent, upon a chevron between three cinquefoils gules a leopard's face inter two roundlets Or.

Benefaction.

Twenty pounds a year, payable out of an eſtate at Lower Norton, are given to four poor widows of this pariſh.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	319	14	0
Poll-tax —— 1694, —		32	19	4
Land-tax —— 1694, —		252	18	6
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —

There were 58 houſes in the pariſh when ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his account of it, and he eſtimated the inhabitants to be about 300, of whom 26 were reputed to be freeholders. He alſo ſets down the annual births at 8, and burials at 6. But ſir Robert's eſtimate was too high, for according to the regiſter, in ten years, from 1700 to 1709 incluſive, there were only 60 baptiſms, and 42 burials; and in the ſame number of years, from 1760 to 1769, there were 105 baptiſms, and 47 burials. Thus it appears that population has advanced ſince ſir Robert's time, and the preſent number of inhabitants being 197, exceed that of the annual burials in the proportion of 42 to 1.

****

WHADDON

IS a ſmall pariſh, in the united hundreds of Dudſton and King's Barton, about ſix miles north from Stroud, and four ſouth from Glouceſter.

It lies in the Vale, and conſiſts chiefly of rich paſture land, but has nothing very curious, in the works of art or nature, to diſtinguiſh it.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

'Durand the ſheriff holds Wadune, in Dunef-'tane hundred. There are five hides. Five 'brothers held them for five manors, and could go 'where they pleaſed, and were equals [i.e. had 'equal ſhares]. In demean are five plow-tillages, 'and one villein, and ſeven bordars, with five 'plow-tillages. In the time of king Edward it 'was worth 8*l.* and is now worth 100*ſol.*' Domeſday, p. 76.

The manor belonged to Robert de Pont de Larch, or Pont de l'Arch, 30 H. 3. Robert Waleran, ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire, was ſeized of it 31 H. 3. in which year he obtained a grant of an annual fair in Whaddon, to be held on the eve, the day, and the morrow after the feaſt of St. Margaret the virgin.

William de Valence, earl of Pembroke, uterine brother to king Henry the Third, was ſeized of Whaddon and Moreton Valence, by the gift of Robert de Pont de Larch. He had a confirmation of the grant of thoſe manors from the king, 36 H. 3. and the privileges of court leet and free warren were allowed him 15 E. 1. He was ſlain by the French at Bayonne, 23 E. 1. and died ſeized of Moreton and Whaddon, the latter of which was held in dower by Joan his wife, daughter daughter and at length heireſs of Gwarine de Montchenſy.

Audomar de Valence, earl of Pembroke, ſurviving ſon of William, was killed in France, on account of the part he had taken in the death of the earl of Lancaſter, 17 E. 2. He left no iſſue, and the eſcheator's inquiſition found that he died ſeized of Payneſwyke, Morton, and Whaddon; that there were in Whaddon quidem gurges in Sabrina, worth 20*s. per ann.* 125 acres of arable land, worth 4*d. per* acre; and 100 acres worth 2*d. per* acre; 30 acres of ſteril land, worth only 1*d.* an acre; 40 acres of meadow, at 1*s.* 6*d.* an acre; 15 acres of paſture at 1*s.* and a park without deer; and that John de Haſtinges, Johanna the wife of David de Strabolgi earl of Arthelos, and Elizabeth Comyn were his heirs.

From this Audomar the manor of Whaddon paſſed, like thoſe of Moreton Valence and Painſwick, 'till it came into the poſſeſſion of ſir William Kingſton, who levied a fine of Painſwick and Whaddon to ſir Nicholas Pointz, 5 E. 6.

The manor paſſed from the Kingſtons to the Jerninghams of Coſſey in Norfolk; and Henry Jerningham had livery of it 15 Eliz. Sir William Dorrington was lord of the manor in the year 1608, and ſir Samuel Eckley died poſſeſſed of it in the reign of queen Anne. It paſſed afterwards to Mr. John Small, and is now veſted in Samuel Peach, eſq; a ſilk-merchant in London. His arms are, Gules, three martlets between two chevronels argent.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a curacy, in the deanery of Glouceſter, worth 25*l.* a year. The leſſee of the prebendary of Hereford is patron and impropriator, and Mr. John Jones is the preſent incumbent.

The impropriation is now worth 52*l.* a year, and pays 15*l.* a year to the curate.

The church is a ſtrong building, dedicated to St. Margaret, and has an embattled tower at the weſt end.

Firſt fruits	£.	7	15	0	Synodals £.	0	1	0
Tenths —		1	5	6	Pentecoſt.	0	0	5½
Procurations		0	3	0

Benefaction.

Mrs. Harris, of Abergavenny, left 1000*l.* now laid out on the purchaſe of an eſtate at Upton St. Leonard's, for the following purpoſes, viz. 20*s.* for an anniverſary ſermon on the 27th of June, the day of her death; 5*s.* for a ſacrament; and 2*s.* 6*d.* to the clerk; with the ſame donations to the pariſh of Hempſted. Four widows are to be clothed on that day; and the remainder of the income, if any, is to be employed in apprenticing poor boys of this pariſh and Hempſted, or in clothing poor men. See Hempſted.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	56	14	8
Poll-tax — 1694,	—	11	2	0
Land-tax — 1694,	—	65	12	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	49	4	0

At the beginning of this century, there were 27 houſes in the pariſh, and about 110 inhabitants, 4 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 2, burials 2. Atkyns. The inhabitants are now about 123.

Wheatenhurſt, or Whitminſter,

IS a pariſh in the hundred of Whitſton, in the Vale part of the county, about five miles diſtant weſt from Painſwick, ſeven north from Durſley, and eight ſouthward from Glouceſter.

It conſiſts chiefly of rich paſture and meadow ground, proper for dairy and grazing, and produces very good cheeſe and cider.

Witenherſt, as the name is written in Domeſday, ſignifies the ſtrong wood, and denotes the antient condition of the place when the name was given it. The pariſh was afterwards vulgarly called Whitminſter, (contracted from Whitenherſt, and Minſter, a Monaſtery) in honour of the abbey of Glouceſter, becauſe the monks had acquired a manor here; and the latter is the name moſt commonly uſed at preſent, but Wheatenhurſt occurs in all deeds, and formal writings.

The river Froom, or the Stroud river, which is a boundary between Saul and this pariſh, falls into the Severn at the diſtance of ſomething more than a mile from the church, and a navigable canal from the Severn at Framilode, croſſes this pariſh, and will ſhortly be extended to the town of Stroud, under which head the reader will find an hiſtorical account of the proceedings on that buſineſs.

Two turnpike-roads paſs through Whitminſter, one leading from the eaſt part of the county, by Minchin Hampton and Stroud, and ſo weſtward towards the paſſages over the Severn at Framilode and Newnham; the other, is the great road from Glouceſter to Bath and Briſtol. And ſurely there cannot be a more infamous turnpike-road, for ſeveral miles of it, than the latter; for, incredible as it may ſeem, the writer of this account, in the winter of 1776, ſaw a chaiſe mired in it, about half a mile from the Swan inn in this pariſh, and was there told, that a horſe had like to have been ſmothered in the ſame place two days before, but was luckily ſaved by ſome perſons coming accidentally to the poor animal's aſſiſtance. Several cauſes operate to this evil; the ſcarcity of ſtone, the remiſſneſs of the commiſſioners; and the total ignorance of the ſurveyor. There may be, however, one lucky circumſtance attending this road. If it could once be put in repair, the canal will eaſe it of a great part of the coal, and other heavy carriage, and it may then, with no great exertion, be prevented from relapſing into its preſent founderous condition.

Richard-Owen Cambridge, eſq; has a good old houſe and gardens near the church, where Frederick prince of Wales, the father of his preſent majeſty, did him the great honour of a viſit, when he made an excurſion into Glouceſterſhire, a little before his death. But this ſeat has been for ſome years intirely unoccupied.

Of the Manors and other Eſtates.

Domeſday gives the following account of this manor:

'Hardinc holds Witenherſt in mortgage of 'Brictric. The ſame Brictric held it in the time 'of king Edward. There are five hides taxed. 'In demean is one plow-tillage, and a prieſt, and 'two villeins, and ſix bordars, with five plow-'tillages. There are three ſervi, and a mill of '10 ſol. and ten acres of meadow. It was worth '100 ſol. now 30 ſol.' Domeſday, p. 80.

This was not the great, unfortunate Brictric, who was poſſeſſed of the lordſhip of Glouceſter, but one of the king's thanes of the ſame name. Who was the next poſſeſſor to Hardinc does not appear; but Jeffery Fitz-Peirce, earl of Eſſex, was afterwards ſeized of this manor. He had one daughter Maud, married to Henry Bohun, earl of Hereford, to whom he gave the manor of Wheatenhurſt in frank marriage, and died 14 Joh. He had alſo three ſons, who died without iſſue, whereby the Bohuns, deſcendants of the aforeſaid Maud, became earls of Eſſex. Henry de Bohun died ſeized of Wheatenhurſt 4 H. 3. and was ſucceeded by his ſon Humphry de Bohun, who was taken in rebellion in the battle of Eveſham, and his lands were ſeized by the king; but the manors of Wheatenhurſt and Southam were reſtored to him 50 H. 3. and he died 3 E. 1. Henry de Bohun, earl of Hereford, obtained a licence to fortify his manor houſe of Wheatenhurſt, 21 E. 3. and died in the 34th year of the ſame reign. Another Humphry de Bohun, the laſt earl of Hereford, died 46 E. 3. having married Joan, daughter of Richard earl of Arundel, by whom he left two daughters coheireſſes, Eleanor, the wife of Thomas of Woodſtock, youngeſt ſon of king Edward the Third; and Mary, married to Henry earl of Derby, who was afterwards king Henry the Fourth.

Thomas of Woodſtock, duke of Glouceſter, held the manor of Wheatenhurſt in right of his wife. He was ſmothered under a feather bed at Calais, 21 R. 2. and left Humphry, his ſon, who dying without iſſue, Anne Plantagenet, his only ſiſter, was his heir. She was married firſt to Thomas earl of Stafford, who dying before conſummation, ſhe was afterwards married, by ſpecial licence from the king, to Edmond earl of Stafford, younger brother of Thomas, who died ſeized of Wheatenhurſt 4 H. 4. In which name and family this manor continued for a long time, and of whom there is a further account under Thornbury.

King James the Firſt granted the manor of Wheatenhurſt to Peter Vanlore, merchant, and William Blake, ſcrivener, in the third year of his reign, and recites in the grant, that it came to the crown by the attainder of ſir Walter Rawleigh, and that it formerly belonged to the abbey of Glouceſter.

William Bayly, eſq; was lord of this manor in the year 1608, in whoſe family it continued 'till another William Bayly, eſq; conveyed it to ſir Samuel Eckley, whoſe brother and heir Mr. Eckley was lord of it at the beginning of this century. It paſſed afterwards to lord Middleton and Alexander Colſton, eſq; in right of their wives, and has lately been purchaſed by Nathaniel Peach, eſq; who is the preſent lord of the manor. His arms are, Gules, three martlets between two chevronels argent.

There is another manor in the pariſh, which formerly belonged to Richard Bird, who died in 1612. Thomas Lloyd, eſq; deſcended from the family of that name in Monmouthſhire, married Sybil, daughter and heireſs of Richard Bird of Whitminſter, and with her had this eſtate. Thomas Lloyd, ſon of Thomas, ſucceeded his father, and married Rebecca, daughter of Thomas Hinſon, of Taviſtock in Devonſhire. Thomas Lloyd, ſon and heir of the laſt Thomas, married Elizabeth, daughter of ſir Theobald Gorges, of Aſhley in Wiltſhire; but dying without iſſue, in 1658, George Lloyd, his brother and heir, became ſeized of this eſtate, and marrying Anne, daughter of Giles Pain, of Rodborough, died in the year 1703. George Lloyd, eſq; ſon of George, married Elizabeth, eldeſt daughter of William Bayly of Frethorn, and was proprietor of this manor, and of a good houſe near the church, at the beginning of the preſent century. The houſe and eſtate now belong to Richard-Owen Cambridge, eſq; whoſe arms are, Argent, on a pile gules a croſs croſlet of the field, between ſix croſſes croſlets fitchy ſable.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is an impropriation, in the deanery of Glouceſter, worth in the whole about 50*l.* a year to the curate. Mr. Jaſper Selwyn is patron and impropriator, and Mr. Jaſper Selwyn, his ſon, is the preſent incumbent. The impropriation, now worth 80*l.* a year, antiently belonged to the priory of Bruton in Somerſetſhire. The abbey of Troars in Normandy had the advowſon of the church of Wheatenhurſt 56 H. 3.

The living was formerly valued at only 8*l.* a year, but it has been augmented by the queen's bounty, and by the donation of Mrs. Dorothy Bayly, Bayly, who left the reverſion of an eſtate called Jackſons's farm, in this pariſh, now let at 84*l.* a year, to augment the livings of Frethorn and Wheatenhurſt; and the curate now receives half the profits. There is neither houſe nor glebe for the miniſter.

The church is dedicated to St. Andrew, and has a handſome embattled tower at the weſt end, with four bells in it.

Proc. 6*s.* 8*d.* Syn. 2*s.* Pentecoſt. 9*d.*

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

A handſome black marble monument, on the north ſide of the chancel, bears the following inſcription:

Near Underneath reſt the Bodies of Thomas Lloyde the Elder, Eſq; who departed this Life October 15, 1658, aged 70. whoſe firſt wife was Rebecca, daughter of Tho. Hynſon, Eſq; Alſo Margery his 2d Wife, daughter of Leonard Ieſſerys, Eſq; who departed this Life April the 24 An° 1643. Alſo Tho. Lloyde the Younger Eſq; with Elizabeth his wife daughter of S^r Theobald Gorges K^t. She departed this life April the 16, 1666, aged 43, & he departed this life Octob. the 14th An° 1668 Aged 49.

Alſo Anne the Wife of George Lloyde, Eſq; daughter of Gyles Payne, Gent. who departed this life September the 10th An° 1670, Aged 44.

Alſo Philippa a 2d Wife (Daughter of Walter Parker of Lyſſell in y^e County of Wilts, Eſq;) Died y^e 20th of Aug^st. 1696.

Alſo George Lloyde, Sen^r. Eſq^r. who died March the 15th 1703, Ætat. Suæ 80.

Edmond the ſon of George and Anne Lloyde died 1670.
Elizabeth the D^r. 1680.
Elizabeth a 2d D^r.
Radegund 3d D^r. died 1669.

Diſcimus Exemplis quam totus Homuncio nil eſt,
Vive igitur, Lector, (dum licet eſſe) Deo.

Againſt the ſame wall, there is a ſmall neat marble monument, with the effigy of a woman kneeling, and this inſcription:

Here lyeth Rebecca Wife of Thomas Lloyde, Eſq; daughter of Thomas Hinſon Eſquire, by Ann daughter of the Lady Springe, daughter of Margaret Counteſs of Bath. She deceaſed the 16 day of Februā 1625.

Virgo modeſta fuit; pia Mater; optima Conjux:
Sed Parcas pietas flectere tanta nequit.
Victa tamen vivit; Gentiſq; inſignia, Soles *
Occiduos, mutat Splendidiori Solo.

* The family arms of Hinſon, which are placed on the ſiniſter ſide of the ſcutcheon upon this monument, viz. Azure, on a chevron between three ſuns in their ſplendor Or, a creſcent gules. On the dexter ſide is this coat, Azure, a croſs ſable between four bucks Or, ſuppoſed for Lloyd, whoſe arms are thus blazoned in the laſt herald's viſitation, viz. 1 and 4. Quarterly Or and azure, four bucks trippant counterchanged. 2 and 3. Argent, a quiver gules, banded and repleniſhed with arrows Or, between three pheons ſable.

Againſt the ſouth wall of the church,

Near this place lies the Body of George Bigland, of Bigland in the County Palatine of LANCASTER, Eſq^r. who died in this PARISH, upon his Return from BRISTOL, (where he had been for the Recovery of his Health) on the 19th Day of September, 1752, aged 49 Years. He married MARY, the only Daughter of JOHN FOX, of WHITEHAVEN, in the County of CUMBERLAND, Gent. by whom he left iſſue two ſons, viz. GEORGE and THOMAS.

At the top of the monument are theſe arms, Baron and femme, 1. Azure, two ripe ears of wheat erect proper. 2. Or, on a chevron between three foxes heads erazed gules, as many fleurs de lis argent.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in	1692, £.	80	10	8
Poll-tax ——	1694, —	10	1	0
Land-tax ——	1694, —	126	12	0
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	103	3	9

About the beginning of this century, there were 46 houſes in the pariſh, and about 200 inhabitants, 12 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 5, burials 4. Atkyns. Examining the pariſh regiſter, I find that in ten years, beginning with 1765, the burials were 87, and the preſent number of people is exactly 231, ſo that about one in 27 dies every year.

WHITTINGTON.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Bradley, near five miles ſouth-eaſtward from Cheltenham, five ſouth from Winchcombe, thirteen north from Cirenceſter, and thirteen eaſt from Glouceſter.

It is a ſmall pariſh, in the Coteſwold country, conſiſting of more arable than paſture ground. The village is ſheltered on the north by ſome very lofty fields, whoſe tops are adorned with plantations of firs. The Coln, a very pretty trout river, riſes in a ſmall head at this place, and growing more conſiderable, gives name to ſeveral villages thro' which it paſſes in its courſe to Fairford, where it empties itſelf into the Thames.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

In Domeſday it is thus recorded:

'William Leuric holds Witetune, in Wacreſ-'cumbe hundred. Oſgot held it. There are 'three hides, and they are taxed. In demean are 'two plow-tillages, and ſix villeins, and one rad-'cheniſter, and four bordars, with four plow-'tillages. There is a mill of 10 ſol. [rent] and a 'wood one mile long, and half a mile broad. It 'was worth 100 ſol. now 60 ſol.' Domeſday, p. 74.

A few ages afterwards, one Serlo was proprietor of this manor, of Broad Campden, and of Bradley in Wotton. He died without iſſue, and left Agatha and Juliana his ſiſters and coheireſſes. Anne his wife ſurviving him, was married to Hugh de Stratton, and had the manor of Whittington aſſigned to her for dower by the ſiſters and coheirs of her former huſband 4 H. 3.

Richard de Crupes poſſeſſed this manor in the ſame reign, and had a grant of markets, fairs, and free warren in Whittington 41 H. 3. which grant was pleaded and allowed in the proceedings on a writ of Quo warranto 15 E. 1. Another Richard de Crupes, deſcended from the former Richard, died ſeized of this manor 10 E. 3. as did Edward Crupes his ſon, in the 35th year of the ſame reign.

Edward, ſon of Edmond de Langley, duke of York, fifth ſon of king Edward the Third, was ſlain at the battle of Agincourt, ſeized of Whittington, 3 H. 5.

Richard le Diſpencer, earl of Glouceſter, died ſeized of this manor, whereby Iſabel his ſiſter became his heir. She was firſt married to Richard Beauchamp earl of Worceſter, and afterwards by a ſpecial a ſpecial diſpenſation from the pope, ſhe was married to Richard Beauchamp earl of Warwick, who, in her right, died ſeized of the manor of Whittington 15 H. 6. Iſabel died 18 H. 6. and ſome ſhort time before her death, levied a fine of this manor to the uſe of her laſt will. She left iſſue Henry and Anne; Henry was afterwards created duke of Warwick, and his iſſue dying without iſſue, Anne his ſiſter was heir to his vaſt eſtate. She was married to Richard Nevill, the great earl of Warwick, and ſurviving him, was prevailed with by king Henry the Seventh, to convey this manor, amongſt many others, to himſelf, 3 H. 7. A more particular account of this family may be ſeen under Tewkeſbury.

King Henry the Seventh granted this manor to the Cottons, and Richard Cotton, eſq; died ſeized of it, and of the advowſon of Whittington, 3 Mar. John Cotton had livery of the ſame, and died 42 Eliz. William Cotton, the laſt male heir of that family, was lord of the manor in the year 1608. The heir female was married to ſir John Denham, author of that excellent poem, called Cooper's Hill. He was ſurveyor general of the works and buildings to king Charles the Second, and left two daughters coheireſſes; one married to ſir Thomas Price, who died without iſſue, whereby her inheritance devolved to her ſiſter, who was married to ſir William Morley, of Halnaker in the county of Suſſex, nephew to the reverend prelate of that name, biſhop of Wincheſter.

Sir William Morley likewiſe left two daughters coheireſſes, of whom one died unmarried, whereby Mary, the ſurviving ſiſter, was intituled to the whole eſtate. She was married to James earl of Derby, who, in her right, was lord of the manor of Whittington.

The manor paſſed afterwards to lord Conway, of whom it was purchaſed by the late Thomas Tracy, eſq; whoſe widow, Mrs. Tracy, is the preſent lady of the manor, and proprietor of ſeveral other good eſtates in this county.

William Bradehurſt and Alice his wife held lands in Whittington 2 R. 2. John Tayler was alſo ſeized of lands in Whittington 9 R. 2. Lands in Whittington, a water mill, and the advowſon of the rectory, which formerly belonged to the Deſpencers, and to the earls of Warwick, were granted to Thomas Stroud, Walter Earl, and James Paget, 36 H. 8. Other lands called Hill, Colemore, Plots, and Colewell, and a wood, called Hall-wood, belonged formerly to the abbey of Winchcombe, and were granted to William Berners 36 H. 8.

HAMLET. Syreford is a hamlet in this pariſh, containing about ſix or ſeven houſes. Lands called Wally in this hamlet, formerly belonged to a religious foundation, and pay only 4*s.* a year in lieu of tithes.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Winchcombe, worth about 100*l.* a year, to which Mrs. Tracy has the preſentation.

Twenty-two acres incloſed, and about ſeventy in the common fields, belong to the glebe.

The church is ſmall, with an aile on the ſouth ſide, built by the Cottons, and a low wooden turret in the middle.

Firſt fruits	£.	13	6	8	Synodals	£.	0	1	0
Tenths —		1	6	8	Pentecoſtals		0	0	7½
Procurations		0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Under an arch, between the chancels, are the figures in ſtone, larger than life, of two knights in armour, lying with their legs acroſs. One is diſtinguiſhed with a large ſhield upon the left arm, bearing ſix lozenges Or, 3, 2, 1. And there is another figure of a female, lying along in the ſouth aile, diſtinguiſhed by the ſame arms.

Upon a plate of braſs, fixed to a flat ſtone, under the figures of a man and woman, with two children between them, it is thus engraven:

HERE LYETH THE BODDYES OF RICHARD COTON ESQVIER AND MARGARET COTON HIS WIFE. HE DECESSED THE NINE AND TWENTYTH DAYE OF MAYE IN THE THYRD AND FOWRTH YEARE OF THE REYGNE OF KINGE PHILLYPP AND QVEENE MARYE ANNO DOMINI 1556 AND THE SAYD MARGARET DECESSED THE DAYE OF MAY IN THE FYRST YEARE OF THE REYGNE OF OVR SOVERAINE LADYE QVEENE ELIZABETH ANNO DOMINI 1560.

Note, The arms are torn off this ſtone.

Upon a table againſt the wall in the chancel,

In Memoriam
Viri admodum literati
Morum et Religionis integerrimi
Iacobi Ingram
Qui S. S. Theologiæ merito Doctor
Hujuſce Paræciæ Paſtor fidiſſimus
Eccleſiam decoravit
Vitam cum Morte mutavit
Anno { Ætatis ſuæ 70, Domini 1670.
Iuxta quem
ſepultus jacet
Filius ejuſdem natu maximus
Iacobus Ingram
Cujus morum probitas ſimplicitas ſuavitas
Effecit
ut omnibus lugubre deſiderium reliquit
Ian. 20
Anno { Ætatis ſuæ 36 Domini 1678.

And beneath,

Haud procul poſitum eſt
Q^d reliquum Margaretæ
D^ris Ingram Filiæ
Antonii Barns 1^mo deinde Rob^ti Speat,
Conjugis
Lumina condidit Id. Maiis
An: { Ætatis ſuæ 52, Æræ X^nae 1692.

In chariſſimam Memoriam Margaretæ Barns Antonij et Margaretæ Prolis unicæ, Quæ præpropera Patris morte orba antequam nata, relicta Matri triſtiſſimæ ſolamen nimis breve præbuit; Variolis nempe Correpta immatura morte Quinto Novemb. Expiravit, Anno { Ætatis ſuæ 7 Domini 1677.

In a ſcutcheon upon this monument are two coats, Baron and femme. 1. Ermine, on a feſs gules three eſcallops Or. 2. Barry of ten pieces argent and azure, over all a lion rampant gules.

There

There is an elegant marble monument, conſiſting of a vaſe ſupporting an urn, with proper decorations, in the ſouth chancel, and upon the front is the following memorial:

To the beloved Memory
Of Thomas Tracy, Eſq^r of Sandywell in Gloceſterſhire, Youngeſt Son of Iohn Tracy, Eſq^r of Stanway in the ſaid County, who deceas'd Iune 24^th^, 1770, Aged 53.
This excellent Man was diſtinguiſhed in Private Life
By an uncommon Sweetneſs of Temper and Benevolence of Heart, and poſſeſſed in an eminent degree thoſe ſocial and amiable Virtues
Which not only procured him the Love of his Relations and intimate Friends,
But the univerſal Eſteem of all
His Acquaintance.
He was unanimouſly Choſen by his Country, in two ſucceeding Parliaments, to repreſent the County of Gloceſter;
Which important truſt he diſcharged with the ſtricteſt Integrity
and Diſintereſted Zeal.
He married Mary only Daughter and Heireſs of Sir William Dodwell, Kn^t.
And had by her one only Son, Dodwell Tracy,
A Youth (from his amiable Diſpoſition and diſtinguiſhed Parts) of the moſt promiſing Hopes.
But theſe, alas! were blaſted when in the flower of his Age he was ſnatched
From the Arms of his Afflicted Parents and Friends, Ian: 11, 1768, at Paris, on his return from his Travels,
in the 21^st^ Year of his Age.
Mary their lamenting Wife and Mother placed this Mournful Teſtimony of Her tendereſt Affection to her Dear Huſband and her beloved Son.

Their Remains are depoſited in the Tracy Vault at Stanway.

Upon a ſhield placed at top of the monument, are theſe arms, Quarterly, 1ſt and 4th Or, on a bend voided gules an eſcallop ſable. 2. Azure, a croſs croſlet fitchy Or. 3. Sable, a bend ermine cotized flory Or.——Over all a ſcutcheon of pretence, Quarterly, 1ſt and 4th Vert, a feſs between three roſes argent, for Dodwell. 2d and 3d Argent, three bars gules, a canton of the ſecond.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in	1692,	£. 58	11	2
Poll-tax ——	1694, —	6	10	0
Land-tax —	1694, —	62	16	0
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	36	19	3

At the beginning of this century, there were 32 houſes, and about 126 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 4 were freeholders; yearly births 3, burials 3. Atkyns.

Wickham, or Child's Wickham.

THIS is a ſmall pariſh, in the hundred of Kiftſgate, four miles diſtant ſouth-eaſtward from Eveſham in Worceſterſhire, near ſix weſtward from Campden, and twenty-two north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

It is ſituated on the great road leading from Worceſter to London, and was antiently called Wicuene, and afterwards Child's Wickham, from the Childs of Northwick, who, it ſeems, were once lords of this manor.

It lies in the Vale, yet the greater part is arable; and the common fields were incloſed by authority of parliament, about the year 1765. A ſmall brook, riſing in two heads, one in Broadway, the other in Buckland, runs from hence into the Avon above Eveſham; but the pariſh is chiefly diſtinguiſhed in natural hiſtory by a ſalt ſpring, which not being work'd, is of no immediate advantage.

Here is a cuſtom from time immemorial, for the lord of the manor to give a certain quantity of malt to brew ale to be given away at Whitſuntide, and a certain quantity of flour to make cakes; every one who keeps a cow ſends curd, others plumbs, ſugar, and flour; and the payers to church and poor contribute 6*d.* each towards furniſhing out an entertainment, to which every poor perſon of the pariſh who comes, has, with a quart of ale, a cake, a piece of cheeſe, and a cheeſecake.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

'Rotbert Diſpenſator holds Wicuene, in Gretеſtane hundred. There are ten hides taxed. 'Balduin held it. There are three plow-tillages 'in demean, and thirty-two villeins, and ten bor-'dars, with twelve plow-tillages. There is one 'ſervus, and two mills of 10*s.* and ten acres of 'meadow. In Wincelcumbe is one burgeſs pay-'ing 16*d.* It was worth 12*l.* and is now worth '16*l.*' Domeſday, p. 76.

'The church of Wincelcumbe holds one hide 'in Wicquenn.' Ibid. p. 71.

The above Robert Diſpenſator, or Deſpencer, came into England with William the conqueror, to whom he was ſteward, and had by his gift the manor of Wicuene in Glouceſterſhire, beſides four in Warwickſhire, fifteen in Lincolnſhire, and ſeventeen in Leiceſterſhire, of all which he was poſſeſſed at the time of the general ſurvey, as appears by the record juſt quoted.

Sir Robert Atkyns ſays, 'It is very probable 'that the Peches were afterwards owners of this 'manor; for king Edward the Second confirmed 'a grant of ſir Gilbert Peche, of lands in Wick-'ham, to the abbey of Leyſtone in Suffolk, 6 E. 2. 'The confirmation doth not indeed mention in 'what county Wickham lay, but ſince other lands 'in Gloſterſhire are named with it, and that the 'Peches were owners of very conſiderable poſ-'ſeſſions in this county, it is the more probable.'

Upon this paſſage I obſerve, that there is good reaſon to believe that the Peches were not owners of the Wickham of which I am now treating, for the ſheriff returned that the earl of Warwick [William de Beauchamp] was lord of Wickwane in Holford and Greſton hundred 9 E. 1. The eſcheator's inquiſition found, that his ſon Guido de Bello Campo, earl of Warwick, died 9 E. 2. ſeized of the manor of Wikewayne, which he held of the king in capite, but by what ſervice the jurors were ignorant; of 360 acres of arable land there, at 4*d.* an acre; of ſixteen acres of meadow, at 3*s.* an acre; and of three acres of paſture, at 2*s.* the acre; of 6*l.* 3*s.* 1*d.* of the rent of free tenants, and 119*s.* rent of the natives, and not more, becauſe 20*l.* rent is aſſigned to the chantry of the caſtle of Aumley [Elmley] by the king's charter, with the conſent of the lord Guy de Beauchamp. He left Thomas de Beauchamp, his ſon and heir, almoſt two years old.

The manor belonged to ſir William Cornwallis in the year 1608. It came afterwards to the Sheldons, of whom it was purchaſed by the Fermors. James Fermor, eſq; was proprietor of it about the beginning of this century, and his grandſon, William Fermor, of Stockeld Park, near Tadcaſter in Yorkſhire, eſq; is the preſent lord of the manor of Child's Wickham, and gives for his arms, Argent, a feſs ſable between three lions heads erazed gules.

HAMLET. Murcot is a hamlet in this pariſh, lying north-weſtward from the church, and had formerly a chapel belonging to it, of which William Belſon was the laſt incumbent, and had a penſion of 2*l.* 10*s.* paid him in the year 1553. Willis. There is a piece of ground now called the Chapel cloſe.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the deanery of Campden, of which Mr. Fermor is patron, and Mr. Robert Burgis is the preſent incumbent. The advowſon of it formerly belonged to the abbey of Bordeſley in Worceſterſhire.

Mr. Fermor has the impropriation both of Wickham and Murcot.

In the year 1763 an act paſſed for incloſing the common fields in this pariſh, when lands, now let for 51*l.* a year, were allotted to the vicar in lieu of tithes, which together with the vicarage houſe and orchard, eaſter offerings, &c. make the living worth about 60*l.* a year. For every perſon dying worth 30*l.* there is a mortuary of 10*s.* paid to the vicar.

This is a peculiar, and is viſited by the biſhop and arch-deacon in the manor houſe. And the lord of the manor, by cuſtom, entertains the viſitor with a cake, a loaf, a pound of butter, a quarter of a ſage cheeſe, and a quarter of a plain cheeſe, a dozen of ale, and ſix bottles of ſtrong beer. The vicar has the probat of wills within the peculiar.

The church is built in the form of a croſs, and has a handſome ſpire at the weſt end, with five bells. There is, painted on the glaſs in the chancel window, Sable, a feſs between ſix croſs croſlets Or. And upon ſome bricks in the church, Three chevrons Or.

Benefactions.

In the year 1683, Mr. Samuel Wharton, ſometime ſheriff of Briſtol, gave 27*l.* to purchaſe land for the uſe of the poor, which was laid out accordingly; and the ground ſo purchaſed, and another piece called the church head-land, were exchanged, upon incloſing, for land now let for two guineas a year.

Four ſmall tenements are given towards the repair of the church.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	115	18	0
	Poll-tax — 1694,	—	17	8	0
	Land-tax — 1694,	—	117	8	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	82	10	6

At the beginning of this century, there were 75 houſes, and about 340 inhabitants, whereof 12 were freeholders; yearly births 8, and burials 8. Atkyns. But ſir Robert's account of the baptiſms is very erroneous, for in ten years, beginning with 1700, the baptiſms were 116, the burials 78. In the ſame number of years, beginning with 1760, the baptiſms were 102, and the burials 88. But in 1761, and 1764, the burials were double the average number. The inhabitants are now about 306, ſo that population ſeems to be ſomething declining.

WICKWAR.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Grumbald's Aſh, five miles ſouth-weſt from Wotton-under-edge, four north from Chipping Sodbury, and about twenty-ſix ſouth from Glouceſter.

It is ſituated in the Vale, and conſiſts chiefly of paſturage, with ſome arable, and a conſiderable proportion of waſte land, pretty much inclined to clay.

The antient name was Wichen, from wic, which has various ſignifications, as a village, or hamlet, a caſtle, a dairy farm, &c. It was afterwards called Wickwar, from the family of La Warr, who for many generations were lords of the manor.

In this, and the neighbouring pariſhes of Chipping Sodbury, Yate, and Cromhall, are rocks of a very compact and ponderous ſtone, which, from its colour, is called the White Lays. It is a ſpecies of marble, and makes a moſt excellent lime. Broken ſmall, it wears as ſmooth as a gravel walk on the public roads, and is very durable. The calamine ſtone, and ſome lead ore, have alſo been found in theſe places.

This part of the country is bleſt with plenty of pit coal, which is of great advantage to the inhabitants, and ſeems not to be counterballanced by any natural inconveniencies, except that grain is uſually ſomething dearer than upon the hills, becauſe the lands here are chiefly uſed in grazing and dairy, many of which were formerly corn fields, as appears by the ridges ſtill remaining.

Within the pariſh ſtands a ſmall market town, of one ſtreet, whoſe privileges of a weekly market, and yearly fair, were firſt granted in the reign of king Edward the Firſt. King Henry the Eighth alſo alſo granted to Thomas Weſt, lord La Warr, the like privileges of a weekly market, and of two annual fairs, in the twenty-fourth year of his reign; and I have ſeen an Inſpeximus and confirmation of the laſt-mentioned grant, dated July 4, in the fourth year of the reign of king Charles the Firſt. It was ſhewn me by the mayor, as a charter of incorporation, for the town is a borough by preſcription, like Wotton and Berkeley, with a mayor and twelve aldermen, who have the mace carried before them on particular days. The profits of the market and fairs belong to the mayor, and ſuch as have ſerved that office are deemed aldermen.

The market day is on Monday, and there are two fairs, one on Lady-day, the other on the ſecond of July. But the market is unfrequented, and the town declining. There are two courts, one held for the borough, the other for the tithing, or foreign, which have ſeparate conſtables.

The clothing buſineſs was probably ſettled here very early, for Leland, in the time of king Henry the Eighth, calls it a pratye clothinge tounlet, and the manufacture has continued here ever ſince, with various ſucceſs; but is at preſent in a very languiſhing condition, there being only one maſter, who does but little in it. However, the women and children have uſually full employment in ſpinning for the clothiers about Stroud and Chalford.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

'Humphry the chamberlain holds Wichen, in 'Bacheſtanes hundred. There are four hides. 'Three free men of Briſtric the ſon of Algar 'held it for three manors in the time of king 'Edward, and they could go where they would. 'There were three plow-tillages in demean, and 'nine villeins, and fourteen bordars, with nine 'plow-tillages. There are five ſervi, and twenty 'acres of meadow, and ſix furlongs of wood. It 'is worth and was worth 12 lib. Theſe two vills, 'Actune and Wichen, the queen gave to Hum-'phry.' Domeſday p. 79.

John earl of Glouceſter, brother to king Richard the Firſt, gave this manor to John la Warre, and afterwards confirmed it to him when he was king, 8 Joh. to hold of that king by the ſervice of half a knight. Jordan la Warre was ſon and heir to John. He often joined in rebellion againſt king John and king Henry the Third; but prudently took care to make his peace. John la Warre ſucceeded Jordan in this manor, and was himſelf ſucceeded by Roger la Warre, who held it 9 E. 1. and purchaſed a weekly market in Warre-Wike, on Tueſday; a yearly fair on Whit-monday, and the two following days; and free warren within the manor, in the 13th year of the ſame reign; and all theſe privileges were allowed him in the proceedings on a writ of Quo warranto, 15 E. 1. He married Clarice, eldeſt daughter and coheireſs of John lord de Tregoz, of Herefordſhire, an eminent baron, after whoſe death, this Roger la Warre had ſummons as a baron to parliament, 22 E. 1. He died 14 E. 2. ſeized of the manors of Wykewarre and Briſtlington, and the eſcheator's inquiſition found, that Wykewarre was then held of Thomas ap Adam, ſon of John ap Adam, as of the manor of Caſtleharpetre, by the ſervice of half a knight's fee. John lord la Warre, ſon of Roger, died 21 E. 3. and (John his eldeſt ſon dying before him) was ſucceeded by his grandſon Roger lord la Warre, who was eminent in the reign of king Edward the Third, whom he attended in his wars in France; and being preſent at the battle of Poictiers, Sept. 19, 1356, when the French king and his ſon, the earl of Tankerville, ſir Jaques of Bourbon, the earls of Ponthieu and Eue, with many other noblemen, were taken, he was one of thoſe knights who challenged the French king as their priſoner, and this ſir Roger had the crampet, or chape, of that monarch's ſword aſſigned him for his ſhare in that exploit, and he and his family afterwards bore it, as an honourable augmentation, in their armorial bearings. He and Elizabeth his wife levied a fine of the manor and advowſon of Wickwar to the uſe of themſelves in taille, the remainder to John his ſon, 28 E. 3. and he died in the 44th year of the ſame reign. John lord De la Warre, ſon of Roger, died without iſſue 22 R. 2. and was ſucceeded by his brother Thomas lord de la Warre, rector of Mancheſter, who levied a fine of this manor to the uſe of himſelf in taille, the remainder to Thomas Weſt in taille, the remainder to Reginald Weſt, ſon of Thomas Weſt, 12 H. 4. and died without iſſue, 4 H. 6.

Reginald Weſt, ſon of ſir Thomas Weſt by Joan the daughter and heireſs of the laſt Roger lord de la Warre, ſucceeded to this manor in virtue of the before-mentioned entail, (notwithſtanding John Griffin was next heir male at law) and had livery of the lands of his mother's inheritance. Petitioning the ſame year to have place and precedency among the barons as lord de la Warre, he had ſummons to parliament accordingly from 5 to 28 H. 6. and died in the 29th year of that reign, ſeized of Wyke-Warr, leaving Richard lord de la Warr, his eldeſt ſon and heir, who died 16 E. 4. Thomas lord de la Warr, eldeſt ſon of Richard, bore ſeveral important truſts under king Henry the Seventh, with whom he was in great favour. He made his will Oct. 8, 1524, and died ſoon after, as appears by the probat, which bears date Feb. 12, 1525. Thomas lord de la Warr, eldeſt ſon of Thomas by his firſt wife, had a grant of the abbey of Whorwell in Hampſhire, which afterwards became the ſeat of his family. He died without iſſue, ſeized of the manor of Wickwarre, and of the advowſon of the church, Sep. 25, 1554.

William Weſt, ſon of ſir George Weſt, who was brother by the father to the laſt-mentioned Thomas

Thomas lord de la Warr, was bred up in his uncle's houſe as his preſumptive heir, and impatient of delay, attempted to diſpatch him by poiſon; which being complained of in parliament, 2 E. 6. he was diſabled to ſucceed him in honour and eſtate, and had only an allowance of 350*l.* a year. But behaving with diſtinguiſhed valour in the Engliſh army at the ſiege of St. Quintin, in 1557, and carrying himſelf well for ſeveral years afterwards, he received the honour of knighthood at Hampton-court, Feb. 5, 1568; and obtained a new creation to the title of lord de la Warr, and by act of parliament, which paſſed on the 12th of March following, had full reſtitution in blood, and became poſſeſſed of this manor. He died 38 Eliz. and was ſucceeded by his ſon Thomas lord de la Warr, who, by petition to the queen in parliament, was reſtored to the precedency of his anceſtors, 39 Eliz. and dying in the 44th year of that reign, left Thomas lord de la Warr, his ſon and heir. This lord was conſtituted captain-general of the colonies planting in Virginia, whither he went with three ſhips, in 1609, and was very active in forming ſettlements and making diſcoveries; whereby his health was greatly impaired, and he died at ſea, in his return home, June 7, 1618.

Wickwar was afterwards purchaſed by ſir Robert Ducie, from whom it deſcended, like Tortworth, and lord Ducie is the preſent lord of the manor.

HAMLET. Bagſtone is a hamlet in this pariſh, which is ſuppoſed to have given name to the hundred called Bacheſtane hundred in Domeſday-book, and now comprized in the hundreds of Thornbury and Grumbald's-aſh. The abbey of Kingſwood was ſeized of the manor of Bageſton 12 H. 4. and Matthew Hale, eſq; was lord of it at the beginning of this century.

Andrew Sudenham granted an eſtate in Wikewarre to John and Thomas Howes, at the annual rent of two pounds of wax, to be paid at the altar of St. Mary, in the north part of the church of Wickwar, on the feaſt of the bleſſed virgin; and one pound of wax, to be paid at the altar of St. Lawrence, in the ſame church, on the feaſt of that ſaint, 12 E. 3. and the original grant is now in the hands of Mr. Rudge of this place.

John Newton, citizen of Briſtol, and Joan his wife, levied a fine of lands in Wickwar to the uſe of themſelves in taille, 8 H. 5. and John Newton, ſon of John, levied a fine of lands in the ſame place, to the uſe of William More, 28 H. 6.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Hawkeſbury, worth 300*l.* a year. The reverend Mr. Cheſter is patron and incumbent.

The church is a handſome ſtructure, dedicated to St. Mary, with an aile on the north ſide, and a well built tower at the weſt end. It ſtands on an eminence, at ſome diſtance from the town, and is ſaid to have been erected by one Woolſworth, an eminent clothier of this place, who likewiſe built a houſe at the pool in the bottom near the church. Againſt the eaſt end of this houſe, which now belongs to Mr. Jobbins, is the figure of St. John the Baptiſt, in an erect poſture, pointing with his left hand towards the church, and over him this inſcription in antient characters:

Ste Iohēs Baptiſta ora . . . . . .

Beneath the figure,

In ye zere of our Lord God Mº cccc° iiij ſcore & xvi trinete monday xxii day of May.

Firſt fruits £.	18	0	0	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths —	1	16	0	Pentecoſt.	0	0	6
Procurations	0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

Upon a plain ſtone in the north aile it is thus written:

VNDER THIS STONE LYETH THE BODY OF ROBERT SPERT OF WICKWARE IN THE COVNTY OF GLOVC: ESQV WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE THE 27th DAY OF OCTOBER A. D. 1638. VT DAVID IONATHÆ MORTEM DEFLEVIT AMANTIS: SIC FLEO DECESSVM CHARE MARITE TVVM, SPES TAMEN VNA MANET CÆLO NOS ESSE SODALES PERPETVISQVE BONIS ABSQVE DOLORE FRVI.

On the ſide of a freeſtone altar tomb in the ſame aile, are the following inſcriptions, in three compartments:

M. S.
GVLIELMI FILIJ
NATV MAXIMJ JOHANNIS HICKS
HVJVS PAROChiæ GENEROSI
QVI OBIJT
JAN. 14° ANNO { DOMINI 1674 / ÆTATIS SVÆ 21.

Hoc ô Viator Marmore Conditæ
Charæ Recvmbunt Exuviæ brevem
Viventis OPTANTiſq; VITAM
Præcoce Cœlum Anima Petentis:
Muſarum Alumnus Jam fuit Artibus
Præfectus Sacris, quas Studio Pio
Atq; Aure quam fida receptas,
Oxonij Coluit Parentis.
Sed Sprevit Artes Vah nimium breves
Vitamq; longam Credidit heu Brevem
Triſtiſq; Plenum Errore multo
Ipſum Helicona Scatere vidit.

M. S.
Iohanīs Hickes hujus parochiæ Generoſi, qui arthritico morbo confectus mortem libenter oppetit
In explorata fide beatæ reſurrectionis menſis Julij decimo quarto die
Ano ſalutis milleſimo ſexcenteſimo nonageſimo quarto
Ætatis ſuæ ſeptuageſimo.

H. I. S.
Juxta Mariti Exuvias
Elizabetha Hickes
Filia Gul. Oldiſworth
de Coln Rogers in Com. Gloc.
Armigeri
Ob. Sepris 6to A. D. 1727
Æt. 81°.

Dum cœlum habet animam
Sub hoc tumulo hypogœum
caros conſervat cineres
Mariæ Filiæ
Iohanis et Elizabethæ Hickes
maxime piæ Virginis
Quæ immedicabilibus Variolis laborans placide in Chriſto obdormivit octobris die Viceſimo ſexto æra chriſti
Milleſima ſeptingenteſima undecima paulo poſt anos quadraginta impleverat.

A hand-

A handſome marble monument, in the ſame aile, bears this inſcription:

SACRED
To the Memories
of Mr. John Purnell,
Late of the Pool-Houſe, in this Pariſh,
Gentleman,
And of Jane his Wife,
Who was the youngeſt Daughter of John Hickes, of Weſt End
In this Pariſh,
Gentleman,
By Elizabeth Daughter of William Oldiſworth, of Coln Rogers, in this County
Eſquire.
Mr. Purnell dyed Aug. 16th 1726 Ætatis 46.
His Wife dyed Apr. 5th 1743 Ætat. 60.
Iohannes Purnell S. T. P. et Novi Collegij In Oxon
Cuſtos,
Eccleſiæ item Appropriatæ de Cwmdu Com. Brecon et Dioc. Menevenſis Rector, Optimis Parentibus
P. C.

Arms, Baron and femme, 1. Argent, on a feſs between three maſcles azure, as many cinquefoils of the field, for Purnell. 2. Gules, a feſs undy between three fleurs de lis Or, for Hickes.

There is likewiſe the following memorial on a flat ſtone:

Here Lyeth
A Rare Example of much goodneſs
Mr. JOHN PURNELL,
Late of ye Pool-houſe in this Pariſh who died Auguſt the 16th
Anno Salutis 1726
Ætatis 46.
He was
A Zealous Member of ye Church of England, a loving Huſband, a Tender Father,
A king Relation, a Generous Friend,
Always acceptable to the Rich, and Liberal to the Poor.
Injurys between others He eaſily reconciled,
His own as readily forgave.
A Bleſſed Peace-maker.
He was through the whole Cours of his Life
A Sincere Chriſtian without Oſtentation,
And a Lover of all Mankind without Deſire of Praiſe.
Reader!
Go Thou and do likewiſe
That Thou mayeſt Reſt in Peace and Riſe in Glory.
Alſo THOMAS his Youngeſt Son died Augt. the 6th, 1728, aged 4 Years 9 Mo.

On a marble table in the ſame aile,

Near this Monument, in the Burying Place of her Anceſtors, lies interred the Body of ELIANOR late the Wife of THOMAS STOKES of ye Parth Gent. and Second Daughter of IOHN HICKES the Elder, Formerly of Weſt End in this Pariſh Gentleman deceaſed, by ELIZABETH his laſt Wife Alſo deceaſed, Who was a Daughter of WILLIAM OLDISWORTH of Coln Rogers in ye County Eſquire, long ſince deceaſed. She departed this Life the 24th Day of July 1754, Aged 75 Years.

Arms, Baron and femme, 1. Sable, a lion rampant argent, for Stokes. 2. Hickes, as before.

On a marble table, againſt a pillar, in the ſame aile,

Near this Monument is interr'd the Body of ELIZABETH the Wife of EDWARD YATE of Malmeſbury in the County of Wilts Clothier, and Daughter of IOHN HICKES of this Pariſh Gent: by SYLVESTER his Wife who departed this Life the 16th Day of October Anno Dom. 1721, Ætatis ſuæ 67.

Arms, Baron and femme, 1. Argent, three gates gules, 2 and 1, for Yate. 2. Hickes, as before.

On a table of copper, againſt the ſouth wall,

In a Vault beneath the oppoſite Alley lie interred the Remains of Alexander Dorney, the younger, of this Pariſh Gent. He died Sept. the 21st Anno Dom. 1668, in the 38th Year of his Age, leaving behind him Sarah his Wife, and by her two Daughters, viz. Eliz. & Jane.

The above mentioned Sarah afterwards ye Wife of Thomas Stokes, youngeſt Son of Samuel Stokes formerly of Stanſhaw's Place in the Pariſh of Yate in ye County Gent. by Iſabella his Wife third Daughter of Samuel Codrington heretofore of Doddington in ye County Eſq; both long ſince deced lyeth alſo interr'd in the above-mentioned Vault. She Dy'd March ye Tenth 1721 in ye 94th Year of her Age, leaving behind her ye before-named Eliz: & Jane, as alſo Thomas her Huſband, & by him one Son only viz. Thomas.

Thomas ye Father lyeth alſo Inter'd in ye aforesd Vault as do likewiſe ye ſaid Eliz. & Jane, who reſpectively departed yr Life in ye following Order of Time, viz.

Thomas Auguſt the 12, 1732 Aged 87
Iane April the 2, 1738 Aged 75
Elizabeth Octor ye 7, 1745 aged 86 } Years.

Sacred to whoſe Memories yr Monument was here placed by ye aforementioned Thomas ye Son Nov. 7, 1753.

At the top are theſe arms, Azure, a chevron between three dolphins nayant Or. At bottom, Sable, a lion rampant argent, for Stokes.

On a marble altar tomb, in the church-yard, are the following memorials:

Here lies Sarah the Wife of Daniel Woodward of the City of Briſtol Merchant, and Daughter of Thomas Springett Eſq; of Groſmond in the County of Monmouth, by Sarah his Wife, Who
(Dear to her Relations
Valuable to her Acquaintance,
Charitable to the Poor
Pious towards God)
Died the 13th of June 1749 Aged 31, and has left a Name behind her more laſting than this marble can perpetuate.

On another compartment,

Alſo her two Daughters Elizabeth and Sarah, Elizabeth being interr'd with her, Aged 11 Days, and Sarah the 8th Day of January following, Aged 7 Months.

Alſo two of her Brothers James and Giles, James was buried Nov. 22d 1746, Aged 11 Months, Giles Jan. 25, 1733, Aged 12 Years.

At the end,

Here likewiſe lies interred William Giles of this Pariſh, Eſq; who died the 29th Day of Sept. 1750 Aged 80.

Here alſo lies Sarah the Daughter of the ſaid William Giles, Widow of Thomas Springett Eſq; and Mother of Sarah Woodward ſeverally aforementioned. She died the 19th of Aug. 1759, Ætatis ſuæ 65.

N. B. Upon a monument in the chancel, for the above William Giles, are theſe arms, viz. Azure, a chevron Or between three caſtles argent.

On the other ſide,

Here alſo lyeth interred the Body of William Woodward Son of Daniel Woodward Eſq; and the ſaid Sarah his Wife. He died the 31ſt Day of May 1754 Aged 6 Years.

The arms at one end of the tomb are, Baron and femme, 1. Three oak leaves proper. 2. A feſs undy between three creſcents.

On a marble monument, in the chancel,

In Memory of George Hobbs, ſon of William Hobbs, Clothier, by Sarah his Wife. He died Septr 5th 1740, Aged 21 Years.

Alſo of the ſaid William Hobbs, who died Feb. 23d 1747-8 Aged 55 Years.

And Sarah his Wife who died May 6th 1754 Aged 72 Years.

Alſo of John the Son of the aforeſaid William and Sarah Hobbs who died June 3d 1759 Aged 35.

Arms, Baron and femme, 1. Argent, a bend wavy azure between two hawks, or hobbys, proper, for Hobbs. 2. Sable, an unicorn Or, on a chief argent three pinks gules.

Benefactions.

In 1655, John Wolford gave 4*l.* a year to the uſe of the poor, charged on a ground called the Moors, in the pariſh of Charfield. Mrs. Elizabeth Spurt gave 40*s.* yearly, one part for a ſermon, the other for the poor. Mr. Henry Cann gave 3*l.* a year to the poor; and John Cox gave a houſe in the borough, and 10*l.* to the ſame uſe. —— Prout gave a field called Cook's Leaze, worth 4*l.* a year; and Mr. William Hobbs, clothier, gave a rent charge of 30*s.* a year out of the Bell at Wickwar, both to buy clothing for the poor. —— Yeates gave 60*l.* that the intereſt of it may be applied to the apprenticing out poor boys to London. And Mrs. Elizabeth Hicks gave 12*l.* to buy a branch for the church, and the intereſt of 20*l.* to be given to the poor.

But the principal benefactor was Mr. Alexander Hoſea, who, by his will, in 1684, eſtabliſhed a free grammar-ſchool in this borough, and endowed it with a very good houſe in Gray's inn lane, in Holbourn, London. He alſo gave 600*l.* to build a ſchool houſe for the maſter to live in. The maſter receives 28*l.* a year. There is another free-ſchool in this place, for teaching poor children to read and write, endowed with 10*l.* a year, and a houſe for the maſter. The corporation are truſtees to both ſchools, and appoint the maſters. —Mr. Hoſea had been a poor boy apprenticed to a weaver in the town, and upon a particular day in the year, when it was the cuſtom with the inhabitants to make a diſh, called Whitepot, his miſtreſs ſent him with a panfull to the bakehouſe. Poor Hoſea had the misfortune to break the pan, which ſo terrified him that he durſt not return to his maſter, but ſet out immediately for London, where he was proſperous, and acquired a large fortune.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in	1692,	£. 145	17	4
	Poll-tax ——	1694, —	37	3	0
	Land-tax ——	1694, —	180	16	6
	The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	133	14	$6\frac{3}{4}$

At the beginning of this century, there were 220 houſes, and about 1000 inhabitants, whereof 36 were freeholders; yearly births 27, and burials 24. Atkyns. Since that time the town has loſt its trade, and the preſent inhabitants are computed to be about 850.

WIDFORD.

THIS is a ſmall pariſh, in the hundred of Slaughter, two miles diſtant eaſt from Burford in Oxfordſhire, ten ſouth-eaſt from Stow, and thirty eaſt from Glouceſter.

It is one of thoſe inſtances of the inconvenient and unnatural allotment of pariſhes to hundreds and counties, which I have had frequent occaſion to mention, and ſerves to mark the capricious humour even of the greateſt and wiſeſt of men. For what can be more abſurd than to appropriate this pariſh to Glouceſterſhire, when it lies ſome miles diſtant from any part of it, and is totally ſurrounded by Oxfordſhire?

The river Winruſh is of conſiderable breadth here, and is famous for fine trout and cray fiſh. It has a ford through it, which gave name to the place, for what is Widford, but the Wide ford?

The pariſh conſiſts chiefly of arable lands and wood lands. A houſe, called Cap's Lodge, tho' lying within the boundaries of the foreſt of Whichwood, belongs to Widford, where, by antient cuſtom, the inhabitants of the town of Burford aſſemble, on Whitſunday yearly, and chuſe a lord and lady. They likewiſe claim the privilege of cutting wood, and of hunting with dogs, and killing deer in the foreſt; but the latter is compounded for, by delivering to them two bucks annually, on a certain day, with which the principal inhabitants of that town make an entertainment.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

'Saint Oſwald of Glouuecеſter held Widiforde, 'in Berniton hundred. In the time of king 'Edward there were two hides, and two plow-'tillages in demean, and four villeins, and three 'bordars, with two plow-tillages. There are 'four ſervi, and eight acres of meadow, and a 'mill of 10*s.* In the time of king Edward it was 'worth 40*s.* and is now worth 60*s.* Rannulf 'holds it of Saint Oſwald. It has the ſame 'owner now as it had in king Edward's time.' Domeſday, p. 70.

How, or at what time, the manor paſſed from the priory of St. Oſwald, does not appear; but it was in lay hands 9 E. 1. when the ſheriff returned into the exchequer the names of all the vills in his county, with their reſpective proprietors, certifying that Wideforde was a vill in the hundred of Salmoneſburye, and that Robert de . . . . . was lord of it.

It was ſome time afterwards veſted in the Lovels, who reſided at a place, called Minſter-Lovel, under Whichwood, where conſiderable remains of their manſion houſe are ſtill to be ſeen. John lord Lovel died ſeized of Widford and Little Riſington, 4 E. 4. and Joan his wife, the ſiſter of William viſcount Beaumont, was endowed with this manor, and died in the 6th year of the ſame reign. Francis lord Lovel, ſon of John, was in great favour with king Richard the Third, and a partaker with him in his wicked practices, and was therefore advanced to be lord chamberlain. His ill behaviour and undeſerved preferment drew on him the odium of the people, ſo that he was attainted 1 H. 7. for divers miſdemeanors; and entering the kingdom in arms, was ſlain near Newark, 3 H. 7. leaving no iſſue.

Widford was granted to Jaſper duke of Bedford, uncle to the king, 1 H. 7. but he died without iſſue, in the 11th year of the ſame reign. It was afterwards mortgaged by the crown, together with other conſiderable eſtates, to Paul Withepool, and other citizens of London, 36 H. 8.

The manor came afterwards to the Johnſons, for Herman Johnſon, eſq; was lord of it in the year 1608. Out of that name and family it paſſed to the Fettiplaces, about the cloſe of the laſt century. Sir Charles Fettyplace, baronet, was owner of Widford when ſir Robert Atkyns wrote his Hiſtory; and Robert Fettyplace, eſq; is the preſent lord of the manor, and has a ſeat, with a large large deer-park, and a good eſtate in the pariſh. His arms are, Argent, two chevrons gules.

Henry de Berkeley and Annabel his wife levied a fine of lands in Widford, to the uſe of Walter de Eſchale and Alice his wife, 51 H. 3. but this muſt be underſtood of Widford in Berkeley, and not of this place. John Martyn and Margaret his wife levied a fine of lands in Widford, to the uſe of William Conbrook, 22 R. 2. and William Conbrook levied a fine of the ſame lands, to the uſe of John Faellore de Filking, 6 H. 4.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Stow, worth about 30*l.* a year, and in the gift of Mr. Fettyplace. The earl of Warwick formerly preſented to this church.

There is no houſe nor glebe for the miniſter.

The advowſon of the rectory of Widford, and a toft of land which lately belonged to the priory of St. John the Evangeliſt in Burford, were granted to Edmond Herman 37 H. 8.

The church is ſmall, without any ſteeple.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in	1692,	£.	25	16	0
Poll-tax —	1694, —		2	12	0
Land-tax —	1694, —		26	13	4
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —		20	17	3

There were 7 houſes in the pariſh, and about 36 inhabitants, 2 of whom were freeholders; yearly births 1, burials 1. Atkyns. I think there are now only 3 houſes, and about 20 inhabitants.

WILLERSEY.

THIS is a ſmall pariſh, in the upper diviſion of Kiftſgate hundred, about three miles weſt from Chipping Campden, five ſouth-eaſtward from Eveſham, and twenty-ſix north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

The village is ſeated in the Vale, and lies under the weſt ſide of thoſe hills which every where mark the limits of the Coteſwold country with a bold and well defined outline. On the ſummit of the hill above the village, but within the pariſh, there is a large camp, incloſing about ſixty acres of ground, ſuppoſed to have been formed in the time of the Daniſh ravages, and it ſtill continues pretty perfect.

From this camp there is a fine bird's-eye view of the vale below, interſected with beautiful hedge-rows, and ſcattered with villages and farm houſes. The river Avon meanders through the middle of the vale, and the town of Eveſham at an agreeable diſtance, preſents itſelf as the principal object, with the Breedon and Malvern hills in the back ground to cloſe the view. This camp and proſpect principally diſtinguiſh Willerſey; but in proſecuting my inquiry after curioſities, I was informed by the rector, as a matter worthy notice, that there is an eſtate here, ſubject to a rent-charge, proportioned by the rate of the land-tax, payable to a certain family as a recompence (tho' an inadequate one) for preſerving the life of king Charles the Second, by hiding him in the oak. When the land-tax is at three ſhillings in the pound, the annuity, or payment, is four guineas.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

At the time of the Norman conqueſt, Willerſey belonged to the abbey of Eveſham, according to Domeſday; but ſir Robert Atkyns has repreſented it as being then the property of the church of Winchcombe, which error I apprehend he was led into by uſing an imperfect copy of Domeſday, as already obſerved under Broadwell. The following is a literal traſlation of the record:

'The ſame church [St. Mary of Eveſham] 'holds Willerſei, in Widelei hundred. There 'are eight hides, and one at Wiquenna [Child's 'Wickham]. There are three plow-tillages in 'demean, and ſixteen villeins, and four bordars, 'and a prieſt, with ſix plow-tillages. There are 'two ſervi, and a little meadow. It was worth '4*l.* and is now worth 100*s.*' Domeſday, p. 72.

The abbey of Eveſham purchaſed a charter of free warren in this and many other manors, 35 H. 3. The ſame houſe was ſeized of the manor 9 E. 1. and their right to court leet and free warren was allowed, in the proceedings on a writ of Quo warranto, in the 15th year of that reign. Sir Thomas Weſt and Alice his wife held Willerſey 10 R. 2. as tenants to the abbey of Eveſham, in which year ſir Thomas died; and the ſame monaſtery continued ſeized of this manor 'till the general diſſolution of religious houſes.

The manor of Willerſey, and the demean lands thereof, lately belonging to the abbey of Eveſham, were granted to John Cock and John Wrath, 36 H. 8. and the manor and the advowſon of the rectory were granted to ſir John Bourn, ſecretary of ſtate to king Philip and queen Mary, and to Dorothy his wife, 5 Mar. and the grant to them recites that the lands formerly belonged to the abbey of Eveſham.

The manor was veſted in Charles Kettleby, eſq; in the year 1608. Edward Winnington, eſq; ſon of ſir Francis Winnington, of Worceſterſhire, attorney-general to king Charles the Second, was owner of it at the beginning of this century; and ſir Edward Winnington is the preſent lord of the manor of Willerſey.

John Dereham died ſeized of a meſſuage and a yard land called Parſon's, and of an eſtate called Spragges's, and of ſeveral other lands, cloſes, and common of paſture in Willerſey, 43 Eliz. leaving William Dereham, his ſon and heir, twenty-eight years old. Eſcheat. Inquiſ. 2 Jac.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Campden, worth about 150*l.* a year. The reverend reverend Mr. William Scott is patron and incumbent. The patronage formerly belonged to the abbey of Eveſham.

The whole lordſhip contained about thirty-ſix yard lands. The impropriator had the great tithes of twenty-eight of them, paying the rector eight buſhels of wheat, eight of barley, and eight of beans; and the rector had the tithes of the remaining eight yard lands. But in the year 1767, the common fields and waſte lands were incloſed by act of parliament, when Anne George, the impropriatrix, had 145 acres allotted her in lieu of her tithes, and the rector 83 acres in lieu of his glebe and tithes.

The church, dedicated to St. Peter, is built in the form of a croſs, with a tower in the middle; and the founder of it is ſuppoſed to lie buried in a niche in the chancel.

Firſt fruits	£.	13	2	6	Synodals	£.	0	1	0
Tenths	—	1	6	3	Pentecoſtals	0	0	8½
Procurations	0	3	0

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	97	6	0
Poll-tax —— 1694,	—	18	5	0
Land-tax —— 1694,	—	60	11	0
The ſame, at 3s. 1770,	—	46	18	5

About the beginning of this century, there were 56 houſes in the pariſh, and about 250 inhabitants, 35 of whom were freeholders; the yearly births were 5, and the burials 5. Atkyns. I am not particularly informed of the ſtate of population at preſent.

****

WINCHCOMBE.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Kiftſgate, ten miles diſtant ſouth-weſt from Campden, nine eaſtward from Tewkeſbury, and ſixteen north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

The river Iſborne, which riſes in Charlton Abbats, receives the Poſtlip ſtream, and ſeveral ſprings out of Sudley manor, and taking its courſe northward through this pariſh, empties itſelf into the Avon a little below Eveſham in Worceſterſhire. It produces ſome trout and ſmall fiſh, particularly eels and gudgeons.

It is remarkable that tobacco was firſt planted in England in this pariſh, and yielded a conſiderable profit to the inhabitants, until they were reſtrained by act of parliament.

The pariſh conſiſts chiefly of rich meadow and paſture, and is pretty extenſive. It has a market town ſeated on the weſt ſide of it, which was antiently called Wincelcumbe, from the Saxon pincel, a corner, and comb, a valley, becauſe it lay in a nook, or corner of the vale, encompaſſed with hills, except to the north-eaſtward.

The town was formerly of much greater account than at preſent. It derived its conſequence from an abbey founded in the eighth century, by Kenulfe king of Mercia, who had a palace here; for the founding of religious houſes, in the early times of Chriſtianity, occaſioned a great reſort of people, and had pretty much the ſame effect on population in ſome places as the increaſe of trade had afterwards in others.

There was a ſmall territory adjoining to the town, and dependent upon it, which is ſaid to have been a ſheriffdom, or county, in the Anglo-Saxon time, and ſo to have continued 'till the reign of king Canute, whoſe vice-roy Edric, ſurnamed Streona, diveſted it of its independence, and adjoined it to Glouceſterſhire. But after the conqueſt the town was a diſtinct hundred,[a] as it is expreſſly mentioned in Domeſday; and it is remarkable, that the account of it ſtands in that record between the particulars of ſome manors and eſtates in Wales, and thoſe in Glouceſterſhire, as though the borough was not, even at that time, laid to the county at large. It is alſo obſervable, that it is called a borough in Domeſday, when no other towns in the county, except Glouceſter and Briſtol, were ſo dignified. The following is a tranſlation from that record:

'In the time of king Edward, the borough of 'Wincelcumbe paid a farm of 6 lib. of which 'earl Herald had the third penny, that is, 40 ſol. 'It paid 20 lib. afterwards with the whole hun-'dred of its vill. Durand the ſheriff added 100 ſol. 'and Roger de Ivrei 60 ſol. Now the three hun-'dreds being joined pay 28 lib. of which 20 are 'in Ora.' Domeſday, p. 67.

I ſuppoſe the 100*s.* and the 60*s.* ſo added as above, were paid on account of the two additional hundreds, but the record does not mention what they were, nor can I form any probable conjecture about them.

There were three burgages in the town, of 40 den. appendant to the manor of Oxendone; one appendant to Aldritone; one, paying 3 ſol. held by the church of Wireceſtre; one paying 18 den. held by the church of Hereford; two paying 10 den. belonging to the church of St. Dennis at Paris; William Goizenboded held one burgage; Roger de Laci held three of 32 den. Roger de Lueri held ten, paying 65 den. Robert Diſpenſator held one of 16 den. and Henry de Ferrers held two paying 16 den. Theſe make together twenty-five burgages, ſet down in Domeſday among the poſſeſſions of the ſeveral before-mentioned proprietors.

In its moſt flouriſhing ſtate, the town was large, and had a wall built round it, as appears by the Legend, or Life of St. Kenelm, and as Leland teſtifies,[a] who ſaw the appearance of the town wall when he viſited this place in the time

[a] His words are theſe: 'The towne of certaine, as it ap-'peareth in divers places, and eſpecially by ſouth, towardes 'Sudeley-Caſtle, was walled; and the Legend, or Life of St. 'Kenelme doth teſtifie the ſame.' Itin. 2d Edit. Hearne, V. 4. of of king Henry the Eighth. He collected ſome particulars of it from one Avery, the parſon of Dene, who informed him, that Winchcombe was oppidum muro cinctum, and that a great part of the town ſtood on the ſide of the river next to Sudley-caſtle, where there were no houſes in Leland's time; and that it extended on the other ſide above the church, 'where the Farme of Cor-'wedene is.' From this account it is evident that the river Iſborne, which waters the foot of the preſent town, ran through the middle of the old one, ſo that of old tyme, ſays my author,[b] it was a mighty large Towne. It was defended by a fortreſs, or caſtle, which ſtood near the ſouth ſide of the preſent pariſh church, where are now ſome cottages and gardens; and was called the Ivy Caſtle, as appeared from writings in Winchcombe abbey, perhaps becauſe the walls of it were covered with ivy, which grows very commonly in the decay'd walls of old buildings. But the caſtle was not ſtanding in Leland's time, nor had the laſt prior of Winchcombe ever ſeen it, having only heard[c] that there was ſuch a fort which ſtood about the eaſt-north-eaſt part of the borough.

This is all we know of the antient ſtate of the town, and perhaps all that can now be collected about it. Richard Kidderminſter, the laſt abbat except one, wrote a hiſtory of the foundation of his abbey, &c. but his book was unfortunately burnt by the fire of London, in the year 1666, which accident has moſt likely prevented many hiſtorical matters concerning it from coming to our knowledge; ſo that we can neither fix the æra of its greateſt proſperity, nor the time of its firſt decline. We find that in Leland's time it had fallen much to decay; and as it roſe to its eminence by means of the monaſtery, ſo after the ſuppreſſion of that houſe, it ran ſtill more rapidly to ruin, as I conclude from the preamble to queen Elizabeth's grant of a fair and market, which recites, that by the relation of Dorothy the lady Chandos, and the humble petition of the inhabitants of the borough or town of Winchcombe, the ſaid borough appeared to be fallen into ſo great ruin and decay, that its inhabitants were not able to ſupport and repair it for the great poverty that reigned amongſt them.

It now conſiſts of two ſtreets, croſſing each other. One leads northwards towards Tewkeſbury and Eveſham; the other, which is by much the moſt conſiderable, leads on the eaſt ſide to Campden; on the weſt towards Cheltenham and Glouceſter. There is no great road through it, and conſequently it is but little frequented, except by thoſe who have immediate concerns with the inhabitants. It is a borough by preſcription, governed by two bailiffs, and their aſſiſtants, not exceeding ten in number, and out of thoſe twelve the bailiffs are taken by rotation, and annually at the court-leet are ſworn into their office.

Queen Elizabeth, by letters patent, granted a fair to be holden within the borough, upon the eve, upon the feaſt, and upon the morrow after the feaſt of St. Mark; and a market upon Tueſday in every week. But there are now two annual fairs, held on the 6th of May, and the 28th of July, and the market is on Saturday. As the town is ſeated in a rich vale, the fairs are uſually well ſupply'd with cattle and draught horſes; but the market is very inconſiderable. The corporation have the tolls, which uſually let at about 10*l.* a year.

Of the ABBEY.

In the year 787, king Offa built a nunnery here, and in 798, Kenulph king of Mercia laid the foundation of a ſtately abbey in the place of the nunnery, wherein three hundred monks of the order of St. Benedict were maintained on its firſt foundation. But it is ſuppoſed that not more than forty or fifty of them were in holy orders, the reſt working to ſupply the prieſts and themſelves in all neceſſaries that might be wanting.

This monaſtery was dedicated with great pomp to St. Mary, and conſecrated by Wulfrid archbiſhop of Canterbury, and by twelve other biſhops, in the preſence of king Kenulph, and of Cuthred king of Kent, and of Sired king of the Weſt Saxons, and of ten dukes, and other noblemen; king Kenulph, in honour of the ſolemnity, releaſing at the high altar Eadbert king of Kent, whom he had then lately taken priſoner. At that time, beſides the rich preſents which he gave to the noblemen, the king gave a pound weight of ſilver to all ſuch who had no lands, and a mark in gold to all prieſts, and a ſhilling to every monk, and diſtributed many other valuables to the people.

King Kenulph died about the year 820, in the 24th of his reign, and was buried in the eaſtern part of this abbey church, leaving two daughters, Quendrid and Burgmill, and an infant ſon Kenelme, but ſeven years old, whom he committed to the care of his daughter Quendrid. But ſhe conſpired with Aſkebert, the young king's tutor and governor, to murder him, that ſhe might ſucceed to the kingdom. The wicked Aſkebert accordingly taking him into a wood called Clenth, cut off his head in an obſcure place between two hills, where a white cow frequented, and was therefore called the White Cow's Valley.

What follows in our antient hiſtorians[d] concerning the diſcovery of this murder and treaſon, ſavours too much of the marvellous to gain credit with many of the preſent age. I ſhall, however, give the ſubſtance of it for the reader's entertainment. They relate, that the murder was for a ſhort time unknown, 'till it was miraculouſly diſcovered at Rome, where a dove flying over the altar of St. Peter, let a parchment drop, on which it was thus written:

In Clent in Cowberche hed bewevyd lyth Kenelme.

Which being in the Engliſh langugage, was not underſtood by any except an Engliſhman that was very very luckily preſent, and interpreted the writing to the pope, who by his apoſtolical letters diſcovered the murder to the Engliſh princes. Multitudes of people are ſaid to have been preſent at the taking up of the body of the infant king, and a contention ariſing between the inhabitants of Glouceſterſhire and Worceſterſhire which ſhould have his relicks, it was at laſt determined that he ſhould be buried at Winchcombe: And whilſt the corps was bringing into the town, accompanied by the clergy and laity, ſinging holy hymns, the wicked Quendred ſtood looking out at her window, and with a loud voice ſung the 109th pſalm, to diſturb the celebration of her brother's funeral: But when ſhe came to the 19th verſe, where are theſe words, Let it thus happen from the Lord unto my enemies, and unto thoſe who ſpeak evil againſt my ſoul, her eye balls inſtantly droped out of her head, and beſmeared the place with blood, which, it is ſaid, was to be ſeen many ages afterwards.

[b] Itin. V. 8. p. 94. [c] Ibid. V. 4. p. 71. [d] Matthew Weſtminſter, &c.

This is the ſtory of king Kenelm, who was canonized for a ſaint upon the account of theſe miracles, and his relicks brought infinite riches to the monaſtery. What reader will not abhor the cruel murder, and at the ſame time deteſt the lying tale of the miraculous diſcovery, invented by the monks, to raiſe a ſuperſtitious veneration for Kenelm, and ſo to excite many to viſit their abbey, and make offerings at his tomb!

In proceſs of time,[e] this monaſtery became a college of Seculars. It ſuffered ſeverely by the Daniſh ravages, and was in a very ruinous condition in the reign of king Edgar, when archbiſhop Oſwald rebuilt it, and reſtored it to great ſplendor. It was then conſecrated anew to the virgin Mary and St. Kenelm, whoſe ſtory the biſhop cultivated to the great enriching of the monaſtery.

In the fourth year of king William the Second, a vehement lightening ſhook the abbey, and the roof and ſteeple of the church, and threw down the crucifix and image of the virgin Mary.

This was a mitred and peeral abbey, and the firſt ſummons of the abbat of Winchcombe to parliament, which is now to be found on record, was in the year 1265, 49 H. 3. Dugd. Summons.

Catalogue of Abbats, taken from Mr. Willis's Hiſtory of Mitred Parliamentary Abbeys.

1. Germanus, prior of Ramſey, was made abbat by king Edgar upon the rebuilding of this abbey, anno 985. After he had governed ſeveral years, he retired to Ramſey, and was there buried. The next that I meet with is

2. Godwinus, whom I take to be the ſame that is called Eadwinus in the Decem Scriptores. He lived in the time of king Canutus, anno 1026, and dying anno 1054, as Florence of Worceſter has it, was ſucceeded by

3. Godricus, called Eadricus, for I take them to be the ſame in the Decem Scriptores, who anno 1066, oppoſing the Norman invaſion, the conqueror deprived him of his abbathip, and made him cloſe priſoner in Glouceſter caſtle, committing the charge of the monaſtery to the abbat of Eveſham, 'till ſuch time as he conſtituted

4. Galandus abbat in his ſtead. Whoſe ſucceſſor

5. Radulphus, dying anno 1095, this abbey was, after two years vacancy, conferred upon

6. Girmundus. He died anno 1122, 4 Id. Junii, and was ſucceeded by

7. Godefridus, prior of this church. He died anno 1137, and was ſucceeded by

8. Robert, in whoſe time this church was burnt. He governed 20 years, and dying anno 1157, was ſucceeded by

9. Gervaſe, who died anno 1172, and was ſucceeded by

10. Henry, prior of Glouceſter. He died anno 1184, (or as others anno 1181) and was ſucceeded by

11. Criſpin, prior of this place, who died the ſame year, and was ſucceeded anno 1185, by

12. Ralph; to whom ſucceeded anno 1193,

13. Robert. He ordained that on the morrow after All Souls, viz. on Nov. 3, an hundred people ſhould be relieved here with bread, meat, and drink. He redeemed the manors of Yanworth, Haſleton, Halling, &c. which were mortgaged for above 558*l.* to William, advocate of Bitton. He alſo laid out 570 marks and 12*s.* ſterling in diſafforeſting the manor of Twining. He alſo, at a great charge, made an aqueduct to bring ſpring water in lead pipes from Hanwell to his monaſtery. He died anno 1220, and was ſucceeded by

14. Thomas, prior of this place. He died 5 Non. Octob. 1232, and was ſucceeded the ſame year by

15. Henry de Tudinton, inſtalled abbat the 29th of the ſame month. He died anno 1248, and was ſucceeded the ſame year by

16. John de Yarmouth, or Ganeworth, as Wharton calls him; or as in the Monaſticon Yanworth. He obtained the manor of Dry Marſton, worth about 1130 marks, and many other good eſtates in tithes and farms were added to the church in his time. He died anno 1284, having reſigned two years before his death, on account of his age, to

17. Walter de Wickwane; who thereupon commenced abbat anno 1282, and held this dignity 'till the time of his death, which happened anno 1314. After his deceaſe

18. Tho. de Scirburn became abbat 4 Id. Junii, 1314; who dying the ſame year

19. Richard de Ydeburi, ſacriſt, ſucceeded. He bought the fee of the manor of Rowel for 550*l.* and purchaſed the farm of Cotes for ever, and the aſſart lands in Enneſton for 100 marks. He reſigned anno 1339, and had for his ſucceſſor, anno 1340,

20. Will. de Shirborn; whoſe ſucceſſor

21. Robert de Ippewell, confirmed abbat 24 Sept. 1352; reſigning anno 1359,

22. Walter de Winfortune, burſer or cellarer of Worceſter, was ſubſtituted in his ſtead. This abbat obtained the hundreds of Kiftſgate, Holford, and Greteſtan, for the abbey. He died June 22, anno 1395, and was ſucceeded the ſame year, viz. July 6 following, by

23. Will. Bradely. He died Dec. 28, anno 1422, and was ſucceeded January 15 following by

24. John Cheltenham; who dying anno 1452, was ſucceeded by

25. Will. Winchecombe, elected abbat Dec. 21, 1452. He was a conſiderable benefactor by removing the pariſh church out of the abbey. He died anno 1474, and was ſucceeded by

26. John Twinning; who received the benediction Aug. 22, the ſame year. He was a great promoter of learning, and dying anno 1488,

27. Richard Kederminſter was confirmed abbat July 10, 1488. He had been educated in Glouceſter college, afterwards called Glouceſter hall, and now Worceſter college in Oxford, where there was an appartment belonging to this abbey, called Winchcombe Lodging. He was a learned man, and by his wiſe government, and his encouragement of virtue and good letters, made the monaſtery flouriſh ſo much, that 'twas equal to a little univerſity. Anno 1500, he travelled to Rome, and became afterwards a celebrated preacher. In the year 1515, the privileges of the clergy being attack'd, he preached a remarkable ſermon on that account, ſhewing that 'twas againſt the law of God, who, by his prophet David ſays, Touch not my anointed, and do my prophets no harm. He wrote a very valuable hiſtory of the foundation of this monaſtery, and another of the lives of the abbats, beginning with Germanus, anno 7 of King Edgar, anno 988, and reaching down to his own time; which deſirable book was unhappily loſt in the fire of London, anno 1666. He died anno 1531, and was buried in the abbey church, in beautifying which, &c. he had expended a great deal, and in incloſing it with a ſtone wall ex quadrato Saxo towards the town. He was on his death ſucceeded by

28. Richard Ancelme, alias Mounſlow, the laſt abbat; who, with 24 others of his convent, ſubſcribed to the king's ſupremacy anno 1534. After which, with the reſt of his monks, ſurrendering his abbey into the hands of the king's viſitors, on Dec. 3, 1539, he obtained a penſion of 160*l. per ann.* which I find him poſſeſſed of anno 1553, tho' with an abatement of 40*l.* on account, as I perſume, of his having ſome preferment given him to quit his penſion in part. Anno 1554, I meet with the preſentation of one Richard Mounſlow to the rectory of Radwinter, near Colcheſter, co. Eſſex, which about 4 years afterwards became vacant by his reſignation, or rather death, as I conclude: Whether he were were the ſame with our abbat I cannot be certain; and all I have elſe to add is, that anno 1553, there was 14*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* remaining in charge in fees, and 46*l.* in annuities, out of the revenues of this late monaſtery, beſides the following penſions:

[e] Tanner's Notitia Monaſtica.

Richarde Mounſlowe, late abbott, 140*l.* and 40 lodes of firewod owt of Depewode yerelie, by th' aſſignement of the receiver for the tyme being, John Hancock, prior, ſexten and maſter of the chappell, 8*l.* Will. Craker, ſen. and chaunter, Will. Bloſſom, ſen. almener and pitenſſer, Will. Bradley, hoſteler, Richard Freeman, B.D. John Whalley, ſupprior and fermorer, Walter Cowper, ſub-chanter, Hugh Cowper, A.B. Richard Bidon, kechinner and ſubcellerer, George Foo, ſub ſexten, 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* each: Richard Parker, Will. Trentham, Will. Howard, terce prior, Richard Williams, Walter Turbot, chaplen, Richard Baniſter, keeper of the liberary, Chriſtopher Chawnfut, 6*l.* each.

Sum 250*l.*

Kenulph, king of Mercia, and his ſon and ſucceſſor, Kenelm, were buried in the abbey church; as were Henry Boteler, who covered the body of that church with lead, and ſeveral other perſons of the family of the Botelers of Sudley. Leland.

There is no deſcription of this abbey church extant, and it is thought that the whole was demoliſhed, very ſoon after the ſurrender, by lord Seymour, the firſt proprietor. Since which time the very ſcite of the buildings being levelled, and turned into plowed fields, it is only conjectured that they ſtood on the eaſt ſide of the preſent pariſh church.

See the charters relating to this abbey in the Appendix, N°. 34, 35, 36.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

The manor of Winchcombe was veſted in the abbey 'till the latter was diſſolved, and it was then granted, with the ſcite of the monaſtery, to ſir Thomas Seymour, 1 E. 6. upon whoſe attainder, it was granted to William Parr, marquis of Northampton, June 24, 5 E. 6. to be held in free ſoccage, as of the manor of Eaſt Greenwich, without quit-rent. The marquis was attainted 1 Mar. for taking up arms on behalf of the lady Jane Grey, whereby the manor reverted to the crown, which was in the poſſeſſion of it in the year 1608. It came afterwards into the poſſeſſion of the Chandos family, who ſold it to the Whitmores; and doctor Lloyd, chancellor of the dioceſe of Worceſter, was lord of it at the beginning of this century. He had two daughters coheireſſes, one married to John Soley, of Bewdley in the county of Worceſter; the other to John Cox, of Clent in the county of Stafford; who were ſeized of it in right of their wives. From them it paſſed, by purchaſe, to George Pitt, eſq; and lord Rivers is the preſent lord of the manor.

Gilbert de Laci, nephew to Hugh de Laci, temp. Steph. reg. granted to the knights templers three burgages in Winchelcumbe. Dugd. Bar. Roger de Wateville was ſeized of houſes in Winchcombe, and granted them to the maſter of the knights templers 15 E. 1. who were ſeized of them 2 E. 3. John Alderwine was ſeized of one meſſuage, and 2*s.* rent in Winchcombe 9 R. 2. Richard Buſhel was ſeized of five meſſuages, three yard-lands, two acres of arable, ſix acres and a half of meadow, and four acres of paſture, lying in Winchcombe, Coat, and Dry Marſton, for the uſe of the abbey, 15 R. 2. Richard Buſhel, for the abbey of Winchcombe, was ſeized of one meſſuage, two tofts, three acres of meadow, and of a paſture for eight cows in Winchcombe and Sherbourn, 18 & 20 R. 2. and of lands in Winchcombe 2 H. 4. Richard Chamberlain was alſo ſeized of divers tenements, and of a mill in Winchcombe, 3 H. 4. Thomas Bruges and Maud his wife levied a fine of lands in Winchcombe, Gret, and Greton, to the uſe of John Hanborough, and to the heirs of John and Maud, 36 H. 6. John Garine and Elizabeth his wife levied a fine of lands in Winchcombe, Gret, and Greton, to Thomas Bruges, and others, 2 E. 4.

A toft and lands in Winchcombe, lately belonging to the abbey, were granted to Richard Andrews and Nicholas Temple, in truſt, 35 H. 8. Other lands in Winchcombe, which belonged to the abbey, were granted to Richard Andrews and Thomas Hyſley, 36 H. 8.

The ſcite of the monaſtery of Winchcombe was granted to John lord Chandos 1 Mar. and he dying the ſame year, Edmond lord Chandos had livery, and died ſeized thereof Sept. 11, 14 Eliz. Eſch.

Dancer's meadow in this pariſh, formerly belonging to Hayles abbey, was granted to Henry Ruſſel and Charles Brockton, 2 Mar.

Two woods, called Depwood and Hemlyehoo, in this pariſh, which belonged to the abbey, were granted to Edmond lord Chandos 1 Eliz. and other lands in the pariſh, which likewiſe belonged to the ſame houſe, were granted to Robert earl of Leiceſter, and to John Morley, 24 Eliz.

Tithes in Winchcombe, late the abbey's, were granted to ſir Chriſtopher Hatton, 24 Eliz. and other tithes there, which belonged to the abbey, were granted to ſir John Forteſcue, and Richard Tomlins, 4 Jac. 1.

Two mills in this pariſh, which had been granted to William marquis of Northampton, were, upon his attainder, granted to Edward Ferrers and Francis Philips, 7 Jac. 1.

TITHINGS and HAMLETS.

1. Sudley Tenements. This eſtate belongs to George lord Rivers. It has, for many centuries, had the ſame proprietors with the manor of Sudley, under which there is a particular account of them.

2. Cotes. This hamlet joins to the borough. The abbey of Winchcombe purchaſed a charter of free warren in Cotes 35 H. 3. John Cole, and others, granted one meſſuage, and one yard-land in Cotes near Winchcombe, to the abbey there, 34 E. 1. Richard de Ydebury, who ſucceeded to the abbacy about the 7 E. 2. purchaſed for the abbey the farm of Cotes for ever, and the aſſart lands in Enneſton, for one hundred marks. Walwyn Graves, eſq; is the preſent lord of the manor, and holds a court leet, called Greteſtancourt, to which ſeveral adjoining pariſhes owe ſuit.

3. Poſtlip.

3. Poſtlip. This hamlet is taken notice of in Domeſday, where it is thus recorded:

'Ansfrid de Cormeliis holds Poteſlepe in Grete-'ſtan hundred. Godric held it. There are three 'hides taxed. There are two plow-tillages in 'demean, and three villeins, and five bordars, 'with two plow-tillages. There are eleven ſervi, 'and two mills of 15 ſol. A wood one mile long, 'and one broad. It was worth 100 ſol. now 4 lib.' Domeſday, p. 78.

William de Poſtelip was ſeized of one yard land in Poſtlip, and was convicted of felony 27 E. 1. William de Cheſterton, and others, were ſeized of the manor of Poſtelip, in truſt for the abbey of Tewkeſbury 7 R. 2. Tithes in Poſtelip, which belonged to the abbey of Winchcombe, were granted to ſir Thomas Seymour 1 E. 6. and by his attainder reverted to the crown, and were granted to ſir Chriſtopher Hatton 24 Eliz. Poſtlip is now the eſtate of the earl of Coventry, and has been in his family for many years. His lordſhip has a large houſe here, ſituated on the ſide of an eminence, with a chapel, now converted to prophane uſes. The houſe is occupied by Mr. William Durham, who is one of the moſt conſiderable paper-makers in the kingdom.

4. Cockbury. The name of this place is probably from Coch, which ſignifies red in the Britiſh language. John earl of Shrewſbury was ſeized of a tenement called Cockburns near Winchcombe 38 & 39 H. 6. One part of this hamlet belongs to the earl of Coventry, the other to William Rogers, of Dowdeſwell, eſq.

5. Langley. This hamlet lies upwards of two miles from the church, and is only one farm houſe. Maurice Sheppard died ſeized of this manor 20 Eliz. and left an only daughter married to Richard Houghton, who, in right of his wife, had livery granted to him the ſame year. It belonged to Richard Freeman, eſq; at the beginning of this century, and Thomas-Edwards Freeman, of Batsford in this county, eſq; is the preſent lord of the manor.

6. Greet. This hamlet lies about a mile from the church. It contains about ſixty houſes, and had formerly a chapel, now converted into a dwelling-houſe. The maſter of the knights templers had a grant of a court leet, with waifs and felons goods, in Greet and Greton from king Henry the Third, which grant was allowed in the proceedings on a writ of Quo warranto 15 E. 1. John de Sudley held two meſſuages, two yard lands and a half, and two acres of meadow, in Greet and Greeton, in truſt for William de Wotton, 17 E. 2. John de Sudley was ſeized of Greet 27 & 41 E. 3. William de Wotton was ſeized of Greet and Greeton 48 E. 3. Lands in theſe places were granted to Thomas lord Seimour, and upon his attainder they were again granted to William marquis of Northampton 5 E. 6. Other lands in Greet, which belonged to the chantry of St. Mary in Winchcombe, were granted to Anthony Cope 10 Jac. Mrs. Freeman, and Mr. William Carnal, are proprietors of good eſtates here.

7. Gretton. There is a chapel of eaſe in this hamlet, with divine ſervice once a month. John de Beſmamicele and Alice his wife granted three meſſuages, and ſeventy-ſix acres of land in Greeton and Aldrington to the abbey of Tewkeſbury 35 E. 1. The knights templers held lands in Greeton 2 E. 3. and the hamlets of Greet and Greeton were held of William de Clinton, earl of Huntingdon, 28 E. 3. John Wotton was ſeized of eighteen acres of land, called Swinſbrook land, lying in Greeton, 2 R. 2. It appears by the regiſter book of the abbey of Tewkeſbury, that in the time of Simon biſhop of Worceſter, there aroſe a diſpute between the abbies of Tewkeſbury and Winchcombe concerning the tithes of a hide of land which Roger de Dicleſdon held in Gretton of the fee of the earl of Glouceſter, which was thus ſettled; that the chapel of the vill of Gretton, and half the tithes of the aforeſaid hide, ſhould remain to the church of Winchcombe, and that the other half of the tithes ſhould be enjoy'd by the abbey of Tewkeſbury. Tithes in Gretton, which belonged to the laſt-mentioned abbey, were granted to Edward earl of Lincoln, and to Chriſtopher Goufe, 22 Eliz. Other tithes in Gretton, which belonged to Winchcombe abbey, were granted to ſir Chriſtopher Hatton 22 Eliz. Lord viſcount Tracy is lord of this manor.

8. Frantone.

9. Naunton. Sir Robert Atkyns, by miſtake, has miſapplied the particulars of this manor to the pariſh of Naunton upon the hills. The following is tranſlated from Domeſday:

'The church of Wincelcumbe holds Niwetone 'in Greteſtanes hundred, and two knights hold 'it of the abbat. There are three hides and a 'half. In demean are three plow-tillages, and 'three ſervi, and two villeins, with one plow-'tillage, and there may yet be ſix more. It is 'worth and was worth 40 ſol.' Domeſday, p. 71.

This manor continued in the abbey of Winchcombe 'till that houſe was diſſolved. It was then granted to Thomas Culpeper 33 H. 8. and Alexander Culpeper had livery of it 1 Eliz. A leaſe of lands in Naunton, lately belonging to Winchcombe abbey, was granted to Henry Tracy 36 H. 8. Henry Tracy and Elizabeth his wife had a grant of lands here 7 E. 6. The tithes in Naunton, formerly belonging to the abbey of Winchcombe, were granted to ſir Thomas Seymour 1 E. 6. This manor is in the Tracy family.

10. Corndean. This is the eſtate of Mr. Blizard.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is in the deanery of Winchcombe, to which it gives name. It is worth from the impro-impropriation about 16*l.* a year. Lord viſcount Tracy is patron, and the reverend Mr. Roberts is the preſent incumbent of this curacy, and of the chapel of Gretton. Daniel Tanturier, eſq; barriſter at law, gave 200*l.* towards augmenting the living, and Dr. Benſon, late biſhop of Glouceſter, procured the further augmentation from the governors of queen Anne's bounty, with a moiety of 500*l.* left by Mr. Becker, and veſted in ſouth ſea annuities.

The impropriation is divided amongſt many proprietors, and is worth about 400*l.* a year, and pays 12*l.* 9*s.* 7½*d.* to the crown. The impropriation and advowſon formerly belonged to the abbey. Lord Tracy has the vicarage and ſmall tithes. The chantry lands which belonged to the ſame monaſtery are tithe free.

There was a church very antiently in the eaſt part of the town, dedicated to St. Nicholas, which falling to decay, the pariſhioners aſſembled to hear divine ſervice in the body of the abbey church, 'till the reign of king Henry the Sixth; when the then abbat, William Winchcombe, by the conſent of the town, began a pariſh church at the weſt end of the abbey, where a little chapel of St. Pancras ſtood. The abbat finiſhed the eaſt part, and the pariſhioners began the body, towards which they had collected 200*l.* but that not being ſufficient, Ralph Boteler, lord Sudley, finiſhed the work, after which it was dedicated to St. Peter; and that is the preſent pariſh church. It is a large handſome building, with an aile on each ſide, and a tower at the weſt end; and both church and tower are embattled and adorned with pinnacles. There were figures in the ſouth aile of the choir, deſigned for Thomas Boteler, lord Sudley, and his four ſons, John, William, Thomas, and Ralph; and for Elizabeth, wife of Ralph lord Sudley; but they have been long ſince deſtroy'd.

By a decree in chancery 10 C. 1. the impropriators are obliged to pay towards the repair of the chancel.

There were ſeveral chantries and chapels in this church. The chapel of St. Nicholas belonged to the Botelers of Sudley, and was their burying place. There was another dedicated to the virgin Mary, and was curiouſly ornamented. The bailiff and pariſhioners preſented to a rich chantry in this church, in the year 1503.

Firſt fruits	£. 3	4	0	Synodals	£. 0	2	0
Tenths —		6	4¾	Pentecoſt.	0	0	5
Procurations	0	6	4¼

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a ſtone mural monument on the north ſide of the chancel, with the figure of a man in armour, kneeling, with a book before him; and upon a ſmall tablet beneath is this memorial:

This is the Effigies of Thomas Williams, Eſq; of Cornden, the ſecond Son of S^r Dauid Williams, Baronet, of Gwernewett in Brecknockſhire, one of his Majeſties Iudges in Weſtminſter, who was buried here the 28^th day of May in the year 1636.

The monument is decorated with theſe arms, viz. Baron and femme, 1. Argent, a chevron between three fighting cocks gules, on a chief ſable three pheons heads argent. 2. Per pale and per chevron argent and ſable, three mullets counterchanged.

Near the above,

D. S.

Thomas Williams Filius hæres Dauidis Williams Arm. de Cornden, proſapiam a nobilibus et principibus viris longa ſerie deductam et illuſtrem legum et pietatis ſtudijs vlterius illuſtrauit; obijt Septem. VIIJ° Ano 1669.

On a blue ſtone in the chancel,

H. S. E.

Vir inſigniſſimus David Williams Arm^r. de Cornden; Tam ſuis quam Atavorum virtutibus vere Nobilis Et à ſeris Nepotibus piè celebrandis, Numeroſæ prolis pater chariſſimus, Famulorum clemens juſtuſq; Dominus, Nec Laboris plus quam par exigens, Neq; minus præmij rependens. Non ſibi ſuiſq; ſolum Quin et Alijs, Regi, Reip. Eccleſiæ, Deo natus; Utriuſq; Juris qua Eccleſiaſtici qua Civilis cū peſſimis periculis ad Exitiū fere colluctantis propugnator et Vindex. Sic diù vixit vir bonus commune bonum, Honoribus æque ac Annis plenus. At! at! Extremæ tandem ſenectutis, Graviſſimo ſanè morbo depreſſus, Summaq; ſpe fretus Reſurrectionis beatæ, Lubens ac Lœtus occubuit, Importunum relinquens ſui Deſiderium, Grande pietatis & virtutum omnium Exemplar. Jan. XVIIJ° An° Dni 1698. Ætat. ſuæ 85. Hinc diſce vivere Viator, Hinc diſce Mori.

Near the above, are memorials for Carew Williams (ſon of David Williams, eſq; of Cornden) and Mary his relict, the former died in 1722, the latter in 1730; — for Heſter the wife of Thomas Williams, who died in 1674; — and for Elizabeth Williams, gent. who was buried in 1713.

Upon a marble table againſt the eaſt wall of the ſouth aile,

Intra Sacros Hoſce parietes juxta reconduntur exuviæ THOMÆ HAWES viri deſideratiſſimi: Filij Natu ſecundi Rev^edi SAMUELIS HAWES, A. M. & Eccleſiæ Budbrook juxta Warwicū Vicarij: Qui vocatus in Familiam THOMÆ COMITIS Coventriæ Prænobili Domino a Cenſibus, Ejuſq; poſt mortem, Comitiſſæ Dotariæ indefeſſâ Diligentiâ, illibatâ juſtitiâ & eodem in Cæteris vitæ tenore pariter Inſervijt.

Hoc inſuper Diſce Lector ac imitare. Inter varias & vitæ et officij curas Deum jugi & eximia pietate coluit et omnes Morum Elegantiâ demeruit. Obijt Jan. 9, 1700 Ætat. 29.

The arms upon this monument are, Azure, a feſs undy between three lions paſſant Or.

Upon a flat ſtone,

Hic jacet Elizabetha Uxor Iohannis Thorne ſen^r quæ decimo octavo die Aprilis obijt 1679.

Hic quoque jacet Edmundus Thorne A. M. Socius Coll. Oriel Oxon. ſepultus decimo Octavo die Decemb. 1711.

Sub eodem lapide conditur Em. Rainsford Relict Edmundi Rainsford A. M. Obijt viceſimo die Maij Anno Xti 1741.

Upon another ſtone,

Hic jacet Edmundus Rainsford Paſtor hujus Ovilis in expectatione ſupremi illius diei et qualis ille fuit iſte dies indicabit. Obijt XXVIIII die Menſis Maij MDCCXXVI.

Upon another,

Hic jacet Henricus Thorne, hujus Eccleſiæ Miniſter fuit 44^s An^s Obijt 29° die Aprilis Anno Dom. MDCCXVIII.

D. S.

IACET, HEV IACET THOMAS MARKLEIVS, VIR VERE BONVS, ERVDITE PIVS, ECCLESIÆ ANGLICANÆ LVCERNA RESPLENDENS, ALLIS LVMEN ET VITAM LARGIENDO PROPRIAM ABSVMSIT: Denatus Maij XVI, Ano Chriſti Nati MDCLXXI.

Alſo here lyeth the body of Cicely Markley Gen. Relict of Thomas Markley Gen. ſomtime Miniſter of this place. She departed this Life the 29 of July 1706, Aged 75.

Upon another flat ſtone,

Hic jacet Gulielmus Harvey Rector de Burlington, qui mortem oppetijt triceſimo die Martij Anno Domini 1686.

And near it, engraven on braſs,

Hic jacet Elizabetha vxor amiciſſima Gulielmi Haruey cleri, triduo labore defeſſa obſtetricantis manus vix et ne vix quidem auxilio tertiam enixa ſobolem Modeſtiæ ceterarumq; virtutum encomijs alicubi ſatis elaudatam æq; piam ac quietam (anno Ætatis plus minus triceſſimo ſexto) intermiſit animam Maij quart. Anno Chriſtianæ Redemtionis MDCLXXXV.

Benefactions.

There are three free ſchools in Winchcombe; the firſt is a grammar ſchool, founded by queen Elizabeth, and endowed with 10*l.* a year, for teaching eight or ten boys. The ſecond is another grammar ſchool, founded 13 Jac. by lady Frances Chandos, with a ſchool-houſe in St. Nicholas ſtreet for the maſter; and ſhe endowed her ſchool with certain lands formerly belonging to the ſexton's office in the monaſtery, for the maintenance of a maſter, and the education of fourteen boys, born in Winchcombe. The maſter receives 20*l.* a year out of the profits, and the remainder is applied towards repairing the houſe. The other ſchool was founded by George Townſend, of Lincoln's-inn in the county of Middleſex, eſq; who, by his will, in 1683, gave lands in Wormington in the county of Glouceſter, in truſt for ſecuring the payment of 4*l.* yearly to each of the towns of Winchcombe, Northleach, Campden, and Cheltenham, for teaching poor children to read. Alſo 3*s.* to be diſpoſed of weekly in the church of Winchcombe to ſuch poor as ſhall be uſual frequenters of the church; and 12*d.* weekly in bread to the poor of each of the towns of Northleach, Campden, and Nether Guiting; and 5*l.* yearly to each of the towns of Winchcombe, Northleach, Campden, Cheltenham, and Nether Guiting, for apprenticing one boy yearly out of each of the ſaid places.

In 1685, George Harvey gave two acres of land, the profits to be given to the poor of this pariſh for ever.

In 1692, lady Juliana Tracy gave ſixteen ridges of land, the profits of which, amounting to upwards of 4*l.* a year, to be laid out in garments for the poor at Chriſtmas.

William Thorndale gave 22*l.* to the uſe of the poor. Atkyns.

In 1715, Mr. Thomas Compere, of London, gave the intereſt of 150*l.* to be diſtributed to the poor.

In 1743, John Harvey gave the intereſt of 10*l.* to the uſe of poor widows.

In 1752, Anne Blaby gave 50*l.* to be laid out in land, and the rent to be given annually to poor families not receiving alms.

The lady Dorothy Chandos, wife of Edmund lord Chandos, and daughter and coheir of Edmund lord Bray, built an almſhouſe in this place for twelve poor women, but it has no endowment.

Winchcombe.

		£.
Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	24	15	8
	Poll-tax —— 1694, —	26	19	0
	Land-tax —— 1694, —	55	8	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	32	11	0

Gretton.

		£.
Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	86	4	0
	Poll-tax — — 1694, —	6	13	0
	Land-tax —— 1694, -	74	8	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	52	9	0

Greet.

		£.
Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	60	2	0
	Poll-tax — — 1694, —	7	3	0
	Land-tax —— 1694, —	60	13	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	41	17	0

Poſtlip.

		£.
Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	71	11	0
	Poll-tax — 1694, —	3	18	0
	Land-tax — 1694, —	52	16	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	37	2	3½

Coat.

		£.
Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	18	0	4
	Poll-tax —— 1694, —	2	11	0
	Land-tax — 1694, —	32	16	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	21	19	6

At the beginning of this century, there were 564 houſes, and 2715 inhabitants in this pariſh, of whom 56 were freeholders; yearly births 53, burials 48. Atkyns. But examining the regiſter, it appears that in ten years, beginning with 1700, there were 526 baptiſms, and 435 burials; and in the ſame number of years, beginning with 1760, the baptiſms were 562, and the burials 401. And there are now about 1960 ſouls in the whole pariſh, by which it ſhould ſeem that there is a conſiderable miſtake in the number of inhabitants given by ſir Robert Atkyns.

****

WINRUSH

LIES in the hundred of Slaughter, about nine miles diſtant ſouthward from Stow-on-the-Wold; four weſtward from Burford in Oxfordſhire, and twenty-four eaſt from Glouceſter.

It enjoys a healthy air, and conſiſts chiefly of corn fields. The lands decline on the north ſide to the banks of a pretty river of the ſame name, which bounds the pariſh, and produces trout and cray fiſh; and after viſiting Burford and Witney in Oxfordſhire, empties itſelf into the Thames at a place called the New-bridge.

The name is written Wenric in Domeſday, of which the etymology is uncertain. Perhaps the place was ſo called from Wen, ſome antient proprietor of it, and ric, which in the Anglo-Saxon language denotes a dominion, province, or diſtrict, in which ſenſe it is underſtood in the word biſhoprick at this time. Sir Robert Atkyns's notion of its being derived from a battle heretofore won amongſt the ruſhes of this place, was formed from the modern orthography, and is too forced to be adopted. There are, however, antient intrenchments, and ſeveral tumuli, or barrows here, which ſhew it to have been a ſcene of military actions.

There is a curious ſpecies of foſſil, called the Siliquaſtra, or foſſil pods, found in the quarries here, and in the neighbouring pariſh of Sherbourn. They are ſuppoſed to be the bony palates of different different fishes, and resemble half the pod of the Lupine, or other leguminous plant, filled with stony matter. Some of them are extreamly minute, others near two inches long, and variously coloured, as brown, black, and bluish. There are also petrifications of the bivalvular kind, in these parishes, as of the Cardium, or cockle; and other shell fish; and the indefatigable doctor Woodward found the Asteria Columnaris, particularly at Sherbourn. It is of a cylindrical but pentangular form, generally about an inch long, and of the thickness of a goose-quill. These are all the particulars in natural history which I have been able to collect worthy the reader's notice. I come now to shew the descent

Of the Manor and other Estates.

There were several proprietors of estates in this place at the time of the general survey, for it is thus recorded in Domesday:

'Roger de Laci holds Wenric in Bernintone 'hundred, and Radulf holds it of him. There 'are two hides. Wluric held it in the time of 'king Edward. In demean is one plow-tillage, 'and three villeins, and two bordars, with one 'plow-tillage. There are five servi, and a mill 'of 5 sol. and ten acres of meadow. It was worth '100*s.* now 4 lib.

'The same Roger holds one hide and one yard-'land there, and Hugo holds it of him. Godric 'held it, and was one of king Edward's thanes. 'There is one plow-tillage in demean, and two 'bordars, and one servus, and a mill of 3 sol. and 'eight acres of meadow. It is worth and was 'worth 24 sol.' Domesday, p. 75.

'Elsi de Ferendone holds three hides and a half 'in Wenric of the abbey of Wincelcombe. Bolle 'held it and gave it to the abbey. He could dis-'pose of himself and his land as he pleased. 'There are five plow-tillages in demean, and nine 'villeins, and seven bordars, with one plow-'tillage, and ten servi, and a mill and a half of '12 solid. and 6 den. It is worth 8 lib. in the 'whole. Uluric held two hides of this land for 'a manor, and Tovi five yard-lands for a manor, 'and Lewin one yard-land for a manor.

'This manor, which Elsi holds unjustly of the 'abbey, lay in Salemonesberie hundred after Bolle 'was dead. Now it lies in that of Bernitone, 'according to the verdict of the men of the same 'hundred.' Ibid. p. 71.

'Elsi de Ferendone holds three hides and a half 'in Wenric in Bernintone hundred, of the king. 'Wluric and Tovi and Lewin held them for three 'manors, and could go where they would. There 'are five plow-tillages in demean, and one villein, 'and seven bordars, with one plow-tillage. There 'are ten servi, and a mill and a half of 12 solid. 'and 6 den. This estate was worth 3 lib. now '8 lib.' Ibid. p. 79.

'Chetel holds one hide and one yard-land in 'Wenric, in Gersdones hundred, and he held it 'in the time of king Edward. There is one 'plow-tillage, and four servi. It is worth and 'was worth 20 solid.' Ibid.

Pope Alexander the Third confirmed to the abbey of Winchcombe all their land in Wenric, 21 H. 2.

John Delamere was seized of Wenrech 8 E. 1. The sheriff returned into the king's exchequer that Wenrich was held by the abbey of Wynchelcombe, William Pynchpole, and Robert de Marys, 9 E. 1. the two latter having taken their names from the hamlets of Pinchpole and Maris in this parish. Benjamin Bereford held Wyke and Wenrich, by one knight's fee, of Robert de Mortimer, earl of March, 22 E. 2. and the manors continued for a long time in the same family, for another Benjamin de Bereford and Philippa his wife were seized of the manor of Winrish and Wike 3 H. 6.

This manor was in the crown in the year 1608. It was afterwards the property of sir Ralph Dutton towards the end of that century, and continuing in the same family, it descended like Sherbourn, to James Dutton, esq; who is the present lord of the manor of Winrush.

Of the other estates the records shew, that Henry de Norton levied a fine of lands in Wenric to Richard Wale 54 H. 3. And Christopher Allen and Ethelreda his wife levied a fine of lands in the same place to Thomas Dutton 6 E. 6.

HAMLETS. 1. Maris. 2. Pinchpool. 3. Lan Maris.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the deanery of Stow, worth about 40*l.* a year. James Dutton, esq; is patron, and Mr. Twining is the present incumbent.

The vicarages of Sherbourn and Winrush were consolidated into one presentment in the year 1776.

Seventy-four acres of land belonged to the glebe; but as the parish is incloing, the vicarage will be improved, and it is proposed to lay other lands to the glebe in lieu of those which belonged to the vicarage of Sherbourn, and to build a new house for the vicar in this parish.

The prior of Lanthony was seized of the impropriation 13 H. 4. The rectory, church, and tithes of Winrush, formerly belonging to the priory of Lanthony, were granted to Francis Philips and Richard Moor, 6 Jac. 1. The impropriation belongs to the lord of the manor, and pays 4*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* yearly to the crown.

The church is dedicated to St. Peter. It has a small aile and a chapel on the south side, and a tower at the west end. The chapel is dedicated to St. Mary. It is called Hungerford's chapel, because it was repaired by the family of that name, several of whom lie buried in it.

It is mentioned in Stow's Chronicle, that sir John, the vicar of this place, was ordered penance for keeping keeping a concubine, to walk three times round the croſs at Burford, with a faggot at his back.

Firſt fruits £.	4	18	5	Synodals £.	0	1	0
Tenths —	0	10	0	Pentecoſt.	0	0	10
Procurations	0	6	8

Benefactions.

An eſtate worth 3*l.* 10*s.* a year is given towards the repair of the church; and half a yardland, and three tenements, are likewiſe given to the ſame uſe.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in	1692, £.	63	19	4
Poll-tax ——	1694, —	18	6	0
Land-tax ——	1694, —	37	5	10
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	23	18	3

There were 36 houſes, and about 140 inhabitants, whereof 8 were freeholders, at the beginning of this century; yearly births 4, and burials 3. Atkyns. Since which time population hath increaſed here, and the inhabitants are now about 190.

WINSTON

IS a ſmall pariſh, in the hundred of Biſley, ſix miles diſtant north-weſtward from Cirenceſter, nine ſouth from Cheltenham, and about twelve ſouth-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

It is bounded on the north-eaſt by that great Roman road, the Irminſtreet, ſo often mentioned in the courſe of this work. The greater part of it is arable land. It lies high, and much expoſed to the bleak north and eaſterly winds, which exceedingly retard vegetation in the ſpring, ſo that in general theſe fields produce but thin crops at harveſt.

It is written Wineſtane in Domeſday, which ſeems to be no other than Wine's Town, denoting whoſe property it was when it began to be cultivated, and had firſt a name given it. But as the ſignification of names is not always to be inveſtigated with certainty, ſo in the preſent caſe I may be miſtaken, eſpecially if ſir Robert Atkyns conjectures right, who derives its name from a battle having been fought and won in this place, and the barrows where each ſide buried, ſays he, are yet to be ſeen. There are, indeed, ſeveral tumps, which ſome have ſuppoſed to be tumuli, or burying-places, and the fields, from them, are called Jackbarrows. But there is no appearance of an encampment near them, nor have we the leaſt account in hiſtory of any engagement happening hereabout: But however that be, I am far from adopting the common notion, that Win, in the names of places, always denotes them to have been the ſcene of ſome military engagement, upon which ſir Robert ſeems to have framed his etymology.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

There is, in the pariſh of Bibury, a tithing of the name of Winſon, which lies in the hundred of Bradley, and ſir Robert Atkyns has miſapplied to this pariſh the Domeſday account belonging to that tithing. The following is a literal tranſlation from the record, relative to this manor:

'Ansfrid de Cormeliis holds Wineſtane in Biſe-'lege hundred. There are five hides. Uluuard 'held it. In demean are three plow-tillages, and 'ten villeins, and four bordars, and one franci-'gena, with eight plow-tillages. There are eight 'ſervi, and a mill of 20 den. It is worth and was 'worth 7 lib.' Domeſday, p. 78.

John le Brun was ſeized of this manor 50 H. 3. and John le Brun, ſon of John, was ſeized thereof 31 E. 1.

Hugh le Deſpencer, the elder, the great favourite of king Edward the Second, was by that king created earl of Wincheſter, and purchaſed a charter of free warren in Winſton and Miſerden 5 E. 2. Being afterwards attainted and executed at Hereford, in the 20th year of the ſame reign, the manor of Winſton was granted to Roger de Mortimer, earl of March, 2 E. 3. He alſo was attainted in parliament, and ſuffered at the common gallows, then called the Elms, near Smithfield; but his poſterity was reſtored in blood and honour, and the manor of Winſton continued long in the family of the Mortimers earls of March; but between the attainder of Roger earl of March, and the reſtoring his poſterity, ſeveral grants and aſſignments were made of this manor. Richard Bellers held it 3 E. 3. The manor and advowſon were granted to John de Aſpath in the 14th year, and Thomas de Burton held the manor in the 16th year of the ſame reign.

Edmund Mortimer, the laſt earl of March, died ſeized of Winſton 3 H. 6. whereby Anne his ſiſter became his heir. She was married to Richard of Coningſburgh, ſecond ſon, and afterwards heir to Edmund of Langley, duke of York, fifth ſon of king Edward the Third, and progenitor to the kings of England of the houſe of York, and ſo the manor of Winſton came to the crown.

Richard duke of York, ſon of Richard of Coningſburgh, by Anne his wife, levied a fine of this manor 14 H. 6. And he and Cicely his wife, the youngeſt daughter of Ralph earl of Weſtmoreland, joined in levying another fine of Winſton, in the 27th year of the ſame reign. The manor was granted to Cicely dutcheſs of York, for her life, 38 H. 6. and the grant was confirmed 1 E. 4. She outlived her huſband thirty-five years, and died 10 H. 7.

Winſton was intended to have been part of the dower of queen Catherine, had ſhe ſurvived king Henry the Eighth, but was afterwards granted to the Tames. Sir Edmund Tame died ſeized of it 26 H. 8. and Edmund Tame, his ſon, had livery the ſame year, and died 36 H. 8. leaving his three ſiſters coheireſſes. Margaret, one of the ſiſters, was was married to Humphry Stafford, and they had livery of Winſton 37 H. 8.

King Edward the Sixth, by letters patents, dated Feb. 12, in the Seventh year of his reign, granted the manor of Winſton to Anthony Kingſton; but it did not continue long in his family, for Anthony Hungerford, gent. was lord of it 41 Eliz. as was ſir Thomas Hungerford in the year 1608, whoſe arms, (as emblazoned under Down Amney) remain very perfect over the door of the old manor houſe. It was afterwards purchaſed by the Sandys family, and Samuel Sandys, eſq; is the preſent lord of the manor. His pedigree and arms are given under Miſerden.

But there was another manor, dependant on the greater; for the eſcheator's inquiſition found that Thomas Eſtcourt, gent. died 41 Eliz. ſeized of a manor called Le Eſtcourt, in Shipton Moigne, which he held of Thomas Hedges, gent. and of the manor of Wynſton, and of three meſſuages, three cottages, four gardens, 200 acres of land, ſeven of meadow, forty of paſture, of 12*d.* rent, and of 100 ſheep paſtures, and eleven beaſt paſtures in Wynſton, worth 5*l. per ann.* all which particulars he held of Anthony Hungerford, gent. as of his manor of Wynſton, by fealty, and by the rent of 7*s.* 7*d. per ann.* He left Thomas Eſtcourt, his ſon and heir, thirty years old.

Nicholas, ſon of Nicholas le Arch, was ſeized of ſixty acres of land, and of a rent of 40*s.* in Wineſton, 31 E. 1. Thomas Neole held fourteen meſſuages, and ſixteen yard-lands in Wineſtone, 2 E. 2. John de Acton and Sybill his wife were ſeized of ſixty acres of land, and 40*s.* rent in Wineſtone, 6 E. 2. and George Acton held one meſſuage, one hundred acres of land, and ten marks rent in the ſame place, in the 8th year of that reign. Sir John de Acton was ſeized of the ſame lands 17 E. 3. Richard Forſter levied a fine of a moiety of lands in Winſton to John Walſh, and others, 12 H. 7. Andrew Kettleby died 1 Jac. 1. without iſſue, ſeized of the manors of Over and Nether Siddington; of one meſſuage and two yard-lands in Daglingworth, worth 40*s. per ann.* which he held of Henry Pool, knight, in free ſoccage, as of his manor of Daglingworth; and of one meſſuage, and half a yard-land in Wynſton, worth 6*s.* 8*d. per ann.* which he held in free ſoccage, of Anthony Hungerford, eſq; as of his manor of Wynſton; and left all his lands in Glouceſterſhire and Wiltſhire to his wife Jane.

Eſcheat.

Sir Robert Atkyns takes notice that lands in Winſton belonged to the Auguſtine priory of Oſney in Oxfordſhire, and were granted to the chapter of Oxford 34 H. 8. And that other lands which had been granted to the biſhoprick of Oxford, were likewiſe granted to the chapter of that ſee, in the 38th year of the ſame reign; but this muſt be underſtood of Winſon in the pariſh of Bibury, and not of this pariſh, where the priory of Oſney had never any poſſeſſions.

HAMLET. Waſhbrook is a ſmall hamlet in this pariſh, of one houſe only.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Stonehouſe, worth about 90*l.* a year. Samuel Sandys, eſq; is patron, and the reverend Mr. Longdon is the preſent incumbent.

About forty-ſeven acres in the Park-field, and forty-four acres in the Foſs-field, beſide ſome ſmall incloſures, belong to the glebe.

The church is a ſmall building, dedicated to St. Bartholomew.

Firſt fruits	£. 7	10	0	Synodals £. 0	2	0
Tenths —	0	15	0	Pentecoſt. 0	0	7
Procurations	0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a white marble table in the ſouth wall of the chancel, with this inſcription:

VPON THE INGENIOVS AND IVDICIOVS
ARTIST, Mr. IOHN HAVILAND SONNE
TO THAT REVEREND PROFESSOR AND DISPENCER OF GODS WORD Mr. IOHN
HAVILAND, SOMETIMES INCVMBENT
HERE AT WINSTON.

Anag. { IOHN HAVYLANDE / HOLD AY IN HEAV'N } { OBIIT NOVEMB. 19 / Aº DNI. 1638.

NONE PRINTED MORE, AND ERRED LESSE IN PRINT,
NONE LED A LIFE THAT HAD LESSE ERRORS IN'T;
NONE HAD A STATE THAT DID MORE GOOD WITH IT,
NONE LESSE APPEARING, AND MORE FVLL OF WIT;
NONE LESSE AFFECTED TO FANTASTICK FASHION,
NONE MORE ADRES'T TO CHRISTIAN COMPASSION;
NONE BETTER KNOWNE TO TH' MYST'RY OF HIS ART,
NONE OF A STRONGER BRAINE OR CLEARER HEART.
WELL HAS HE FINISH'D THEN HIS PILGRIM RACE,
WHO EVER LIV'D IN FORM, AND DIDE IN CASE.
THIS CONSTANT IMPREZE THEN SHALL SEALE HIS GRAVE, EACH YEAR MY WORKS MVST NEW IMPRESSIONS HAVE.

EPITAPH.

A MATRICE GAVE ME LIFE, A MATRICE GAIN,
AND EARTH'S THE MATRICE THAT DOES ME CONTAIN.

Mrs. Joan Webb, wife of Francis Webb, rector of this church, died in 1645, and was buried in the chancel, with this epitaph:

Epitaphium merito ſuum.

Virgo nupta prius, poſtquam Matrona pudica
Uni juncta viro, dum tibi vita manet:
Tam caſtè vivens, Tu ſancta Exempla dediſti,
Fæmineum caſtum; ſic foret omne genus.
Poſt mortem, triplici, ſolaris, prole, maritum
Ut ſint virtutis Stemmata viva tuæ.

Upon a flat ſtone in the chancel is the following,

IN OBITUM FRANCISCI WEBB, IN ARTIBUS MAGISTRI
RECTORIS DE WYNSTON
EPITAPHIUM.
Obiit Junii 7º 1648.

VVltum quis ſtantem? certum quis poſcit amicum?
Ex animo ſanctum Paſtorem, et ad omnia doctum?
Biblia ſacra ſuis et vitâ et voce tenentem?
Belle novos contra Doctores bella gerentem?
Vicinis gratum poſcis? vis denique charum
Sanctis? FRANCISCUS ſanctus fuit omnia WEBBUS.

Benefaction.

Thomas Muggleton, of Miſerden, gave 15*s.* a year to the poor of this pariſh, which donation is now paid by the overſeers of the poor of Duntiſbourn Abbats.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	34	10	0
Poll-tax — 1694, —		3	3	0
Land-tax — 1694, —		21	13	2
The ſame, at 3 s. 1770, —		18	2	4½

When ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his account of this pariſh, there were 26 houſes, and about 100 inhabitants, whereof 5 were freeholders; yearly births 3, burials 2. The preſent number of families is 30, and of inhabitants exactly 160.

WINTERBOURN.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Langley and Swineſhead, ſix miles weſtward from Chipping Sodbury, thirty ſouthward from Glouceſter, and ſix northward from the city of Briſtol.

It is bounded on the ſouth by the river Froom, which divides it from Weſterleigh and Mangotſfield; and is ſaid to have received its name from a bourn, or ſmall river, running through it in the winter ſeaſon, as if there were no current of water in the ſummer. However ſpecious this may ſeem, it is inconſiſtent with the fact at preſent, for there is a conſtant ſtream in ſummer as well as winter, and the little bourn, which riſes at Stoke, produces good jack and eel.

The ſoil is a reddiſh loam, intermixt with ſand, and the pariſh is moſtly divided into pleaſant paſture grounds. A great road leads through it to Briſtol, which has occaſioned many of the houſes to be built on the ſides of it like a market town, for the convenience of buſineſs, and for the amuſement which the mind receives from the ſight of different objects paſſing to and fro; but the church ſtands half a mile diſtant from the ſtreet.

Edmund Probyn, of Newland in this county, eſq; has a good houſe here.

Nearer towards Briſtol, lies the hamlet of Frenchay, in this pariſh; a very pretty village, where many families of good faſhion have genteel houſes, with elegant gardens and plantations. The moſt diſtinguiſhed of them belong to Mr. Joſeph Beck, Mr. Perry, Mr. Mark Harford, Mr. Barnet, Mr. Read, Mr. Dean, Mr. Gordon, Mr. Ames, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Gwin, and perhaps other gentlemen, whoſe names I have not been favoured with.

Winterbourn furniſhes no antiquities, nor any thing curious in natural hiſtory. I muſt not, however, omit to mention a manufacture of felt hats carried on here, and in ſome of the neighbouring places, which furniſhes employment for many of the labouring people. And there are two annual fairs for pedlery goods, one held on the 29th of June, the other on the 18th of October.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

We learn from Domeſday, that Wapelie and Wintreborne, for ſo they are written in that record, were members of the manor of Betune, in Suinheve hundred, and together with the whole manor, were the antient demeans of the crown, and held by king William at the time of the general ſurvey.

Philip de Albeniaco died ſeized of this manor 17 Joh. as did Richard de Wales 9 H. 3. Ralph de Wallis alſo died ſeized of Winterbourn 30 H. 3. and left two daughters coheireſſes, who were married to Jeffery de Wrokſhall, and Ralph de Hadele, againſt whom a writ of Quo warranto was brought to ſhew by what right they held court leet, free warren, and other privileges in the manor of Winterbourn, and their claim was allowed 15 E. 1. Robert de Hadele, ſon of Ralph, died ſeized of one meſſuage, and one plow's-tillage in Winterbourn 17 E. 2.

Thomas lord Bradeſton, of Bradeſton in the pariſh of Berkeley, died ſeized of the manor of Winterbourn 34 E. 3. He had been ſummoned to parliament among the barons, having been active in depoſing of king Edward the Second. He founded a chantry at the altar of St. Michael in the church of Winterbourn, and gave ſix meſſuages, four acres of arable, twelve acres of meadow, twelve acres of wood, and a rent of 100*s.* out of Winterbourn, for the maintenance of the ſame. Robert Bradeſton, ſon of Thomas lord Bradeſton, died before his father, whereby Thomas lord Bradeſton, ſon of Robert, became heir to his grandfather, and died ſeized of this manor 48 E. 3. He left Elizabeth his only daughter and heir, married to Walter de la Pool, and ſhe had livery of Winterbourn, when ſhe came of age, 13 R. 2. Blanch Bradeſton, widow of Robert Bradeſton, died ſeized of Winterbourn, with fairs, markets, and free warren, 15 R. 2.

Notwithſtanding the deſcent to an heir female, the manor continued for a long time afterwards in the name of the Bradeſtons. Ela, the widow of the laſt Thomas lord Bradeſton, was endowed with this manor, and died ſeized thereof 11 H. 4. Thomas Bradeſton and Edith his wife were ſeized of this manor 16 H. 6. She ſurviving her huſband, had it in dower, and died ſeized of it in the 23d year of the ſame reign.

The Bradeſtones of Winterbourn bore for their arms, Argent, on a canton gules a roſe Or, barbed proper. This antient family went to decay about the time of queen Elizabeth, when James Buck, eſq; purchaſed this manor, and John Buck, eſq; was lord of it in the year 1608. It continued only four deſcents in that family, and then paſſed to the Browns. Hugh Brown, eſq; died ſeized of Winterbourn in the year 1691. John Jones, eſq; was lord of it when ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his account of it; and Mr. Whalley is the preſent lord of the manor of Winterbourn.

Thomas de Marlborough and Joan de Haddon levied a fine of lands in Winterbourn, and of the advowſon of the church, to the uſe of Henry de Haddon Haddon for his life; the remainder to William Fitzwarren and Amice his wife, in taille, 11 E. 3. Richard Forſter levied a fine of a moiety of lands in Winterborn and Hambrook, to John Walſh, and others, 12 H. 7.

HAMLETS. 1. Hambrook is a large hamlet in this pariſh, in which there is a chapel of eaſe. The following is extracted from Domeſday:

'The biſhop of St. Laud of Conſtance holds 'Hanbroc in Sineſhovedes hundred, and Oſulf 'holds it of him. Algar held it of king Edward, 'and could go where he pleaſed. The land is 'five plow-tillages. There are two hides. In 'demean are two plow-tillages, and two villeins, 'with two plow-tillages, and two ſervi, and ſix 'acres of meadow. It was worth 100 ſol. now '60 ſolid.' Domeſday, p. 70.

John Folliot of Briſtol and Lucy his wife levied a fine of lands in Hambrook, and acknowledged the right of Richard le Cook of Winterbourn and Juliana his wife, 43 E. 3. Sir Robert Aſhton was ſeized of one meſſuage, one plow-tillage, and of a yearly rent of 40*s.* in Hambrook, within the manor of Winterbourn, 7 R. 2. Thomas Moreton, eſq; died ſeized of the manor of Hambrook, and was ſucceeded by his ſon and heir ſir Robert Moreton, who alſo died ſeized thereof 6 H. 8. and left William his ſon, five years old, who died 14 H. 8.

2. Frenchay, but more rightly Froomſhaw, is a genteel hamlet, of which mention has been already made in the introductory part of this account. Richard Cook and Juliana his wife levied a fine of lands in Froomſhaw in this pariſh 20 R. 2.

3. Stourden was an antient manor in Winterbourn. William Hoeſe and Margaret his wife purchaſed lands in Stourdon of Ralph de Wellford, which had before been ſold to the ſaid Margaret, and to William Comyn, her former huſband, 5 H. 3. William Towkeram, or Tukeram, was ſeized of Stourdon 41 H. 3. and of lands in Hendon, and left two daughters coheireſſes. Cicely, (one of them) and Robert Mermion, her huſband, levied a fine of theſe eſtates to the uſe of Adam de Machine, and Amabell his wife, who was the other daughter, 51 H. 3. John de la Rivere died ſeized of the hamlet of Stourdon near Briſtol, 35 E. 3. and Richard de la Rivere held it in the 36th year of the ſame reign. Emme, the widow of John Merſton, and formerly the wife of Richard de la Rivere, was endowed of this manor, and died 41 E. 3. as did Thomas de la Rivere 48 E. 3. The abbey of Weſtminſter held lands in Stourdon 49 E. 3. Nicholas Stanſhaw died ſeized of Stourdon, and left it in dower to Margaret his wife, who died 14 H. 6. Sir Jarrit Smith, baronet, purchaſed this manor of the coheirs of the late ſir John Smyth, of Long Aſhton in the county of Somerſet, and is the preſent proprietor of it.

The family of de Stern, or Hicinſtern, one of whom, according to tradition, was a great robber in this country, were long poſſeſſors of a manor in this pariſh, and had a large houſe called Sterncourt, which is ruined, but ſtill preſerves its name, and belongs to ſir Jarrit Smith.

The mayor and corporation of Briſtol were ſeized of another manor in this pariſh, for the uſe of Gaunt's hoſpital in Briſtol.

There is a diſtinct conſtable for Winterbourn, and one tithingman for Hambrook, Frenchay, and Stourdon.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Briſtol, worth about 400*l.* a year, of which St. John's college in Oxford are patrons.

Robert Gernoun gave the advowſon of the church of Winterbourn to the abbey of Glouceſter, in the year 1112, and Helias Boy Giffard confirmed the ſame in 1160. But that was probably another Winterbourn, for in the grant it is called the chapel of St. Andrew in Winterbourn, whereas this church is dedicated to St. Michael. John Giffard of Brimpsfield was ſeized of the advowſon of Winterbourn 1 E. 3. and John Calew, heir of the Giffards, levied a fine of it, and acknowledged the right of John lord Maltravers 4 E. 3. The advowſon was granted to Thomas de Bradeſton 11 E. 3. who founded a chantry in the church, of which John Raſtale was the laſt incumbent, and in the year 1553, received a penſion of 3*l.* 13*s.* 4*d. Willis.* The lands which belonged to the chantry were granted to John Baynham by king Edward the Sixth.

The church conſiſts of the body, and an aile on the north ſide, handſomely and uniformly pewed, with a gallery at the weſt end. It has a tower, with a ſteeple, and a handſome veſtry room on the ſouth ſide, and there is an oratory againſt the north wall of the church. In the weſt window are the Berkeleys arms, impaling, Azure, three couple cloſes braced Or, a chief of the ſecond. There is another ſcutcheon, with theſe arms, viz. Azure, two bars within a bordure argent.

Firſt fruits	£.	27	7	0	Synodals	£. 0	1	0
Tenths	—	2	14	8	Pentecoſtals	0	1	1½
Procurations	0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is the figure of a man in compleat armour, lying along, upon a tomb in the chancel, with his hands in a ſupplicating poſture. His head reſts upon a bear's head, couped and ducally gorged, and his feet upon a lion couchant. And cloſe by, upon another tomb, is the effigy of a lady lying along in a looſe robe, and her feet reſting on a dog, the emblem of fidelity. Theſe are ſuppoſed to repreſent ſome of the Bradſtone family; but the arms upon the man's ſhield are not diſcernable.

There is another figure lying along in armour, under an arch in the north wall of the church, the the head reſting upon a ram, the feet on a lion; ſuppoſed to be for Tukeram, the proprietor of Stourdon. And a figure of a woman lies in the belfry.

On the tablet of a monument againſt the wall, in gold letters:

M. S.
VIRI OPTIMI ET ORNATISSIMI
PATRIS SVI COLENDISSIMI
IACOBI BVCK, ARMIGERI,
QVI IN DOMINO
PLACIDE OBDORMIVIT
AN: DO: CIↃIↃCXII°
MARTII XIII°
ÆTATIS LXVI°
QVOD BRVTI STATVÆ SUBSCRIPSIT ROMA SEPULCHRO
INSCRIBAM PATRIO; VIVERAT, OPTO, PATER.
SED PATRIS PIETAS, PROCVL ISTO DISSITA MUNDO, HVNC RAPVIT PATREM, RESTITVITQVE DEO.
PIET. ERGO LVGENS
POSVIT
MATTHEVS BUCK, FILIUS ET HÆRES.

And on flat ſtones are theſe inſcriptions:

HERE LYETH THE BODY OF MATHEW BVCK ESQ^{r} WHO DECEASED THE 17th OF SEPT. A° DMI 1631.

Although the ſubject of theſe fatall Rymes
(This Mathew) liu'd in th' Cuſtome of the times
Reader, thou muſt (like him) beefore thou dieſt
Leave the worlds Cuſtome for to follow Chriſt.
And then his Cenſure ſhall ſhutt vp thy Storie,
Hee that did riſe to Grace ſhall riſe to Glorie.

Here lyeth the body of THOMAS BVCK ESQ^{r} LORD of this Mannor, who deceaſed the 14th day of Apr: Ano Dmi 1658. Ætat, 47.

Upon theſe ſtones are the family arms, viz. Per feſs nebule, argent and ſable, three bucks attires fixed to the ſcalps counterchanged.

On the table of a large monument,

In Memory of Amy the Wife of Thomas Symes Eſq^{r} of this pariſh, Daughter of Edward Bridges of Kaynſham in the County of Somerſet Eſq^{r} deſcended from the noble family of the Lord Chandois baron of Sudely Caſtle in the County of Glouceſter, who though her Extraction was Honourable, yet by her Exemplary life and maners became an honor to her family, and after 17 years ſpent in her minority, and 20 years in wedlock, in which intervall ſhe was mother of twelue ſons and fower daughters, changed this mortal ſtate for an immortall the 30th of Aprill 1662.

Hear alſo lyes the body of Thomas Symes of this pariſh Eſq^{r} ſon of John Symes of Pounsford in the County of Somerſet Eſq^{r} who ddced the 22 day of January 1669 aged 48 years.

Hear alſo lyes the Body of Benjamin ſon of Thomas Symes Eſq^{r} and Amy his wife who ddced Auguſt the 12th 1662, aged 6 months.

Hear alſo lyes the body of Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Symes Eſq^{r} and Amy his wife, who ddced the 18th of January aged 19 Years.

On a ſmall monument it is thus written:

M. S.
HVGONIS BROWNE Nuper de WINTERBOVRN Court Armigeri, qui obiit primo die Septembris Anno Domini Milleſimo Sexcenteſimo Nonageſimo primo, Ætatis ſuæ Quadrageſimo Septimo.
Hoc Amoris ſui Pignus Chariſſima Conjux Poſuit Monumentum.

Here alſo lyeth y^{e} Body of Ann Browne Wife of y^{e} above named Hugh Browne Eſq^{r} who Died y^{e} 19th of March 1725.

The arms upon this monument are, Baron and femme, 1. Argent, on a bend Or three eagles diſplay'd ſable. 2. Paly of ſix argent and ſable, over all three eagles diſplay'd counterchanged.

Upon a flat ſtone,

Here lyeth y^{e} Body of M^{rs} Sophia Williams, Daughter of M^{rs} Ann Browne by her firſt Huſband Charles Williams Eſq, Sometime Sheriffe of y^{e} City of Briſtol, who died y^{e} 11 of April 1730 aged 50 Years.

Benefactions.

In 1691, Hugh Brown, eſq; gave 5*s.* to be diſtributed weekly in bread to the poor for ever. And in 1720, William Bayly, eſq; a native of this place, and once ſheriff of Briſtol, gave the intereſt of 50*l.* to be given in bread to the poor annually on the 25th of March for ever. And in 1760, Mr. Gregory Buſh, of Briſtol, apothecary, gave the intereſt of 50*l.* for ever, to four poor houſekeepers of this pariſh.

Winterbourn.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	121	1 4
	Poll-tax —— 1694,	—	48	2 0
	Land-tax —— 1694,	—	125	4 0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	93	18 0

Hambrook.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	110	3 4
	Poll-tax —— 1694,	—	22	0 0
	Land-tax —— 1694,	—	123	6 0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	89	3 6

At the beginning of this century, there were 120 houſes, and about 500 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 26 were freeholders; yearly births 10, burials 10. Atkyns. The number of ſouls is now about 567.

WITCOMBE

IS a ſmall pariſh, in the hundred of Dudſton and King's Barton. It lies about eight miles diſtant north from Stroud, ſeven ſouth from Cheltenham, and ſix ſouth-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

The greater part of the pariſh conſiſts of a wide combe, or valley, with an opening northwards to the great vale country, but environed on the eaſt, ſouth, and ſouth-weſt quarters by that chain of hills which runs length-ways through the county. Hence ariſes a variety of ſoils and of produce. The lower parts and acclivities are chiefly paſture, and the higher hills moſtly woodlands.

It is ſometimes called Great Witcombe, to diſtinguiſh it from the tithing of Witcombe, in the pariſh of Badgworth. The reaſon and propriety of the name is obvious. Witcombe is a ſmall deviation from Widcombe, or Wide Combe, made ſo very naturally, and almoſt inevitably, by quick pronunciation, that it is wonderful it ſhould eſcape ſir Robert Atkyns's diſcernment: But it is ſtill more unaccountable that a gentleman of his experience and learning ſhould fall into the following inconſiſtence and abſurdity: Speaking of Rendcombe, It is ſo called, ſays he, from being encompaſſed with valleys, for Ring is Saxon for a Circle, and Comb for a Valley. Unmindful of this explanation, in the account of Winchcombe, he very gravely informs the reader, that Comb ſignifies a hill; and a little further on, gives the following etymology of Witcombe: It is called Witcomb Magna. The name, continues he, ſignifies a White Hill,

Hill, and it lies under Birdlip Hill, where the roads make it look white. This ſerves to confirm the truth of that obſervation, that men of genius ſometimes commit the greateſt miſtakes.

Part of this pariſh ſtretches over the hill to the ſouthward, and joins to Brimpsfield.

Howe Hicks, eſq; has a good houſe, which ſtands in the center of the valley, with a park, and a large eſtate here. The park lies upon a conſiderable acclivity on the ſouth ſide of the houſe, and at the foot of a ſteep hill covered with beech wood. From a viſta upon the hill, not a mile from the houſe, is a fine bird's eye view of the ſubjacent vale, and the river Severn. Part of the foreſt of Dean, and the conic mountain near Abergavenny in Monmouthſhire, are ſeen to the left: The blue hills of Malvern in Worceſterſhire, (with the Welch mountains at a great diſtance behind) preſent themſelves in front: And to the right is a view of the town of Tewkeſbury, and of the city of Worceſter, near thirty miles diſtant.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

It does not appear whoſe property this manor was, about the time of the Norman conqueſt, as there is no mention of it in Domeſday; but Edmond earl of Cornwall was ſeized of it 4 E. 1. probably for the uſe of the priory of St. Oſwald in Glouceſter. And the archbiſhop of York was ſeized of this manor for the uſe of the ſame priory, in conſequence of an agreement between the archbiſhop and that houſe, as more particularly related in the account of St. Oſwald's priory, p. 189.

Upon the diſſolution of monaſteries, this manor was granted to ſir Thomas Chamberlain 6 E. 6. and ſir John Chamberlain was lord of it in the year 1608.

From the Chamberlains it was purchaſed by the widow of ſir Michael Hicks, in which name and family it has continued ever ſince, and Howe Hicks, eſq;[f] is the preſent lord of the manor. His arms are, Gules, a feſs undy between three fleurs de lis Or.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Glouceſter, worth about 50*l.* a year. Howe Hicks, eſq; is patron, and Mr. Naſh is the preſent incumbent. The advowſon of the rectory belonged formerly to St. Auſtin's abbey in Briſtol, and it now pays 13*s.* 4*d.* a year to the dean and chapter of Briſtol cathedral.

Tithes in Witcombe, which formerly belonged to the priory of St. Oſwald in Glouceſter, were granted to John Hercey and John Edwards 20 Eliz.

The church is a ſmall building, dedicated to St. Mary, and has an aile on the north ſide.

Firſt fruits	£.	4	6	8	Synodals	£.	0 2 0
Tenths	—	0	8	8	Pentecoſt.		0 0 6
Procurations		0	3	4

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is the following inſcription on a marble monument in the chancel:

[f] This family has been very antiently ſeated in Glouceſterſhire. Sir Ellis Hicks was made a knight banneret in the reign of king Edward the Third, and had the three fleurs de lis given him for his arms on account of his bravery, and taking a pair of colours, when in the ſervice of the Black Prince.

John Hicks, of Tortworth in Glouceſterſhire, was deſcended from ſir Ellis Hicks, and died 2 H. 7.

Robert Hicks, ſon and heir of the ſaid John, was a citizen of London, and raiſed a very conſiderable eſtate by his buſineſs. He married Julian, daughter to Arthur Chapham, of the county of Somerſet, eſq; and had iſſue three ſons, Michael, Francis, and Baptiſt. Francis, the ſecond ſon, died young. Baptiſt taking to buſineſs, and by the intereſt of his elder brother, having great dealings with the court, for rich ſilks and other commodities imported from abroad, acquired a large fortune, and came afterwards to great honours. He was knighted by king James the Firſt, and was created a peer 4 Car. by the title of baron Hicks, of Ilmington in the county of Warwick, and viſcount Campden, of Campden in the county of Glouceſter; which honours are now enjoy'd by the preſent earl of Gainſborough, his lordſhip's anceſtor Edward lord Noel, who married Julian, eldeſt daughter and coheir of the ſaid Baptiſt lord Campden, having obtained a grant of them to himſelf and his heirs male, on failure of iſſue male of the ſaid Baptiſt lord viſcount Campden.

Michael Hicks, eldeſt ſon and heir of the ſaid Robert Hicks, was bred to learning at Trinity college in Cambridge, whence he removed to Lincoln's inn to ſtudy the law, and was afterwards ſecretary to lord treaſurer Burleigh. He was a wiſe and religious perſon, and his excellent parts endeared him exceedingly to ſir Robert Cecil, ſon to the lord treaſurer. He was knighted, and in the year 1604, purchaſed the caſtle and manor of Beverſtone, in the county of Glouceſter. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. Colſton, of Lowlayton in Eſſex, merchant, with whom he had Ruckholts; and dying in 1612, his widow purchaſed the manor and eſtate of Witcombe, in this county. He left by her two ſons, William and Michael, of whom the latter died unmarried.

William, the eldeſt ſon, was created a baronet in 1619, and diſtinguiſhed himſelf for his loyalty in the great civil wars. He married Margaret, daughter of William lord Paget, and died Oct. 22, 1680, in the 84th year of his age, leaving iſſue two ſons, William and Michael, both knighted in their infancy by king Charles the Second, at Ruckholt.

Sir William Hicks, the eldeſt ſon, was created a baronet, and ſerved the office of high ſheriff of the county of Eſſex. He married Marthagnes, daughter of ſir Henry Coningſby, knight, and dying in 1703, left iſſue by her two ſons, Henry and Charles, of whom the latter married the daughter of ——— Coningſby, eſq; and died in 1760, leaving one ſon, John-Baptiſt, who, upon the failure of the elder branch, is the preſent baronet.

Sir Henry Hicks, elder ſon and heir of ſir William Hicks, ſucceeded his father, and married, to his firſt wife, Margaret, daughter to ſir John Holmes, knight, by whom he had one ſon Henry, who died unmarried. He married to his ſecond wife Barbara, daughter of Mr. Johnſon, of the county of Eſſex, and dying in 1754, left iſſue by her two ſons, Robert and Michael. The latter died unmarried in 1764.

Sir Robert Hicks ſucceeded his father in title and eſtate, but died without iſſue in 1768, whereby the title of baronet devolved on ſir John-Baptiſt Hicks, beforementioned.

I now return to ſir Michael Hicks, ſecond ſon of ſir William Hicks, baronet. He was lord of the manor of Witcombe, and married Suſanna, daughter of ſir Richard Howe, and dying in 1710, left one ſon, Howe Hicks, eſq; who married Mary, daughter of Jeffry Watts, eſq; of the county of Eſſex, and died in 1728. He had iſſue one ſon, Howe Hicks, eſq; the preſent lord of the manor of Great Witcombe. He married Martha, daughter of the reverend Mr. Browne, and by her has two ſons, William and Michael, and one daughter, married to the reverend Mr. Pettat, rector of Stonehouſe in this county.

Near this Place lies interr'd the Body of S^r. MICHAEL HICKES K^t.
Younger Son of
S^r. WILLIAM HICKES Baronet, of Beverſtone Caſtle in this County, who departed this life May 4^th in the Year of our LORD 1710 and the 65^th of his Age.
Near whom is repoſited the body of MICHAEL HICKES his 3^d Son who dyed an Infant.

See Ag'd experience ſubmits to Death
And Infant Innocence reſigns its breath,
Happy y^e Soul whoſe firſt Eſſay of Praiſe
Is Joyn'd in Conſort with the Heavenly Layes, Much Happyer thoſe whoſe virtuous acts engage
A Weight of Glory for a Load of Age.

Near this Place lyeth Dame Suſanna Relict of ſir Michael Hicks K^t. and Daughter of Sir Richard Howe of the County of Surry K^t. ſhe died Novem^r 1724.
Here alſo lyeth Michael y^e Son of Howe Hicks Eſq^r & Mary his Wife he died 6 March 1721 aged 9 months.

At top of the monument is a ſcutcheon, with two coats, viz. Hicks, impaling Howe.

On the table of another monument,

Near this place reſteth what was Mortal of Howe Hicks Eſq^r Son of Sir Michael Hicks. He died Feb^y 12^th 1727-8 Aged 38.

Here alſo lies the remains of Mary Relict of Howe Hicks Eſq^r. & Daughter of Jeffry Watts, Eſq^r. of the County of Eſſex. She died Aug^st 6 1728 Aged 36.

Here alſo lieth Howe Hicks, Son of Howe Hicks Eſq^r. He died Jan^ry 7^th 1744 in the 5^th Year of his Age.

In Memory of Suſanna Elizabeth Hicks, Daughter of Howe Hicks Eſq^r & Martha his Wife. She died June 17^th 1747 Aged one Year & 23 Days.

Here alſo lieth Mary Hicks Daughter of Howe Hicks Eſq^r & Martha his Wife. She died July 30^th 1758 in the 15^th Year of her Age.

The arms on this monument are 1. Hicks, impaling, 2. Argent, two bars azure, in chief three pellets, for Watts.

On a flat ſtone in the chancel,

Here reſts the Body of Mary Hicks who departed this Life the 30^th Day of July 1758 in the 15^th year of her Age.

Tho' few her Years, She not untimely died,
Who richly was with heav'nly Gifts ſupplied:
Thus GOD decrees - When ripe for Heav'n - the ſoul
Quits her terreſtrial Houſe without controul.
Of Youth, Phyſician's Care, or Parents Love,
T' enjoy her bleſt Abode prepar'd Above.

Here lyes the Body of Michael Son of S^r Michael Hicks K^t. and Suſanna His Lady, Who in the Innocence of Childhood Departed this Life Jul. 11^i. MDCLXXXIX.

On another flat ſtone,

Here lieth Mary Williams Daughter of Howe Hicks Eſq^r & Mary his Wife. She Died Feb^ry 14^th 1755 Aged 35.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	50	8	0
Poll-tax —— 1694,	—	5	11	0
Land-tax —— 1694,	—	61	18	6
The ſame, at 3s. 1770,	—	46	8	3

There were 24 houſes, and about 90 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 4 were freeholders, about the beginning of this century; yearly births 2, and burials 2. Atkyns. The number of houſes at preſent is 24, and of inhabitants exactly 96.

WITHINGTON.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Bradley, ſix miles diſtant ſouth-eaſtward from Cheltenham, ſix weſt from Northleach, and fourteen eaſt from Glouceſter.

The river Coln runs through, and waters the lower part of it, where are ſome meadow and paſture lands; but generally the ſoil is ſtony, and beſt adapted to tillage. The ſides of the hills and acclivities on the ſouthward are covered with one continued wood for a conſiderable extent, and ſince the antient name of the place was Wudiandun, as it is written in in the old charters belonging to the ſee of Worceſter; and that the names of ſeveral of the hamlets, as Hilcot, Foſcot, Upcot, are compounded of Coed, the Britiſh word for wood; it is very probable that the pariſh was formerly almoſt over-run with it; but in the progreſs of population, agriculture was improved, and many of theſe lands were gradually cleared, and appropriated, as we now ſee them, to the produce of corn and paſture.

There was a nunnery at this place in the Saxon times, and it was moſt probably endowed with the manor. In thoſe ages the biſhops had the cuſtody of all monaſteries in their reſpective dioceſes, and Wilfrith[s] biſhop of Worceſter, in the eighth century, obtained a ſynodal decree that this monaſtery ſhould be annexed to his ſee, after the death of the abbeſs who then preſided over it. However, Mildred, the ſucceeding biſhop of Worceſter, in whoſe time it lapſed, made a freſh grant of it in the year 774, to the lady Æthelburga, who was abbeſs of a religious houſe at Worceſter, on condition that both this and her own monaſtery at Worceſter ſhould devolve to that ſee upon her death. This accounts for the biſhop of Worceſter's property here, and brings me next to treat

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

The following is tranſlated from Domeſday:

'The church of Wireceſtre holds Widindune in 'Wacreſcumbe hundred. There are thirty hides, 'of which three never paid tax. There are two 'plow-tillages in demean, and ſixteen villeins, 'and eight bordars, with ſeven plow-tillages. 'There are ſix ſervi, and ten acres of meadow; a 'wood one mile long, and half a mile broad. And 'in Contone is one plow-tillage, and two villeins, 'and two bordars, with one plow-tillage, and 'two ſervi, and a mill of 5 ſolid.' Domeſday, p. 70.

'There are in the ſame manor four radcheniſ-'ters having two hides, and three yard lands, and 'they have two plow-tillages; and a prieſt having 'half a hide, and one plow-tillage. In Glouuec. 'four burgeſſes pay ſeven-pence half-penny.

'Morinus holds of the biſhop three hides in 'Fuſcote, of the land of this manor; Anſchitil 'two hides in Coleſburne and Willecote; Robert 'four hides and a half in Dodeſuuelle and Pecle-'furde; Scheline five hides in Nategrave; Drogo 'ten hides in Eſtone. In theſe lands there are 'ſixteen plow-tillages in demean, and fifty-one 'villeins, and ſeven bordars, with twenty-eight 'plow-tillages. There are forty-one ſervi, and 'three mills of 13s. 4d. In Wicelcumbe one 'burgeſs

[s] Heming. Chart. p: 464, 465, 467.

'burgeſs pays 3 ſol. There is ſome meadow and 'wood in certain places, but not much. The 'whole manor was worth 38 lib. in the time of 'king Edward, now 33 lib. in all. Biſhop Ulſtan 'holds this manor.' Domeſday, p. 70.

John Muſgroſe was tenant under the biſhop of Worceſter 3 E. 1. A writ of Quo warranto was brought againſt the biſhop to ſet forth his right to court leet and free warren in Withington, and his claim was allowed 15 E. 1.

This manor continued in the biſhoprick of Worceſter 'till doctor Hooper ſurrendered that ſee to the king, in order that he might be collated to the two biſhopricks of Worceſter and Glouceſter, as they were intended to be united. But according to doctor Heylin, biſhop Hooper was never afterwards ſuffered to enjoy the temporalties, but only received ſome ſmall allowance for them; and Mr. Willis obſerves, that in the patent and grant of king Edward the Sixth, to John Hooper biſhop of Glouceſter and Worceſter, dated Dec. 10, 1552, the manors of Hartlebury, Fladbury, Ripple, Bredon, and Withington, are omitted, and thence infers, that they were reſerved by the crown, but afterwards reſtored by queen Mary.

The biſhop of Worceſter is the preſent lord of the manor, and holds a court leet, and has a good houſe near the church, now in leaſe to John Guiſe, of Highnam in this county, eſq.

HAMLETS. 1. Compton, or Conton, as it is written in Domeſday. It lies on the little river Coln, and is now generally called Caſſey Compton, from the family of the Caſſeys, who were owners of it for many generations, and have been of antient ſtanding here, and in other parts of the county. John Caſſey, eſq; died ſeized of Compton in the reign of king Henry the Seventh, and was ſucceeded by William Caſſey his ſon, who died ſeized thereof 1 H. 8. Leonard Caſſey, ſon of William, was five years old at his father's death, but dying without iſſue, William Caſſey, his brother, obtained livery of this manor 21 H. 8. and Robert Caſſey, eſq; another brother of Leonard, died ſeized of Compton 1 E. 6. Henry Caſſey, ſon of Robert, had livery 2 Mar. and died 38 Eliz. leaving Thomas his ſon then thirty-ſeven years old, who had livery of the manor the ſame year. This manor now belongs to lord Chedworth. The tithes of Caſſey Compton belonged to the priory of Bonhommes at Eddington in Wiltſhire, and were granted to the biſhop of Briſtol 34 H. 8.

2. Fuſcote, which is alſo mentioned in the preceding abſtract from Domeſday, and is now called Foſcote, and commonly written Foxcot. Hugh le Deſpencer was ſeized of Foxcote 4 & 5 E. 3. It was afterwards granted to Weſtbury college, near Briſtol, and upon the diſſolution of religious foundations, was again granted to Ralph Sadleir 35 H. 8. William Jonets and Iſabel his wife levied a fine of lands in Foxcot and Withington to William Vauce 7 E. 4. William Dalby and his wife alſo levied a fine of lands in Foxcote to William Derſet and Edmond Burſhell 11 H. 7. Mr. Edward Anſell has a good eſtate in this hamlet, which he enjoys in right of his wife, whoſe family name was Jordan.

3. Broadwell End.

4. Little Coleſbourn. It is not eaſy to diſtinguiſh the particulars in Domeſday concerning this hamlet from thoſe relating to the pariſh of Coleſbourn, adjoining. It appears from the foregoing extract from Domeſday, that Anſchitil held two hides in Coleſbourn and Willecote; and it is ſaid in another place, that 'Eluuin held one hide and 'a half in Coleſbourne, for a manor.' p. 78. Lands in this place formerly belonged to the Ciſtercian abbey of Bruern in Oxfordſhire, and at the diſſolution were granted to Edward Hermon 35 H. 8. Mr. Roberts has a good eſtate in this hamlet.

5. Owdeſwell. There was formerly a chapel here, but it is now diſuſed. This manor belonged to the priory of Black canons at Studley in Warwickſhire, and was granted to Richard Andrews, and Nicholas Temple, in truſt, 35 H. 8. and livery of it was granted to Francis Heydon 1 Eliz. It now belongs to Robert Lawrence, of Shurdington, eſq.

6. Hilcot is a reputed manor, and formerly belonged to the Caſſeys. It is now the property of lord Chedworth.

7. Roſſey, or Roſely. This place is ſeparated from the pariſh to which it belongs by that of Dowdeſwell. The extract from Domeſday which ſir Robert Atkyns applied to it belongs to Cowley, in Rapſgate hundred. Lands called Roſeley in Withington belonged to the abbey of Winchcombe, and were granted to John Dudley earl of Warwick, afterwards duke of Northumberland, 1 E. 6. This manor was held of Temple Guiting, and William Rogers died ſeized thereof 17 C. 1. leaving Daniel his ſon ſeven years old. William Rogers, of Dowdeſwell, eſq; one of the maſters in chancery, was proprietor of it at the beginning of this century; from whom it deſcended like Dowdeſwell, to William Rogers, eſq; who is the preſent lord of the manor.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is in the deanery of Winchcombe. It is a rectory and peculiar, worth about 500*l.* a year, having a great quantity of glebe land belonging to it. The biſhop of Worceſter is patron, and the reverend Mr. John Hayward is the preſent incumbent. This pariſh and that of Dowdeſwell are included in the peculiar. The churches are ſubject to the viſitation of the biſhop of Glouceſter, but exempted from that of the archdeacon, the rector of Withington exerciſing archidiaconal power, proving wills, and granting adminiſtration in both pariſhes.

The

The church is dedicated to St. Michael. It has a handſome tower in the middle, adorned with pinnacles and battlements, and furniſhed with ſix muſical bells. There is a ſmall croſs aile on the ſouth ſide, belonging to Compton eſtate, and is the burying place of lord Chedworth's family.

Firſt fruits £.	30	0	0	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths —	3	0	0	Pentecoſt.	0	1	6
Procurations	0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a handſome marble monument in the aile, with the following inſcription, in ſmall capitals :

Bridgett one of the Davghters of Tho: Rich of North Cerney in this Covnty of Glovc. Eſq; one of the Ma^rs. of the highe Covrte of Chavncery & Anne his wife one of the Davgh^rs & Coheires of Thomas Bovrchier of Barneſly in the ſaid County Eſq; the 23^th of Ivly 1620 was married to Iohn Howe of Little Compton in this pariſh Eſq; nephewe & Heire of S^r Richard Grobham of Greate Wiſhford in y^e Covnty of Wiltes, K^t. deceaſed; with whome ſhee lived a vertvovs and lovinge wife 21 yeares & a XI Moneths & had Iſſue 9 Children (Viz) firſt Richard Grobham Howe, borne y^e 28^th of Avgvſt 1621, who Married Lvcie one of the Davghters of S^r. Iohn S^t. Iohn of Lyddiard Tregoze in the ſaid Covnty of Wiltes K^t. & Barr^t. 2^ly Iohn Grobham Howe borne y^e 25^th of Ianvary 1624, who Married Annabella one of y^e Davghters & Coheires of Emanvell late Earle of Svnderland; 3^dly December y^e 4^th, 1626, Svſanna was borne, who married Iohn Ernle of Berry Towne in the ſaid Covnty of Wiltes Eſq^r.

4^ly the third day of March 1629, Thomas Grobham Howe was borne.

5^ly the 13^th day of Ivne 1630, William Howe was borne, ſlayne at Limbrick in the Kingdom of Ireland.

6^ly the 4^th of March 1632, Anna Howe was borne, who died very yovnge and lyeth heere buryed.

7^ly the 21^th day of December 1633, Elizabeth Howe was borne, nowe the wife of Thomas Cheſter of Aunſbury in this County Eſq^r.

8^ly the 22^th of October 1635, George Howe was borne, who died yovnge & lyeth bvried at Wiſhford in y^e Vavlt.

9^ly the 27^th of November 1637 Charles Howe was borne.

And on the 15^th day of Ivne 1642, Annoqvæ Ætatis Svæ 46; left them to the protection of the Almighty and her owne Mortality to this Earth, Expectinge a Ioyfvll Reſvrrection.

At top are the figures of a man and woman, and between them a ſcutcheon of their arms, Party per pale, 1. Or, a feſs between three wolves heads couped ſable, for Howe. 2. Per pale ſable and gules, a croſs botonny fitchy between three fleurs de lis Or, for Rich.

On a ſmall table in the chancel,

Si Hoēs tacverint, lapis hic clamabit vitam mortemq; Perinde imitandā Viri clariſſimi

Gvlielmi Oſbern
Qui; Antiquâ Proſapia ortus; Literis
Humaniorib^s imbutus, in Academiam Oxonienſem aſcitus, in Socium Om: An: creatus: S: Theologiæ
Doctoratu inſignitus; in Canonicum Reſidentiar'
Eccleſiæ Sariſburienſis aſcriptus; in Rectorem huius Eccleſiæ electus; Cuius Curâ fideliter Obeundâ, Senio tandem confectus; annos plus minus Octoaginta natus; denatus eſt j^o Aprilis
Anno Dni: 1646.

Arms at top, Quarterly azure and ermine, over all a croſs ingrailed Or.

On the table of a handſome monument it is thus written :

Memoriæ Sacrvm
Viri reuerendi Gilberti Oſberne S.S.T.B.
Præbendarij Eccleſiæ Cathædralis Glouceſt'
Necnon Rectoris de Withington.
Qui cum in temporibus plus-quam difficillimis
Egregium Charitatis Exemplar, grandeq;
Fidei ſpecimen edidiſſet, et in omnibus
Vitam aſpilon kai anepilepton egiſſet,
In Beatorum conſortiam ſubens ſeceſſit.
Anna (D^nl: Richardi Oſberne Baronetti de
Knockmon Hiberniæ filia, mœſtiſſima Relicta;
Amoris in defunctum Coniugem, et Mœſtitiæ pignus;
Hoc lachrymis humidum erexit Marmor.
Obijt Feb. 16 Ætat. ſuæ 56. Salut. 1656.
Eis eme oroon euſebees eſto.

On a ſmaller table below,

Diſce ab Hoc vno eſſe Mori beatum,
Vita cuius Mors erat, et ſupultus
Prædicat, viuens moriens vocetur
Jure ſacerdos.
Norma viuebat Pietatis, hoc ſtet
Marmor, vt poſſint homines futuri
Scire, verum hic peſſima ſæcla ferre Eccleſiaſten.

The ſcutcheon upon this monument is parted per pale, 1. Oſberne as before, impaling Oſberne.

N. B. This inſcription is exactly taken from the ſtone, and varies a little from that in p. 167, which was ſent me by a friend.

On a braſs plate againſt the wall,

Vita Christ. mori lvcrvm.
Vbi sistis iacet Sybilla vxo^r Rob: Knollis gen. art.q. mag. stirpe pat: ex generos: Oweno^rum monæ insulæ mat: ex antiq: nobiliss^aq. Barkleyor^um: Fam: orta cvivs pieta^em. prvd^am: cas: fidemq; conivgal^em: hoc æs poster: commendat imitandas. 1614. Sept: 25, mort^em: cv^m. vita commvtavit.
Lect: pio.
es q^d. erā q^d sv^m fveris tv scripta legendo sis memor ipse mei, sis memor ipse tvi.

On a flat ſtone in the chancel,

M. S.
ROBERTI FIELDING,
M. D. ET. COL. MED. LOND. SOC.
OB.
MAII XXII A. D. MDCCIX. ÆTAT: LXXXVII.
ARMA PORTABAT PATRIÆ SALUTI,
HUNC SALUS TRIVIT PATRIÆ TOGATUM,
ET PIIS ARMIS INIMICA FATA
ARTE PREMEBAT.
RES TAMEN FLUXÆ HAUD TENUERE TOTUM
NAM SUÆ MORBIS ANIMÆ VACAVIT, VITA CUM CEDAT MEDICUSQUE QUOD DAT
EUTHANASIAN.

There are two coats placed palewiſe upon this ſtone, viz. 1. Argent, on a feſs ſable three lozenges Or, for Fielding. 2. — a croſs raguly ———.

Benefactions, taken from a Table in the Church.

William Oſbern, D.D. rector of this pariſh, and John Rich, eſq; gave 100*l.* each for apprenticing out poor children; and both ſums have been ſecured by the purchaſe of land in the pariſh of Charlton King's.

John Gilman, formerly rector here, and Robert Fielding, M.D. and Charles Fielding, gent. of the Inner Temple, (who died Dec. 15, 1737) gave 20*l.* a piece to this pariſh for charitable uſes. And lady Howe, relict of ſir Richard Howe, gave a ſervice of gilt plate for the communion.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692, £.	188	6	8
Poll-tax —— 1694, —	32	18	8
Land-tax —— 1694, —	209	13	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —	116	12	3	3/4

When ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his account of this pariſh, there were 73 houſes, and about 320 inhabitants, whereof 18 were freeholders; yearly births 10, burials 9. Since that time population hath greatly increaſed, and there are now upwards of 500 inhabitants.

WOLSTONE.

WOLSTONE.

THIS is a ſmall pariſh, in the lower part of the hundred of Derhurſt, about four miles eaſt from Tewkeſbury, five weſt from Winchcombe, ſix north from Cheltenham, and eleven north-eaſt from Glouceſter.

The church and village are ſeated on the ſide of a hill, with a north-weſt proſpect over the vale. The ſituation is pleaſant and healthy, and the pariſh conſiſts of good paſture and arable land.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

This manor was part of the poſſeſſions of the church of St. Dyoniſius at Paris, at the time of the general ſurvey, and afterwards belonged to the priory of Derhurſt. Upon the diſſolution of that priory, it was granted to the abbey of Tewkeſbury 7 E. 4. and after the final diſſolution of monaſteries, it was granted to the Throckmortons.

Thomas Throckmorton had livery of the manor and advowſon of Wolſton 9 Eliz. and ſir William Throckmorton was lord of the manor in the year 1608. He ſold it to the lord keeper Coventry in the year 1630, and the earl of Coventry is the preſent lord of the manor of Wolſtone, for which he pays 36*s.* yearly to the crown.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Winchcombe, worth about 90*l.* a year, of which the earl of Coventry is patron. There is no glebe belonging to it. The priory of Derhurſt was ſeized of the advowſon of this church 56 H. 3. and the provoſt of Eaton college near Windſor has preſented to it.

The church is dedicated to St. Martin. It was new built in 1499, with an aile on the north ſide, and an embattled tower at the weſt end.

Firſt fruits	£.	13	6	3	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths	—	1	6	7½	Pentecoſt.	0	0	4
Procurations		0	6	8

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in	1692,	£.	95	1	0
Poll-tax —	1694,	—	6	3	0
Land-tax —	1694,	—	55	0	0
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770,	—	41	5	0

At the beginning of this century, there were 23 houſes, and about 90 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 12 were freeholders; yearly births 3, burials 2. Atkyns. The inhabitants are now upwards of 100.

****

WOODCHESTER.

THIS is a ſmall pariſh, in the hundred of Longtree, three miles diſtant weſt from Minchin-Hampton, three ſouth from Stroud, and thirteen ſouth from Glouceſter.

The principal part of the village lies on the ſide of a bold riſing ground, facing eaſtward, and ſeen from the great road on Rodborough-hill forms a pretty landſcape, with a little river in the fore-ground, gently gliding along through the valley. Higher in the view, are many good houſes and gardens, thickly ſcattered and diſtributed for about a mile in length; and above them, the proſpect cloſes with natural woods and plantations, nodding from the acclivities behind.

Lord Ducie has a ſeat in this pariſh, with an extenſive park, and very fine fiſhponds. It is his lordſhip's uſual country reſidence; but it cannot be ſeen at the ſame time with the village, as it ſtands two miles diſtant weſtward from it, in a very narrow valley, amongſt large and lofty beech-woods, and may be juſtly admired as a place of rural retirement.

Woodcheſter moſt probably obtained its name from thoſe woods, and from its having been a ſmall poſt or ſtation of the Romans, for wherever the Saxons found a Roman camp, it was uſual with them to terminate the name of ſuch place with ceaſtre; and as it is written Udeceſtre, in Domeſday, the place is ſuppoſed to have been one of the Roman Caſtra, or at leaſt an antient camp of one ſort or other. But there is good reaſon to attribute it to the Romans in particular, from a curious teſſellated pavement having been diſcovered here in the laſt century, about four or five feet below the ſurface of the ground, on the ſouth-weſt ſide within the church-yard. This could be no other than a Roman work. Part of it remains in pretty good preſervation, and lying at a proper depth, many coffins are placed upon it; but it has been frequently broken through at the requeſt of ſome families, who deſired to have their friends interred at a greater depth. It is of very large extent, decorated with birds and other figures, but not having been wholly uncovered, its dimenſions cannot be exactly aſcertained.

There was alſo another very intereſting diſcovery made in this pariſh in the year 1687. It was of a conſiderable quantity of the gold coin of king Edward the Fourth, which had been hid, as it is ſuppoſed, in the time of ſome public convulſion, or civil war.

Woodcheſter is famous for its fine broad cloth manufacture, carried on in a very extenſive manner by ſeveral maſter clothiers. And it is remarkable that the firſt Napping-mill in theſe parts was erected here by the late ſir Oneſiphorus Paul. It is a machine for raiſing the nap upon cloth in little knots, at regular but very ſmall diſtances, that give it a ſingularly pleaſing appearance. Near the ſame time, another was ſet up by one Mr. Freame, and ſome years afterwards a third, by Mr. Richard Hawker, both of this neighbourhood, which latter is ſtill employ'd, and yields great profit to the proprietors. I thought proper to make public mention of theſe machines, in honour of the inventors and improvers of an art, tending to extend the great and leading manufacture of the kingdom.

The wealth acquired in the clothing buſineſs has occaſioned improvements in agriculture, and almoſt every ſpot of ground in this part of the country has the appearance of high cultivation.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

There were two manors in this pariſh. The antient record relating to the principal of them, exhibits a ſtriking inſtance of a mind abhorrent of the cruelty and injuſtice of earl Godwin, who by a wicked contrivance, ſtripped the nuns of Berkeley of their poſſeſſions, as already related under that head. The paſſage may be thus tranſlated:

'Gueda the mother of earl Herald held Udeceſtre in Langetreu hundred. Goduin bought it of Azor, and gave it to his wife for her maintenance whilſt ſhe ſhould reſide at Berchelai; for ſhe would not eat any thing of the produce of that manor, on account of the deſtruction of the abbey. Eduuard holds this eſtate in his farm of Wilteſcire, but unjuſtly, as the county ſays, becauſe it does not belong to any farm. Of which manor none gave any account to the king's commiſſioners, nor was there any of them [i.e. of the county] preſent at the taking this writing. This eſtate pays 7 lib.' D. B. p. 69.

The other manor lay in the hundred of Blacheleu, which is now comprized in that of Whitſton, according to the following extract:

'Brictric holds of the king Wideceſtre in Blacheleu hundred. He held it in the time of king Edward. There is one hide taxed. There are ſixteen villeins, and twelve bordars, with ſixteen plow-tillages, but nothing in demean. In Glouueceſtre one burgeſs pays twenty bars of iron. There is a mill of 10 ſolid. It is worth and was worth 100 ſolid.' Ibid. p. 80.

John Maltravers held Wodecheſtre of William earl Mareſchal, and died ſeized thereof 24 E. 1. and John Maltravers, his ſon, had livery of it in the 25th year of that reign. King's Stanley and Stonehouſe came afterwards into the poſſeſſion of the family of Maltravers, and this manor continued in that name and family, by deſcent, 'till the reign of king Richard the Second, when Elianor, ſiſter and heireſs of Henry Maltravers, being married to John Arundel, ſecond ſon of Richard earl of Arundel, carried this manor and other eſtates into the name and family of the earls of Arundel, as related under King's Stanley, in which family they continued for many generations. Sir Robert Atkyns is not quite conſiſtent in his accounts of the deſcent of theſe manors to the Arundels, as may be ſeen by comparing them together.

The manor of Woodcheſter was granted to George Huntley and John Huntley 6 Eliz. and it is mentioned in the grant to have been lately the earl of Arundel's. It was afterwards purchaſed of the Huntleys by ſir Robert Ducie. Sir Robert had ſeveral ſons, who all died without iſſue, whereby Elizabeth, his daughter, became his heir, from whom this manor deſcended, like Tortworth, down to Thomas lord Ducie,[h] who is the preſent lord of it.

There

[h] This noble lord is paternally deſcended from the Mortons of Morton in Staffordſhire, denominated of that place in the reign of king Edward the Firſt, the ſaid lordſhip and other manors having been granted by that king to his anceſtor for his good ſervices in Scotland; and are devolved on the preſent lord Ducie.

The Ducies were deſcended from a family in Normandy, one of which having raiſed a regiment there, brought it over to England to the aſſiſtance of queen Iſabel, (conſort to king Edward the Second) againſt the Spencers; and for his ſervices had a grant of lands in Staffordſhire, which his deſcendants enjoyed for many ages, 'till about the latter end of the reign of king Henry the Eighth, when the greateſt part was ſold by James Ducie, eſq; who had to wife, firſt, Eleanor, ſiſter to Edmund lord Sheffield; and ſecondly, Alice, ſiſter to ſir Richard Pipe, of Belſton in Derbyſhire, knight. By the laſt he had iſſue Richard, his ſon and heir; and Henry, ſecond ſon, who married Mary, daughter and at length heir of Robert Hardy, by whom he had, amongſt other children, ſir Robert Ducie, knight and baronet, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Pyot, alderman of London.

Which ſir Robert Ducie was free of the company of merchants in London (commonly called merchant-taylors) and in 1620, 18 Jac. 1. was one of the ſheriffs of that city, whereupon he was knighted; and, being one of the aldermen of the city of London, was, in the fifth year of king Charles the Firſt, advanced to the dignity of a baronet, by letters patent, bearing date Nov. 28, 1629. He was lord mayor of the city of London in 1631, 7 Car. 1. and, being immenſely rich, was made banker to king Charles; and on the breaking out of the civil war, loſt 80,000*l.* owing to him by his majeſty. Nevertheleſs, he is ſaid to leave at the time of his death, to the value of 400,000*l.* in land, money, &c. to his four ſons, who were ſir Richard Ducie, baronet, ſir William Ducie, Henry, and Robert Ducie, eſqrs, to which laſt he gave Little Aſton in Staffordſhire.

Sir Richard Ducie, the eldeſt ſon, was a great ſufferer in the wars between king Charles the Firſt, and his parliament, and being taken priſoner by ſir William Waller, remained for ſome time under confinement. He died unmarried, and was ſucceeded in his dignity and eſtate by his brother, ſir William Ducie, bart.

Which ſir William Ducie, bart. was made one of the knights of the Bath, at the coronation of king Charles the Second. He had his principal reſidence at Tortworth in the county of Glouceſter, where he lies buried; but died at Charlton in Kent, in the 65th year of his age, on September 9, 1697; having been created viſcount Down of the kingdom of Ireland by king Charles the Second. He married Frances, daughter of Francis lord Seymour of Troubridge, grandfather of Charles the ſixth duke of Somerſet; but leaving no iſſue, his eſtate deſcended to Elizabeth, daughter and ſole heir of Robert Ducie, eſq; his brother.

Which Elizabeth was married to Edward Morton, of Morton and Engleton in the county of Stafford, eſq; and left iſſue Matthew-Ducie Morton, her ſon and heir, created lord Ducie.

He ſerved under king William during the war in Flanders, 'till the concluſion of the peace of Ryſwick, A. D. 1697. In the reign of queen Anne, he was twice choſen one of the knights of the ſhire for the county of Glouceſter; and was alſo returned for the ſame to the firſt parliament called by George the Firſt, who, in 1717, conſtituted him vice-treaſurer and pay-maſter of Ireland, whereupon he was rechoſen for the ſaid county. Alſo, on June 13, 1720, he was advanced to the dignity of a peer of this realm, by the ſtile and title of lord Ducie, baron of Morton in Staffordſhire.

His lordſhip married Arabella, daughter and coheir of ſir Thomas Preſtwich, of Holm, in the county palatine of Lancaſter, bart. by whom he had iſſue three ſons and four daughters; 1. Matthew-Ducie Morton, his ſucceſſor; 2. Rowland-Lewis-Ducie Morton, who was colonel of a company in the foot-guards, and, in November 1739, was appointed colonel of a regiment of marines; 3. Charles-Ducie Morton, eſq; who married Anne, daughter to ——— Wyat, of Windſor in Berkſhire, eſq; and had iſſue by her a ſon named Benjamin, deceaſed. Elizabeth, eldeſt daughter, was married firſt to Richard Symms, of

There is a very good houſe near the church, which formerly belonged to Mr. Robert Bridges. This houſe, and the eſtate belonging to it, paſſed by the marriage of Mr. Bridges's ſiſter, to Mr. Browning, whoſe daughter and heir was married to Mr. Dowell, of Over in this county, whoſe eſtates came by will to the late Mr. Degge; and this part was purchaſed by the late Mr. Samuel Paul, and given by him to Nathaniel Peach, eſq; the preſent owner.

Pudhill is a good houſe and eſtate in this pariſh, formerly belonging to the Smalls, but now the property of Thomas Wade, eſq; where he reſides.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Stonehouſe, worth about 100*l.* a year. Lord Ducie is patron, and the reverend Mr. Peter Hawker is the preſent incumbent.

The church is dedicated to St. Mary. It has an aile on the ſouth ſide, and a low embattled tower, with ſix bells, at the weſt end.

Firſt fruits £.	10	0	0	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths —	1	0	0	Pentecoſtals	0	0	7
Procurations	0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a handſome raiſed tomb in the chancel for ſir George Huntley and his lady, who are repreſented lying along under a canopy ſupported by pillars, with their ten children round the tomb. There are the Huntleys arms with quarterings upon the canopy, but no inſcription.

On a marble monument on the ſouth ſide of the chancel, it is thus written:

Near to this place is Depoſited all that is Mortal of ROBERT BRIDGES Eſq.
Who departed this life the 6th Day of March 1722 Aged 72.
In Memory of whom this Monument was Erected and of His BROTHER in law Mr. RICHARD HICKS and IANE his wife ſiſter of the ſaid Mr. BRIDGES who lies in the Chancel of this Church.
Alſo near to this Place lies the Body of Mrs. ELIZABETH BROWNING, Siſter to the Said Robert Bridges Eſq; who departed this Life
December the 4th 1733.

At the top of the monument are the arms of Bridges.

On a ſmall monument againſt the chancel,

M. S.
IOHANNIS KING, A. M.
Hujuſce Eccleſiæ Rector.
Ob. 4° Iulii Anno Domni 1723°
Ætat. Suæ 70mo
Et ELEANORÆ KING
Viduæ Ejus
Ob. 31mo Janrii Anno Domni 1728°
Ætat. ſuæ 72do
Omnia Mors æquat.

Againſt the ſame wall is a marble monument, of which the deſign is two genii holding up a ſkeleton. Upon the front of the vaſe it is thus written:

This Monument is erected
In Memory of
NATHANIEL PEACH of this Pariſh Clothier who died Auguſt the 19th 1719 Aged 43.
MARGARET his Widow who died October the 18th 1741. Aged 58.
Alſo DEBORAH Wife of Nathaniel Peach Son of the ſaid Nathaniel and Margaret Peach, and Siſter of Samuel Paul of Rodborough Eſq: She died May the 16th 1765 Aged 58.

At top is a ſcutcheon, Baron and femme, 1. Gules, three martlets between two chevronels argent, for Peach. 2. Azure, a bend embattled between two unicorns heads erazed Or, for Pearſe. At bottom, Baron and femme, Peach, as before; impaling, 2. Argent, on a feſs azure three croſſes croſlets Or.

Between the two laſt, ſtands a marble pyramidal monument, with this inſcription:

This MONUMENT is erected in Memory of
EDWARD PEACH late of EBLEY in this County Clothier eldeſt Son of NATHANIEL and MARGARET PEACH
he died July 5, 1770 Aged 60 Years.
And alſo of
JOHN PEACH late of the City of BRISTOL MERCHANT
Second Son of the ſaid NATHANIEL & MARGARET PEACH, he died at BATH September 20 1774 Aged 63.

Arms, Peach, as before.

In the church-yard, on a tomb,

Sr Oneſiphorus Paul, Bart. died Sept. 21st 1774, Aged 68.

On the oppoſite ſide,

To the Memory of Catherine Lady Paul, ſecond Wife of Sr Oneſiphorus Paul, Bart.
Eldeſt Daughter of Francis Freeman of Norton Malereward in the County of Somerſet Eſqr. She departed this Life ye 20th day of Octr. 1766 in ye 56 year of her Age.

Benefactions.

In 1699, Mr. Nathaniel Cambridge of Hamburgh, merchant, gave 1000*l.* to endow a ſchool of Blackheath, in the county of Kent, eſq; and ſecondly, on February 5, 1729-30, to Francis Reynolds, only ſon and heir of Thomas Reynolds, eſq; formerly a South-ſea director, by whom ſhe had two ſons, Thomas Reynolds, and Francis Reynolds, eſqrs. The other daughters, Mary, Arabella, and Penelope, died unmarried.

---

The ſaid Matthew lord Ducie departing this life at his houſe in Jermyn-ſtreet, on May 22, 1735, was ſucceeded by Matthew, his eldeſt ſon and heir.

Which Matthew lord Ducie, in the life-time of his father, was elected for the borough of Calne and Cricklade in Wiltſhire, in the laſt parliament of George the Firſt, and was a member for Tregony in Cornwall, in the firſt parliament of George the Second. On February 14, 1754, he was appointed lord lieutenant of and in the counties of Glouceſter and of Briſtol; and of the city of Glouceſter, and county of the ſame; and cuſtos rotulorum of Glouceſterſhire. He had alſo a grant of the offices of conſtable of St. Briavel's, and keeper of the deer and woods in Dean foreſt; and was likewiſe appointed vice-admiral of Glouceſterſhire. His lordſhip enjoyed all the ſaid places and offices until Nov. 1758, when, upon his reſignation, they were conferred on John-Thynne How, ſecond lord Chedworth.

His lordſhip, foreſeing that upon the failure of iſſue male of his own body, and the deceaſe of his brothers without ſuch iſſue, the title of lord Ducie would become extinct, obtained a new patent, on April 23, 1763, granting to himſelf and his heirs male, and in default of ſuch iſſue, then to Thomas Reynolds, eſq; his lordſhip's nephew, and to his heirs male, and in default of ſuch iſſue, then to Francis Reynolds, eſq; brother to the ſaid Thomas Reynolds, and alſo nephew to his lordſhip, and his heirs male, the dignity of baron of the kingdom of Great Britain, by the title of lord Ducie, baron Ducie of Tortworth in the county of Glouceſter; and deceaſing Dec. 27, 1770, the title, with his lordſhip's eſtates, devolved upon the ſaid Thomas Reynolds, who, in virtue of the laſt-mentioned grant, is now lord Ducie, baron of Morton in Staffordſhire, and lord Ducie of Tortworth in Glouceſterſhire. His lordſhip's arms are, Argent, a chevron gules, between three ſquare buckles ſable.

CREST. Out of a wreath a moor-cock riſing proper, combe and wattles gules.

SUPPORTERS. Two unicorns argent, arm'd, maned, tufted, and hoofed Or, each gorged with a ducal coronet, party per pale Or and gules.

MOTTO. PERSEVERANDO.

for

for the education of poor boys of this parish, which money was laid out in the purchase of Saintloe farm, in the parish of Minchin-Hampton, and a school was there erected, and is still continued in pursuance of the donor's intention: And in 1729, Mr. Richard Cambridge of London, gave 100*l.* to augment the same school.

In 1705, Mrs. Elizabeth Seys gave 400*l.* to purchase an estate, the profit to be divided between three or more poor women, for teaching poor girls to read and work; which money, with 215*l.* interest, is laid out on two estates, one lying at Hamfallow in the parish of Berkeley, the other is called Hipp's-hill in this county.

In 1722, Robert Bridges, esq; gave 500*l.* with which an estate has been purchased in the parish of Wheatenhurst, and the profits are applied to teach three boys to read and write, and to clothe and apprentice out one or more of them every year, agreeably to the donor's directions.

In 1729, Mr. Richard Cambridge, of London, gave 20*l.* the interest of which to be disposed of at the discretion of the overseers, for ever.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	80	5	4
Poll-tax — — 1694,	—	19	11	0
Land-tax —— 1694,	—	89	0	0
The same, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	66	18	0

At the beginning of this century, there were 120 houses in this parish, and about 460 inhabitants, whereof 24 were freeholders; yearly births 11, and burials 10. Atkyns. In the year 1756, the people were numbered, and found to be 792, and they are something increased since that time.

WOOLLASTON.

THIS parish lies in the hundred of Westbury, in the Forest division of the county, about four miles distant north-eastward from the town of Chepstow in Monmouthshire, seven south from Colford, and twenty-two south-westward from Glocester.

It stretches along the north-west side of the Severn, and rising gradually from that river to a considerable height, affords a beautiful prospect of it, and of the towns of Berkeley and Thornbury, with Hill, Oldbury, Knole, and other villages in the vale on the opposite side of the river, and the hills and woods at a distance behind them.

The name of it is considerably altered from its original. It was taken from that of its owner, and written Odelavestone in Domesday, about seven hundred years ago; and we of the present age, to express the same idea, should write it Odelave's Town. The parish consists of good pasture and arable land, and a small brook running through it empties itself into the Severn. The turnpike-road from Glocester to Glamorganshire is carried over an eminence through the parish, and is extreamly pleasant upon account of the extensive prospect abovementioned.

Of the Manor and other Estates.

Sir Robert Atkyns omits the Domesday account of this manor, which runs thus:

'William de Ow holds Odelavestone in Twi-'ferde hundred. Brictric the son of Algar held 'it. There are two hides. There is nothing 'in demean except five villeins, with five plow-'tillages. There is one fishery in the Severn of '5*sol.* and a mill of 40*d.* It is worth and was 'worth 20*sol.* This estate pays tax.' Dom. p. 73.

The hundred of Twiferde was a very small district, including only this parish, a small part of Tiddenham, and a place called Modiete, in this neighbourhood; but there is no such district at present.

The Welch possessed themselves of Tiddenham and Woollaston, but both places were retaken from them by Walter and Roger, brothers of Gilbert de Clare, in the year 1160. And it is probable that Woollaston was afterwards granted to the abbey of Tintern in Monmouthshire, founded in the year 1131, by William earl of Pembroke, for monks of the Cistercian order; and that the manor continued in that house 'till the dissolution.

Henry earl of Worcester died seized of the manor and Grange of Wolveston, alias Woollaston, 3 E. 6. as appears by an inquisition taken at Wotton-underedge, Feb. 21, 4 E. 6. Edward earl Worcester was lord of this manor in the year 1608, and the duke of Beaufort is the present lord of the manor of Woollaston, and proprietor of the Grange estate; but the latter is in lease to Mr. Barrow. The Grange house is an antient building, with a chapel, now converted to a malthouse.

Elizabeth Harrison, widow, formerly the wife of Thomas Stanshaw, and daughter and heir of Alice daughter of James lord Berkeley, levied a fine of lands in Woollaston to John Walsh and others 13 H. 7.

HAMLETS. There are places in this parish of the following names: 1. Keynsham; 2. Everend; 3. Gumstod; 4. Plusterwyne; and 5. Brookend. But the extract from Domesday, which sir Robert Atkyns places under High Woolaston, belongs to Hewelsfield, and not to this place.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the Forest deanery, worth about 130*l.* a year, of which the duke of Beaufort is patron, and the reverend Robert Penny, D.D. is the present incumbent, and of the chapel of Lancaut in Tiddenham, which has lately been annexed to this church.

The tithes were given to the abbey of Tintern by William earl of Pembroke, and earl marshal of England, in 1131; and after the dissolution, were were held by the lords of the manor, and paid 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* yearly to the crown; and the living was formerly held as a vicarage, 'till the tithes were recovered, not long ſince, by Mr. Griffith, a late incumbent.

Firſt fruits	£.	13	11	3	Proc.& Syn. £.	0	1	8
Tenths —		1	7	1½	Pentecoſtals -	0	1	4

Benefactions.

Henry Newland, abbat of Tintern, gave the church-houſe and green in 1501.

One acre in Thornhill is given towards the reparation of the church.

Mr. Richard Clayton of Chepſtow gave 22*s.* a year to the poor, 37 Eliz. And Mrs. Margaret Clayton, his widow, gave 40*s.* a year for teaching four poor children to read.

Mr. Thomas James, alderman of Briſtol, in 1618, gave 100*l.* to be lent without intereſt, on giving ſecurity, to ten poor widows, to enable them to employ themſelves in ſpinning.

In 1685, Mrs. Mary Smart gave 20*s.* a year to be diſtributed to the poor in bread, and the payment thereof is charged on an eſtate in this pariſh, late belonging to Mr. Charles Gough, who married Elizabeth, ſiſter to Mrs. Smart.

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in	1692, £.	118	4	0
Poll-tax ——	1694, —	33	6	0
Land-tax ——	1694, —	170	13	0
The ſame, at 3*s.*	1770, —	127	19	0

At the beginning of this century, there were 96 houſes, and about 400 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 17 were freeholders; yearly births 9, and burials 8. Atkyns. The inhabitants are now about 459.

WORMINGTON

IS a ſmall pariſh, in the lower diviſion of Kiftſgate hundred, five miles diſtant ſouth from Eveſham in Worceſterſhire, five north from Winchcombe, and nineteen north-eaſtward from Glouceſter.

It is ſituate in the Vale, and a brook runs through it into the Avon at Hampton, near Eveſham. The greater part of the land is arable, but the village has nothing particular to diſtinguiſh it in natural hiſtory, or antiquities.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

The following is tranſlated from Domeſday:

'Roger de Laci holds Wermetun in Greteſtan 'hundred. Walter the ſon of Ercold holds it 'under him. There are five hides taxed. Eduui 'held it. In demean are two plow-tillages, and 'ſix villeins, with two plow-tillages. There are 'two ſervi, and a mill of 8 ſolid. and ten acres of 'meadow. It was worth 100 ſol. now only 4 lib.' Domeſday, p. 75.

King Henry the Third granted court leet, waifs, and felons goods in Wormington to the maſters of the knights templers, and his grant was allowed in a writ of Quo warranto 15 E. 1. The manor was afterwards given to Weſtbury college, near Briſtol, and upon the diſſolution of religious foundations, this eſtate, and others belonging to that college, were granted to ſir Rafe Sadleir, 35 H. 8.

Sir Robert Atkyns makes mention that Henry Acton died ſeized of Wormington 20 Eliz. and that livery thereof was granted to his ſon Valentine Acton, the ſame year; but that muſt be underſtood of Wormington Grange in Didbrook, and not of this place.

John Newton, eſq; was lord of this manor in the year 1608, out of which name it paſſed by the marriage of a daughter of the Newtons to Mr. Gwinneth, who ſold it to Mr. Dobbins, and it was by him conveyed to Mr. Townſend. Mr. Kenrick laid claim to the manor of Wormington at the beginning of the preſent century, and that claim was continued by Mr. John Partridge, who died about the year 1776; but a great part of the demeans of the manor was given to charitable uſes by George Townſend, eſq; about eighty years ago.

The Daſtons were antiently ſeized of a manor, or reputed manor, in this pariſh, which from them was called Wormington Daſton. John Daſton was ſeized thereof 15 E. 4. Anthony Daſton alſo died ſeized of lands in Wormington 12 C. 1. and left Richard his ſon and heir, twelve years old.

Lord Aylmer has a good eſtate in this pariſh, but his lordſhip's uſual reſidence is at Greenwich in the county of Kent. His lordſhip's arms are, Pearl, a croſs diamond between four Corniſh choughs proper. CREST, In a ducal coronet a chough with wings diſplay'd proper. SUPPORTERS, Two mariners habited, the dexter holding in his hand a foreſtaff, and the ſiniſter a lead-line, all proper. MOTTO, STEADY.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Campden, worth about 70*l.* a year, of which is patron, and is the preſent incumbent.
Two yard-lands belong to the glebe, but eleven yard-lands, being the demeans of the manor, are tithe free.

The church is ſmall, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, or, as ſome ſay, to St. Catherine, whoſe figure, with her wheel, appears in one of the painted windows.

Firſt fruits	£.	7	15	0	Synodals £.	0	1	0
Tenths —		0	15	6½	Pentecoſt.	0	0	8½
Procurations		0	3	0

Taxes.
The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	43	10	0
Poll-tax —— 1694, —		9	12	0
Land-tax — 1694, —		20	16	10
The ſame, at 3 s. 1770, —		14	16	4½

When ſir Robert Atkyns compiled his account of this pariſh, there were 19 houſes, and about 80 inhabitants, whereof 4 were freeholders; yearly births 2, and burials 2. The inhabitants are now about 85.

WOTTON-UNDEREDGE.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Berkeley, four miles diſtant ſouth from Durſley, five north-eaſt from Wickwar, and nineteen ſouth from Glouceſter; but theſe diſtances are to be taken from the market town, which lies within the pariſh.

The town of Wotton-underedge is ſituated upon a pleaſant eminence, overlooking a comb, or little valley, to the north-eaſtward. It lies near the foot of a ridge of hills to the north, which being partly covered with woods, have a very pleaſing appearance. Hence the town certainly obtained its name, which is eaſily reſolved into Wood-town-under-ridge. It is quite open to the other quarters, with an ample vale richly beſet with villages and farm houſes before it, and commanding an extenſive and beautiful proſpect, including the populous pariſh of Kingſwood, formerly famous for its monaſtery, the towns of Wickwar and Sodbury, with Lanſdown hill near Bath on one hand, and Berkeley caſtle, the Severn, Dean foreſt, and the Welch mountains on the other.

It is called a borough, but ſends no members to parliament. In the 37th year of king Henry the Third, Maurice lord Berkeley cauſed a leet, conſiſting of the reſiants within the borough, to be taken out of the great hundred of Berkeley, agreeable to the cuſtom of great lords in thoſe days; and he, and lady Jane his mother, who held the manor of Wotton in jointure, by their deed of that date, granted to the inhabitants of the borough the ſame liberties, uſages, and cuſtoms, as the borough of Tetbury then enjoy'd, having, the preceding year, obtained from the king a grant of a market each Friday at Wotton, and of a fair every year, to be held upon the eve, upon the day, and the morrow of the Exaltation of the croſs. Theſe privileges were afterwards confirmed by Thomas lord Berkeley, in the tenth year of the reign of king Edward the Firſt.

In the firſt year of the following reign, the jury, at the leet holden at Michaelmas, had leave to chooſe one perſon out of the burgeſſes to be the ſupreme governor amongſt them, 'till that time twelve-month, and to call him the Mayor, which they have continued to do from time to time ever ſince. The origin of the cuſtom, and the ceremony of chooſing the mayor, are particularly ſet down in a manuſcript written by Mr. John Smyth, a very learned and judicious perſon, who was ſteward to lord Berkeley in the reign of king Charles the Firſt, and took great pains to extract from the records many curious particulars relating to the places within the hundred of Berkeley. The jury preſent, in writing, the names of three perſons (the old mayor, and two others) to the ſteward, out of whom he makes choice of one for the new mayor, and adminiſters to him the oath of office. The old mayor then riſing from his ſeat, and leaving the ſilver-gilt mace upon the table where he ſate with the ſteward, the new one ſits down in his place, and elects one of the other two that were returned with him for his ſerjeant, who, in the language of the court-rolls, is called Serviens ad Clavem. The court being ended, the ſerjeant, with his mace, walks before the mayor to his houſe, whom the other burgeſſes alſo attend. The ſerjeant, by the cuſtom, is obliged to collect the lord's rents and profits within the borough, and to pay them to the auditor; and if he fail, the mayor is anſwerable for them.

Refuſing to ſerve the office of mayor in this borough is puniſhable by fine. In the year 1639, Richard Pool being choſen, refuſed to ſerve, and was fined 10*l*. John Leigh was then choſen by the ſteward, and refuſing in like manner, paid a fine of 6*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*. The legality of the ſteward's impoſing ſuch fine has been determined in the caſe of Thomas Daws, who was fined 10*l*. in the year 1693, which he would not pay, whereupon he was arreſted in virtue of a Capias ſued out of the court of king's bench in Michaelmas term 1695, and a verdict was obtained againſt him at the Lent aſſizes, and judgment entered in the ſame court the Eaſter term following.

This town gave name to an uſurped juriſdiction, called the Hundred of Wotton, ſet up by the deſcendants of Richard de Beauchamp, earl of Warwick, who had poſſeſſed themſelves of the manors of Wotton and Nibley, and of other conſiderable eſtates within the hundred of Berkeley; and during the long law-ſuits between them and the heirs male of the Berkeley family, affected to call their poſſeſſions in theſe parts the Hundred of Wotton. An eſtate was actually granted by that name to John duke of Northumberland, upon whoſe attainder, in the firſt year of the reign of queen Mary, it reverted to the crown, and was again granted by the ſame name to Ambroſe earl of Warwick, and to Robert earl of Leiceſter, in the fifteenth year of queen Elizabeth. Accordingly there is a certain diſtrict ſo diſtinguiſhed in ſome of our old maps, tho' no ſuch independent juriſdiction was ever legally and rightfully eſtabliſhed.

Thomas Talbot, viſcount Liſle, grandſon of that Richard de Beauchamp, by Elizabeth the heireſs of William lord Berkeley, reſided in this borough, borough, and there are ſome remains of his lordſhip's houſe, conſiſting of the arches of doorways, &c. ſtill diſtinguiſhable in the buildings belonging to Mr. Veel, ſituate in the lower part of the town.

Wotton was burnt down in the reign of king John. It then ſtood a little northward of the preſent ſcite, as may be gathered from the name of a place called the Brands, from the fire which then happened there.

It has not been diſtinguiſhed by any very intereſting tranſactions, only in the great civil war, the king had a temporary garriſon here, conſiſting of a regiment of horſe, which, according to Corbet, were driven out of the town by the parliament's party, under the command of colonel Maſſie, and having ſuffered the loſs of ſix killed, and twelve made priſoners, the reſt eſcaped to Briſtol. It was again garriſoned for the king by eight hundred men, and attacked by captain Backhouſe with two hundred horſe and dragoons, who fell ſuddenly on, ſays the before-mentioned hiſtorian, marched up to the main guard, and for ſome time were maſters of four pieces of ordnance; but being over matched, were forced to retreat, which they did without the loſs of a man.

There was a conduit erected in the town, in the year 1630, at the expence of ſir Richard Venn, and his ſon-in-law, Hugh Perry, both aldermen of London, and natives of this place, by which water was brought from a ſpring in Edbrook field to the market croſs; but the conduit is now intirely deſtroy'd.

Leland, in his Itinerary, written in the reign of king Henry the Eighth, calls it A praty Market Towne, welle occupyed withe Clothiars, havyinge one faire longe Strete, and welle buyldyd in it, and it ſtondithe clyvinge toward the rotes of an hill. But tho' Leland takes notice of but one ſtreet, it is probable that there were others in his time, and that he ſpeaks of the high ſtreet only, becauſe the reſt comparatively were of little account. The following names appear in the writings of the next century, viz. High-ſtreet, Sow-lane, the Chipping, or Market-place, Chipping-lane, Bradley-ſtreet, Hawe-ſtreet, Church-lane, and Sym-lane; the whole borough then comprizing an extent of about ſixty acres of ground.

It is pretty well built, and the clothing buſineſs, chiefly in the fine way, is of very antient ſtanding. There are now ſeven or eight maſter clothiers, and the trade is ſtill in a flouriſhing ſtate, tho' not equal to what it has ſometimes been.

The market is held on Friday, and there is a fair on the 25th of September, formerly noted for cheeſe and cattle; but now of much leſs account for either.

The hills on one ſide of the town rendering it difficult for carriages to paſs and repaſs, is a circumſtance unfavourable to its market, which like that of moſt other little towns, is dwindled to nothing. There is, however, a turnpike-road branching from it northward to Glouceſter, and eaſtward to Tetbury, and another extending ſouth-weſtward towards Wickwar, Sodbury, and Briſtol; but theſe are not the great roads leading from Glouceſter to Bath and Briſtol; ſo that there is but little travelling through the town, except by people of the neighbourhood, and by ſuch as are connected in trade with the inhabitants.

The pariſh of Wotton is very extenſive. Upon the brow of a hill called Weſtridge, looking towards Tortworth, there is a ſquare camp, with double intrenchments, incloſing an area of about four acres of ground. It is now over-grown with beech wood, and is called Becket's Bury, but for what reaſon I cannot conjecture.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

This manor was a member of the great lordſhip of Berkeley at the time of the general ſurvey; but there are no further particulars of it recorded in Domeſday, than that there are 'In Uutune 'fifteen hides and half a yard-land.' Roger de Berkeley was ſeized of it in the reign of king William the Conqueror, and it deſcended in that family, with the manor of Berkeley, 'till the death of Thomas lord Berkeley, the fourth of that name. This Thomas lord Berkeley married Margaret, daughter of Gerard Warren, lord Liſle, by his wife Alice, the daughter and heir of Henry lord Tyes, with whom he had a very great eſtate. He died 5 H. 5. and left an only daughter, Elizabeth, married to Richard Beauchamp, earl of Warwick.

This Elizabeth counteſs of Warwick was heir general to the whole eſtate of the Berkeley family; but James lord Berkeley, ſon of James, younger brother to Thomas lord Berkeley, father of the ſaid Elizabeth, was heir male, and derived his title by an eſtate taille limited to the heirs males; for Thomas lord Berkeley, grandfather to the before-mentioned Thomas, levied a fine of Berkeley, Wotton, and divers other manors, 23 E. 3. whereby he ſettled thoſe manors on his heirs males, and James lord Berkeley being heir male, had right to the eſtate by virtue of that ſettlement. However, the ſame Richard Beauchamp being in Berkeley caſtle at the death of Thomas lord Berkeley, his wife's father, ſeized upon all the deeds and writings that concerned the eſtate, which made it difficult for James lord Berkeley to prove his title.

Richard Beauchamp, earl of Warwick, died leaving three daughters coheireſſes. Margaret, the eldeſt, was ſecond wife to John the great earl of Shrewſbury, who had iſſue by her John, afterwards created viſcount Liſle. He with his deſcendants proſecuted their pretenſions againſt the lords Berkeley with great violence and illegality; and Thomas viſcount Liſle, ſon of John, loſt his life at Nibley-green in this quarrel, as related under that pariſh. But after many years conteſt, the quiet poſſeſſion was yielded to the Berkeley family, family, and the earl of Berkeley is the preſent lord of the manor of Wotton.

Joan Skey, widow, levied a fine of lands in Wotton-underedge to John Walworth and Eleanor his wife, 8 H. 7. John Stanſhaw and Humphry his brother levied a fine of lands in Wotton borough, and Wotton forreigne, to William Freame, and others, 12 H. 7. A meadow called the Vineyard in Wotton, formerly belonging to the abbey of Kingſwood, was granted to George Huntley, and others, 2 Jac. 1. Two tenements in Wotton, called Spencer's Heye, and Nayler's Heye, with the tithes of the ſame, belonged to the priory of St. Oſwald, in Glouceſter, and were granted to Peter Grey and Edward his ſon 19 Eliz.

TITHINGS and HAMLETS.

There are four tithings in this large pariſh.

1. Sinwell and Bradley make one tithing. Sinwell adjoins to the borough, and the pariſh church ſtands within it. Mr. Web had a good houſe and eſtate at Sinwell, at the beginning of this century, which are now the property of Mr. Veel, of Simondſhall.

Bradley gave name to an eminent family to whom it belonged, and Hugh de Bradley was living in the reign of king Richard the Firſt. One Serlo died ſeized of Bradley, and left Agatha and Juliana his two ſiſters coheireſſes; the former married to Henry ——, the latter to William de Straton. Anne the widow of Serlo was married to Hugh de Straton, and had the manor of Bradley aſſigned to her for dower 4 H. 3. Robert de Pleſſy was ſeized thereof 29 E. 1. as were Thomas de Luda and Elizabeth his wife in the 33d year of the ſame reign. Sir Maurice Berkely held this manor 2 H. 4. and ſir Maurice Berkeley of Uley died ſeized of Bradleigh 4 E. 4. John Berkeley died ſeized of the manor of Bradley 5 Mar. and left Brice Berkeley his brother and heir. Arnold Oldſworth died ſeized of this place, and left Edward Oldſworth his ſon, who alſo died ſeized of it 4 C. 1. when Robert his ſon was fourteen years old. This was an antient family deſcended from the Oldſworths of Yorkſhire, and ſir Lancelot Halifax, of Halifax, was their anceſtor, who died 15 E. 1. Many lands in this place were given by Thomas lord Berkeley to the abbey of St. Auſtin's in Briſtol, for which reaſon the chief meſſuage is called Canons Court, and after the diſſolution of religious foundations, they were granted to the dean and chapter of Briſtol. Bradley came afterwards to Thomas Daws, eſq; whoſe great niece, Mrs. Smart, is the proprietor of Bradley-houſe, and of a good eſtate there, and holds Canons Court under the dean and chapter of Briſtol.

2. Simondſhall and Combe conſtitute another tithing. Simondſhall is the higheſt ground in all this country. It is for the moſt part a large plain, with an antient manſion houſe, which has been the reſidence of the Veels for many generations. And it is ſaid, that in a clear day, eighteen counties may be ſeen from ſome parts of the down near the houſe. Between this and Bagpath, ſtands a large barrow, which never having been opened, nothing can be ſaid of the contents of it with certainty, only it is ſuppoſed to have been the burying place of ſome perſons who fell in battle hereabout. In the evidences belonging to Bartholomew hoſpital in Glouceſter, of the year 1280, there is an account of a fardel of land lying between the land of Adam de Tedepen on the north, and the land belonging to the church of Symondeſhale on the ſouth; which I quote only to ſhew that there was at that time a church or chapel belonging to this place, but it has been long ſince diſuſed. In Domeſday it is recorded, that 'Half a hide in Symondeſhale belonged to 'the lordſhip of Berchelai.' The inheritance of this manor has ever ſince been veſted in the proprietors of that lordſhip, and is now the property of the earl of Berkeley; but the eſtate is in leaſe to William Veel,[1] eſq; who is deſcended from a very antient family, which came into England with William the Conqueror.

Combe

[1] Jeffrey le Veel married Maud, daughter and heir of Harding, ſon of Elias Harding of Hunterford, alias Huntingford, which Elias was younger brother of Robert Fitz-Harding, anceſtor of the Berkeley family. He was in great eſteem with king John.

Henry le Veel, ſon of Jeffrey, was living 37 H. 3.

Robert le Veel of Charfield lived in the time of E. 1. and E. 2. and married Hawiſe, daughter of —— le Gore, with whom he had the manor of St. Faggon 25 E. 1.

Sir Peter le Veel, ſon of Robert, married Hawiſe, daughter and heir of —— Kingſton of Tortworth 5 E. 3. and with her had the manor of Tortworth.

Sir Peter le Veel, ſon of ſir Peter, married Cecilia, daughter and heir of —— Maſſey of Charfield, with whom it is ſaid he had the manor of Charfield. He was high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire 49 E. 3. and died 20 R. 2.

Sir Peter le Veel, knight, ſon of ſir Peter, married Catherine, daughter and heir of ſir John Clevedon. Her ſecond huſband was Thomas lord Berkeley.

Thomas Veel, ſon of ſir Peter, (or Pierce) married Hawiſe ——. Her ſurname ſeems to have been Torrington, as the arms aſcribed to her belong to the Torringtons, viz. Gules, an annulet between two bars Or, in chief a lion paſſant of the ſecond.

John Veel, ſon of Thomas, married Margaret ——, and died 9 H. 6.

Sir John Veel, ſon of John, married Alice, daughter of —— Brookſby. Her arms were Barry undy argent and ſable, on a canton gules a mullet Or. He was high ſheriff of Glouceſterſhire 31 H. 6. and died in the 36th year of that reign, leaving two ſons, Robert and William.

Robert Veel, the eldeſt ſon, married Alice, daughter of John Pointz, eſq; and by her had an only daughter and heir Alice, married to ſir David Matthews, of Rayder in Glamorganſhire, by whom ſhe had four daughters, of whom Margaret, the third daughter, was married to ſir William Throckmorton, and carried the manor of Tortworth into that family. I now return to William Veel, ſecond ſon of ſir John Veel, and brother to Robert. He married Suſanna, daughter and coheireſs of —— Vyell, whoſe arms were Argent, a feſs raguly gules between three annulets ſable.

William Veel of Over in Almondſbury, ſon of William, married Margaret, daughter of William Fettiplace, of Maiden-Cott in the county of Oxford, whoſe arms were Gules two chevrons argent.

Edward Veel, eldeſt ſon of the laſt William, married Catherine, daughter of John Holloway.

Edward Veel, ſon of Edward, married Jane, daughter of George Burley, of Whiſte in Wiltſhire. But we leave this branch and return to William Veel of Over, who had a third ſon, of the name of William.

Which

Combe lies eaſtward of the church. This eſtate was given by the empreſs Maud to Nigel de Kingſcote, anceſtor to the Kingſcotes of Kingſcote, for his ſervices to her in the wars; but that family was probably diſpoſſeſſed of it on the change of affairs. Thomas Davis, of Minchin Hampton, eſq; died ſeized of Wotton-Combe 37 H. 8. and left Giles his ſon eighteen years old; whoſe ſon, Francis Davis, died ſeized of the manor of Wotton-Combe 5 Mar. leaving two daughters coheireſſes, of whom Mary, the eldeſt, was married to William Weſtden, and Elizabeth, the youngeſt, was married to John Poll; and they had livery of this manor granted to them the ſame year. Mr. Hicks had a good eſtate at Combe, which is deſcended to the reverend Mr. Somerville, of Bibury, whoſe mother was daughter of that Mr. Hicks. What ſir Robert Atkyns obſerves of Combe belonging formerly to the abbey of Bordeſley in Worceſterſhire, and of its being granted to Thomas Smith 7 E. 6. is all miſtake, and ſhould have been applied to Combe in the pariſh of Campden.

The Rudge is an eſtate ſometimes in antient writings dignified with the title of a manor. It belonged formerly to the abbey of Kingſwood, and was granted to ſir Nicholas Pointz 36 H. 8. But Rudge farm belonged to the Pointz's before the above grant, for ſir Robert Pointz died ſeized thereof 12 H. 8. and was ſucceeded by ſir Anthony Pointz, whoſe ſon and heir, ſir Nicholas Pointz, died ſeized thereof 4 Mar. and left Nicholas his ſon twenty-one years old. The manor of Rudge, with a good eſtate here, is now the property of the reverend Mr. Brereton of Glouceſter, in right of his wife.

Nynd is a place in this pariſh.

3. Wortley is a diſtinct and populous tithing, where was formerly a chapel of eaſe, founded by Thomas lord Berkeley, and dedicated to St. John; and William lord Berkeley, earl mareſchal and of Nottingham, levied a fine of the advowſon of the chapel 3 H. 7. There was alſo a chantry in this chapel, of which John Collins was the laſt incumbent, and received a penſion of 2*l.* 16*s.* in the year 1553. Willis. John Engayne was ſeized of Wortley 30 E. 1. It was part of the manor of Wotton, and ſold by George lord Berkeley and his mother, by their deed inrolled in chancery, dated 28 Nov. 7 Car. for 1500*l.* to Richard Pool, gent. and his heirs, by the name of a manor. It is now the eſtate of Matthew Hale, eſq; in whoſe family it has been for ſeveral generations.

4. Huntingford is another tithing in this pariſh. Elias Harding, younger brother of Robert Harding, anceſtor to the Berkeley family, died ſeized of this manor in the reign of king John. John Veale was ſeized of Huntingford 36 H. 6. Catherine ——, an heireſs to this manor, was married to Henry Wogan, who died ſeized of Huntingford 9 H. 8. and left Joan his daughter and heir eleven years old. The manor was then held of the king, as of the hundred of Grumbald's Aſh. Mr. Adey has a good eſtate here, with manerial rights; but lord Berkeley is lord paramount.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a vicarage, in the deanery of Durſley, worth 43*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* from the impropriation; but it has no ſort of tithes belonging to it. It has been augmented by a donation from the late Edward Colſton, eſq; by another from the feoffees of the market, and by queen Anne's bounty; ſo that the income is now upwards of 100*l.* a year. Chriſt Church college in Oxford are patrons, and the reverend William Tatterſall, M.A. is the preſent incumbent. The impropriation belongs to the ſame college.

The advowſon belonged to the nunnery of Berkeley before the Norman conqueſt, and was

---

Which William the third ſon, and brother of the firſt mentioned Edward Veel, lived at Acton, and married Elianor, daughter of John Gover of Wotton-underedge. Her arms were Argent, on a bend azure a fret Or.

Nicholas Veel of Alveſton, ſon and heir of William, married the daughter of Richard Brydges of Combe, and had iſſue ſeven ſons, Peter (of whom there was iſſue remaining about Axbridge in Somerſetſhire anno 1685) William, Richard, Thomas, Edward, Nicholas, and Philip; and two daughters, Margaret and Maria.

Thomas Veel of Alveſton, ſon of Nicholas, married to his firſt wife Dorothy, daughter of John Wynneate, of Hampton, com. Middleſex, whoſe arms were, Sable, a bend argent cotized Or, between ſix martlets of the ſecond. By his firſt wife he had one ſon William, and three daughters, Suſanna, Eleanor, and Dorothy, which Dorothy was married to William Holland of Briſtol; and Eleanor, the ſecond daughter, was married to Edward Hill of Cam, in this county. He had iſſue by his ſecond wife, two ſons, Nicholas and Thomas; Nicholas Veel was of Olveſton in this county, in the commiſſion of the peace, who married Alice, daughter of —— Blanchard, of Wroxall in the county of Wilts, and by her had iſſue an only child Nicholas, who died unmarried. Thomas Veel, ſecond ſon by the ſecond marriage, married Mary, daughter of Henry Butler, eſq. She was buried at Wotton-underedge, and there is now an inſcription for her in Wotton church. Thomas Veel, the father, was ſequeſtered in the civil wars, and paid 704*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* and died about the year 1663.

William Veel of Simondſhall, ſon and heir of Thomas, married Elizabeth, daughter of Robert Culliford, of the iſland of Purbeck in Dorſetſhire. Her arms were, Argent, a feſs between three bulls ſable. They had iſſue two ſons, Robert, who died unmarried; and Thomas Veel of Simondſhall,; alſo one daughter Margaret, married to Robert Culliford of Southampton.

Thomas Veel, ſon of William, married Elizabeth, daughter of John Smyth, of Nibley in the county of Glouceſter, eſq; and by her had iſſue two ſons, Thomas, who died unmarried, and William; Alſo two daughters, Elizabeth, married to the reverend Mr. Thomas Snell, of Bampton in the Buſh, com. Oxon; and Anne, married to the reverend Timothy Millechamp, of Newton in Wilts.

William Veel, ſon of Thomas, was ſeven years old in 1682. He married Heſter, daughter and heir of Robert Web, of Sinwell in Wotton-under-edge, whoſe arms were, Sable, three eſcallops in bend argent. They had iſſue three ſons, Thomas, who died unmarried in 1752; Robert, who died unmarried in 1742; and William; alſo one daughter Elizabeth, married to William Davis, of Slimbridge in this county.

William Veel, third ſon of the laſt William, married Anne, eldeſt daughter and one of the coheireſſes of Stephen Compeer of Wotton-underedge, whoſe arms are Or, on a feſs azure between three martlets ſable as many croſs croſlets fitchy of the field. By her he has iſſue three ſons, William, Robert, and Thomas, now living; and three daughters, Anne, Elizabeth, and Mary. He reſides at Simondſhall, and is poſſeſſed of ſeveral good eſtates in this county. He gives for his arms, Argent, on a bend ſable three calves Or. The Creſt, A garb Or, enſeigned with a ducal coronet gules. Motto, FACE AUT TACE.

treacherouſly obtained from them by earl Godwin, from whom it came to the crown, and was granted by king Henry the Second to Robert the ſon of Harding, progenitor to the Berkeley family, and by him given to the monaſtery of St. Auguſtine in Briſtol. It was appropriated 35 E. 1. and the abbey of St. Auguſtine was ſeized of the advowſon 3 E. 2. It was again reſtored to the Berkeley family, and Maurice lord Berkeley granted it to the abbey of Tewkeſbury in the reign of king Henry the Seventh. The tithes were again appropriated, and after the diſſolution of monaſteries, were at different times granted to Chriſt Church college in Oxford; viz. a portion of tithes in Wotton which belonged to the abbey of Glouceſter, and another portion which belonged to the priory of St. Oſwald there, were granted to the chapter of Chriſt Church 33 H. 8. And the rectory of Wotton Subedge, and the advowſon of the vicarage, were granted to that college 38 H. 8. which before were in the poſſeſſion of the abbey of Tewkeſbury. Henry lord Berkeley laid claim to this advowſon, and by a decree in chancery 3 Eliz. the advowſon of Tetbury was given to his lordſhip, and this of Wotton to Chriſt Church college.

The tithes of Spencer's Heye and Nayler's Heye in Wotton, which belonged to the beforementioned priory of St. Oſwald, were granted, as already obſerved, to Peter Grey and Edward his ſon 19 Eliz. Other tithes and lands in Wotton, which belonged to the ſame priory, were granted to John Hercey and John Edwards 20 Eliz. And other tithes in Wotton, which belonged to the abbey of Kingſwood, were granted to George Huntley and others 2 Jac. 1.

The church is dedicated to the virgin Mary. It ſtands in the tithing of Sinwell and Bradley. It is large and handſome, conſiſting of the nave, and two ſide ailes, with a lofty pinnacled tower at the weſt end. The earl of Berkeley's arms are in ſeveral windows of the church.

There were ſeveral chantries in this church; one dedicated to St. Mary, and after the diſſolution, the lands belonging to it were granted to Edward Seimour, duke of Somerſet, 1 E. 6. and afterwards to William Heirick and Arthur Ingram, 5 Jac. 1. Other chantries were dedicated to the Holy Croſs, to St. Nicholas, to St. Catherine, and to All Saints. And there was a houſe founded in Wotton for friers of the Holy Croſs, who obtained licence to purchaſe a ſcite and lands to the amount of 10*l.* a year, 23 E. 3.

Firſt fruits	£.	13	10	0	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths	—	1	7	0	Pentecoſt.	0	1	6
Procurations		0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a large handſome tomb of grey marble in the north aile, with two figures engraven on braſs plates, in memory of Thomas lord Berkeley, the fourth of that name, and of the lady Margaret his wife, ſole heireſs of Gerrard Warren, lord Liſle. There is no inſcription upon the tomb, but he died in 1417, and his lady in 1392.

Upon a large monument of white marble, are the following inſcriptions:

D. O. M. S.
Infra deponitur quod reliquum eſt
RICARDI DAWES, Arm.
Ex honeſtâ et antiquâ noſtros inter Dobunos proſapia oriundi.
COLL: WADH. apud Oxon olim alumni
Ubi Academiâ Auguſtiſ. ANNÆ triumphos
Solemni ritu celebrante, ad res ſublimes depingendas deſignatus quàm optime munus implevit.
Hinc in ſocietatem TEMPLI INT: adſcitus juri municipali operam dedit, atq; inter Cauſidicos repagulares adſcriptus eſt.
OPTIMUS ADOLESCENS
ingenij acumine et gravitate ſpectabilis, morum integritate et elegantiâ magis conſpicuus, animi candore et magnitudine ornatiſſimus, pietate deniq; in Deum et in parentes obſervantiâ nunquam ſatis laudatus.
Si vivum ſciveris viator, habes cùr impenſius mortuum plores.
Ille 9no Cal. Jun. An. { Sal. 1712. / Æt. 26.

Necnon
ROBERTI DAWES
RICARDI jam memorati fratris natu min.
Qui etiam optimarum artium Studijs in eadem inclytâ muſarum ſede per triennium non infeliciter incubuit;
fraternæ virtutis æmulus.
Sed proh dolor! utrumq; tantæ ſpei juvenem, delicias omnium, decus et ornamentum familiæ, (cujus nominis perpetuandi in ijs ſpes ſola manſit) eadem dira variolarum peſtis corripuit ac quicquid mortale fuit oblivioni et tenebris mandavit, non niſi tubâ ultimâ revocandum.
Animæ interim ad Coelum avolarunt, eaſq; occupavêre ſedes,
quas DEUS SALVATOR juſtis preparavit.
Hæc nobis indubitata fides:
Uterq; enim dignus ævo in terris extento,
niſi ad vitam iſtam meliorem feſtinaſſent.
Hic 3tio Id. Jun. An. Sal. 1711. / Æt. 22.
Hoc ſepulchrale marmor (haud procùl a quo et ſuas reliquias condi volunt { Filijs / Nepotibus } deſideratiſſimis { Pater / Patruus } mœſtiſſimi poſuere.

Likewiſe was interred near this place, the body of Thomas Dawes of Bradley, Eſq^r. who died the 4^th day of Iuly A.D. 1713 in the 62^d year of his age, Lamented by All that knew him, becauſe when living he was doing good to all. He was devout and conſtant in religious exerciſes, hoſpitable and generous in his houſe, kind and charitable to the poor, meek in his temper, affable and pleaſant in converſation, courteous and benevolent to all men. He was a loving Huſband, a good Maſter, and a faithful Friend. But why ſhould we praiſe him by our Words whoſe Works both praiſe and follow him and are an example for our Imitation.

Laſtly, Here lie repoſed the only mortal Remains of Lydia Dawes
Relict of y^e Said Th. Dawes, Eſq^r who Died 15 Feb. 1739 Ag. 88. Who moſt amiably conjugal in every Virtue of His, as well as in her Love towards Him, not only bore a part in thoſe excellent Graces that adorn'd Him living, but after his Death, ingrafting, as it were, upon Her Self the whole, Shone forth a moſt illuſtrious Pattern of every humane and Chriſtian Virtue. Sincerely pious, unaffectedly Devout, Munificent, Hoſpitable, Charitable, Affable, & Courteous.

Stranger (if ſuch Thou Sh^st be to her Vertues) drop a Tear. Lament the Degeneracy of thy Times, and teach thy Self from this faint & too Faithleſs Record of her Merit, to imitate whom Thou muſt ſo Shortly Follow.

The monument is ornamented with the arms of Dawes, viz. Azure, three mullets argent, 2 and 1.

On a large marble pyramidal monument are the two following inſcriptions, written by the ſide of each other:

To

To the Memory of DANIEL ADEY, Esq^r. of Combe, who having thro' Life approv'd Himself a Character of Piety, Virtue, and general Usefulness to Mankind, left this World for the Rewards of a better on y^e 4^th of Feb. 1752, aged 86.
To the Memory also of ELIZABETH his Wife, who died March 5^th 1717, aged 52.
DANIEL, & FREDERICK, two Sons of THO^s CURTIS of the City of BRISTOL, Esq; His Grandsons, were buried here.

To the Memory also of DANIEL ADEY, Esq^r. of Sinwell, who died on the 11^th of Nov^r. 1763, aged 67 Years.
Mrs. BRIDGED ADEY, the Wife of DANIEL ADEY, Esq; of SINWELL, was Here buried on the 11^th of October 1740, in y^e 41^st year of her ege.
Interred Here also lye six of their Sons and two Daughters, with two Children unbaptised. One other Son lies buried at WICKWAR.

Over the first inscription are these arms, Baron and femme, 1. Argent, on a bend azure three leopards faces caboshed Or, for Adey. impaling 2. Azure, three cinquefoils argent, on a chief indented Or, three annulets gules.

Over the second inscription, Adey, as before, impaling Azure, a lion rampant argent, for Crew.

Near the Dawes's monument,

H. S. E.

Elizabetha filia Mauritij Trotman uxor Gul. Nelmes de Cam; cui peperit Johannem Nelmes de Bradstone Cap: Mariam Roberto Hoskins de Wotton connubio junctam; Janam Gulielmo Gardiner de Stroude; Lydiam Thomæ Dawes de Bradley; Saram Gulielmo Stokes de Horton; Insigne pietatis erga Deum et charitatis erga egenos præcipuè verbi divini ministros exemplar. cum vixisset Lxxv annos supremum diem in Domino obiit Feb. xxvi A. D. MDCLXXXXII°. Hic etiam reponuntur reliquiæ Saræ Uxoris Gulielmi Stokes de Horton Gen. et Gul. Nelmes de Cam Gen. filiæ Obiit et Quievit Maij 24° Anno Æræ Christianæ 1691. Elizabetha eorum filia e cunabulis ad cœlum evasit August 28° 1691 Ætatis suæ primo.

Near the last,

In Memory of ELIZABETH Wife of IOHN NELMES, of this Town MAYOR, who being seized (in time of Child-birth) with the Small-pox, departed this life Oct. 21, 1713, Ætat. suæ 26.

Her virtues could not be buried, who having exactly copied Solomon's excellent woman, was Summoned to receive the fruit of her hands and to leave her works to praise her in the gates.

Filia, Uxor, Mater,
Fœminarum Decus Eximium
LYDIA also D. of IOHN NELMES Aged 16 days
Also Iohn Nelmes, Esq;

A very estimable Pattern of Temperance, Prudence, Integrity, and Justice, Useful in Council, careful in Trust, and steady in Principle. He discharged with a becoming Credit the uarious Duties of Life in w^ch he was concerned. He was an uncommon Example of Patience, & even Chearfulness (that Temper so peculiarly Christian) in as uncommon a series of Pain & Torture, from which God was graciously pleased to release him on 15 Nov^r. 1742, Aged 61.

Inscribed on an elegant marble monument, ornamented with the arms of Adey:

This Monument
is erected to preserve the Memory of WILLIAM ADEY
of COMB in this Parish Esq^r; who having for several years
laboured under an infirm state of Body, at length calmly resigned up his Soul into the Hands of his Creator on the 31^st of July 1765:
Aged 67 Years.

In the chancel are the following: Round the verge of a grey marble flat stone, which had a brass plate fixed on it, with the figure of a man, now torn off, are these lines in Saxon characters:

Natus in hâc villa cognomine dictus ab illâ
Qui Rector fuit hic, aptum nomenq; sibi sic
R. de Wottonâ jacet hic, cui cælica dona,
Impetret ipsa pia pulcherrima virgo Maria. Amen.

In the middle of the stone,

Es mihi virgo pia, Dux et Lux, sancta Maria.

On a white marble tablet,

Juxta Hoc Marmor Mortales deponuntur Exuviæ Thomæ Rouse Arm. cui Hoc Oppidum natalem Locum dedit. Iuris-Prudentia primos Iuventutis Labores exercuit, in Quâ curruete Ætate notabiliter sagacem eximiumq; se præstitit. Hactenus aptissime instructus ad Iustitiarii Munus—evectus fuit, in Quo pari et fæliciſſima Iustitiæ et Misericordiæ Temperantia Se gerens, modo Mansuetudine, modo Authoritate valens,——— Provinciam hanc cum Dignitate perfunctus est. Neque privatæ vitæ Officiis indecoram egit Partem, Seu Maritum, Parentem, Amicum, aut Vicinum respicimus, Seu denique Comitem imprimè alacrem, urbanum et facillimum. Obiit 28° Feb. 1737, Æt. 63.

Nec non Ianæ dilectissimæ ejus Uxoris quæ Marito non diu superstes Obiit 8° Oct. 1740, Æt. 69.

Near the above,

Near this place lyes interred Iane eldest daughter of Mr. Thomas Rous of this Town, and Wife of Mr. Thomas Coster of Redbrooke in this County, who left this life for a better the 7^th Day of June 1721, Aged 23 years.

She was an obedient daughter, a true Friend, and an excellent Wife. She lived in the exact practice of Piety and Virtue, and dyed with a perfect Resignation of herself to the Will of her Maker.

Upon the monument are these arms, Baron and femme, 1. Ermine, a chevron per pale Or and sable, for Coster; impaling, 2. Or, an eagle displayd azure, for Rouse.

On a tablet of white marble,

In Memory of MARY BLAGDEN, Widow, Daughter of Daniel Adey, Esq; of Comb in this Parish. She resigned her soul to God who gave it on the ninth Day of September, in the Year 1761, Aged 75.

Arms, Baron and femme, 1. Sable, three trefoils slipt argent, on a chief indented Or three annulets gules, for Blagden; impaling, 2. Adey, as before.

In the south aile: A raised marble tomb, with this inscription:

Ego Domina ELIZABETHA LONG filia natu maxima GEORGII MASTER de Cirencestria in Com. Glouces. Armigeri primo connubio juncta EDVARDO OLDISWORTH de Bradley in hac parochia Armig. deinde GVALTERO LONG de Draicott-Cerne in agro Wilt. Equiti aurato, ex hac uita discessi Nou. 14° A° S^tis MDCLVIII Ætatis 58 et hîc requiesco, at Resurgam.

The tomb is decorated with two scutcheons at the head, one bearing the arms of Master, impaling, Gules, three crescents argent, a chief ermine; the other, Master, impaling, Argent, on a fess sable three plates fretty of the second. There are also two scutcheons at the foot, on one Oldisworth, impaling Master; on the other, 1. Azure, a lion rampant, and semi of cross croslets argent, for Long, impaling, 2. Master.

Upon the table of a well executed monument,

Resurrectionem in Christo hic expectat reveren. Dn. Robertus Web, pietate comitate et Charitate vix ulli secundus, ut dives sic largus opum qui vivus pauperes paterno amore fovit, et moriens testamento cavit, ut in æternum e fundis suis viginti et sex libræ quotannis in egenos erogarentur ita ut quatuor solidi unoquoque die dominico in templo finitis precibus matutinis viginti quatuor indigentibus Wottoniæ ubi vixit, totidemque Regisylve* ubi natus distribuerentur. Hisce moribus qualis esset testatum reliquit, monumentumq; sibi in animis hominum diutius mansurum struxit, quâm hoc quod memoriæ eius, amoris & coniugalis fidei ergo suis sumptibus posuit Anna charissima uxor filia Ricardi Draper Mercatoris Londinensis quæ illi Annam unicam filiam peperit, Nicholao Web de Ashwick in Com. Glouc. Gen. connubio iunctam. Obijt totius vicinæ lachrymis defletus 14° Jan. A. S. 1662 Ætat. 74.

ROBERTUS WEB
O TU REBUS UBER

Te Deus UBERtim ditavit REBUS opimis:
Pauper inopsque tuis REBUS et UBER erat.
UBER TU semper nam quæ donantur egenis
Has tecum solas semper habebis opes
Fama perennis erit præclari nominis; et si
In cineres abeas author, at extat opus
Cavisti prudens, jejunos qui tot alebas
Vivus, ne pereant te moriente simul
Iam vivant inopes, dum vivunt, tu quoque vives,
REBUS ut UBER eras, REBUS et UBER eris.

In a scutcheon at top of the monument, Party per pale, 1. R. W. the initials of Robert Web, impaling 2. Sable, a cross moline Or, for Draper.

3. Near

* Kingswood in Wiltshire.

Near the foregoing,

THOMAS GRAIL MEDICINÆ PROFESSOR IN QVA NON MEDIOCRITER VERSATUS, GALENI METHODO ET VESTIGIJS MAXIME INSISTENS NON SINE OPTATO SUCCESSU ET APPLAUSU MUNUS OBIVIT, QUI ESTI NON TOTO ORBI TAMEN VICINIÆ SALUTIFER FUIT ET JUVAMEN ALIJS QUOD SIBI PRÆSTARE NON POTUIT, PRÆSTITIT; APOPLEXIÂ LABORANS VITAM JUN: V° A. S. MDCLXIX° ÆTATIS LXI° FINIVIT. IN CUJUS MEMORIAM UXOR EJUS SARAH FILIA LAURENTIJ POTS MERCATORIBUS ANGL: METELLIBURGI SACELLANI HOC MONUMENTUM EXTRUI CURAVIT.

Here Underneath Interr'd doth lie
One that bids Thee prepare to die.
I lov'd in upright Paths to go,
Physick my Practice was, but loe
Death is too Stronge for Any Man,
For Physick and Physitian.

Inscribed on a handsome marble monument,

Near this Place are deposited the Remains of WILLIAM ADEY of Uley in this County *Esq*r Whose Military Abilities exerted in the Service of his Country acquired him the Rank of *Lieut. Col*l. in the 68th Regiment. In his private Character he discharged the social Duties of Life with Tenderness & Humanity. He died the 7th Novr. 1763, Aged 39. His Widow's Affectionate Regard to his Memory caused this Monument to be erected.

At top are these arms, Baron and femme, 1. Adey, impaling, 2. Azure, on a chevron between three fleurs de lis Or, as many mullets of the field, for Gyde, having married Anne, sister to Timothy Gyde, of Uley, esq; which Anne is since deceased.

Near the foregoing,

M. S.
Richardi Osborne de Wortley Arm:
Quem mira Animi alacritas,
Nuda Veritas, Moresq; puri,
Charum reddiderunt ac bonis flebilem,
Humanitas Egenis desideratissimum,
Gravissimos Arthritidis cruciatus
Per Annos quamplurimos sustinuit
Tali constantia ac fortitudine
Qualem sola ministrat Virtus,
Ac vere Christiana Fides.
Labefacto tandem ac devicto corpore,
Animam pie et placide efflavit,
Die Aprilis 28 A. D. 1749 Æt. 60.
Juxta requiescit
Quicquid terrestre fuit Saræ Osborne,
Prædicti Conjugis dilectissimæ.
Ob. Jan. 25, 1742, Æt. 51.
Nec non eorum seq; Liberorum
Johannis Infantis
Richardi, Ob. Dec. 12, 1723, Æt. 6.
Thomæ, Ob. Julij 25, 1736, Æt. 17.
Gulielmi Infantis.

The arms on this monument are, Baron and femme, 1. Argent, a bend between two lioncels rampant sable; impaling, 2. Blagden, as before.

Placed over Mr. Veel's family seat,

Maria Uxor Thomæ Veel filij Thomæ Veel de Alveston in Com. Gloc. Armig. filia vero Henrici Butler de Hanly in Agro Dorcestriense Armig. immaturos ex itineris molestijs gemellos enixa, non sine maximo conjugis dolore expiravit Dec. 16 A. D. 1658° Æt. 24°.

Huc usq; peregrina, nunc domi.
My Journey's at an end my travaile's done,
I'm brought to bed, and now I am at home.
Maria Veel
irâ me leva
Me Deus oppressit; quis ab illius at levet ira?
Me Christus velet, liberet, atque levet.
3d Gen. 16.
1 Tim. 2-15.

Against the wall, in the nave of the church,

M. S. GVLIELMI WILLET FILIJ NATU MAXIMI RADVLPHI WILLET GENEROSI, QVI PHTHISI LABORANS PIE ET PLACIDE MORTALE CORPUS DEPOSVIT SEPT. 11 A. D. 1657, ÆTATIS SVÆ 22 ANIMA VERO FIDVCIA SALVTIS ETSI JNPRIMIS LANGVIDA TANDEM VIVIDA ET CERTA ERECTA CÆLVM ADIBAT: QVO ET SVSANNÆ SORORIS, PETRI ET MATTHÆI WILLET FRATRVM ANIMULÆ, NON MVLTO ANTE TRANSLATÆ, EXPECTANT VNA FELICITATIS CONSUMMATIONEM.
ONE HOVSE, NAY WOMBE THESE FOVRE ONCE HAD, ONE GRAVE THEYR BODIES NOW, THEIR SOVLES ONE HEAVEN HAVE.
DEATH DOTH NOT THEM DIVORCE BVT AS THEY WERE JN LIFE VNITED NOW IN DEATH THEY ARE.
JN THEM THERE WAS WHAT E'RE DESERVED PRAISE
THEY WANTED NOVGHT COVLD BE DESIR'D BUT DAYES.
JN SPRING THEYR AVTUMNE WAS, TOO RIPE THEY WERE TOO HOPEFVLL, PIOVS, PRETTY TO BE HERE
PRESERVERS WEAK ARE STONES, THEIRE NAMES SHALL LAST WHEN BRASSE AND MARBLE VNTO DUST SHALL WASTE.
Gulielmus Willet
Luget jllum Levius.
HIC VIVUS TOTIES PROPTER PECCATA DOLEBAT
VT MADIDÆ LACHRYMIS NOCTE DIEQVE GENÆ.
CONSTITERAT QVOCVNQVE LOCO PECCATA VIDEBAT
ANTE OCCVLOS HABVIT CRIMINA CVNCTA SVOS.
NON CITHARÆ CANTVS, NON VESTES, PRÆDIA LARGA
NON CORDI MVNDI REGIA QVICQVID HABET.
PANIS ERANT LACHRYMÆ, POTVM, VICTVMQVE PEROSVS
CONFECTVS MACIE, FVNERIS JNSTAR ERAT.
LONGA REFERRE MORA EST, PER QVOT DISCRIMINA, PLANCTVS
PECCATO, SATANA, MORTE, TROPHEA TVLIT.
PER CHRISTVM TANDEM VICTOR, CARET ATQVE PERICLI
LUGET EVM LEVIVS QVISQVIS AMICVS ERAT.

Near the foregoing,

Near this Place lie the Remains of EDWARD GREGORY,
Son of ABRAHAM GREGORY S. T. P.
Born at GLOUCESTER,
Educated at EATON SCHOOL,
Afterwards STUDENT of CHRIST CHURCH in OXFORD
And at the Taking of VIGO under ADMIRAL ROOKE, CHAPLAIN to the TORBAY Man of War:
Sometime Lecturer of All Hallows Staining in London
And lastly VICAR of this Parish,
Where he continued above Thirty Years,
Indefatigable in the Duties of his Function,
Loving and beloved by his Parishioners.
At length worn out with a lingering Illness
He quitted this Life in Hopes of a Better
October 31, 1738, Aged 62.
EDWARD, ABRAHAM, THOMAS, & FRANCIS,
Out of a true Love & filial Piety,
Erected this Monument
To the Memory of their Father.

Arms, Or, two bars azure, in chief a lion passant of the second.

Benefactions.

Lady Catherine Berkeley, widow of Thomas lord Berkeley, founded a free grammar school in this place 8 R. 2. and endowed it with forty marks a year. A licence to purchase land in Nubbely, Stancombe, and Woodmancot, for its maintenance, was obtained at the same time; and Walter Burnel, and others, were made feoffees of two acres, seven messuages, and a garden in Wotton-underedge, for the use of the same school. The master is appointed by the Smyths of Nibley, and the bishop of the diocese is visitor. The master has 40*l.* a year, and a house. Ten boys have 4*l.* a year each from ten to eighteen years of age, who wear caps and gowns. There is besides an overplus of income of about 20*l.* a year, applied to the maintaining one or more of the boys at the university, or putting them out apprentices.

Robert Dudley, earl of Leicester, descended from the Berkeley family, founded an hospital at Warwick 13 Eliz. for twelve poor men, wounded in the wars; but if there should be none such, then two poor men out of Wotton-underedge are to be placed in the hospital.

Lady Anne, countess of Warwick, gave the new Tolsey to the use of the town, and the rest of the tenements belonging to it to the poor. She likewise built an almshouse at Cheney in Buckinghamshire, 38 Eliz. and appointed that two of the almsfolks should be from this place, with an allowance of 5*l.* a year each. Henry lord Berkeley, upon agreement with her, for the manor of Wotton, confirmed this donation 7 Jac. 1.

Sir Richard Venn, knight, alderman of London, and a native of this parish, gave 10*l.* a year to the poor, poor, charged on his lands in Wotton and Nibley. He alſo gave two large ſilver flaggons for the ſervice of the communion table, beſides other gifts to the town and poor.

Hugh Venn, of this pariſh, clothier, gave 20*s.* a year out of lands in North Nibley, and a tenement in Durſley, worth 30*s.* a year, to the poor.

Margaret Mallows, of London, widow, gave money, with which Cauſeway-mead and Mill-mead were purchaſed, for the uſe of the poor, by deed dated Dec. 1, 1619, 17 Jac.

Hugh Perry, eſq; alderman of London, and a native of this place, built an almſhouſe for ſix men and ſix women, with a chapel, and appointed a weekly lecture to be preached in the pariſh church, and prayers to be read twice a week to the almſpeople, for which the miniſter receives 5*l.* a year. The lectureſhip, afterwards increaſed with 6*l.* a year by Richard Meads, is now 18*l.* a year, and is given to ſix clergymen. He gave lands worth 50*l.* a year, and upwards, for the maintenance of his charity; and in 1630, joined with his father-in-law, ſir Richard Venn, in erecting an aqueduct to convey water from a ſpring in Edbrook-field to the market-croſs.

Sir Jonathan Dawes, ſheriff of London, and ſon of Robert Dawes of this pariſh, clothier, left 1000*l.* with which his widow purchaſed lands in Hill, for the uſe of the poor, and the application of the rents has ſince been ſettled by decree in chancery.

William and Robert Hyett, nephews of ſir Jonathan Dawes, gave 600*l.* to the poor of this their native place; which ſum was laid out in the purchaſe of lands at Wotton and Berkeley, in or about 1693.

Thomas Dawes, of Bradley, eſq; gave an eſtate at Bournſtream, worth near 30*l.* a year, to the poor; and likewiſe gave a fire-engine to the town.

Joan Gower, or Cooper, widow, gave a tenement and cloſe in Bradley-ſtreet in Wotton, worth 4*l.* a year, to the poor.

Robert Webb, of Sinwell, clothier, gave 4*s.* weekly to be diſtributed every Sunday to the poor, and 40*s.* yearly to forty poor houſholders, at 1*s.* each, on St. Thomas day, for ever; the money to be paid out of an eſtate called the Grange in Kingſwood.

Robert Hale, of Alderley, eſq; father of lord chief juſtice Hale, gave the reverſion of an eſtate in Rangeworthy, worth 26*l.* a year, to the poor. And Margaret Hale, widow, gave the reverſion of lands in Rockhampton, worth 7*l.* a year, to the ſame uſe.

The old almſhouſe, and eighteen tenements beſide, are given for the benefit of the poor, but the donor is not known.

The church houſe, with the tenements in Simlane, a tenement near the Horſe-pool, and William Wallington's houſe, are given for the repair of the church.

Richard Meades, alderman of this town, gave 6*l.* a year to fix miniſters for preaching a lecture, as already mentioned, and a like ſum to be diſtributed annually on the 2d of February, to the poor; no perſon to have more than 5*s.* nor leſs than 2*s.* 6*d.* each.

The feoffees of the market, with the approbation of the mayor and aldermen, gave 50*l.* towards recovering the grammar ſchool, and ſettling it in truſtees; 100*l.* towards improving the vicarage; and 80*l.* towards the maintenance of the curate.

John Okes, M. A. a native of this place, by his will, gave 600*l.* and upwards for the uſe of the church of Wotton, and 20*l.* to the poor; and bequeathed his library to the pariſh.

George lord Berkeley built the old gallery in the year 1626.

Mrs. Sarah Winſton, in 1686, gave a large ſilver paten for the communion table.

The honourable colonel Morton gave the timber for the charity working ſchool, in the year 1714.

Mr. William Bailey, of this pariſh, clothier, in 1721, gave 20*l.* to the poor, and 20*l.* in truſt for the uſe of the charity ſchool, for ever.

Richard Oſborne, of Wortley, eſq; in 1722, gave 3*l.* per ann. viz. 10*s.* for a charity ſermon, and 50*s.* to the charity ſchool.

Mrs. Mary Blagden, of Nind, in the year 1723, gave 20*l.* in truſt, to be diſtributed every Good Friday in bread to the poor of the hoſpital; and 10*l.* for the benefit of the charity ſchool.

In 1734, Mr. Thomas Blagden gave a crimſon velvet pulpit cloth.

In 1748, Richard Oſborne, eſq; gave a crimſon velvet cloth for the communion table, and two ſilver plates for the offertory.

William Moore, eſq; gave the rich chandelier, in 1763.

The ſame year, Mr. Robert Purnell bequeathed 550*l.* for bread for ſuch poor inhabitants as have not received alms; and 100*l.* to the charity ſchool.

And in 1769, Mr. Edward Bearpacker gave 100*l.* to the charity ſchool.

Wotton.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	42	16	0
	Poll-tax — 1694,	—	64	8	0
	Land-tax — 1694,	—	107	15	4
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	74	8	3

Sinwell and Bradley.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	82	12	0
	Poll-tax —— 1694,	—	23	4	0
	Land-tax —— 1694,	—	143	16	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	111	0	0

Simondſhall and Combe.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	72	4	0
	Poll-tax —— 1694,	—	18	2	0
	Land-tax —— 1694,	—	72	0	0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	54	3	0

Wortley.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	73	8 0
	Poll-tax — — 1694, —		9	11 0
	Land-tax —— 1694, -		39	3 0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		29	5 0

Huntingford.

Taxes.	The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	26	6 0
	Poll-tax —— 1694, —		2	8 0
	Land-tax —— 1694, —		20	2 0
	The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770, —		14	17 6

At the beginning of this century, there were 840 houſes, and about 3500 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 70 were freeholders; yearly births 81, burials 78. Atkyns. There are now near 4000 inhabitants.

YATE.

THIS pariſh lies in the hundred of Henbury, one mile diſtant weſt from Chipping Sodbury, ten north-eaſt from the city of Briſtol, and thirty-one ſouthward from Glouceſter.

It is written Giete in Domeſday, of which the ſignification is uncertain. It is ſituated in a flat part of the vale, with a large tract of common belonging to it, lying open to the commons of Weſterleigh and Rangeworthy.

Of the natural productions of this place, the moſt remarkable are, a little lead ore, ſome calamine ſtone, and great plenty of pit-coal. There is alſo a remarkable rock of ſtone, called the White Lays, which runs through Yate, Cromhall, Thornbury, Almondſbury, Clifton, and acroſs the Avon to the Leigh and Mendip in Somerſetſhire; and taking a large ſweep from thence eaſtward, returns a little ſhort of Lanſdown, to Wick, Sodbury, and ſo to Yate, forming a circle of fourteen or fifteen miles in diameter; and it is ſaid that coal may be dug every where within the circumference of that circle. I will not vouch for the abſolute truth of this opinion, but it is certain, that there now are or have been coal mines in moſt of the places within theſe limits. The white lay ſtone is a kind of marble, and burns into a ſtrong lime of an exquiſite whiteneſs.

The ſoil in general is rich and fertile, and the lands are employ'd in dairy and grazing. Great improvements might be made by incloſing the waſtes and commons, yet it may not be expedient to incloſe them, as it would incapacitate many poor families from purſuing their preſent buſineſs, who now employ themſelves in carrying coal from the pits to ſell round about the country, and depaſture their horſes on theſe commons.

One of the lord Berkeleys built a handſome ſeat here, which was called Yate Court. It was moated round, and Maurice lord Berkeley, the fifth of that name, reſided there ſome time. It was garriſoned by the parliament's forces in the great civil war, who burnt it, and it was never rebuilt afterwards.

Thomas Neal, the learned Hebrew Profeſſor in the univerſity of Oxford, was born in this pariſh. He died and was buried at Caſſington in Oxfordſhire, in the year 1590.

Of the Manor and other Eſtates.

At the time of the general ſurvey, this place was a member of the great manor of Hueſberie, in the hundred of Bernintreu, as appears by the extract from Domeſday relating to Weſtbury, p. 800. At that time the manor of Weſtbury belonged to the church of Worceſter, but Yate paſſed ſoon afterwards into lay hands.

Ralph de Willington and Olympia his wife purchaſed the manor of Yate of Robert d' Evercide 9 Joh. and Richard de Willington died ſeized of it, and of markets within it, 2 H. 3. Ralph de Willington had a licence to erect a caſtle in this place 21 E. 1. and John de Willington held the manor of Yate, with free warren, 3 E. 2. and died in the 12th year of king Edward the Third. Sir Ralph de Willington was ſummoned as a peer to parliament, and died ſeized of Yate 22 E. 3. Reginald de Willington was his uncle and heir, and ſir John de Willington was ſeized of the manor of Yate 2. R. 2. Sir John Paulet, in right of Margaret his wife, was ſeized of Yate 15 R. 2. and Ralph de Willington, grandſon and heir of ſir John de Willington, died ſeized of this manor 19 R. 2. and John de Willington, uncle and heir of Ralph, had livery of Yate, and of the advowſon of the church, 20 R. 2.

Iſabel the daughter of William Beaumont was ſeized of Yate 2 H. 6. as was Iſabel the widow of ſir Thomas de la Rivere in the 15th year of the ſame reign. Philip Beaumont, eſq; was alſo ſeized of this manor 13 E. 4. Hugh Beaumont and Elizabeth his wife, John Baſſet and Elizabeth his wife, John Beaumont, clerk, John Chicheſter and Margaret his wife, John Croker and Anne his wife, levied ſeveral fines of the manor of Yate to Richard biſhop of Durham and other biſhops, to John earl of Oxford, ſir Giles D'Aubeny, and to ſeveral other great perſons 16 H. 7. Giles lord D'Aubeny had a grant of this manor from the crown, and died ſeized of it 6 H. 8. and livery was granted to his ſon Henry lord D'Aubeny the ſame year.

The manor of Yate was granted to Edward duke of Somerſet, and after its reverting to the crown upon that duke's attainder, it was granted to James Baſſet 4 Mar. and was again granted to Arthur Baſſet 7 Eliz.

Mr. Oxwick was lord of the manor at the beginning of this century; but ſir Francis Knollis is the preſent lord of the manor.

Stanſhaw is an antient manor in this pariſh. Elizabeth Stanſhaw was ſeized of the manors of Stanſhaw and Yate 13 H. 4. Robert Stanſhaw, eſq; was alſo ſeized of the manors of Stanſhaw and and Yate 12 E. 4. Mr. Stokes is the preſent owner of Stanſhaw, where he has a good houſe and eſtate. His arms are, Sable, a lion rampant, his tail double, ermine; and the family arms upon the monument at Wickwar ſhould have been the ſame.

Brimſham is another manor in this pariſh, which continued for many generations in the name and family of the Burnells, from the reign of king Edward the Third. Thomas Burnell, the laſt heir male of that family, married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Cheſter, of Knole, eſq; and dying without iſſue, gave this manor to Thomas Cheſter, brother to his wife.

One part of the pariſh is diſtinguiſhed by the name of Church End, the other by Hall End. In the latter diviſion the late Richard Hill, eſq; had a good eſtate, which is now the property of Mr. Veel, of Simondſhall.

Of the Church, &c.

The church is a rectory, in the deanery of Hawkeſbury, worth about 190*l.* a year, to which the reverend Mr. Thomas Tournay, (now D.D.) was preſented in 1765, by William Tournay, eſq; patron for that turn only. The glebe is worth about 80*l.* a year.

The church is dedicated to St. Mary. It is built with a croſs aile on each ſide. The chancel has alſo an aile on each ſide; and there is a large handſome tower at the weſt end. The ſouth aile belongs to the manor of Stanſhaw, and the north aile to that of Yate.

The lands which belonged to a chapel in this church were granted to Francis Maurice and Richard Moor 6 Jac.

Firſt fruits	£.	27	16	4	Synodals £.	0	2	0
Tenths	—	2	14	10½	Pentecoſtals	0	1	4
Procurations		0	6	8

Monuments and Inſcriptions.

There is a large braſs plate fixt upon a flat ſtone, upon which are engraven the figures of a man between his two wives, Avis, and Elizabeth, with eleven children, and under them this inſcription:

Corpus Alexandri Staples lapis iſte tuetur:
Spiritus ætherea ſede beatus erit.
Rurſus ſupremum tuba cum taratantara clanget
Spiritui junget mortua membra Deus.
Tercentum luſtris octodenoq; fluente,
Bernardi, a Chriſto, concidit ipſe die
Saxum hoc mœſta ſuo ponebat Eliza marito
Conjugij ſignum quod pietatis erit.
22° Auguſti. 1590.

On a plate of braſs fixt to a flat ſtone in the chancel,

Hic iacet corpus Hodges Godwin, jun. armigeri, Legum Angliæ periti, qui obijt 2° die Novemb. Anno Dni 1677, Spe Beatæ Reſurrectionis, Ætatis ſuæ 40.

Upon a freeſtone monument in the chancel,

Juxta hunc tumulum reconditur urna continens cineres Henrici Wogan armig: qui natus apud Wiſton in Comitat. Pembroke e familia antiqua, obijt apud Yate in Comitat. Gloſter. 1° die Febr. Anno Ætat. 22° Annoq; Dni 1661.

Vivit poſt funera Virtus.

The arms are obliterated.

There is a monument for William Maſon, rector of this pariſh, who died in 1740, and for his wife, and ſeveral of their family, with their arms, viz. Baron and femme, 1. Party per pale Or and azure, a chevron counterchanged between three billets ſable, for Maſon. 2. Argent, on a chevron gules three roſes of the field.—There are alſo memorials for Richard Hill, of this pariſh, eſq; who died in 1755.—For Mary Rouſe, daughter of Thomas Rouſe of Wotton-underedge, eſq; who died in 1759.—For Richard Wallington, rector of this pariſh, who died in 1764.—And for Thomas Blagden; but there is nothing in them that can be the leaſt inſtructive or entertaining.

Taxes.

The Royal Aid in 1692,	£.	119	4	0
Poll-tax — — 1694,	—	55	17	0
Land-tax —— 1694,	—	375	11	0
The ſame, at 3*s.* 1770,	—	280	9	3

At the beginning of this century, there were 80 houſes, and about 320 inhabitants in this pariſh, whereof 26 were freeholders; yearly births 8, and burials 7. Atkyns. But it appears by the regiſter, that the average of baptiſms in ten years, beginning with 1700, was 10.4, and of burials 7.7. And in the ſame number of years, beginning with 1760, the average of baptiſms was 13.6, and of burials 12.1; by which it appears that the pariſh increaſes in population, and there are now about 412 inhabitants.

F I N I S.

APPENDIX.

Containing GRANTS, CHARTERS, CONFIRMATIONS, and other PAPERS of conſiderable Length, referred to in the Body of the Work.

NUMBER I.

The Bounds of the Foreſt of Dean, as ſet forth at a Juſtice Seat held at Glouceſter, 10 Edw. I.

THE bounds of the foreſt of Dean begin at Gloceſter bridge, and ſo extend themſelves by the thread of the water of Severn, going down the ſame unto a place where the river of Wye falls into the Severn, and ſo going by Wye unto the bridge of Strogoyle *, and ſtill aſcending by Wye to the paſſage of the caſtle of Goodrich, and ſo unto Dunneſcroſs, and ſo, by a certain path called Peveſley, unto Alecune, and ſo by the brook of Alecune unto the public road coming from Roſſe unto an aſh beyond Weſton, and ſo by the highway beyond the bridge unto a certain tree called Halletree †, and ſo by the highway unto the millpond of Birctune, which is Richard Talebot's, and ſo by the highway unto a certain croſs called Lucecroſs, and ſo by the highway of Gorſteley unto Gorſteley's foorde, and ſo deſcending by the brook unto the bridge of Oxenhalle, and ſo by the king's highway unto the bridge of the prior of Newent, and by the ſame highway unto the bridge of Glouceſter.

* Now Chepſtow.

† Now Bollatree.

NUMBER II.

The Names of the Vills, &c. which had been afforeſted after the Coronation of Hen. II. and which, by the Commiſſioners in the Reign of King Edw. I. ought to be diſafforeſted.

THE vill of Biriton which Richard Talebot holds, the vill of Ekeleſwell with the wood, a moiety of the vill of the Lee, the vill of Weſton, the vill of Cokton which the ſaid Richard Talebot holds, the vill of Penyard with the wood which John Abadam holds, the vill of Welleford which John of Welleford holds, the vill of Hull, the wood of the biſhop of Hereford which is called Wydyhay, which the ſaid biſhop holds, the vill of Huwaldefelde with the wood and Herthull which the abbot of Tynterne holds, Alvynton, with the wood and apurtenances, which the prior of Lanthony of Glouceſter holds, a moiety of the vill of Aylbriton which the ſaid prior holds, a moiety of the vill of Lydenaye which the Earl of Warwick holds, the vill of Naſs which Walter of the ſame holds, Pyritone which John Abadam holds, Blakeneye (except the lands of Thomas Blakeney which he holds of onr lord the king in capite) the vill of Ettelaw which Maud de Chaward holds, Blideſlowe which the tenants of Alan Plokenet hold, Aure which Joan de Valence and Maud de Mortimer hold, Boxe which Sybil Pancener holds, Rodele which the abbot of Glouceſter holds, the vill of Sandforde under the way towards Severn (except the tenants of our lord the king of Blackeney unto the vill of Newenham) the vill of Staure, Elnetone, Clive, Adſcote, Rodelye, Chakeſhull, Stanetwey, Bolley, Menſtreworth, Dunye, Hamptone, Morecote which Pury of Lancaſtre holds, Weſtbury, Overlye, Netherlye, Beffeley, with the woods which Nicholas de Ba, Roger de Borowhulle, and Nicholas de Gamage hold in purparty, a moiety of the vill of Bleckedone which Ralph de Abbenhale and Elias de Blackeney hold, Sebyche with the wood of Birdwode and other appurtenances, Moretone, Lylletone, Hynnham with the wood which is called Pyrareſgrave which the abbot of Glouceſter holds, Overe which the ſaid abbot holds, Balley which Philip de Lude holds, Thybertone which William Long holds, a certain part of Redeford which the abbot of Glouceſter holds, Tayntone, with the groves which extend from Hymteley by the middle of Northfield unto the mill which is called Abbelandes-Mulne, a certain part of Ocheley, Shawe, Southorte, Malewyke, which the prior of Newent holds, Little Teyntone, which Bogo de Onevile holds, Newent (except Loxelond and a moiety of Nyweſtrete.

NUMBER III.

Perambulation of the Foreſt of Dean towards the end of the Reign of King Charles II.

THE metes and bounds of the foreſt begin at Hope's Well in the Purlieu green, and thence on the left hand between the counties of Glouceſter and Hereford unto Bereley's Green, and thence deſcending between the ſaid counties unto a certain ſtream called Biſhop's Brook, following the antient courſe thereof into the river of Wye, and ſo deſcending through the midſt of Wye unto a certain place called Juttline, and thence leaving Wye and aſcending a certain path or way called Slow-Path, into a place where formerly a yew tree grew (below Symon's Yatt) keeping the bounds between the counties aforeſaid, and thence deſcending down overthwart thoſe craggy rocks or hill unto Wye, and ſo deſcending through the midſt thereof unto a little ſtream running down by Lady-park wall, and ſo up that ſtream unto the corner of Lady-park grove, and thence aſcending up by that grove unto an old oak called Bellman's Oak, and thence turning ſhort on the left hand up a certain meadow or paſture called the Ridings unto a certain aſh, and from that aſh athwart that meadow or paſture ground unto a great beech on the ſouth ſide of the Ridding's Barn, and from that beech aſcending up a meer or ditch by a coppice wood or grove unto the upper end thereof, and thence to the Scars (being an edge of rocks) unto a certain well called St. John Baptiſt Well, and from thence to Staunton's Gate, and thence deſcending down the highway unto a great ſtone called Broadſtone, and thence to a well of water called Drybrook, and thence following the antient courſe thereof into the river of Wye, and ſo deſcending through the midſt of Wye unto a certain water called Brockwear's Brook, and ſo aſcending that brook or ſtream which is the bound between the pariſhes of Hewelsfield and St. Briavell's, until it cometh to Meerwall adjoining Mereſmore Well, and thence turning ſhort on the right hand by the upper end of a little mooriſh green unto the corner of a hedge adjoining to the common there called Harthill, and ſo leaving Harthill on the right hand, and the pariſh of St. Briavell's on the left hand, following the bound between the pariſhes of Hewelsfield and St.

St. Briavell's unto Ayleſmore Brook, and ſo deſcending that brook until it cometh unto Conebrook, following the ſtream thereof unto Alvington's Woods, and thence by the bounds of Rodmore Grove unto the lower corner thereof, and thence croſſing the ſtream there called Woodward's Brook unto a certain old meer or mound, and ſo up that mere or mound to a place called Stedfaſt Pound, (being an heap of ſtones which formerly was a pound) and thence following that meer or mound through Sir John Wintour's park unto Chelfredge Well, and from that well up the aforeſaid meer unto the highway leading from Breem to Lidney called Marleway, and then leaving the wood called Warwick's Tuff on the right hand unto a little ſtream called Meerbrook, and ſo deſcending that ſtream into Newarn's Brook, and down that brook by the antient courſe thereof unto the lower corner of the Sneed, and thence aſcending up a little ſtream called Lipmeer unto Yorkley Mead, and ſo directly up that mead or paſture unto the place in the wall where atiently an hazel grew called Tachment's hazel, and thence croſſing the highway unto Soilwell, and ſo following the ſtream thereof unto Tachment's ſtream (being the next ſtream on the left hand) and thence up that ſtream unto the upper corner of the Hey's grounds, and thence following the Hey's grove on the left hand unto the Hey's well, and ſo deſcending the ſtream thereof which is called Lanſbrook into the river of Severn (near Pirton's village) and ſo aſcending up through the midſt of Severn unto a certain place called Fullmeadow Pill, and ſo aſcending that ſtream unto Chicknell's Well, and thence to the highway leading from Awre to Awreleford, keeping the ſaid way until it cometh to Awreleford, and thence aſcending that brook unto a certain path called Shipway, and following that way unto a way called Rudgeway, and thence deſcending, leaving the manor or lordſhip of Ruddle on the right hand unto a certain water courſe riſing in a grove of Richard Hillgeat's, following the ſaid water courſe unto the river of Severn, and through the midſt thereof unto Newnham's Pill, and thence aſcending that ſtream unto a certain paſture formerly a grove called Piper's, (alias Palmer's grove) and thence up that ſtream unto the highway leading from Newnham to Dean, aſcending that highway unto Dean's hill, and thence leaving the bounds of the manor of Rodley on the right hand, and the hundred of St. Briavell's on the left hand unto the pool of Flaxley's Forge, and thence to Bleſdon, alias Blaiſdon's hedge, and thence to Poulton's Hill, and thence leaving the hundred of Weſtbury on the right hand unto Brimſtone's Yatt, and thence including the lands of the of Walmore to the highway leading towards Framulard, and thence to the leaving the ſaid hand round about it, and ſo to a place called White a certain way leading under the park of the Ley, and from that way unto a grove called Birchingrove, and from that grove unto Rareham, and from thence to the place where antiently was a mill called Seymor's Mill, and from that place to the brook of Bleſdon (alias Blaiſdon) aſcending that brook unto Gavell's Gate, (alias Gawlett's Yatt) and ſo aſcending that brook unto a little ſtream called Tinbridge Sych, and ſo ſtretching up by the ſaid ſtream between the woods late of the abbot of Flaxley, and the woods called Hope's Woods unto Hope's ſhard, and thence to a path called Juſty Path, and croſſing that path keeping ſtrait forwards unto the water that leadeth from Mitchel Dean, to Hope, and ſo croſſing over that water up under the edge of a coppice wood called Langrove, leaving it on the left hand unto the bounds of the pariſhes of Longhope and Mitchel Dean, and thence directly to Bradley Grove, leaving the grove on the right hand unto the little lane that leadeth from the highway into the ſaid grove, and ſo down that lane unto the highway, and thence unto Bradly Houſe, and thence athwart the meadow there unto Owley Grove, leaving the grove on the left hand unto a lane near the middle of the ſaid grove, and thence turning up the ſaid lane on the right hand, and croſſing the highway leading from Mitchel Dean to the Lea-line directly to Hannkin's Well, and thence athwart to the highway leading from Glouceſter towards Hereford by the Lealine tree, following the ſaid way to the ſaid line tree, and thence leaving a certain freedom of William Phillips on the left hand (being a cottage garden and about an acre of orchard cloſe adjoining to the ſaid line tree) and thence to a lane called Lane, and ſo up that lane unto a ditch and foot path in Owley Grove aforeſaid, (being at or near a place in the ſaid grove where we came out a little before) leading down through the grove unto a piece of paſture ground called the Nockolds, (being the ground under the grove) and thence leaving the hedge on the left hand, directly to the mill called Clacerford Mill, leaving the ſaid mill on the left hand, and then turning up a lane or highway leading towards Cawnadge until it cometh to the lane turning on the right hand towards the Lea Baily unto the hither ſide of a piece of ground called Cudley Broom, and then entering into the ſaid ground and leaving the hedge on the right hand unto the ground called the Noake, leaving it on the right hand, and thence croſſing Noakham Lane unto a well called Gingerly Well, and ſo deſcending from that well unto an oak called Walton's Oak, and thence turning upon the left hand by a certain little water courſe unto the upper end of a certain parcel of arable or paſture land called Udnells, directly to the upper end of Pouce Lane, and from that lane unto the yew tree in a certain parcel of paſture ground called Hartſhill, leaving a certain coppice grove on the right hand, and turning down under the Lea-Baily hedge unto a ſtream called Megtrance's Stream (being the firſt ſtream running out of the Lea-Baily) and ſo down that ſtream unto Hope's brook, and thence aſcending by a certain meer or old hedge to the lower end of a piece of paſture or arable land formerly a grove called Hooper's Grove, and thence along by the lower ſide of that ſaid paſture (formerly a grove) unto a certain yew tree in Blaſt's grounds near the brook running down from Hazeley, and ſo up that brook unto Hillam Lane, and ſo by the Baily-Hedge unto the Lea-Way, and thence turning on the left hand under the edge of the Lea-Baily unto the upper corner of the Lea-Baily, and thence athwart, leaving the foreſt on the left hand, and the purlieu of the biſhop of Glouceſter on the right hand, unto a certain place where antiently an oak did grow called Silver Oak, which was a meer and mark between the counties of Glouceſter and Hereford, in place whereof is a meer ſtone pitched, and thence to the bank near Blackwell Mead, following the ſame to the ſtream, and ſo down that ſtream unto Hope's Well.

The NAMES of the REGARDERS of the FOREST OF DEAN.

JOHN WITT
WILLIAM AILBERTON
THOMAS PYRKE
WILLIAM GOUGH
GEORGE BOND
GEORGE BERROW
CHRISTOPHER WOODWARD
EDWARD WHITE
THOMAS WORGAN
WILLIAM CARPENDER
JOHN BIRKYN
JEREMIAH HIET
EDWARD MORSE
GEORGE BOND, of Colford
EDWARD MACHEN
RICHARD NASH
THOMAS WALTER
EDWARD SKIN
WILLIAM BROWN

 The above perambulation was rode by the above regarders in the latter end of the reign of Charles the IId. from one of whom I had it, but whether any record thereof be to be found I know not.

MAY 29, 1767. WILLIAM GOUGH.

NUMBER IV.

The Order of the Court of Exchequer concerning the Miners digging Mine, Ore, and Cinders, in the Foreſt of Dean.

Glouc' Hillary, 10 Jac.

WHereas the 25th day of May, in Eaſter Term laſt, the court was informed by his majeſty's attorney general, that the king's majeſty by his letters patent under the great ſeal of England, had granted to the Right Hon. the Earl of Pembroke (inter alia) the mine, ore, and cinders, to be found out and gotten within the foreſt of Dean in the county of Glouceſter for 21 years, for the yearly rent of 243*l*. 6s. 8d. and that to the prejudice of his majeſty's farmer, one Thomas Monjoye the elder, Thomas Monjoye, the younger, John Hill, and others, mine diggers, and carriers of mine and cinders within the ſaid foreſt, do daily dig and carry away out of the ſaid foreſt the mine and ore there gotten; whereupon it was then ordered, that his majeſty's writ of injunction under the ſeal of this court ſhould be awarded to the ſaid parties, commanding them and every of them, upon pain of 500*l*. not to carry nor tranſport any of the mine and cinders to be digged or gotten in the ſaid foreſt, except they ſhould ſhew good cauſe to this court by or before the firſt Saturday of Trinity term then enſuing, and thereupon the court would then take other order, as by the ſaid recited order it plainly appears; whereupon the ſaid Monjoye and other the ſaid parties before mentioned came and by Mr. Eſcourte of their counſel named, informing this court that they were poor labouring men, and were wholly ſuſtained, with their wives and families, by digging and carrying of ſuch mine, ore, and cinder; acknowledging, as well by their anſwer to the ſaid information as by the counſel at the bar, the ſoil to be his majeſty's, and that they had no intereſt therein, humbly praying they might be permitted to continue their digging and carrying the ſaid mine, ore, and cinder, as they had been accuſtomed, having no other means to relieve their poor eſtates; whereof the court taking due conſideration, and upon the humble ſubmiſſion of the ſaid parties for their offences formerly paſt, and conſidering alſo that his majeſty's farmer of the the ſaid iron works, paying a great rent ſhould not be furniſhed of matter to keep his forges in work if the ſaid ore and cinder ſhould be carried away; it pleaſed the court to move that the ſaid parties before named, and ſuch others as have been accuſtomed to dig and get mine, ore, and cinder, in the ſaid foreſt, of charity and grace, and not of right, might be permitted, for the maintenance of their wives and children, who muſt by means of their labour live, to continue to dig for the ſaid mine, ore, and cinders, to be carried to his majeſty's forge and iron works within the ſaid foreſt, and not to any other place; and being paid for the ſame according to ſuch rates as they have been accuſtomed to ſell to other men before his majeſty leaſed the ſame; to which motion his ſaid majeſty's ſaid attorney general, in conſideration of the ſaid poor men's eſtates, did aſſent, it being as good for his majeſty's farmer to employ thoſe that are always exerciſed in the ſaid works as others; and thereupon it was then ordered by ſuch conſent as aforeſaid, that the ſaid parties above named, and ſuch others as have been accuſtomed to dig and get mine, ore, and cinders, in the ſaid foreſt, ſhould, of charity and grace, and not of right, be permitted to continue the digging and getting of the ſaid ore and cinders, ſo as they carry, or cauſe the ſame to be carried to his majeſty's iron works and forges, receiving for the ſame ſuch rateable price as they had been uſually accuſtomed to ſell to other men before his majeſty leaſed the ſame, until ſuch time as by the cauſe now depending by Engliſh bill, brought in the names of divers of the inhabitants by way of petition, their claims in the ſaid foreſt ſhall be heard and decreed, and thereupon this court will take other order: And for the better performance of the ſaid order, it was then alſo further ordered by the court, that his majeſty's writ of injunction ſhould be awarded to the ſaid parties aforenamed, to Thomas Maddock, John Gwillym, John Fryer, and to all other the inhabitants, diggers, miners, and workmen in the ſaid foreſt, for the due obſerving and performing of the ſaid order, upon pain of 100 l. to be levied upon him that ſhould break the ſame. Now, upon the motion of Mr attorney general this day in court, ſhewing, that notwithſtanding the ſaid former order and injuction, divers perſons inhabiting within the ſaid foreſt, have, ſince the ſaid order, carried out of the ſaid foreſt great quantities of cinder and mine ore unto other places, and not unto the king's works within the ſaid foreſt, as by the affidavit of William Whitefoot, of the pariſh of Chapel Hill, in the county of Monmouth, wiredrawer, made the 28th day of October, in Michaelmas term laſt paſt, and this day read in court, appeareth; and that thereupon proceſs of attachment being awarded againſt ſome of the ſaid perſons for the ſaid contempts, ſome of them have appeared this day in perſon, the coutt again entered into conſideration of ſome courſe to be taken for the moderate carrying away of the ſaid mine, ore, and cinder, from the king's works in the ſaid foreſt, to other places out of the ſaid foreſt, and yet having regard to the poverty of the ſaid inhabitants, who receive moſt part of their maintenance and relief thereby, for the better eſtabliſhing the ſaid matter hereafter have thought fit, and it is this day ſo ordered, that the inhabitants of the ſaid foreſt who have heretofore uſed to dig and carry mine ore, and cinder, ſhall be permitted, of favour and grace, and not of right, to continue the ſame until the hearing of the ſaid cauſe now depending by Engliſh bill as aforeſaid, ſo as they carry the ſame, or offer it, to the king's works; and if the ſame ſhall be refuſed by the farmers, or other officers of his majeſty's works, then the ſaid diggers and carriers of mine and cinders may ſell the ſame to any other works within and near about the ſaid foreſt, for the ſervice of ſuch works; and further, that no new diggers or carriers of mine and cinder, whereof the court is informed there are very many, ſhall hereafter be allowed, but only ſuch poor men as are inhabitants of the ſaid foreſt: And it is further ordered, that a commiſſion ſhall be drawn, with articles thereunto annexed, by ſuch as follow for the king, and the ſame to be ſhewed to the defendant's council; upon which, if they cannot agree, then the barons will conſider thereof, as alſo of the commiſſioners to be therein nominated, which commiſſioners ſhall have power to appoint what number of new diggers and carriers ſhall be allowed, and to conſider of their eſtate, quality, and condition, and at what rate they and all other the diggers and carriers of mine, ore, and cinder, ſhall ſell the ſame to the king's works, conſideration being had of the diſtance of places where the cinder and ore are digged, and the king's works to which they ſhall be carried, and to ſet down ſuch prices for the ſaid mine, ore and cinders, as ſhall be thought fitting in reſpect of their labour therein; and alſo when and in what manner they ſhall be paid for the ſame. And, as touching the two defendants, Randal Marks and William Sibborns, now appearing upon the aforeſaid attachments, it is ordered that they may, in the mean time till the commiſſion be executed, carry their ore and cinder to the king's works, at ſuch rates and prices as have been heretofore moſt uſually paid to them for the like, to be paid to them every two months, when the ſame ſhall be meaſured, and the reſt of the ſaid inhabitants, who have uſed to dig and carry mine, ore, and cinders, as aforeſaid, are in the like manner permitted to do; and if the farmer of the king's works refuſe to give the ſaid rates as is above mentioned, and ſuch other further rates as ſhall be appointed by the aforeſaid commiſſioners, then they are left at liberty to carry the ſame elſewhere, at their pleaſures to other works within and near about the ſaid foreſt, for the ſervice of ſuch other works: And touching the contempts of them, and all the other ſaid perſons, the court is pleaſed to ſuſpend them till the hearing of the ſaid cauſe.

NUMBER V.

A Paper delivered by the Inhabitants of the Foreſt, &c. to the Right Hon. Henry Lord Herbert, Lord Lieutenant of the County of Glouceſter, and Conſtable of the Caſtle of St. Briavell's, and the reſt of his Majeſty's Commiſſioners for the Foreſt of Dean.

WE who have hereunto ſubſcribed, being freeholders and inhabitants of the ſeveral pariſhes, towns, villages, and places, within the hundred of St. Briavell's and the perambulation of the foreſt of Dean, within the county of Glouceſter, and adjacent pariſhes thereunto, that is to ſay, St. Briavell's, Newland, Hualdsfield, Staunton, Bicknor, Ruardean, the Lea, Mitchel Dean, Little Dean, Flaxley, Bleeſdon, Abenhall, Newnham, Awre, Lidney, Alvington, Manor of Rodley, and Long Hope, taking into conſideration the exceeding great trouble your honours muſt of neceſſity be at, if every lawful commoner ſhould bring in his claim, or ſeverally make out his juſt right to common of paſtures, pannage, and eſtovers, that is to ſay, of houſe-boot, fire-boot, hay-boot, and other privileges, which he hath within the waſte ſoil of the ſaid foreſt of Dean, and the 18,000 acres formerly part thereof, but lately diſafforeſted by his majeſty's letters patent to Sir John Wintour, knt. have thought fit, as well on behalf of all the freeholders and inhabitants within the pariſhes, towns, villages, and places as aforeſaid, as of ourſelves alone, to preſent unto your honours, as in our claim (which we acknowledge to be unlawful, were it to be ſo done at a juſtice ſeat) the antient, lawful, and juſt rights and privileges, which we, they, and thoſe whoſe eſtate we and they do hold, have had, taken, and enjoyed for divers hundreds of years laſt paſt, until the uſurped power of the late Oliver Cromwell, as by the claim hereafter following more fully doth and may appear.

The aboveſaid freeholders and inhabitants within the ſeveral pariſhes, towns, villages, and places, of the hundred of St. Briavell's, do ſay, and each of them jointly, and ſeverally, and reſpectively, for themſelves, and every of them, ſaith: That by reaſon of their attendance and ſuit of court at the caſtle and manor of St. Briavell's aforeſaid, and by reaſon that the ſaid pariſhes, villages, and hundred, are within the peramblation of the foreſt of Dean; they have uſed and enjoyed in the ſaid foreſt, and in the woods and waſtes of the ſame, as belonging to their antient meſſuages, lands, and tenements, common of paſture, herbage, and pawnage, for all their commonable cattle, all times of the yearly freely, without attachment; and alſo common of eſtovers to be taken in the woods of the ſaid foreſt; that is to ſay, houſe-boot, for the reparation and amendment of their antient meſſuages, houſes and edifices of huſbandry thereunto belonging, and hey-boot for making incloſures about the ſame, and alſo convenient and neceſſary fire-boot to be ſpent in their ſaid antient meſſuages, and alſo liberty to dig and get lime-ſtone, tile-ſtone, and other ſtones neceſſary to be employed in and upon the ſaid antient meſſuages, lands, and tenements, and alſo to get and to make mill-ſtones and grindſtones, under and according to the government of the court of ſwanimote, and attachments, within the ſaid foreſt; paying therefore into his majeſty's exchequer the yearly rent of one penny, called ſwine ſilver or herbage money, and one penny called ſmoke penny, or mark money, for every houſe in the ſaid hundred, as by antient records it doth and may appear. And the miners and colliers within the ſaid hundred do ſay, that they and every of them have had, and do claim liberty to dig and get mine and coal in all places within the ſaid foreſt at their pleaſure and liberty; alſo to have and take ſufficient timber within the ſaid woods for their neceſſary ſupport, and building of the ſaid mines and coal works, according to their antient uſage and cuſtomed rents and duties to his majeſty for the ſame. And the freeholders and inhabitants of the hundred of Bledſloe do claim the ſame, and the like common paſture, herbage, pawnage, eſtovers, houſe-boot, and other the profits and commodities as unto their ſaid antient meſſuages, lands, and tenements belonging or appertaining, and under the ſame, or the like rents the hundred of St. Briavell's do pay. The tenants and owners of lands and tenements ments in the lordſhips of the dutchy, and Longhope, claim common of paſture and pawnage, and dead and dry wood only, to be had and taken within the waſte and woods of the ſaid foreſt. The town and pariſh of St. Briavell's ſay, that they uſually have had and taken within the waſte of his majeſty called Huddenalls, liberty to take and cut wood there, at all times, at their pleaſure, without view or attachment of any officer whatſoever of the ſaid foreſt; and for their and every of their ſeveral and reſpective titles to this their claim, they ſay, and all thoſe whoſe eſtates they have in the ſaid ſeveral meſſuages, lands, tenements, and buildings aforeſaid, have uſually had, and uſed and enjoyed the ſaid liberties, privileges, and franchiſes, from the time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary, according to the form, force, and effect, of their ſaid claim. And we whoſe names are underwritten, apprehending the gracious inclination of his ſacred majeſty and his parliament towards the preſervation of wood and timber in the ſaid foreſt of Dean, and in the ſenſe of public advantage to his majeſty and the kingdom, do humbly offer and propoſe, on behalf of ourſelves, and all other the freeholders in the ſaid foreſt, to bind ourſelves by any lawful act, to forbear our claims and rights to wood and timber in the ſaid foreſt, for ſo long time as his majeſty ſhall be graciouſly pleaſed to ſuſpend the employing of his iron works, and cutting the woods of the ſaid foreſt, provided that our rights and claims before mentioned be ſecured unto us after the ſaid time of forbearance as aforeſaid; and that we, and all the inhabitants of the ſaid foreſt, may be freed from the power and exerciſe of the foreſt laws, upon any of our and their particular lands and inheritance; and that we humbly deſire, that the 18,000 acres may be reafforeſted, and that the letters patent for the ſale thereof to Sir John Wintour, knt. may be made void, and that the foreſt law may be put in execution on the waſte ſoil of the ſaid foreſt, whereby the woods and timber may be the better preſerved.

NUMBER VI.

The preſent CHARTER of the City of GLOUCESTER.

CHARLES the Second, by the grace of God king of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. To all to whom theſe preſents ſhall come, greeting. Whereas our city of Glouceſter, and county or vill of the city of Glouceſter, hath of long time been a burough and vill very antient and populous, and by its ſituation borders upon the bank of the famous navigable river of Severn; where alſo into the ſpacious haven of the ſame city, called the Key, ſhips and boats laden with goods, as well to be exported as imported, by the daily ebbing and flowing of the ſea, continually do arrive: And whereas the citizens and burgeſſes of the ſaid burough, vill, or city, as well by land as by water, have, uſe, and enjoy, divers franchiſes and privileges, by virtue of ſeveral charters and letters patents, by our late moſt dear father, king Charles, of bleſſed memory, and divers other of our progenitors and predeceſſors, late kings and queens of England; and alſo by us to them and their predeceſſors heretofore granted; and alſo by preſcription and cuſtoms in the aforeſaid city or haven obſerved and kept: And whereas our beloved ſubjects the mayor and burgeſſes of our city of Glouceſter aforeſaid, have under their common ſeal ſurrendered up our charter, bearing date on the 16th day of November in the 16th year of our reign to them before granred; which ſurrender we have accepted, and by theſe preſents do accept: And whereas the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter have humbly beſought us to grant anew to them the mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, all and all manner of liberties, franchiſes, privileges, freedoms, inheritances, and rights whatſoever, in the ſaid former charters and grants of our anceſtors contained; and that we would be pleaſed to confirm them for the future for ever: And that we, for the better government of the city aforeſaid, would join the citizens and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter, by whatſoever name or names of incorporation they were heretofore incorporated, or whether they were before incorporated or not, in one body politic, by the name of the mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter in the county of the ſame city; and that we would by our letters patents ratify and confirm it, or by what other means ſhall ſeem to us expedient:

We therefore willing that in the city of Glouceſter aforeſaid, there may be one certain and undoubted manner of form and rule for the keeping of the peace and government of the people there; and that the ſaid city may henceforward be and remain a city of peace and quietneſs, and as we hope, for the terror of evil doers, and the reward of thoſe that do well; and that our peace and other acts of juſtice may be well and truly there kept; and hoping, that if the ſaid burgeſſes and inhabitants of the city aforeſaid, do by this our grant enjoy their liberties and privileges, that then they will hold themſelves eſpecially bound to exhibit and employ their utmoſt powers and endeavours in the ſervice of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors: Know ye, That we, in conſideration of your faithful ſervice to us heretofore done, and hereafter to be done, of our ſpecial grace and favour, of our own accord and mere motion, have willed, ordained, conſtituted, declared, and granted, and by this preſent charter do will, ordain, conſtitue, declare, and grant, that our city and vill of Glouceſter for the future for ever, be named and called by the name of the city of Glouceſter, in the county of the city of Glouceſter; and that the ſaid city of Glouceſter, in the county or vill of the city of Glouceſter, henceforth for ever may and ſhall be one free city and county of itſelf; and that the citizens, burgeſſes, and inhabitants of the city aforeſaid, who at the time of the aforeſaid ſurrender, were burgeſſes or freemen of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, may, and ſhall hereafter be by virtue of theſe preſents, one body corporate and political, by the name of the mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter in the county of the city of Glouceſter.

And we do for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents grant, erect, make, appoint, confirm, and declare them, a body corporate and political, really and fully, by the name of the mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter, and of the county of the city of Glouceſter, and by the ſame name may have a perpetual ſucceſſion; and that they, by the name of the mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter, and of the county of the ſame city, may, and ſhall hereafter for ever be fit perſons, and in law capable of having, getting, receiving, and poſſeſſing manors, lands and tenements, liberties, privileges, juriſdictions, franchiſes, and inheritances, of what nature and kind ſoever they be, to them and their ſucceſſors in fee, or for ever, or for term of a year or years, or any otherwiſe howſoever: As alſo goods or chattels, or any other things, of what kind, name, nature, or quality ſoever. As likewiſe, to have and retain all manors, lands, and tenements, liberties, privileges, juriſdictions, franchiſes, and inheritances whatſoever: As alſo, all goods and chattles of which they were any way ſeized or poſſeſſed before the aforeſaid ſurrender: And alſo, to give, grant, let, ſet, aſſign, or diſpoſe of manors, lands, tenements, and inheritances, and to do and execute all things by that name; and by the ſame name, the mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter in the county of the city of Glouceſter, may plead and be impleaded, anſwer and be anſwered, defend and be defended, in all courts and places, and before all judges, juſtices, and other perſons and officers of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors whatſoever; and all others in all and ſingular actions, ſuits, plaints, cauſes, matters, and demands, of what kind or nature ſoever, in the ſame manner and form as all other our liege ſubjects of this kingdom of England, being any other body politic or incorporate within our kingdom of England, and fit men and capable in law, may have, get, receive, poſſeſs, enjoy, retain, give, grant, let, ſet, aſſign, or diſpoſe of, plead and be impleaded, anſwer and be anſwered, defend and be defended, do, promiſe, and execute.

And that the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, have for ever a common ſeal, to be uſed in whatſoever buſineſs may happen to them, or their ſucceſſors: And be it lawful for the ſame the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, from time to time at their pleaſure, to break, change, alter, and make anew the ſaid ſeal, as to them ſhall ſeem good.

And whereas, ever ſince the memory of man, there was a cuſtom within the ſaid village, burrough, or city of Glouceſter aforeſaid, that certain capital burgeſſes of the ſame burrough, city, or village, in number ſometimes more, ſometimes leſs, who by the reſt of the burgeſſes were thought moſt diſcreet, were choſen into the common council of the ſaid burrough, vill, or city; and that upon the death of any one or more of them, that ſome one or more of the ſaid burrough, village, or city, was choſen freely, and without any conſtraint or compulſion, into the common council of the ſaid burrough, vill, or city, aforeſaid: We therefore, at the humble petition of the mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter, intending and deſigning to reduce the number of the ſaid capital burgeſſes to a greater certainty, do will, and for us our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents grant to the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that for the future for ever there are, and ſhall be within the city aforeſaid, thirty capital burgeſſes at the leaſt, and not more than forty, to be choſen out of all the burgeſſes, who ſhall be named the common council of the city of Glouceſter: And that there be, and ſhall be, twelve of the burgeſſes aforeſaid, being of the common council of the city aforeſaid, (in the form in theſe preſents following, choſen and appointed) who ſhall be named aldermen of the city city aforeſaid, and that there be, and ſhall be, one of the aldermen aforeſaid (as in the form in theſe preſents following choſen and appointed) who ſhall be named mayor of the city of Glouceſter aforeſaid; and that the other eleven aldermen of the city, for the time being, be from time to time reſpectively aſſiſtant in council to the mayor of the ſaid city for the time being, in all matters, cauſes, and buſineſſes, any ways touching or concerning the government of the city aforeſaid; and that the reſt of the common council of the ſame city ſhall all and every of them attend and aſſiſt the mayor and aldermen of the city aforeſaid for the time being, in all matters, cauſes, and buſineſſes, concerning the ſaid city, whenſoever they, or either of them, ſhall be ſummoned or called by the command of the mayor and aldermen, or the major part of them.

Alſo our will and pleaſure is, and we by theſe preſents do grant for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, to the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that their ſucceſſors for ever have one honourable man, and learned in the laws of this our kingdom of England (as in the form in theſe preſents following) who ſhall be named Recorder of the city of Glouceſter aforeſaid, from time to time to execute all things belonging to his office, for the public good of the ſame city.

And our farther will and pleaſure is, and we, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents grant to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the mayor, aldermen, and the reſt of the common council of the city of Glouceſter, for the time being, or major part of them, who upon public ſummons have gathered together, and if upon any ſuch occaſion their votes happen to be equal, that then that part of whom the mayor of the city aforeſaid for the time being is one, may, and ſhall have from time to time, full power and authority of making, ordaining, and conſtituting ſuch laws, ſtatutes, and decrees, in writing, as ſhall ſeem ſafe, honeſt, and neceſſary, according to the diſcretion of them, or the major part of them, or in equal votes to that part of them whereof the mayor for the time being is one, for the good rule and government of the city aforeſaid, and of all and ſingular officers, miniſters, artificers, inhabitants, or reſidents, within the city aforeſaid, or the liberties or ſuburbs of the ſame; and for a model in what method or order they the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and all and ſingular officers, miniſters, burgeſſes, tradeſmen, or reſidents, within the ſaid city or liberties, or ſuburbs of the ſame, may behave themſelves, and uſe, exerciſe, and perform their ſeveral and reſpective offices, functions, and trades, for the public good and profit of the ſaid city, and for the well managing of all things whatſoever, touching and concerning the government and good proviſion for the ſaid city.

And that they the ſaid mayor, burgeſſes, and common council of the city aforeſaid, or the major part of them, or in caſe of equal votes, that party whereof the mayor of the city for the time being is one, having ordained, made, and eſtabliſhed, any inſtitutions and decrees of this kind, may puniſh the offenders againſt the laws and inſtitutions of this nature, by impriſonment of body, by fines, and amerciaments, or by either of them, as for the better obſervation of the ſaid laws and inſtitutions ſhall ſeem neceſſary, fit, and requiſite, to the ſaid mayor, aldermen, or common council men, or the major part of them, or in equal vote to that part whereof the mayor of the city aforeſaid for the time being is one, to appoint, limit, and provide; and that the ſheriffs, and other miniſters and officers of the city aforeſaid, may have power to levy the ſaid fines or amerciaments by diſtreſs or otherwiſe, at their pleaſure, for the uſe of the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city and their ſucceſſors, without any hindrance from us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, or from any officer or officers, or miniſter of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, or without any account thereof to be given to us, our heirs or ſucceſſors. All which reſpective laws or inſtitutions made or to be made, we will to be obſerved under the penalties in them contained; provided that ſuch laws, inſtitutions, impriſonments, fines, and amerciaments be reaſonable, and not repugnant, nor contrary to the laws, ſtatutes, cuſtoms, or rights, of our kingdom of England.

And for the better execution of our will and grant in this part mentioned, we have aſſigned, named, appointed, and made, and by theſe preſents do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, aſſign, name, appoint, and make our well beloved Henry Fowler, eſq; the preſent mayor of the city aforeſaid; farther willing, that the ſaid Henry Fowler continue in the office of mayor of the city aforeſaid, from the date of theſe preſents, until the Monday next enſuing the feaſt of St. Michael the archangel next; and that then one other of the aldermen of the city aforeſaid be duly choſen and ſworn to the office of mayor, according to the ordinances and proviſions in theſe preſents following expreſſed and declared, if the ſaid Henry Fowler ſhall ſo long live, unleſs in the mean while he be duly removed from his office, according to the ordinances and proviſions hereafter in theſe preſents expreſſed.

And we have alſo aſſigned, named, created, appointed, and made, and do, by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, aſſign, name, create, appoint, and make our well beloved Sir William Morton, knt. one of our juſtices of our court of common pleas, before us, whereſoever we may be, to be holden, to be the preſent recorder of the city aforeſaid; farther willing, that the ſaid Sir William Morton ſhall continue in the office of recorder of the city aforeſaid during his natural life, from the date of theſe preſents, unleſs he ſhall be duly removed from that office by ſurrender, or according to the ordinances and proviſions in theſe preſents hereafter expreſſed.

Alſo we have aſſigned, named, created, appointed, and made, and do by theſe preſents aſſign, name, create, appoint, and make, Henry Norwood, William Cooke, Duncombe Colcheſter, eſquires, Henry Bret, William Selwyn, eſquires, William Ruſſel, Thomas Price, John Wagſtaffe, the aforeſaid Henry Fowler, John Guithens, Thomas Aram, and John Rogers, to be the preſent aldermen of the city aforeſaid; and in that office reſpectively to be continued from the date of theſe preſents, during the natural life of them, and either of them, unleſs in the mean time, for their ill government and behaviour in their office, or for any offence or offences, default or defaults, by them committed and done, they or any of them, according to the orders and proviſions in that caſe made and provided, be duly and lawfully from that office removed.

We have likewiſe aſſigned, nominated, created, appointed and made, and do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents nominate, create, appoint, and make, William Lambe and Samuel Roſe, to be the preſent bailiffs of the city of Glouceſter, and ſheriffs of the ſaid city and county of the ſame, to be continued in that office reſpectively, from the date of theſe preſents until the Monday next following the feaſt of St. Michael the archangel; and that then two more of the burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, being of the common council, ſhall be duly choſen and ſworn, according to the orders and proviſions in theſe preſents hereafter following expreſſed and declared, if the ſaid William Lamb and Samuel Roſe, or either of them, ſhall ſo long live, unleſs in the mean time they, or either of them, be (according to the orders and proviſions in theſe preſents hereafter expreſſed) duly removed.

We have alſo aſſigned, nominated, created, appointed, and made, and do, by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors aſſign, nominate, create, appoint, and make, John Powell, eſq; Robert Halford, John Marſton, Francis Singleton, Arnold Aram, William Lambe, Samuel Roſe, William Jordan, John Price, Thomas Luge, Matthias Bower, Richard Stephens, Nicholas Phelps, Giles Weblye, John Cromwell, John Campion, Joſeph Ludlow, Walter Vecie, Joſeph Phelps, Thomas Goſlinge, Daniel Comeline, John Perkes, John Webb, William Corſeley, Cornelius Plott, Daniel Collins, Nicholas Lane, and John Biſhop, to be of the common council of the ſaid city, and to be continued in the office of common council men from the date of theſe preſents, during the natural life or lives of them, and every of them, unleſs in the mean time for their ill government and behaviour in that office, or for any fault or offence by them, or any of them, committed and done, or to be committed and done, they, or either of them, ſhall, according to the laws, proviſions and orders hereafter expreſſed, be from that office duly removed.

And our farther will and pleaſure is, and we have ordered, that if any of the aldermen, ſheriffs, or bailiffs afore named, or either of them, or any other burgeſs of the common council aforenamed, ſhall, upon notice given, refuſe to take upon him the burthen of any office of this kind, as of alderman, bailiff, ſheriff, or common council man, that then in that caſe it ſhall be lawful for the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, to chuſe another alderman, bailiff, ſheriff, or common council man, inſtead of him ſo refuſing; and, in ſuch an election, to proceed as if the ſaid alderman, bailiff, ſheriff, or common council man were dead, or lawfully removed from his office.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents ordain, that, if any one of the aldermen or burgeſſes of the common council afore named were not a freeman of the city aforeſaid, at the time of the ſurrender aforeſaid, that then, and in that caſe, ſuch alderman and burgeſs, having within one month next after the date of theſe preſents taken the ſacrament reſpectively required by due form of law, he ſhall be admitted and made a freeman of the city aforeſaid; and notwithſtanding his defect at admiſſion, yet the ſacrament reſpectively required being firſt taken, he ſhall, by vertue of theſe letters patents, be for ever reputed a freeman of the city aforeſaid, to all intents and purpoſes whatſoever; and ſhall continue alderman, or common council man, in the ſame manner and form as he could, or ought, if he had been a freeman at the time of the ſurrender aforeſaid, any defect of admiſſion to the contrary notwithſtanding.

And we farther will, and do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter aforeſaid, that the mayor, aldermen, and common

mon council men of the city aforesaid, for the time being, or the major part of them, or in equal votes, that part or equal number of them, whereof the mayor of the city aforesaid for the time being is one, may have full power and authority to chuse such, and so many of the most honest and discreet burgesses to make up the number of thirty in the common council in the whole at the least; or to increase that number, so that they exceed not the number of forty at the most, as shall seem expedient to them, the mayor, aldermen, and common council men aforesaid, or the major part of them, to be the rest of the burgesses of the common council of the city aforesaid, being thirty at the least, and not above forty at the most; and that the said burgesses so chosen into the common council, shall remain and continue in the said office, during the natural lives of them or either of them, unless they, or either of them, shall for any faults by them, or either of them, committed and done, or to be committed and done, by the mayor, aldermen, and common council, or the major part of them; or in case of equal votes, by that part whereof the mayor of the city aforesaid for the time being is one, be from that office lawfully and duly removed.

And whereas Richard the IId, late king of England, by his letters patents, willed and ordained, that there should be an yearly election made, as well of the mayor of the city aforesaid, as of other officers of the same city, by four and twenty electors, viz. by the twelve aldermen of the city aforesaid, and twelve other of the most legal and discreet burgesses of the said city; which words being subject to an uncertain and doubtful construction, have caused divers elections to be made at uncertain times: We therefore, of our special grace and favour, desiring to reduce the election of the mayor and other officers of the city aforesaid, to a certainty, for the honour and common-good of the said city, and avoiding of popular tumults, do will, and for us, our heirs, and successors, by these presents, grant to the aforesaid mayor and burgesses of the city aforesaid, and their successors, that every year henceforward, on the Monday next following the feast of St. Michael the archangel, the mayor and aldermen, and rest of the burgesses of the common council of the city aforesaid, in great solemnity, shall meet together in the guildhall, or some other convenient place within the city aforesaid, or such and so many as shall then remain and continue; and then and there, the mayor, aldermen, and the senior sheriff, or such of them as are then and there present; and so many other of the burgesses of the common council of the city aforesaid, by order of election first in that office, and seniors to the rest of the common council, being there present, as shall make up the number of twenty in the whole, be, and shall be for that time, electors of the mayor, bailiffs, and chamberlain of the city aforesaid, and coroner and sheriffs of the county of the same city for the year ensuing; which twenty electors being called together by themselves in the council chamber of the said guildhall, or any other convenient place within the city aforesaid, may proceed to the election of the mayor, and other officers afore named, for the year ensuing; and in that election the said twenty electors, or the major part of them, shall severally nominate and elect the mayor and other officers of the city aforesaid; and if those electors votes shall in the election of either of those officers be equal, so that ten of them shall defend, and the other ten deny the election, that then, and in every such case, the election of the mayor of the city aforesaid, and other officers of the same, shall be made and concluded by those ten electors, of whom the mayor, or in his absence, the senior alderman shall be one; and that those twenty electors, from time to time henceforward for ever, may, and shall, have power and authority in manner and form aforesaid, to nominate and elect yearly for ever, on the Monday next following the feast of St. Michael the archangel, one of the aldermen of the city aforesaid, for the time being, to be mayor for the whole year then next following; as also, another of the aldermen of the city aforesaid, for the time being, to be the coroner of the county of the same city, for one whole year then next ensuing; and likewise, two of the burgesses of the common council of the said city, for the time being, to be bailiffs of the city, and sheriffs of the county of the city aforesaid, for one whole year then next following; and one other honest and discreet man to be chamberlain of the said city, to be continued in that office for one whole year, unless he be for some reasonable cause, according to the orders and provisions in these presents expressed, from that office duly removed: And that that alderman who, as before, shall be nominated and elected mayor of the city aforesaid, before he be admitted to the execution of his office, shall take a corporal oath in the presence of the last and next precedent mayor of the city aforesaid, if he shall be there present, and the rest of the aldermen aforesaid, or six or more of them; and in the presence of so many of the common council, and the rest of the burgesses of the city aforesaid, as shall be then and there present, well, truly, and faithfully to execute the office of mayor of the city aforesaid, in all things belonging thereunto: To which precedent mayor and aldermen of the city aforesaid, or six or more of them, we, for us, our heirs and successors, do, by these presents, give and grant full power and authority to administer this oath to the mayor elect; and that this alderman aforesaid being chosen and sworn mayor, after this oath taken, may, and shall execute the office of mayor of the city aforesaid, for one whole year then next ensuing, until another be duly chosen and sworn to that office, according to the orders and provisions in these presents expressed and declared, unless for some fault or faults, offence or offences, by him the mayor of the said city, for the time being, committed and done, he shall by the aldermen and common council of the city, solemnly called together, so that there be four and twenty at the least there present, or the major part, or any other lawful way, be from his office removed: Which mayor of the city aforesaid failing, as in the form aforesaid, we, for our heirs and successors, do, by these presents, will and declare to be liable to be removed and divested of his office.

And if it should happen that the mayor of the city aforesaid so chosen, or hereafter to be chosen, should die, or be removed, after his election or swearing, and before the Monday next following the feast of St. Michael the archangel then next following, that then, as often as this case shall happen, the aldermen of the city aforesaid, the sheriffs, or such of them as shall be then and there present, and as many of the senior burgesses of the common council of the city aforesaid being there present, as shall make up the number of four and twenty, being gathered together in the guildhall, or some other convenient place within the city of Gloucester aforesaid, or the major part of them; and in case of equal votes, that part whereof the senior aldermen there present is one, immediately after the death or removal of the mayor of the city aforesaid, may, and shall have power, and shall choose one other of the aldermen of the city aforesaid for the time being to be mayor of the said city; and after the oath in that part required, in manner and form aforesaid, by him taken, be continued until another be chosen and sworn to that office.

And farther, our will and pleasure is, that one other of the aldermen of the city aforesaid, who, as before, shall be nominated and elected coroner of the city aforesaid, before he be admitted to the execution of that office, shall take a corporal oath before the mayor of the city aforesaid, newly chosen and sworn, or, in his absence, before the aldermen of the said city, or six or more of them, that he will well and truly perform the office of coroner of the county of the city aforesaid, and faithfully execute all things to that office belonging; to which mayor so newly elected and sworn, and to the aldermen of the city aforesaid, or to any six or more of them, we, for us, our heirs, and successors, do, by these presents, give and grant full power and authority, from time to time, to administer the oath of a coroner to him chosen; and that the aforesaid alderman being so chosen and sworn to the office of a coroner, after he hath taken the aforesaid oath, shall execute the office of a coroner for one whole year then next following, and then until another be, according to the orders and provisions in these presents expressed and declared, in due manner and form, to that office elected and sworn; unless, in the mean time, for any fault or defaults, offence, or offences, by him the said coroner of the city aforesaid committed and done, or to be committed and done, he shall, by the mayor, aldermen, and common council men of the city aforesaid, on this part solemnly called together, so that there be four and twenty at the least then and there present, or by the major part or number of them, be from that office duly and lawfully removed.

And that they, the two burgesses of the common council of the city aforesaid, who shall be chosen and nominated to be bailiffs of the city aforesaid, and sheriffs of the county of the same city, before they be admitted to the execution of that office, shall take a corporal oath, before the mayor of the city aforesaid, then duly elected and sworn, or, in his absence, in the presence of the aldermen of the said city, or any six or more of them, that they, or either of them, will well and truly, and faithfully, perform the office of bailiffs of the city aforesaid, and sheriffs of the county of the same city, and faithfully execute all things to that office belonging; to which mayor newly elected and sworn, and the aldermen of the city aforesaid, or any six or more of them, in manner aforesaid, we, for us, our heirs, and successors, do, by these presents, give and grant full power and authority to administer the said oath to the bailiffs of the city aforesaid, and the county sheriffs of the same city; and that the said burgesses being chosen bailiffs and sheriffs, shall execute the office of bailiffs and sheriffs for one whole year then next following; and thence till two more be duly elected and sworn to that office, according to the orders and provisions above declared and expressed, unless in the mean while, for any fault or faults, offence or offences, by the bailiffs and sheriffs for the time being committed and done, or to be committed and done, they, or either of them, shall, by the mayor, aldermen, and common council of the city aforesaid solemnly called together, so that there be four and and twenty at the leaſt then and there preſent, or by the major part of them, be from that office lawfully and duly removed.

And that the chamberlain of the city aforeſaid, ſo nominated and elected as aforeſaid, before he be admitted to that office, ſhall take a corporal oath before the mayor of the city aforeſaid, then newly choſen and ſworn, or, in his abſence, before the aldermen of the ſame city, or any ſix or more of them, and ſhall find and give ſuch good and ſufficient ſecurity, for the true and faithful execution of the office of a chamberlain, and all things thereunto belonging, as the mayor for the time being, and the burgeſſes of the ſaid city, being then and there preſent, ſhall approve of; to which mayor ſo newly choſen and ſworn, and to the aldermen of the city aforeſaid, or any ſix or more of them, we do, for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, give and grant full power and authority to adminiſter the oath of chamberlain of the city aforeſaid, and to take and approve of the ſecurity tendered by the chamberlain aforeſaid; and that the ſaid burgeſs then choſen and ſworn chamberlain, ſhall continue in the office of chamberlain until, for any fault or faults, offence or offences, by him committed and done, or to be committed and done, he ſhall be by the mayor, aldermen and common council of the city aforeſaid in that caſe ſolemnly called together, ſo that there be four and twenty at the leaſt then and there preſent, or the major part or number of them; or in caſe of equal votes, that part whereof the mayor of the city for the time being is one, or, in his abſence, the ſenior of the aldermen then and there preſent, be from that office lawfully and duly removed; which ſaid coroner, ſheriffs, and bailiffs, or chamberlain, in manner aforeſaid failing, we, for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, declare liable to be removed.

And if it ſhould happen that any of the ſaid officers, as ſheriff, coroner, or chamberlain, ſhould die, or be removed from his office after his election, and before the ſaid Monday next following the feaſt of St. Michael the archangel, that then and in ſuch caſe, as often as it ſhall happen, the mayor, aldermen, and ſenior ſheriff of the city aforeſaid, or ſuch of them as ſhall be then and there preſent; and as many other of the ſenior burgeſſes of the common council of the city aforeſaid being there preſent as ſhall make up the number of twenty in the whole, being gathered together in the guildhall aforeſaid, or any other convenient place within the city aforeſaid, or the major part of them; or, in caſe of equal votes, the part whereof the mayor for the time, or, in his abſence, the ſenior of the aldermen there preſent is one, ſhall immediately after the death or removal of any the ſaid officer or officers, nominate and elect another to that office, to be continued after the oaths taken, until another be to that office duly elected and ſworn.

And our farther will and pleaſure is, and we do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant, that as often as the office of recorder of the city aforeſaid ſhall, by the death, ſurrender, or removal of any one, happen to be void, that then it ſhall be lawful, and be it lawful, for the mayor, aldermen, and common council aforeſaid, or the major part of them that ſhall be preſent at the election, to nominate one honourable and famous man, learned in the law of this our kingdom of England, to be recorder of the city aforeſaid, to be continued in that office, and to exerciſe and execute all things thereunto belonging, until by death, ſurrender, or any other reaſonable cauſe, or according to the orders and proviſions in theſe preſents expreſſed, he ſhall be from that office duly removed; and that he the ſaid recorder, being nominated and elected, ſhall, before he be admitted to the execution of his office, before the mayor of the city aforeſaid for the time being, or, in his abſence, before the aldermen of the city aforeſaid, or any ſix or more of them, take a corporal oath for the performance of his office in all things, for the greateſt profit and advantage and public good of the ſaid city: To which mayor and aldermen we, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do, by theſe preſents, give and grant full power and authority to adminiſter the aforeſaid oath to the perſon choſen to be recorder aforeſaid.

And our farther will and pleaſure is, and we do, for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, give and grant to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter, and their ſucceſſors, that the mayor, aldermen, and common council of the city aforeſaid, being ſolemnly for that purpoſe called together, ſo that there be four and twenty there preſent at the leaſt, or the major part of them, may, and ſhall have full power and authority to remove and expel any one or more of the aldermen of the city aforeſaid, from the office, place, and authority of an alderman of the city aforeſaid; and as often as it ſhall happen that any one or more of the aldermen of the city aforeſaid ſhall die, or be removed from his or their office or offices in manner aforeſaid, it ſhall be lawful, and be it lawful, for the mayor and aldermen of the city aforeſaid then remaining, or the major part of them, to nominate and elect ſome one or more of the ſix ſenior burgeſſes of the common council of the ſaid city for the time being, under the degree of an alderman, as they ſhall think moſt fit, into the place or places of the ſaid alderman, or aldermen removed or deceaſed, to be an alderman, or aldermen, of the city aforeſaid, to be continued in that office, and to exerciſe and execute all things thereunto belonging, during their natural lives, unleſs for ſome defect or defects, fault or faults, offence or offences, by him or them committed and done, they, or either of them, ſhall be from that office lawfully and duly removed.

We alſo farther will, and do, for us our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter, and to their ſucceſſors, that from time to time henceforth it may be lawful for the mayor, aldermen and common council of the city aforeſaid, or the major part of them, by act or order of common council, to place and diſpoſe any member or members in any place or order in theſe preſents mentioned, higher than the ſaid member, or members before were, any thing herein contained notwithſtanding.

And our farther will is, and we do, for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that they and their ſucceſſors for ever may, and ſhall have, within the liberties, limits, and precincts of the ſaid city, one honeſt and diſcreet man to be town clerk of the city aforeſaid, to execute all things belonging to and concerning that office, within the liberties and precincts of the county of the city aforeſaid, from time to time to be choſen by the mayor, aldermen, and common council of the city aforeſaid, or the major part of them, being preſent at the election: And we have aſſigned and nominated, and do, for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, conſtitute and make our well beloved John Dorney, eſq; to be the preſent town clerk, willing that the ſaid John Dorney ſhall continue in the ſaid office during his life, unleſs by ſurrender, or for ſome other reaſonable cauſe in theſe preſents hereafter expreſſed, he ſhall be from that office duly removed.

And we have farther granted, and do, for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, that they may, and ſhall have one other honeſt and diſcreet man, to be ſword bearer, within the city and ſuburbs, limits, and liberties of the ſame, to perform all things, touching and concerning that office within the ſaid city, limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſame, to be choſen by the mayor, aldermen, and common council of the ſame city, or the major part of them, as many as are willing to be preſent at the election; and that the ſword bearer of the city aforeſaid ſhall from time to time wait and attend upon the mayor, aldermen, and ſheriffs of the city aforeſaid, for the time being, in all things touching and belonging to his office: And he ſhall bear before the mayor of the city aforeſaid for the time being, within the ſaid city and limits, liberties and precincts of the ſame, one ſword, with a ſheath of any colour, having the arms of us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, and the arms of the city aforeſaid, in gold and ſilver engraven upon it: And that the aboveſaid town clerk and ſword bearer, before they, or either of them, be admitted to the performances of their reſpective offices, ſhall take a corporal oath, that they will well and faithfully execute their offices before the mayor of the city aforeſaid for the time being, or in his abſence, in the preſence of the aldermen of the ſaid city, or any ſix or more of them: To which mayor and aldermen of the city aforeſaid, we, for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, do, by theſe preſents, grant full power and authority to adminiſter the oath of a town clerk or ſword bearer in form aforeſaid: And that the ſaid town clerk and ſword bearer being elected and ſworn, ſhall execute and perform the reſpective offices of town clerk and ſword bearer during their natural lives, unleſs for ſome fault or faults, offence or offences, by them, or either of them, committed and done, or to be committed and done, they, or either of them, ſhall, by the mayor, aldermen, and common council, in that caſe ſolemnly called together, ſo that there be four and twenty at the leaſt then and there preſent, or the major part of them; or in caſe of equal votes, that part whereof the mayor, if he be preſent, or, in his abſence, the ſenior of the aldermen there preſent, is one, be from their reſpective offices duly removed; which town clerk and ſword bearer, or either of them, ſo failing, we, for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, will and declare liable to be removed.

And our farther pleaſure is, and we do, for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that they and their ſucceſſors, may and ſhall henceforth for ever, have within the city aforeſaid, limits, liberties and precincts of the ſame, four ſerjeants at mace, to execute and perform all things belonging to that office within the city aforeſaid, limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſame, to be choſen in the ſame manner and form, and the ſame perſons as they were wont heretofore; and each of them ſhall carry before the mayor, aldermen, and ſheriffs of the city aforeſaid, for the time being, according to the cuſtom long ſince there obſerved, a ſilver mace, with the arms of us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, and the arms of the city aforeſaid, ſaid wrought and engraven upon it: And alſo that the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, may, and ſhall have, within the city aforeſaid, ſuch and ſo many officers to execute and perform all things touching and belonging to thoſe reſpective offices, in ſuch manner and form, from time to time to be choſen, continued, and removed, within the city aforeſaid, and limits and liberties of the ſame, as they were wont to be choſen, conſtituted, continued, and removed: And that the ſaid ſerjeants at mace, and other officers of the city aforeſaid, from time to time to be nominated and elected, ſhall, before they, or either of them, be admitted to the execution of their offices, take a corporal oath, well and faithfully to perform all things relating to their office, before the mayor of the city aforeſaid, or ſuch other perſon or perſons as are wont to be preſent at the ſwearing of thoſe officers: To which mayor and other perſons aforeſaid, we, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do, by theſe preſents, grant full power and authority to adminiſter the oath to the ſerjeants at mace, and other officers aforeſaid, according to the cuſtom in that city long ſince obſerved and kept.

And we do farther will, and do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant, to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that if any one or more of the aldermen of the city aforeſaid, or burgeſſes of the common council of the ſame city, whether he be inhabiting or reſident within the city aforeſaid, and limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſame, or without, ſhall be elected and nominated to the office of mayor, alderman, bailiff, chamberlain, burgeſs of the common council of the ſaid city, or coroner or ſheriff of the county of the ſame city, or conſtable, or any other inferior officer, except the office of recorder, town clerk, ſword bearer, or ſerjeant at mace; and having notice and cognizance given them of the election of them, or either of them, ſhall refuſe to take the oath, or comply with the ſubſcriptions in that caſe by ſtatute eſpecially provided, to make them capable of, and fit to execute the offices on them impoſed, that then it ſhall be lawful for the mayor, aldermen, and common council of the city aforeſaid, for the time being, or the major part of them, to commit him or them ſo refuſing to execute the office or offices, to which he or they were elected, to the goal of the city aforeſaid, there to remain until he or they ſhall be willing to undertake the ſaid office or offices; and to impoſe ſuch a fine or amerciament on him or them ſo refuſing, as to the mayor, aldermen, and common council, or to the major part of them, ſhall reaſonably ſeem expedient; and that they may lawfully keep him or them ſo refuſing in the ſaid gaol, until they ſhall pay or cauſe to be paid, thoſe fines and amerciaments as aforeſaid, for the public uſe of the city aforeſaid; and, if it ſhall ſeem fit to the mayor, aldermen, and common council men of the city aforeſaid, or the major part of them, to expel, remove, or deprive him or them of the liberties and franchiſes of the city aforeſaid.

And we have farther granted, and do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors for ever, that if any cuſtom herein contained be deficient, or not compleat, or any new cuſtoms have ariſen that want altering and mending, they, the mayor, aldermen; and common council of the city aforeſaid, for the time being, or the major part of them, may find a remedy, agreeable to honeſty and reaſon, for the public good of the citizens and burgeſſes of the ſaid city, and of other our faithful ſubjects thereto reſorting, as often as to them ſhall ſeem expedient; provided that the alterations of this kind be profitable to us and our people, and agreeable to honeſty and reaſon as aforeſaid; and that they be not repugnant to the royal prerogative of us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, and contrary to the laws and ſtatutes of this kingdom of England then in force.

And we farther will, and do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, grant, that the mayor, biſhop of the dioceſe of Glouceſter, for the time being, the recorder of the ſame city, the dean of the cathedral church of the holy and indiviſible trinity in Glouceſter, the aldermen of the ſame city, and two ſuch of the prebends of the ſame church, for the time being, as we, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, ſhall from time to time appoint and name, ſhall for the future for ever, they, and every of them, be juſtices, to be kept, and keep the peace of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, within the city of Glouceſter and county of the ſame, and limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſaid city and county thereof; and for the putting in execution of the ſtatutes and laws concerning tradeſmen and labourers, and enquiring into weights, meaſures, and all other things belonging to the office of a juſtice of the peace; which ſaid biſhop, dean, and two prebendaries of the cathedral church aforeſaid, ſhall from time to time for ever, by us our heirs and ſucceſſors, by commiſſion under the great ſeal of England, and at the pleaſure of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, from time to time to be renewed, we will that they, and either of them, be authorized and appointed to the office of juſtice of the peace, of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors; and that the ſaid mayor, biſhop, recorder, dean, two prebendaries, and aldermen of the city aforeſaid, made, and to be made, conſtituted, and to be conſtituted juſtices of the peace, by virtue of theſe preſents, or any three or more of them, of whom the mayor, biſhop, recorder, dean, two prebendaries, or any of the ſix ſenior aldermen being two, may appoint, keep, and hold, ſeſſions of the peace, in the ſame manner and form as any other juſtices of the peace being aſſigned to inquire into treſpaſſes and crimes, and to hear and determine controverſies, may or can; and that they have full power and authority to inquire into any offences, neglects, or defaults whatſoever, committed within the city aforeſaid, or the limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſame, or that may any time hereafter be committed and done; and there to do and execute all things which any other juſtices of the peace within any county, city, vill, or borough, incorporate within the kingdom of England, may or can inquire into, do and execute: Alſo, we will and do, for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the mayor, the biſhop of Glouceſter, for the time being, the dean of the cathedral church aforeſaid, the recorder, the two prebendaries, and the aldermen of the city aforeſaid for the time being, and every one or more of them, of whom the mayor, biſhop, dean, recorder, one of the ſaid two prebendaries, or any of the ſix ſenior aldermen of the city aforeſaid, for the time being, being two, ſhall be of the quorum, ſhall from time to time be juſtices of the peace, of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, to make a gaol delivery in the city aforeſaid, and county of the ſame city, of all priſoners therein kept, according to the laws, cuſtoms, and ſtatutes of our kingdom of England: And that the ſheriffs and coroner of the county of the city aforeſaid, ſhall make return of all juries, pannels, attachments, and indentures, by them taken, or henceforward to be taken, before the mayor, biſhop, dean, recorder, two prebendaries and aldermen of the city aforeſaid, of whom the mayor, biſhop, dean, recorder, one of the ſaid two prebendaries, and any of the ſaid ſix ſenior aldermen of the city aforeſaid, ſhall be of the quorum, and ſhall be attendant whenever it ſhall pleaſe to make a gaol delivery in all things thereunto belonging; and from time to time execute and obey the precepts of the mayor, biſhop, dean, recorder, two prebendaries, and aldermen of the city aforeſaid, for the time being, or any of them, in the ſame manner and form as other ſheriffs and coroners within our kingdom of England before any juſtices in the ſaid kingdom, of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, have been wont and ought to do, return, and execute, as touching any goal delivery; and that they the ſaid mayor, biſhop, dean, recorder, two prebendaries, and aldermen of the city aforeſaid, for the time being, or any of them, may by them and their ſervants and deputies take and arreſt all murderers, manſlayers, robbers, felons, and other malefactors, within the ſaid city, county, limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſame to be found; and bring, or cauſe to be brought, to the gaol within the city aforeſaid, there to be kept, until by due proceedings at law they ſhall be delivered, any other order, or decree, or cuſtom to the contrary notwithſtanding: And alſo, that they, or any of them, may not proceed to determination of any treaſon, or miſpriſion of treaſon, without the ſpecial command of us, our heirs, or ſucceſſors, within the city aforeſaid, and the limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſame.

Alſo we will, and do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the mayor of the city, for the time being, and his ſucceſſors, may, from time to time for ever, have, uſe, and execute the office of clerk of the market, of us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, together with all things belonging to the ſaid office, in all and ſingular matters and cauſes concerning that office within the city aforeſaid, limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſame, and within the county of the ſame city, as well in the preſence of us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, as in our abſence, and they ſhall enjoy this office ſucceſſively; and, at their goings out, levy all fines and amerciaments to and for the uſe of the mayor and his ſucceſſors, without any account to be made to us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors: And, for the time to come, that no clerk of the market of us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, except the mayor of the city aforeſaid, ſhall enter upon any thing belonging to the execution of the ſaid office, or, under colour of his office, any ways poſſeſs himſelf of any thing in the ſaid city, or within the limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſame, or within the county of the ſaid city, or any part or parcel of it.

Alſo we will, and do, for us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the mayor of the city aforeſaid, and his ſucceſſors, may do, exerciſe, and execute all and ſingular things belonging to the office of ſteward and marſhal of us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, within the limits, liberties, and precincts of the city aforeſaid, and county of the ſame city; and and may do, execute, and exercise those things, as well in the presence of us, our heirs and successors, as in our absence, without the contradiction of us, our heirs and successors, as quietly, freely, and entirely, as if they, or either of them, had before exercised and executed the office of marshal and steward, and all things thereunto belonging, or before might have exercised and executed the same: And that the said mayor and burgesses, or any inhabitant or resident within the city aforesaid, or within the limits, liberties, and precincts of the county of the same city, being called to execute any precepts or commands of the steward or marshal of the household, of us, our heirs and successors, or any officers of the court of the steward or marshal of the said household, of us, our heirs or successors, or any deputy, or deputies, being called to appear before them, or either of them, are not holden and bound to obey: And that no steward or marshal of the house of us, our heirs and successors, or any officers of the court of the steward or marshal of the said household, besides the mayor and his successors and their officers, may enter the city aforesaid, the limits, liberties, and precincts of the same, or the county of the city aforesaid, either in the presence or absence of us, our heirs or successors, to hold any sessions, make any enquiry, or execute any commands, of us, our heirs and successors, or of the steward or marshal of the household aforesaid, to make any gaol delivery, or to perform any of the respective offices of them, for any emergent occasion whatsoever.

And we also will, and do, for us, our heirs and successors, by these presents, grant to the mayor and burgesses of the city aforesaid, and their successors, that the mayor, aldermen, and common council of the city aforesaid, for the time being, or the major part of them, of whom the mayor of the city aforesaid for the time being is one, may and shall have full power and authority, from time to time, as often as to them shall seem necessary, to tax and assess all burgesses, citizens, inhabitants, and residents within the city aforesaid, and liberties and percincts of the same, some certain pence to be paid and answered by them, for the maintaining and repairing of the bridges within the city aforesaid, and towards the necessary and requisite expences of the said city and county of the same, and for other causes and matters touching and concerning the city aforesaid, and county of the same; and upon refusal of payment of such pence by them from time to time to be taxed and assessed, to levy them upon all citizens, burgesses, inhabitants, and residents within the city aforesaid, and county of the same city, to and for the use aforesaid, by distress, imprisonment of their bodies, or any other lawful way whatsoever, according to the laws and customs of our kingdom of England, and as in any other city, burrough, or vill incorporate, within this kingdom of England, it is used and accustomed: And these our letters patents, or an inrolled copy of the same, shall from time to time, be to the said mayor and burgesses of the city aforesaid, and their successors, a sufficient warrant and security.

And we farther will, and do, for us, our heirs and successors, by these presents, grant to the mayor and burgesses of the city aforesaid, and their successors, that no guild or fraternity within the city aforesaid, may have the power, authority and jurisdiction of making, appointing and constituting any statutes or constitutions whatsoever, to oblige or bind any of the burgesses of the city aforesaid, or any one or more of any fraternity within the said city, unless they may and shall have power, authority, and licence to make such statutes, orders, and constitutions, from the mayor, aldermen, and common council of the city aforesaid, under the common seal of the said city, witnessing such licence, power, and authority: And that all and singular laws, orders, statutes, constitutions, and degrees whatsoever, made, or to be made, by any fraternity or guild within the city aforesaid, without such power, authority, and licence, under the common seal of the city aforesaid, shall be void in law, and had and reputed of none effect; any statute, act, order or provision, or any matter or cause to the contrary notwithstanding.

And whereas, by the letters patents of our predecessor Richard the IId. made in the 21st year of his reign, it was granted, that the burgesses of the vill of Gloucester, and their successors, should for ever have cognizance of all pleas of lands or tenements within the said vill, suburbs, limits, liberties, aud precincts of the same, as well of assize of novel disseisin, as of mort d'aunceſtre, and certificates of persons arraigned, as of the debts, trespasses, and any other pleas, real or personal, within the said vill, suburbs and precincts of the same, before the said bailiffs in the said guildhall to be holden; from which time, by other several letters patents, or by some other our letters patents, and of our predecessors of this kingdom of England, the said vill of Gloucester was erected and brought into a city, enlarged also by the hundreds aforesaid annexed to it; and the bailiffs of the vill aforesaid were translated and altered into the mayor and sheriffs of the city aforesaid, and county of the same city: We therefore, willing to extend and establish the aforesaid privileges and jurisdictions of the aforesaid bailiffs within the vill aforesaid, and precincts of the same, and through the whole city aforesaid, and county of the same city; and limits, liberties and precincts of the same, into a mayor, bailiffs, and chamberlain of the city aforesaid, and sheriffs of the county of the same city, we will, and do, for us, our heirs and successors, grant to the mayor and burgesses of the city aforesaid, and their successors, that they the said mayor and burgesses, and their successors, may from time to time have a court within the city aforesaid, before the mayor or his deputy, the sheriffs and bailiffs of the said city for the time being, or any two or more of them, (so that the mayor or his deputy be one) on every Monday to be holden: And that the said mayor or his deputy, the aforesaid sheriffs or bailiffs for the time being, or any two or more of them, (so that the mayor or his deputy be one) may from time to time for ever hold in that county all the aforesaid pleas, suits, and plaints, as well of assize of novel disseisin, as of mort d'aunceſtre, and certificates of the same, as all other the said pleas, real and personal, of all lands or tenements, as well within the city aforesaid as the county of the same city, the precincts, liberties, and franchises of the same; and of all other matters and causes issuing, and to be issued, out of the city aforesaid, and county of the city, to be holden before the mayor or his deputy, and the sheriffs and bailiffs for the time being, or before any two or more of them, (so that the mayor or his deputy be one) on every Monday from time to time within the city aforesaid; and that they have cognizance of all the said pleas of assize and certificates, and all other pleas, and of all other things issuing within the said city and county of the same city; and that the mayor or his deputy, the sheriffs and bailiffs aforesaid, and any two or more of them, (so that the mayor or his deputy be one) may proceed in all and singular pleas, actions, suits, and plaints aforesaid in that court moved or to be moved, prosecuted or to be prosecuted, by such like brief, sunmons, and distresses, and other proceedings, judgments, and executions, according to the law and custom of the court in the guildhall of the city aforesaid hitherto observed, in as ample manner and form as in former times, any bailiffs of the vill of Gloucester, or any mayors, sheriffs, and stewards, of the city or vill of Gloucester, or any mayors, sheriffs, and bailiffs, and chamberlain of the city aforesaid, were wont lawfully to proceed in the said guildhall of the city aforesaid.

We will also, and do, for us, our heirs and successors, grant, by these presents, to the aforesaid mayor and burgesses of the city aforesaid, and their successors, that the bailiffs of the said city, and sheriffs of the county of the same city for the time being, and their successors, may have and hold all and singular the pleas aforesaid, for any matters and causes issuing within the said city and county thereof, and within the limits, liberties, and precincts of the same, in the tolsey court in the city aforesaid, from hour to hour, and day to day, to be holden before the said sheriffs and bailiffs in the same manner and form as it was formerly wont to be holden before the bailiffs of the said vill of Gloucester, or before the sheriffs and bailiffs of the city of Gloucester and county of the same; and that the said sheriffs and bailiffs for the time being, and their successors, in all actions and suits of debts, accounts, trespasses, detaining of chattels, actions on the case, and all other actions, plaints, pleas, and suits personal whatsoever, issuing or happening within the said city of Gloucester, the suburbs, and precincts of the same, or within the county of the same city, which have been moved or begun, or hereafter shall be moved and begin before the said sheriffs and bailiffs for the time being, or their successors, in the aforesaid tolsey court, may and shall have full power and authority by themselves, or by any of their bailiffs, in that part specially assigned by the precept and command of the said sheriffs, under the seal of their office, to the said bailiffs or sheriffs directed, or to be directed, may proceed against all and singular persons being defendants, against whom such plaints, pleas, or actions shall happen to be moved or laid in the aforesaid court, for defect of chattels or lands of the defendants within the city aforesaid, and county of the same city, and the limits, liberties, and precincts of the same, where they may be summoned, attached, or destrained, or their bodies taken; so that the sheriffs aforesaid proceed to hear and determine all and singular such actions, plaints, and pleas severally; and likewise to determine and deduce proceedings of judgment, and executions of judgments, as other sheriffs, bailiff or bailiffs, have in that place been heretofore lawfully accustomed.

Moreover, we will, and do, for us, our heirs and successors, grant, by these presents, to the aforesaid mayor and burgesses of the city aforesaid, and their successors, that the sheriffs aforesaid may and shall for ever hold a county court for the county of the said city, from month to month, to be holden on a Tuesday, and a law day twice in a year; once within a month after Easter, and again in a month after Michaelmas, as it was aforetime lawfully used to be holden; and that all things may there be done that are used to be done in the county court of any sheriff of the same county; and in the same manner and form, and by the same proceedings as have been hitherto used in other county courts: And that the coroner of the city aforeſaid, and others reſpectively attending in theſe courts, ſhall do, execute, and perform all and ſingular offices belonging to their reſpective places; and that the ſheriffs of the county of the city aforeſaid may have, uſe, and exerciſe all ſuch power, juriſdiction, authority, and liberty, and all other things whatſoever belonging to the office of ſheriff within the ſaid city and county, and the limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſame, as any other ſheriffs and bailiffs, of us and our heirs, within our kingdom of England, within their reſpective bailiwicks, may have, or ought to uſe: And that we, our heirs and ſucceſſors, ſhall for the future for ever direct, and cauſe to be directed, all and ſingular briefs, bills, precepts, and commands, of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, which ſhall in any matter, or for any cauſe, or in and for any matters and cauſes iſſuing and happening within the city of Glouceſter aforeſaid, or the county of the ſame city, the limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſame, to the county ſheriffs of the city of Glouceſter, and to no other ſheriffs: And that no other ſheriff in the kingdom of England, or bailiff, or ſerjeant of any ſheriff in the ſaid kingdom (only excepted the aforeſaid ſheriffs of us and our heirs) for the county of the ſaid city, to be choſen and conſtituted in manner and form aforeſaid, and their bailiffs ſhall enter the city aforeſaid, in any wiſe to exerciſe and execute any thing whatſoever belonging to the office of a ſheriff, (only excepted the ſheriffs of the county of the city of Glouceſter, who are to keep a county court for the county of the city of Glouceſter, to be holden in the uſual place in the charter of king Richard the IIId ſpecified): And that all the ſheriffs of the county of the city of Glouceſter, and bailiffs of the ſame, who ought at the going out of their office to give an account into the exchequer, belonging to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, ought every year to do it before the barons and treaſurer of the exchequer of us our heirs and ſucceſſors, or before the barons of the ſaid exchequer by their ſufficient attorney or attornies, to be appointed by their letters patents under the ſeal of their office, to be directed to the barons aforeſaid: And that no ſheriff of the county of the city of Glouceſter ſhall any way be compelled to come out of the limits of the ſaid county, to give an account of any thing belonging to their office, ſo that his attorney or attornies would do it in manner and form aforeſaid.

And whereas our aforeſaid predeceſſor Richard the IId, late king of England, by his letters patents made in the one and twentieth year of his reign, hath willed and ordained, that the bailiffs of the vill of Glouceſter for the time being ſhould have full power and authority to take all recognizances whatſoever between merchant and merchants, and execution thereon to be made according to the ſtatute of merchants, and the ſtatute of Acton Burnell lately ſet forth: Whereas alſo, Richard the Third, in the firſt year of his reign, by his letters patents hath willed and granted, that the aforeſaid vill of Glouceſter, together with all villages and hamlets within the hundreds of Dudſtone and King's Barton near Glouceſter, ſhould be and remain one entire county by itſelf incorporate for ever, in deed and in name diſtinct; and that the bailiffs of the city aforeſaid ſhould for ever be ſheriffs of the county of the ſaid vill of Glouceſter, doing and executing all things, belonging as well to the office of bailiffs as ſheriffs within the ſaid vill and county of the ſame; from which time the ſaid ſheriffs have received, and were wont to receive recognizances of debts according to the form of the ſtatute aforeſaid: But by thoſe letters patents there is no certain proviſion in whoſe hands the greater or leſſer ſeal of the recognizances ſhould be kept; we therefore, willing to reduce all things neceſſary to be taken into theſe recognizances to a certainty, do will, and do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes, and their ſucceſſors, that the ſheriffs of the county of the city aforeſaid for the time being, and the clerk aſſigned to take recognizances of debts, according to the form of the ſtatute of merchants, and the ſtatute made at Acton Burnell, may for ever have full power and authority to take and receive any recognizances whatſoever, and executions on the ſame to be made according to the ſtatute of merchants, and the ſtatute at Acton Burnell, lately ſet forth; and alſo do and execute all things within the city of Glouceſter and county of the ſame city, which by virtue of the ſtatutes or either of them, may belong to any mayor, bailiff, officer, and to any clerk in any city or borough incorporate within this our kingdom of England, being appointed to take recognizances of debts, according to the form of the ſtatutes aforeſaid, or either of them; and that the ſaid ſheriffs and clerk for the time being may, and ſhall have, and by vertue of theſe preſents ſhall make, aſſume, and apply one ſeal of two parts, one part of which ſhall be called the greater, and the other the leſſer part, henceforward to ſeal recognizances coming before them, according to the form of the ſtatutes of merchants, and the ſtatute of Acton Burnell lately ſet forth; which ſeal ſhall for ever hereafter be the king's ſeal, to ſeal the aforeſaid recognizances to be taken within the city aforeſaid, the greater part of which ſhall always remain in the cuſtody of the ſheriffs of the county of the ſaid city for the time being, and the other part in the hands of the clerk appointed and deputed to write and enroll the recognizances aforeſaid, according to the intention of theſe our letters patents: And that the town clerk of the city aforeſaid for the time being, as long as he ſhall continue in that office, may and ſhall be the clerk, of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, to take recognizances of debts according to the ſtatutes aforeſaid, or either of them within the city aforeſaid, and county, limits, liberties, and precincts of the ſame; and to write and enroll them, and to keep all rolls and records, and to keep the leſſer part of the ſeal aforeſaid, and to do and execute all things which may be done and executed by any clerk appointed and deputed to take recognizances of debts according to the form of the ſtatutes aforeſaid, or either of them: And we do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, appoint and ordain, without any brief in that caſe to be obtained, or any other election, the ſaid town clerk of the city aforeſaid, clerk of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, to write and enroll recognizances of debts within the city aforeſaid, according to the form of the ſtatutes aforeſaid, or either of them, and to keep the leſſer part of the ſeal aforeſaid, and to do all other things belonging to the office of any clerk appointed and deputed to take recognizances of debts, according to the form of the aforeſaid ſtatutes.

And farthermore, we, of our great and ſpecial favour, and of our certain knowledge and mere motion, have granted and confirmed, and do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant and confirm to the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid for the time being, may from time to time for ever, have and enjoy all and ſingular chattles of outlaws, for whatſoever cauſe, being brought before any juſtices of the peace whatſoever, and the chattles of felons and fugitives, deodands, and all manner of fines and amerciaments of all burgeſſes, and their heirs and ſucceſſors, of and in the ſaid city, limits, and precincts of the ſame, although the ſaid burgeſs or burgeſſes be a ſervant or officer of us and our heirs, as alſo of all reſidents in the city aforeſaid, and precincts of the ſame, and their heirs and ſucceſſors, to be determined before us and our heirs, and the juſtices of labourers and tradeſmen, the treaſurer and barons of the exchequer of us and our heirs, and before the clerk of the market of us and our heirs, and the juſtices appointed to hear and determine, and before other juſtices, officers, and miniſters, of us and our heirs whatſoever; all forfeits made, and to be made, for or through any cauſe whatſoever, to be levied and taken by the ſheriffs and bailiffs aforeſaid for the time being, without any lett, impediment, or ſcandal, from us or our heirs, or from the chancellor, treaſurer and barons of the exchequer, juſtices, ſheriffs, or any other of our officers and miniſters whatſoever: And that the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes, and their ſucceſſors, may have all goods and chattles whatſoever, taken or to be taken, with any perſon whatſover, and found with the ſaid perſon, being before a juſtice of the peace within the ſaid city, ſuburbs, limits, and precincts of the ſame.

And whereas the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid are day by day at great coſts and charges for the maintenance and reparations of the gates and pavements of the ſaid city, and the two wharfs called the Old and New Key, for the lading and unlading of ſhips and boats by the river of Severn, thither arriving; as alſo, of ſeveral bridges called the Weſt Bridge and the Foreign Bridge, of one of which great part is ſealed and parjetted, being ſixteen foot high, or thereabouts, built with divers arches and vaults, and half a mile in length, or thereabouts: And whereas, in conſideration that the burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid have been oppreſſed with very many burthens and payments, and divers grants by ſeveral letters patents under the great ſeal of England, have been made by our predeceſſors and progenitors, for divers terms now ended, to the bailiffs and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter aforeſaid, that they ſhould take of all things coming to be ſold at the ſaid vill divers and ſeveral cuſtoms, viz. (among others) for every horſe or mare, ox or cow, coming thither to be ſold, one penny, and ſeveral other cuſtoms for other things paſſing to be ſold through the gates of the ſaid city; as alſo, other cuſtoms and tolls, moorage, pontage, and tonage; which cuſtoms and tolls, as well by land as by water, and ſome other duties, the burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid have received, and been wont to receive: And whereas, by a ſtatute made in parliament of Henry the VIIth late king of England, at Weſtminſter, on the 25th day of February, in the 19th year of the reign of the ſaid king, it was enacted, that whatſoever perſon or perſons, of what degree, eſtate, or condition ſoever they be, or ſhall be, who henceforth ſhall take of any of his majeſty's ſubjects any impoſitions for any troughs or boats, or any other veſſels, for the carriage of any goods or merchandize in or upon the river of Severn, ſhall incur the penalties and forfeitures limited in the ſaid ſtatute: In which ſtatute it is farther provided, that if any perſon or perſons, ſpiritual or temporal, or body incorporate, before the moſt honourable nourable the lords of the king's moſt honourable privy council, in the ſtar chamber at Weſtminſter, at any time before the feaſt of the aſcenſion of our Lord, which ſhall then be in the year of our Lord one thouſand four hundred fifty and five, ſhall appear, and by ſufficient proof ſhall exhibit his or their title or claim to any due or impoſt to be levied and received for any goods or merchandize carried in or upon the ſaid river of Severn, that then, after the title and claim produced before the lords of the council aforeſaid for the time being, and by the decree of the ſaid lords in the ſtar chamber approved, it ſhall be lawful for any ſuch perſons whatſoever, having ſuch lawful and approved title, to receive all ſuch dues and impoſitions of any of the king's liege ſubjects, for any ſuch boat or veſſel paſſing on the river of Severn, as ſhall be admitted and allocated by the decree of the lords of the council aforeſaid, as by the aforeſaid ſtatute fully appears: And whereas, after and before the aforeſaid feaſt of the aſcenſion of our Lord, according to the proviſion of the ſtatute aforementioned, the mayor and burgeſſes of the vill of Glouceſter then being, exhibited their petition to the moſt reverend father in God, William, then archbiſhop of Canterbury, and lord chancellor of England, and the reſt of the lords of the council of king Henry the VIIth in the ſtar chamber; by which petition, they the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes, in conſideration of the annual coſts and payments with which they, for the repair of the great bridge of the aforeſaid vill, built with arches and ſtone vaults on the aforeſaid river of Severn, and of the havens of the ſaid city on the bank of the ſaid river, and for divers other good cauſes and conſiderations mentioned in the petition aforeſaid, have laid claim and title to divers tolls, ſums of pence, impoſitions, and cuſtoms, time out of mind, due to them and their predeceſſors, and by them levied and taken, of and for boats and other veſſels paſſing in or upon the river Severn under the bridges aforeſaid, and for the goods and merchandize in them carried, and for the goods and merchandize unladen at the havens aforeſaid, towards the payment of the annual expences aforeſaid; upon which, at the time of Eaſter, being the 29th day of April, in the twentieth year of the reign of king Henry the VIIth, in the ſtar chamber at Weſtminſter aforeſaid, before the aforeſaid lord chancellor of England, and other lords of the council of the ſaid king being then and there preſent, (the aforeſaid petition of the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the vill of Glouceſter being often read, and very well underſtood) as alſo the depoſitions and examinations, and other proofs and evidences, as well of the part of the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the vill of Glouceſter, as of the mayor and citizens of the city of Coventry, and the burgeſſes and inhabitants of the vill of Bewdly and Tewkſbury, and other villages and places, being produced and read publickly, heard and fully underſtood, upon mature and diligent deliberation, by the aforeſaid lord chancellor, and the reſt of the council of the ſaid late king then and there preſent, by virtue of the ſaid ſtatute in that parliament ſet forth, and by vertue and authority of the ſtatute given and granted to that council, it was ordained, decreed, and adjudged concerning the matters ſpecified in the petition aforeſaid, by the aſſent and conſent, as well of the mayor and burgeſſes of the vill of Glouceſter, as of the mayor and citizens of the city of Coventry, and of the burgeſſes and inhabitants of the vills of Bewdly and Tewkſbury, in manner and form following, viz. that the mayor and burgeſſes of the ſaid vill of Glouceſter and their ſucceſſors, ſhould have and take of all citizens of the ſaid city of Coventry, and their ſucceſſors, towards the payment of the fee farm of the ſaid vill, and other expences in the decree aforementioned, for every hogſhead of wine, and ton of other merchandizes, paſſing in any boat, trough, or veſſel, from or through the ſaid vill of Glouceſter towards the city of Worceſter, three-pence; and for every hogſhead of wine and ton of other merchandize unladen in the ſaid vill of Glouceſter, at or upon the wharf, key, or land, three-pence, without any thing to be paid for the carriage of the ſaid goods, by carts, drays, or horſes, for the uſe of the mayor and burgeſſes, or without any ſum of pence to be aſked or received, by the name of any cuſtom whatſoever, for the ſaid wines, or the veſſels wherein they were laden, in or upon the river aforeſaid, paſſing at, by, or under, or about the bridge aforeſaid; or for any of them bound with ropes and hooks near the adjacent bridge, or by any art or ingenuity, to be drawn and conducted under the bridge, into any place within the ſaid vill of Glouceſter, and the privileges and franchiſes of the ſame: And it was farther adjudged, decreed, and ordained, by the lord chancellor and lords of the council aforeſaid, that the mayor and burgeſſes of the ſaid vill of Glouceſter, and their ſucceſſors, ſhould for ever have and take for cuſtom the like number of pence of all other perſons, for every hogſhead of wine and ton of other merchandize, to be unladen in the ſaid vill, the vill of Tewkſbury, together with the burgeſſes and inhabitants within the franchiſes of the ſame, and other cities, vills, burroughs, or perſons, being excepted, who have made compoſition with the mayor and burgeſſes aforeſaid, with ſome other proviſions for the leſſening and eaſing of thoſe goods for which the cuſtom was formerly paid, although things might be by water exported, not at all altering the property, as is ſpecified in the decree aforeſaid; and that the mayor and burgeſſes aforeſaid ſhould have, of every boat or veſſel paſſing from one ſide or other under the ſaid bridge, laden with timber, board, or lath, four-pence, for every time it ſhall paſs by or under the ſaid bridge, and for every boat or veſſel laden with firewood or fewel, two-pence, without any cuſtom or toll to be paid for the ſame; always provided that that decree extend not to the detriment of the vill of Tewkſbury, nor the burgeſſes, nor any perſons within the ſaid vill privileged and excepted; provided alſo, that the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes of Glouceſter ſhould take no cuſtom for any houſhold neceſſaries, nor any thing bought or provided for the private uſe of a family, being not to be merchandized: And moreover, the mayor and burgeſſes ſhall have, for every ton of wheat paſſing from either ſide under the aforeſaid bridge, being to be made merchandize of, three-pence, and for all other grain, two-pence; and this to be paid, until ſome perſons can ſufficiently prove before the chancellor aforeſaid in the ſaid council, that leſs than three-pence ſhould be levied and taken for the ſame, ſo that this proof be made within ſeven years: And then there was a further ordinance made for the toll of corn in the place aforeſaid by the council aforeſaid, as by the aforeſaid decree of the lord chancellor aforeſaid, and the lords of the king's council then and there preſent in the ſtar chamber aforeſaid, made the day and year aforeſaid, which we have looked into, as plainly and fully appears: We therefore willing to confirm, approve, and ratify, all the kinds of dues, tolls, cuſtoms, and ſums of pence, by the mayor and burgeſſes of the city of Glouceſter heretofore, by vertue of the decree aforeſaid, or any other ways lawfully received and levied, to them the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes, will, and do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes, and their ſucceſſors, that it may be lawful for the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes, and their ſucceſſors, for the time being, from time to time for ever, to have, receive, take, and levy, for oats, bread-corn, and all ſorts of grain and other merchandizes, and things to be ſold, brought and carried to the city aforeſaid; and for all boats paſſing there, or lying in the river of Severn, and for the goods wherewith they are laden or unladen at, or upon the haven aforeſaid, ſuch and ſo many cuſtoms, tolls, and reaſonable ſums of pence, as by the burgeſſes or bailiffs in their reſpective turns have by virtue of thoſe grants, or any other lawful way, been heretofore received and levied.

And whereas, from the time of the making theſe letters patents, in the firſt year of the reign of the ſaid Richard the IIId, although by theſe letters patents the aforeſaid vill of Glouceſter was made a city, two burgeſſes only were ſummoned at all parliaments elected by the major part of the burgeſſes to ſerve and ſit in parliament, never any other were choſen knights for the county of the ſame city; and yet it was a cuſtom in other cities that two were choſen burgeſſes for ſuch a city, and two more knights for the county of the ſame city: We therefore for the future, to avoid and aboliſh all ſcruple and doubt in that caſe, do will and ordain, and for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that upon ſummons of any parliament of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, it may and ſhall be lawful for the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, and the major part of them, at a full county court next after the ſummons to be holden in that caſe, lately made and provided, to elect, nominate, and return two only diſcreet men of the ſaid city to be burgeſſes for that city and county of the ſame city; and that thoſe two burgeſſes ſo choſen, ſhall ſerve and ſit in parliament as burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and knights of the county of the ſame: And that the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid ſhall in no wiſe be forced or compelled to elect, nominate and return for burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and knights of the county of the ſame; but they two only ſhall ſerve and ſit in parliament, who ſhall from time to time be lawfully elected and returned by the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, or the major part of them, according to the form of the ſtatute in that caſe made and provided, as before the time of the reign of king Richard the IIId, the like burgeſſes of parliament for the burrough or vill of Glouceſter, were wont to be nominated, elected and returned, and no otherwiſe.

And whereas the bailiffs and burgeſſes of the vill of Glouceſter of old held the ſaid burrough, with the appurtenances, of the kings of England in fee farm, by the yearly payment of ſixty and five pounds of lawful money of England, we do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant, and of our ſpecial grace and favour, give and confirm to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, the ſaid whole city of Glouceſter, with all and ſingular its privileges, rights and appurtenances, having been hitherto uſed to have been paid to us, our predeceſſors, and progenitors, and remain to be paid to us our heirs and ſucceſſors, in as ample manner and form as they were heretofore granted to the mayor and burgeſſes geſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their predeceſſors, by whatſoever name or names of incorporation, or by any former charters or letters patents of any of our anceſtors and progenitors, and as the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes, and their predeceſſors, by vertue or pretext of any charter or letters patents, have heretofore lawfully holden and poſſeſſed it.

And we do further, of our ſpecial grace and favour, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, grant, approve, ratify and confirm to the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, all and ſingular ſuch like manors, meſſuages, lands and tenements, court leets, aſſize of frank pledge, ſheriffs courts, and all other courts whatſoever, markets, fairs, cuſtoms, liberties, franchiſes, freedoms, fines, and amerciaments, exemptions, juriſdictions, and inheritances whatſoever, as the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes now lawfully enjoy and uſe, or that they, or either of them, or their predeceſſors, by any names of incorporation, or by vertue and pretext of any charters or letters patents by any of our predeceſſors and progenitors, late kings and queens of England, made and granted, were wont to have, uſe, and enjoy, before the ſaid ſurrender was made; or by pretext of any law, preſcription, or cuſtom, or any other lawful way, right, or title, had and accuſtomed, although they or ſome of them have been ill uſed or abuſed, or any way loſt and forfeited, yet to be kept and enjoyed by the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors for ever, only paying to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, ſuch fee farm and ſums of pence as have been hitherto due and uſed to be paid: Wherefore we will, and do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, by ſtrict injunction, command, that the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes, and their ſucceſſors, may for ever have, hold, uſe, exerciſe, and enjoy, all and ſingular the aforeſaid courts, and all other authorities, juriſdictions, franchiſes, and immunities, together with all manors, lands, tenements, and inheritances aforeſaid, according to the tenor and effect of theſe our letters patents, without any lett or impediment from us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, or any juſtices of the peace, ſheriffs, or other officers or miniſters of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors whatſoever, any ſurrender of former charters to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Being alſo unwilling that the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, or any of them, or their ſucceſſors, ſhould by occaſion of the premiſſes, by us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, juſtices, ſheriffs, or any other officers or miniſters of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors whatſoever, be moleſted, vexed, aggrieved, or any way diſturbed, we will, and by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, ſtrictly command the treaſurer, chancellor, and barons of the exchequer at Weſtminſter, and other officers and juſtices of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, our attornies general, and attornies in any courts whatſoever for the time being, and all officers and miniſters of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, that they and every of them do not proſecute or continue, or cauſe to be proſecuted and continued, any brief or ſummons de quo warranto, or any other brief, briefs, or proceſſes, againſt the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, for any cauſes, things, or matters, offences, claims, or uſurpations, or either of them, duly claimed, attempted, had, or uſurped, before the day of the date of the making of theſe our letters patents.

We willing alſo that they the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid ſhould not, by any juſtices, officers, or miniſters aforeſaid, in and for the due uſe, claim, or abuſe of any liberties, franchiſes or juriſdictions, within the city aforeſaid, or the precincts of the ſame, be moleſted, aggrieved, or hindered, or compelled to anſwer any of them before the day of the date of theſe our letters patents, we will, and we do, by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, grant to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that this preſent charter ſo generally made, may and ſhall be of the ſame vertue and effect as if all the premiſſes above ſpecified were ſpecially and particularly in this our charter expreſſed; and that it be underſtood and adjudged in the beſt and moſt favourable ſenſe on the part of the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, though it might be toward us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, better underſtood, any omiſſion, defect, repugnancy, or contradiction in the ſame to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Nevertheleſs, we will that the juſtices of aſſize of niſi prius and general goal delivery in the county of Glouceſter, as alſo the juſtices of the peace of the ſaid county being aſſigned, or to be aſſigned, to keep their ſeſſions, and alſo the ſheriffs of the county of Glouceſter, they and either of them may freely enter the ſaid city to keep their ſeſſions concerning any matter or buſineſs happening or iſſuing without the county of the city, and within the county of Glouceſter, as they were wont before theſe times, and before the letters patents of the ſaid late king Richard the IIId, made in the firſt year of his reign, this preſent grant in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

Moreover we will, and by theſe preſents declare, that all and ſingular juſtices aſſigned to keep the peace in the county of Glouceſter for the future for ever, may take and receive within the ſaid city, informations, recognizances, and all other acts, matters, and things, as being juſtices of the peace they may any where do; and that all commiſſioners of ſewers, and commiſſioners for charitable uſes, may execute their reſpective commiſſions within the ſaid city of Glouceſter, for all matters and things whatſoever iſſuing without the county of the city, and within the county of Glouceſter, this preſent grant of ours in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

Always provided, and we will, and do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, firmly enjoin, order and command, all and ſingular the mayor, recorder, town clerk, aldermen, capital burgeſſes, and all other our officers and miniſters of our city aforeſaid, and all others their deputies; as alſo, all juſtices of the peace of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, within that city, by vertue and according to the tenor of theſe our letters patents, or charters heretofore made, for the future to be nominated and elected, ſhall, before they or either of them be admitted to enter upon the execution of their reſpective offices, take as well the corporal oath, commonly called the oath of obedience, as the corporal oath, commonly called the oath of ſupremacy, upon the holy goſpel, before ſuch perſon or perſons as ſhall be aſſigned and appointed to adminiſter ſuch oaths.

And we farther will and declare our royal pleaſure and intention, that no recorder or town clerk of our city aforeſaid ſhall be admitted to the execution of his or their reſpective offices, before they or either of them be or ſhall be approved of by us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, any thing in theſe preſents contained to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Always provided, that thoſe letters patents, or any thing in them contained, ſhall not extend to be expounded or interpreted to grant the hundreds of Dudſtone and King's Barton near the city of Glouceſter aforeſaid, or the villages, pariſhes, hamlets, or any other places within the ſaid hundreds, to be a parcel of the county of the city aforeſaid, as in former times have been, or to give, grant, and confirm to the aforeſaid mayor and burgeſſes of that city and their ſucceſſors, any liberties, privileges, franchiſes, immunities, juriſdictions, powers, profits, or advantages whatſoever, to be had, taken, and enjoyed within the ſaid hundreds, or any of them, or within any pariſhes, villages, or hamlets within the ſaid hundreds, or either of them; but we will and declare our royal intention, that thoſe hundreds and all inhabitants of the ſame, or either of them, and all villages, places, and hamlets whatſoever, within the ſaid hundreds and hamlets, and every part and parcel of them, or either of them, ſhall henceforth for ever remain parcels of our ſaid county of Glouceſter to all intents and purpoſes; and that all things, juriſdictions, liberties, privileges, powers, and authorities, by any of our progenitors and predeceſſors, kings or queens of England, heretofore granted to the vill or city of Glouceſter aforeſaid, or corporation of the ſame, by any name or names within the ſaid hundreds, to be had, taken and enjoyed, to be void and of none effect, as for and concerning the ſaid hundreds and either of them, and all inhabitants of the ſame, according to the form of the ſtatute in that caſe made and provided, any thing in theſe preſents contained to the contrary in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

Always provided that thoſe letters patents and this ſaid charter and grant of liberties and privileges, or any thing in them contained, be not any way prejudicial to the dean and chapter of the cathedral church of the city aforeſaid, or their ſucceſſors; but we will, and by theſe preſents declare our royal intention, that the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, may from time to time for the future for ever hold and enjoy all ſuch rights, privileges, franchiſes, juriſdictions, and immunities whatſoever, as the ſaid dean and chapter do now lawfully enjoy, and are rightfully due and belonging to the ſaid church, any thing in theſe preſents contained to the contrary notwithſtanding.

Always provided, that if at any time or times it ſhall ſeem expedient to us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, to remove the mayor or any of the aldermen or burgeſſes of the common council, or any officer or officers within the ſaid city or county of the ſame, (except the chamberlain, ſword bearer, and ſerjeants at mace) and eaſe him or them of his or their reſpective office or offices, and we, our heirs or ſucceſſors, ſhall ſignify ſuch will or pleaſure of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, by order to be made in the privy council of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, that then immediately from and after notice of ſuch order given to the mayor and burgeſſes of the city aforeſaid for the time being, they the ſaid mayor and burgeſſes, if it be not a mayor to be removed, and if it be, the aldermen and common council of the city aforeſaid, or the major part of them that ſhall be there preſent, ſhall proceed to the election of a new mayor, alderman, burgeſs of the common council, or other officer or officers as aboveſaid, removed, or to be removed, as if he or they had died in the ſaid office or offices, any thing in theſe preſents contained to the contrary notwithſtanding.

In witneſs whereof we have cauſed theſe our letters to be made patents. Witneſs ourſelf at Weſtminſter this 18th day of April, in the four and twentieth year of our reign.

By Writ of Privy Seal. —— PIGGOTT.

NUMB.

NUMBER VII.

The CHARTER of Foundation of the Biſhoprick of GLOUCESTER.

HENRY the VIIIth, by the grace of God king of England and France, defender of the faith, lord of Ireland, and ſupreme head on earth of the church of England, to all to whom theſe preſents ſhall come, greeting: Whereas the great convent or monaſtery, which, whilſt in being, was called the monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, and all and ſingular its manors, lordſhips, meſſuages, lands, tenements, hereditaments, endowments, and poſſeſſions, for certain ſpecial and urgent cauſes, were, by Gabriel Moreton, prior of the ſaid abbey or monaſtery, and the convent thereof, lately given and granted to us and our heirs for ever, as by the deed of the ſaid prior and convent, under their common conventual ſeal inrolled in our court of chancery, fully appears; by virtue whereof we are rightfully ſeized in our demeſne, as of fee, of and in the ſcite, bounds and precinct of the ſaid convent or monaſtery; and of all and ſingular manors, lordſhips, meſſuages, lands, tenements, hereditaments, endowments, and poſſeſſions of the ſaid late prior and convent; and we being ſo ſeized, and being influenced by divine goodneſs, and deſiring above all things, that true religion and the true worſhip of God may not only not be aboliſhed, but intirely reſtored to the primitive and genuine rule of ſimplicity; and that all thoſe enormities may be corrected into which the lives and profeſſion of the monks for a long time had deplorably lapſed, have, as far as human frailty will permit, endeavoured to the utmoſt that, for the future, the pure word of God may be taught in that place, good diſcipline obſerved, youth freely inſtructed in learning, the infirmities of old age relieved with neceſſaries, alms given to poor chriſtians, highways and bridges repaired; and that all offices of piety in every kind may there abound, and thence ſpread to the neighbourhood far and near, to the glory of God, and the common good and benefit of our ſubjects.

Wherefore, conſidering that the ſcite of the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, in which many famous monuments of our renowned anceſtors, kings of England, are erected, is a very fit and proper place for erecting, inſtituting and eſtabliſhing an epiſcopal ſee, and an epiſcopal church, of one biſhop, one dean a preſbyter, and ſix prebendaries preſbyters, for the ſervice of Almighty God for ever, we have decreed, and by theſe preſents we do decree, the ſcite of the ſaid monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, and the place and church thereof, to be an epiſcopal ſee, and to be created, erected and eſtabliſhed a cathedral church; and the ſaid cathedral church we do, by theſe preſents, fully and indeed create, erect, found, ordain, make, appoint and eſtabliſh, of one biſhop, one dean a preſbyter, ſix prebendaries preſbyters, which we will and command, by theſe preſents, from henceforth unalterably, to continue and endure, and to be eſtabliſhed for ever.

And we alſo will and ordain, by theſe preſents, that the ſaid cathedral church ſhall be from henceforth for ever a cathedral church and ſee epiſcopal; and that our whole town of Glouceſter be from henceforth and for ever a city; and we will and decree that the ſame be from henceforth for ever nominated and called the city of Glouceſter: And whereas our ſaid late town or vill of Glouceſter, together with all and ſingular the vills and hamlets of Dudſton and King's Barton near Glouceſter, have for a long time paſt been an entire county by itſelf, rightfully incorporated in deed and name; and whereas one Thomas Payne, now mayor of our vill aforeſaid, and the burgeſſes of our ſaid late vill of Glouceſter, now have, hold, and do enjoy ſeveral liberties, franchiſes and privileges within the ſaid late vill of Glouceſter, and within the county of the ſame vill; and the predeceſſors of them, the ſaid now mayor and burgeſſes, within our ſaid late vill of Glouceſter, and within the county of the ſame our late vill of Glouceſter, by letters patents of our progenitors, by uſe, preſcription or otherwiſe, in what manner ſoever had, held and enjoyed, the ſame as by right, and by the laws of our kingdom they lawfully might uſe, hold and enjoy the ſame; we will, and by theſe preſents, do grant, that now our city of Glouceſter, together with all and ſingular the vills and hamlets of Dudſton and King's Barton, be, and for ever hereafter ſhall be, the county of our city of Glouceſter, by the ſame meets and bounds by which our ſaid late vill of Glouceſter, together with all and ſingular the vills and hamlets of Dudſton and King's Barton aforeſaid, is limited and known; and we do, by theſe preſents, ordain, make, erect and eſtabliſh our ſaid city of Glouceſter, together with the vills and hamlets of Dudſton and King's Barton aforeſaid, one entire county in deed and name, diſtinct and abſolutely ſeparated from our county of Glouceſter for ever.

And out of our farther grace, we will, and by theſe preſents do grant, that the aforeſaid Thomas of the ſaid city, and the now mayor, the burgeſſes of the ſaid city, and their ſucceſſors, for ever have, hold and enjoy, and have full power and authority to have, hold and enjoy within our county aforeſaid, and within the county of our city aforeſaid, ſo many, ſuch, as great and like liberties, courts leet, views of frank pledge, and all things belonging to view of frank pledge, return of writs, rights, juriſdictions, franchiſes, and privileges whatſoever, as many, as great, and in like caſes, and in the ſame manner and form as the now mayor and burgeſſes of our city of Glouceſter, or any one, or any of their predeceſſors within our ſaid late vill of Glouceſter, had, held or enjoyed, or ought for any reaſon, or in any manner whatſoever, to have, hold or enjoy.

And the ſaid city of Glouceſter, and all the county of the ſaid city, and all our county of Glouceſter, as the ſame is by meets and bounds limited and known, from all juriſdiction, authority and dioceſe, as well of the biſhop of Worceſter as of the biſhop of York and biſhop of Hereford for the time being, and their ſucceſſors, we do ſeparate, divide, exempt, exonerate, and, by theſe preſents, do free and diſcharge; and we do adjoin and unite all epiſcopal juriſdiction, as well as all profits, emoluments and hereditaments whatſoever, right or juriſdiction epiſcopal, belonging, appertaining, or ariſing within our ſaid city of Glouceſter, or county of the ſaid city, and within the whole county of Glouceſter, to the biſhop of Gouceſter, to be by us named and elected by theſe our letters patents, and to his ſucceſſors for ever, biſhops of Glouceſter, and to the biſhoprick of Glouceſter: And we do by theſe preſents, make and ordain the ſaid city and county to be the dioceſe of Glouceſter; and we will and ordain that it be for ever hereafter nominated and called the dioceſe of Glouceſter; and all that dioceſe of Glouceſter, and every part thereof, we will and ordain to be of the province of Canterbury, and ſo for ever hereafter to be nominated, reputed and taken, to all intents and purpoſes, and in the ſame manner as the dioceſe of Worceſter was, and was taken and reputed to be.

And becauſe our vill of Briſtol which is ſituate and being within the bounds and limits of our county of Glouceſter, is a county of itſelf, and is part within the dioceſe of Bath and Wells, and part within the dioceſe of Worceſter, therefore to prevent and take away all ambiguity and doubt hereafter, we will, ordain and appoint, and by theſe preſents do grant, that all that part of our vill and county of Briſtol which heretofore was in the dioceſe of Worceſter, be from this time forward, and for ever, in the dioceſe of Glouceſter, to all intents and purpoſes, in the ſame manner as it was wont to be within the epiſcopal juriſdiction of Worceſter.

And to the end that this our intention may obtain due and ample effect, we very much confiding in the knowledge, good manners, probity and virtue of our well-beloved chaplain, John Wakeman, clerk, do nominate and elect, and by theſe preſents we do elect, nominate and create him the ſaid John biſhop of Glouceſter: And we will, and by theſe preſents do grant and ordain, that the ſaid biſhop be a body corporate in deed and in name: And we do by theſe preſents declare, accept, ordain, make and conſtitute him a body corporate for ever, and that he have a perpetual ſucceſſion, and that he and his ſucceſſors, by the name of biſhop of Glouceſter, ſhall be called and nominated; and that he and his ſucceſſors, by and under that name, may proſecute, claim and plead, and be impleaded, defend and be defended, anſwer and be anſwered, in all the courts and places of law, of us our heirs and ſucceſſors whatſoever, and elſewhere; and in all and ſingular cauſes, actions, ſuits, writs and plaints, real, perſonal, or mixed, as well temporal as ſpiritual, and in all other things, cauſes and matters whatſoever; and by that name to take, receive, enjoy and acquire any manors, lordſhips, lands, tenements, rectories, penſions, portions, and other hereditaments whatſoever; poſſeſſions, profits and emoluments, as well ſpiritual and eccleſiaſtical as temporal, and all other things whatſoever, by our letters patents to the aforeſaid biſhop and his ſucceſſors, by us, our heirs, in due manner to be made, or which ſhall be given or granted by any other perſon or perſons, according to our laws, or the laws of any of our heirs or ſucceſſors; and that he and they may, and can have full power and authority to give, alien, or demiſe, and generally all other things to receive and do, in the like and in the ſame manner and form as any other biſhop or biſhops of our kingdom of England may, or can receive, or do, but not otherwiſe, nor in any other manner.

And becauſe we will that our ſaid biſhop of Glouceſter and his ſucceſſors be honourably endowed, we give, and by theſe preſents do grant to the ſaid biſhop, all that our hall covered with lead, commonly called the leaden hall, one room or pantry, one buttery, with one kitchen, two little houſes for putting meat, one ſquare pool or ſtew for keeping of fiſh, to which freſh water runs, ſituate at the eaſt end of a certain hall, a large bed chamber where the ſervants of the late abbot did uſe to eat, ſituate at the weſt end of the ſaid hall; and alſo, one pantry, one buttery, one office under ground, with the way leading thereto, ſituate on the ſouth part of the aforeſaid great bed chamber; and alſo a certain ſquare or void place containing in length by eſtimation two perches, and in breadth one perch and three foot, adjoining to the ſaid great bed chamber; and alſo, one other bed chamber commonly called the ſquare bed chamber ſituate on the north part of the great bed chamber, with three other bed chambers built over the ſaid ſquare bed chamber, and one other great bed chamber where the abbot of the ſaid monaſtery did uſe to eat, with one pantry, one buttery, and one office under ground, ſituate and being at the end of the ſaid great bed chamber; and alſo, one gallery ſituate at the ſouth-eaſt end of the ſaid bed chamber; and alſo, one bed chamber ſituate on the ſouth part of the ſaid bed chamber, and one bed chamber ſituate on the ſouth part of the ſaid gallery, with three bed chambers built all together, and ſituate on the north part of the ſaid gallery; and alſo, all thoſe three inner bed chambers with one middle room, one chapel, and another gallery joining to the ſaid three chambers, being the ſaid late abbot's own apartment on the north end of the ſaid great bed chamber where the late abbot did uſe to eat, and on the ſouth of the ſaid bed chamber; as alſo, one other hall, one pantry, one buttery, one kitchen, and two bed chambers, ſituate at the eaſt end of the ſaid gallery; and all and ſingular chambers, houſes, edifices, buildings, offices under ground, and other offices whatſoever, ſituate or built under or over the ſaid halls, bed chambers, galleries, and all and ſingular other buildings under or over the premiſſes, or any part thereof; and all that flower garden, containing in length by eſtimation ſix perch and ten foot, and in breadth ſeven perch thirteen foot and a half; which garden reaches and extends itſelf to the three inner chambers and other buildings which was the abbot's own apartment, and all and ſingular meſſuages, dwellings, houſes, buildings, ſtructures, with the ground and ſoil thereto belonging; gardens, orchards, void places, walls, and all and ſingular other hereditaments that are known by the name or names of the abbot's lodgings, or ſituate and being within all that precinct, circuit and encloſure known or called the abbot's lodgings; which ſaid circuit or encloſure in the ſouth part contains by eſtimation nine perches and ten foot, and in the north part nine perch and ſix foot, and on the weſt end eight perch nine foot and eight inches, and at the eaſt end eight perch and ſixteen foot, each perch containing eighteen foot and a half and three inches; which ſaid hall, houſes, buildings, galleries, walks, and all and ſingular other the premiſſes; and alſo, all the lands and ſoil whereon the ſame ſtand, are ſituate, lying and being within the precinct of the ſaid late abbey or monaſtery: And we do alſo give, and by theſe preſents grant to the ſaid biſhop, all that ſtable, commonly called the abbot's ſtable, containing in length four perch eight foot and a half, and in breadth one perch and four foot; and alſo, one garden being at the eaſt end of the church-yard, containing in length ſix perch ſeventeen foot and a half, and in breadth ſix perch and ſixteen foot; and alſo, that houſe commonly called the wood barton, containing in length one hundred and eight foot, and in breadth thirty-four foot; and alſo, two other ſtables, two ſlaughter houſes, and one dog kennel, containing in length eighty-four foot, and in breadth thirty foot; which ſaid ſtables, ſlaughter houſes, and all and ſingular the premiſſes are ſituated and lie in the pariſh of St. Mary de Lode in our ſaid city of Gloucester, without the precinct of the ſaid monaſtery; and alſo, free ingreſs, egreſs and regreſs, and all manner of other liberties and benefits, of going, returning, carrying and re-carrying to and from all and ſingular the places aforeſaid, and all other the premiſſes, and of doing all other things at all times of the year, at the will and pleaſure of the ſaid biſhop and his ſucceſſors; to have and to hold all and ſingular the aforeſaid halls, chambers, galleries, walks, offices, ſtables, houſes, edifices, and all and ſingular other the premiſſes to the ſaid biſhop and his ſucceſſors; to be held of us and our ſucceſſors as of free alms: And we will that the ſaid meſſuages, dwellings, halls, chambers, and all and ſingular other the premiſſes be for ever hereafter taken to be nominated and called the palace of the biſhop of Gloucester and his ſucceſſors.

And moreover, and by theſe preſents we do ordain, that the ſaid cathedral church from henceforth forward for ever ſhall be the cathedral church and ſee epiſcopal of the ſaid John biſhop of Gloucester, and of his ſucceſſors biſhops of Gloucester; and the ſaid cathedral church we do by theſe preſents adorn with the honours, dignities and enſigns of an epiſcopal ſee; and the ſaid epiſcopal ſee we do by theſe preſents give and grant to the ſaid John and his ſucceſſors, to have and to hold to the ſaid John and his ſucceſſors for ever.

And farthermore, of our farther grace, we will and ordain, and by theſe preſents do grant, that the biſhop of Gloucester that now is, and every one of his ſucceſſors, amongſt other things already mentioned, may, and can from time to time nominate, depute and appoint, one vicar general or vicars general, commiſſary or commiſſaries, regiſter or regiſters, in and through the whole dioceſe of Gloucester, as the ſame by meets and bounds is known and limited, in the ſame manner as the biſhop of Worceſter might, ought, and was wont to nominate and appoint them; and that ſuch vicar general, commiſſary and commiſſaries, regiſter and regiſters, ſo by the biſhop hereafter to be nominated and deputed, and every one of them, all and ſingular profits and emoluments to their reſpective offices now belonging, may and have full power and authority to collect, receive and have, in and through the ſaid city, in manner as the vicar, commiſſary and regiſter of the biſhop of Worceſter for the time being heretofore might, was wont, or accuſtomed to collect, receive, or have, any grants or commiſſions by the ſaid now biſhop of Worceſter, or any of his predeceſſors or ſucceſſors already made, granted, or done, or to be made, granted or done, notwithſtanding.

And moreover we will, and by theſe preſents do ordain, that the aforeſaid John, and his ſucceſſors, biſhops of Gloucester aforeſaid, may, can and ought to exerciſe, perform and uſe all and all manner of juriſdiction, power and authority, as well ordinary as extraordinary within the cathedral church of Gloucester and dioceſe aforeſaid, from this time forth and for ever, in as ample manner and form as the biſhop of Worceſter by our laws might, could, or ought to exerciſe, perform and uſe.

And we farther will that the ſaid John biſhop of Gloucester, and his ſucceſſors biſhops of Gloucester, from henceforth and for ever have one or more authentic ſeal or ſeals, for the doing of all matters and buſineſſes, which is to ſerve and be of the ſame effect in law, in the ſame manner and form as the biſhop of Weſtminſter now has, or may have.

And we will that the cathedral church aforeſaid be filled and adorned with fit perſons in all places and degrees; and we by theſe preſents do made and ordain our well beloved chaplain, William Jennyns, batchelor in divinity, to be the firſt original and modern dean of the ſaid cathedral church, and that he the ſaid dean, and every of his ſucceſſors to be by us named, have and poſſeſs the firſt place of dignity in the ſaid cathedral church next to the ſaid biſhop; and that our well beloved chaplain, Nicholas Wotton, archdeacon of Gloucester, and every one of his ſucceſſors, by the biſhop of Gloucester to that archdeaconry henceforth to be nominated and choſen, have and poſſeſs the ſecond place of dignity in the ſaid cathedral church; and our beloved chaplain, Richard Brown, clerk, batchelor in civil and common laws, to be the firſt and preſent preſbyter prebendary, and Henry Willis, clerk, batchelor in divinity, to be ſecond preſbyter prebendary, and John Rodley, clerk, batchelor in divinity, to be the third preſbyter prebendary, and James Vaughan, clerk, maſter of arts, to be the fourth preſbyter prebendary, and Edward Bennet, clerk, to be the fifth preſbyter prebendary, and John Huntley, clerk, late prior of Dandri in our county of Surrey, to be the ſixth preſbyter prebendary.

We will alſo and ordain, and we do by theſe preſents grant to the ſaid dean and prebendaries, that the aforeſaid dean and ſix prebendaries from henceforth be of themſelves in deed and in name a body corporate, and that they have a perpetual ſucceſſion, and that they ſhall demean, appear and employ themſelves according to certain ordinances, rules and ſtatutes by us, in a certain indenture to them hereafter to be made, ſpecified and declared; and that the ſaid dean and prebendaries, and their ſucceſſors, ſhall for ever hereafter be called the dean and chapter of the holy and individed trinity of Gloucester; and that the aforeſaid dean and prebendaries of the cathedral church aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, be, and for ever after ſhall be, the chapter of the biſhoprick of Gloucester; and that the ſaid chapter be for ever hereafter annexed, incorporated and united to the beforementioned John and his ſucceſſors, biſhops of Gloucester, in the ſame manner and form in which the dean and chapter of the cathedral church of St. Peter in our city of Weſtminſter, to the biſhop of Weſtminſter, or epiſcopal ſee of Weſtminſter, is annexed, incorporated, or united; and we make them, the ſaid dean and prebendaries, one body corporate in deed and name; and them for one body we do make, declare, ordain and accept, and that they have a perpetual ſucceſſion.

And that the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, by the name of the dean and chapter of the holy and individed trinity of Gloucester, may proſecute, claim, plead and be impleaded, defend and be defended, anſwer and be anſwered, in all our courts and places of law and elſewhere, in and upon all and ſingular cauſes, actions, ſuits, demands, writs and plaints, real, ſpiritual, perſonal and mixt, and in all other things, cauſes and matters, in the ſame manner as the dean and chapter of St. Peter of Weſtminſter may or can make or do; and by the ſame name, manors, lordſhips, lands, tenements, and other hereditaments whatſoever, poſſeſſions, profits and emoluments, as well ſpiritual or eccleſiaſtical as temporal; and all other things whatſoever, to take, by letters patents of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, or of any other perſon or perſons whatſoever, to them or their ſucceſſors, or otherwiſe according to the laws of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, to be given or granted, may and can take, receive and acquire, give, alien and demiſe; and generally all and ſingular other things, take, receive, acquire, give, alien and demiſe, and do and execute in like, and in the ſame manner and form in which the dean and chapter of the aforeſaid cathedral church of St. Peter in our city of Weſtminſter can take, take, receive, acquire, give, alien, demiſe, and do or execute, but not otherwiſe, nor in any other manner.

And that the dean and chapter of the cathedral church of the holy and individed trinity of Glouceſter, and their ſucceſſors for ever, may uſe one common ſeal to ſeal all charters, evidences and writings, by them made or to be made, or any ways touching or concerning the ſaid cathedral church aforeſaid.

And moreover we will, and by theſe preſents do grant and ordain, that the aforeſaid biſhop of Glouceſter, and every of his ſucceſſors for the time being, and the aforeſaid dean and chapter of the cathedral church of the holy and individed trinity of Glouceſter, and every one of their ſucceſſors, have full power and faculty of making, receiving, giving, aliening, demiſing, executing, and doing all and ſingular things, which the biſhop of Weſtminſter jointly and ſeverally can make, receive, give, alien, demiſe, execute, or do.

And becauſe we will that the ſaid cathedral church of the holy and individed trinity of Glouceſter be honourably endowed, we of our farther grace have given and granted, and by theſe preſents do give and grant to the aforeſaid dean and chapter of the holy and individed trinity of Glouceſter all the aforeſaid ſept, circuit, encloſure and precinct of the abovenamed late abbey or monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, with all antient privileges, liberties and free cuſtoms of the ſaid late abbey or monaſtery, and all the church there, together with all chapels, leads, bells, and all things belonging to bells, cloyſters, church yards, meſſuages, houſes, edifices certain curtilages, flower gardens, gardens, orchards, fiſh ponds, and all other places, lands, territories and places within the ſame ſcite, ſept, circuit, encloſure, and precinct of the ſaid late abbey or monaſtery, and all that was reputed or eſteemed part or parcel thereof, and which lately were the ſaid prior's and convent's, in right of their monaſtery aforeſaid, together with all and all manner of veſſels, ornaments, goods, chattles and implements of the ſaid late abbey or monaſtery, with their appurtenances whatſoever, except and always reſerved to the aforeſaid biſhop and his ſucceſſors, all and ſingular halls, chambers, galleries, walks, offices, ſtables, houſes, buildings, and other hereditaments and liberties whatſoever to the ſaid biſhop and his ſucceſſors herein in theſe preſents before granted; to have, hold and enjoy the aforeſaid ſcite, ſept, circuit, encloſure and precinct of the ſaid late abbey or monaſtery beforementioned, together with all ancient privileges, liberties and free cuſtoms abovementioned; together with the church, chapels, bells, and all things belonging to bells, cloyſters, church-yards, meſſuages, houſes, curtilages, flower gardens, gardens, orchards, fiſh ponds, lands, territories, and places within the ſaid ſcite, ſept, circuit, encloſure and precinct of the ſaid late abbey or monaſtery; together with the veſſels, jewels, ornaments, goods, chattles and implements of the ſaid late abbey or monaſtery, with all and ſingular their appurtenances whatſoever; and with all and ſingular other the premiſſes above ſpecified, with their appurtenances, (except before excepted) to the aforeſaid dean and chapter of the ſaid cathedral church of the holy and individed trinity of Glouceſter, and their ſucceſſor for ever, of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, in pure and perpetual alms.

We will alſo, and by theſe preſents do grant to the dean and chapter of the ſaid cathedral church of the holy and inſeparable trinity of Glouceſter, that the dean of the ſaid church for the time being, all and ſingular inferior officers and miniſters of the ſaid cathedral church, and all other perſons of the ſaid cathedral church, as the caſe or caſes do require, ſhall make, conſtitute, appoint and accept from time to time for ever; and that he may and have authority ſuch perſons, and every of them ſo admitted or to be admitted, for lawful cauſe to correct, and alſo to depoſe, remove and expel from the ſaid cathedral church, ſaving to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, the right, title and authority of nominating, aſſigning and preferring, and by our letters patents, to ordain, prefer and preſent all deans, prebendaries, and all the poor living there on our liberality from time to time, howſoever and as often as the ſaid cathedral church of a dean, prebendaries or poor people, either by the death of any of them or otherwiſe, ſhall happen to be vacant, any thing in theſe preſents before mentioned contained in the contrary, notwithſtanding.

And we will alſo and ordain, and by theſe preſents do decree, that the archdeacon of Glouceſter that now is and his ſucceſſors, be from henceforth for ever ſeparated, diſcharged, and altogether freed from the juriſdiction, power, right and authority of the biſhop of Worceſter; and the ſaid archdeacon, and his ſucceſſors, we do, by theſe preſents, ſeparate, exonerate, and for ever free from the ſame; and him the ſaid archdeacon, and his ſucceſſors, we do decree, enact, ordain and eſtabliſh from henceforth and for ever, to be in the aforeſaid church of Glouceſter in the ſame manner, form and plight, in which he or any of his predeceſſors were in the cathedral church of the bleſſed virgin Mary of Worceſter.

We alſo enact and ordain, and by theſe preſents we will and grant, that the aforeſaid John, biſhop of Glouceſter, and his ſucceſſors biſhops of Glouceſter, have, hold and poſſeſs in all things, and through all things, authority, power, right, plight and juriſdiction of, in and on the archdeaconry of Glouceſter, and the archdeacon that now is and his ſucceſſors, as fully and abſolutely to all and intents and purpoſes as the biſhop of Worceſter that now is, or any of his predeceſſors now hath, or had, or ought to have, or did uſe or exerciſe.

We will alſo, and by theſe preſents do grant, as well to the aforeſaid biſhop as to the dean and chapter, that he and they have, and ſhall have, theſe our letters patents under our great ſeal of England, made and ſealed in due form, without fine or fee great or ſmall, in our hamper or elſewhere, in any manner to be rendered, paid, or made; notwithſtanding there is no expreſs mention at this time in theſe preſents made of the true yearly value or certainty of the premiſſes, or any of them, or of any other gifts or grants by us made to the ſaid biſhop or dean and chapter, or their ſucceſſors; and notwithſtanding any ſtatute, act, ordinance, proviſion, or reſtriction to the contrary thereof made, publiſhed, ordained, or provided, or any other thing, cauſe, or matter whatſoever, in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

In teſtimony of which, theſe our letters we have made patents. Witneſs our ſelf at Weſtminſter, the third day of September, in the thirty third year of our reign.——S.

CUPPER.

By Writ of Privy Seal of the ſame Date, and alſo by Authority of Parliament.——S.

NUMBER VIII.

The ENDOWMENT of the Biſhoprick of GLOUCESTER.

HENRY the VIIIth, by the grace of God, king of England and France, defender of the faith, lord of Ireland, and ſupreme head upon earth of the church of England, to all to whom theſe preſent letters ſhall come, greeting: Know ye, that we of our ſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have given and granted, and by theſe preſents do give and grant to the reverend father in Chriſt, John Wakeman, biſhop of Glouceſter, all thoſe our manors of Maiſmore, Brokethorpp and Haſecomb, Preſton, Longford and Droiſcorte, in the county of our city of Glouceſter, with all their rights, members and appurtenances; and our manor of Rudge and Tuſeigh in ou county of Glouceſter, with all their rights, members and appurtenances; and alſo all thoſe our manors of Hope-Meleſhal, Dewchurch and Kilpeck in our county of Hereford, with all their rights, members and appurtenances; which manors, and other the premiſſes, with all their appurtenances, did ſometime belong and appertain to the late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, or were part of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery; and alſo all and ſingular meſſuages, mills, houſes, buildings, lands, tenements, meadows, feedings, paſtures, woods, underwoods, rents, reverſions, ſervices, rents-charge, rents-ſeck, and rents-reſerved, upon all demiſes and grants whatſoever, annuities, yearly rents, farms, fee farms, waters, fiſheries and fiſhings, and rents of all our tenants and farmers whatſoever; and alſo waiſs, villains with their conſequences, knights fees, wards, marriages, eſcheats, reliefs, herriots, fairs, markets, tolls, cuſtoms, holy days, warrens, commons, furze-heaths, moors, waſts, penſions, portions, tythes, oblations, quarries, marſhes, pools, fiſh ponds, courts leets, view of frank pledge, and all things which do or hereafter may or ought to belong to view of frank pledge, and aſſize and aſſay of bread, wine and ale, eſtrays, goods, and chattles wayſed; and all other our rights, profits, emoluments, commodities and hereditaments whatſoever, with all and ſingular their appurtenances, ſituate, lying and being in the villages, fields, pariſhes of Brokethorpp, Hareſcomb, Preſton and Brokworth, in the county of our city of Glouceſter, and in the pariſh of St. Mary de Lode within our ſaid city of Glouceſter, and in the pariſhes of St. Oſwald and St. Mary de Lode within our ſaid city of Glouceſter, and in Standiſh in our ſaid county of Glouceſter, and in Dewchurch in our ſaid county of Hereford, or elſewhere, in the ſame counties of our city of Glouceſter, Glouceſter and Hereford, and elſewhere, within our kingdom of England, to the ſaid manors, or either of them, in any wiſe belonging or appertaining, or have been heretofore known, taken or reputed as being members or parcels of the ſame manors, or either of them, or have before this time been let, ſet, or occupied with the ſame manors, or either of them, or any parcel of either of them.

We give alſo, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the ſame reverend father in Chriſt, John Wakeman, biſhop of Glouceſter, ceſter, all that ſcite of a certain manſion houſe called the vineyard, and alſo a certain cloſe of paſture adjoining to the ſaid ſcite of the vineyard aforeſaid, called the Park, containing about fifteen acres and three rods, and now or late in the tenure or occupation of John Arnold, eſq; or his aſſignees, ſituate, lying, and being in the pariſh of St. Mary de Lode, in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter, and did ſometime belong and appertain to, and were part of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter.

And alſo, all that our meadow commonly called Importams, otherwiſe Porthame, containing by eſtimation 67 acres of meadow, lying and being in the ſaid pariſh of St. Mary de Lode, in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter, and the firſt ſhoot of the ſame meadow, being part of the demeſnes of Barton Abbots, and did ſome time belong and appertain to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter.

And alſo, all that our part of the manor of Laſſington in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter, with all its rights, members and appurtenances, and ſome time belonging and appertaining to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter's in Glouceſter, and being parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery; and alſo all and ſingular meſſuages, lands, tenements, rents, reverſions, meadows, feedings, paſtures, woods, underwoods, commons, courts, leets, view of frank pledge, and all things which belong to view of frank pledge, chattles, waifs, eſtrays, ſervices, and all other our profits, commodities, emoluments and hereditaments whatſoever, in any wiſe to the ſaid part of our manor belonging or appertaining, or that have been heretofore known, taken, uſed, or reputed members or parcels of the ſame part, or any parcel thereof, ſituate or being in the pariſhes of St. Oſwald and St. Mary de Lode, or elſewhere, in the county of our ſaid city of Glouceſter: And alſo, all that moiety or half part of a certain wood of ours called Woolridge, containing by eſtimation fifty acres; and alſo, all that moiety or half part of another wood of ours there called the Perch, containing by eſtimation ſixteen acres, together with the land and ſoil of the ſaid moiety of the ſame woods, lying and being in the ſaid pariſh of St. Mary de Lode within the ſaid county of our city of Glouceſter, and ſome time belonging and appertaining to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, and being parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery.

We alſo give, and by theſe preſents do grant, for ourſelves, our heirs and ſucceſſors, to the aforeſaid reverend father in Chriſt, all thoſe our rectories and churches of Hartpury, Maiſemore and Upton St. Leonard, in our ſaid county of our city of Glouceſter; and alſo, all thoſe our rectories and churches of Cam, Northleach, Kempsford, Whelford, South Cerney, and Standiſh, in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and likewiſe, all thoſe our rectories and churches of Dewchurch, Kilpeck, Glaſbury, Devennock, Cowern, and Ewias Harold, in our ſaid county of Hereford; and alſo, all that our rectory and church of Stewport in our ſaid county of Wenlock in Wales; and likewiſe, all that our chapel of Cam in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and all that our chapel of Piperton in our ſaid county of Hereford; and all that our chapel of Maiſemore in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter; which rectories, churches and chapels, did ſome time belong and appertain to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, and were part of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery; and alſo, all and all ſorts of manors, meſſuages, glebes, meadows, feedings, paſtures, rents, reverſions, ſervices, tithes, oblations, obventions, penſions, portions, and all and ſingular other our hereditaments and emoluments whatſoever to the ſaid rectories, churches and chapels, or any of them, belonging or appertaining, or that have been heretofore had or known to be part or parcel of the ſame rectories, churches or chapels, or any of them, or have been let or demiſed with the ſaid rectories, churches or chapels, or any of them; and alſo, all and ſingular our tithes, glebes, penſions, portions, oblations and obventions whatſoever, iſſuing from, or being in the villages, fields, pariſhes, or hamlets of Standiſh, Caldrup, Hardwick, Over-Oxlinch, Little Runwike, Harſefield, Nether Oxlinch, Sall, Putley, Farley, and Holyrood Ampney, in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and in Devennock, Wentworth and Talgarthe, in our ſaid county of Hereford, ſometime belonging and appertaining to the ſaid late monaſtery of St Peter in Glouceſter, or being part or parcel of the poſſeſſions and revenues of the ſame late monaſtery.

Moreover we give, and by theſe preſents do, for ourſelves, our heirs and ſucceſſors, grant to the aforeſaid reverend father in Chriſt, the biſhop of Glouceſter, a certain penſion of fifty-three ſhillings and four pence, iſſuing out of the rectory or church of Kempsford in our ſaid county of Glouceſter, and yearly paid by the vicar of the ſame church for the time being; and likewiſe, a certain penſion or yearly rent of twenty-ſix ſhillings and eight-pence, iſſuing out of the rectory or church of Teynton in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and alſo, a certain penſion or yearly rent of nine ſhillings, iſſuing out of the rectory or church of Rendcomb in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and alſo, a certain penſion or yearly rent of twenty-ſix ſhillings and eight-pence, iſſuing out of the rectory or church of Nympsfield in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and alſo, a certain penſion or yearly rent of twenty-ſix ſhillings and eight-pence, iſſuing out of the rectory or church of Newport in our ſaid county of Wenlock in Wales, and yearly paid by the vicar of the ſame church for the time being, which penſions were yearly paid by the ſeveral rectors and vicars of the ſame churches for the time being, and did ſometime belong and appertain to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, and were parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery.

We give alſo, and by theſe preſents, for ourſelves, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid biſhop all thoſe portions of tithes whatſoever ariſing, growing or renewing in Aldeſworth, Linton, and Shipton Solers, in our ſaid county of Glouceſter, and now or lately in the ſeveral tenures or occupations of George Daſton, and the farmer of the rectory of Aldeſworth aforeſaid; and alſo, all thoſe portions of tithes whatſoever ariſing, growing or renewing in Aſh-Leomyſter, Ferm, Barn, Bunches, Strood and Lake in our ſaid country of Hereford, which portions did ſometime belong and appertain to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, and were parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery.

We give alſo, and by theſe preſents, for ourſelves, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the ſame biſhop all and ſingular the advowſons, donations, preſentations, free diſpoſitions, and rights of patronages, of all and ſingular the rectories and churches to the ſaid manors, or any of them, belonging or appertaining; and likewiſe, all and ſingular advowſons, donations, preſentations, free diſpoſitions, and right of patronage, of all and ſingular the vicarages of Hartpury, Maiſemore, Upton St. Leonard, in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter; and of Cam, Northleach, Kempsford, Whelford, South Cerney and Standiſh, in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and of Dewchurch, Kilpeck, Glaſbury, Devennock, Cowern and Ewias Harold, in our ſaid county of Hereford; and of Newport in our county of Wenlock in Wales, ſometime belonging and appertaining to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, and being parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſame monaſtery; and likewiſe, the donations, preſentations, and free diſpoſitions, of all thoſe chapels, chanteries, or of the ſtipends of all thoſe chapels of Maiſemore, Cam, Stinchcomb, Piperton, in our ſaid county of Glouceſter, and in the county of our city of Glouceſter, and in our ſaid county of Hereford, which did ſometime belong and appertain to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, as fully and wholly, and in as ample manner and form as the laſt abbot and late convent of the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, or any of their predeceſſors, in right of that late monaſtery any time before the diſſolution of the ſame late monaſtery, or before that late monaſtery came into our hands, had, held and enjoyed the ſaid manors, lands, tenements, and other the premiſſes or any parcel thereof, or ought to have had, held and enjoyed; and as fully and wholly, and in as ample manner and form as all and ſingular of them came or ought to have come into our hands, and now are, or ought to be in our hands, by reaſon or pretence of any deed of gift, grant or confirmation made unto us by the late prior of the ſaid late monaſtery, under the ſeal of his convent, or any other way whatſoever, to have, hold and enjoy all and ſingular the aforeſaid manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, rents, reverſions, ſervices, courts, leets, view of frank pledge, meadows, feedings, paſtures, woods, underwoods, penſions, tithes, and portions of tithes, oblations, obventions, advowſons, donations, preſentations, free diſpoſitions, and rights of patronages, and all and ſingular other the premiſſes abovementioned and ſpecified, with all and ſingular their and every of their appurtenances, to the aforeſaid reverend father, the biſhop of Glouceſter, and his ſucceſſors for ever, to be held of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors in pure and perpetual alms; and alſo yielding to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, at our court of augmentations of the revenues of our crown, yearly from thenceforth for ever, thirty-three pounds, ſixteen ſhillings, and four-pence, of good and lawful money of England to be paid on the feaſt of St. Michael the archangel every year for ever.

Furthermore, out of our more abundant grace, certain knowlege and mere motion, we have given and granted, and by theſe preſents do give and grant to the aforeſaid biſhop, all and all manner of iſſues, rents, revenues and profits, of all and ſingular the aforeſaid manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, hereditaments, and other the premiſſes, and each parcel of them, from the feaſt of St. Michael the archangel laſt paſt, before the date of theſe preſents until this time, to be had and received by the ſame biſhop as of our gift, as well by his own proper hands, as by the hands of thoſe that are or ſhall be the farmers, bailiffs or occupiers, receivers or other our officers and miniſters whatſoever, of all and ſingular the premiſſes, and every parcel of them, without account, or without yielding, paying, or doing any thing for the ſame, to us our heirs or ſucceſſors.

And whereas by a certain act in our parliament begun at London, the 3d day of November, in the one and twentieth year of our reign, and from thence adjourned to Weſtminſter, and by divers prorogations then and there continued and held until until the 3d day of November, which was in the the twenty-ſixth year of our reign, amongſt other things it was declared, provided, enacted and ordained, that we, our heirs and ſucceſſors, kings of this realm, ſhould have and enjoy from time to time for ever to come, of all ſuch perſon and perſons, who at any time after the firſt day of January then next following ſhould be nominated, choſen, profeſſed, preſented, or any other way appointed to any archbiſhoprick, biſhoprick, abbey, monaſtery, priory, college, hoſpital, archdeaconry, deaconry, deanery, prebendary, rectory, vicarage, chauntry, free-chapel, or any dignity, benefice, office, or ſpiritual promotion, within this kingdom or elſewhere, within any of our dominions, of what name or quality ſoever they ſhall be, or to whatſoever foundation, patronage or donation they ſhall belong, the firſt fruits of the revenues and profits for one year of every ſuch archbiſhoprick, biſhoprick, abbey, monaſtery, priory, college, hoſpital, archdeaconry, deanery, prebendary, rectory, vicarage, chauntry, free-chapel, or any other dignity, benefice, office, or ſpiritual promotion, or to what ſuch perſon or perſons nominated, after the aforeſaid firſt day of January, ſhould be nominated, elected, preferred, preſented, collated, or any other way appointed, as in the ſame act of parliament, amongſt other things, it does more plainly appear: Know ye, that we, being willing to diſcharge and acquit the ſaid biſhop of Glouceſter, and his executors, as well of the ſaid firſt fruits, revenues and profits of the premiſſes, and every of the premiſſes, as of every ſum of money to be paid to us on account of the ſaid act of parliament for firſt fruits, of our ſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, for ourſelves, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the ſame biſhop and his executors, that we, our heirs and ſucceſſors, will not have, require, claim, nor challenge any firſt fruit or fruits of or for the ſaid biſhoprick of Glouceſter, nor of or for the aforeſaid manors, lands, tenements, and other the premiſſes, nor of or for any parcel thereof, nor any iſſues revenues or profits, nor any ſums of money in the name of the firſt fruits, of or for the premiſſes, or any part of them, nor for the firſt fruits of the ſame, or any parcel of them, for this time only, but that the ſame biſhop and his executors are and ſhall be diſcharged and acquitted, as to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, of and for the firſt fruits of all and ſingular the premiſſes, and every parcel of them; and of and from all and all ſorts of iſſues, profits, revenues of the premiſſes, and every part of them; and of and for all and all manner of ſums of money whatſoever, to be paid to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, for and in the name of the firſt fruits for the premiſſes, and every parcel of them, for this time only; and alſo, we have pardoned, remitted and releaſed, and by theſe preſents do pardon, remit and releaſe, to the beforementioned biſhop, the aforeſaid firſt fruits, revenues and profits of the premiſſes, and every parcel of them; and all and all manner of ſums of money, for and in the name of firſt fruits of the ſaid biſhoprick, and the aforeſaid manors, lands, tenements, and all and ſingular other the premiſſes, and every parcel of them, due or to be paid unto us by ourſelves, by theſe our letters patents granted to the ſame biſhop for this time only; and alſo, by theſe preſents we give unto the ſame biſhop all and every ſum and ſums of money whatſoever, for the firſt fruits, revenues and profits of the premiſſes, or any parcel of them, or for or in the name of the firſt fruits of the premiſſes, to be yielded, paid or done by the ſaid biſhop of Glouceſter unto us, by reaſon of the aforeſaid act, or any other act, law, uſage, preſcription, cuſtom, or otherwiſe, or any other manner whatſoever, to be had by the ſame biſhop, of our gift, without any account, and without yielding, paying or doing any other thing therefore to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, ſaving unto us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, the firſt fruits for the premiſſes, to be yielded hereafter by his ſucceſſors, biſhops of Glouceſter, according to the form of the ſtatute aforeſaid.

And furthermore, out of our more abundant grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, we give and grant unto the ſame biſhop and his ſucceſſors, that the ſame biſhop and his ſucceſſors ſhall have, hold and enjoy, and ſhall be impowered and enabled to have, hold and enjoy, within the ſaid manors, and all and ſingular other the premiſſes, and within each parcel of them, as many, as great, and ſuch and the ſame ſort, and the like courts leets, view of frank pledge, and alſo all things that belong to view of frank pledge, aſſize and aſſizes of bread, wine and ale, and other drink whatſoever, chattels waifed, eſtrays, free warrens, and all things that belong to free warren, quarries, lands, fairs, markets, tolls, liberties, franchiſes, privileges and juriſdictions whatſoever, as and which the aforeſaid late abbot and convent of the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, or any of his or their predeceſſors have had, held and enjoyed, or ought to have had, held and enjoyed in the aforeſaid manors, lands, tenements, and other the premiſſes, or in any parcel of them, by virtue of any other letters patents by us, or one or other of our progenitors, to the ſaid abbot or any of his predeceſſors made or granted, or by reaſon of any preſcription, uſage, cuſtom, corodies, or any other manner whatſoever, in as ample manner and form as the ſaid late abbot, or any of his predeceſſors have had, exerciſed and enjoyed, or ought to have had, exerciſed and enjoyed.

And furthermore, we out of our more ample grace, and by theſe preſents, do grant for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, that the ſame biſhop and his ſucceſſors, from heneeforth for ever, ſhall have, hold and enjoy, and to their own proper uſe ſhall convert, have and enjoy, and be impowered to convert to their own proper uſe all and ſingular the aforeſaid rectories which were any ways appropriated; and all and every the lands, tenements, tithes, commodities, profits and emoluments whatſoever, to the ſame rectories, or any of them, in any wiſe belonging or appertaining, with all their appurtenances, to the beforementioned biſhop and his ſucceſſors before granted; and that the ſaid rectories, with their appurtenances, from henceforth for ever, be appointed to the ſaid biſhop and his ſucceſſors, in as ample manner and form as the ſaid late abbot and convent of the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, or either, or any of his or their predeceſſors, in right of the late monaſtery or the ſaid rectories, or any, or either of them, with their appurtenances, had, held or enjoyed, or ought to have had, held or enjoyed, on any account or manner whatſoever, any act, ſtatute, ordinance, law, cuſtom, prohibition or reſtriction heretofore made, had, publiſhed, uſed or provided, or any other matter or cauſe whatſoever to the contrary in any wiſe notwithſtanding or impeding; and this without any preſentation, admiſſion, or induction of any incumbent or incumbents to the ſaid rectories, or any of them, to the ſaid biſhop and his ſucceſſors.

And we will alſo and do by theſe preſents, for ourſelves, our heirs and ſucceſſors, grant to the beforementioned biſhop and his ſucceſſors, that we, our heirs and ſucceſſors, for ever, and from time to time, ſhall acquit, diſcharge and ſave harmleſs, as well the ſame biſhop, his ſucceſſors and aſſignees, as the aforeſaid manors, lands, tenements, and all and ſingular other the premiſſes, with their appurtenances, againſt every perſon and perſons, their heirs and ſucceſſors whatſoever, of and for all and every penſions, portions, rents, fees, commodities, annuities, charges, and ſums of money whatſoever, any ways iſſuing, or to be paid out of, or for the ſaid manors and premiſſes, or any parcel of them, or that are or ſhall be charged upon the premiſſes, or any of them, except the rent above by theſe preſents to us reſerved, and except a fee of forty ſhillings yearly, paid to the bailiff of the manor of Maiſemore aforeſaid for the time being, and of eleven ſhillings yearly paid to the woodward of Woolridge aforeſaid, and of ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly paid to the woodward of the Perch aforeſaid, and of twenty-ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly paid to the bailiff of Brokethorp and Haſecomb aforeſaid, and of eleven ſhillings and eight-pence yearly paid to the bailiff of Preſton aforeſaid, and of ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly paid to the bailiff of Longford aforeſaid, and of eight ſhillings and four-pence yearly paid to the bailiff of Rudge and Farleigh aforeſaid, and of thirteen pounds ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly paid to the vicar of the church of Cam aforeſaid, and to the chaplain celebrating divine ſervice in the chapel of Stinchcomb in the pariſh of Cam, to the ſame church annexed, in augmentation of their ſalaries and ſtipends; and of fifteen pounds five ſhillings yearly paid to the vicar of Standiſh aforeſaid, and a fee of thirteen ſhillings and four-pence yearly paid to the collector of the penſions of Kempſford, Teynton, Rendcomb, and Nympsfield aforeſaid, and a fee of fourteen ſhillings and one penny yearly paid to the bailiff of Hope-Meleſhall aforeſaid, and a fee of one pound ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly paid to the bailiff of Dewchurch and Kilpeck aforeſaid, and of five ſhillings yearly paid to the chancellor of Hereford for procurations and annual iſſues out of the rectories of Dewchurch and Kilpeck aforeſaid, and of two ſhillings and two-pence yearly paid to the archdeacon of Brecknock, in the dioceſe of St. David, for procurations and ſynodals, and of ten-pence yearly paid to the church of Glaſbury aforeſaid, and of five-pence yearly paid to the church of Devennock aforeſaid, and the fee of thirteen ſhillings and four-pence yearly paid to the farmer of the rectory of Glaſbury and Devennock aforeſaid for his livery, and of two ſhillings yearly paid to the vicar of York for a certain portion of tithes iſſuing out of the rectory of Cowern aforeſaid, and a fee of three ſhillings and four-pence yearly paid to the collector of portions in Aſh-Leomyſter, Ferm, Farne, Briches, Strode and Lake aforeſaid, and the fee of ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly paid to the bailiff of Droiſcort aforeſaid for the time being.

Moreover, we will, and for ourſelves, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do ſtrictly charge and command, as well our chancellor of the court of firſt fruits and tenths, and chancellor and convent of the court of augmentations of the revenues of our crown for the time being, as all other our receivers, auditors, and other officers and miniſters whatſoever, that they and every of them, upon the only producing of theſe our letters patents, or inrolment of the ſame, without any other writ or warrant from us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, in any wiſe to be obtained or proſecuted, ſhall make, or cauſe to be made, full entries and due allowance, defalcation, deduction and plain diſcharge to the beforementioned mentioned biſhop, his ſucceſſors and aſſigns, of all and every ſuch penſions, portions, rents, fees, commodities, annuities, charges, and ſums of money (except before excepted) charged or to be charged on the ſaid manors, or on the premiſſes, or any part of them; and theſe our letters patents ſhall yearly, and from time to time, be as well to the ſaid chancellor of the court of tenths and firſt fruits, as the chancellor and counſel of our court of the augmentations of the revenues of our crown for the time being, as to every of our receivers, auditors and other our officers and miniſters, a ſufficient warrant and diſcharge on his part.

And moreover, out of our more ample grace, we will, and by theſe preſents, for ourſelves, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant, that theſe our letters patents, and every word, ſentence and clauſe in the ſame contained or ſpecified, ſhall be interpreted, expounded, taken, underſtood, adjudged and determined, as well before us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, in every of our courts, and the courts of our heirs and ſucceſſors, both temporal and ſpiritual, and in all other places, and before whatſoever judges, juſtices, or other perſon or perſons whatſoever, to the greateſt advantage and profit of the aforeſaid biſhop and his ſucceſſors, and moſt ſtrictly againſt ourſelf, our heirs and ſucceſſors, altho' the name or ſurname of the aforeſaid biſhop, or the certain true value of the aforeſaid biſhoprick of Glouceſter be not ſpecially and certainly in theſe our letters patents expreſſed, declared and ſpecified; or for any omiſſion, defect, negligence, repugnancy, contrariety in theſe preſents, or any of them, or for expreſs mention not being made in theſe preſents of the true yearly value and certainty of the premiſſes, or other gifts and grants made to the aforeſaid biſhop before this time, any ſtatute, act, ordinance, or reſtriction to the contrary of the premiſſes, or any of them, before this time publiſhed, made or ordained, or any other cauſe or matter whatſoever, in any thing notwithſtanding.

We will alſo, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the beforementioned biſhop, that he may and ſhall have theſe our letters patents made, ſealed and to be ſealed in due manner under our great ſeal of England, without yielding, paying or doing therefore in any manner to us, any fine or fee, great or ſmall, in our hamper or elſewhere, to our uſe, although expreſs mention be not made in theſe preſents of the true yearly value or certainty of the premiſſes, or any of them, or any other gifts or grants by us to the aforementioned biſhop of Glouceſter heretofore made, or any ſtatute, act, ordinance, proviſion or reſtricton to the contrary thereof made, publiſhed, ordained or provided, or any other thing, cauſe or matter whatſoever, in any caſe notwithſtanding.

In witneſs whereof we have cauſed theſe our letters to be made patents. Witneſs ourſelf at Weſtminſter, the 4th day of September, in the three and thirtieth year of our reign.

NUMBER IX.

The ENDOWMENT of the Dean and Chapter of GLOUCESTER.

HENRY the VIIIth, by the grace of God, king of England and France, defender of the faith, lord of Ireland, and ſupreme head of the church of England upon earth, to all to whom theſe preſent letters ſhall come, greeting.

Know ye, that we of our ſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have given and granted, and by theſe preſents do give and grant to the dean and chapter of the cathedral church of the holy and undivided trinity of Glouceſter, by us now newly erected and founded, all thoſe our manors of Tuffley, Ablode and Sainthurſte, Barnewood and Croneham, Mattiſdon and Wotton, in our county of the city of Glouceſter, with all and ſingular their rights, members and appurtenances.

As alſo all thoſe our manors of Churcham, Rudford, Culne-Rogers, with Ablington, Colne-Alwyn, Eſtletch-Martyn, otherwiſe called Burethroppe, with Cotes, Tyberton, Tayneton and Bulley in our county of Glouceſter, with all and ſingular their rights, members and appurtenances.

And our manors of Willingiſwike and Monk-Hide, otherwiſe called Hide of the Monks, in our county of Hereford, with all their rights, members and appurtenances.

And our manors of Tregoſſe and Pennon, in our county of Morgan and Glamorgan in Wales, with all their rights, members and appurtenances.

And alſo our manors of Linkynholte, Littleton and Walloppe, in our county of Southampton, with all their rights, members and appurtenances; which ſaid manors, and all other the premiſſes with their appurtenances, did belong and appertain to the late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, now lately diſſolved, or were parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery.

We do alſo give, and by theſe preſents grant, to the aforeſaid dean and chapter, all and ſingular meſſuages, houſes, edifices, barns, dove-houſes, lands, tenements, meadows, feedings, paſtures, woods, underwoods, rents, reverſions, ſervices, rents charges, rents ſeck, and rents reſerved, upon any demiſes or grants, annuities, annual rents, farms, fee-farm rents, and the farms of all our tenants and farmers, mills, waters, piſcaries, fiſhing, moors, marſhes, fiſh-ponds, knights fees, wards, marriages, eſcheats, reliefs, herriots, villaines, with their conſequences, markets, fairs, tolls, paſſages, parks, warrens, commons, furze, waſts, heath, mines of coal, penſions, portions, tithes, oblations, obventions, courts leet, views of frank pledge, and all that to view of frank pledge belongs, and all that hereafter may, can, or ought thereto to belong; aſſize and aſſay of bread, wine and beer, waifs, eſtrays, liberties, and all and ſingular other hereditaments, commodities, emoluments, and our profits whatſoever, with all and ſingular their appurtenances, ſituate, lying, or being within the vills, fields, pariſhes or hamlets of Tuffley, Ablode and Sainthurſte, Barnewood and Croneham, Mattiſdon and Wotton, in our county of the city of Glouceſter; and Churcheham, Rudforde, Culne-Rogers, with Ablyngton, Colne-Alwyn, Eſtletch-Martyn, otherwiſe called Burethroppe, with Cotes, Tyberton, Tayneton and Bulley, in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and in Willyngyſwike and Monk Hide, otherwiſe Hide of the Monks, in our ſaid county of Hereford; and alſo in Tregoſſe and Pennon, in our ſaid county of Morgan and Glamorgan; as alſo in Lynkinholte, Littleton and Walloppe, in our ſaid county of Southampton, and elſewhere, whereſoever in the ſaid counties of Glouceſter, city of Glouceſter, Hereford, Morgan and Glamorgan, and Southampton, or in either of them, or elſewhere, whereſoever in our kingdom of England, to the ſaid manors, or any one of them, in any manner whatſoever belonging or appertaining, or as members or parcel of the ſaid manors, or of any one of them heretofore being had, known or reputed, or with the ſaid manors, or with any of them, or as parcel of any of them being leaſed, occupied or demiſed.

We alſo give, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the ſaid dean and chapter, all that our tenement or inn called the White Hart in Holborn, near our city of London, in our county of Middleſex, with all its buildings, gardens and appurtenances, together with a certain annual rent of eight ſhillings, which was wont to be paid for the ſaid tenement to the late monaſtery of Carthuſians near our ſaid city of London, now diſſolved, and all that our meadow called Meneham in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter, containing by eſtimation 39 acres of meadow; and all that our meadow called Archdeacon's Mead in the ſame county, containing by eſtimation 18 acres of meadow, and alſo the firſt herbage of the ſaid meadows. We alſo give, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the ſaid dean and chapter, all that moiety or half part of all that our wood called Woobridge, lying in the pariſh of St. Mary de Lode, in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter, which ſaid wood contains in the whole by eſtimation 500 acres of wood; and all that moiety or half part of our whole wood called le Perche, lying and being in the ſaid pariſh of St. Mary de Lode, in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter, which ſaid wood contains in the whole by eſtimation 16 acres of wood. We alſo give, and by theſe preſents grant, to the ſaid dean and chapter, all that our wood called Barnewood Grove, in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter, containing by eſtimation 10 acres of wood; and all that our wood called Buckholte in the ſame county, containing by eſtimation 200 acres of wood; and alſo all that our wood called Byrdewood, lying and being in the pariſh of Churcheham, in our ſaid county of Glouceſter, containing by eſtimation 100 acres of wood; and all that our wood called Weſtwoodes, lying and being in Lynkynholte, in our ſaid county of Southampton, containing by eſtimation 60 acres of wood; and all that our wood and underwood called Littleton-Coppice, lying in Littleton in our ſaid county of Southampton, containing in the whole by eſtimation 48 acres of wood; and alſo all that annual or fee-farm rent of four pounds, iſſuing, and yearly to be received out of our manor of Wallop, in our ſaid county of Southampton; which ſaid tenement, meadows, woods and yearly rents aforeſaid, with their appurtenances, did lately belong and appertain to the late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, or were parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid monaſtery.

We give alſo, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the ſaid dean and chapter, all and all manner of aqueducts and water-courſes whatſoever which did belong and appertain to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, or were parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery, in as ample manner and form as the laſt late abbot and convent of the ſaid late monaſtery, or any one, or any of their predeceſſors, in the right of their late monaſtery, at any time before the diſſolution of the ſaid late monaſtery, had, held or enjoyed, or might or ought for any reaſon, or in any manner whatſoever, to have, hold or enjoy the ſame.

We give alſo, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the ſaid dean and chapter, all thoſe meſſuages, houſes, edifices, ſhops, cellars, ſollars, ſollars, gardens, lands, tenements, rents, reverſions, ſervices, tofts, cottages, penſions, portions, tithes, oblations, courts leets, view of frank pledge, and all things to view of frank pledge belonging; markets, fairs, toll, and all and ſingular our profits, commodities and hereditaments whatſoever, ſituate, lying or being within our city of Glouceſter, or within the ſuburbs of the ſaid city, which did of late belong and appertain to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, or were parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery.

We alſo give, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the ſaid dean and chapter, all that rectory, church and chapel of Barnewood, in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter; and all that our rectory and church of Brokethroppe in the ſaid county; and all that our rectory and parochial church of the bleſſed virgin Mary near the gate of the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in the ſaid county; and alſo, all that our rectory and church or chapel of Grace lane in the ſame county; and alſo thoſe our rectories and churches of Churcheham and Colne-Alwyn in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and all that our rectory and church of Lancarnan in our ſaid county of Morgan and Glamorgan; and all that our rectory and church of Chipping-Norton in our county of Oxon; which ſaid rectories, and churches or chapels, did lately belong and appertain to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, or were parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery.

And we alſo give, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the aforeſaid dean and chapter, our rectories and churches of Fayreford and Eſtletch in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and alſo our rectory and church of Sherſton and Aldrington in our county of Wilts; and our rectory and church of Great Marlow in our county of Bucks; and alſo our rectories and churches of Lantwit, Lamblethian, Lantriſſan, Penmarke and Cardiffe, with the chapel of St. Donats, and to the other ſaid rectories annexed in our ſaid county of Morgan and Glamorgan; which ſaid rectories and churches, with the chapels aforeſaid, did lately belong and appertain to the late monaſtery of Tewkſbury in our county of Glouceſter now diſſolved, or were parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery.

We give alſo, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the aforeſaid dean and chapter, all and ſingular the manors, lordſhips, meſſuages, barns, edifices, gardens, lands, tenements, rents, reverſions, ſervices, glebes, granges, meadows, feedings, paſtures, woods, underwoods, knights fees, eſcheats, reliefs, wards, marriages, herriots, commons, furze, waſtes, heath, tithes, oblations, obventions, penſions, portions, and all and ſingular other our profits, poſſeſſions, and hereditaments whatſoever, ſituate, lying or being in the vills, fields, pariſhes or hamlets of Barnewood, Brokethroppe, of the bleſſed Mary near the gate of the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter in Glouceſter, Grace-lane, Churcheham, Colne-Alwyn, Lancarnan, Chipping-Norton, Fayreford, Eſtletch, Sherſton, Aldrington, Great Marlowe, Lantwit, Lamblethyan, Lantriſſan, Penmarke and Cardiffe aforeſaid, or in either of them, or elſewhere whereſoever in our kingdom of England, to the ſaid rectories, granges, churches or chapels, or to any one of them in any manner belonging or appertaining, or which being at any time heretofore had, known or reputed to be, as part or parcel of the ſaid rectories, granges, churches or chapels, or of any one of them.

We alſo give, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the ſaid dean and chapter, all that portion of tithes in Barton-Abbots, within the pariſh of St. Mary de Lode in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter; and all that portion of tithes iſſuing and yearly to be taken out of the manor of Senebrug in the ſame county; and all that portion of tithes of Upleaden and Hyneleaden in the ſame county; and all that portion of tithes of Ablode and Sainthurſte in the ſame county; and all that portion of tithes of Wotton in the ſame county; and all that portion of tithes of Ewrendyefield and King's-Furlonge in the ſame county; and alſo, all that portion of tithes iſſuing and yearly to be taken out of the rectory of Hilmerton in our county of Wilts; and all that portion of tithes of Innyſworthe in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter; and alſo, all that portion of tithes iſſuing and yearly to be taken out of the rectory of Okeborne in our county of Bucks; which ſaid portions, of tithes with their appurtenances, to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter did of late belong and appertain, or were parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery.

We alſo give, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the ſaid dean and chapter, all that portion of tithes within the rectory of Fayreford in our ſaid county of Glouceſter, late belonging and appertaining to the ſaid late monaſtery of Tewkſbury, or being parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery; we give alſo, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the ſaid dean and chapter, all that penſion or annual rent of twenty ſhillings, iſſuing and yearly to be taken out of the rectory or church of St. John Baptiſt in our ſaid city of Glouceſter; and all that penſion or yearly rent of ten ſhillings iſſuing and yearly to be taken out of the rectory or church of Mattiſden in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter; and all that penſion or yearly rent of thirteen ſhillings and four-pence, iſſuing and yearly to be taken out of the rectory or church of St. Nicholas, within our ſaid city of Glouceſter; and alſo, all that penſion or annual rent of ten ſhillings, to be paid yearly by the guardians of the royal college of Brazen-noſe in Oxon; and all that penſion or annual rent of fifty-three ſhillings and four-pence, iſſuing and yearly to be taken out of the rectory or church of Alcannynge, in our county of Wilts; and all that penſion or annual rent of twenty ſhillings, iſſuing and yearly to be taken out of the rectory or church of Lydyard Tregoz, in the ſame county; and all that poſſeſſion or yearly rent of four pounds, iſſuing and yearly to be taken out of the rectory or church of St Peter de Mancroft within our city of Norwich, in our county of Norfolk; and all that penſion or yearly rent of forty ſhillings, iſſuing and yearly to be taken out of the rectory or church of St. Martin in Vintry, in our ſaid city of London; which ſaid penſions or yearly rents aforeſaid, with their appurtenances, did belong and appertain, or were parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter.

We alſo give, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the ſaid dean and chapter, all and all manner of advowſons, nominations, donations, collations, preſentations, free diſpoſitions and rights of patronage, to our rectory and church of Mattiſdon in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter; and of our rectories and churches of Rudford, Culne-Rogers, with Ablington and Tayneton, in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and alſo, of our rectory and church of Lynkynholte in our ſaid county of Southampton, to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter belonging and appertaining, or being parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery.

We give alſo, and by theſe preſents do grant, to the ſaid dean and chapter, all and all manner of advowſons, nominations, donations, preſentations, collations, free diſpoſitions and rights of patronage, to the vicarage church of Brokethroppe in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter; and to the vicarage church of the Holy Trinity within our ſaid city of Glouceſter; and alſo to the vicarage churches of Churcheham, with the chapels of Lyncham and Colne-Alwyn in our ſaid county of Glouceſter, to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, lately belonging and appertaining, or being parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery; and alſo to the vicarage church of Fayreford in our ſaid county of Glouceſter; and to the vicarage church of Sherſton and Aldrington in our ſaid county of Wilts; and to the vicarage church of Great Marlow in our county of Bucks; and of all and ſingular the vicarage churches of Lantwit, Lamblethian, Lantriſſan, Penmarke and Cardiffe, with the chapel of St. Donats in our county of Morgan and Glamorgan, to the ſaid late monaſtery of Tewkſbury, late belonging and appertaining, or being parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery; and alſo the advowſons nominations, donations and rights of patronage, of every of the vicarages aforeſaid; and alſo all and all manner of advowſons, nominations, donations, preſentations, collations, free diſpoſitions and rights of patronage, of all and ſingular rectories or vicarages of the churches, chapels or chanteries, to the ſaid manors, or to any one of them in any manner belonging or appertaining, in our ſaid city of Glouceſter, or in the ſuburbs of the ſaid city being, which did of late belong or appertain to the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, or were parcel of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery, as fully and wholly, and in as ample manner and form as the laſt late abbot and convent of the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, or any one of them, or any one or any of their predeceſſors, or the laſt late abbot and convent of the ſaid late monaſtery of Tewkſbury, or any one of them, or any one or any of their predeceſſors, in the right of thoſe monaſteries, or of either of them, before the diſſolution of them the late ſeveral monaſteries, or of either of them, or before the ſame late monaſteries came, or either of them did come to our hands; or that they, or any one of them, the ſaid manors, lands, tenements, rectories, penſions, and all and ſingular other the premiſſes or any parcel of them, had, held and enjoyed the ſame, or might or ought to have, hold and enjoy the ſame, and as fully and wholly, and in as ample manner and form, as all and ſingular thoſe things, by reaſon or pretence of the diſſolution of the ſaid ſeveral monaſteries, or of any one of them; or by reaſon or pretence of any charter, gift, grant or confirmation, by the aforeſaid late abbots of the ſaid late monaſteries, or of any one of them, under their conventual ſeal to us thereof made, or in any other manner they came or ought to come, or now are or ought to be, in our hands; to have, hold and enjoy all and ſingular the aforeſaid manors, lordſhips, meſſuages, houſes, buildings, gardens, lands, tenements, rents, reverſions, ſervices, courts leet, liberties, rectories, chapels, advowſons, churches, rights of patronage, tithes, penſions, portions, and all and ſingular other the premiſſes above expreſſed and ſpecified, with all and ſingular their rights, members and appurtenances whatſoever, to the ſaid dean and chapter of the cathedral church of the holy and undivided trinity of Glouceſter aforeſaid, and to their ſucceſſors for ever, to be held of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, in pure and perpetual alms; and alſo yielding to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, at our court of augmentations for the revenues of our crown yearly, from this time for ever, ninety pounds, fourteen ſhillings, and one halfpenny, of lawful money of England, at the feaſt of St. Michael the archangel, in full recompence and ſatisfaction of all ſervices, ſum and ſums of money whatſoever, annual rents or tenths, to us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, by reaſon of the premiſſes, by the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, or by any or any one of them, or by any or by any one of their ſucceſſors, or by any perſon or perſons whatſoever, which to the ſaid deanery of the cathedral church aforeſaid, or to any prebendary in the ſaid church, or to any benefice, office, dignity, or other promotion whatſoever, in the cathedral church aforeſaid, now nominated, aſſigned or appointed, or hereafter to be nominated aſſigned or appointed, by virtue, or reaſon, or force of a certain act of parliament in the 26th year of our reign, made for firſt fruits, revenues and profits, or in the name of firſt fruits revenues and profits, of the aforeſaid manors, lands, tenements, and other the premiſſes of one year, or for one year, or for firſt fruits of the revenues or profits of the deanery, prebendaries, or of any other benefice, office, dignity, or other promotion of the ſaid cathedral church, or of any yearly value, or of any yearly rent, penſion or annuity, or of any other ſum of money whatſoever, of or for the ſaid manors, lands, tenements, rectories, and other the premiſſes, or out of any parcel thereof iſſuing, and to us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, to be made, paid or rendered, or being parcel of the profits of the manors, and other the premiſſes aforeſaid, or of any parcel thereof being, or aſſigned, or limited, or to be aſſigned or limited to the ſaid dean and prebends, or to any one of them, or to any other perſon or perſons, and to their ſucceſſors, or to the ſucceſſors of any one of them now promoted or aſſigned, or hereafter to be promoted or aſſigned to any benefice, office or dignity in the ſaid church, for annual rent or penſion, or in the name of annual rent or tenth parts, or of perpetual penſions, extending to the tenth part of the yearly value of the ſaid manors, lands, tenements, and other the premiſſes, or of the deanery of the ſaid cathedral church aforeſaid, or of the prebendaries, or of any benefices or offices whatſoever in the ſaid church, or of any prebendary, benefice, office, dignity or promotion in the ſaid church, or of any one of them; or to the annual rendering of a penſion, or to the tenth part of the yearly value of the aforeſaid manors, lands, tenements, rectories, and other the premiſſes, or out of any parcel thereof iſſuing or to be paid, or parcel of the profits of the ſaid manors, and other the premiſſes, or being any parcel thereof, being and aſſigned or limited, or to be aſſigned or limited, to the ſaid dean and prebends, or to any one of them, or to any other perſon or perſons whatſoever, and their ſucceſſors, or to the ſucceſſor of any one of them, to any benefice, office or dignity in the ſaid church, now promoted or aſſigned, or hereafter to be promoted or aſſigned by any perſon or perſons whatſoever, now, or at any time hereafter, in any manner to be paid, made or rendered.

at

Know ye, moreover, that we out of our ſpecial grace, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do by theſe preſents pardon, remit and releaſe, to the aforeſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors for ever, and to all and ſingular perſon and perſons whatſoever, and to every one of them who now are, or is, or hereafter ſhall be dean of the cathedral church aforeſaid, or prebend in the ſaid church, or promoted to any benefice, office or dignity in the ſaid church, all and ſingular ſum and ſums of money whatſoever, to us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, by the ſaid dean and chapter or their ſucceſſors, or by any dean of the cathedral church aforeſaid, or by any prebend in the ſaid church, or by any perſon or perſons whatſoever, that now are or is, or hereafter ſhall be promoted to any benefice, office or dignity in the church aforeſaid, as well for firſt fruits, revenues and profits, or in the name of firſt fruits, revenues and profits of the ſaid manors, lands, tenements, and other the premiſſes, or of any of them, or of any parcel of them, or any of them, or of one year's value of the deanery of the church aforeſaid, or of the prebendaries, or of any other benefice, office or dignity whatſoever, in the cathedral church aforeſaid, to whom, to which, or to what he is promoted, aſſigned or appointed, or at any time hereafter, to whom, to which, or to what he or they ſhall be promoted, aſſigned, appointed or collated, for any annual rendering of the tenth part, or of any penſion, or of any yearly value, or of any yearly rent, penſion or annuity, or of any other ſum of money whatſoever, out of the aforeſaid manors, lands, tenements, rectories, and other the premiſſes, or out of any parcel of them iſſuing or to be paid, or parcel of the profits of the aforeſaid manors, lands, tenements, and other the premiſſes, or of any parcel of them being and aſſigned, or limited, or to be aſſigned or limited to the ſaid dean and prebends, or to any one of them, or to any other perſon or perſons, and the ſucceſſor and ſucceſſors of them, and every of them, to any benefice, office or dignity in the ſaid church, now promoted or aſſigned, or hereafter to be promoted or aſſigned; or in the name of any annual rent, tenth part, or penſion extending to the yearly value of a tenth part, or to the tenth part of all and ſingular the aforeſaid manors, lands, tenements, and other the premiſſes, or any of them, or of any parcel of them; or of the deanery of the cathedral church aforeſaid, or of any prebendary, benefice, office, dignity, or of any other promotion whatſoever in the ſaid church, or to the tenth part of any yearly value, rent, penſion or annuity, or of any other ſum whatſoever before ſpecified, or of any value of them, or by virtue or reaſon of the act of parliament made in the aforeſaid twenty-ſixth year of our reign, to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, to be paid, rendered or made, the aforeſaid ſum of ninety pounds, fourteen ſhillings, and one halfpenny, by us (before mentioned) reſerved only excepted, and to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, yearly reſerved.

And beſides, out of our farther grace, we, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do pardon, remit and releaſe, to our well beloved chaplain, William Jenyns, clerk, batchelor in divinity, now dean of the cathedral church aforeſaid; to our well beloved chaplain, Richard Brown, clerk, batchelor in the civil and canon laws, the firſt and preſent preſbyter prebend; to Henry Willis, clerk, batchelor in divinity, ſecond preſbyter prebend; to John Rodley, clerk, batchelor in divinity, the third preſbyter prebend; to James Vaughan, clerk, maſter of arts, the fourth preſbyter prebend; to Edward Bennette, clerk, the fifth preſbyter prebend; and to John Huntley, clerk, late prior of the abbey of Tandriche, in our county of Surry, the ſixth preſbyter prebend, now prebends in the cathedral church aforeſaid; and to every one of them, all and ſingular ſums of money by the aforeſaid William, Richard, Henry, John, James, Edward and John, or by any one of them to us, for firſt fruits, revenues and profits, or in the name of firſt fruits and profits, or in the name of firſt fruits of the deanery aforeſaid, or prebendaries in the ſaid church, or any one of them, or of any annual rent, penſion or portion, or of any other ſum of money whatſoever to them, for their ſeveral portions in the cathedral church aforeſaid, limited or aſſigned, or to be limited or aſſigned, or for annual rendering of the tenth part, or in the name of a penſion extending to the tenth part of the value of the deanery aforeſaid, or prebendaries aforeſaid, or of any of them, or of any rent, penſion or portion, or of any of them, to them or to any one of them, for his part or portion, limited or aſſigned, or to be limited or aſſigned in the ſame church, to be paid, rendered or made.

And we, of our more abundant grace, do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, kings of this kingdom of England, by theſe preſents, give and grant to the aforeſaid dean and chapter and their ſucceſſors for ever, all and ſingular ſums and ſum of money by the aforeſaid dean and chapter, or their ſucceſſors, or any, or any one of their ſucceſſors whatſoever, which may any way whatever, either by the dean of the ſaid cathedral church, or the prebends, or any other perſons in the ſaid church, or by any of them, or by any other perſon or perſons whatſoever, who at any time hereafter ſhall be, or ſhall be nominated, aſſigned or appointed to the deanery aforeſaid, or to any prebendary in the ſaid church, or to any benefice, office, dignity or promotion in the ſaid church, or ſub-dean of the ſaid church, or prebend in the ſame church, or promoted to any benefice, office or dignity, in the cathedral church aforeſaid, to us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, kings of this kingdom of England, by virtue or reaſon of any act of parliament made in the aforeſaid ſix and twentieth year of our reign, for the uſes of any of the premiſſes, to be paid, rendered or made, the aforeſaid ſum of ninety pounds, fourteen ſhillings, and one halfpenny, by us as aforeſaid reſerved only excepted; to have and enjoy all and ſingular the ſaid ſums, and every ſum of money aforeſaid, except only as before excepted, to the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors for ever, of our ſpecial gift, without any account, or any other thing therefore, to us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, to be rendered, paid or done.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, grant to the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, and to every perſon and perſons that now is, or are, or hereafter ſhall be, dean of the church aforeſaid, or prebend in the ſaid church, or nominated, appointed or promoted to any benefice, office or dignity in the ſaid church, that we, our heirs and ſucceſſors, will not have, aſk, claim, challenge any firſt fruits, revenues or profits, or any ſum of money whatſoever for firſt fruits, revenues or profits, of the aforeſaid manors and other the premiſſes, or any of them, or any parcel of them, or for firſt fruits of any annual rents, penſions or annuities, or of any other ſum before ſpecified, or in the name of firſt fruits of them, or any one of them, or of any parcel of any one of them, or any penſion or annual rent extending to the tenth part of the yearly value of the ſaid manors, and other the premiſſes, or any of them, or of any parcel thereof, or to the tenth part of any annual rent, penſion or annuity, or of any other ſum whatſoever before ſpecified, or any ſum whatſoever, or any other thing whatſoever, by virtue or reaſon of the aforeſaid act of parliament, made in the aforeſaid twenty-ſixth year of our reign, by the ſaid dean and chapter, or their ſucceſſors, or any perſon whatſoever that now is, or at any time hereafter ſhall be, dean of the cathedral church aforeſaid, or prebend in the ſame church, or promoted to any benefice, office or dignity in the ſaid church, therefore to be rendered, paid or made, beſides the ſaid ſum of ninety pounds, fourteen ſhillings, and one halfpenny, as is above premiſed, by us above yearly reſerved.

to

But that as well the ſaid dean, prebends and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, as all and every ſingular perſon and perſons who now are or is, or hereafter ſhall be dean of the church aforeſaid, or prebend in the ſaid church, or promoted to any benefice, office or dignity in the ſame church, he and they ſhall be exempted and acquitted by theſe preſents, againſt us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, from all and ſingular, and every ſum and ſums of money, to us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, by vertue or reaſon of the ſaid act of parliament, made in the aforeſaid twenty-ſixth year of our reign, for the deanery of the ſaid church, or for any prebendary, or any benefice, office, dignity or promotion in the ſaid church, and every thing concerning the ſaid deanery, prebendaries, benefices, offices, dignities and promotions, or any of them, to be rendered or paid, any clauſe, matter, ſentence, thing, article, ordinance, proviſo, gift, grant, or any cauſe whatſoever in the ſaid ſtatute contained or ſpecified to the contrary notwithſtanding.

And we will, and for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, do grant to the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, to enter into all the aforeſaid manors, lands, tenements, rents, ſervices, and all other the premiſſes, and into every parcel thereof, and thoſe to enjoy, to have and to hold, to them and their ſucceſſors for ever, by the tenor, force, form and effect of theſe our letters patents; and that it ſhall be lawful for all and every perſon and perſons whatſoever, who now is, or are, or hereafter ſhall be dean of the church aforeſaid, or prebend in the ſaid church, or promoted to any benefice, office or dignity in the ſaid church, and for all and every one of them, to enter, take and have actual and real poſſeſſion of that to which he hath been nominated, appointed and promoted in the cathedral church aforeſaid; and to have, take and receive the iſſues, revenues and profits thereof to his own proper uſe, without any other ſatisfaction or payment, to the uſe of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, for any firſt fruits, revenues or profits, of that to which he is, or ſhall be nominated, appointed or promoted, in the cathedral church aforeſaid, and without any licence, concord, ſuit, compoſition, or proſecution of any livery to be made from us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, or our officers, in any of our courts for that cauſe, beſides the aforeſaid annual ſum of ninty pounds, fourteen ſhillings, and one halfpenny, to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, for tenths and firſt fruits of all and ſingular the manors, lands and tenements before granted, reſerved as aforeſaid.

And beſides we will, and for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, kings of this kingdom of England, by theſe preſents, do grant to the aforeſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, and to all and every perſon and perſons that now are, or is, or hereafter ſhall be dean of the cathedral church aforeſaid, or prebend in the ſame church, or promoted, nominated, or aſſigned to any benefice, office or dignity in the ſaid church, that it ſhall and may be lawful that they, and every one of them, may enter, take, and have actual and real poſſeſſion of ſuch aforeſaid deanery, prebendary, benefice, office or dignity, to which he hath been nominated, appointed or promoted, in the ſaid cathedral church; and alſo that he and they may have, take and receive, the iſſues, revenues and profits, rents and emoluments of ſuch deanery, prebendary, benefice, office, dignity or promotion, or any one of them, in the ſaid cathedral church, without any ſatisfaction or payment, to the uſe of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, for any firſt fruits, revenues and profits, of the premiſſes, or any of them, or for any firſt fruits of the deanery, prebendary, or other benefice, office or dignity in the ſaid cathedral church, to which they, or any one of them, now are, or is, or at any time hereafter ſhall or may be nominated, oppointed or promoted, and without any compoſition or agreement therefore to be made; ſo that we, our heirs or ſucceſſors, or any other, for us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, or in our name, or in the name of our heirs or ſucceſſors, ſhall not for that cauſe diſquiet, impeach, diſturb nor moleſt, or vex the aforeſaid dean and chapter, or their ſucceſſors, or any perſon or perſons whatſoever, to the deanery in the ſaid cathedral church, or to any prebendary in the ſaid church, or any benefice, office, dignity or promotion in the ſaid church, nominated, aſſigned or appointed, or to be nominated, aſſigned or appointed, of, for, or concerning any intruſion, or other offence or forfeiture whatſoever, in any of the premiſſes; but that as well the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, and all and ſingular perſons whatſoever, who to the deanery of the ſaid cathedral church, or to any prebendary in the ſame church, or to any benefice, office, dignity or other promotion whatſoever in the ſaid church, now nominated, aſſigned or appointed, or at any time hereafter ſhall be nominated, aſſigned or appointed, and every of them, ſhall be altogether exonerated, acquitted, pardoned and releaſed, againſt us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, and every one of us, from any fine, for all and ſingular ſuch entries, intruſions, offences, penalties and forfeitures, and other things whatſoever, limited or ſpecified in any ſtatute or act of parliament made in the aforeſaid twenty-ſixth year of our reign, concerning the payment of firſt fruits, and the payment of annual rents and penſions extending to the yearly value of any benefice, office, dignity or promotion, or any of them, any ſtatute, ordinance, proviſo or act made in the ſaid 26th year of our reign, to the contrary notwithanding.

Moreover willing, and by theſe preſents firmly enjoining and commanding, all and ſingular archbiſhops and biſhops within this our kingdom of England, and the chancellor of our court of our tenths and firſt fruits, as alſo all and ſingular the officers and miniſters of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, and every one of them, that they, or any one of them, in any manner whatſoever, ſhall not impeach, diſturb, vex, diſquiet or moleſt the dean and chapter aforeſaid, and the ſucceſſors, or the ſucceſſor of any one of them, or any perſon whatſoever that now is, or at any time hereafter ſhall be dean of the cathedral church aforeſaid, or prebend in the ſame church, or nominated, appointed or promoted to any benefice, office or dignity in the ſaid church, of, for or concerning the payment of any ſum or thing whatſoever, for firſt fruits, revenues or profits, or in the name of firſt fruits of the premiſſes, or of any of them, or of the deanery of the cathedral church aforeſaid, or of any prebendary, benefice, office or dignity, in the ſaid cathedral church, or of, for or concerning the payment of any ſum or thing whatſoever, for or in the name of an annual rent or penſion, extending to the tenth part of the value, or yearly value of the premiſſes, or any of them, or of the deanery of the cathedral church aforeſaid, or of any prebendary, benefice, office, or dignity in the ſaid church, or by reaſon or pretence of any ſtatute made in the aforeſaid 26th year of our reign; but that all and ſingular the aforeſaid archbiſhops, biſhops, chancellors, officers and miniſters of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, upon the only ſhewing of theſe our letters patents, ſhall permit and cauſe the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, and every other perſon aforeſaid, to be quiet and in peace, of, for and concerning the premiſſes.

And farther, we, out of our more abundant grace, do give and grant to the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, that they the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, ſhall have, hold and enjoy, and that they may and have full power to have, hold and enjoy, within the manors and lordſhips aforeſaid, and all and ſingular other the premiſſes, and within every part and parcel of them, as many, ſuch, as great, the ſame, and like courts leet, view of frank pledge, and all that to view of frank pledge belongs; aſſize and aſſay of bread, wine, beer, wayfes, eſtrays, free warrens, and all that to free warren belongs, fairs, markets, liberties, franchiſes and juriſdictions whatſoever, as, and which the aforeſaid late abbot and the late convent of the ſaid late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter, or any one of them, or any of their predeceſſors, or the aforeſaid late abbot, or late convent of the ſaid late monaſtery of Tewkſbury, or any one of them, or any, or any one of their predeceſſors had, held or enjoyed, or might, or ought to have had, held and enjoyed, in the manors, lands, tenements, rectories, and other the premiſſes, or in any parcel thereof; and that ſo fully and wholly, and in as ample manner and form as all and ſingular thoſe premiſſes, by reaſon or pretence of the diſſolution, ſurrender or grant of the ſaid ſeveral monaſteries, or any or either of them, or otherwiſe howſoever, came or ought to come to our hands, or at this time are or ought to be in our hands.

And farther, out of our more ample grace, we will, and by theſe preſents do grant, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, that the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, ſhall from henceforth for ever have, hold and enjoy, and to their own proper uſe convert, and alſo, that they may, and have full power and authority to have, hold and enjoy, and to their own proper uſes, to convert all and ſingular the aforeſaid rectories and chapels that lately were in any manner appropriate; and all, and all manner of lands, tenements and tithes, commodities, profits and emoluments whatſoever, to the ſaid rectories and chapels, or to any one of them, in any manner belonging or appertaining to the ſaid dean and chapter, and to their ſucceſſors before granted, with all and ſingular their appurtenances; and that the ſaid rectories and chapels, with their appurtenances, ſhall for ever hereafter be appropriate to the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, in as ample manner and form as the ſaid late ſeveral abbots, or either of them, or any, or any one of their predeceſſors, in the right of their late ſeveral monaſteries, or in their own right, or in the right of either of them, had, held and enjoyed, or might or ought to have had, held or enjoyed, all or any, or any one of the ſaid rectories or chapels, with their appurtenances, in any kind or manner whatſoever, any act, ſtatute, ordinance, law, cuſtom, prohibition or reſtriction, before this time had, made, enacted, uſed or provided, or any other matter, thing or cauſe whatſoever to the contrary in any wiſe notwithſtanding or hindering, and this without any preſentation, admiſſion or induction of any incumbent or incumbents to the ſaid rectories and chapels, or any of them granted as aforeſaid to the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents.

And alſo we will, and by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, that we, our heirs and ſucceſſors, ſhall and will, from time to time, and for ever diſcharge, acquit and keep indemnified, as well the ſaid dean and chapter and their ſucceſſors, as the manors, lands, tenements, and all and ſingular other the premiſſes, with their appurtenances, againſt all and every perſon and perſons whomſoever, and their heirs and aſſignees, of and from all, and all manner of penſions, portions, rents, fees, corrodies, annuities, charges and ſums of money whatſoever, of or for the manors and other the premiſſes, or of or for any parcel thereof already charged, or to be charged, beſides the aforeſaid ſum of ninety pounds, eighteen ſhillings, and one half-penny, to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, above by theſe preſents reſerved; and beſides a certain rent of ten ſhillings yearly to be paid to Anthony Kingſton, knt. in right of the late monaſtery of Flaxley; and of eighteen-pence yearly to be paid to the rector of the church of St. Mary de Cript, in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter; and of two ſhillings and eleven-pence yearly to be paid to the ſteward of our ſaid city of Glouceſter for the time being; and of fifteen ſhillings yearly to be paid to the maſter and brethren of the hoſpital of St. Margaret of Duddeſton, in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter; and of fifty-ſeven ſhillings and one penny yearly to be paid to the ſheriff of the ſaid county of our city of Glouceſter, for longable rent; and of ten pounds yearly to be paid to the bailiff and collector of the rents and farms within our ſaid city of Glouceſter for the time being for his fee; and of twenty ſhillings yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Tuffley aforeſaid for the time being for his fee; and of forty ſhillings yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Ablode and Sainthurſte, with Direhurſte and Walton aforeſaid for the time being for his fee; and of ſix ſhillings and eight-pence to be paid yearly to the farmer there for his livery; and of forty ſhillings yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Barnewood and Cronham aforeſaid for the time being for his fee; and of ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly to be paid to the woodward or keeper of the woods there for the time being for his fee; and of five ſhillings yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Mattiſden aforeſaid for the time being for his fee; and of twenty ſhillings yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Wotton aforeſaid for the time being for his fee; and of two ſhillings yearly to be paid to the archdeacon of Glouceſter for procurations and ſynodals, and yearly iſſuing out of the chapel of Barnewood aforeſaid; and of a certain annual penſion of ten pounds thirteen ſhillings and four-pence yearly to be paid to the vicar of the parochial church of the bleſſed virgin Mary near the gate of the late monaſtery of St. Peter of Glouceſter; and of thirteen ſhillings yearly to be paid to the biſhop and archdeacon of Glouceſter, for procurations and ſynodals there; and of ten ſhillings yearly to be paid to the collector of divers penſions and portions yearly iſſuing out of ſome of the rectories, vicarages, hoſpitals and churches, in our ſaid county of the city of Glouceſter for the time being; and of twenty-ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Churcheham aforeſaid for the time being for his fee; and of twenty ſhillings yearly to be paid to the woodward or keeper of the woods there for the time being for his fee; and of ten ſhillings yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Culne-Rogers, with Ablington aforeſaid, for the time being, for his fee; and twenty-ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Colne-Alwyns aforeſaid for the time being for his fee; and of ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly to be paid to the farmer there by covenant indented; and of twenty ſhillings to be paid yearly to the bailiff of Eſtletch-Martyn aforeſaid, otherwiſe called Burethroppe with Cotes, for the time being, for his fee; and of five ſhillings yearly to be paid to the collector of the rents of Tyberton, Tayneton and Bulley aforeſaid, for the time being, for his fee; and of thirteen ſhillings and four-pence yearly to be paid to the dean of the church of Churcheham aforeſaid, for the time being, for his ſallery or ſtipend; and of ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly to be paid to the farmer of the ſcite of the rectory of Colne-Alwyns aforeſaid for his regard by covenant indented; and of ten ſhillings yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Willingſwicke aforeſaid, for the time being, for his fee; and of thirteen ſhillings and four-pence yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Monk-Hide, Aſperton and Tonſton aforeſaid, with the hamlets of Stoke Edythe, Yarkhill and Taddington aforeſaid, for the time being, for his fee; and of ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly to be paid to the ſteward there for the time being, for his fee; and of ten ſhillings yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Lynkingholt aforeſaid, for the time being, for his fee; and of ten ſhillings yearly to be paid to the bailiff of Littleton aforeſaid, for the time being, for his fee; and of four ſhillings yearly to be paid to the collector of the penſions and portions iſſuing out of the rectories of Alcannyngs, Lydiard-Tregoz, and Hilmerton, in our ſaid county of Wilts, for the time being, for his fee; and of ſix ſhillings and eight-pence yearly to be paid to the collector of a certain penſion iſſuing out of the aforeſaid church or rectory of St. Peter de Mancroſte, within our ſaid city of Norwich, for the time being, for his fee; and of ſeventeen ſhillings and nine-pence farthing yearly to be paid to the biſhop of Glouceſter for his viſitation, iſſuing yearly out of the rectory of Fayreford; beſides alſo twenty ſhillings yearly to be paid to the farmers of the rectories of Lantwit, Lamblethian, Lantriſſen, Penmarke, and Cardiffe aforeſaid, with the chapel of St. Donats, for the time being, for carriage of the money and rent aforeſaid.

And out of our more ample grace, we farther give and grant to the aforeſaid dean and chapter, all iſſues, revenues and profits of all and ſingular the aforeſaid manors, lands, tenements, rectories, penſions, portions, tithes, and of all and ſingular the premiſſes above expreſſed and ſpecified, ariſing or growing from the feaſt of St. Michael the archangel laſt paſt, until this time.

We will moreover, and by theſe preſents firmly enjoining, do command, as well our chancellor and council of our court of augmentations of the revenue of our crown for the time being, as all receivers, auditors, and other our miniſters whatſoever, that they and every one of them, upon only ſhewing of theſe our letters patents, without any writ or warrant from us, or our ſucceſſors, in any manner to be ſought, obtained, or proſecuted, do accept, make, and cauſe to be made, a full, whole and due diſcharge, allowance, defalcation, and manifeſt deduction, to the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors, of all and all manner of annuities, rents and ſums of money whatſoever, out of the premiſſes as aforeſaid, iſſuing or to be paid, or thereon charged or chargeable, beſides thoſe rents, fees and ſums of money which are above nominated, and expreſsly excepted: And theſe our letters patents ſhall be to our ſaid chancellor and council of our court of augmentations of the revenue of our crown for the time being, as well as to the aforeſaid auditors, receivers, and other our officers and miniſters whatſoever, a ſufficient warrant and diſcharge in this thing: And beſides, out of our more ample grace, we will and grant, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, that theſe our letters patents, and every word, ſentence and clauſe in them contained and ſpecified, ſhall be interpreted, expounded, taken, underſtood, adjudged and determined, as well before us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, as in all and every of our courts whatſoever, and in the courts of our heirs and ſucceſſors, as well ſpiritual as temporal; and in all other places, and before whatſoever judges, juſtices and other perſon and perſons whatſoever, to the greateſt commodity and profit of the ſaid dean and chapter, and their ſucceſſors and of every perſon that now is, or at any time hereafter ſhall be, dean of the ſaid chathedral church, or prebend in the ſame church, or nominated, aſſigned, appointed or promoted, to any benefice office or dignity in the ſaid church, and moſt ſtrictly againſt us, our heirs and ſucceſſors; and this, although the names and ſirnames, or name and ſirname of them, or any one of them, who hereafter ſhall be dean of the church aforeſaid, or prebend or prebends in the ſaid church, or named, aſſigned, appointed or promoted to any benefice, office or dignity in the ſaid church, or certainty of the value of the deanery of the ſaid church, or of the prebendaries in the ſaid church, or of the other benefices, offices, dignities or promotions in the ſaid church, or any one of them, are not in theſe our letters patents ſpecially and certainly expreſſed, declared or ſpecified; or any omiſſion, defect, negligence, repugnancy or contrariety in theſe preſents, or any of them, or for that expreſs mention of the true yearly value, or of the certainty of the premiſſes, or no mention is made in theſe preſents of any other gifts or grants by us before this time made to the ſaid dean and chapter, any ſtatute or act of parliament enacted or made in the aforeſaid twenty-ſixth year of our reign, or any ſtatute, act, ordinance or reſtriction to the contrary of the premiſſes, or any of them before this time enacted, made or ordained, or any other thing, cauſe or matter whatſoever in any kind notwithſtanding.

We will alſo, and by theſe preſents do grant to the aforeſaid dean and chapter, that they have theſe our letters patents, under our great ſeal of England, in due manner to be made and ſealed, without fine or fee, great or ſmall, to us in our hanaper, or elſewhere to our uſe, in any manner to be rendered, paid or made, notwithſtanding in theſe preſents there is no expreſs mention made of the true yearly value, or of any value, or of the certainty of the premiſſes, or of any of them, or of other gifts or grants by us, or by any of our progenitors or predeceſſors, to the ſaid dean and chapter before this time made, or any ſtatute, act, ordinance, proviſo or reſtriction to the contrary thereof made, enacted, ordained or provided, or any other thing, cauſe or matter whatſoever to the contrary in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

In teſtimony of which we have cauſed theſe our letters to be made patents. Witneſs myſelf at Weſtminſter, the 4th day of September, in the 33d year of our reign.

By Writ of Privy Seal, and Authority of Parliament of the ſame Date, SOUTHAMPTON.

SOUTHWELL.

Inrolled before William Barnes, auditor.

NUM-

NUMBER X.

To the ſupreme AUTHORITY, the PARLIAMENT of the COMMONWEALTH of ENGLAND,

The humble Petition of the MAYOR, BURGESSES, and divers Hundreds of Inhabitants of the City of GLOUCESTER,

SHEWETH,

THAT the city of Glouceſter being a garriſon for the parliament's ſervice, in 1643, and of vaſt importance to the commonwealth, upon the approach of the late king's army, to beſiege the ſaid city, it was reſolved by the governor and council of war there, that the ſaid city and garriſon could not be preſerved againſt the enemy, unleſs the whole ſuburbs of the ſaid city (which was a full third part thereof) were pulled down and demoliſhed.

That in purſuance of the ſaid reſolve, two hundred forty and one houſes, beſides barns, ſtables, out-houſes, gardens, orchards and goods, of the ſuburbs of the ſaid city, wherein ſo many families lived, were burned, pulled down, and utterly deſtroyed, the night before the leaguer was laid to the ſaid city by the late king's forces, whereby moſt of your petitioners were reduced to moſt miſerable poverty, and the eſtates of moſt of them much impaired, and the ſaid city in general very much impoveriſhed.

That it was proved upon oath to the grand inqueſt, at an aſſizes held for the county of the ſaid city, that your petitioners loſſes, by the burning and deſtroying their ſaid houſes amounted to the ſum of twenty-ſix thouſand pounds, and upwards, as by the certificate of the grand inqueſt to the lord chief baron, a copy whereof is hereunto annexed, may appear.

That your petitioners willingly ſuffered the loſs of their houſes and goods for their affections to the parliament ſervice, and it was a great means, under God, to preſerve the ſaid city and garriſon, and by conſequence the whole country, from the power of the enemy: And your petitioners have ever ſince continued conſtantly faithful to the commonwealth, and the preſent government thereof, in the times of greateſt danger and trial unto this day, and have always hoped, that according to the parliament's declarations, their loſſes and ruins for the commonwealth's ſervice, ſhould be repaired out of the eſtates of the commonwealth's enemies who occaſioned the ſame.

Your petitioners therefore humbly pray, that their loſſes and ruins may be repaired, and their diſtreſſed families relieved, out of the eſtates of ſuch delinquents as ſhall be appointed to be ſold, or in ſuch other way as ſhall ſeem beſt to your wiſdom, juſtice and charity.

And they ſhall be bound to pray, &c.

NUMBER XI.

The CHARTER of STEPHEN, King of ENGLAND, reciting and confirming the ſeveral DONATIONS to the church of St. PETER of GLOUCESTER.

IN the year 1138, from the incarnation of our Lord Jeſu Chriſt, I, Stephen, king of England, in the third year of my reign, at the requeſt of Walter de Laci, abbot of Glouceſter, and of ſeveral of my nobles, do grant and confirm unto the church of St. Peter of Glouceſter, all thoſe lands, churches and tithes, and other donations which the barons of England have heretofore given to the ſaid church, and which my predeceſſors, kings of England, have confirmed by their charters; that is to ſay, Berton, Standiſh, Lech, Oddington, and the manor of Maiſemore, with the wood and the adjoining lands given by king Henry the Firſt; and Brokrup given by Atheline of Hibreio; and Colne St. Andrew, and two commons, and one church, with one hide of land, and a water-mill given by Roger of Glouceſter, and the church of St. Peter of Hereford, with the prebendaries, lands, tithes, and all other things belonging to the ſame, which were the gift of Hugh de Laci; and the land changed for the monks orchard on which the tower was built, which was executed by the ſheriff; and the church of St. Cadoc of Lancarvan, with the land called Treigos, given to them by Robert Fitzhamon; and the land in Hampſhire called Littleton, given by Hugh of the port; and Lincheholt, of the gift of Ernulph de Heſding; and Ledene, reſtored to them by Walter de Laci; and Plumtreu in Devonſhire, given by Odo the ſon of Gamiline, which abbot Serlo did change with Nicholas de Pool for land called Alnodeſton and Clehangre, the gift of Roger of Berkeley; and one hide at Aſpreton in Herefordſhire, given by William de Ebroicis; and the land in Erchenefelt called Veſtewde, given by Walter of Glouceſter; and a ſmall parcel of land at Guitings, given by Luric de Loges; and a water-mill at Framalode, which Winebald of Baderon reſtored to the church; and Clifford, the gift of Roger de Buſſei; and Rudfort, the gift of king Henry the Firſt; and Rudle, the gift of Radolph Bloet; and the church of Hatherop, with the tithes of the vill, and the prieſts land, and a water-mill in the ſame place, with the land belonging to it; and the church of Kempsford, with the tithes and the prieſts lands; and the church of Norton, with five yard lands and the tithes, and whatever is adjoining to it, which were given by Ernulph de Heſding and Emeline his wife; and the tithes of Cheſterton, given by Nigel Doily; and a part of a wood, with three cottages, given by Elias Giffart; and one yard land in Kempsford, given by Patrick de Chauworth, free from all charges except thoſe due to the king; and one houſe in the moor of Black Ditch, free as the former; and the houſes of Edric, the king's lieutenant, in the ſame moor, and the land belonging to them, and the tithes of meadows in the ſame village, and one water-mill with the land belonging to it, and the tithes of two other water-mills in the ſame place; and one hide of land in Ammeny, of the fee and grant of Patrick; and one half hide in the ſame vill, which Tovi held in alms of king Henry the Firſt; and Glaſebery at Brecchenne, with the lands and woods, and all other things belonging to the ſame; and all the tithes of all his demeſnes in Brecchenne, of corn, cattle, cheeſe, veniſon, honey; moreover, the church of Cover, with all the tithes of that pariſh, and the land belonging to that church; and one hide called Berche, given by Bernard of Newmarket; and the church of Gunlui, with the land and tithes belonging to the ſame, given by king William the Firſt; and the mill given by Roger Giffart; and the church of Cerney, with the tithes of the ſame; and the church of St. Helene, with one yard land given by Walter the ſheriff; and two new plowed grounds with the ſmall meadows adjoining to them; and a ſmall wood lying in the king's fee of Celeſwood, and were given by king William the Firſt; and the land in Rugge which Thomas de St. John reſtored to the church; and Dunteſburne, the gift of Emmeline, the wife of Walter de Laci; and one water-mill, with a ſmall yard land adjoining to it, free and quit as given by William de Owe; and the land at Soteſhore, which was reſtored by Roger de Berchelai; and the water-mill which runs by the abbey, given to them by the kings my anceſtors; and the church of St. Peter which ſtands in the market place at Norwich, and was the gift of king William the Firſt; and all the plowed lands of Bully at Homme, and the tithes of William of Bully, which were given by the ſaid William; and all the tithes of all my veniſon which ſhall be taken in the county of Glouceſter, and was granted to them by king Henry the Firſt; and whereſoever they ſhall buy or ſell any thing for the benefit of the monaſtery, they ſhall be exempted from toll and payments of paſſage, and may go through any place without any moleſtation, as it was granted to them by king Henry the Firſt; and whereſoever they ſhall take any ſturgeon in any of their fiſheries, they may retain it entirely to their own uſe; this was granted to them by king William the Firſt; and all their lands ſhall be free from carriage, ſummonage and conduct, as they were granted to them by king Henry the Firſt; and the church of St. Martin, ſtanding near the Thames at London, and all the land which the prieſt of that church did hold, free and diſcharged from all cuſtoms and impoſts, which was the gift of Ranulph Peverell; and the church of St. Guthlac in Hereford, with all its appurtenances, given to them by our venerable brother, Robert, biſhop of Hereford; and the church of Weſtbury; and the church of Laverſtoke, of the gift of Robert Gernan, with the conſent of Alexander biſhop of Lincoln; and the church of St. Leonard Stanley, with whatſoever belongs to it; and the chapel of St. John the Baptiſt, in the wood called Baſing, with all its appurtenances; the church of Norton, with all its appurtenances; the church of St. John Baptiſt of Glouceſter, with all its appurtenances; and the church of St. Patrine, with the chapels and lands thereunto belonging, which were given by Richard, the ſon of Giſlebert; and the church of Teynton, with the chapel of the wood, and a yard land; and the chancel of Chilpect, and the lands and tithes, and whatſoever belongs to the ſame; and the church of St. Michael of Ewias, with all belonging to it; and moreover, the tithes of all the manors of Robert Ewias, and the church of St. Michael of Uggemore, and St Bridget the virgin, with all their appurtenances; and all the lands within the manor of Eſtletch, which they had in exchange for the manor of Glaſbury with Walter de Cliffort; and alſo the church of Quenington, with a yard land, and the tithes of the vill, and all other things belonging to it; and the pariſh of the caſtle of Glouceſter, without being a member of any other church; and all places, as well within the walls of the city as without, as they held the ſame in the time of Wolſton biſhop of Worceſter, or in the time of Sampſon his ſucceſſor; and one hide of land in Combe, which was the gift of Hugard de Baſcheville.

Simon,

Simon, the biſhop of the church of Worceſter, ſends all obedience and duty to his father and lord Theobald, by the grace of God archbiſhop of Canterbury, and primate of all England. Foraſmuch as all donations have their full power and efficacy, when confirmed by apoſtolical authority, therefore, at the requeſt of our beloved brother the abbot of Glouceſter, and his brethren, we have inſpected the charters of the church of St. Peter of Glouceſter, and do hereby teſtify the truth of them, and certify the ſame to your grace, that you may be pleaſed to confirm them by your authority, and that you may without difficulty order them to be atteſted in your apoſtolical preſence: May it therefore be known to your grace, that all theſe things contained in the charter of king Stephen were actually granted to the church of St. Peter of Glouceſter by donation from himſelf, or of the kings his predeceſſors, or of ſome great noblemen, and were confirmed by their ſeveral charters and ſeals. Farewell.

NUMBER XII.

The CHARTER of King HENRY IV. for the better Endowment of St. BARTHOLOMEW'S HOSPITAL in GLOUCESTER.

HENRY, by the grace of God king of England and France, and lord of Ireland, to all to whom theſe preſents ſhall come, greeting. Know ye, that whereas the hoſpital of St. Bartholomew, between the bridges in Glouceſter, founded by our progenitors formerly kings of England, and now belonging to our patronage, is but meanly endowed, and the lands, tenements, rents and poſſeſſions are not ſufficient for the ſuſtentation of the ſaid hoſpital, and of the prior or guardian, and of the brothers or chaplains, and of the poor men and women now reſiding in the ſame hoſpital, who are obliged to aſſiſt by faſtings and continual interceſſions, and other devout and divine ſervices by night and by day, to pray for their benefactors, and for the ſouls of ſuch others as they are thereunto required; nor for the reparation and amendment of their church, houſes, buildings and edifices of the ſaid hoſpital, and for the ſupport and ſuſtaining other burthens daily neceſſary for the good of the hoſpital, without the aſſiſtance of us and our heirs, and the charitable benevolence of good chriſtians and well diſpoſed perſons; and their charters, writings, muniments and evidences concerning their lands, tenements, rents and poſſeſſions, by the careleſneſs and negligence of the former priors or guardians, and of the brothers and chaplains of the ſaid hoſpital, being burnt, ſubtracted, purloined or loſt, by which means the preſent prior or guardian, and the brothers or chaplains, and the alms people, have not only ſuffered great damages and prejudice, but the ſaid hoſpital muſt apparently come to utter ruin, which God forbid, unleſs we on our part ſhall ſuccour and relieve them.

We therefore, out of a charitable compaſſion, and taking the premiſſes into a due conſideration, and being willing of our ſpecial grace to provide in a convenient manner that the ſaid prior or guardian, and the brothers or chaplains, or alms people, ſhould in all quiet and ſafety, with a chearful heart, pray unto the Moſt High, particularly for the good eſtate of us whilſt we are living, and for our ſoul when we are departed out of this life, and for the ſouls of our moſt dear father John, late duke of Lancaſter, and of Mary our conſort, lately deceaſed, and alſo for the ſouls of our progenitors, and of all others dead in the true faith.

And for the preſervation of the rights of the ſaid hoſpital, eſpecially being founded by our ſaid progenitors, and the patronage thereof, now belonging to us as aforeſaid; and leaſt by the like folly and negligence it ſhould be utterly ruined, we for ourſelves and ſucceſſors, as much as in us lies, do accept, approve, ratify and confirm the ſtate and poſſeſſions which the ſaid preſent prior or guardians, and brothers or chaplains, and alms people have in the ſaid hoſpital, and in the ſeveral churches thereunto annexed and appropriated, and in their lands, tenements, rents and poſſeſſions, with their appurtenances.

And we do hereby farther give and grant, (if need be) the ſaid churches, lands, tenements, rents and poſſeſſions aforeſaid, to them and their ſucceſſors for ever: Moreover, we will that the ſaid hoſpital be always held and reputed to be of the foundation of our progenitors, and the patronage thereof to belong to us and our heirs; and that the ſaid prior or guardian, and brothers or chaplains, and alms people ſhall have and hold to them and their ſucceſſors, for ever, the churches, lands, tenements, rents and poſſeſſions aforeſaid, as freely, quietly, and in as full manner as if the ſaid charters, writings, muniments and evidences were now intirely in being, and remaining within the ſaid hoſpital in the cuſtody of the ſaid prior or guardian, and brothers or chaplains: And we do by theſe preſents take, diſpoſe and receive under our eſpecial protection, guardianſhip and defence, the ſaid preſent prior or guardian, and brothers or chaplains, or the alms people, and all their ſucceſſors, and their proctors and agents, wherever they ſhall go or come, who ſhall be employed in aſking, demanding and gathering any elemoſynary gifts, or other charitable ſubſiſtencies for the uſe and benefit of the preſent prior or guardian, and brothers or chaplains, or alms people, and the ſucceſſors of them, and we ſhall protect the ſaid hoſpital, its lands, tenements, rents and poſſeſſions whatſoever.

Alſo we will not, that any clerks, purveyors or buyers of proviſion for the uſe of our houſhold, or for the uſe of our heirs, or any of them, or for the uſe of any of our carriages, or any other officers, bailiffs or miniſters of us, or of our heirs, or of any other perſon whatſoever, ſhall at any time take the corn, hay, horſes, carts, carriages, oxen, cows, hogs or other cattle, victuals or other goods, or chattels, or things belonging to the ſaid prior or guardian, and brothers or chaplains, and alms people, or their ſucceſſors, in any of their houſes or places whatſoever, or in the cuſtody of the ſaid prior or guardian, and brothers or chaplains, and alms people, or of their ſucceſſors, or of their bailiffs, miniſters, or their tenants whatſoever, againſt their good wills.

And that the ſaid preſent prior or guardian, and brothers or chaplains, and alms people may partake of our ſpecial favour, and the languiſhing condition of the ſaid hoſpital may be relieved, we do farther will and grant, for us and our ſucceſſors, as much as in us lies, to the ſaid preſent prior or guardian, and brothers or chaplains, and their ſucceſſors, that as often as the ſaid hoſpital, by the death, ceſſion, depoſing, deprivation or reſignation of any prior or guardian of the ſame for the time being, or by any other means whatſoever, ſhall happen to be void, that then the brothers or chaplains of the ſaid hoſpital for the time being, and their ſucceſſors, ſhall with free aſſent and conſent, elect from time to time one able and ſufficient perſon from amongſt themſelves; or in caſe none ſhall be thought proper, then they ſhall elect ſome other ſufficient perſon to be the prior or guardian of the place, without our royal licence being firſt aſked and obtained, and without the licence of any of our ſucceſſors; and when ſuch election ſhall ſo be made, that then the biſhop of the place may proceed to confirm ſuch elected perſon, without our royal aſſent, or the aſſent of our ſucceſſors, being firſt aſked and obtained; and the ſaid perſon ſo elected, ſhall be admitted by the ſaid biſhop to be prior or guardian of the ſaid place, and paſtor thereof, and ſhall receive all the temporalties of the ſaid hoſpital as from God himſelf, and ſhall diſpoſe of them for the benefit of the ſaid hoſpital, without any procuring any livery of the ſaid temporalties out of our hands, or the hands of any of our ſucceſſors, as the cuſtom heretofore has been; and ſuch elections, and the confirmations of them, and the admittances of the ſaid prior or guardian of the ſaid place, without the licence and aſſent of the king, ſhall in no wiſe be prejudicial to the ſaid hoſpital, or turn to their loſs or prejudice; for in all vacancies of the ſaid hoſpital, the brothers or chaplains of the ſaid hoſpital for the time being ſhall, during ſuch vacancies, have the cuſtody of their temporalties, without rendering any account to us, or to any of our ſucceſſors, or paying any thing for the ſame; and no ſheriff or eſcheator of us or our ſucceſſors, in the county of Glouceſter or elſewhere, for the time being, or any other officer of us or our heirs, by reaſon of ſuch vacancy, ſhall any ways intermeddle with the ſaid hoſpital, or any of their temporalties, provided notwithſtanding, that the eſcheator of the ſaid county for the time being ſhall, on every vacancy, make ſeiſin at the gate of the ſaid hoſpital in the king's name, and ſo having done ſhall forthwith depart; and that the ſaid eſcheator ſhall not, by reaſon of ſuch ſeiſin, be obliged or compelled to give any account or eſtimate to us, or to our heirs.

We do alſo farther will and grant, out of the abundance of our grace and favour, to the ſaid prior or guardian, and to the brothers or chaplains, and to their ſaid ſucceſſors, that they and their ſucceſſors ſhall ever be diſcharged and freed from all penſions and ſallaries required by our command, or the requeſt of us or our ſucceſſors, notwithſtanding the ſtatute againſt giving lands and tenements into mortmain, or any other ſtatute or ordinance to the contrary whatſoever; and notwithſtanding the ſaid prior or guardian, the brothers or chaplains, and their predeceſſors, were heretofore, by reaſon of their foundation, obliged to aſk licence and conſent, before they made any ſuch election and admittance of their prior or guardian of the ſaid place, and after admittance were obliged to ſue forth livery of their temporalties out of the hands of the king in the court of chancery, and notwiſtanding any other cauſe whatſoever: In witneſs whereof we have cauſed theſe our letters to be made patents.

Witneſs ourſelf at Glouceſter, the 19th day of November, in the 9th year of our reign.

NUM-

NUMBER XIII.

The CHARTER of King EDWARD the IIId, reciting the Foundation of the Priory of CIRENCESTER in the County of GLOUCESTER, and confirming the ſame.

THE king to archbiſhops, &c. We have inſpected the charter of Henry the Firſt, of famous memory, heretofore king of England, our progenitor, in theſe words: Henry, king of England, to archbiſhops, biſhops, abbats, priors, earls, barons, juſtices, ſheriffs, and all the ſons of holy church eſtabliſhed throughout England, greeting: Know all men, that I, by the conſent and authority of Pope Innocent, of pious memory, and by the advice and common approbation of the archbiſhops and biſhops, princes and barons of my kingdom, have given to God and the church of the bleſſed Mary of Cirenceſter, of which I was the unworthy founder, for the good of the ſouls of my parents and anceſtors, and for the remiſſion of my ſins, and for the welfare and ſafety of my kingdom, and to Serlo the firſt abbat, and to all his ſucceſſors, and to the regular canons ſerving God in that place, in pure alms, all the eſtate of Reimbald the prieſt, in lands and churches, and other things, as followeth; to wit, two hides of land in the town of Cirenceſter, and the third part of the tolls of the market, which is held on Sunday in the ſeveral ſtreets; and two parts of the tithes of the demeſnes of Cirenceſter, and the whole tithe of all the reſt of the pariſh; in Glouceſterſhire, eight hides of land in Preſton, and the church thereof; one hide of land in Norcott, ſeven hides in Driſeild, four hides and one yard land in Amney, and the church thereof; two hides in Walle, which did belong to Balchi Daci, one hide in Elmundeſtan, one yard land and a wood in Wik, the church of Chiltenham, with the land thereof, and the mill, and the chapels, and all other appurtenances to the ſaid church belonging; in Wiltſhire, nine hides in Latton and Eiſy, and the churches of both thoſe places with their land, and the chapel of Eaton which belongs to the church of Eiſy; three houſes in the town of Cricklade, and the church of Peveſy, with the lands, tithes and cuſtoms appertaining unto the ſaid church; the church in Avebiry, with the lands, chapels, tithes and cuſtoms appertaining to the ſaid church; in Somerſetſhire, the church of Melborn, with the lands, chapels, tithes and other things belonging to the ſaid church; the church of Frome, with the lands, chapels, tithes and all other things, whether woods or plains, appertaining to the ſaid church; the church of Walon, with the lands, chapels, tithes and all cuſtoms, whether woods or plains, appertaining to the ſaid church; in Dorſetſhire, ten hides of land in woods and meadow in Puley; in Berkſhire, the church of Scriveham, with the lands, chapels, tithes, and all other cuſtoms appertaining to the ſaid church; the church of Cocheham, with the lands, chapels, tithes, and all other things appertaining to the ſaid church; the church of Bray, with the lands, chapels, tithes and all things appertaining to the ſaid church; ten hides in Eſton; eleven hides and three yard lands in Hatcheburne, and the church of the ſame, with the chapels and tithes of the other Hatcheburn; in Oxfordſhire, one hide of land in wood and plains, and one mill in Boicot; the church of Paſſeham in Buckinghamſhire, with the lands, tithes and all things appertaining to the ſaid church; in Northamptonſhire, the church of Rowel, with the lands, chapels, tithes, and all cuſtoms belonging to the ſaid church; the church of Briſtoke, with the lands, chapels, tithes, and all cuſtoms, whether in woods or plains, appertaining to the ſaid church; three houſes in Winton: And I have farther granted to the ſaid church of Cirenceſter, of my own demeſnes, for ever, one hide of land in Cirenceſter, called Scereve-Hide, to make orchards, copſes, and a place for a water-mill; and the abbat, Serlo, with my licence, has exchanged two meſſuages of that hide with the burgeſſes of Cirenceſter, for the conveniency of the prieſts: I have alſo granted a water-courſe, and the wood called Acley, with the foreſt, and all its lands; and I retain to myſelf nothing out of the wood beſides my hunting, and the abbat may not plow up any part of it.

We moreover ordain, concerning the eſtates belonging to Reimbald, that whatſoever part of it the biſhop of Saliſbury hath, ſhall remain to him during his life, but after his death it ſhall return to the proper uſe and demeſne of the canons regular: We ordain the like concerning the lands held by William Fitz Warin the ſheriff; and the like of the lands held by Nicholas, nephew of the biſhop of Winton; and the like concerning the lands which the ſecular canons held by their prebends: We do alſo grant to the ſaid church, throughout all their poſſeſſions, ſoc and ſac, toll, theam, infang-theof, and all other liberties, immunities, cuſtoms and privileges, in as free manner as the ſaid church held the ſame in the reign of king Edward the confeſſor, or in the reign of my father or brother, or in my time; and as free as any other eleemoſynary lands in the kingdom are held; therefore I approve, and by my royal authority do corroborate this my grant and conceſſion, and by the power given to me by God, I decree, that the ſaid church ſhall for ever enjoy the ſame; and I declare that I reſerve thoſe lands ſo given in alms, in my own hand, and under my protection, as if thoſe alms-lands had been my own proper gift.

Witneſſes, William, archbiſhop of Canterbury; Turſtan, archbiſhop of York; Roger, biſhop of Saliſbury; Henry, biſhop of Wincheſter; Alexander, biſhop of Lincoln; Jeoffry, biſhop of Durham; Nigell, biſhop of Ely; Robert, biſhop of Hereford; John, biſhop of Rocheſter; Robert, keeper of the ſeal; Robert de Vere, Miles Gloec. Robert Doiley, Hugh Bigott, Robert de Curcy, and Pagan, the ſon of John; and Euſtace and William his brothers; and William de Albia Britone.

Done at Burne, as I was croſſing the ſeas, in the year of our Lord 1133, and in the 33d year of our reign.

We therefore the ſaid grants, &c. do confirm, &c.

Given under the hand of the king at Berwick upon Tweed, on the firſt day of July.

NUMBER XIV.

The CONFIRMATION of the Grants to the Abbey of CIRENCSTER by King JOHN.

JOHN, by the grace of God, king of England, &c. to archbiſhops, &c. greeting: It is becoming our dignity, and is neceſſary for our ſalvation, that we ſhould defend, keep and preſerve thoſe holy and religious places which were founded by our great grandfather, king Henry the Firſt, and were confirmed by king Henry the Second, our father; therefore we give and grant, and by this preſent charter confirm to God, and to the holy church of St. Mary of Cirenceſter, and to the canons regular ſerving God in that place, in free and perpetual alms, for the good of the ſoul of the aforeſaid king Henry, who was founder thereof, and for the ſoul of our father aforementioned, and for the ſouls of king Richard our brother, and queen Anne our mother, and of our brethren and all others departed this life in the true faith, all our manor of Cirenceſter, with all its appurtenances; with the town of Minchey, which is a member of the ſaid manor, with the ſeven hundreds belonging to the ſaid manor and farm, with all their appurtenances; to hold of us and our ſucceſſors, yielding and paying 30l. yearly for all ſervices, at our exchequer, at the feaſt of St. Michael: And know ye, that for the good of our ſoul, and all others abovementioned, we have given, releaſed, and quit claimed, in perpetual alms, to the honour of St. Mary, and to our ſaid canons of Cirenceſter ſerving God, forty ſhillings yearly rent which the ſaid manor was accuſtomed to pay, ſo that for the future they ſhall pay only a rent of 30l. as aforeſaid; and this we have done, that the canons of our demeſnes, who are ſo named herein, may the more freely, quietly and ſafely ſerve God, in praying for us, for our father, and the reſt abovementioned; wherefore we will, &c. We will alſo and command, that they enjoy that manor as fully and quietly, with all its liberties and free cuſtoms, as king Richard, our brother, enjoyed the ſame, when it was in his hands, except pleas of the crown, and our foreſt of Minchey, which we reſerve to ourſelves, as the charter of king Richard, our brother, can teſtify.

Witneſſes, Robert, earl of Leiceſter; William, earl of Pembroke; William de Albeniaco, Garine de Glapum, Peter Eſtokes, and many others.

NUMBER XV.

The CHARTER of HENRY Duke of the NORMANS, reciting the Grants of the Benefactors of the Abbey of FLAXLEY in the County of GLOUCESTER, and confirming the ſame.

HENRY duke of Normandy, and earl of Anjou, to archbiſhops, &c. greeting: Know ye, that I have granted and confirmed to God and St. Mary, and to the monks of the ciſtertian order, for the good of the ſouls of my anceſtors, and of my own ſoul, in perpetual alms, all thoſe donations which Roger earl of Hereford gave to thoſe monks in alms, according to the tenor of thoſe charters, to wit, a certain place in the valley of Caſtiard, called Flaxley, to build an abbey there; and all that land called Waſtadene, which did belong to Walfric, and an iron work at Edland; and all the land under the old caſtle of Dene which remains to be aſſerted, and that which is already aſſarted; and and a certain fiſhery at Redley called Newerre, and a meadow in Pulmeade; and all eaſements in the foreſt of Dean, and all the demeſnes in Dymmock, and the lands belonging to Walfric; but ſo, that if Uthred the clerk continues in the abbey with the lands he exchanged, to wit, two yard lands, that then he ſhall give no account of it to any body but the abbot; half the wood at Dymmock, and all the tithes of cheſnuts in Dean every year; and all the land of Jeoffry, ſon of the aforeſaid Walfric, which the earl of Hereford did releaſe; and all the land of Leffric de Stanra, which the earl of Hereford did likewiſe releaſe: Wherefore I will, &c.

We do not only confirm to them theſe aforeſaid grants, but we alſo confirm all others which the ſame Roger, earl or Hereford, does intend to give unto them in alms.

Witneſſes, Roger, earl of Hereford; William de Crevecour; Richard de Humett, conſtable; Philip de Columbariis, Robert de Virgum, William de Angervil, William Cumin, at Eveſham.

NUMBER XVI.

The CHARTER of king HENRY the IId. to the Abbey of FLAXLEY.

HENRY, by the grace of God, king of England, and duke of Normandy and Aquitain, and earl of Anjou, to archbiſhops, &c. and to all faithful, as well Engliſh as Normans, both preſent and to come, greeting: Know ye, that I have given and confirmed to God and the bleſſed Mary, and to the monks of Dean, which I have received into my protection, for the good of my ſoul, and of my anceſtors, in perpetual alms, a certain place within the foreſt of Dean, to wit, all the valley of Caſtiard, and the place called Flaxley, where an abbey is founded of the ciſtertian order, in honour of the bleſſed virgin Mary, for the love of God, and the benefit of the ſoul of my grandfather king Henry, and of the ſoul of my father the earl of Anjou, and of Maud the Empreſs, my mother, and of the ſouls of all my parents and anceſtors, and for the good of my own ſoul, and of my heirs, and for the proſperity and peace of the kingdom of England; I have alſo granted to them, and have confirmed all the donations which Roger earl of Hereford gave to them in alms, in the ſame manner as thoſe charters do expreſs; moreover I have granted and confirmed to them all eaſments within my foreſt of Dean, to wit, common of paſture for their young cattle and hogs, and for all other beaſts, and wood and timber to repair their houſes and buildings, and for other neceſſaries, without committing waſte in the foreſt; and I have given them tithes of cheſnuts out of the ſame foreſt, and the farm called Waſtdean, and one iron forge free and quit, and with as free liberty to work as any of my forges in demeſne; and all the land under the old caſtle of Dean, with liberty to plow it up, to wit, one hundred acres, and a fiſhery at Redley called Nowere, and a meadow of Reidley called Pulmead, containing four acres; and all the land which Leuveric de Stanra gave to them in alms, and the farm which I gave them at Wallemere, out of my new plowed grounds, containing two hundred acres, with the meadows and paſtures, and all other eaſments; and four acres of Northwood, and all my demeſnes at Dymmock; and five yard lands and an half, beſides the demeſnes, and half my wood at Dymmock, and half my nets which I have in my hands, for the conveniencies of my men, becauſe I would have my monks enjoy that part of the wood peaceably and quietly, without any interfering with any other perſons, and I ſtraightly command, that no perſon offer to diſturb them upon this account; I further give to them my new plowed grounds under Caſtiard, called Vincent's Land: All thoſe I give unto God and to the bleſſed Mary, and to my monks devoutly ſerving God, to have and to hold for ever, quit and diſcharged from all regards and other ſecular exactions, whereof I will, &c.

Witneſs, Richard de Humett, William de Crevecour, Philip de Columbariis, William de Angervil, at Eveſham.

NUMBER XVII.

The CHARTER of the FOUNDATION of the Abbey of HAYLES.

TO all ſons of holy mother the church, to whom this preſent writing ſhall come, Richard earl of Cornwall ſendeth greeting in the Lord: Know all of ye, that we, in honour of Almighty God, and of the glorious virgin Mary, and of all ſaints, for the good of our ſoul, and the ſouls of our anceſtors, have founded a certain abbey of the order of the ciſtercians, in the manor of Hayles, which was given to us by Henry king of England, our brother; and the ſaid manor we have given and granted, with all its appurtenances, and by this preſent charter have confirmed unto the abbot and monks ſerving God, and the bleſſed Mary, in that place, and to their ſucceſſors, in free, pure and perpetual alms, with the advowſon of the church of that manor, with all its appurtenances, liberties, homages, and the ſervices of the free men, and all eſcheats in villains and villainages, in rents and woods, in meadows, plains and paſtures; in waters, mills, ponds and fiſh-ponds; in ways and paths, and in all things appertaining to the ſaid manor, freely, quietly, peaceably, and intirely free and diſcharged from all ſecular ſervices, from any exaction and demand; to have and to hold for ever, freely, quietly, and as fully as any other alms can poſſibly be granted; and we and our heirs will warrant the ſaid manor, with all its appurtenances aforeſaid, to the ſaid abbot and monks, and their ſucceſſors, againſt all men and women, and as free and quit, and perpetual alms, will we acquit and defend the ſame for evermore: And that this our grant and conceſſion may be of utmoſt and laſting force, we have hereunto ſet our ſeals.

Witneſs, Simon de Montfort, earl of Leiceſter; Peter of Savoy; the lord William of York; lord preſident of Beverlai; Robert Paſſilewe, archdeacon of Lewis; Simon de Everdon, archdeacon of Cheſter; Hugh de Vivone, Peter de Geneve, Robert de Muſgrove, Pauline Pejure, William de Ireby, Gyles Chancell, William Blundell, Philip de Eye, clerks, and many others.

NUMBER XVIII.

The CHARTER of MILO, Conſtable of GLOUCESTER, to the Priory of LANTHONY.

MILO, conſtable of Glouceſter, to Simon, by the grace of God, biſhop of Worceſter, and to Robert, biſhop of Hereford, and to all the barons of Worceſterſhire and Herefordſhire, and all the faithful of holy church, greeting: We will it to be known to all people preſent and to come, that I, for the good of my ſoul, and of the ſouls of my anceſtors, have, by the hand of Robert biſhop of Hereford, given to God and St. Mary, and to the canons of the church of Lanthony, in perpetual alms, the church of Burchelle, with all benefits thereunto belonging, one hide in Glouceſter free from all ſervices, a meadow called Caſtlemead, the tithes of hay of the meadow of Preſtenham, the tithes of all fiſh in the water and mill of Quedreſſe, and in the moat round the caſtle, the church of St. Owen with all its appurtenances. Theſe particulars following are appurtenant to the ſaid church, and were given by my anceſtors Roger of Glouceſter, and Walter the conſtable, to wit, a chapel within the caſtle, a ſmall piece of land upon the bank of the Severn to find a light to the ſaid chapel; all offerings which ſhall be made by the keepers of the tower, and of the caſtle, and of the barons reſiding there; a moiety of all offerings given by myſelf or my family, if my chaplain be preſent, but the whole of my offerings if my chaplain ſhall be abſent; alſo the chapel of St. Kyneburg, and all the pariſh in the hand of the conſtable within the ſouth gate, and all the pariſh without the ſaid gate, and all the land which Roger de Tocheam and Richard the chaplain held within the ſaid gate or without; the tithes of all the fiſh taken in the fiſhery under the caſtle; the chapel of Heccamſtude, with the tithes of all the villains in all things; the chapel of Quedreſſe, with the tithes of the demeſnes in all things, and the tithes of all the villains in all things, and a ſmall piece of land to collect the tithes; two parts of the tithes of Caldecot in all things; all the tithes of Wadon; all the tithes of the manor of Brocrup in all things; and of all the villains, with a ſmall parcel of land to collect the tithes; all the tithes of the manor of Longford, and the tithes of the orchard of Coveſley; all the tithes in the manor of Sutham in all things, and a ſmall parcel of land to collect them; all the tithes of Hide in Glouceſter in all things, two parts of the tithes of the manor of Berninton in all things, two parts of the tithes in Coleſburn Sampſon, two parts of the tithes of Elias Loholt of Coleſburn, the chapel of Elmor, with all the tithes of the demeſnes in all things, with all the tithes of the villains, with a ſmall parcel of land to collect the tithes; two parts of the tithes of Cerney, all the tithes of Cuckerton, the church of Tocheham with its appurtenances; all the tithes of the manor of Tocheham, with its appurtenances; half the tithes of the manor of Lotheridge, and of the manor of Cireton, and all the tithes of Sutgrove Reſtald: And I made the grant of all the ſaid tithes to the canons of Lanthony of the church of St. Mary at Glouceſter, upon the ſame day day and hour as the church was dedicated, in the year of our Lord, 1137.

Witneſſes, Simon, biſhop of Worceſter; Robert, biſhop of Hereford; Robert, abbat of Tewkſbury; Serlo, abbat of Cirenceſter; William de Mara, William de Bercale, Alan, ſon of Main; Roger, ſon of Richard; Richard Wicet, Roger Wicet, Roger de Tocheam.

Afterwards I gave unto them the church of Berton near Wincheſter, with half an hide of land belonging to it, both which were part of my fee, deſcended to me from my anceſtors, and now in my poſſeſſion; and in the year 1141, being at Briſtol, and being made conſul thereof, I gave them the manor of Hethamſtede, with the meadows, and all its appurtenances, by land or by water, free and diſcharged from all ſervice and cuſtom, in as full and free manner as my father or ſelf did at any time hold the ſame. This donation I and my wife Sybille, and my ſons Roger, Walter and Henry, did make in the church of the canons of Glouceſter: Roger, who is now married, took an oath upon the altar of St. Mary, and upon the four evangeliſts, that he would never hereafter give them any diſturbance concerning that manor, and would never do them any damage or diminution in any thing, either by himſelf or any other; and my ſon Walter took the ſame oath. This was ſome days after my return from Briſtol, in the preſence, and atteſted by my ſaid ſons, by Drogo the ſteward, Robert Corbet, William de Bercale, Alan, ſon of Main, Hugh de Heſeley, Turſtin, ſon of Simon, William Britton, Roger the Little, Radulph Avenel, Walter de Broſeley, Robert, ſon of Hugh.

The witneſſes to the firſt donation at Briſtol were, the empreſs; Robert, earl of Glouceſter; Brien, ſon of the earl; and Robert, ſon of Martin.

I likewiſe gave them half the fiſhery at Haſpool which belongs to the ſaid manor, with the fiſhing places on one ſide or the other belonging to it; and not long after I gave unto them the other moiety of that fiſhery, by delivering a golden ring upon the altar in the ſame church, which I did in gratitude for the recovery of my ſon Roger. Two years afterwards, when my ſon Walter lay ſick with them, I then gave them a meadow in Elmore, which Roger of Tocheam had granted out of a grove; and in this gift I particularly aſſigned a rent to find a light before the body of our Lord on the altar, as I had promiſed them before, and had made alſo a vow unto God.

NUMBER XIX.

The CHARTER of King JOHN, reciting the Grants of the benefactors to the Priory of LANTHONY, and confirming the ſame.

JOHN, by the grace of God, king of England, &c. Know all men, that we out of love to God, &c. have confirmed in perpetual alms to God, and to the church of the bleſſed Mary and St. John Baptiſt, and the canons regular of Lanthony, theſe underwritten donations which have been juſtly given unto them: The chapel within the caſtle of Glouceſter, given by king Henry, my father, and a ſchool houſe in the ſame town, and half the fiſhery of Herſepool which is in our demeſne, and four libratas of land in the manor of Bernington, in perpetual alms, and four other libratas of land in the ſame manor, in fee farm, for four pounds to be yearly paid; and alſo all the lands given by Hugh de Lacy, and Pagan, ſon of John Ominour, in Bethreſhant, in Redwerren, and in Oldville and Little Freme, and half an hide at Aclam, and certain lands in Herchenfield, and a fiſhery in the Ham, with four acres of land, and a tenement which Ord and his anceſtors held, with the fiſhery of Tudenham, and the wears of Hodenai, and all the fiſhery belonging to it, as Pagan did ever hold the ſame in the moſt free and honourable tenure; and alſo all the lands given by Walter de Lacy, which lie between the mountains of Iriſebroke quite to Anſmere, and the land which Richard Poncy gave to them in Turchdean; and alſo two plow lands in the vill of St. Michael, given to them by Brien the ſon of the earl; and whatſoever was given by Nigelle the ſon of Hordfaſt, and granted by Henry de Albeny, and by his ſon Robert; whatſoever the ſaid Nigelle held in ſocage at Hanelowe in Aylricheſey, with the church of Hannelanne; whatſoever was given by Roger de Chandos and Robert his ſon, in Boneſhul in Cheneceſtre, and Felilie; whatſoever Aldred held, with a yard land in Hope; the church of Brokewordin, given by Robert de Chandos, with half an hide of land, and an houſe on the weſt ſide of the church yard, and the land called Norbroc in Brockwordyn, unto the old way near the park of the earl; and two new plowed grounds which Richard de Brockwordyn gave unto them, and half a yard land which was Alred's, and the land which was Folley, which was Hugh de Donnoc's, with his ſervices and common of paſture for cattle, with the cattle of the Lord, and two mills in Mardeford, with thirty acres of land, and ſo much of a wood as will ſuffice to repair the mills, and twenty-four acres more of land which were added to the former, and another thirty acres, and one acre of meadow; the church of Begerdone with its appurtenances, and whatſoever was given by Roger de Chandos the younger in Brockwordyn; one yard land conſiſting of twenty-four acres, and all the new plowed ground which was Goremond's, and ten acres adjoining to the new plowed ground, and five acres which John the preſbyter held, and one yard land which was Richard's, and all the algarde on the eaſt ſide near the monaſtery, and the lands called Kitetoſhull, and Heglane, Frudung and Pilemode, and one yard land which was Lonewic's, of the ſtreet, and common of paſture for the cattle of the canons to go with the cattle of the lords, and the lands in Brockwordyn which the canons had in exchange for Kyneceſtre; the donation of Radulph de Baſkervil, of all the tithes of all lands belonging to his right of inheritance, and the church of Herdeſley, with twelve acres of land and an orchard, with part of the wall under the church-yard; the church of Janeſore, and the chapel of Streton; the church of Chiveſhope, the chapel of Pulule, the church of Herſope, the new plowed ground of Herderſley, with part of the wood as it is bounded out; all Hardeſhope, with Brechul and Foxley, with all their appurtenances, and the land called Canondinan; whatſoever was given by earl Milo; the church of Burchull, with all its appurtenances; the church of Bertone, with half an hide of land lying under the caſtle of Glouceſter, and the meadow called Caſtle-Mead, and the tithes of the hay of the meadow of Preſtenham and the manor of Hechamſted with its appurtenances, with a moiety of the fiſhery of Hereſpole, and the meadow at Elmore which Roger de Cokehams grubbed up; the church of St. Owen with two prebends, and all things belonging to them, and four acres in Knight's Meadow, and two acres in the meadow of William de Mara, and two acres of meadow of Robert ſon of Jordan, with both their conſents, and the land which was Guncelin's, and the land which was Redmer Bracinton's, and the tithes of the cyder of Brocwerne; whatſoever was given by Walter the conſtable and confirmed by earl Milo; the moiety of Bernington, with the church and all its appurtenances; whatſoever was given by earl Roger, the other moiety of Bernington, for the proviſion of thirteen lepers; whatſoever was given by Hugh de Laci and confirmed by earl Roger; the church of Wyhe with its appurtenances; whatſoever was given by Walter de Hereford; the village called Alvyntone with its appurtenances; whatſoever was given by Gerard de Limeſy; the land which was Roger de St. Juan's in Ramurthewyke; whatſoever was the gift of Robert biſhop of Exeter; the church of St. Mary in Glouceſter, with the chapel of All-Saints; whatſoever was given by Radland Malherle; four acres in Hanelane; whatſoever was given by Henry of Hereford; the church of Herſefield, the church of Caldicote and Gortune under the caſtle of Glouceſter, and a moiety of the meadow called Preſter; and whatſoever was given by Mahel of Hereford, the other moiety of the meadow, and the orchard under the caſtle of Glouceſter; and whatſoever was given by Margaret de Bohun, two parts of Quedgeley which remained to her after ſhe had made a partition with her ſiſter Lucy; and whatſoever was given by the ſaid Margaret de Bohun, and was confirmed by Humphry de Bohun her ſon; the church of Cheritone, with one hide of land; alſo ſome land in Cerney, in ſatisfaction of fifteen quarter-acres of land which the brothers of the ſaid Margaret had given and confirmed to the ſaid canons; alſo the twenty quarter-acres in Cudeſley, given by the ſaid Margaret de Bohun in perpetual alms; what was given by Walter of Hereford, ſome new plowed grounds in Cheltenham; alſo what was given by Radulph Picard, all the land which he had in Glouceſter; what was given by Richard Murdoc, one hide of land in Dunteſburn; alſo ſome land in Sutham, which Margaret de Bohun gave to the canons in exchange of land in Blekemere, which Roger de Harsforth had given to them; alſo all the alms lands which the freemen of the ſaid Margaret, with her conſent and confirmation, had given to the ſaid canons; alſo what was given by Walter de Laci, the church of St. Mary de Drogheda in Ireland. All theſe things aforeſaid, and whatever elſe has been legally given to the ſaid canons, or ſhall hereafter be given, either in England or Ireland, we do grant unto them: Wherefore we will, &c.

Given by the hand of Henry, archbiſhop of Canterbury, our chancellor, at Rupem Aurival, on the 13th day of July, in the firſt year of our reign.

NUMB-

NUMBER XX.

The CHARTER of WALTER DE LACY, reciting and confirming divers Charters and Lands in IRELAND, given by his Father HUGH to the Prior of LANTHONY.

TO all the faithful in Chriſt, to whom this preſent writing ſhall come, Walter de Lacy, ſon of Hugh de Lacy, lord of Midia, ſendeth eternal health in the Lord: Know ye, that no holy intentions of doing good ought to be hindered or obſtructed by the unadviſed raſhneſs of men, but we are all obliged with the beſt means which God has given us, to protect and uphold religious men, and all their goods which our anceſtors had given them out of a pious mind for the good of their own ſouls, and the good of our ſouls; I therefore, in imitation of the devout intention of my father, the lord Hugh de Lacy, for the good of my own ſoul, and the ſouls of my mother and wife, and for the good of the ſouls of my anceſtors and ſucceſſors, have given, and by this preſent writing have confirmed to God and to the church of St. John Baptiſt at the firſt Lanthony, and to the canons ſerving God in that place, all the tithes and profits and goods which the ſaid Hugh de Lacy, my father, of bleſſed memory, had aſſigned to the ſaid canons for the good of his ſoul, with the aſſent of the archbiſhops and biſhops in Ireland, and with the conſent of their chapters, before he had infeoffed his freemen in Ireland, which lands he had obtained in Ireland, to wit, the church of Calp, with the tithes of Commgerie and Duvenelavy; the church of the town of Marmeri, with the tithes of the fiſhery; the church of Anye, the church of Valle Clonelewy, the church of the town of Oggary in Midia, the church of Stathmolin, and the advowſon of the vicarage of Lillen; the church of Kilmeſſan, the church of Kilculy, the church of Delvene, the church of Killimethe, the church of the town which did belong to Reginald de Turbervile, the church of Kilcarwarn, the church of Dunboin, the church of Rathbegan, the church of Kilbray, and the church of Dumrath; and the land of Balibin, and the land which Gilbert the Corniſhman held in the honour of Raſhouthe: All which I have confirmed to be enjoyed by them for ever, with all the chapels of all the ſeveral churches and their appurtenances, and with all the lands and eccleſiaſtical benefices belonging to me in my land of Midia, or which ſhall hereafter belong; and I and my heirs will warrant the rights of thoſe patronages, with their chapels and appurtenances, unto the ſaid prior and canons, againſt all men and women whatſoever, &c.

Witneſſes, Robert de Turbervile, Walter, ſon of Alured; Philip de Coleville, Simon de Tyleſhop, &c. and many others.

NUMBER XXI.

The CHARTER of King EDWARD the Second, reciting and confirming the GRANTS and CONCESSIONS of WALTER DE LACY and others.

EDWARD, by the grace of God, king of England, lord of Ireland, and duke of Aquitain, to all archbiſhops, &c. We have inſpected a deed which Walter de Lacy, late lord of Midia, made to the canons of the firſt Lanthony in theſe words: To all faithful people who ſhall ſee or hear this preſent writing, Walter de Lacy, lord of Midia, ſendeth greeting in our Lord: Know ye, that I, by the influence of divine piety, have granted to the canons of the firſt Lanthony, that, according to ancient cuſtom, without my leave, or my heirs and ſucceſſors, it may be lawful to the ſaid canons, when their church ſhall happen to be void, to elect an orderly fit perſon out of their own body, or elſewhere, to prefer to be their paſtor, to be preſented to the biſhop of the dioceſe to receive confirmation from him; and I, nor any of my ſucceſſors, will intermeddle or diſturb any of their goods, lands or poſſeſſions, during the vacation, until ſuch time as their paſtor ſhall be elected; and that this liberty of election may remain unto them inviolable for ever, I have therefore to this writing ſet my ſeal.

We have alſo inſpected a deed which Walter de Lacy, ſon of Hugh de Lacy, made to the ſaid canons in theſe words: Know all men, preſent and future, that I Walter de Lacy, ſon of Hugh de Lacy, have given, granted, and by this preſent charter have confirmed, in pure and perpetual alms, to God and the bleſſed Mary, and to the church of St. John Baptiſt, of the firſt Lanthony, and to the canons ſerving God in that place, for the good of my own ſoul, and the ſoul of the Lady Margery, my wife, and the ſouls of my anceſtors and ſucceſſors, all the valley, with all its appurtenances in which the ſaid church is ſituated; to wit, on one ſide, by Kenen Taſſet and Aſhareſway, and by Ruggewey unto Anteſin, and on the ſide of Hateroll from the land of Seiſel, the ſon of Gilebert, by Ruggewey to the bounds of Talgargh, free and quit from all ſervices, cuſtoms and demands; and I grant that they may have all hunting and free warren within the bounds of their lands, and I do prohibit all perſons to enter into the ſaid bounds, to hunt, feed, or cut wood, without the leave and conſent of the ſaid canons; and if they ſhall chance to apprehend any one hunting, feeding, or cutting of wood, it ſhall be lawful to the ſaid canons and their men, to ſeize them and bring them before their own court, to be adjudged what ſatisfaction they ſhall make; and I will, that no ſteward, conſtable, bailiff, keeper or foreſter, ſervant, huntſman, or any other perſon's bailiff, paſſing through their lands, ſhall be entertained at the charge of the ſaid canons, or of their men, nor ſhall expect any proviſions of meat or drink from the ſaid canons or their men, but what ſhall be freely given unto them. I have granted to the ſaid canons and their men, that they ſhall have full common of paſture in Wrynen, and Haybot and Houſebot therein, and all other conveniencies which they or theirs can receive in the ſaid place, without the interruption, demand, or diſturbance of any; and I will, that no bailiff of mine, or of my heirs, under pretence of any forfeiture, ſhall make an entry into their lands; and I will, that the ſaid canons and their officers ſhall have common in my wood of Maſcoit for their ſwine, free and quiet from pannage and toll; and I will, that the ſaid canons and their men, ſhall be quit from all toll and demands throughout all my lands; and I will, that the ſaid canons and their men be quit from plowing, mowing, reaping, and all other cuſtoms and exactions in all places, and in all things; and I grant to the ſaid canons, that they ſhall enjoy all privileges, power, immunities, and liberties, in the land of Ewias, in as full manner as I do enjoy, or may enjoy, or any of my heirs may enjoy the ſame.

I will, and ſtraitly command, that the canons of the firſt Lanthony, ſhall hold all their tenements in the land of Ewias, whether lay-lands or church-lands, whether in their preſent poſſeſſion, or they ſhall obtain them hereafter by purchaſe, gift, or by any other title, peaceably, freely and quietly in all places and in all things; free from all pleas and plaints; from aids, horſe carriages, carts and carriages; from repairs of bridges or caſtles, from guarding our treaſure, and from all work; from tunnage and ſtallage, and from all ſummons, aſſizes and ſuper aſſizes, and from all fines and amerciaments, upon what occaſion ſoever, and from penalties for new plowing up wood grounds; and no foreſter ſhall intermeddle in any of the woods of the prior and canons of the firſt Lanthony, but they ſhall have as full power in their own woods, as I or my heirs have, or can have; and the ſaid prior and canons, and their men, and their goods, ſhall be free from all toll, exactions and demands, in all fairs, courts and markets, and in all places and things, throughout all the whole land of Ewias.

The ſaid prior and canons ſhall have juriſdiction of aſſaults, murthers and ſhedding of blood, and breach of peace, and treaſure found, and whatever belongs to our prerogative; no ſalaries or rewards upon any occaſion whatſoever ſhall be demanded of the ſaid canons, their lands or ſervants; and if demanded, they ſhall not be obliged to pay the ſame, but all things to them ſhall be free and quiet, and accountable only to the canons themſelves.

I grant that the ſaid prior and canons ſhall have all pleas of theft, manſlaughter, rapes and burnings, within their preſent poſſeſſions, or ſuch poſſeſſions they ſhall hereafter have within the land of Ewias, over all their own men, and over all ſtrangers which ſhall negotiate there, or ſhall be taken there, and the fact ſhall be found upon them, and all other pleas which can be tried in the court of Ewias; with trials of all thefts committed in their lands, or by perſons fled thither; and all amerciaments which ſhall ariſe on ſuch pleas, held before the ſaid canons or their bailiffs, ſhall be due to the ſaid canons; and I grant that they ſhall have a gallows to belong to their court of juſtice, and to do juſtice in what part of their lands they ſhall think fit.

I grant that the ſaid prior and canons ſhall enjoy all the aforeſaid liberties and free cuſtoms, as freely, quietly, peaceably and fully, as ever I or my anceſtors did moſt fully and freely enjoy the ſame; and I grant that they ſhall have as great privileges in the land of Ewias, as ever I or my ſucceſſors have, or can have, by grant of any king of England, or by any other; and I and my heirs will for ever warrant this grant and conceſſion to the ſaid canons, againſt all men and women whatſoever; and that this grant and conceſſion may for ever continue firm and inviolable, I have ſtrengthened and corroborated the ſame by ſetting my hand, and affixing my ſeal thereunto.

Witneſſes, the lord Simon de Clifford, the lord Walter de Baſkervyll, the lord Richard de Hampton, the lord Walter, Walter Condecot.

We therefore, all the gifts, grants and confirmations aforeſaid, and alſo the grant, &c. which John, the ſon of Reginald, by his deed deed made to the ſaid canons, of their peaceable depaſturing the horſes of the ſaid canons, thro' all the lands of the ſaid John in Wales, as well in foreſts and free chaſes, as in all other places, except in his park already incloſed, without any let or hinderance; with free egreſs and regreſs, to go and lead out their horſes, or to bring them back at their pleaſure; and alſo leave to go and take fiſhes in the meere, and to perform any other affairs as often, and when they ſhall think fit; and the releaſe and quit-claim which the ſaid John made by his deed to the ſaid canons, of the payment of certain money, or poultry, or any other thing which the ſaid canons were accuſtomed to pay unto the ſaid John, or to any of his predeceſſors, we, for us and our heirs, as much as in us lyes, do ratify and ſtrengthen the ſame, and do grant and confirm every part thereof unto our beloved in Chriſt the prior and canons of the place aforeſaid, in as full manner as their writings do reaſonably teſtify.

And moreover, altho' it be found by inquiſition, taken at our command by our beloved and faithful John de Breek, and John de Botiller of Lanlutwyt, and returned into our court of chancery, that the ſaid prior and canons, and their predeceſſors, have not made uſe of the ſaid liberties and quittances for ſome time paſt, we will however, in conſideration of a fine paid to us by the ſaid prior and canons, and out of our ſpecial favour to them, grant, for us and our heirs, as much as in us lyes, unto the ſaid prior and canons, that they and their ſucceſſors, ſhall for the time to come, uſe and enjoy all thoſe ſeveral liberties and quittances in the ſaid deeds contained, when, and as often as it ſhall ſeem expedient to them, without any let or hinderance from us or our ſucceſſors, &c.

Given under our hand at Langeley, on the 26th day of January, in the 18th year of our reign.

NUMBER XXII.

The BULL of Pope ALEXANDER the IIId, confirming divers Donations in NORMANDY and ENGLAND to the Priory of NEWENT.

TO all ſons of the holy mother the church: We, William, by divine permiſſion, biſhop of Lexonienſis, and we, abbats of Becce, Pratelle, Greſton and Cormeille, greeting in our Saviour: Know ye, that we have diligently inſpected the charter of privileges granted by Pope Alexander, of happy memory, correct and uncancelled, and no way prejudiced, in this form following:

Alexander, biſhop T , ſervant of the ſervants of God, to our beloved ſons, Robert, abbat of the monaſtery of Cormeille, and to the brethren of the ſame, as well preſent as future, who profeſs always a regular life, chuſing a religious life. It behoves you to have the apoſtolical aſſiſtance, that no perſon by a raſh attempt may endeavour to withdraw you from your good reſolution, or ſhall pervert you in the true religion, which God forbid; therefore, my beloved ſons in the Lord, we readily comply with your juſt requeſts, and we take the ſaid monaſtery in which you have vowed obedience to God under the protection of St. Peter, and our own protection, and do ſecure the ſame by the privileges granted by this preſent writing: Firſt, we ordain, that the monaſtical order in your monaſtery, inſtituted by God according to the rule of St. Benedict, be for ever ſtrictly obſerved: Moreover, whatever poſſeſſions, whatever goods the ſaid monaſtery do juſtly and canonically enjoy at preſent, or ſhall hereafter, by the grants of biſhops, the bounty of kings and princes, the free-will offering of the faithful, and by any other juſt means obtained, through the bleſſing of God, ſhall remain firm and undiminiſhed to you and your ſucceſſors; and we think fit to expreſs the ſame in more particular words, as followeth: the church of St. Peter, the church of Holy Croſs, the church of St. Silveſter, with all its appurtenances, the town of Cormeille, &c. In England, the manor of Noent, with all its appurtenances; to wit, five hides of land and the church, with all tithes, oblations, meadows, mills, and the woods of Iarcleſdune and of Tedeſwude, Cumpton, Linde, Eclam, and Meleſwit, with the mills and woods; Ligeſley, with all the new plowed grounds which belong to Nuentz; Stanling, and Boleſdon, with the chapel; the church of Tedinton, the chapel of Panteley, the church of Dimmock, with all its appurtenances and tithes, and the tithes of all the demeſnes, and one yard land in the ſame town; the church of Bekeford, with the chapels and tithes, and other appurtenances; the tithes of all the demeſnes in the improved and in the new plowed grounds, and half an hide of land; the church of Aſton, with the chapels and all its appurtenances, and one yard land, and the tithes of the demeſnes; in Toniton, all the tithes of the demeſnes in all things, and one yard land in the ſame town; in Compton, all the tithes of the demeſnes, and one yard land; ſeventy-five ſhillings rent in Glouceſter, and forty ſhillings in Dimmock.

Dated at Benevent the 26th day of April, in the year 1168, and in the 10th year of the pontificate of pope Alexander the IIId.

We therefore, at the inſtance of thoſe religious perſons, the abbat and convent of Cormeille, have hereunto cauſed our ſeals to be fixed.

Given in the year 1242, on the ſecond day of the month November.

NUMBER XXIII.

The CHARTER of King HENRY the IId, confirming the Grant of the Manor of NEWENT, and divers other Lands and Churches in the Counties of GLOUCESTER, HEREFORD, WORCESTER, MONMOUTH, SOUTHAMPTON, &c. within this Kingdom of ENGLAND.

HENRY, king of England, and duke of Normandy and Aquitaine, and earl of Anjou, to our juſtices and ſheriffs, and barons, and all our officers throughout England, greeting: Know ye, that we have given and granted to God and St. Mary of Cormeille, and to the abbat and monks ſerving God in that place, the churches, lands, alms, tithes, and all other their tenements, to hold them as beneficially and peaceably, as juſtly, honourably and quietly, as they ever held them in the reign of king Henry, my grandfather; and particularly all the manor of Newent, with all its appurtenances; to wit, five hides of land, and the church, with all the tithes, oblations, meadows, mills, and the woods of Iarcleſdune, and of Tedeſwude, Compton, Lind, Eacle, and Melſwiche, with the mill and meadows; and Onghelie, with all the new plowed grounds belonging to Newent and Stanling; and Buledune, with its chapel; and the church of Tedington, with the chapel of Pantley; the church of Dimmock, with all its appurtenances, and the tithes, and the tithes of the Demeſnes, and one yard land in the ſame town; the church of Beckford, with all its appurtenances, with its tithes and chapels; and all the tithes of the demeſnes in the improved grounds, and in the new plowed grounds, and half an hide of land; the church of Aſton, with all its tithes and chapels, and appurtenances, and one yard land, and all the tithes of the demeſnes; all the tithes of the demeſnes of Tockington, with all other things, and one yard land in the ſame town; all the tithes of the demeſnes of Compton, and one yard land; and all the tithes of the demeſnes of Cadybroke, and all the tithes of the demeſnes of Eure; all the tithes of the demeſnes of Alkſton, and all the town of Kingſton, with all its appurtenances; to wit, with two hides of land and a chapel in the ſame town; the tithes of the demeſnes of Weſtkingſton, and one yard land; the church of Mawrdy, with all the tithes and appurtenances, and all the tithes of the demeſnes, and one yard land; and the church of Kingſton, with all its tithes and appurtenances, and chapels and oblations, and all the tithes of the demeſnes, and one yard land; all the tithes of the demeſnes at Pioney, and one yard land; and the church of Suckley, with all the chapels, tithes and appurtenances, and all the tithes of the demeſnes, and one yard land; the church of Merley, with all the chapels and tithes, and appurtenances, and three yard lands, and all the tithes of the demeſnes; our right in the ſalt pits at Wich; all the tithes of the demeſnes at Hollway, and one yard land; all the tithes of the demeſnes at Sidham, and half an hide of land; all the tithes of the demeſnes at Reinham, and one yard land; all the tithes of the demeſnes at Turkiſton, and half an hide of land and a meadow; the church of Lidiar, with all the tithes and appurtenances, and half the tithe of the demeſnes and a meadow; the church of Kandel, with all the tithes and appurtenances, and all the tithes of the demeſnes, and two yard lands; the tithe of the rents in the town of Monmouth, and of Troy, and of Cumcarvan; and half the tithes of the demeſnes of Newvill, and half the tithes of the demeſnes of Richard, ſon of earl Gilbert, lying between Uſk and Wye, in woods and in plains; of fiſheries and of honey; of pannage, that is, the benefit of maſts in the wood; and pleas, that is, of profits of courts; the fourth part of the tithes of Strigule, and one bleſſaga at the ſaid manor of Newent, and coal in the wood of Eædulveſhelle, to plow it up, if it be not within our foreſt; the church of Strigule, with the chapels, and all tithes and rents, and appurtenances, and 12l. which are paid into our exchequer out of the town of Hereford, and 9l. 10s. paid at Southampton; in which town the monks and the men of their demeſnes, and of their houſe, are free from paying any cuſtoms; ſeventy-five ſhillings paid out of the tithes of Suckley and Merley, and forty ſhillings paid at Glouceſter and Dimmock.

Witneſs, R. earl of Cornwall, at Weſtminſter.

NUM-

NUMBER XXIV.

The Confirmation of the Gifts to the Priory of STANLEY, in the County of GLOUCESTER, by THEOBALD, Archbiſhop of CANTERBURY.

THEOBALD, by the grace of God, archbiſhop of Canterbury, primate of England, and legate of the apoſtolical ſee, to his venerable brother and friend, Simon, biſhop of Worceſter, and to our beloved in the Lord, all the ſons of holy mother the church, health and bleſſing: We, out of a due regard to the peace and welfare of the church, do, out of a pious good will, grant and confirm by our authority, all thoſe things which the churches have acquired by the bounty of good princes, or by any other juſtifiable means; and underſtanding therefore that the church of Eſton, and the church of Erlingeham, and the church of Comberley, and the church of Oſleworde, and the church of Cam, with all their appurtenances, and one prebend which belonged to Bernard the chaplain in Berkeley, and all the eleemoſynary dues which the ſaid Bernard held of the church of St. Leonard, in Berchelai Herneſſe, and which were ſome time ago rightly given to Sabriethus the prior and canons of Stanley; and having a fuller knowledge of this matter by an atteſtation from royal charters, and from the writing deeds of our beloved ſon, Roger de Berkeley, patron of the ſaid church, we do grant the full ſanction of our authority for the church of Stanley St. Leonard, to have poſſeſſion of theſe ſame churches; and we do hereby, by means of this preſent writing, confirm the aforeſaid churches to the church of Stanley for ever. Farewell.

NUMBER XXV.

An INSPEXIMUS, reciting and confirming the Charters of ſeveral Kings of England to the Abbey of TEWKSBURY.

THE king to all archbiſhops, &c. health: We have inſpected the charter which William of famous memory, heretofore king of England, our progenitor, had granted to the church of St. Mary of Tewkſbury, in theſe words: I William, king of the Engliſhmen, do grant for ever unto the monaſtery of St. Mary of Tewkſbury, theſe particulars following, which Robert Fitz-Hamon and his tenants did give; to wit, his fiſhing, with the royalty of the river, the mills, and a meadow with the tithe, and a meadow near the paſture grounds by the fiſhery, and the meadow of Edmondſhall, and the meadow of Selden, and the land of Roger of the Vineyard, and the churches of Walis, with the lands, tithes, rents, and all other things; and one beid, with a fiſhery, as the iſland divides the beid, and a meadow adjoining to the beid; and the tithes of colts, and of the ſkins of veniſon, and all manor courts, with full privileges throughout all the lands of St. Mary, and the common of Tewkſbury, for all cattle which ſhall be kept in the demeſnes.

Witneſſes. William, the chancellor; Robert Fitz-Hamon, Roger Fitz Gerard, and Walter Giffard.

We have alſo inſpected the charter of Henry, of pious memory, heretofore king of the Engliſhmen, our progenitor, granted to the bleſſed Mary of Tewkſbury, in theſe words: In the name of the Holy Trinity, be it known to all good people preſent and to come, that I Hairic, by the grace of God, king of the Engliſhmen, at Marlborough, in the year of our Lord 1100, do grant, and for ever confirm, theſe underwritten things and lands to the church of the bleſſed Mary of Tewkſbury, which Robert Fitz-Hamon and other my great men have given to the ſaid church; to wit, Gingeſton and Stanley, and one hide at Mildelland, and two hides at Bermerton, one at Berchelai, a fiſhery at Tewkſbury, and the meadow adjoining to it; and the mills, and the church of Walis, and the tithes and church of Fairford, and the church of Ceteſly, and the tithes of Denely, and the tithes of Chenucey, and half an hide at Alureton, and the tithes of Ceotol, which Robert de la Haye gave to the ſaid church, and all the churches of his demeſnes, and a fiſhery in Walis and Amney, which Winebald de Balaon gave to that church, with the king's leave, and the land of Robert the ſon of Werton, which he gave to the ſaid church.

Signed Henry, king, with a croſs before his name, and with croſſes for the names of all the witneſſes.

Hugh Earle, Robert de Belaime, William de Moriam, Roger de Poictivin, Heanric de Warwick, William the chancellor, Edward, William de Wrievvaſt, Eodorunus the ſteward, Robert Fitz-Hamon, and Hamon his brother, William de Albegni, Miles Criſpin, Hugh de Belcamp, Roger de Nuvant, Nigell de Moneville, Roger le Bigod, Robert Malet, Hugh Maminot.

We have alſo inſpected another charter which the ſaid king Henry granted to the ſaid church, in theſe words: In the name of the holy and undivided trinity, to all the ſons and lovers of the catholick church, king Henry ſendeth health: Be it known unto you all, that I Henry, by the grace of God king of the Engliſhmen, for ever have granted and freely confirmed to the church of Mary, the holy mother of God, and always virgin, in the year 1106, at Wincheſter, all things hereunder written, which Robert Fitz-Hamon and many others have given, or which the abbat hath purchaſed; and this I do for the good of my ſoul, and of the ſouls of my father and mother, and of my anceſtors; to wit, the land of Byrnete one hide, and land in Bulling-Hope, and in Rerevalls, and one hide at Amney, which did belong to Humphry the cook; two hides at Purbike, and one hide with two tithings of Alfrede de Nicholas, and one hide in Pamington, and one yard land in Aſton, and the church of St. Peter of Brigſton, and the tithes of the rents of Brigſton, and the churches which did belong to Robert the chaplain, with the lands and tithes thereof; thoſe churches are thus ſeverally named, as followeth; one church in London called Semanneſkirk, the church of Merlane, the church of Hamelden, the church of Aſcenten, the church of Marſhfield, the church of Sodbury, the church of Thornbury, the church of Pentric, the church of Eſſemere, the church of Frome, the church of Lapaford, the church of Wincheley, the church of Eduſley, the church of Sut-Molton, the church of Citelmenton, the church of Bideford, the church of Liteham, the church of Chilthenton: And I, king Henry, did give unto the church one vill, which held of the honour belonging to Robert Fitz-Hamon; I gave it after his death for the good of his ſoul; the vill is called Ferthelmenton; one fiſhery in Tewkſbury, with the royalty of the water of the fiſhery, as far as the land of the town doth go, and one water mill; a meadow, with the tithe of the meadows; one meadow out of the common, the meadow of Eadmundeſſelle, the meadow of Selden, and common of paſture in all places within Tewkſbury for the cattle feeding on the demeſnes; the land of Roger of the Vineyard, and the new plowed ground of North Haye, ſoc and ſac, toll and tein, in all the lands of the church; the court houſe, with the houſes near the church, which Robert Fitz-Hamon gave to the church in the town of Tewkſbury; one haye given by Godwin, two hayes given by Eglaf, and a ſmall parcel of land given by Godwin the baker, lying near Suthmeade; and in Malverne wood whatſoever is neceſſary for the uſe of the church, and quiet paſturage for ſwine in the ſame wood; alſo Kingſton, Stanley, Mildeland, Bermerton, Berthele, Wodecheſande; half an hide in Hamme; one yard land in Alangeford; the church of Fairford; the church of Ceteſley; the tithes of Heytrodobery, the tithe of Chenuke, the tithe of Tarente; the church of Umberley, the church of Bikenton, Amney, Wertone, Chetel; with an hide in Aiulſi; with the land of Walter; two houſes in Bureford, of the gift of Radulph the prieſt; one yard land in Biſley, of the gift of Sybill; one hide of land in Oxendon, bought of Godric Dydicot, in exchange made by Alexander; thirty-two ſolidatas of land by the year, lying in a village called Aiſe in Somerſetſhire, which Gilbert de Umphrevil gave for the good of his wife's ſoul; two hides and a yard land in Aſcenton, given by Robert the ſon of Nigell; in Wales, the pariſh church of St. Mary of the town of Cardiffe, with one Plow's tillage; the chapel in the caſtle of Cardiffe, with one plow's tillage, and the tithes of all the rents of the demeſnes of the town of Cardiffe; the tithes of all the demeſnes which Robert the ſon of Fitz-Hamon held in Wales; the tithes of all the barons holding of Robert Fitz-Hamon throughout all Wales; all that branch of water of Taff which is near the church, from the iſſuing out of Taff till it goes into Taff again, to make fiſh-ponds therewith, or any other conveniencies for the church; and the meadow on the other ſide of the water near the church; the village called Landoho; the land given by Walter de Landbethien; the tithes of the land which the abbat of Glouceſter hath in Landcarven; the church of Landhiltunit; the land which Wakelyn gave; the water mill at Raz, and the fiſheries which Robert de Hay gave; the land which Robert the ſon of Nigel gave; the church of Newcaſtle; all theſe have been confirmed by me, and my barons with me; ſigned with a croſs by the ſeveral perſons following:

King Henry; Walter, the chancellor; Gerard, the archbiſhop; Robert, biſhop of Nicholo; Sampſon, biſhop of Worceſter; Hugh, the abbat; Humphry de Bohun; Haymon, the ſteward; Robert, earl of Mellent; the abbat of Glaſtenbury; Robert, ſon of Nigell; the abbat Germund; the abbat Pharis; Roger, biſhop of Saliſbury; Thomas, the chaplain; William, biſhop of Exeter; and the abbat Nigell.

We have alſo inſpected the charter which the ſame king Henry made to St. Mary, and to the monks of Tewkſbury, in theſe words: Henry, by the grace of God king of England and duke of Normandy, to all archbiſhops, biſhops, earls, barons, juſtices, ſheriffs, and all our officers, health: Know ye, that I, in honour of God, and of the holy Mary, mother of God, and for the good of my ſoul, and the ſouls of king William my father, and of king king William my brother, and of queen Maud my mother, and of queen Maud my wife, and of the ſouls of all my anceſtors, and for the good of the ſoul of Robert Fitz-Hamon, have granted and confirmed to St. Mary, and to the abbat and monks of Tewkſbury, all their poſſeſſions in churches and tithes, in lands and waters, in mills and fiſheries, in paſtures and woods, and in all other things, to hold to them in perpetual almonage, as free and diſcharged as Robert Fitz Hamon held the ſame, who founded the ſame church, and as they were when in the demeſne of king William my father, or queen Maud my mother, from all payments to the ſhires or hundreds, from all taxes or dane money, and from all cuſtoms and other pretenſions.

Witneſſes. Roger, biſhop of Saliſbury; Robert, biſhop of Lincoln; Robert, earl of Mellent; Robert, earl of Glouceſter; Brience, ſon of earl Hamo, ſteward of the houſhold; Walter of Glouceſter, at Wincheſter.

We have alſo inſpected the charter which the ſame king Henry granted to St. Mary of Tewkſbury in theſe words: Henry, king of the Engliſhmen, to all archbiſhops, biſhops, juſtices, earls, barons, ſheriffs, and all other officers of the reſpective places wherein the abbat of Tewkſbury has any lands, ſends greeting: Know ye, that I have granted and confirmed to St. Mary of Tewksbury theſe following particulars in perpetual almonage, freely and quietly, for the good of my ſoul, and the ſouls of my father and mother, and of all my anceſtors, the church of Chedeſley, the church of Lethe, the tithes of Chaldewel and Fifhide, the tithes of Sutton, the tithes of Bacheberge, the tithes of Weſton, given by Robert de Baſkerville, the tithes of Hareſfelde, the tithes of Mucheleſberge; the land called Lancadel, which Walchelin gave to the church; the land in Didicot, which the church had by exchange from Alexander de Cormeille; the land in Polton, which Adaliza de Liſle gave to the ſame church, for the good of the ſoul of Reginald de Dunſtanville her huſband; two hides in Porbec, of the fee of Robert de Claville; and I farther will and command, that all poſſeſſions of St. Mary of Tewkſbury be free and diſcharged from all pleas and taxes, and all other charges, as when they were the demeſnes of Robert Fitz-Hamon, and as they are now the demeſnes of Robert my ſon.

Witneſſes. Ranulph, the chancellor; and Hamon, the ſteward, at Burnam.

We have alſo inſpected the charter which Henry of pious memory, king of England, our great grandfather, granted unto the ſaid monks, in theſe words: Henry, king of England, and duke of Normandy and Aquitaine, earl of Anjou, to our juſtices, ſheriffs, barons, and other officers, and all his good people throughout England and Wales, ſend greeting: Know ye, that I have granted to the monks of Tewkſbury, that they may freely and quietly buy and ſell all manner of things neceſſary for themſelves throughout all England and Wales; and I forbid all perſons from giving any diſturbance to them under the penalty of 10l.

Witneſs. Humphry de Bohun, at Glouceſter.

We therefore intending to ſtrengthen and make good the ſeveral gifts, grants and confirmations aboveſaid, to our well beloved in Chriſt, the abbat and convent of the place aboveſaid, and to their ſucceſſors, do, for us and our heirs, as much as in us lies, grant and confirm all things in the ſeveral charters ſpecified.

Witneſſes. The venerable fathers, A. biſhop of Durham; John, biſhop of Carliſle; William, biſhop of Coventry and Litchfield; John de Warren, earl of Surrey; Thomas, earl of Lancaſter; Henry de Lacy, earl of Lincoln; John de Haſtinges; John de Segrave; Hugh le Diſpencer, and others.

Given under our hand at Carliſle, the firſt day of July, by a fine levied in the exchequer.

NUMBER XXVI.

The CHARTER of the Town and Borough of TEWKSBURY.

WILLIAM the IIId, by the grace of God of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, king, defender of the faith, &c. to all to whom theſe letters patents ſhall come, greeting: Whereas our great grandfather, James the Firſt, late king of England, &c. by his letters patents under his great ſeal of England, bearing date the 23d day of March, in the year of his reign of England, France and Ireland, the ſeventh, reciting: That whereas our ſovereign lady Elizabeth, late queen of England, by her letters patents ſealed with her great ſeal of England, bearing dare at Gorhambury, the 4th day of April, in the 17th year of her reign, amongſt other things had willed, ordained, conſtituted, granted and declared, that the town of Tewkſbury, in her county of Glouceſter, and the whole fee called the abbey fee in Tewkſbury aforeſaid, and alſo the whole manor and liberty of the late abbey, or late diſſolved monaſtery of Tewksbury, called the abbey fee, parcel of the poſſeſſions of the late monaſtery ſhould be and are a free borough, incorporated in deed, fact and name, for ever, of two bailiffs, and of burgeſſes and commonalty of the ſaid town or borough of Tewksbury, by the name of the bailiffs, burgeſſes and commonalty of the borough of Tewksbury, in the county of Glouceſter; and that the bailiffs, burgeſſes and commonalty of the ſame borough for the time being, and their ſucceſſors, be and ſhould be one body corporate and politick, and one perpetual community in deed and name, and ſhould have perpetual ſucceſſion; and them the ſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes, one body corporate and politick, really and to the full had created, erected, ordained, declared and incorporated by the ſame letters patents, as by the ſame letters patents, amongſt other things, may more fully appear.

And alſo reciting, that whereas the ſaid James the Firſt, late king of England, &c. by his letters patents, ſealed with his great ſeal of England, bearing date at Weſtminſter, the 18th day of October, in the year of his reign of England, France and Ireland, the 3d, and of Scotland the 39th (amongſt other things) had willed, granted, ordained, conſtituted and declared, that the borough of Tewksbury aforeſaid, ſhould be, and remain for ever hereafter, a free borough of itſelf; and that the bailiffs, burgeſſes, and commonalty of the borough of Tewksbury thereafter for ever, be, and ſhould be one body corporate and politick, in deed, fact and name, by the name of the bailiffs, burgeſſes, and commonalty of the borough of Tewksbury, in the county of Glouceſter; and them, by the name of the bailiffs, burgeſſes, and commonalty of the borough of Tewksbury, in the county of Glouceſter, one body corporate and politick, really and to the full, for himſelf, his heirs and ſucceſſors, had erected, made, ordained and created, by his ſaid letters patents; and that, by the ſame name, they ſhould have perpetual ſucceſſion, as by his ſaid letters patents (amongſt other things) in like manner more fully may appear.

And alſo reciting, that whereas his beloved and faithful ſubjects, the bailiffs, burgeſſes, and commonalty of the borough of Tewksbury aforeſaid, in the ſaid county of Glouceſter, had purchaſed of him the ſaid king, for a great ſum of money, his whole manor and borough of Tewksbury in the county of Glouceſter, and his divers meſſuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments in Tewksbury, in the ſaid county of Glouceſter, late parcel of the poſſeſſions of the late monaſtery of Tewksbury, and the manor of Tewksbury in the ſaid county of Glouceſter, and his hundred of Tewksbury in the ſaid counties of Glouceſter and Worceſter, or in one of them; and divers meſſuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments there, late parcel of the lands of Thomas late lord Seymour of Sudely, attainted; and alſo the manor and borough of Tewksbury, in the ſaid county of Glouceſter, and divers meſſuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments there, late parcel of the lands called Warwick's and Spencer's lands; as well for and in conſideration of the purchaſe aforeſaid, as for divers other good cauſes and conſiderations, him to the ſame preſents eſpecially moving, for the better rule, government and improvement of the borough of Tewksbury aforeſaid, of his ſpecial grace, and of his certain knowledge and mere motion, had willed, granted, conſtituted ordained and declared, for himſelf, his heirs and ſucceſſors, that the ſaid manor and borough of Tewksbury in the county of Glouceſter, and the other hereditaments aforeſaid, late parcel of the lands of the late monaſtery of Tewkſbury, and the aforeſaid manor of Tewkſbury in the ſaid county of Glouceſter, and the aforeſaid hundred and liberty of Tewksbury, in the ſaid counties of Glouceſter and Worceſter, or in one of them, and the other hereditaments aforeſaid, late parcel of Thomas late lord Seymour of Sudely, attaint, and alſo the aforeſaid manor and borough of Tewkſbury in the ſaid county of Glouceſter, and other the hereditaments aforeſaid, late parcel of the lands called Warwick's and Spencer's lands, be and ſhould be, and reputed to be, part and parcel of the incorporation of the town and borough of Tewkſbury aforementioned; and the aforeſaid town of Tewkſbury in the county of Glouceſter, and all that fee called the abbey fee in Tewkſbury aforeſaid; and alſo all that manor and liberty of the late abbey, or late diſſolved monaſtery of Tewkſbury, called the abbey fee, parcel of the poſſeſſions of the late monaſtery; and all that manor and borough of Tewksbury, parcel of the poſſeſſions of the late monaſtery; and all that manor of Tewkſbury in the ſaid county of Glouceſter; and all that hundred and liberty of Tewkſbury, in the counties of Glouceſter and Worceſter, or in one of them, parcel of lands of Thomas late lord Seymour of Sudely, attaint; alſo all that manor and borough of Tewkſbury, parcel of the lands called Warwick's and Spencer's lands; and all other meſſuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments as aforeſaid, of him purchaſed, to be one intire free borough corporate, in deed, fact and name, from thence for ever had, ordained, created and incorporated by his ſaid letters patents; and alſo had given and granted to them the ſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes, and commonalty of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, divers liberties, powers, privileges, authorities, rities, and other things, as by the ſaid letters patents, bearing date the twenty third day of March, in the ſeventh year of the reign of the ſaid late king James the firſt, more fully may appear:

And whereas the bailiffs, burgeſſes and commonalty of our borough of Tewkſbury aforeſaid, have ſurrendered the charter or letters patents, bearing date the ſaid twenty third day of March, in the ſeventh year of the reign of the ſaid late king James the firſt, to them or their anceſtors formerly granted; and all the liberties, privileges, emoluments and advantages, by the ſame charter, or by any former or other charters or letters patents to them granted, to James the ſecond, late king of England, by their writing, ſealed with their common ſeal, bearing date the twenty fourth day of March, in the firſt year of the reign of the ſaid late king James the ſecond, and duly inrolled in our court of chancery:

And whereas the aforeſaid James the ſecond, late king of England, by his letters patents under his great ſeal of England made, bearing date the twelfth day of March, in the ſecond year of his reign, did will, conſtitute and declare, that the ſaid town of Tewkſbury, in the ſaid county of Glouceſter, and the other meſſuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments in the ſame letters patents mentioned, be, and ſhould be a free borough of itſelf; and the burgeſſes and inhabitants of the ſame borough be, and ſhould be one body corporate and politick, in deed, fact and name, by the name of the mayor, aldermen, and common council of the borough of Tewkſbury, in the county of Glouceſter; and granted to them divers liberties, franchiſes, powers, and other things:

And whereas no election of mayor, aldermen, or perſons of the common council of the borough aforeſaid, or of any officer in or for the borough aforeſaid, nor any government in the ſame borough, according to the form and effect of the ſame letters patents of James the ſecond, or of any other charter of incorporation of the borough aforeſaid, for divers years laſt paſt have been had or executed, or is now executed, as we are informed; by reaſon of which, all acts of government and adminiſtration of juſtice in the ſame borough (as a body corporate) have totally ceaſed, and as yet do ceaſe, to the great prejudice of our ſubjects inhabiting there:

And whereas the burgeſſes of the ſame borough have humbly beſought us, and our late moſt dear conſort Mary, late queen of England, &c. to grant to them our royal charter, and to reſtore and confirm to them ſuch liberties and privileges as they had and enjoyed at the time of the ſurrender aforeſaid: We therefore, being willing that from henceforth for ever there be had in the borough aforeſaid, a certain and undoudted manner of and for the keeping of the peace, and for the good rule and government of our people there, and others coming thither; and that our peace in future times may be kept inviolated there, and that other acts of juſtice and good rule within the borough aforeſaid, may be rightly adminiſtered and executed, to the terror of the wicked, and the reward of the good.

And we being alſo willing that the b.rgeſſes and inhabitants of the borough aforeſaid, for ever hereafter, may have and uſe the ancient liberties, franchiſes, privileges and prebeminences, from the burgeſſes and inhabitants of the borough aforeſaid, before this uſed and enjoyed, together with our fuller grants for the better conſervation of the peace in the borough aforeſaid, and government and rule of our people there: Know ye, that we of our ſpecial grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, have willed, granted, conſtituted, ordained and declared, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do will, grant, conſtitute, ordain and declare, that the ſaid manor and borough of Tewkſbury, in the county of Glouceſter, and the other hereditaments aforeſaid, late parcel of lands of the late monaſtery of Tewkſbury; and the aforeſaid manor of Tewkſbury, in the ſaid county of Glouceſter; and the aforeſaid hundred and liberty of Tewkſbury, in the counties of Glouceſter and Worceſter, and in either of them; and the other hereditaments aforeſaid, late parcel of lands of Thomas late lord Seymour of Sudely, attaint; and alſo the aforeſaid manor and borough of Tewkſbury, in the ſaid county of Glouceſter; and other the hereditaments aforeſaid, late parcel of lands called Warwick's and Spencer's lands; be, and ſhall be, and reputed to be part and parcel of the incorporation of the town and borough of Tewkſbury beforementioned; and the aforeſaid town of Tewkſbury, in the county of Glouceſter; and the whole fee called the abbey fee, in Tewkeſbury aforeſaid; and alſo the whole manor and liberty of the late abbey or monaſtery of Tewkſbury lately diſſolved, called the abbey fee; parcel of the poſſeſſion of the ſaid late monaſtery, and whole manor and borough of Tewkſbury, part of the poſſeſſions of the ſaid late monaſtery; and whole manor of Tewkſbury, in the ſaid county of Glouceſter; and the whole hundred and liberty of Tewksbury, in the counties of Glouceſter and Worceſter, and in either of them, parcel of lands of Thomas late lord Seymour of Sudely, attaint; and alſo all that manor and borough of Tewksbury, parcel of lands called Warwick's and Spencer's lands; and all other meſſuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments, as aforeſaid purchaſed; we do ordain, create and incorporate by theſe preſents, one entire free borough corporate, in fact, deed and name, henceforth for ever.

And that the burgeſſes and inhabitants of the ſame borough of Tewkſbury, for the future and for ever, are, and ſhall be one body corporate and politick in fact, deed and name, by the name of bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough of Tewkſbury, in the county of Glouceſter; and them by the name of bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough of Tewkſbury, in the county of Glouceſter, one body corporate and politick, really and fully, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, we erect, make, ordain and create by theſe preſents; and that by the ſame name they may have a perpetual ſucceſſion. And that they and their ſucceſſors, by the name of bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough of Tewksbury, in the county of Glouceſter, may and ſhall be, perpetually for the future, perſons fit and capable in the law, to have, demand, receive and poſſeſs lands, tenements, liberties, franchiſes, juriſdictions and hereditaments, to them and their ſucceſſors, in fee and perpetuity, or for term of life or lives, year or years, or otherwiſe howſoever; and alſo goods and chattles, and all other things of whatſoever ſort, nature, kind or quality they ſhall be; and to give, grant, demiſe and aſſign the ſame lands, tenements and hereditaments, goods and chattles, and other deeds and things whatſoever, or any parcel thereof; and all other things do and perform by the name aforeſaid: and that by the ſame name of bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of Tewksbury, in the county of Glouceſter, they may and can plead and be impleaded, anſwer and be anſwered, defend and be defended, in all courts and places whatſoever, and before us, our heirs and ſucceſſors; and all judges and juſtices, and other perſons and officers whatſoever, of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, in all and ſingular actions, pleas, ſuits, complaints, cauſes, matters and demands whatſoever, of whatſoever ſort, nature or kind, in the ſame manner and form as any other of our ſubjects of our kingdom of England, perſons fit and capable in the law, or any other body corporate and politick, within this our kingdom of England, may, and can have, receive, purchaſe, poſſeſs, give, grant, demiſe, aſſign or diſpoſe, and plead and be impleaded, anſwer and be anſwered, defend and be defended, do or perform.

And we further will, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do give, grant, reſtore and confirm to the ſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough of Tewksbury aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, full power and authority to execute, enjoy and exerciſe ſo many, ſo much, ſuch, the ſame, of the ſame kind, all, all manner, and the like cuſtoms, liberties, privileges, franchiſes, immunities, acquittances, fines, amercements, exemption of goals, merchandiſing, tolls, cuſtom, and all other rights and juriſdictions whatſoever, within the ſaid town of Tewksbury, in the county of Glouceſter; and within the whole fee, called the abbey fee, in Tewksbury aforeſaid; and within the whole manor and liberties of the late abbey or monaſtery of Tewksbury, lately diſſolved, called the abbey fee, parcel of the poſſeſſion of the ſaid late monaſtery; and within the whole manor and borough of Tewksbury, parcel of the poſſeſſion of the ſaid late monaſtery; and within the whole manor of Tewksbury, in the ſaid county of Glouceſter; and the whole hundred and liberty of Tewksbury, in the ſaid counties of Glouceſter and Worceſter, and in either of them, parcel of lands of Thomas late lord Seymour of Sudely, attaint; and alſo within the whole manor and borough of Tewksbury, parcel of lands called Warwick's and Spencer's lands; and alſo within all and ſingular meſſuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments, as aforeſaid, before purchaſed; and within every and either of them, and part and parcel of each of them, as many, as much, ſuch, and which the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, or their predeceſſors, or any of them, by whatſoever names, or by whatſoever name, or by whatſoever incorporation, or pretence of any incorporation (at or before the time of the ſurrender aforeſaid) lawfully had, poſſeſſed or enjoyed, or ought to have, poſſeſs, uſe or enjoy, within the borough, town, hundred, manor, tenements, liberties and places aforeſaid.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do give and grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and to their ſucceſſors, free liberty, power and authority, and that it well may and ſhall be lawful for the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, to perambulate and make perambulation or perambulations thereof, and to erect and put bounds and limits there, or in the outward parts thereof, or any part of it, for to have true and better knowledge thereof, as often as it ſhall pleaſe them, or ſhall ſeem neceſſary to them; and this without any writ, or other warrant therefore from us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, in this part howſoever to be requeſted or proſecuted.

We will alſo, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant and ordain, that from henceforth for the future, there are and ſhall be in the borough aforeſaid, two of the burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, in manner below in theſe preſents named, named, to be choſen and named, who ſhall be, and ſhall be nominated bailiffs of the ſame borough; and for the better execution of our grant in this part, we have aſſigned, nominated, appointed and made, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do aſſign, nominate, appoint and make our beloved Joſeph Jones and Henry Dobbins, gent. to be the firſt and modern bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid; willing that they the ſame Joſeph Jones and Henry Dobbins ſhall be, and continue in the offices of bailiffs in the ſame borough, from the date of theſe preſents, until and in the ſecond Thurſday in the month of October next to come, and from the ſame day until two other of the burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid ſhall be elected, appointed, and ſworn to the office of bailiffs aforeſaid, at the time, in the manner and form in theſe preſents here under mentioned, if the ſame Joſeph Jones and Henry Dobbins, or either of them ſhall ſo long live. And we will alſo, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant and ordain, that from henceforth for ever, there may and ſhall be in the borough aforeſaid, four and twenty men, of the better, honeſter, and more diſcreet burgeſſes of the ſame borough, who ſhall be, and perpetually called principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid; which principal burgeſſes, together with the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, may, and ſhall be, and for ever hereafter ſhall be called the common council of the borough aforeſaid, for all things, matters, cauſes and buſineſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and the good rule, ſtate and government of the ſame borough, touching or concerning; and they may, and ſhall be from time to time aſſiſtant and helping to the ſaid bailiffs, for that time being, in all things, matters, cauſes and buſineſſes relating to the ſame borough.

And we farther have aſſigned, nominated, appointed and made, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do aſſign, nominate, appoint and make our beloved Robert Tracy, eſq; Richard Dowdeſwell, eſq; Henry Collet, jun. eſq; Charles Wynde, the aforeſaid Joſeph Jones, Nicholas Streight, Theophilus Holland, William Streight, Henry Peyton, Nicholas Wrenford, William Wilſon, John Mann, Abraham Farren, Samuel Hawling, Robert Porter, the aforeſaid Henry Dobbins, William Jones, Francis Leight, John Jeynes, Thomas Warkeman, William Merrett, Thomas Hale, merchant, Thomas Bartholomew, and Daniel Kemble, gent. to be the chief and modern four and twenty principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, to be continued in the ſame offices and places as long as they ſhall behave themſelves well; which indeed principal burgeſſes, and every of them before named, and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, for himſelf or themſelves ill behaving, we will to be moveable at the good pleaſure of the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes, being common council of the borough aforeſaid, or the greater part of them, either of which bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, we will to be one.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and to their ſucceſſors, that whenſoever it ſhall happen that either or any of the four and twenty principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, do die, or be removed from their office as aforeſaid, that then and ſo often, it may and ſhall be well and lawful for the aforeſaid bailiffs, and principal burgeſſes, being a common council of the borough aforeſaid, or for the greater part of them, (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for that time being, we will to be one) one other, or more of the burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, into the place or places of a principal burgeſs, or thoſe principal burgeſſes ſo dead, or removed from his or their office or offices, to elect, nominate and appoint, to ſupply the aforeſaid number of four and twenty principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid; and that he or they ſo elected and appointed as aforeſaid, may have and exerciſe that office or offices as long as he or they ſhall behave himſelf or themſelves well in the ſame office or offices, a corporal oath before the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes, being common council of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid we will to be one) of that office, in all things touching that office, rightly well and faithfully to execute) being firſt performed.

And farther, of our more abundant ſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and meer motion, have willed, ordained and granted, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do will, ordain, and grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that from henceforth for ever there be, and ſhall be within the borough aforeſaid, four and twenty other men, honeſt and diſcreet, of the ſame borough, who ſhall be, and be named aſſiſtants of the ſame borough, which indeed four and twenty aſſiſtants may, and ſhall be from time to time aſſiſting and helping to the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, and to the aforeſaid four and twenty principal burgeſſes, for the good rule, ſtate, and government of the borough aforeſaid, in all things, cauſes, matters and buſineſſes touching the ſame borough.

And we have aſſigned, nominated, created, appointed and made, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do aſſign, nominate, create, appoint, and make our beloved Joſeph Sheene, Stephen Millington, Iſaac Merret, Robert Wilkins, John Reeks, Robert Morris, George Moore, William Heyward, Edward Leight, John Farren, Ralph Jeynes of the Barton ſtreet, Matthew Maid, Thomas Nutt, Edward Phelps, Samuel Dobbins, Ralph Jeynes of the high ſtreet, Philip Bruſh, George Waters, alias Hawkins, Richard Pitt, Joſeph Smith, John Clifton, John Chaundler, Edward Peirce, and Samuel Penell, to be four and twenty chief and modern aſſiſtants of the borough aforeſaid, to be continued in the ſame offices as long as they ſhall behave themſelves well; which very aſſiſtants before named, and either or any of them, and the aſſiſtants of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, and either or any of them, not behaving himſelf or themſelves well in their offices, we will to be moveable at the good pleaſure of the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes, being common council of the borough aforeſaid, or the greater part of them, of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid for the time being, we will to be one.

And we farther will, and for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do give and grant to the ſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and to their ſucceſſors, that whenſoever it ſhall happen, that either or any of the aforeſaid four and twenty aſſiſtants of the borough aforeſaid, do die, or are removed from his or their office, as aforeſaid, that then and ſo often, it may and ſhall be well and lawful for the ſaid bailiffs, and the reſt of the common council of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, we will to be one) one other or more of the burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, into the place or places of the ſame aſſiſtant or aſſiſtants, ſo happening to die or be removed, to elect, nominate and appoint, to ſupply the aforeſaid number of four and twenty aſſiſtants of the borough aforeſaid; and that he or they ſo as aforeſaid elected and appointed to the office or offices of an aſſiſtant or aſſiſtants of the borough aforeſaid, having performed before the bailiffs and the reſt of the common council of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, we will to be one) a corporal oath, well and faithfully to execute that office, he and they ſhall be of the number of the aforeſaid four and twenty aſſiſtants of the borough aforeſaid; and this from time to time as often as it ſhall ſo happen.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the ſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that from henceforth for the future, the bailiffs, burgeſſes aforeſaid, ſhall be elected, nominated and ſworn yearly, and every year, in and upon the ſecond Thurſday in the month of October, and not upon the Thurſday next after the feaſt of St. Simon and Jude apoſtles, by and before ſuch perſon and perſons, and in the ſame manner and form as was wont to be in the ſame borough, at and before the time of the ſurrender aforeſaid; and that they who ſhall be elected, nominated and ſworn, as aforeſaid, to the office of bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, may have and exerciſe that office for one whole year then next following, and thenceforth until two other burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid to the offices of bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid ſhall be elected, appointed, and ſworn in due manner.

And moreover we will, and for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that if it ſhall happen that the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, or either of them for the time being, within one year after they ſhall be elected, appointed, and ſworn to the offices of bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, ſo as aforeſaid, do die, or be removed from his or their office or offices that then and ſo often, one other fit perſon, or two other fit perſons, ſhall be elected, appointed and ſworn into the bailiwick or bailiwicks of the borough of Tewkſbury aforeſaid, by and before ſuch perſon and perſons, and in ſuch manner and form as was wont in the ſame borough at and before the time of the ſurrender aforeſaid; and that he or they ſo elected and ſworn, may have and execute that office or offices during the reſidue of the ſame year, and ſo often as it ſhall ſo happen.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that they and their ſucceſſors may and ſhall have in the borough aforeſaid, one honeſt and diſcreet man to be choſe and nominated, in form beneath in theſe preſents expreſſed, who ſhall be, and be named high ſteward of the borough aforeſaid; and we have aſſigned, nominated, appointed and made, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do aſſign, nominate, appiont and make our well beloved andfaithful kinſman Algernoon, earl of Eſſex, to be the firſt and modern high ſteward of the borough aforeſaid, to be continued in the ſame office ſo long as he ſhall behave himſelf well.

We alſo will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that from and after the death of the ſaid Algernoon, earl of Eſſex, or any other determination mination of his office, the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them, (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid we will to be one) may, and can elect, nominate and appoint one other honeſt and diſcreet man, from time to time, to the office of high ſteward of the borough aforeſaid; and that he who ſhall be elected, appointed and nominated, ſo as aforeſaid, after the death of the ſaid Algernoon, earl of Eſſex, or any other determination of the ſaid office of high ſteward, ſhall, and may execute and enjoy that office of high ſteward of the borough aforeſaid, during the good pleaſure of the aforeſaid bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, or the greater part of them, (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid we will to be one) and ſo as oft as it ſhall ſo happen.

We will alſo, and for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the ſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that they, from henceforth forever, may have in the borough aforeſaid, one honeſt, fit, and diſcreet man, ſkilful and learned in the laws of this kingdom of England, who ſhall be, and be named recorder of that borough, to be continued in that office, and to execute the ſame by himſelf or his deputy, as long as he ſhall behave himſelf well: And we have aſſigned, nominated, appointed and made, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do aſſign, nominate, appoint and make the aforeſaid Robert Tracy to be chief and modern recorder of the borough aforeſaid, to be continued in the ſame office, and the ſame office to execute by himſelf or his ſufficient deputy, as long as he ſhall behave himſelf well.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that after the death or removal of the ſaid Robert Tracy, from the office aforeſaid, and ſo oft as the office of recorder of the borough aforeſaid ſhall happen to be vacant, it may, and ſhall be lawful for the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid we will to be one) to elect, name, and prefer one other honeſt and diſcreet man, learned in the laws of this kingdom of England, into the office of recorder of the borough aforeſaid, to be continued in the ſame office ſo long as he ſhall behave himſelf well; which ſaid Robert Tracy, and all other perſons who for the future ſhall be elected, nominated and appointed, ſo as aforeſaid, into the office of recorder of the borough aforeſaid, before he ſhall be permitted to execute that office, ſhall take a corporal oath before the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or either of them, to rightly, well and faithfully execute that office, in all buſineſſes touching or concerning it.

And we farther, of our more abundant ſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have willed and granted, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do will and grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the bailiffs and recorder of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, during the time in which they ſhall happen to be in their offices, and four other of the honeſter and more diſcreet burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, to be choſen and nominated by the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, or by the greater part of them, (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid we will to be one) may and ſhall be, and every of them may and ſhall be our juſtices, and our heirs and ſucceſſors, to keep the peace, and to keep and cauſe to be kept the orders and ſtatutes ſet forth for the good of the peace of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, and for the keeping of the ſame, and for the good and quiet rule and government of our people, our heirs and ſucceſſors, and in all their articles in the borough and liberty, and precincts by theſe preſents, to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid before granted, according to the ſtatute, form, and effect of the ſame; and to chaſtize and puniſh all offending againſt the force, form and effect of the ſame orders and ſtatutes, or either of them, as ſhall be to be done according to the form of the ſame orders and ſtatutes; and to cauſe to come before them, or either of them, all thoſe who have threatened either or any of our people, concerning their bodies, or burning of their houſes, to find ſufficient ſecurity of the peace, or their good behaviour towards us and our people; and if they ſhall refuſe to find ſuch ſecurity, then them to cauſe to be kept ſafe in our priſon in the borough aforeſaid, until they ſhall find ſuch ſecurity; and to hear and determine all and all manner of felonies, and other miſdeeds in the ſaid borough, and liberty and precinct of the ſame, before mentioned, committed and to be committed, and to keep and correct, and cauſe to be kept and corrected, the ſtatutes concerning artificers, labourers, weights and meaſures, within the borough aforeſaid, and liberty and precinct of the ſame.

And that the ſaid bailiffs and principal burgeſſes, or the greater part of them, within one month after the date of theſe preſents, ſhall chuſe four ſuch burgeſſes as aforeſaid, to be juſtices of the peace, which ſaid four burgeſſes ſhall continue in the offices of juſtices of the peace within the borough aforeſaid, until and upon the ſecond Thurſday in the month of October next to come; and that in and upon the aforeſaid ſecond day of October next to come, and upon every ſecond Thurſday in the month of October for ever, four ſuch burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, ſhall be yearly choſen as aforeſaid, to be juſtices of the peace as aforeſaid, within the borough aforeſaid; and that the bailiffs and recorders of the ſame borough, for the time being, and four other burgeſſes to be elected and nominated ſo as aforeſaid, in the offices of juſtices of the peace, or any three of them (of whom either of the bailiffs or recorders of the borough aforeſaid we will to be one) may have full power and abſolute authority, to enquire from time to time, by the oath of honeſt and lawful men of the borough aforeſaid, liberty and precinct of the ſame, concerning all and all manner of petty treaſons, murders, voluntary manſlaughter, manſlaughters, felonies, witchcrafts, incantations, ſorceries, magick art, foreſtallings, ingroſſings, regratings and extortions whatſoever; and concerning all and ſingular other witchcrafts, tranſgreſſions, faults and offences whatſoever, of which the juſtices appointed to keep the peace in any county of our kingdom of England, may, or ought lawfully to enquire. And that they may or ſhall hear and determine all and ſingular felonies, offences, tranſgreſſions, crimes and articles whatſoever, that belong to the office of a juſtice of the peace within the borough aforeſaid, liberty and precinct of the ſame, to be done, heard, performed and determined ſo fully and wholly, and in ſo ample manner and form as any other juſtices appointed to keep the peace in any county of our kingdom of England, by the laws and ſtatutes of the ſame kingdom of England, or otherwiſe. And that they, or any three of them, may and can from time to time keep ſeſſions in the ſame manner and form as any other juſtices appointed to keep the peace in any county of our kingdom of England, may and can: ſo nevertheleſs that at the determination of any treaſon, murder, manſlaughter, felony, or other offence whatſoever, touching the loſs of life or a member, within the borough aforeſaid, liberty and precinct of the ſame, without our ſpecial mandate of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, howſoever, for the future, they may not proceed.

We will alſo, and, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do command and forbid by theſe preſents, that no juſtice of the peace within the county of Glouceſter, do any ways introduce, or do or execute any thing within the town or pariſh of Tewkſbury, and precinct of the ſame, that belongs to the office of a juſtice of the peace there to be done.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that they and their ſucceſſors, henceforth for ever, may have and hold within the borough aforeſaid, a certain court of record before the bailiffs of the ſame borough, for the time being, in a certain houſe called the Tolſey (or other convenient place in the ſame borough) upon Friday in every week yearly to be kept; in which court they ſhall keep the pleas of all and all manner of debts, treſpaſſes, and perſonal actions, proceeding from within the liberty of the borough aforeſaid, ſo that they do not exceed the ſum of 50l. of lawful money of England, nor touching a free tenement within the liberties of the borough aforeſaid, by complaints thereof before the bailiffs aforeſaid, to be levied, made and entered; and that the ſame bailiffs, burgeſſes and community, and their ſucceſſors, upon the like ſort of complaints, pleas, quarrels and actions, may have power, authority and faculty to implead defendants againſt whom the like complaints, pleas or actions in the ſaid court ſhall happen to be levied or removed, by an attachment of their bodies, to be directed to the ſergeants at mace of the borough aforeſaid, or other officer or officers, or any of them, to be appointed or aſſigned by the bailiffs aforeſaid, or either of them, for the time being.

And that the like pleas, complaints, ſuits and actions, may be there heard and determined before the bailiffs of the ſaid borough, for the time being, or either of them, together with the recorder of the borough aforeſaid, or his ſufficient deputy for the time being, by ſuch and the like proceſſes and means, according to the laws and cuſtom of this our kingdom of England, by their peers, and as is agreeable to our laws, and in as ample manner and form as is or ought to be uſed and accuſtomed in any court of record in any city, borough or town incorporate, within our kingdom of England: provided always, and it is our good pleaſure, and, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do will and forbid, that no attachment or other proceſs be directed to the ſergeants at mace of the borough aforeſaid, or ſhall be executed or ſerved by the ſame in any place, unleſs within the town and pariſh of Tewkſbury aforeſaid, and precinct of the ſame town.

And we farther will, and for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that there may and ſhall be perpetually in the borough aforeſaid, one honeſt and diſcreet man, to be choſen in form in theſe preſents mentioned, who ſhall be, and be nominated common clerk of the borough aforeſaid, and clerk of our peace within the borough aforeſaid, to be continued in the ſame office ſo long as he ſhall behave himſelf well. And we have have farther appointed, nominated and conſtituted, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do appoint, nominate and conſtitute the aforeſaid Henry Collet, junior, to be the firſt and modern common clerk of the borough aforeſaid, and clerk of our peace within the borough aforeſaid, ſo long as he ſhall behave himſelf well, and to do and execute all things which reſpectively belong to the office of common clerk, and clerk of the peace within the borough aforeſaid.

And we alſo will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that from henceforth for the future, there be and ſhall be within the borough, liberty and precinct of the ſame, one honeſt and diſcreet man, to be choſen in form in theſe preſents, who ſhall be and be called coroner of the borough aforeſaid, who ſhall have full power and authority to do and execute all and ſingular thoſe acts and things whatſoever within the borough aforeſaid, and precinct of the ſame, which tend and belong to the office of a coroner within the borough aforeſaid to be done and executed. And we have appointed, nominated and conſtituted, and by theſe preſents do appoint, nominate and conſtitute the aforeſaid Henry Collet to to be firſt and modern coroner of the borough aforeſaid, to be continued in the ſaid office during the good pleaſure of the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, or the greater part of them (of whom either of the bailiffs we will to be one.) And we farther will, that after the death or removal of the aforeſaid Henry Collet, from the office of coroner aforeſaid, then and thenceforth it may and ſhall be well and lawful for the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them who ſhall be then preſent (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid we will to be one) at their pleaſure from time to time to elect, nominate and appoint one other honeſt and diſcreet man of the burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, into the office of coroner of the borough aforeſaid, to be continued in the ſame office during the good pleaſure of the aforeſaid bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, or the greater part of them (of whom either of the bailiffs we will to be one) a corporal oath being firſt taken before the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, or either of them, to rightly, well and faithfully perform that office in all things touching or concerning that office.

We farther will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, we will to be one) may and ſhall from time to time elect, conſtitute and create one of the burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, to have, exerciſe and execute the office of chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid, ſo long as it ſhall ſeem fit to the aforeſaid bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, or the greater part of them (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid for the time being, we will to be one) or until the aforeſaid chamberlain ſhall leave the ſaid office of his own accord, or dye; and that every burgeſs of that borough elected, choſen and created chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid, or to be elected, choſen or created, ſhall take a corporal oath in due manner, to do and faithfully execute all thoſe things which belong to the office of chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid. And that the chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid for the time being, ſhall, and may receive all manner of rents, fines, amercements, revenues, profits, commodities and emoluments whatſoever, to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, by right of any corporation, or howſoever belonging, appertaining, incurred, due or payable, and keep the ſame in his power to and for the uſe of the bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and expend and diſburſe the ſame from time to time, at their command and requeſt. And the aforeſaid chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, ſhall keep all and ſingular writings, deeds, evidences and muniments whatſoever to the ſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid for the time being, belonging, or in any wiſe appertaining; and ſhall keep the ſeal as well of the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, as of the maſter of the ſchool beneath written, in the chamber of the borough aforeſaid, and ſhall cauſe to come the ſame writings and muniments, and ſeal, before the aforeſaid bailiffs and principal burgeſſes, or either of them, as often and whenſoever by them they ſhall be commanded, that they may look into them, and duely determine and diſpoſe or uſe them, and let him perpetually give a true and juſt yearly account at every feaſt of St. James the apoſtle, or within fifteen days next following the ſame feaſt, to the ſaid bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them, of all things by him ſo received or levied, kept or had. And let him execute and do all thoſe things as in times paſt were uſed and accuſtomed by the chamberlain aforeſaid; and alſo that every chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, who ſhall happen to be removed from his office, or ſhall leave his office aforeſaid of his own accord, and the heirs, executors and adminiſtrators of ſuch who ſhall dye, having the office of chamberlain aforeſaid, within one month next after the death or removal, or voluntary leaving of his office beforeſaid, may give a true and faithful account of all things in his office, by virtue of his ſaid office, by him accepted, had or done, to the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of that borough, or ſo many of them as will be there, when it ſhall be required of him. And for the better execution of our will and grant in this part, we have appointed, created, nominated, conſtituted and made, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do appoint, create, nominate, conſtitute and make the aforeſaid William Wilſon to be the firſt and modren chamberlain of that borough, to be continued in the office aforeſaid as long as he ſhall behave himſelf well. And that from time to time, and at all times after the death, ſurrender, or other determination of the office aforeſaid, at the good pleaſure and will of the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, we will to be one) the aforeſaid bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid for the time being, or the greater part of them as aforeſaid, may elect, nominate, and appoint one other diſcreet man of the burgeſſes of the borough for the time being, from time to time, to be chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid; and that he who ſhall be elected, appointed, and nominated to be chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid, ſo as aforeſaid, after the death, ſurrender, or other determination of the aforeſaid office, may have, enjoy, and exerciſe that office of chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid, during the good pleaſure of the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, we will to be one) a corporal oath being firſt taken before the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, or ſo many of them as will be there, (of whom either of the bailiffs for the time being we will to be one) to execute that office of chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid, rightly, well and faithfully, in and by all things touching that office; and ſo often as it ſhall ſo happen.

And farther, of our more abundant ſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, we do will and grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, together with our clerk, our heirs and ſucceſſors of the ſame borough, aſſigned to receive recognizance of debts, may for ever have full power and authority to receive recognizances, by virtue of the ſtatute of Acton Burnell, between merchant and merchant, merchants and merchants, and between every and all other perſon and perſons whatſoever, or either of them, concerning any debt, and any ſum, and the execution thereof to be made, according to the form and effect of the ſaid ſtatute of Acton Burnell, ſtatute of Merchants, or either of them, or other ſtatute in that part ſet forth and provided; and alſo to do and execute all other things in the premiſſes, or the premiſſes any ways touching or concerning, which by the vigor of the ſaid ſtatute of Acton Burnell, and the ſtatute of Merchants, and other ſtatutes in that part ſet forth and provided, or either or any of them belong to be done and executed; and that for ever hereafter there be and ſhall be a clerk, of us our heirs and ſucceſſors, of the ſaid borough of Tewkſbury, to receive ſuch like recognizances of debts, according to the form of the ſtatutes aforeſaid; and that he may and ſhall perpetually have power and authority to do and perform all and ſingular matters, which in any wiſe belong to the office of clerk of the recognizances, according to the form of the ſtatutes aforeſaid, or either of them, to be taken in the vigour of thoſe ſtatutes, or either of them to be done and executed; and we do ordain, nominate, conſtitute, create, erect and appoint, by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, the aforeſaid Henry Collet to be our clerk our heirs and ſucceſſors, of the recognizances aforeſaid, within the borough aforeſaid, and the aforeſaid liberty and precinct of the ſame, according to the form of the ſtatute aforeſaid, as long as he ſhall behave himſelf well in the ſame office; and that the aforeſaid bailiffs, and the aforeſaid clerk of the like recognizances for the time being, may for ever have a ſeal for ſealing the recognizances aforeſaid, according to the form of the ſtatute aforeſaid; and that the ſame bailiffs and clerk of ſuch like recognizances, for the time being, may have for ever henceforth the keeping of the ſaid ſeal; and that the ſaid bailiffs and clerk of the like recognizances for the time being, may have from henceforth for ever ſo much, and ſo great and entire, and abſolute authority, faculty and power from henceforth for the future, to take, ſeal and record, and certifie ſuch like recognizances, and to perform, do and execute all other, according to the exigence of the ſaid ſtatute, by and in all things, with the ſureties, fees, and regards thereunto belonging and appertaining, as any other mayor, mayors, bailiff, bailiffs, and ſuch clerk or clerks in any city, borough, or town whatſoever, within this our kingdom of England hath, or have, or ought to have; and we do make, create, conſtitue, appoint and ordain by theſe preſents, the the ſaid bailiffs and clerk of the recognizances of the ſaid borough for the time being, to do and perform all the premiſſes.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that after the death or removal of the aforeſaid Henry Collet from the aforeſaid offices of common clerk, clerk of the peace, and clerk of the recognizances, within the borough aforeſaid, or from either of them, and from and after any other determination of the offices aforeſaid of common clerk, clerk of the peace, and clerk of the recognizances within the borough aforeſaid, or either of them, and as often as ſuch offices, or either or any of them ſhall be void, then and ſo often it may and ſhall be well and lawful for the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or for the greater part of them, (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid for the time being we will to be one) to elect, nominate, and appoint one other fit perſon, or more fit perſons to be common clerk, clerk of the peace, and clerk of the recognizances, within the borough aforeſaid, to be continued in the like office or offices to which he or they ſhall be elected and appointed, ſo long as he or they ſhall behave himſelf or themſelves well. Provided always, and we will that every perſon and perſons, ſo as aforeſaid, hereafter to be elected to the aforeſaid offices of common clerk, clerk of the peace, and clerk of the recognizances, within the borough aforeſaid, or to either or any of thoſe offices, before he or they be admitted to the execution of thoſe offices, or either or any of them, ſhall take a corporal oath for the due execution of the offices of common clerk, clerk of the peace, and clerk of the recognizances within the borough aforeſaid, or for the due execution of ſuch office or offices to which he or they ſhall be ſo elected, before the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them.

And moreover we will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do command, that the bailiffs, recorders, common clerk, principal burgeſſes, juſtices of the peace, aſſiſtants, chamberlain, coroner, clerk of the peace and recognizances, and other officers, by theſe preſents nominated and conſtituted, before that they or either of them be reſpectively admitted to the execution of their ſeparate truſts and offices, in theſe preſents mentioned, they and every of them ſhall take and perform their ſeparate corporal oaths, upon the bible, for the due execution of their truſts, and reſpective offices, in manner and form following: viz. The bailiffs and recorder, by theſe preſents nominated and appointed, ſhall take their oaths before the aforeſaid Richard Dowdeſwell, Stephen Baldwyn, eſq; Henry Collet, ſenior, and James Bengough, gent. or any two or more of them, to which, or any two or more of them, we give and grant by theſe preſents full power and authority to give and adminiſter the like oath. And we have alſo granted, and by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant that the aforeſaid bailiffs and recorder in theſe preſents nominated, or two of them, (of whom either of the bailiffs we will to be one) may have full power and authority of giving and adminiſtring a corporal oath to the reſt of the principal burgeſſes, juſtices of the peace, chamberlain, common clerk, clerk of the peace and recognizances, coroner, aſſiſtants, and other officers aforeſaid, in theſe preſents before mentioned, and alſo the aforeſaid four juſtices of the peace, by virtue of theſe preſents as aforeſaid to be elected, within one month after the date of theſe preſents.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the aforeſaid, bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, may and ſhall for ever have within the borough aforeſaid, liberty, and precinct of the ſame, one priſon or jail, for the preſervation and keeping of all and ſingular perſons attach't and to be attach't, or to be any ways adjudged to the priſon or jail of the borough aforeſaid, within the liberty of the borough aforeſaid, or precinct of the ſame, for any cauſe which could be inquired, proſecuted, puniſhed or determined in that borough, to abide there ſo long, and until they ſhall be freed in a lawful manner; and that the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, be and ſhall be keepers of the ſame jail.

We will alſo, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, of our more abundant ſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that they and their ſueceſſors may have all fines, redemptions, recognizances and amerciaments whatſoever, for tranſgreſſions and other miſdeeds whatſoever, or other cauſes and matters within the borough aforeſaid, liberty and precinct of the ſame, committed and to be committed, and alſo all and all manner of penalties and forfeitures, forfeited or to be forfeited, of all burgeſſes and inhabitants of the borough, and liberty of the ſame aforeſaid, there reſiding, and henceforth happening to reſide, and their ſucceſſors, for the peace of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, and otherwiſe howſoever, and alſo of all other reſiding in the borough aforeſaid, and liberty of the ſame, forfeited or to be forfeited, to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, within the ſame borough, liberty, and precinct of the ſame, and all and all manner of iſſues, fines, redemptions and amerciaments of the aforeſaid burgeſſes and reſidents, their heirs and ſucceſſors, before the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, as before the juſtices of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, appointed to take the aſſizes or jail delivery, keepers of the peace, and juſtices itinerant, and the inſtitutes of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, to hear and determine, and other commiſſionary juſtices of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, whatſoever forfeited, or to be forfeited, done or to be done, impoſed or to be impoſed, from or by any cauſe, by the chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid, who ſhall be for that time, to the uſe of the ſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and commonalty of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, to be aſked, levyed and demanded, without the occaſion or hindrance of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, ſheriffs, juſtices, and other commiſſionary officers and miniſters whatſoever, of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors.

We have alſo granted, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that they and their ſucceſſors, henceforth for ever, may and ſhall have, to the proper uſe of them the bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, all and all manner of goods and chattels of all felons and fugitives, outlawed and waved, to be outlawed and to be waved, adjudged, condemned, and to be adjudged, attaint, and happening to be attaint, convicted and to be convicted, fled and to be ſought after, for felony, murther, or petty treaſon, tranſgreſſion, or other matter or cauſe whatſoever; and other forfeitures and offences beforeſaid, touching or concerning all and ſingular burgeſſes and inhabitants, reſiding and not reſiding within the borough aforeſaid, and liberty and precinct of the ſame, and all other things whatſover within the borough aforeſaid, liberty and precinct of the ſame, found out, and happening for the future to be found out; and that if any perſon that ought to loſe his life or limbs for his offence, ſhall either fly, and will not ſtand to judgment, or ſhall commit any other crime, for which he ought to loſe or forfeit his goods and chattels, whereſoever juſtice ought to be done him, whether it be in our court, our heirs and ſucceſſors, or in any other court whatſoever, his goods and chattles being, or henceforth for the future happening to be, within the borough aforeſaid, liberty and precinct of the ſame, ſhall be to the bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their heirs for ever; and that it may and ſhall be well and lawful for the ſame bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid and their ſucceſſors, by the chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid, who for that time ſhall be, or by any other or others in their name, without the hindrence of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, or any officers of our heirs and ſucceſſors whatſoever, to put himſelf or themſelves in ſeiſure of the goods and chattels aforeſaid, and them receive and keep for the uſe of the bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, although the ſame goods and chattels ſhall be firſt ſeized by us, or our heirs or ſucceſſors, or by our or their ſervants.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid and their ſucceſſors, that the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, and their ſucceſſors, may and ſhall have full authority and power to preſs for the ſervice of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, at any of our wars, and muſterings, and trainings of our ſubjects within the town and pariſh of Tewkſbury aforeſaid, the limits and precincts of the ſame, as often and when they ſee fit, from time to time to be done, taken and overlooked, and to cauſe to be chaſtiſed and puniſhed thoſe that refuſe the premiſſes, or any of them, at the lawful command of the ſaid bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, by impriſonment of their bodies, according to their diſcretion; and that no man poſſeſſing a place, or a commiſſioner of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, appointed or to be appointed to preſs, or train in the aforeſaid county of Glouceſter, may introduce himſelf in any preſſing or training of men, abiding or inhabiting within the town and pariſh of Tewkſbury aforeſaid, limits and precinct of the ſame, nor enter into the town or pariſh aforeſaid, limits or precinct of the ſame, to do or execute any thing that doth in any wiſe belong to his office of preſſing or training, unleſs with the aſſent and conſent of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid for the time being.

And farther, of our more ample ſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, we will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that neither they the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes, and their aſſiſtants, the high ſteward, chamberlain, and their ſucceſſors, and other their officers within the borough aforeſaid, ſhall ſerve, nor any of them may be compelled or bound, nor either of them be compelled or bound any ways to come before us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, the juſtices of the bench of us and our heirs, the the juſtices of us and our heirs, appointed keepers of the peace, to take the aſſizes and jail delivery, and the juſtices of us and our heirs, appointed to hear and determine divers felonies, tranſgreſſions and miſdeeds, or the juſtices of us and our heirs of the Niſi Prius, or the juſtices of us and our heirs aſſigned to ſurvey the ſea walls, ditches, gouts, ſewers, paths, bridges and rinds, or other commiſſioners of us or our heirs, the high ſheriff, eſcheator, coroner, high ſteward, mareſchal, or clerk of the market, of our houſhold, or other officers and ſervants of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, nor may any or either of them in any aſſizes be put or impannelled on a jury, or other inquiſition, without the borough aforeſaid; nor may they or either of them forthwith forfeit to us, or our heirs, in any iſſue or amerciament, on any occaſion whatſoever, but thereof let them be quiet for ever unleſs they have, or either of them hath, lands and tenements without the borough aforeſaid, liberty and precinct of the ſame, for which he or they ought to be charged.

And we have farther given and granted, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do give and grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, may and ſhall have the return of all writs, precepts, bills and warrants of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, and alſo ſummons, eſtreats and precepts of our exchequer, our heirs and ſucceſſors, and the eſtreats and precepts of our juſtices itinerant, as well at the foreſt pleas, as at the common pleas, or other offices whatſoever; and alſo attachments, as well of the pleas of the crown as others, coming from and happening in the ſaid borough, liberty and precinct, or any part of them, and the execution of them, to be made by the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, ſo that no high-ſheriff, under-ſheriff, bailiff, or any ſervant of us, our heirs, and ſucceſſors, may enter into our borough aforeſaid, the ſuburbs or precinct of the ſame, for any thing or things belonging to his office to be done in this part, to be done, (ſic) unleſs in defect of thoſe bailiffs, or their ſucceſſors, or their ſervants for the time being.

And we will alſo, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant and ordain, that henceforth for ever there be, and ſhall be in the ſaid borough of Tewkſbury, two burgeſſes of the parliament of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors. And that the bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, upon a writ of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, concerning the election of burgeſſes of parliament, to them directed, may and ſhall have power, authority and faculty of electing and nominating two diſcreet and honeſt men, to be burgeſſes of the parliament of us our heirs and ſucceſſors, for the ſame borough, and to ſend the ſame burgeſſes ſo elected, at the charges and coſts of the ſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors for the time being, into the parliament of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, where it ſhall be then held, in the ſame manner and form as is uſed and accuſtomed in any boroughs of our kingdom of England; which burgeſſes ſo elected and nominated, we will to be preſent, and to abide at the parliament of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, at the charges and coſts of the ſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, during the time in which the parliament ſhall happen to be held, and they to have places and votes in the like manner and form as other burgeſſes of parliament for any other boroughs or borough whatſoever, within our kingdom of England do and have, or have been wont to do or have; and theſe burgeſſes in the parliaments of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, ſhall have their votes as well affirmative as negative, and ſhall there do and execute all and ſingular other matters, as any other burgeſſes or burgeſs of our parliament, for all other boroughs or borough whatſoever, may or can have, do and execute, by reaſon or manner whatſoever.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors for ever, that they and their ſucceſſors may and can have, hold, and keep in the borough aforeſaid, yearly for ever, all and ſingular ſuch wakes, fairs and markets in the ſame borough, as by the aforeſaid charter made in the ſeventh year aforeſaid of the late king James the firſt, or by any charters of our anteceſſors and predeceſſors to the ſame bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, or to their predeceſſors granted, before that time were granted, and which at or before the time of the ſurrender aforeſaid, were lawfully held or uſed by the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, within the borough aforeſaid, together with the Pye-Powder-Court, there held in the time of thoſe wakes and fairs, and with all liberty and free cuſtom of toll, [ſic in copia] ſtallage, piccage, fines, amercements, and all other profits, commodities and emoluments whatſoever belonging, happening, proceeding or touching the ſame wake or fair, and Pye-Powder-Court, and with all other free cuſtoms and liberty whatſoever, to the ſame wake, fair and Pye-Powder-Court appertaining or belonging.

And we farther will and grant to the bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, henceforth for ever, be and ſhall be clerks of the market within the borough aforeſaid, liberty and precinct of the ſame.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that the bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them (of whom either of the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, we will to be one) may and ſhall have power and authority, from time to time, to elect, nominate, appoint and conſtitute ſo many and ſuch, as well without the borough aforeſaid as within that borough, limits or precincts of the ſame, inhabiting and abiding, to be burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, as to the ſaid bailiffs and principal burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, or to the greater part of them, as aforeſaid, for the publick profit of the ſaid borough, ſhall ſeem more profitable, in the ſame manner and form, and with the ſame corporal oath, to be taken by every of the ſaid burgeſſes ſo choſen and appointed, as the burgeſſes of that borough were heretofore wont to take within the ſaid borough of Tewkſbury; and that theſe burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and every of them, henceforth for ever, may and can perpetually, fully and peaceably poſſeſs and enjoy all liberties, privileges, franchiſes and immunities by either or any of our progenitors or predeceſſors, kings or queens of England, to the bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough of Tewkſbury, or incorporated by any other name or names, before given and granted, at and before the time of the ſurrender aforeſaid.

And farther, of our more plentiful and ſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, we have given and granted, and for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents do give and grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, full power, authority and juriſdiction, that the aforeſaid bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, may and can have and exerciſe within the borough aforeſaid, and liberty and precinct of the ſame, henceforth for ever, the puniſhing and correcting of all and ſingular drunkards, and all and ſingular harlots, whores, bawds, concubines, and all others whatſoever living laſciviouſly and incontinently; and alſo all and ſingular diſhoneſtly or maliciouſly communicating, upon any occaſion, whether they are ſcolds, abiding or inhabiting within the borough aforeſaid, and liberty of the ſame, or are delinquents, as well by the verdict and preſentment of twelve honeſt and lawful men of the borough aforeſaid, for that time being, as by other lawful ways and means, to which ſaid bailiffs for the time being, it ſhall ſeem to be moſt expedient.

And farther, of our more abundant ſpecial grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, we have granted, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant, and give ſpecial and free liberty and faculty, power and authority, to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, to have, receive, and purchaſe to them and their ſucceſſors for ever, the manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, woods, rectories, tithes, rents, reverſions, and other hereditaments whatſoever, within our kingdom of England, or any where within our dominions, purchaſed of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, as of any other perſon or perſons whatſoever, ſo that the ſame manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, woods, underwoods, rectories, tithes, rents, reverſions, and other hereditaments, ſo by them to be had, received, and purchaſed, above the aforeſaid manor, borough and hundred of Tewkſbury, and other the premiſſes in theſe preſents before mentioned, and other manors, lands, tenements and hereditaments purchaſed before the making of the aforeſaid letters patents, in the ſeventh year of king James the firſt, by the ſame bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, or their predeceſſors, by any name or names incorporated or purchaſed, by virtue of any incorporation, do not exceed in the whole, the clear yearly value of 200 l. per ann. beſides all charges. And we do give alſo, and by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, to every of our ſubjects, our heirs and ſucceſſors, ſpecial and free liberty, power and authority, that they, or either, or any of them, may give, grant or ſell meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, woods, underwoods, rectories, tithes, rents, reverſions, ſervices and other hereditaments whatſoever, to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors; ſo that all the aforeſaid manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, woods, underwoods, rectories, tithes, rents, reverſions, ſervices and other hereditaments, to the ſame bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, by virtue of theſe preſents ſo to be given, granted, leaſed and aliened, as aforeſaid, do not exceed in the whole the clear yearly value of 200 l. per ann. beſides all charges and repriſes.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do give, grant, confirm, ratify, reſtore and approve to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, all and all manner of liberties, franchiſes, immunities, exceptions, privileges, acquittances, juriſdictions, lands, tenements, waſtes, funds, commons and hereditaments whatſoever, which the bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, or any of their ſucceſſors, by any names or name, or by any incorporation, or under pretence of any incorporation, in time of making the aforeſaid charter, made in the ſeventh year of the aforeſaid king James the firſt, had, poſſeſs'd, uſed or enjoyed, or ought to have, poſſeſs, uſe or enjoy, from an hereditary ſtate, by reaſon or under pretence of any charters or letters patent, by any of our progenitors or predeceſſors, kings or queens of England, however before then made, confirmed or granted, or by any other lawful means, right, title, cuſtom, uſe or preſcription before then lawfully uſed, had or accuſtomed, although the ſame, or any of them have not heretofore been uſed, or have been abuſed, or ill uſed, or diſcontinued; and although the ſame, or either, or any of them are, and have been forfeited, or loſt, or ſurrendered, to be had, poſſeſſed, exerciſed, uſed and enjoyed by the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors for ever, and to reſtore, and pay therefore to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, yearly, ſo much, ſo many, ſuch, the ſame, and the like rents, ſervices, ſums of money and demands whatſoever, as for the ſame were heretofore wont to be paid, or they ought to pay to us or our predeceſſors. Wherefore we will, and by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, that the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, may fully and entirely have, poſſeſs, uſe and enjoy all liberties, free cuſtoms, privileges, authority, juriſdictions and acquittances aforeſaid, according to the tenor and effect of theſe our letters patent, without the occaſion or hindrance of us, or any of our heirs or ſucceſſors, nilling that the ſame bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, or any, or either of them, by reaſon of the premiſſes, or either of them, by us, our heirs, our juſtices, ſheriffs, eſcheators, or other bailiffs or ſervants of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors whatſoever, be occaſioned, moleſted, vexed, grieved, or diſturbed in any thing; willing, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors commanding, as well the commiſſioners for our treaſury, the treaſurer, chancellor and barons of the exchequer, of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, as our attorney and ſolicitor general for the time being, and every of them, and all other officers and ſervants whatſoever of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, that neither they, nor either, nor any of them, may proſecute or continue, or ſhall cauſe to be proſecuted or continued, any writ or ſummons of any warrant, or any other our writ, writs or proceſs whatſoever, againſt the bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, or either or any of them, for any cauſes, things or matters, offences, claims or uſurpations, whether of any of them, by them or any of them due, claimed, attempted, uſed, had or uſurped before the day of the making of theſe preſents. Willing alſo, that the bailiffs, burgeſſes and community of the borough aforeſaid, or either of them, be no ways moleſted or hindered by either, or any juſtices, officers and ſervants aforeſaid, in or for due uſe, claim, uſurpation or abuſe of any liberties, franchiſes or juriſdiction, before the day of the making of theſe our letters patent, or be compelled to anſwer to any, or either of theſe things.

And farther, for the better education and inſtruction of boys and youth within the ſame borough, liberty and precinct thereof, in good arts, learning, virtue and education, perpetually to be educated and informed, of our more abundant ſpecial grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, we have willed, granted and ordained, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do will, grant and ordain, that from henceforth for ever there be, and ſhall be within the borough aforeſaid, liberty and precinct of the ſame, one grammar ſchool, which ſhall be called the free grammar ſchool of William Ferrers, citizen and mercer of London, in Tewkſbury in the county of Glouceſter, and that ſchool, by the name of the free grammar ſchool of the aforeſaid William Ferrers, of Tewkſbury in the county of Glouceſter, we do erect, ordain, create, found, and firmly eſtabliſh by theſe preſents. And that the free grammar ſchool aforeſaid be, and do conſiſt of one maſter and one uſher, and ſcholars, in the ſame ſchool, to be taught and inſtructed according to the ordination and conſtitution in theſe preſents below ſpecified and declared. And that our foreſaid intention may better take effect, and that the manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, rents, reverſions, hereditaments, annuities, goods and chattels, and other profits and hereditaments, to be granted, aſſigned and appointed, to the ſuſtenance of the free grammar ſchool aforeſaid, may be better governed, for continuation of the ſame ſchool, we will, grant and ordain, that the aforeſaid bailiffs, juſtices of the peace, chamberlain of the borough aforeſaid, and town clerk in Tewkſbury aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, henceforth for ever, ſhall be, and be called, governors of the goods, poſſeſſions and revenues of the aforeſaid free grammar ſchool of William Ferrers, in Tewkſbury in the county of Glouceſter.

And farther, of our more abundant ſpecial grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, we do will, ordain and eſtabliſh by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, that the aforeſaid bailiffs, juſtices, chamberlain and town-clerk of the aforeſaid borough of Tewkſbury for the time being, and their ſucceſſors, for ever henceforth be, and ſhall be, one body corporate and politick of itſelf, in deed, fact and name, by the name of governors of the goods, poſſeſſions and revenues of the free grammar ſchool of Willam Ferrers, in Tewkſbury in the county of Glouceſter; and them, and their ſucceſſors, into one body corporate and politick, really and to the full, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, we do incorporate, erect, create, ordain, make and eſtabliſh by theſe preſents; and that by the ſame name of governors of the goods, poſſeſſions, and revenues of the free grammar-ſchool of William Ferrers, in Tewkſbury, in the county of Glouceſter, in all future times they ſhall be known, called and nominated, and ſhall have a perpetual ſucceſſion.

And we farther will and ordain, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid governors, and their ſucceſſors, that they and their ſucceſſors, from henceforth for ever, may have a common ſeal to ſerve for their buſineſs touching the free-grammar-ſchool aforeſaid, according to the tenor and true intent of theſe our letters patent; and that it may and ſhall be well and lawful for them and their ſucceſſors, to break, change, and make new that ſeal, from time to time, at their pleaſure, as it ſhall ſeem fit to them to be done; and that they and their ſucceſſors, by the name of governors of the goods, poſſeſſions, and revenues of the free grammar-ſchool of William Ferrers, in Tewkſbury, in the county of Glouceſter, be and ſhall be perpetually perſons fit and capable in the law, to have, purchaſe, receive and poſſeſs, to them and their ſucceſſors, the goods and chattels, and alſo manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, feedings, rents, reverſions, ſervices, rectories, tithes, and other poſſeſſions and hereditaments whatſoever, to the ſuſtenance and maintenance of the ſaid grammar-ſchool, as well from us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, as from any other perſon or perſons whatſoever, in manner and form in theſe preſents below ſpecified; and that the aforeſaid governors and their ſucceſſors, by the name of governors of the goods, poſſeſſions, and revenues of the free grammar-ſchool of William Ferrers, in Tewkſbury, in the county of Glouceſter, may and can plead and be impleaded, defend and be defended, anſwer and be anſwered, in all and ſingular cauſes, complaints, actions, ſuits and demands whatſoever, of whatſoever ſort, nature or kind they be, in whatſoever places and courts of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, and before whatſoever judges and juſtices of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, or any of them, within our kingdom of England, and to do and execute all other facts and deeds, by the name aforeſaid, as other our ſubjects of our kingdom of England, perſons fit and capable in the law, within our kingdom of England, do or may do, in the places and courts aforeſaid, and before the juſtices aboveſaid.

And we farther will, and by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do give and grant liberty, power and authority to the aforeſaid governors and their ſucceſſors, to elect, nominate and appoint, and that they may and can elect and appoint one honeſt man, learned, and fearing God, to be maſter of the free grammar-ſchool aforeſaid, and one other man, diſcreet and fit, to be uſher of the ſame ſchool; which maſter and uſher, ſo as aforeſaid elected, nominated and appointed, ſhall be and continue, and either of them ſhall be and continue in their offices aforeſaid, during the good pleaſure of thoſe the governors and their ſucceſſors, for the time being; and that as often as it ſhall happen that any maſter or uſher of the free grammar-ſchool aforeſaid does die, or be removed from the office and place aforeſaid, that then and ſo often, it ſhall and may be well and lawful for the aforeſaid governors, and their ſucceſſors, to elect, nominate, and appoint one other honeſt man, learned and fearing God, in the place of the maſter, ſo dead or removed from his office; and alſo one other honeſt and fit man in the like place of the uſher, ſo happening to die or be removed; and that every maſter, ſo as aforeſaid nominated and appointed, ſhall be and continue in the office or place of maſter or uſher of the ſame free-grammar-ſchool, during the good pleaſure of thoſe governors of the goods, poſſeſſions, and revenues of the free grammar-ſchool aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors; and that the ſame governors of the goods, poſſeſſions, and revenues of the ſaid free grammar-ſchool of William Ferrers, of Tewkſbury, in the county of Glouceſter, for the time being, and their ſucceſſors, ſhall and may make fit and wholeſome ſtatutes, ordinances and writings, touching and concerning the nomination, election, ordination, government, puniſhment, expulſion, removal and direction of the ſaid free grammar-ſchool, the maſter and uſher of the ſame ſchool, and the ſcholars in the ſame ſchool being: and concerning and touching the ordination, government, diſmiſſion, location, diſpoſition, recovery, defence, and preſervation of the manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, poſſeſſions hereditaments, goods and chattels, to be given, granted, or aſſigned to the maintenance of the aforeſaid grammar-ſchool. Which Statutes and ordinances ſo to be made, we will and ordain, and for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do command, from time to time, inviolably to be obſerved for ever. So nevertheleſs that the aforeſaid ſtatutes and ordinances, nances, ſo as aforeſaid to be made, or any of them are not repugnant or contrary to the laws, ſtatutes, rights or cuſtoms of this our kingdom of England.

And farther, of our more abundant ſpecial grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, we have given and granted, and by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do give and grant to the aforeſaid governors of the goods, poſſeſſions and revenues of the aforeſaid free grammar-ſchool of the aforeſaid William Ferrers, in Tewkſbury, in the county of Glouceſter, and their ſucceſſors, liberty, ſpecial free-will, power, faculty and authority to have, purchaſe, receive and poſſeſs, to them and their ſucceſſors for ever, for the perpetual ſuſtenance and maintenance of the free grammar ſchool aforeſaid, manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, woods, under-woods, rectories, rents, reverſions and ſervices, and other hereditaments whatſoever, within our kingdom of England, or any where within our dominions, as well from our heirs and ſucceſſors, as from any other perſon or perſons whatſoever, ſo that the ſame manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, woods, underwoods, rectories, tithes, rents, reverſions, ſervices, and other hereditaments, do not exceed in the whole the clear yearly value of 30 l. per An. beſides all charges and repriſes.

And we do alſo give and grant, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, to every of our ſubjects, our heirs and ſucceſſors whatſoever, ſpecial and free liberty and power, faculty and authority, that they and every of them may give, grant, ſell, leaſe, or alien manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, feedings, woods, underwoods, rectories, tithes, rents, reverſions, ſervices, and other hereditaments whatſoever, to the aforeſaid governors of the goods, poſſeſſions, and revenues of the aforeſaid free grammar-ſchool of William Ferrers, in Tewkſbury, in the county of Glouceſter, and their ſucceſſors, ſo nevertheleſs that all the aforeſaid mannors meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, feedings, woods, underwoods, rectories, tithes, rents, reverſions and ſervices, and other hereditaments, ſo as aforeſaid to be given, granted, leaſed or aliened to the ſame governors and their ſucceſſors, by virtue of theſe preſents, do not exceed in the whole the clear yearly value of 30 l. beſides burthens and repriſes.

We will alſo, and by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that theſe our letters patent, and all and ſingular things in them contained, ſhall ſtand and be good, firm, valid, ſufficient and effectual in the law, and that all and ſingular things in theſe preſents expreſſed and ſpecified, may be expounded, declared, conſtrued, interpreted and adjudged, as well to the ſenſe and intention, as to the words, moſt kindly, favourably, graciouſly, and for the profit and benefit of thoſe bailiffs, burgeſſes, and community of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, towards us, our heirs and ſucceſſors.

In witneſs whereof we have cauſed theſe our letters to be made patents.

Witneſs our ſelf at Weſtminſter, the thirteenth day of July, in the thirteenth year of our reign.

NUMBER XXVII.

The CHARTER of the Borough of CHIPPING CAMPDEN.

JAMES, by the grace of God, king of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, defender of the faith, &c. To all to whom theſe preſents ſhall come, greeting. Whereas our borough of Chipping Campden, in our county of Glouceſter, is a very ancient and populous borough, and the burgeſſes and inhabitants of that borough have from time out of mind, had, uſed, and enjoyed divers liberties, franchiſes, immunities, and preheminences, as well by virtue of divers letters patents, and charters of divers of our progenitors and anceſtors, late kings of England, made and granted heretofore to them and their predeceſſors, by the name of bailiffs and burgeſſes of Chipping Campden, in the county of Glouceſter, or by what other name or names of incorporation ſoever heretofore made and granted, which charters and letters patents, by negligence or miſfortune, are loſt, as alſo by reaſon and colour of divers preſcriptions, uſages and cuſtoms uſed and practiſed in that borough. And whereas our beloved ſubjects, the burgeſſes and inhabitants of that borough have humbly beſought us, that we would, on this occaſion, exhibit and extend our royal grace and magnificence to the burgeſſes and inhabitants of that borough: And that for the better regulation, government and improvement of that borough, as to us ſhall ſeem expedient, we would vouchſafe, by our letters patents, to make, reduce and create the ſaid burgeſſes and inhabitants of that borough of Chipping Campden (by whatſoever name or names of incorporation they have been heretofore incorporated, or whether heretofore incorporated or not) into one body corporate and politick, by the name of bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough of Chipping Campden, in the county of Glouceſter. We therefore being willing that for ever hereafter one certain and undoubted manner of and for keeping the peace, and regulating and governing our people there, ſhall be conſtantly obſerved in that borough; and that the ſaid borough may for ever hereafter be a borough of peace and quietneſs, to the fear and terror of evil men, and the encouragement of the good: And that our peace and the due courſe of juſtice may and ſhall be there the better conſerved: And hoping that the ſaid burgeſſes and inhabitants of the ſaid borough and their ſucceſſors will, in conſideration of their enjoying, by our grant, more ample liberties and privileges, think themſelves more eſpecially and ſtrongly obliged to pay and perform all the ſervices, as lies in their power, to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, have, of our ſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, willed, ordained conſtituted, declared and granted, and by theſe preſents do, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, will, ordain, conſtitute, declare and grant, that our ſaid borough of Chipping Campden, in the county of Glouceſter, may and ſhall be for ever hereafter a free borough of itſelf, and that the burgeſſes and inhabitants of the ſaid borough, and their ſucceſſors, may, and ſhall be for ever hereafter, by virtue of theſe preſents, one body corporate and polick, in deed, fact and name, by the name of bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough of Chipping Campden, in the county of Gloſter. And do by theſe preſents, really and fully, for ourſelves, our heirs and ſucceſſors, erect, create, make, ordain, conſtitute, confirm and declare them one body corporate and politick, in deed, fact, and name, by the name of bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough of Chipping Campden, in the county of Glouceſter. And that they ſhall, by the ſame name, have a perpetual ſucceſſion.

And that, by the name of bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough of Chipping Campden, in the county of Glouceſter, they may and ſhall, at all times, for ever hereafter, be perſons qualified and capable in law to have, purchaſe, receive and poſſeſs manors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, liberties, privileges, juriſdictions and other hereditaments, of what nature, kind, or ſort ſoever, to themſelves and their ſucceſſors, in fee and for ever, or for the term of a year or years, or in any other manner; and alſo goods, chattels, and all other things of what kind, names, nature, quality and ſort ſoever they ſhall be. And alſo to give, grant, demiſe, alienate, aſſign and diſpoſe lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and to do and execute all other and ſingular acts and deeds, by the name aforeſaid.

And that, by the ſame name of bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough of Chipping Campden, in the county of Glouceſter, they may and be impowered to plead and be impleaded, anſwer and be anſwered, defend, and be defended, in any courts, ſtreets and places, and by the judges, juſtices and other perſons and officers whomſoever, of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, in all and ſingular actions, pleas, ſuits, complaints, cauſes, matters and demands, of whatſoever kind, name, nature, quality and ſort they may or ſhall be, in the ſame manner and form as our other liege people of our kingdom of England, being perſons qualified and capable in law, or any other body corporate and politick within our kingdom of England, can and may have, purchaſe, receive, enjoy, retain, give, grant, demiſe, alienate, aſſign and impoſe, plead and be impleaded, defend and be defended, anſwer and be anſwered, do, permit or execute.

And that the bailiffs and burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, and their ſucceſſors, ſhall for ever have a common ſeal for the execution of all manner of cauſes, and matter, of them and their ſucceſſors. And that it may and ſhall be lawful for the ſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes, and their ſucceſſors, from time to time, to break, change and make anew that Seal, as to them ſhall ſeem beſt to be done.

And farther we will, and by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the ſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that there may and ſhall be choſen fourteen of the burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, in form hereafter mentioned in theſe preſents, who ſhall be and be nominated capital burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, of which fourteen capital burgeſſes two from time to time ſhall be elected and nominated, in form hereafter mentioned in theſe preſents, to be bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid. And that in like manner there may and ſhall be choſen within the ſaid borough, twelve of the burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, in form hereafter mentioned in theſe preſents, who ſhall be and be nominated inferior burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, of common council of the ſame; which fourteen capital burgeſſes, and twelve inferior burgeſſes, for the time being, ſhall be of the common council of the ſame borough. And that the reſt of the aforeſaid fourteen capital burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, for the time being, not being in the offices of bailiffs of the ſaid borough, and the aforeſaid twelve inferior burgeſſes of the ſaid ſaid borough, for the time being, ſhall from time to time be aiding and aſſiſting to the bailiffs of the ſaid borough for the time being, in all cauſes, things, affairs, and matters touching or any way concerning the aforeſaid borough.

And farther, of our abundant grace, we will, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, and their ſucceſſors, that the bailiffs and capital burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the major part of them (whereof we will that the bailiffs of the ſaid borough for the time being be two) ſhall have, and by theſe preſents have, full authority, power and faculty of compiling, conſtituting, ordaining, making and eſtabliſhing, from time to time, ſuch and ſuch manner of laws, ſtatutes, ordinances and conſtitutions, as in ſound diſcretion ſhall ſeem to them, or the major part of them (whereof we will that the bailiffs of the ſaid borough for the time being be two) to be good, profitable wholſome and neceſſary, for the good government and regulation of the bailiffs and burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, and all other and ſingular the other burgeſſes, officers, miniſters, artificers, inhabitants and reſidents whomſoever, within the ſaid borough for the time being. And for declaration in what manner and order the bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, and all other and ſingular the officers, miniſters, artificers, inhabitants and reſients within the ſaid borough, ſhall, for the time being, behave, demean, and uſe themſelves in their offices, miniſtries, trades and buſineſſes, within the ſaid borough and liberties of the ſame, for the farther publick good, common advantage, and good government of the borough aforeſaid, and victualling of the ſame. And alſo for the better preſervation, ordering, diſpoſing, letting and demiſing the lands, poſſeſſions, revenues and hereditaments given, granted or aſſigned, and for the future to be given, granted and aſſigned to the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, or their ſucceſſors, and other things and cauſes whatſoever, touching, or any way concerning the ſaid borough, or the ſtate, rights and intereſts of the ſame.

And that the bailiffs and capital burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the major part of them, (of whom we will that the bailiffs of the ſaid borough for the time being be two) as oft as they ſhall compile, make, ordain or eſtabliſh ſuch laws, ſtatutes, ordinances and conſtitutions, in form aforeſaid, may and ſhall be impowered to make, ordain, limit and provide ſuch pains, puniſhments and penalties, by corporal impriſonment, or by fines and amerciaments, or both of them, againſt and upon all delinquents, againſt ſuch ſtatutes, laws, ordinances, conſtitutions, or any of them, or any other puniſhments, as to them, the bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the major part of them (of whom we will that the bailiffs of the ſaid borough for the time being, be two) ſhall ſeem moſt neceſſary, reaſonable and requiſite to be made, for the obſervation of the ſaid laws, ordinances and conſtitutions; and levy and receive the ſaid fines and amerciaments to the benefit and uſe of the ſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, whithout impeachment of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, or any of the officers or miniſters of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, and without any account to be rendered thereof to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, which all and ſingular laws, ordinances, ſtatutes and conſtitutions, ſo as aforeſaid to be made, we will to be obſerved under the penalties therein to be contained. Nevertheleſs, ſo that ſuch laws, ordinances, ſtatutes and conſtitutions, fines and amerciaments ſhall be reaſonable, and not repugnant or contrary to the laws, ſtatutes, cuſtoms or rights of our kingdom of England.

And for the better execution of our will and grant in this behalf, we have aſſigned, nominated, created, conſtituted and made, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do aſſign, nominate, create, conſtitute and make our beloved John Price, gent. and William Dampart, yeoman, burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, to be the two firſt modern bailiffs of the ſaid borough, to be continued in the ſaid offices of bailiffs of the ſaid borough, from the date of theſe preſents to Wedneſday immediately before the feaſt of St. Michael the archangel then next enſuing, and from thenceforth until two other of the capital burgeſſes of the ſaid borough ſhall be duly elected, deputed and ſworn to the ſaid offices, according to the ordinances and proviſions in theſe preſents hereafter expreſſed and declared, if the ſaid John Price and William Dampart ſhall ſo long live. Alſo we have aſſigned, nominated and conſtituted, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do aſſign, nominate and conſtitute the above-named John Price, William Dampart, and our beloved Thomas Baſſonals, butcher, Anthony Garret, John Jenk, William Jenk, Thomas Eddon, Thomas Clerkſon, Henry Overbury, Roger Harriſon, Thomas Read, John Freeman, Thomas Clerk and Richard Coleman, to be the firſt and preſent fourteen capital burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, to be continued in the ſaid offices of capital burgeſſes of the ſaid borough during their natural lives, unleſs, in the mean times, they or any of them ſhall be removed from their offices for male-adminiſtration or miſdemeanor in the ſame, or ſome other reaſonable cauſe.

Alſo we have aſſigned, nominated, created and conſtituted, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do aſſign, conſtitute, name and make our beloved Robert Bompas, John Higgins, Thomas Joyce, Laurence Croſs, Triſtram Warne, Richard Garret, William White, John Tiſſoe, John Turner, John Trevis, John Wilſon and George Freeman, burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, to be the firſt and preſent twelve inferior burgeſſes of the common council of the ſaid borough, to be continued in the ſaid offices during their natural lives, unleſs, in the mean time, they or any of them ſhall be removed for male-adminiſtration, or miſdemeanor in their ſaid offices, or for any reaſonable cauſe.

And farther we will, and by theſe preſents do, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, give and grant to the above-named bailiffs and burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, and their ſucceſſors, that the ſaid fourteen capital burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the greater part of them, may and ſhall from time to time, for ever hereafter, have power and authority yearly, and every year, upon the Wedneſday which ſhall firſt and immediately happen to be before the feaſt of St. Michael the archangel, to chuſe and nominate, and that they may and ſhall chuſe and nominate two of themſelves, the aforeſaid capital burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, who ſhall be bailiffs of the ſaid borough for one whole year thereafter next enſuing; and that they who in form aforeſaid ſhall be elected and nominated into the offices of bailiffs of the ſaid borough, before they are admitted to execute their offices, ſhall take their corporal oaths before the laſt bailiffs their predeceſſors, the ſteward, and the reſt of the capital burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, or as many of them as ſhall be then preſent, well, and truly and faithfully to execute the ſaid offices in all things thereunto belonging. And that after taking ſuch oaths, they may and ſhall from thenceforth execute the offices of bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for one whole year next enſuing.

And moreover we will, and by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs, and burgeſſes, of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that if it ſhall happen that the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, or either of them, at any time within one year after they ſhall be elected and ſworn, ſo as aforeſaid, to the offices of bailiffs of the ſaid borough, ſhall die, or be removed from their offices, that then and as often it ſhall and may be lawful for the capital burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, (or the major part of them) to chooſe and depute one or two others of the aforeſaid capital burgeſſes of the borough into the offices of bailiff or bailiffs of the ſaid borough, according to the ordinances and proviſions in theſe preſents declared. And that he or they ſo elected or deputed into the office or offices of bailiff or bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, ſhall have and exerciſe the ſaid offices during the reſidue of the year, having firſt taken the corporal oaths in form aforeſaid, and ſo as often as the caſe ſhall ſo happen.

And farther we will, and by theſe preſents, for us our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, and their ſucceſſors, that whenſoever it ſhall happen that any one or more of the aforeſaid capital or inferior burgeſſes of common council of the borough aforeſaid ſhall die, or for ſome reaſonable cauſe be removed from their offices of capital or inferior burgeſſes of common council of the borough aforeſaid; which ſaid burgeſſes or any of them, our will is, ſhall for miſdemeanor be removed from their offices at the diſcretion of the bailiffs and capital burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, for the time being, or the major part of them, that then, and as often, it ſhall and may be lawful for the ſurviving and remaining capital burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, or the major part of them, to elect, nominate and depute one other, or more, of the burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, in the room of him or them of the capital or inferior burgeſſes of the common council of the borough aforeſaid, ſo happening to die or be removed, for ſupplying the aforeſaid number of fourteen capital burgeſſes, or twelve inferior burgeſſes, of common council of the borough aforeſaid, and that he or they ſo elected and deputed, as aforeſaid, to the offices of capital or inferior burgeſſes of the common council of the ſaid borough, having taken their corporal oaths before the bailiffs and ſteward of the ſaid borough for the time being, well and truly and faithfully to execute the ſaid offices, ſhall be of the number of the aforeſaid fourteen capital burgeſſes, or twelve inferior burgeſſes of the common council of the borough aforeſaid, and ſo from time to time as the caſe ſhall ſo happen.

And farther we will, and by theſe preſents, for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the ſaid borough and their ſucceſſors, that they and their ſucceſſors, for ever hereafter, may and ſhall have in the borough aforeſaid one perſon, diſcreet and learned in the laws of England, choſen and nominated in form following in theſe preſents, who ſhall be, and be nominated ſteward of the borough aforeſaid; and we have aſſigned, nominated, ordained, conſtituted and made,

and

and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do aſſign, nominate, conſtitute and make our beloved ſubject Nicholas Overbury, eſq; to be the firſt and preſent ſteward of the ſaid borough, during the pleaſure of the bailiffs and capital burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, or the major part of them, (of whom we will that the bailiffs of the ſaid borough for the time being be two) or until any other ſhall be duly elected, deputed and ſworn to the office of ſteward of the aforeſaid borough, by the bailiffs and capital burgeſſes of the ſame for the time being, or the major part of them, (of whom we will that the bailiffs of the ſaid borough for the time being be two) and we will, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the ſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that whenſoever it ſhall happen that the office of ſteward of the ſaid borough ſhall be vacant, by death, ſurrender, removal, or any other manner whatſoever, that then, and as often, it may and ſhall be lawful for the aforeſaid bailiffs and capital burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, for the time being, or the major part of them, (of whom we will that the bailiffs of the ſaid borough for the time being be two) to elect and depute one other perſon, diſcreet and learned in the laws of England, to be ſteward of the ſaid borough; and that he being ſo elected and deputed, in form aforeſaid, and having taken his corporal oath well and faithfully to execute the office of ſteward of the ſaid borough, in all things touching or any ways concerning that office, before the bailiffs, and as many of the capital burgeſſes as will then be preſent, may and ſhall execute and exerciſe the office of ſteward of that borough, during the pleaſure of the bailiffs and capital burgeſſes of the ſaid borough, or the major part of them, (of whom we will that the bailiffs of the ſaid borough be two) and this ſo often as the caſe ſo happens.

And furthermore we will, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant unto the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that they and their ſucceſſors from henceforth for ever, have and hold, and may and have power to have and to hold, within the borough aforeſaid, one court of record, on Friday every fourth week yearly, before the bailiffs and ſteward of the borough aforeſaid for the time being, or a ſufficient deputy of the ſame ſteward for the time being; and that in the court they be enabled, and may hold by plaint in the ſame court, to levy all and all manner of pleas, cauſes, ſuits and demands perſonal, concerning whatſoever treſpaſſes, by force of arms, and other perſonal actions whatſoever, within the borough aforeſaid, the liberties and precincts of the ſame, moved, ariſing or committed, or for the future may be moved, ariſe, had, or committed, and of all and all manner of debts, pleas on the caſe, frauds, compoſitions, covenants, deteinors of writings, muniments and chattles, taking and detaining of beaſts and cattle, and other contracts whatſoever, within the borough aforeſaid, the liberties and precincts thereof ariſing, or that for the future may happen to ariſe, although the ſame treſpaſſes, debts, compoſitions, covenants, frauds, deteinors or other contracts, do amount to, or not amount to, or exceed the ſum or value of forty ſhillings, ſo that they do not exceed the ſum of ſix pounds, thirteen ſhillings and four-pence; and that ſuch pleas, plaints, ſuits and actions, ſhall be there heard and determined before the ſaid bailiffs and ſteward of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the ſufficient deputy of the ſteward for the time being, by ſuch and ſuch like proceſs, means and manners, according to the law and cuſtom of our kingdom of England, and what have been conſonant unto our law, and that in as ample manner and form, as has been uſed and accuſtomed in any other court of record, in any city, borough or town corporate, within this our kingdom of England.

And that the bailiffs and capital burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid for the time being, or the major part of them, (of whom we will that the bailiffs for the time being ſhall be two) from time to time have, and ſhall have power and authority in full court aforeſaid to chooſe, nominate, appoint, admit and ſwear, ſo many diſcreet, experienced and fit men to be attorneys, and to attend the court of record aforeſaid, as often as their preſence, miniſtery and ſervice ſhall be required, as to the aforeſaid bailiffs and capital burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, or the major part of them, (of whom we will the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid for the time being ſhall be two) ſhall ſeem neceſſary to be choſen and nominated, as is uſed in any other courts of record within this our kingdom of England.

And moreover we will, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the foreſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that from henceforth for ever, there may and ſhall be two officers, which ſhall be called ſerjeants at mace, in the borough aforeſaid, for proclamation, arreſt and execution of proceſs, mandates, and other buſineſs belonging to the office of ſerjeants at mace, in the borough aforeſaid, its limits, bounds and precincts, and from time to time to be performed and executed; which ſerjeants at mace ſhall be appointed, nominated and choſen by the aforeſaid bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, and ſhall be to attend from time to time upon the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid for the time being; and that the aforeſaid ſerjeants at mace, ſo to be choſen and nominated, ſhall in due manner be ſworn to exerciſe their offices aforeſaid before the bailiffs and ſteward of the borough aforeſaid, or the deputy of the ſame ſteward; and after ſuch oath ſo taken, they may and ſhall have power to exerciſe and enjoy thoſe offices, during the pleaſure of the bailiffs of the ſaid borough. And that the aforeſaid ſerjeants at mace, in the borough aforeſaid, to be deputed, ſhall bear and carry gilt or ſilver maces, engraved and adorned with the enſign of our arms, before the bailiffs of the borough aforeſaid, for the time being, every where within the ſaid borough, ſuburbs, liberties and precincts of the ſame.

And farthermore we will, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that they and their ſucceſſors from henceforth for ever, have, hold and keep, and may have power to have, hold and keep yearly for ever, in the borough aforeſaid, two fairs, to be held every year in the ſaid borough; the firſt of the ſaid fairs to begin on the feaſt of St. Andrew the apoſtle, and to continue all that feaſt, and the other fair of the two fairs to begin in and upon Aſh-Wedneſday, and to continue all that day, together with a pye-powder court, to be there held in the time of the ſaid fairs, with all liberties and free cuſtoms, tolls, ſtallage, picages, fines, amerciaments, and all other profits, commodities and emoluments whatſoever, belonging or happening to, ariſing from or touching ſuch fairs, or pye-powder courts, with all other free cuſtoms and liberties whatſoever, to ſuch kind of fairs and pye-powder courts belonging or appertaining, but ſo that the ſaid fairs be not to the damage of any near ajacent neighbouring fairs.

And farthermore, out of our more abundant ſpecial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, we have given and granted, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do give and grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, ſpecial licence, free and lawful power, faculty and authority, of having, purchaſing, receiving and poſſeſſing, to them and their ſucceſſors for ever, to the uſe and benefit of a free grammar-ſchool within the borough aforeſaid, and the poor inhabitants of the ſaid borough, or any other buſineſs neceſſary to be done in and about the borough aforeſaid, meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, feedings, woods, underwoods, rectories, tithes, rents, reverſions, and other hereditaments whatſoever, within our kingdom of England, or elſewhere within our dominions, as well of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, as of any other perſon or perſons, which are not immediately held in capite, nor by knights ſervice from us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, ſo that the ſame meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, feedings, woods, underwoods, rectories, tithes, rents, reverſions and other hereditaments, do not in the whole exceed the yearly value of forty pounds, above all charges and repriſals, the ſtatute of mortmain, or any other ſtatute, act, ordinance or proviſion heretofore had, made, ordained or provided, or any other thing, cauſe or matter whatſoever to the contrary hereof in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

We give alſo and grant for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, by theſe preſents, to every ſubject or ſubjects of ours, our heirs and ſucceſſors, licence, free and lawful power, faculty and authority, that they or any of them may have power to give, ſet, deviſe or alienate, to the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, feedings, woods, underwoods, rectories, tithes, rents, reverſions and hereditaments whatſoever, which are not held of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors in capite, or by knights ſervice, ſo that the ſame meſſuages, lands, tenements, meadows, paſtures, feedings, woods, underwoods, rectories, tithes, rents, reverſions and other hereditaments, ſo to the ſame bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, by virtue of theſe preſents to be given, granted, deviſed or alienated, do not exceed, in the whole, the clear yearly value of forty pounds by the year, above all charges and repritals; the ſtatute of mortmain, or any other thing, cauſe or matter whatſoever heretofore had, made, ſet forth, ordained or provided to the contrary hereof notwithſtanding.

And farthermore out of our more abundant ſpecial grace, certain knowledge and mere motion, we have granted and confirmed, and by theſe preſents for us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, do grant and confirm to the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, all and all manner of liberties, franchiſes, exemptions, diſcharges, juriſdictions, cuſtoms, privileges, lands, tenements and hereditaments, which the bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid now have, hold, enjoy and uſe, or ought to have, hold, uſe and enjoy, or that ſome or any of them or their predeceſſors, by whatſoever name or names, or by whatſoever incorporation, or by pretence of whatſoever incorporation, have, had, uſed or enjoyed, or ought to have, had, held, uſed, enjoyed, or hath, had, uſed and enjoyed by reaſon or pretence of any charter or letters patents heretofore confirmed or granted, any manner of way, by any of our progenitors or anceſtors, or by any other lawful means, right, uſe or preſumption heretofore had and uſed, to have and hold and enjoy to the foreſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors for ever; yielding and paying to us, our heirs and ſucceſſors, ſuch manner of and ſuch like rents, ſervices and ſums of money, which of right have been accuſtomed heretofore to be due and payable therefore to us, our progenitors or predeceſſors.

We will alſo and grant to the foreſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, and their ſucceſſors, that they have, hold, uſe and enjoy, and may have power fully to have, hold, uſe and enjoy for ever, all the liberties, free cuſtoms, privileges, juriſdictions and diſcharges aforeſaid, according to the tenor and effect of theſe our letters patents, without any let or hindrance of us, our heirs or ſucceſſors whomſoever, not being willing that the ſame bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid ſhall, by reaſon of the premiſſes or any of them, be let, moleſted, vexed or aggrieved, or in any wiſe diſturbed by us, our heirs or ſucceſſors, or by the juſtices, ſheriffs, eſchetors, and other bailiffs or miniſters of us, our heirs and ſucceſſors whatſoever. Willing, and by theſe preſents ſtrictly charging and commanding, as well the treaſurer, chancellor, and barons of our exchequer, and of our heirs and ſucceſſors, and all and ſingular others our juſtices, and of our heirs and ſucceſſors, as our attorney and ſolicitor general, for the time being, and every of them, and all other our officers and miniſters whatſoever, that neither they nor any nor either of them ſhall proſecute or continue, or any of them cauſe to be proſecuted or continued, any writ or ſummons of quo warranto, or any other writ or proceſs of ours whatſoever, againſt the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, or either or any of them, for any cauſes, things or matters, offences, claims or uſurpations, or any of them, by them or any of them due, claimed, attempted, uſed, had or uſurped before the day of the making of theſe.

Willing alſo that the bailiffs and burgeſſes of that borough, or any of them, ſhall not by any of our juſtices, officers or miniſters aforeſaid, in or for any debt, uſage, claim, or abuſe, liberties, franchiſes or juriſdictions, within the borough aforeſaid, the ſuburbs and precincts of the ſame, before the making of theſe our letters patents, be moleſted or diſturbed, or be compelled to anſwer to them or any of them.

Saving nevertheleſs always to Anthony Smith, eſq; his heirs and aſſigns, all and all manner of ſuch, the ſame, and ſuch like liberties, franchiſes, privileges, immunities, preheminences and juriſdictions whatſoever, which the ſame Anthony Smith, at the time of the making of theſe preſents, lawfully had, uſed and enjoyed, or ought lawfully to have, uſe or enjoy, within the foreſaid borough of Chipping Campden, in as ample manner and form as if theſe letters patents had never been made, any thing in theſe preſents to the contrary thereof notwithſtanding.

We will alſo, and by theſe preſents do grant to the aforeſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, that they have and ſhall have theſe our letters patents, made and ſealed in due manner, under our great ſeal of England, without yielding or paying great or ſmall fine or fee to us in the hanaper of our chancery, or elſewhere, to our uſe in any manner, notwithſtanding expreſs mention of the true yearly value, or any other value, or certainty of the premiſſes or any of them, or any other gifts or grants by us, or any of our anceſtors or progenitors, to the foreſaid bailiffs and burgeſſes of the borough aforeſaid, before theſe times, in theſe preſents does not appear, or any other ſtatute, act, ordinance, proviſion, proclamation or reſtriction to the contrary hereof heretofore had, made, ſet forth, ordained or provided, or any other thing, cauſe or matter whatſoever in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

In witneſs whereof we have cauſed theſe our letters to be made patents. Witneſs ourſelf at Weſtminſter the thirteenth day of June, in the third year of our reign over England, France, and Ireland, and Scotland, 38.

By Writ of the Privy Seal, &c.

T. RAVENSCROFT.

NUMBER XXVIII.

STATUTES and ORDERS, for the better Rule and Government of the CATHEDRAL CHURCH of GLOUCESTER, appointed and preſcribed by the Command of King HENRY the Eighth, in the Thirty-ſixth Year of his Reign.

HENRY the Eighth, by the grace of God, king of England, France and Ireland, defender of the faith, and ſupreme head upon earth of the church or England and Ireland: To all Sons of Holy Mother the church, to whom this preſent writing ſhall come greeting:

Whereas it has ſeemed good unto us, and to our nobles, and to our whole ſenate, ſtiled the Parliament, being influenced, as we truſt, by God himſelf, to ſuppreſs and aboliſh the monaſteries diſperſed throughout the kingdom for their many and great enormities, and for divers other good cauſes and reaſons, to transfer them to better uſes. We therefore, judging it more conformable to the divine will, and more chriſtian-like, that the pure worſhip of God and the holy goſpel of Chriſt ſhould be diligently and ſincerely preached in thoſe places, where ignorance and ſuperſtition had before prevailed; and that the youth of our kingdoms ſhould be inſtructed in good literature, for the greater increaſe of the chriſtian faith and piety; and that the poor be charitably relieved, have erected and conſtituted in the place of thoſe monaſteries divers churches, whereof ſome we will to be called Cathedral Churches, and others Collegiate Churches. For the better rule and government whereof, we have cauſed the following laws and ſtatutes to be preſcribed, which the deans and canons of both orders, and other officers, children, and the poor who are of, and belong to the ſaid churches, ought to ſubmit unto and obey, and be ruled and governed by the ſame, as if decreed and ordained by ourſelves. Which if they ſhall obſerve, will produce, as we truſt in God, a great increaſe of true piety in this kingdom; and then we ſhall not be deceived or diſappointed in our expectation and good wiſhes, who have erected thoſe churches for the honour of Almighty God, and the increaſe of the chriſtian faith, and have adorned the ſame with divers orders and degrees of officers.

CHAP. I.

The whole Number of thoſe who are to be maintained in the Cathedral Church of Glouceſter.

In the firſt place, we decree and ordain, that there be for ever in the ſaid church one dean, ſix canons, ſix minor-canons, whereof one ſhall be a ſacriſt, another ſhall be deacon, another ſub-deacon; ſix lay-clerks, one maſter of the choriſters, eight choriſters, two maſters to inſtruct children in the grammar, whereof one ſhall be the head maſter, the other the under maſter; four poor people to be maintained at the charges of the ſaid church; two under ſacriſts, two door-keepers, who ſhall alſo be virgers; one butler, one cook, one under cook.

All who, according to this fixed number, ſhall in their ſeveral ranks and orders ſerve in this church, and punctually obey our ſtatutes and orders.

CHAP. II.

Of the Qualification of the Dean.

We decree and ordain, That the dean ſhall be in prieſts orders, of a good life and reputation, and not only learned and ſkilful in ſciences, but have alſo been honoured with a degree of learning, that is, he ſhall be either a doctor in divinity, or batchelor in divinity, or doctor of law. But whenſoever the office of dean ſhall hereafter become void by death, reſignation, deprivation or ceſſion, or by any other means, we will that ſuch perſon ſhall be dean, and be ſo accepted, and ſhall enjoy the office of dean in all reſpects, whom we or our ſucceſſors ſhall nominate, elect and prefer under our letters patents, to be ſealed under the great ſeal of us or our ſucceſſors, and ſhall think fit to preſent to the biſhop of Glouceſter. Which ſaid dean ſo nominated, elected and preſented, and having been inſtituted by the biſhop, the canons for the time being ſhall accept and admit for dean of the cathedral church of Glouceſter.

And the dean, upon ſuch his admiſſion, before he ſhall take upon him any government in the church, or concern himſelf in any affairs thereunto belonging, ſhall take an oath in this form:

The DEAN'S OATH.

I. N. who am elected and inſtituted dean of this cathedral church, do call God to witneſs, and do ſwear upon the holy evangeliſts, that I will, to the beſt of my power, well and truly rule and govern this church, according to the ſtatutes and ordinances of the ſame, ſo far as they agree with God's word, and the laws of this realm. And that I will well and juſtly preſerve and keep, and cauſe to be preſerved and kept by others, all the goods, lands and tenements, the rents and poſſeſſions, rights and liberties and privileges, and all other things moveable and immoveable, ſaving the bare uſe of them; and all other profits belonging to the ſaid church. Theſe, and all other the ordinances of king Henry the Eighth, our founder, as far as they concern myſelf, I will diligently procure to be obſerved. So help me God, and the holy evangeliſts.

We moreover will, That the dean and canons, and other officers of our church, before admiſſion, do take the oath of ſucceſſion and ſupremacy, according to the ſtatutes of the realm in this caſe provided.

CHAP.

CHAP. III.

Of the Office of Dean.

Whereas it behoves a dean to be vigilant, (like the eye in the body, which takes care of the reſt of its members) we will and ordain that the dean, for the time being, ſhall with all diligence govern, and at all times, and upon all occaſions admoniſh, reprehend, reprove and perſuade the canons, and all other miniſters of the church, as one that watcheth for the good of his flock committed to his charge. Let him particularly take care that divine ſervices be performed with all decency, that ſermons be preached upon days appointed, that the children be profitably inſtructed, that alms to the poor be diſtributed, and that all perſons do faithfully diſcharge thoſe duties wherein they are intruſted.

Moreover it is requiſite, That the dean, as often as he is reſident, do keep a ſober and competent family, and relieve the poor with alms; and herein we charge him upon his conſcience, that he honeſtly and frugally demeans himſelf. If the dean proves a ſcandalous covetous man, the biſhop ſhall correct him, and the dean ſhall reprehend the canons if they ſhall prove ſo. He ſhall alſo correct and puniſh all others, who ſhall be wicked and defective in their duties, according to the ſtatutes.

Moreover the dean ſhall diligently and faithfully diſtribute, diſpoſe, keep and preſerve the treaſure, jewels, and ornaments of the church, the golden and ſilver veſſels, the veſtments, utenſils, the charters, muniments, court-rolls, writings, and all other goods and ſubſtances whatſoever, belonging to the church aforeſaid, without any diminution or damage done to them, and without any farther uſe of them than our ſtatutes and ordinances do reaſonably allow and direct.

And he ſhall take care that the ſaid goods be diſtributed, diſpoſed, kept and preſerved by others to whoſe care they belong, that he may leave all things entire to his ſucceſſor.

Finally, we will and ordain, That in all cauſes of a more than ordinary concern (as in granting of leaſes, and ſetting of lands, and ſuch like) the dean's conſent be obtained, if he be reſident, but if abſent, his conſent ſhall be however firſt aſked, if he be within the limits of our kingdom of England.

CHAP. IV.

Of the Viſitation of the Lands.

Farther we will, That the dean or his receiver, or one of them, which receiver ſhall be elected and deputed by the dean, or the ſub-dean and chapter, [By the chapter every where in theſe ſtatutes, underſtand the one half part, at leaſt, of the whole number of the canons.] ſhall once every year (beginning after Eaſter) viſit, and thoroughly inſpect all and ſingular the manors, lands, tenements, houſes, edifices, groves, woods and under-woods belonging to our ſaid church.

To which the dean, or his receiver, ſhall be joined, throughout all the viſitation, a ſteward or clerk of the lands, who ſhall faithfully ſerve him, keep his courts, and give him good counſel. In which viſitation, whatſoever is to be new built or repaired ſhall be accordingly built and repaired, that there may not be found in any of them any ruins, devaſtations, deſtructions, abatement of rents, or other diminution of the farms, thro' want of a due care and inſpection.

We alſo will, That the true ſtate of the manors and edifices be carefully regiſtred, and what reparations are wanting. Beſide, let all be regiſtred which the dean or canon did agree unto, what he did bargain, direct, or order to be done. The dean or canon ſhall, within the ſpace of eight days after his return to his cathedral, lay all theſe things before the other canons then preſent, and give up his account in writing. We have thought good to allow 4s. only for each day to the dean thus viſiting, and employed about the needful affairs of the college, and only 2s. a day to the receiver who ſhall be ſo employed.

CHAP. V.

The letting of Lands and Tenements to Farm.

Farthermore, We decree, that neither the dean, nor any one of the canons ſhall ſell to any perſon any groves or trees, or ſet to any one any lands or tenements for a ſet term of years, or let them to farm without the counſel and conſent of the chapter. It is alſo our will that no land be let to farm above one and twenty years; and not from time to time, as from three years to three years, or from ſeven years to ſeven years, or upon the obligation of renewing any term of time when it ſhall be expired.

However we conſent that houſes or edifices in cities and villages may be ſet for the ſpace of fifty, or at moſt of ſixty years. We alſo will, That in the indentures of farms, the farmers be obliged to pay the ſums of their rents in the cathedral, to our receiver, or to his deputy. But we utterly forbid the alienation or mortgaging of any manor, land, revenue, tenements, or other immoveable thing: For our deſire is, that our church ſhould be enriched, not impoveriſhed.

Let not the dean, nor any one of the canons commence, proſecute, let fall or put an end, to any cauſe or ſuit in law, for the defence, recovery or preſervation of any of the rights of our ſaid church, without the conſent of the chapter.

Let the dean, or in his abſence the ſub-dean, diſpoſe of the benefices, rectories, vicarages, and other eccleſiaſtical preferments belonging to the preſentation of our church, with the conſent of the chapter.

CHAP. VI.

Concerning the ſurrendering of Goods to the Dean.

That the goods of the church aforeſaid may be the more ſafely and ſecurely preſerved, we do ordain and appoint, That as ſoon as the dean hath taken his oath, all they to whom the keeping of any things were committed, either in the time of the preceding dean, or in the vacancy, that is, all they who now have, or before had, any goods in their care and keeping, by indentures or otherwiſe, ſhall before the chapter ſingly give up a true and perfect account of all things by them done or committed, to their care and cuſtody, and ſhall ſurrender, or cauſe to be ſurrendered to the dean, all goods, jewels, all ornaments and other goods whatſoever, to the aforeſaid church belonging; and whatſoever things they before held by their indentures they ſhall, by new indentures, to be made between the dean and them, again receive them from the dean's hands. Of all which things the dean himſelf ſhall forthwith make a new and general inventory, and ſubſcribe to it; which inventory, after it ſhall by the chapter be read, approved and ſubſcribed, let the treaſure, the jewels, ornaments, and other things before-named, which are not neceſſary for daily uſe, and which ought not to lie in the keeping of the officers, by their indentures, be laid up in places appointed for this purpoſe, according to our ſtatutes.

CHAP. VII.

Concerning the Reſidence of the Dean.

Since nothing is more beneficial than the watchful eye of the governor, that all things may be rightly managed, we will and ordain that the dean ſhall always reſide in his own church, except ſome lawful impediment does prevent him. We declare a lawful impediment to be the domeſtick ſervice of the king or queen, which they call ordinary; the ſervice of them who ſupply the places of dean, chaplain, almoner, or a tutor of the prince in the king's court. To theſe add, the king's extraordinary ſervice enjoyned and required, infirmity of body, care of the buſineſs of the church, violent detention, or laſtly, the going to the parliament, or the convocation upon the account of the church, and the continuance there.

If thro' any of theſe impediments it ſhall chance that he be abſent from our church, we will however that, in reſpect of his receiving the fruits and profits of the church, he ſhall be eſteemed as preſent; provided that upon his return he prove before the chapter the cauſe of his abſence.

But, if he ſhall happen to be abſent for other cauſes, we will that he be look'd upon as abſent, according to the time; and let him not expect the profits which they who are duly reſident ought to receive. Moreover we grant leave to the dean to be abſent from his church 100 days at one, or ſeveral times in a year, to mind his parochial concerns, and other benefices, if he hath any, and to diſpatch his own other private buſineſſes; for which times of his abſence, he ſhall receive his emoluments the ſame as if he had been conſtantly reſident.

CHAP. VIII.

Of Obedience to be yielded to the Dean.

Since St. Paul teacheth us that obedience is to be payed to ſuch as bear rule over us, we will and command, that the canons as well as the petty canons and all other miniſters of the church, and each of them do own the dean to be their head and governor: That they reverence him, and in all lawful and honeſt things and commandments which concern our ſtatutes, or do appertain to good government and the ſtate of our church: That they obey, ſubmit to, aid and aſſiſt the dean himſelf or his deputy, or in their abſence, the ſenior canon according to admiſſion.

CHAP. IX.

Concerning the Qualities, Election and Admiſſion of the Canons.

We ordain, and it is our will, that as often as it ſhall happen that any canon of our church aforeſaid ſhall depart, leave, or be expelled from our church, either by death, reſignation, deprivation, tion, ceſſion, or any other way, that then he ſhall be owned and accepted as a canon, whom we or our ſucceſſors ſhall think fit to nominate and chuſe, and by our letters patents under our great ſeal, and the ſeal of our ſucceſſors, to preſent to our biſhop of Glouceſter. We will notwithſtanding, that no one be admitted to be a canon who is not in prieſts orders, of good name, not only learned and ſkilful in the ſcriptures, but dignified with ſome title of learning, either a profeſſor of divinity, or a batchelor of divinity, a doctor of law, or a maſter of arts, or at leaſt a batchelor of law.

And we farther will, that no one be admitted a dean or canon of this church, who is a dean or canon of any other cathedral church, or college of our late foundation, or of our college of Windſor, or of St. Stephen at Weſtminſter. Nevertheleſs, we grant leave to our own, and to our queen's domeſtick chaplains, whom they call ordinary; as alſo, to the dean of our chapel, our almoner, and to the tutor of the prince our ſon, that although they already have a dean or prebend's place in one of the aforeſaid churches or colleges, they may however be admitted to another in this church, provided that in our aforeſaid churches they may not have more than two canons places. Moreover we will that the dean, or his ſub-dean, ſhall in the preſence of the canons receive and admit a canon thus nominated and preſented after the biſhop hath given him inſtitution.

CHAP. X.

Of a Canon's Oath.

Whoever ſhall be thus admitted as a canon, ſhall ſwear in the preſence of the dean or his deputy, together with the other canons, in this form.

I N. who am nominated, elected and inſtituted a canon of this church of the holy and undivided Trinity in Glouceſter, laying my hand upon the ſacred goſpel, do ſwear, that to my ability I will keep and cauſe to be kept all the lands, tenements, revenues, poſſeſſions, rights, liberties, privileges and all other things belonging to this church; und will myſelf moſt faithfully keep, and as much as in me lies, will cauſe to be kept by others, all and ſingular the ſtatutes and ordinances of king Henry the Eighth our founder, ſo far forth as they are agreeable to the word of God, and the laws of this realm: Nor will I wittingly obſtruct any thing that may be done for the benefit and reputation of this church, but will procure and augment its profit: And if I ſhall be called, choſen and deſigned to bear any office in this church aforeſaid, I will not refuſe to undertake it, and diligently to act therein, according to my ability. All and each of theſe things I will perform. So God help me and this holy goſpel.

CHAP. XI.

Of the Reſidence of the Canons.

Foraſmuch as it is not expedient that the members ſhould be very remote from the head, it is our will that, as the dean, ſo the canons alſo ſhall keep themſelves at home, and be always reſident in our church, except ſome lawful impediment does prevent.

We declare the domeſtick ſervice of the king or queen (which they call ordinary) the ſervice of thoſe who in the king's court ſerve as deans, chaplains, almoners or inſtructors of the prince in grammar; any employment enjoyn'd by the king; ſickneſs, the care of the concerns of our church; any violent detention; and laſtly, going and attending in the parliament or convocation; all theſe we call lawful impediments.

If therefore he is abſent from our church for any of thoſe impediments, it is our will that he be accounted as reſident, in reſpect of his receiving any fruits and benefits from the ſaid church; ſo that when he is returned, he makes good the alledged cauſe of his abſence before the dean or the ſub-dean, the canons alſo being then preſent.

Beſides, we give leave to every one of the canons to be abſent from our church in every year eighty days at one, or at ſeveral times, to viſit their cures or other benefices, if they have any, and to mind their own private concerns. For the time of which abſence they ſhall receive the ſame ſalary as a reſident doth.

Farthermore, we ordain, and it is our will, that as often as any dean or canon travels within fifteen miles of our church to preach, if he be abſent one whole day, he ſhall however receive the profits of that day, the ſame as if he had been at home: And if he goes to preach more than fifteen miles, and leſs than twenty-four miles from our church, he ſhall receive the ſame emoluments which they have who remain at home, though he be abſent two full days.

And withal we decree, and it is our will, that the third part at leaſt of the whole number of canons be always reſident in our church: and except the third part do continue at home, we command that all they who ſhall be abſent without a lawful impediment, ſhall loſe their dividends, and alſo the money due to the corps of any prebend, ſo long as the third part of the canons, as has been ſaid, ſhall nor be reſident.

CHAP. XII.

Of Sermons to be preached in our Church.

Becauſe the word of God is a lanthorn unto our feet, we ordain and will that the dean and our canons, and withal we beſeech them by the mercies of God, be diligent in ſeaſon and out of ſeaſon, in ſowing the word of God, as in other, ſo more eſpecially in our cathedral church.

And we will that every canon ſhall every year make four ſermons at leaſt to the people in the church aforeſaid, in Engliſh, either by himſelf or by others, and that upon the Lord's days; once between the nativity of Chriſt and the feaſt of the annunciation of the bleſſed Virgin Mary; once between the feaſt of the bleſſed Virgin Mary and the nativity of John; once between the nativity of St. John and the feaſt of Michael; and once between the feaſt of Michael and the nativity of Chriſt; ſo that almoſt no one Lord's day in the whole year ſhall be without a ſermon. But we will that the dean, either by himſelf or by his proxy, ſhall preach every year in our Engliſh tongue at Eaſter, upon Corpus Chriſti day, and at Chriſtmas.

CHAP. XIII.

Of the Canons Table.

We ordain and will that all the reſident canons ſhall live apart with their ſeveral families, and ſhall ſo diſpoſe of the revenues which they ſhall receive by our liberality to good purpoſes, that they may not ſeem to have ſought ſhifts and excuſes for their covetouſneſs, or to have been guilty of too much prodigality. But if any one be notoriouſly guilty of one of theſe vices, let him be rebuked by the dean, or in his abſence, by the ſub-dean; or if occaſion be, let him be puniſhed by a fine as ſhall be thought reaſonable.

Moreover, if there be any canon who hath not 40l. of a conſtant yearly rent, beſide the ſalary of our church, all his payments being deducted, we will not that he be conſtrained to maintain his family apart, but ordain that he go to the table of the dean, or ſome canon or minor-canon within the circuit of our church.

But if there be more canons in this circumſtance, they may maintain a common table of their own. All who thus living together at a common table, ſhall be eſteemed but as one reſident, and ſhall receive out of the common dividends, but ſo much as one of them who maintain their families apart. But we utterly forbid all others who have no common table amongſt themſelves, but go to another's table, to be partakers of the dividends, ariſing from the abſence of the dean and other canons.

CHAP. XIV.

Of the Salary of the Dean and Canons.

We know that hoſpitality is very acceptable to God, which that the dean and canons may obſerve, we ordain and appoint that the dean ſhall every year receive for the corps of his deanery, by the hands of the treaſurer, 27*l.* of lawful money of England. And that every canon ſhall yearly receive for the corps of his prebend, by the hands of the treaſurer, 7*l.* 17*s.* and 8*d.* of lawful money of England.

We farther decree and will, That the dean for every day in which he ſhall be either in all the mattins, or at maſs, or in the even-ſervices, apparell'd with his proper attirements, and alſo for thoſe days he ſhall be abſent by the toleration of our ſtatutes, he ſhall receive from our church 4*s.* of lawful money of England. And in like manner we ordain, that every canon, for every day in which he ſhall wear his proper ornaments, either in all the mattins, or at maſs, or in the veſpers, or in which he is abſent by the permiſſion of our ſtatutes, ſhall receive from our church 8*d.* of lawful money of England.

We alſo will and ordain, That all the four moſt uſual quarters of the year, that is, at the feaſt of Michael, the nativity of Chriſt, the annunciation of the bleſſed Virgin Mary, and the feaſt of John Baptiſt, all and every ſalary be paid, as well to the dean and canons, as to all other officers and miniſters; and alſo all thoſe moneys which ought to be paid for their common table each month; and alſo all that money which every year doth ariſe out of the abſence of the dean and canons, and which is to be divided amongſt the reſidents.

Which money is thus to be collected: The precentor, for the time being, ſhall faithfully note thoſe days in which the dean and canons are abſent. From the dean ſhall be detained, for every day of his abſence, 4*s.* and from each canon, for every day of his abſence, ſhall be taken 8*d.* and let the treaſurer detain it.

Let this ſum, thus ariſing out of the abſence of the dean and canons, be divided at the end of the year, in the feaſt of St. Michael, by a proportionable diſtribution between the reſident dean and the reſident canons. Now thoſe we call reſidents, who for for one and twenty days together are at divine ſervice, according to the orders of our ſtatutes, and do maintain their families apart. And it is our pleaſure that the dean receive twice as much as a canon; that is, if a reſident canon receives for his portion 8d. out of the dividends, the dean ſhall receive 16d.

CHAP. XV.

Of the Election of Officers.

The dean and prebendaries ought to remember that they are united together as one body. And we will and command that they being mindful of it, ſhall in common conſult together in love and charity; yet ſo that the power of reprehending be left wholly to the dean, or in his abſence, to the ſub-dean, who may gently and mildly admoniſh even the reſident canons, and may check and prudently reprove every one in their ſeveral places.

Therefore let the dean, or in his abſence, the ſub-dean, every year (the canons being convened upon the laſt day of November) chuſe and eſtabliſh the following officers, with the common conſent of the chapter, out of the canons, that is, the ſub-dean, the receiver and treaſurer. And we will that ſuch as ſhall refuſe the office aſſigned them, without ſuch an excuſe as ſhall be approved of by the electors, ſhall be for ever expelled from our church.

And we will that all the canons, except ſuch as are excuſed by our forenamed lawful impediments, do meet and be preſent in our foreſaid church at this election of officers; otherwiſe, as many as ſhall be then abſent, ſhall be utterly deprived of that whole ſum of money which they ſhould have received that year for the corps of their prebends.

CHAP. XVI.

Of the Office of the Sub-Dean.

We do decree, and will, that the ſub-dean for the time being, whilſt the dean is abſent, or the deanery vacant, ſhall preſide and have charge over the canons, and all the miniſters and officers of our church, and keep them in order; that whatſoever things ought to be done by the dean being reſident, belonging to the affairs or government of the church, whilſt he is abſent, or his office vacant, the ſub-dean ſhall well and truly perform and execute: And whilſt the dean is preſent, he ſhall be next to him, and reſpected above the reſt, as well in the choir as elſewhere; and therefore in all affairs of our church, he ought to be more diligent and circumſpect, that he may ſeem to be one and the ſame head with the dean. Moreover, we will that the dean's place being void, the ſub-dean ſhall have the full and entire power of ruling and governing in our church in all things, and in like manner as is given and granted in our ſtatutes to the dean himſelf, until a new dean ſhall be elected and ſubſtituted; and he in preſence of thoſe who elected him to this office, laying his hand upon the bible, ſhall ſwear that he will faithfully perform all theſe things.

CHAP. XVII.

Of the Office of a Receiver.

We ordain that whoſoever is admitted into the office of a receiver, ſhall collect and receive all moneys and rents of lands and tenements, and all debts belonging to our church; and as ſoon as conveniently he can, he ſhall deliver them to the treaſurer for the time being.

It ſhall be the charge of the receiver alſo to take care of all the goods of the ſaid church, eſpecially thoſe abroad, and timely to look to the ruins and neceſſary reparations of the diſtant.

To him alſo it ſhall belong to undertake and perform all ſuch things as are before preſcribed to him under the title of the office of dean, that is, the viſitation of lands and tenements; and then laying his hand upon the holy evangeliſts in the preſence of his electors, he ſhall bind himſelf by an oath, that he will faithfully and diligently perform all theſe things.

CHAP. XVIII.

Of the Treaſurer's Office.

We appoint and ordain, That the treaſurer for the time being ſhall duly pay, as well thoſe ſalaries which every month are to be paid to the miniſters and others belonging to the choir, for their diet and commons, as thoſe which are to be paid quarterly, and thoſe alſo which are to be paid at the end of the year for dividends. To him alſo it belongs, to take care that the buildings of the church be kept in good reparation; and with the advice of the dean, or in his abſence, of the ſub-dean, to mend and repair the houſes of all the miniſters of our church, except thoſe of the dean and canons, as often as need ſhall require; and to provide whatſoever doth neceſſarily belong to the repairing and adorning of the church and choir.

He ſhall alſo provide materials and timber for building. He ſhall alſo look to the buildings of the dean and canons; which if they do not repair after notice given, the treaſurer, out of their ſalaries, ſhall ſee that they be repaired.

Moreover, that the houſes of the canons may be the better and more diligently kept in repair, we ordain, that a canon newly choſen may ſucceed in the houſe of one that's dead, or that hath reſigned, or upon any account hath withdrawn; and that he have and enjoy it, with the gardens, ſtable, and other conveniences thereunto belonging. In fine, let him take care of the veſtry, and let him diligently do his utmoſt to preſerve the ſacred veſtments, the holy veſſels and garments, and all muniments.

All which he ſhall ſwear that he will obſerve, laying his hands upon the holy evangeliſts, in the preſence of them who did elect him.

CHAP. XIX.

Of the Quality, Election, and Admiſſion of the Minor-Canons.

Becauſe we have decreed that God ſhall be praiſed in this our church in hymns and pſalms, and prayers for ever, we have ordained, and do appoint that thoſe ſix prieſts whom we call minor-canons, as alſo the ſix laick-clerks, and alſo the deacon and ſub-deacon (who ſhall read the goſpel and the epiſtle) all whom we have conſtituted daily to celebrate the praiſe of God in our church, be, as much as may be, learned, of a good name, and honeſt converſation; and laſtly, that they be men of judgment in ſinging, which ſhall be approved of by the judgment of thoſe who do well underſtand the art of muſick, in the ſame church. And they ſhall be choſen, when their places are vacant, by the dean, or in his abſence, by the ſub-dean and chapter, and at their admiſſion they ſhall take the following oath.

CHAP. XX.

The Oath of the Miniſters.

I N. being choſen a minor-canon in the church of the holy and undivided Trinity in Glouceſter, do ſwear, that ſo long as I ſhall continue in this church I will inviolably obſerve, to the utmoſt of my ability, as much as in me lyeth, all the orders and ſtatutes made by the moſt potent king Henry the Eighth, founder of this church. And will pay due obedience and reverence to the dean and canons. And laſtly, that I will carefully promote the good and honour of this church. So help me God, and the Holy Goſpels.

Which oath we will that all miniſters ſhall take at their admiſſion.

CHAP. XXI.

Of the Reſidence of the Miniſters.

We will and ordain that the reſidence of the minor-canons, and all other clerks doing ſervice in our church, be perpetual; for it ſhall be lawful to no one to be abſent from our church a whole day, or a whole night, without leave being firſt obtained, either from the dean, or in his abſence, from the ſub-dean. And whoſoever ſhall do otherwiſe, he ſhall be puniſhed by the dean, or in his abſence, by the ſub-dean, at their diſcretion.

And if any of the miniſters of the choir ſhall undecently ſtay away from our church for three months, the dean, or the ſub-dean, being not fore-acquainted with it, we will that he be deprived of his ſalary for three months. And whoſoever of the minor-canons ſhall be abſent from the greater maſs, or from mattins, ſhall loſe a penny; and whoſoever ſhall be abſent from the veſpers, or the complin, ſhall forfeit a halfpenny; and whoſoever ſhall be abſent after the firſt or third, or ſixth or ninth hour, ſhall be ſconced a farthing; whoſoever is not in the choir before the firſt pſalm is finiſhed, or before Kyrie eleeſon, in the maſs, ſhall forfeit a farthing; whoſoever ſhall refuſe to do as the precentor requires him, ſhall forfeit two-pence.

But the puniſhment of the clerks ſhall be determined by the pleaſure of the dean, or of the major part of the canons who are preſent, to whoſe ſentence the clerks ſhall ſubmit.

Let the money that is forfeited by thoſe who are abſent be equally divided amongſt thoſe who were not abſent, at the end of every quarter. And according to the number of the days in which any one was preſent, he ſhall receive more of the dividends; he that was preſent fewer days ſhall receive the leſs.

However, that the minor-canons, and preſbyters of our church, may be encouraged the more diligently to attend their charge, we do permit that they do enjoy one eccleſiaſtical benefice jointly with their office in the church; provided that the ſaid benefice be not above twenty-four miles diſtant from the city of Glouceſter. And whilſt they continue in the ſervice of our cathedral, we give them licence, and do diſpence with their abſence from ſuch benefice; any act or ſtatute of this realm to the contrary notwithſtanding.

CHAP. XXII.

Of the Precentor and his Office.

We decree and ordain, that by the dean, or he being abſent, by the ſub-dean and the chapter, out of the minor canons, one elder than the reſt, and more eminent, both for his behaviour and for his learning, ſhall be choſen precentor; whoſe office it ſhall be handſomely to direct the ſinging men in the church, and, as a guide, to lead them by his previous ſinging, that they make no diſcords whilſt they ſing; whom the reſt ſhall obey.

As to the buſineſs of the choir, all the minor-canons and clerks, and others who ſhall ſing in the church, ought readily to obey whatever he hath ordered them to read.

Beſide, he ſhall faithfully obſerve the abſence from divine ſervice, as well of the dean and canons, as of all who ſerve in the choir; of which abſence he ſhall give a true account every fortnight in the chapter-houſe, before the canons there preſent.

And if any of the minor-canons gives a reaſon of his abſence, it ſhall prevail, if the dean, or in his abſence, the ſub-dean, allow of it.

He ſhall alſo ſee that the books for the ſervice of the choir be carefully laid up. And, in fine, as oft as he ſhall be abſent from our church, he ſhall ſubſtitute a deputy, who ſhall faithfully perform what he ought to have done.

All which, by a ſolemn oath, he ſhall promiſe that he will faithfully perform.

CHAP. XXIII.

Of the Sacriſts and Sub-Sacriſts.

We ordain and will, that one of the minor-canons, being a careful and honeſt man, ſhall be choſen by the dean, or in his abſence, by the ſub-dean and chapter, who ſhall be called the ſacriſt, to whom ſhall be committed the care of the church, the altar, the chapels, the veſtments, the books, the calices, the muniments, and other ornaments, which he ſhall receive from the treaſurer, in the preſence of the dean or ſub-dean, and the canons then preſent; and he ſhall be bound by indentures, or ſome ſuch way, to deliver them up. With the advice of the treaſurer he ſhall alſo take care that there be no want of wine, water, or wax-candles, for the celebration of divine ſervices in the church aforeſaid, at times proper for their celebration.

The ſame ſacriſt ſhall alſo viſit the ſick in our church, and (as often as there is occaſion, or time ſhall require it) he ſhall diligently and reverently adminiſter the ſacraments, as well to the ſick as to thoſe that are in health.

The offerings alſo in the church, if there be any, he ſhall take, and keep to be delivered up for the uſe of the church.

We will alſo that he have under him two honeſt and induſtrious men (to be nominated by the dean, or, in his abſence, by the ſub-dean and chapter) who ſhall be obedient to the commands of this ſacriſt, who ſhall lay up the veſtments, light the candles, keep the altars, take care that the church be ſwept and kept clean, toll the bells, or ſee that they be tolled at times appointed by the dean or ſub-dean.

Laſtly, we will, that as well the ſacriſts as their ſub-ſacriſts, when it ſhall happen that they are abſent from our church, ſhall ſubſtitute others in their places, who, in their abſence, ſhall faithfully execute their office.

Which ſacriſt, and his ſub-ſacriſts, ſhall oblige themſelves by oath to be faithful in their places.

CHAP. XXIV.

Of the Choriſters and their Maſter.

We decree and ordain, that in our church aforeſaid, by the election and deſignation of the dean, or in his abſence, of the vice-dean and chapter, there be eight choriſters, youths who have good voices and are inclined to ſinging, who may ſerve, miniſter and ſing in our choir.

For the inſtruction of theſe youths, and training them up, as well in modeſt behaviour, as in ſkilfulneſs of ſinging, we will that by the dean, or in his abſence by the ſub-dean and chapter, beſide the eight choriſters before named, there ſhall be one choſen who is of a good life and reputation, ſkilful both in ſinging and in playing upon the organs, who ſhall diligently ſpend his time in inſtructing the boys in playing upon the organs, and at proper times in ſinging divine ſervice. But if he be negligent, and careleſs in teaching them, let him be depoſed from his office, after the third admonition. He ſhall alſo be bound by an oath faithfully to diſcharge his duty.

CHAP. XXV.

Of the School-Maſters.

That piety and good learning may alway ſpring, grow, flouriſh, and in due time prove fruitful in our church, to the glory of God, and the good and honour of the commonwealth, we will and ordain, that by the dean, or in his abſence, by the ſub-dean and chapter, one be choſen who is ſkilful in Greek and Latin, of good fame, and a godly life, well qualified for teaching, who may train up in piety and good learning, thoſe children who ſhall reſort to our ſchool to learn grammar. And let him have the firſt charge, and be the chief ſchool-maſter. We alſo will that by the dean, or in his abſence, by the ſub-dean, there be one other choſen, of good repute, and of a virtuous life, well ſkilled in the Latin tongue, and who hath a good faculty in teaching, who ſhall inſtruct the youths under the head maſter, in the firſt rudiments of grammar, and ſhall therefore be called the under-maſter, or uſher. And we will that thoſe inſtructors of youth do carefully and faithfully obſerve thoſe rules and orders which the dean, or in his abſence, the ſub-dean and chapter, ſhall think fit to preſcribe unto them.

But if they prove idle, negligent, or not fit to teach, let them be expelled, and deprived of their places, after a third admonition from the dean, or in his abſence, from the ſub-dean and chapter.

Theſe ſhall be obliged by oath that they will faithfully perform all duties belonging to their places.

CHAP. XXVI.

Of the Poor and their Duty.

We ordain and will, that by the deſignation and election of us, or of our ſucceſſors, by the letters of us or them, ſigned with our or their hands, there be in our church aforeſaid, maintained out of the profits of our church, four poor men, oppreſſed with want and poverty, maimed in the wars, weakened with age, or any other ways diſabled, and reduced to want and miſery; whoſe office it ſhall be, as far as their infirmity will permit them, to be daily preſent in the church in the time of divine ſervice, to give themſelves to prayer; to ſerve, aſſiſt, and help the preſbyters in their preparing themſelves for prayers; to keep the body of the church and choir clean from all filth and naſtineſs; to aſſiſt, as much as they are able, the ſub-ſacriſts in lighting the candles, and in tolling the bells; and laſtly, to obey the dean and ſub-dean in ſuch things as belong to the decency of the church. But if they be found negligent in thoſe offices, they ſhall be corrected according to the pleaſure of the dean, or in his abſence, of the ſub-dean. And if any of them be abſent, and reſide not in our church, or at leaſt in the houſes thereunto adjoining, we will that according to the time of their abſence they loſe their ſalary. Yet we grant leave to the dean, or in his abſence, to the ſub-dean, to give them leave to be abſent twenty days in a year, for ſome cauſe to be approved of by the dean, or in his abſence, by the ſub-dean. And they ſhall give aſſurance that they will do their duties, by the like oath that other officers of our church do take.

CHAP. XXVII.

Of the inferior Officers of the Church.

Since no one can worthily ſerve in the offices of the church, and at the ſame time be intangled with worldly concerns, and that they who miniſter in our choir may not be obſtructed in their duty, we ordain, that inferior officers ſhall be ſubſtituted.

We will therefore that the dean, or in his abſence, the ſub-dean, according to his diſcretion and prudence, do make choice of, and admit as a butler or manciple, an induſtrious man, one of a good repute and converſation, who, at ſeaſonable hours, ſhall ſupply with bread and drink thoſe who eat at the common table, and carefully ſee the buttery ſupplied; and (together with the cook, by the aſſiſtance of the ſteward) ſhall diligently take care to buy proviſions for the table of the minor-canons and officers.

Moreover we will, that the dean, or in his abſence the ſub-dean, chooſe two door-keepers, who ſhall alſo do the office of virgerers, careful men, of a good life and reputation, who ſhall alſo faithfully keep the keys of the gates; and ſhall alſo keep the gates, and outward doors of the bounds of our church, and ſhall ſhut, keep, and open them at the command of the dean, or in his abſence, of the ſub-dean. But in the night time they ſhall not ſuffer them to lye open for any one, unleſs with the expreſs command of the dean, or in his abſence, of the ſub-dean.

Laſtly, the dean, or in his abſence the ſub-dean, ſhall chuſe a cook and an under-cook, men that are induſtrious, of good repute, and of an honeſt life, who ſhall diligently provide the meat and drink for the table of thoſe who eat together.

And all theſe ſhall take the like oath as they take who ſerve in the choir.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Of the common Table of the Officers.

That they who live together, and praiſe God together in the choir, may alſo eat together, and praiſe God together at table, we ordain and will, that as well the minor-canons and officers in the the choir, as the teachers of the grammar-ſcholars, and all other inferior officers of our church, and the children who learn to ſing, ſhall feed together in the common hall, if it may be conveniently done. In which hall the precentor, or in his abſence the ſenior petty-canon, ſhall ſit uppermoſt at the upper table; then the head ſchool-maſter, and the minor-canons, and the maſter of the choriſters. In the ſecond rank let the deacon, the ſix lay-clerks, the ſub-deacon, and the under ſchool-maſter ſit.

In the third rank let the ſinging boys of the choir ſit.

Theſe having dined, let the ſub-ſacriſts, the manciple, the door-keeper, the cook and the cenſor ſit down.

In the hall ſhall be the precentor, or if he be abſent, the ſenior petty-canon, who ſhall rebuke ſuch men as be of an ill behaviour. But in the firſt place they ſhall reprove the boys, and alſo their maſters. And, that all things may be done quietly, in order, and with decency in the hall, upon the five and twentieth day of November, one ſhall yearly be choſen out of the prieſts of the church, by the conſent of the major part of them who eat together in the firſt and ſecond rank, who ſhall do the office of an yearly ſteward, who ſhall be ſteward for one whole year; who ſhall alſo provide wood, coal, ſalt, and other ſuch like things as ſhall be thought neceſſary for a ſtore, (as they call it) againſt the following year, to ſerve the common table.

He ſhall examine the accounts of the monthly ſteward (who ſhall be ſteward only for one month) every week; and in the end of every month, ſhall give an account to the major part of the commoners of the firſt and ſecond rank, at the end of the year, of all their charges. Moreover, one out of the petty-canons and the commoners of the ſecond rank (either by himſelf, or by ſome one elſe) ſhall every year in like manner, each month do the office of a monthly ſteward, whoſe advice the butler and the cook ſhall obſerve in buying the victuals, with whom he alſo ſhall go into the market, if it ſeem good, and with them he ſhall buy and provide meat. Nevertheleſs, we will and grant that it ſhall be lawful for the dean, or for the ſub-dean in the dean's abſence, to aſſign and cauſe to be paid to the clerks of our church who are married, and to any that are ſick, a portion of money in lieu of their commons. And to the other preſbyters and clerks, and alſo to the boys who learn muſick, having their victuals freely given them from the church, we give leave, that a portion of money ſhould be aſſigned and paid for their commons, provided that conſtantly every month they allow a competent ſum of money to the common table of their companions, according to the order of the dean and chapter.

We ordain alſo, and appoint that the treaſurer of our church, at the begining of every month, do deliver and pay to the monthly ſteward for the table and commons of all of them who eat together, after this manner following: That is, for them who eat in the firſt rank, for each minor-canon, for the head maſter of the grammar-ſcholars, and for the maſter of the choriſters, ſix ſhillings monthly. And ſhall pay for the commons of them who eat in the ſecond rank, for each of the clerks, the deacon, the ſub-deacon, and the lower maſter of the grammar-ſchool, monthly, five ſhillings and eight-pence. Laſtly, for the table of the choriſters, monthly, three ſhillings and four-pence. Again, for the table and the commons of all thoſe who ſit down after the others are riſen, for the ſub-ſacriſts, the manciple, the door-keepers, and the cook, monthly, four ſhillings. Which monthly ſums, by the monthly ſteward, with the advice of the yearly ſteward, ſhall be honeſtly and frugally diſpoſed of; and at the end of each month, he ſhall give an account of the ſum diſpoſed of to the yearly ſteward, or ſome other prudent man of the firſt or ſecond rank.

And that they may the more faithfully execute their offices, both the ſtewards ſhall be bound by an oath given to the college. Laſtly, all the miniſters of our church eating together, ought to obſerve and yield obedience to thoſe orders, forms and ſtatutes which by the dean and chapter ſhall hereafter be made therein.

CHAP. XXIX.

Of the Veſtments of the Officers, called Liveries.

We decree and will, that the minor-canons, clerks and other officers of our church, and the choriſters alſo, and four poor men, have their outward garments as near as may be, of the ſame colour, or the like; and they already named, ſhall receive yearly for the making of their outward garments, after the manner we here ſit down: All the minor-canons and the upper ſchool-maſter, four yards of cloth for their gowns, at 5*s.* per yard; and the maſter of the choir ſhall have for his gown, three yards of cloth, price 5*s.* per yard.

The deacon, ſub-deacon, all the clerks, the uſher of the grammar ſchool, ſhall receive for their cloaths three yards of cloth, at the rate of 4*s.* 6*d.* And the other officers, that is, the ſub-ſacriſts, baker, door-keepers, and the cook, every one ſhall receive for himſelf three yards of cloth for his garments, at the price of 3*s.* 4*d.* Each of the choriſters, and the ſub-cook, for their garments, two yards and a half, price 3*s.* 4*d.* Which cloth being delivered to them, whoſoever ſhall not take care that it be decently made up fit for him, and ſhall not wear it greateſt part of the year, he ſhall be deemed unworthy of our gift; and therefore let him be conſtrained to refund to our church ſo much of his ſtipend as the cloth ſhall be valued. The dean, or in his abſence, the ſub-dean, ought every year to provide the cloth and livery garments, together with the receiver for the time being; and they ſhall deliver to every one their portions of cloth, before Chriſtmas, that they may celebrate the birth-day of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, with new cloaths and new ſouls: But the poor men ſhall always wear on the left ſhoulder of their gowns, a roſe made of red ſilk; and when they walk either in the church or elſewhere abroad, they ſhall every where walk in the ſaid gowns.

CHAP. XXX.

Of the Salaries of the Officers of the Church

We ordain and will, that out of the common ſtock of our church, beſide their commons and liveries before aſſigned, certain ſtipends be paid quarterly to all the officers of our church, by the treaſurer, by equal portions, in manner following: That is, to each minor-canon for his ſhare, 5*l.* 2*s.* To the head ſchool-maſter, 8*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* To the maſter of the choriſters, 5*l.* 7*s.* To the uſher, 59*s.* and 2*d.* To the ſub-deacon, 59*s.* and 2*d.* To every clerk, 59*s.* and 2*d.* To the ſacriſt, 26*s.* and 8*d.* To the manciple, 58*s.* To the cook, 58*s.* To the door-keepers, 58*s.* To the choriſters, 15*s.* To each of the four poor men, 6*l.* 3*s.* and 4*d.* To the ſub-dean, 26*s.* and 8*d.* To the precentor, 26*s.* 8*d.* To the receiver, 5 marks. To the treaſurer, 26*s.* 8*d.* To the ſteward, or clerk of the lands, 53*s.* and 4*d.* To the ſub-cook, 26*s.* 8*d.* To the ſub-ſacriſts, 33*s.* and 4*d.*

CHAP. XXXI.

Of the Celebration of Divine Service.

That prayers and ſupplication may decently and in good order be every day performed in our church, and that every day the praiſe of God may be made with joy and rejoicing: We decree and ordain, that the minor-canons and clerks, together with the deacon and ſub-deacon, and the maſter of the choriſters, do daily perform divine ſervice in the choir of our church, according to the right and cuſtom of other cathedral churches; but we will not oblige them to ſing their ſervices by night. Moreover, we will, that in all principal feaſts, the dean, but in the greater double feaſts, the ſub-dean, and in other double feaſts, the other canons, every one in his place ſhall officiate in celebrating the divine ſervice. We ordain alſo, that no one of the canons, or of others miniſtering in the choir, ſhall come thither in time of divine ſervice, except he be cloathed with ſuch ornaments as are proper for that place.

We will alſo, that the maſters of the grammar ſchool, upon feſtival days be in the choir, wearing habits fit for that place; whereof one ſhall have his place above the minor-canons, the other ſhall ſit next below them. We will alſo, that as ſoon as I am departed out of this life, obſequies be made for my ſoul in my church at Glouceſter, all the canons of our church, and other officers and poor men being called together and aſſiſting: And that the day of our death be written in the ſtatute-books, upon which ſame day anniverſary obſequies and maſſes ſhall for ever be celebrated for us.

CHAP. XXXII.

Of the common Treaſury, and keeping of the ſeal and Muniments.

We ordain and will, that one inward and more private room be ſet apart, and an outward one large enough, and adjoining to the inward one; which rooms ſhall be called the treaſury.

In the outward room ſhall be placed a cheſt, and a coffer to keep the writings in; in which the books of the accounts of all the officers, ſervants, and of all others who are obliged to give up any accounts, ought to be kept and laid up. In thoſe cheſts and coffers ſhall be laid up the court rolls, both by themſelves and apart. All obligatory writings apart, and by themſelves. The books concerning revenues, called the rentals: Inventories of the goods and lands apart, and by themſelves. In this room let there be placed an iron cheſt, to keep the moneys put into the treaſury, which may be needful for daily expences. In this room alſo let there be a counter-houſe, where the accounts of all farmers, bailiffs, officers, and of others, are to be examined and proved.

In the inward room we would have one ſtrong iron cheſt placed, wherein let there be laid up the ſum of 40*l.* which we would have to be taken out of what remains as overplus, in the end of every year, that that ſum may always remain and be ready to ſerve the neceſſities of our church, if there ſhall any happen. And in this room let there be kept one ſmall cheſt, in which let there be put and carefully kept the common ſeal of our church; by which common ſeal we command, that nothing be at any time ſealed but what was firſt at large and plainly written in a certain regiſter, regiſter, and be publickly compared, and at large read over with the ſame regiſter. And as often as the ſeal is put upon any writing, there ſhall never be required of any one above 13*s.* and 4*d.* for the ſigning of that writing. We will alſo, that in this room there ſhall be kept another cheſt, in which let theſe our ſtatutes, ordinances and letters patents of the foundation and endowment of our church, and other writings and muniments of the manors, lands, tenements, revenues, poſſeſſions and rights and liberties which our church by any right hath, be depoſited. But every cheſt, even the little one, ſhall have three locks, with ſo many keys of a different faſhion: and of each of theſe cheſts, and of the little one, the dean ſhall keep one key, the ſub-dean another, and the treaſurer the third; and none of the cheſts, no not the little one, ſhall be open but when all the keepers of them, or their deputies are conſenting and preſent. Finally, we forbid any one man to keep two keys with him at the ſame time; and as often as any one of the key-keepers goes forth from our ſaid church, let him leave his key with ſome one canon that ſtays at home, and hath neither of the other keys.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Of the Accounts given up every Year.

We will, that within two months after the feaſt of Michael, all bailiffs, farmers, officers and ſervants, both foreign and domeſtick, do give in, and make a full and true account of all thoſe things that do belong to their offices. And we farther ordain and decree, that at the ſame time alſo, both the receiver and the treaſurer, do give a full and true account of all things belonging to their offices before the dean and the canons then preſent, and the auditor, whether he be preſent, or whether he ſubſtitutes another in his place, of what they have received, and of what they have laid out; what the church oweth, and what is due unto the church. And finally, let all the indentures of the goods of the church, which are in uſe, be ſhewed and renewed, that in all things the dean and canons may be ſatisfied in the ſtate and condition of the church.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Of correcting Exceſſes.

That a good behaviour may be obſerved in our church, we ordain and will, that if any one of the petty-canons or other officers ſhall be guilty of any leſſer fault, he ſhall be puniſhed according to the diſcretion of the dean, or in his abſence, of the ſub-dean; but if he hath offended by any great fault, if it ſhall be thought fit, he ſhall be expelled by thoſe by whom he was admitted. And if any one of the canons be in any fault or crime, whereby any notorious ſcandal may ariſe to our church, let him that is found guilty be admoniſhed by the dean, or in his abſence, by the ſub-dean; but if he mend not his behaviour, being the third time admoniſhed, let him be called before the biſhop his viſitor, and at his pleaſure let him be puniſhed: But we reſerve the puniſhment of the poor men, as oft as they offend, to the diſcretion of the dean, or in his abſence, of the ſub-dean; and if they continue incorrigible, let them be expelled from the church by the dean, with the conſent of the chapter, and let them loſe all benefit from the church.

CHAP. XXXV.

Concerning Alms.

Beſide our alms beſtowed upon thoſe four poor men, we have given alſo an annual ſum of 40*l.* to our church, both for the relief of the poor and needy, and alſo toward the repairing of the high ways. We will that one half of that ſum be diſtributed by the dean, or his receiver, when in his circuit he viſits the lands, manors, and impropriate churches; in which churches let it be diſtributed to the poor, according to their need; leſt they ſeem from hence to reap all and ſow none. But let the dean or treaſurer diſpoſe of the aforeſaid ſum, partly to the poor and needy nigh our church. The account of which diſtribution let it be ſhewn in the general account. The biſhop, in his viſitation, ſhall take notice of this money, after it be faithfully diſpoſed of. Another ſum of 20*l.* we have aſſigned for the repairing of bridges and the mending of highways, according to the diſcretion of the dean, or in his abſence, of the ſub-dean and chapter. But ſince the grammar-ſchool, and almoſt all the buildings, in which we would that the minor canons and other officers of our church ſhould lodge, are run to ruin, waſte, out of repair, and unhandſome, we give leave that that ſum of 20*l.* which we aſſign for the repairing of bridges, may be made uſe of to repair thoſe buildings, making them more habitable, and to make them fit for thoſe uſes they ſhall be deſigned, for the ſpace of three years. But when thoſe three years are expired, after the date of theſe preſents, we do ordain that the ſame ſum ſhall be made uſe of to repair bridges and highways. The biſhop alſo, in his viſitation, ſhall take care that this be faithfully executed.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Of keeping Chapters.

We decree and will, that the dean, or in his abſence, the ſub-dean, with the reſident canons, once at leaſt in every fortnight, or oftener, as it ſhall ſeem expedient, ſhall keep a chapter in the chapter-houſe, and there piouſly and prudently confer about the affairs of our church. We alſo will, that in every year there ſhall be kept two chapters, one upon the laſt day of November, and the other upon the veſpers of St. John Baptiſt; in which chapters we will, that whatſoever ſhall be ordained and appointed by the dean, and the canons preſent, ſhall be obſerved by all perſons of our church, ſo far as they concern them, provided they do not contradict theſe our ſtatutes.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Of the Viſitation of the Church.

There's no work ſo piouſly begun, ſo proſperouſly continued, or ſo happily conſummated, which is not ſoon deſtroyed, and utterly ſubverted by careleſſneſs and negligence. There are no ſtatutes ſo ſacred, and firmly made, but in length of time they are expoſed to oblivion and contempt, if there be not a conſtant care and zeal for religion. Which that it may never happen, or come to our church, we, truſting in the faith and diligence of the biſhop of Glouceſter for the time being, have conſtituted him to be the viſitor of our cathedral of Glouceſter, willing and commanding, that according to his chriſtian faith, and earneſt zeal for religion, he watch, and diligently take care that thoſe ſtatutes and ordinances which we have made for our church be inviolably obſerved; that the poſſeſſions, and the ſpiritual as well as temporal affairs may flouriſh in a proſperous ſtate; that the rights, liberties, and privileges be preſerved and defended.

And that theſe things may be ſo, we ordain and will, that the biſhop himſelf, as often as he ſhall by the dean, or by two canons, be aſked; and if not aſked, yet once in every three years ſhall come in perſon to our church, except ſome very urgent neceſſity ſhall obſtruct him, or elſe that he come by the proxy of his chancellor, that he there, in a convenient place, call together the dean, canons, minor-canons, clerks, and all other officers of our church. To which biſhop, by virtue of this preſent ſtatute, we grant a full power and authority to examine the dean, canons, minor-canons, and the other officers, concerning all the articles contained in our ſtatutes, and concerning all other articles relating to the ſtate, welfare and reputation of our college: And that he urge every one of them, by the oath they gave unto the church, to ſpeak the truth concerning all faults and crimes whatſoever: And that the biſhop puniſh them who ſhall be found and proved guilty, according to the nature of the fault and crime; and that he reform them. And that he do all things that may ſeem proper for the ſubduing of vice, and which are known to belong to the duty of a viſitor. And we will and command all, as well the dean as the canons, and other officers of our church, that they obey the biſhop in reſpect of the premiſſes.

And we ordain, by virtue of the oath given to the church, that no one ſay or inform any thing againſt the dean or the canons, or any one of the officers of our church, but what he believes to be true, and is publickly reported ſo to be.

Moreover we will that the dean, at the common charges of the church, prepare and ſet before the biſhop viſiting, and attended with eight perſons, two entertainments at moſt within the lodgings of our church. Farthermore, becauſe we wiſh that theſe our ſtatutes may laſt for ever, we will, that if any ambiguity, contention, or diſſention ſhall hereafter ariſe between the dean and canons, or between the canons themſelves, about the true and genuine meaning of our ſtatutes, (all which we would have underſtood according to the plain grammatical ſenſe) we will and ordain, that that ſtatute, or any clauſe of the ſtatute, concerning which the contention is riſen, ſhall be referred to the archbiſhop of Canterbury; to whoſe interpretation we command all to ſubmit without any delay or contradiction, provided it be not repugnant to our ſtatutes. But we utterly forbid the viſitor, and the interpreter of our ſtatutes, and all other men, of what dignity or authority they ſhall be, to make any new ſtatutes, or to diſpence with any of the old.

And we do forbid the dean and canons of our church to receive any ſuch ſtatutes, under the penalty of perjury, and perpetual expulſion from our church.

Notwithſtanding we reſerve to ourſelf, and to our ſucceſſors, a full power and authority to change and alter theſe ſtatutes, and if it ſhall ſeem good, even to make new ones.

In witneſs of all and ſingular the premiſſes, &c.

Of the Prayers in the Church.

We decree and ordain, that during my natural life theſe following prayers be every day uſed for us, for our royal conſort, and for the prince our ſon, in the high maſs, viz. Deus, in cujus manu manu ſunt corda Regum, &c. Suſcipe, quæſumus Domine, &c. Præſta quæſumus, &c. Pro animabus autem Inviĉtiſſimi Patris noſtri Regis Henrici Septimi, & nobiliſſimæ matris noſtræ Elizabethæ reginæ & chariſſimæ nuper conjugis noſtræ Janæ hæ Orationes dicantur, Deus, cui proprium, &c. Intuere, quæſumus, &c. Proſit, quæſumus Domine. &c.

Prayers to be ſaid by all in our Church in the Morning, as they are riſing.

Libera nos, Salve nos, &c. with this prayer, Omnipotens, Sempiterne Deus, &c. with this pſalm, De profundis, and with the following ſuffrages.

Prayers in the Evening.

As they are going to bed, let them ſay the hymn Salvator Mundi Deus, with the pſalm De profundis, and with the ſuffrages following.

Prayers to be uſed in the School in the Morning.

As ſoon as the uſher and all the ſcholars are come into the ſchool, at ſix of the clock in the Morning, let them alternately repeat the pſalm Domine in virtute tua lætabitur Rex, &c. 1. Kyrie Chriſte, Kyrie. 2. Pater noſter, & ne nos, &c. 3. Oſtende nobis Domine, &c. 4. Domine, ſalvum fac Regem, &c. 5. Eſto ei Turris fortitudinis, &c. 6. Nihil perficiat Inimicus, &c. 7. Domine exaudi. 8. Quis Omnipotens Deus, &c. 9. Actiones noſtras quæſumus Domine.

Prayers in the School, to be ſaid in the Evening.

At five of the clock, the ſcholars being ready to go out of the ſchool, ſhall alternately repeat the pſalm Ecce nunc benedicite Dominum, &c. Kyrie, Chriſte, Kyrie, Pater noſter, &c. Exurge Domine adjuva nos, &c. Domine Deus virtutum, &c. with this prayer, Tenebras noſtras illumina, queſumus Domine.

The Prayers of the Poor.

Let the poor men, who are maintained at the charges of our church, daily ſay in the morning, at the evening, and at noonday, the Lord's Prayer, the Angel's Salutation, the Apoſtles Creed, the Ten Commandments of God, all of them in Engliſh, with the prayer tranſlated into Engliſh, Quæſumus Omnipotens Deus.

We Nicholas Wigorn', George Ciceſtren', and Richard Cox archdeacon, do now preſent unto you the dean, canons, and all other officers of the ſaid church of the ſacred and undivided Trinity at Glouceſter, by the command and authority of our dread ſovereign the king, theſe his ſtatutes to be diligently obſerved by you, in the thirty-ſixth year of the reign of the ſame our Lord the king, and upon the fifth day of the month July.

NICHOLAUS WIGORN'.
GEORGIUS CICESTR'.
RIC. COX.

NUMBER XXIX.

Difficult Words which occur in the Charters of Liberties explained; taken from a Manuſcript containing Charters, &c. relating to the Monaſtery of the Holy Trinity, near Algate, London.

SOC, That is, the ſuing of men in their own court, according to the cuſtom of the kingdom.

SAC is the power of impleading and puniſhing tranſgreſſors in their court, becauſe ſake in Engliſh ſignifies encheſon in French, (which is occaſion, cauſe, or reaſon) and it is ſaid for ſiche ſake (that is for ſuch ſake or reaſon) being the ſame as quele encheſon, and ſake is ſaid for forfeit.

TOL imports, that you, and all your men, throughout all your homage lands, be exempt in all markets from toll, for things bought or ſold.

THEAM. This is, that you have all the generation of your villains, with their ſervices and chattels, whereſoever they ſhall be found in England: excepting any one born in ſervitude, ſhall continue for a year and a day undiſturb'd in any privileged town, ſo that he be received into their company, or gild, and as one of them, by the ſame he ſhall be exempted from villainage.

INFANGETHEF is, that thieves or robbers, taken in your lordſhip, or fee, and convicted of their theft, be adjudg'd in your court.

OUTFANGETHEF is, that thieves or robbers, which belong to your land, or fee, if taken with a robbery out of your land or fee, be brought back to your court, and there try'd.

HAMSOKENE. That is, that you be exempt from amerciaments for entering houſes violently and without leave, againſt the peace of our lord the king, and that you hold pleas of this ſort of tranſgreſſion committed on your land, in your court.

GRYTHEBRICHE. That is, the breach of the king's peace, for gryth in Engliſh, is pax in Latin, and pees in the Roman; briche in Engliſh, is freynt in the Roman.

BLODWYTE. That is, that you be exempt from amerciament for blood ſpilt, and that you hold pleas thereupon in your court, and that you have the amerciament ariſing from thence; becauſe wyte in Engliſh, is the ſame as injuria in Latin.

PHILTWYTE is, that you be exempt from amerciaments for frays, and that you hold pleas of the ſame, in your court, and have the amerciaments thence ariſing; for philt in Engliſh is medle in the Roman.

PHLYTHWYTE. That you be exempt from contention and aſſemblies, and that you hold pleas thereof in your court, and have the amerciaments proceeding from the ſame; for phlyth in Engliſh is contentio in Latin.

PORDWYCHE is, that you be exempt from amerciaments when any fugitive outlaw comes to the peace of our lord the king, either of his own accord, or upon licence.

PLEMENESFRITH is, that you have the chattels or amerciaments of a fugitive.

LECHERWITE is, that you take a fine of him that lies with a bond-woman born, without your leave.

CHILDWYTE. That you take a fine from a bond-woman born, that is with child, who has loſt her virginity without your leave.

PORSTALL is, that you be exempt from amerciaments for chattles ſeized, either within or without your lands, and that you have and hold pleas concerning ſuch caſes ſo arreſted within your lands, in your court, and the amerciaments ariſing from the ſame.

SCHOT is, that you be exempt from a certain cuſtum, as of the common toll impoſed by the ſheriff or his bailiffs.

GELDE is, that you be exempt from ſervile cuſtoms, which once us'd to be paid, as of horngilde, and the like.

HITAGE, or CARRUAGE is, that you ſhall be exempt, if our lord the king ſhould tax all the land by carucates.

DANEGELDE. That is, exemption from a cuſtom us'd in another place, which the Danes once exacted in England.

HORNGELDE. That you be exempt from a certain cuſtom exacted at fairs and markets.

WAPENTAKE is, that you be exempt from ſuit of the hundred, which is called wapentake.

LESTAGE. That is, exemption from a duty exacted at fairs and markets.

STALLAGE is exemption from a duty exacted for ſtandings taken or aſſign'd in fairs and markets.

STHENG, or HEDWYNG is exemption from attachment in any court, and before any perſons whatſoever, for treſpaſſes preſented and not avow'd.

MISHERYNG. That is, exemption from amerciaments for any treſpaſſes whatſoever brought into court, without exemplification.

BURGBRICHE is a diſcharge from any paſſing thro' cities or boroughs, againſt the peace.

AVERPAYE is exemption from paying a penny for average to our lord the king.

HUNDREDAT is exemption from paying the penny, or contributing to the hundred.

BORDALPANY. That is, exemption from the exaction us'd in markets, where they paid a halfpenny for taking away their ſtalls.

BURGBOTE is exemption from contributing to the relief of the city, or borough, or for building of walls fallen.

BRUGEBOTE is exemption from contributing to build bridges.

THECLEPENY is exemption from tallage of the tenth for the council.

MUNDEBRYCHE is exemption from amerciaments for tranſgreſſions committed againſt our lord the king.

NUMBER XXX.

A Grant from Henry de Hamtonel, Abbat of Cirenceſter, to John de Latton.

TO all chriſtian people who ſhall either ſee or hear this preſent deed, Henry, by divine permiſſion, abbat of Cirenceſter, and the convent of that place, ſend health in our Lord. Know ye that we have granted to John de Latton and Iſabel his wife, in form and under condition following, theſe ſeveral things hereafter ſpecified, to receive every week, ſo long as they ſhall jointly live; Fourteen white loaves and nine gallons of beer, whereof five gallons of the beer ſhall be ſuch as the convent uſeth, and the other four gallons ſhall be of the chaplain's beer, and they ſhall receive one meſs every day out of our kitchen, in like manner as our day officers do receive it from our houſe. Provided that if the ſaid Iſabel ſhall ſurvive, that then and immediately from the death of the ſaid John, one moiety of all above granted ſhall altogether ceaſe. And in conſideration of the aforeſaid grant, the aforeſaid John hath wholly releaſed to us and to our church, and hath quit claimed for himſelf and his heirs for ever, all right and claim which he had or any way can have, with the reverſion thereof, in all the lands and tenements, with all their appurtenances, which Walter father of the ſaid John did hold by leaſe from us in Latton. And the ſaid John and his heirs ſhall fully and intirely warrant the ſaid lands and tenements to us and to our church, without any diminution whatſoever. And if it ſhould happen, which we hope will never be, that the ſaid John and Iſabel ſhall any way be deficient in the ſaid warranty, or ſhould lay claim, or pretend any right to the ſaid tenements, that from thenceforth the ſaid abbat and convent ſhall be for ever diſcharged from the performance of every part of this grant, without any pretence whatſoever. In witneſs whereof the parties aboveſaid have interchangeably ſet their ſeals to this indenture.

Given at Cirenceſter, at the feaſt of the purification of the bleſſed Virgin, in the thirty-third year of the reign of king Edward, ſon of king Henry.

NUMBER XXXI.

King Henry the Fourth's Grant to the Men, &c. of Cirenceſter.

THE king, to all unto whom theſe preſents ſhall come, greeting. Know ye that of our ſpecial grace, and for the good and laudable and acceptable ſervices which the men of the town of Ciceter have performed, in reſiſting the malicious attempts of Thomas late earl of Kent, and John late earl of Saliſbury, and other traitors and rebels, who had traiterouſly taken up arms againſt us and our crown, contrary to their allegiance; we do give and grant to the men aforeſaid, all the goods and chattels, in whoſe hands ſoever they may be found, which did belong to the ſaid late earls, and the other traitors, and were found in the ſaid town when the ſaid earls and other traitors were there arreſted by the men aforeſaid; excepting all gold and ſilver, and money, and veſſels of gold or ſilver, or guilded, and except all jewels of all kinds; to hold unto the ſaid men of our gift. In witneſs whereof, &c.

Given at Weſtminſter the twenty-eighth day of February, 1 H. 4.

The ſame Year, the King rewards them with another Conceſſion.

THE king, to all unto whom theſe preſents ſhall come, greeting. Know ye that of our eſpecial grace, and for the good ſervice which our beloved liege-people and commons of the town of Cirenceſter, as well men as women, have performed unto us, in the taking of the earls of Kent and Saliſbury, and of others their followers, in the late rebellion, do grant unto the men four does in ſeaſon, to be delivered unto them by our chief foreſter, for the time being, or his deputy, out of our foreſt of Bradon; and alſo one hogſhead of wine, to be received every year out of the port of our town of Briſtol, by the hand of our officer therein for the time being. We alſo grant unto the women aforeſaid ſix bucks, to be delivered them in right ſeaſon, by our chief foreſter aforeſaid, or his deputy, out of the foreſt aforeſaid; and alſo one hogſhead of wine, to be delivered to them out of the port of our ſaid town of Briſtol, by the hands of our officer therein for the time being. This grant to continue during our pleaſure. In witneſs whereof, &c.

NUMBER XXXII.

An Ordination made by William King of England, concerning Derhurſt.

WILLIAM king of the Engliſhmen, earl of Normandy, and Cænomanenſium to the faithful believers in Chriſt of whatſoever nation. Our bleſſed ſaviour and merciful God, patient and full of pity, amongſt other his precepts concerning mercy, ſaith, That all the things of this world are as nought, in communion with eternal happineſs, and therefore cammands us that we ſhould out of what we now poſſeſs, lay up everlaſting treaſure in theſe words, Lay up to yourſelves treaſure in heaven, where neither ruſt nor moth can corrupt. We therefore being excited by that good precept, and by our wife Maud, with the prudent council of our nobles, and for the good of own ſoul, and the ſouls of all our children, do aſſign and confer the church of Deorherſt, ſituated within the juriſdiction and county of the city of Gloſter, with all its appurtenances, unto St. Dennys, who was the happy apoſtle of France, in as full manner as our did grant the ſame to our faithful ſubject Baldwin, then a monk of that ſaint, now the abbat of St. Edmondſbury; and in like manner as we our ſelf did grant the ſame to him after we poſſeſt the kingdom. Let this monaſtery, and all belonging to it, be free from all earthly ſervices. We alſo grant the ſame privilege to Tainton and its appurtenances, which the aforeſaid king had given to the ſame ſaint, thereby to gain an eternal reward, decreeing that it be likewiſe free as this which we now give; that we and our children, by the prayers of that ſaint, and of his companions Ruſtious and Eleutherius, may be proſperous in this world, and obtain an eternal happy manſion hereafter. If any one ſhall detract from this our gift, let him be of what degree ſoever, let him by the vengance of almighty God have the ſame fate with Dathan and Abiram, unleſs he repent and make ſatiſfaction and amends to that ſaint, and to the brethren intituled to that monaſtery. This privilege was confirmed in the monaſtery of St. Swithin, in the city of Wincheſter, in the year of our Lord 1069, in the reign of king William the Firſt, on the of Eaſter, after the celebration of maſs: Theſe witneſſes agreeing thereunto.

I king William do corroborate this our grant and confirmation with the ſign of the holy croſs.

I Maud, queen of the ſaid king, do acknowledge my content therein.

I Richard, ſon of the king, do approve the grant of my father and mother.

I Stigand, archbiſhop of Canterbury, do confirm it.
I Aldred, archbiſhop of York, do confirm it.
I William, biſhop of London, do confirm it.
I Aileric, biſhop.
I Herman, biſhop.
I Liuric, biſhop.
I Odo, biſhop, brother to the king.
I Gosfrid, firſt biſhop of Landaff.
I Baldwin, biſhop Ebreiencis.
I Ernald, biſhop Cenemænenſis.
I Robert, earl, and brother of the king, do agree to it with a good will.
I William, earl, ſon of Oſborn.
I Robert, earl of Caſtle.
I Radulfe, earl of Brien.
I Radulfe de Alneo.
I Henry Ferrars.
I Hugh de Montfort.
I Richard, ſon of earl Giſlebert.
I Roger de Ivri.
I Haimon, the king's ———
I Robert, brother of Haimon.

NUMBER XXXIII.

The King's Patent, making Derhurſt which is an alien Priory to be denizen.

THE king to all, &c. greeting. Know ye, that whereas the priory of Derhurſt in the county of Glouceſter, is an alien priory of the order of St. Benedict, in which priory (ſaid to be a monaſtery in the year 1006) St. Alphege at that time was a monk profeſt, who afterwards in the reign of king Ethelred our progenitor, heretofore king of England, was conſtituted archbiſhop of Canterbury, as in the legend of St. Alphege it does more fully appear. And whereas St. Edward, of pious and famous memory, heretofore king of England, our anceſtor, out of his ſincere and hearty devotion which he did bear to St. Dennis, did give and grant the ſaid priory to the abbey of St. Dennis in France; from the time of which grant the priory has continued a perpetual and conventual priory and cell of that abbey, and ſo continues at preſent. And whereas the ſaid prior, and convent of the ſaid priory, and their preceding priors and convents have ever had, time out of mind, cloyſters, dormitories, refectories, and a common ſeal, and other neceſſary and fitting conveniencies for a priory and convent, ſuitable to their revenues and decency of religion; and whereas the ſaid prior and convent do to this day enjoy the ſame, as we are credibly informed: By virtue of which grant and donation, the abbat and convent of the abbey of St. Dennis, whenever the place of prior in the ſaid priory did become void, did always preſent ſome religious perſon of the abbey of St. Dennis unto the ſaid priory, who by virtue of that preſentation was the right and lawful prior thereof; until of late, by reaſon of war begun between us and France, the ſaid priory can have but ſlow and difficult acceſs to the ſaid abbey to procure a new preſentation, wherefore wherefore at the humble requeſt of our beloved in Chriſt Hugh the preſent prior of the ſaid priory, and of the convent thereof, we are beſought to take into our conſideration, and to find a remedy whereby this evident danger in procuring a preſentation from abroad may be hereafter beſt avoided. We therefore being inclined to favour their humble petition, do of our eſpecial grace, after having fully and maturely conſidered the premiſſes, grant unto the ſaid Hugh the preſent prior of the ſaid priory, and to the convent of the place, that they and their ſucceſſors ſhall be denizens in the ſame manner and form, and as fully and intirely to all intents and purpoſes as any other Engliſh priors are held, deemed, and reputed; and that the ſaid prior and convent ſhall hereafter have and hold the ſaid priory as an Engliſh priory, together with all their manors, lands, tenements, and poſſeſſions of the ſaid priory, with all their appurtenances; and ſhall have all and all ſorts of liberties, immunities, and privileges, and ſhall uſe and enjoy the ſame as freely as any other religious men of the ſame order Ance Oriundi did uſe or enjoy the ſame yielding and paying tithes, ſubſidies, and dues, as other denizens of that order do throughout the kingdom of England. And moreover of our farther grace, we grant for us and our heirs, as much as in us lies, to the ſaid prior and convent, and their ſucceſſors, that when and how often the place of prior ſhall become void, whether by death, reſignation, or acceptance of other perferment by the prior of the ſaid priory, that then the ſaid convent and monks of that place, in every ſuch vacancy of the ſaid priory, ſhall and may freely elect one of themſelves to be prior, firſt obtaining a licence for the ſame from us and our ſucceſſors. In witneſs whereof, &c.

Witneſs the king at Cheſwick, the twenty-fourth day of February.

By writ under the privy ſeal of the ſame date, and by authority of parliament, and for 20*l. paid into the Hanaper.*

NUMBER XXXIV.

The Charter of the moſt glorious King Kenulph, concerning the firſt Foundation of the Monaſtery at Winchcombe.

IN the 811th year of the incarnation of our bleſſed Lord Jeſus Chriſt the ſaviour of the world, who reigned in the heavens from all eternity, in the fourth year of the indiction, and in the ſixteenth year of our reign by the grace of God, and on the ninth day of November. I Kenulph king of the Mercians, by God's favour and aſſiſtance, did begin an imperfect work at a place called antiently by the inhabitants Wincelcombe, in the province of the Wixes: It is now a noble church, and not inglorious in its firſt deſign. It was dedicated by Wulfred archbiſhop of Canterbury to the honour of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the bleſſed Mary his mother, who held him in her boſom, whom heaven and earth could not contain, where I intend to lay my body to reſt in the Lord. It ſeemed good to me to invite all the great men of the kingdom of Mercia, all biſhops, princes, earls, deputies, and my own kindred, as alſo Cuthred king of Kent, Sired king of the Weſt Saxons, with all thoſe who were members of our ſynod, to be preſent and witneſſes at the dedication of the ſaid church; which church I have built to the honour and glory of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for the love of heaven, and for the expiation of my ſins, and for procuring a bleſſing on my endowment, and to ſecure thoſe privileges which the Roman biſhops by authority of St. Peter the prince of apoſtles have indulged to me.

I Kenulph, by the favour of God, king of the Mercians, out of gratitude for their good will, who by the authority of the apoſtles have ſtrengthened and confirmed the grants and decrees of my ſynods to the ſecurity of my endowment, by me granted to the monaſtery of Wincelcomb, and particularly for the confirmation of my endowment, made by the authority of pope Leo, and afterwards by pope Paſchal, by the authority of his power, and farther confirmed in three ſynods of the men of Mercia, with their unanimous conſent, whereby the grant of the endowments by me made for the good of myſelf and my heirs is corroborated; and alſo all my gifts, which with a free heart I gave to the great men of the kingdom of Mercia, and of other kingdoms, in gold, ſilver, and other utenſils; and alſo in choice horſes given to them, according to their ranks and qualities, and a pound of pure ſilver to thoſe who had no lands, and a mark of gold to every prieſt, and one ſhilling to every one of the ſervants of God; and all theſe gifts were becoming our royal dignity, and were in number ſo many, and in value ſo great, that they are ineſtimable. All which I beſtowed to procure that the endowment by me granted to the ſaid monaſtery might be firm and irrecoverable, and might be ſettled for ever for the good of me and my heirs.

I Kenulph, king of the Mercians, have alſo obtained the banner of the holy croſs on which Jeſus Chriſt our Lord did ſuffer, that it might be a ſafeguard and protection of my ſoul, and of all my temporal affairs, and of all my heirs, againſt the deſigns of the wicked one. And if any perſon whatſoever, be he great or ſmall, ſhall attempt by violence to do wrong to this holy banner, let him be excommunicated and accurſed, and by God's juſt judgment let him be ſever'd from any benefit thereof, unleſs he ſhall make amends to the ſaid church by full ſatisfaction. And know ye, that all this is corroborated by the favour of the bleſſed trinity, and by the protection of angels, archangels, patriarchs, prophets, apoſtles, martyrs, confeſſors, virgins, and all ſaints. And I Kenulph, and all the great men who were preſent, and witneſſes hereof, in our great ſynodical councils, do ordain and decree, that if any perſon who has forfeited his life, or is guilty of any other crime, open or ſecret, and ſhall eſcape to the bounds of my inheritance by me granted, and ſhall enter the church, and demand the holy banner of the croſs, ſuch perſon ſhall find entire ſafety and protection; and that no perſon preſume to be ſo bold, or to entertain any wicked thoughts to embezle any thing for fear, or to ſell, give, or mortgage any of the lands of my endowment, unleſs for a certain time, and for the life only of one perſon. But let all things continue inviolable, and remain for ever as we firmly decreed the ſame in three general ſynods.

Witneſſes of the truth hereof, and confirmed by them under the ſign of the croſs, as followeth:

I Kenulph, king of the Mercians, do eſtabliſh this decree with the ſign of the croſs.

I Cuthred, king of Kent, do agree hereunto, and do affix the ſign of the holy croſs.

I Sired, king of the Weſt Saxons, do confirm the ſame, and ſign it with the holy croſs.

I Wulfred, archbiſhop of Canterbury, do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Aldulf, biſhop of Litchfield, do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Denebert, biſhop of Worceſter, do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Wulfhard, biſhop of Hecanæ (now Hereford) do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Woerenbrith, biſhop do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Tilferd, biſhop do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Ethelwolph, biſhop of the Eaſt Angles, do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Alchbart, biſhop of the South Saxons, do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Ethelnot, biſhop of London, do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Wilbarte, biſhop of do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Beornard, biſhop Roveceſtrenſis, do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Wignot, biſhop of Exeter, do agree and ſubſcribe.

I Ecombenet duke.

I Heardbeorth duke.

I Beornoth duke.

I Cymkelone duke.

I Ceolbert duke.

I Aldred duke.

I Wulfred duke.

I Heafreth duke.

I Colfarth duke.

I Heatfarth duke.

I Pleſe, duke, do agree and ſubſcribe.

NUMBER XXXV.

The Bull of Alexander the Third, Pope of Rome, confirming all the Churches, Towns, and Rents belonging to the Monaſtery of Winchelcombe, in the year 1175.

ALexander, biſhop, ſervant of the ſervants of God, to our beloved ſons Henry, abbat of the monaſtery of the bleſſed Mary, and St. Kenelme of Winchelcumbe, and to the brethren there, both preſent and future, who have profeſt a regular life. Foraſmuch as it behoveth the apoſtolical benediction to be a defence unto all ſuch who have choſen a religious life, leſt the inconſiderate raſhneſs of any ſhould divert them from their good reſolutions, or ſhould violate the band of holy religion, which God forbid.

We therefore do readily comply with the juſt deſires of our well beloved ſons in the Lord, and do take the ſaid monaſtery in which you live in all godly obedience, into St. Peter's and our own protection, and by the authority of this preſent writing, we defend the ſame, ordaining that whatſoever poſſeſſions or goods the ſaid monaſtery juſtly and canonically have or ſhall hereafter thro' the bleſſing of God, by juſt means obtain, by the grants of biſhops, kings, or princes, or by the oblation of other good people, ſhall ever remain firm and inviolable to them and their ſucceſſors; and we think fit herein to ſpecify them in expreſs expreſs terms. Firſt, the ſcite of the place whereon the ſaid monaſtery is built, with all its appurtenances; the church of Twining, with its appurtenances; the church of Sherburne, with its appurtenances; the church of Enneſtone, with the chapel of Chawford, with all its appurtenances; the church of Alney, with all its appurtenances; the church of Bladington, with all its appurtenances; the church of Staunton, with all its appurtenances; the church of Snowſhill, with all its appurtenances; the church of St. Kenelme, with the chapel of St. Peter, with the chapel of Hailes, the chapel of Southley, the chapel of Aldrinton, the chapel of Dicleſdon, the chapel of Preſtecot, the chapel of Charlington, with all their appurtenances.

The town of Twining, with all the lands, orchards, meadows, paſtures, waters, mills, and all their appurtenances; the town of Shirburne, with the men, lands, meadows, paſtures, waters, mills, and all their appurtenances; the town of Enneſton, with the men, lands, woods, meadows, paſtures, mills, waters, and all their appurtenances; the town of Alney, with the men, lands, meadows, paſtures, woods, and all appurtenances; the town of Bladington, with the men, lands, meadows, paſtures, mills, and all its appurtenances; the town of Snowſhill, with the men, lands, paſtures, and all its appurtenances; the town of Ethelmington, with the mills, men, lands, meadows, paſtures, and all its appurtenances; the town of Newton, with all its appurtenances; the land in Wenric, with all its appurtenances; and the lordſhip which you have in Wincelcomb, and all the lands which you have in that town, either by gift or purchaſe, and the two mills in the ſame town; the lordſhip which you have in Cote, half an hide of land which Harold de Sudely gave in alms to the church; the commons of paſture between Winchelcomb and Sudely; one yard-land and three acres which you bought of Robert Ruſſel, with its appurtenances; one yard-land which Radulph de Sudely gave in alms to your church, with its appurtenances; a hide of land which you have in Greton, two hides which you have in Aldrinton, the land which you have in Freolinton, two hides which you have in Hudicote, three houſes in London, your ſalt-pits in Wiche, one houſe in Oxford.

Moreover we forbid you my ſon the abbat, and all your ſucceſſors, to alienate any of the churches or poſſeſſions, or treaſure of your monaſtery, without the conſent of the major part or more diſcreet part of your chapter; but it ſhall be lawful for you and your ſucceſſors to chuſe prieſts, and preſent them to the biſhop, for your pariſh churches, which if the biſhop approves them, he may commit the cure of ſouls to them, who ſhall account to you for their temporal profits, and to the biſhop concerning the ſouls of the people: And as to the corn of ſuch lands which you ſhall keep in your own hands, let no man preſume to demand any tithes thereof. We alſo decree, that the right of ſepulture in thoſe churches ſhall be free, and that no man oppoſe the burial of any perſon who ſhall deſire to be buried there, except ſuch perſon be either excommunicated or interdicted, reſerving the dues of burial to ſuch churches from whence the corps ſhall be brought; and tho' the whole nation ſhould incur an interdict, yet it ſhall be lawful to you to celebrate divine ſervice within your monaſtery, provided it be in a low voice, your doors ſhut, and no bells rung, and that you admit no excommunicated or interdicted perſon amongſt you. And we do farther by theſe preſents decree and ſtraitly command, that no fee ſhall be exacted of your abbat for this our benediction hereby indulged.

It is moreover lawful for you to retain in your monaſtery, in order to their converſion, both clerks or lay-brethren, who are free and unmarried, without diſturbance from any perſon whatſoever. And we farther forbid any of thoſe brethren, after they have profeſt themſelves monks, upon light occaſions to quit the cloyſter, without leave from the abbat; and whoever ſhall ſo depart without a certificate from the ſociety, let none preſume to receive him, unleſs it be in order for a ſtricter rule of life. But you ſhall receive from the biſhop of your dioceſe, the criſm, the holy oyl, conſecration of your altars or churches, and the admiſſion or promotion into holy orders of any of your clerks or monks, provided that the biſhop be a true catholick, and in communion with the apoſtolical ſee, and ſhall confer the orders without any fee and reward, or any other ill meaning, otherwiſe it ſhall be lawful upon ſuch occaſion to go to any other biſhop, who ſhall be firſt well certified by you, to receive from him what ſhall in any of thoſe caſes be deſired.

After your deceaſe, and ſo after the deceaſe of any of your ſucceſſors, no perſon ſhall be impoſed as abbat, by any device or force, but who ſhall be elected by common conſent of the brethren, or the major part of them, or the major part of the moſt diſcreet in the fear of God, and according to the rule of St. Benedict.

We further decree that no perſon whatſoever preſume raſhly to diſturb the ſaid monaſtery, or to deprive them of their poſſeſſions, or to retain any of them, or to diminiſh the ſame, or any ways to vex or moleſt them, but let all things be preſerved whole and intire, and aſſigned to the ſeveral uſes of them for whoſe convenience and maintenance they were at firſt intended, provided that it no ways doth infringe the authority of the apoſtolical ſee, nor the canonical juriſdiction of the biſhop of the dioceſe; whoever therefore, be he a perſon eccleſiaſtical or lay, knowing this our conſtitution and order, ſhall raſhly endeavour to oppoſe the ſame, let him be admoniſhed a ſecond or third time, and if he makes not plenary ſatisfaction for his fault, let him be deprived of all power and honour, and let him expect that divine vengance will attend him for the wickedneſs which he hath committed, and let him be debarred from the body and blood of our Lord and God, and redeemer Jeſus Chriſt, and let him be liable to the ſevere account at the day of judgment; but on the other ſide, let all thoſe who ſhall obſerve the rules and rights of this monaſtery, partake of the peace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that they may receive the bleſſing of their good works in this life, and eternal rewards of peace before the ſevere judge at the laſt day. Amen.

NUMBER XXXVI.

The Charter of Richard Biſhop of Worceſter, confirming the Appropriations of the ſeveral Churches already made to the Monaſtery of Winchcombe.

KNow all men by theſe preſents, that we Richard by the divine permiſſion, biſhop of Worceſter, in our perſonal viſitation of our dioceſe, according to our accuſtomed right, have ſummoned our beloved ſons in Chriſt, thoſe religious perſons the abbat and convent of the monaſtery at Winchcombe, to appear before us at a certain time and place, to ſhew by what right and title they hold and have the ſeveral churches, indowments, and penſions hereafter mentioned, to wit, the parochial churches of Wincelcomb, Rowell, Shirburne, Twining, Bladington, which are appropriated and united to them and their monaſtery; and alſo their portions of tithes and annual penſions, to wit, 20*s.* from the church of Bladington, 10*s.* from the church of Muckleton, within the pariſh of Quenington, the tithes of their demeans in Bladington, the tithes of their demeans in Adelmington, the tithes of their demean lands in Marſton Sicca, the tithes of their demean lands in Staunton and Snowſhill; and alſo two parts in three of the greater tithes throughout the pariſh of Staunton aforeſaid; and alſo the tithes of their demean lands in Alney in the pariſh of Kynemarton; and alſo the tithes of their demean lands in Charleton, Halling, Haſleton, and Yanworth, all within our dioceſe. And whereas the ſaid religious perſons did judicially appear before us at the appointed time and place, and did offer to ſhew their writings, titles, and claims, and prove that the above mentioned churches, their portions of tithes and penſions, did of right belong to them, and that they have held, poſſeſſed, and enjoyed the ſame from the time of their grants quietly and peaceably, and have often earneſtly deſired of us to admit them to prove in form before us their juſt right, and to pronounce judgment for their canonical poſſeſſion of them, and that we would confirm the ſame, and diſmiſs them from our court, and from any farther examination. And we being willing to do full juſtice herein to the ſaid religious perſons, have therefore inſpected, peruſed, and diligently examined their apoſtolical letters and bulls, and their other evidences and proofs, which had been judicially exhibited before us concerning the premiſſes, by which they did ſufficiently make good their allegations; we therefore rightly proceeding, do by a definitive ſentence in theſe words declare, That the ſaid religious perſons have a good right, title, and poſſeſſion to the ſeveral churches, portions of tithes, penſions, and tithes aboveſaid, and the ſaid churches, portions of tithes, and penſions, and the ſeveral tithes and every one of them do of right belong to the ſaid religious perſons and to their monaſtery, in like manner and form as they claim the ſame, and ſo ought to continue to them for ever; and all the ſaid churches, tithes, portions of tithes, and penſions, and every and ſingular of them ſo claimed by the ſaid religious perſons, we of our certain knowledge and legal authority do confirm unto them and their monaſtery, and do decree that thoſe religious perſons and monks were and are the rightful poſſeſſors of the ſaid churches, tithes, portions of tithes, and penſions; and we will that they enjoy the ſame firm and ratify'd for ever, and we by our decree, diſmiſs the ſaid religious perſons as to all and ſingular the premiſſes, from farther attendance at our court, and from any farther examination. In teſtimony of all which, we have hereunto cauſed our ſeal to be affixed.

Given at our manor of Blockly, the ſixteenth day of the month of November, in the year 1404, and in the fourth year of our tranſlation to this ſee.

INDEX

INDEX.

N. B. The Names of Pariſhes are not inſerted in this Index, becauſe the Accounts of ſuch Places are arranged in alphabetical Order, in the Body of the Work.

ABBATS, ſeveral of them executed 8
Abbat's Place in Hartpury 477
Abbey, what it is 1
Abbenhalle, Richard de, &c. 29, 30, 34, 209, 299, 401, 793
Abbington, Nicholas, &c. 414, 503
Abernoon, John de, &c. 725
Abetot, Urſo de 645
Ablington in Bibury 285
Ablode in Sandhurſt 639
Abone, conjectures concerning it, 211, 227, 295, 525
Abrahall, John de 508
Acmanſtreet-way 348, 349
Acton-Ilger in Iron Acton 215
Acton, John de, &c. 214, 235, 407, 438, 439, 495, 811
Adminton in Queinton 302, 615
Adſet in Weſtbury 794
Advowſons, origin of 11
Ailburton, or Ailbricton in Lidney 528
Aires, ſir Chriſtopher, &c. 501
Akely in Olveſton 588
Alba Mara, William de 29, 578, 635, 696
Albini, Philip de, &c. 283, 623, 763 764
Aldred, biſhop 132, 141, 144
Alehouſes, a common nuiſance, Preface, and 783
Alerdine, Richard de 676
Aleſton, or Ailſton in Clifford Chambers 374
Alfred, king 350
Alkerton in Eaſtington 431
Alkington in Berkeley 279
Allen, Chriſtopher, &c. 649
Alliſton in Lidney 529
Almarick a Park 29, 471, 640
Almery of the abbey in Cirenceſter 356
Alneto, William de 326
Alney, an iſland ſo called 403
Alſcot in Preſton upon Stour 608
Alſton in Cheltenham 336
Amand, ſee St. Amand
Amavil, Adam de, &c. 295, 297
Amberley in Minchin Hampton 468
Amenel, Thomas de 460
Anchorite Hill 397
Ancilla, what 80
Andiford in Dowdeſwell 414, 415
Andrews, Richard, &c. 221, 312 315, 396, 422, 603, 626, 793
Antient ſurvey of the kingdom 64
——— demeſnes, what 66
Antoninus's Itinerary, errors in it 525
Ap Adam, John, &c. 223, 283, 494, 528, 529, 619
Ap Enion, ſee Baynham
Ap Howell, ſir John, &c. 567
Apperley in Derhurſt 404
Appleby, John de, &c. 385, 481
Appropriations, origin of, 11, example of 757
Archdeacons of the dioceſe 164
Archer Stoke, ſee Stoke Archer
Archer, Nicholas le, &c. 372, 657
Ardeen, Adam de 268
Arkell, Thomas 301
Arle in Cheltenham 143, 336
Arles, John 336
Arlington in Bibury 285
ARMS of Abbenhall 209
Abercherder 803
Adams 597
Adey of Wotton 851
Ady of Durſley 426
Adye 366
Ainge 366
Arnold 484, 490
Arundel 715
Aſtry 496
Atkyns 644
Atkynſon 707
Atwells 759
Audley 100, 710
Auſten 341
Aylmer 845
Aylworth 239
Baber 164
Baghott 605
Baillie 382
Baily 456
Bainton 651
Baker 225, 287, 759
Baldwin 781
Ball 702
Baltimore lord, ſee Calvert
Bamfylde 787
Bampton 520
Banniſter 237
Barker 443
Barrow 551, 613
Barry 373
Baſſet 586, 783
Bates 547
Bateſon 302, 671
Bathurſt, earl 355, 662
Baugh 746, 782
Baynham 684
Beale 565
Bearpacker 540
Beaufort, duke of 257
Bedford 679
Bedingfield 373
ARMS of Berkeley, earl of 279
Berkeley of Rendcombe, Stoke Giffard, &c. 623 699
Bigland 815
Blackwell 229
Blathwayte 429, 496
Blenman 383
Blomer 481
Blount 536
Bond 569
Bourchier 261
Bourne 565
Bouverie, earl of Radnor 611
Bovey 450
Bradley 481
Bradſtone 834
Bragge 536
Brain 429
Brawne 637
Bray 264
Brereton 261, 331
Bridgman 586
Bromwich 534
Brotherton 573
Browne of Stroud 245, 779
Browne of Winterbourne 836
Browning 225
Bruce 662
Brydges 245, 782
Bubb 694
Buck 470, 836
Buckle 441
Bull 660
Burgoyne 363
Burthogge 679
Burton 616
Buſh 328
Byrd 637
Calvert, lord Baltimore 504
Cam 794
Cambridge 814
Cann 801
Capel, lord 257
Capel 715
Caple 605
Cardonnel 264 624
Carpenter 543
Carter 239, 647
Carteret 393, 644
Caſtwright 556, 777
Caſſey 405
Caſtleman 596
Chapman 245
Chamberlayne 410, 705
Chedworth lord, ſee How Cheſter 224
Chetwynd 373
Cirenceſter, borough of 353
——— abbey of 359

ARMS of Clare 96, 125, 511, 746, 782
Clarke 426, 795
Clayton 586
Cliffe 303
Clifford 454, 687
Clopton 616
Clutterbuck 362, 454, 592, 684
Cocks 373, 421
Codrington 412
Colborne 679
Colcheſter 792
Cole 484, 497
Coles 451
Coleraine lord, ſee Hanger
Collet 305
Compton 477
Conway 681
Cook 343, 441, 530
Cooper 331
Corbet 611
Cornwall, Richard duke of 370
Coffins 803
Coſter 851
Coſyn 483
Courteney 504
Coventry, lord 316
—— earl of 404, 435, 511
Coxe 632, 633
Coxeter 520
Coxwell 285
Cradock 670
Craven, lord 439
Creſſwell of Bibury, Gules, three plates 2 & 1, each charged with a ſquirrel ſeiant Or.
Creſwicke 297
Cromwell 496
Cullen 652
Curwen 373
Dallaway 713
Damory 746
Danvers 547, 611
Daubony 455
Daunt 587
Davies 670
Dawes 850
Day 366
Deacon 362, 662, 732
Deighton 374
De-la-Bere 370, 605
Dennis 611, 612
Denton 220
Dering 496
Deſpencer 100, 746
Devereux, earl of Hereford 692
Dixton 365
Dobyns 314
Dodwell 647, 817
Dolphin 667
Dormer 337
Dorney 783
Dowdeſwell 391, 451
Dowell 225
Draper 565, 851
Driver 245
Ducie, lord 776, 843
Dunch 454
Dutton 651
Edgcumbe, lord 311
Elton 421, 761
Engham 564
Eſtcourt 654
ARMS of Eyer 298, 384
Fane 804
Fecknaham 540
Fermor 405, 818
Ferrers 237
Fettiplace 220, 385, 823
Field 715
Fielding 840
Fienhes 812
Finch 509
Fiſher 546, 731
Fitz Haimon 746
Foley, lord 563
Forteſcue, lord 434
Fowler 702
Fox 815
Frampton 682
Freame 293
Freeman 266
Fullwood 242
Fuſt 500
Gage, lord 690
Gainſborough, earl of 321
Gaſtrell 732
Georges 363
Gibbes 539
Giffard 811
Gilbert 415
Giles 821
Glouceſter abbey 139
Glouceſter biſhoprick 153
Glouceſter city 124, 125
Glouceſter dean and chapter 161
Godfrey 565
Goldſborough 157
Gorges 611
Goſtlett 539
Gough 309
Granville 317
Graves 546
Green 565
Gregory 166, 852
Grevil, lord Brooke 457, 524
Griffin 715
Griſwald 545
Guiſe of Highnam 342
Guyſe of Elmore and Rendcombe 622
Gyde 783, 852
Hall 268, 411, 569
Hale 219, 747
Hamilton 382
Hancock 746, 782
Hanger, lord Coleraine 419
Hardwick, earl of, ſee Yorke
Hardwicke 675, 767
Harmer 796, 804
Harrington 539
Hartley 677
Harward 303
Havard 781
Hawes 829
Hawker 630
Hayward 451, 618, 640, 680
Hayles abbey 488
Haynes 212
Head 281
Heart 715
Hele 802
Henley 804
Hennege 220
Hereford, earl of, ſee Devereux
Hickes 281, 398, 821, 837
Higford 220
Hill 697, 803
ARMS of Hinſon 815
Hobbs 768, 821
Hobhouſe. N. B. Theſe are the arms of Saffyn 796
Hodges 312, 703
Hodges, or Hedges, of Shipton Moign 652, 654
Holbrow 783
Holder 634
Holford 810
Hooke 565
Hopkins 570
Hopton 281
Horner 455
Horton 544
Howard 573
Howe 361, 708, 840
Huddleſton 370
Hulbert 261
Hungerford 417, 549, 774, 803
Huntley 306
Hurdman 779
Huſſey 586
Hutton 666
Hyett 251, 596
Jackſon 802
Jaye 281
Jayne 293
Jefferis 804
Jeffries 801
Jenkinſon 482
Jenner 644
Jermie 623
Jerningham 595
Iles 471
Ingram 384
Innys 803
Jobbins 484
Jones 328, 529, 586, 807
Ireton 618
Izod 689
Keck 652
Kemble 364, 747
Kemys 456
Keyt 374, 435
Kingſcot 513
Kingſton 555
Kirkham 689
Knight 804
Knights templers 3
Knolles 586
Kyrle 726
Lambert 385
Lane 405
Langley 661
Langton 406
Lawrence 251, 596, 646, 647
Leigh 217
Le Zouch 746
Liggon 337, 508
Lingen 616
Lippincott 801
Lloyd 815
Long 497, 539
Loſtock 809
Lovel 803
Lovet 549
Lowe 586
Lucy 421, 435
Lunn 269
Lyſons 490
Machen 411
Madocke 765
Malvern 139
Mariſſal 803
Marriot 637

ARMS of Marrowe 375
Martyn 781
Maſon 855
Maſſinger 597
Maſter 360
Maxwell 781
Maynard 794
Menſier 547
Meredith 539
Meux 477
Milbourne 584
Millington, alias Singe 586
Mills 293, 556
Monox 363
Montacute 747
Mordaunt 220
Morgan 444, 547, 709
Morris 520
Muſgrave, ſee Barnſley, in the Addenda, after the Preface
Mowbray 573
Neaſt 782
Nelmes 281
Nelthrop 778
Newman 373, 759
Newton 167, 298
Nicholas 710
Nicholſon 158
Noel, viſ. Campden 281, 321
Norton 596
Norwood 373, 521
Nott 326
Nourſe 564, 670
O'brien 747
Ockhold 556
Oldiſworth 446
Oldys 561
Olepenne 587
Oſbern 840
Packer 777
Parker 478
Parry 242, 375
Parſons 264, 507, 689
Partridge 555, 556, 647, 702
Paſton 504
Pate 118
Paul 684
Pauncefoot 475
Payne 261
Peach 813, 814, 843
Peachy 657
Pearce 843
Pembridge 373
Pennington 611
Penniſton 747
Percy 421
Perrot 260
Perry 363
Petre 599, 721
Phelps 426, 620, 804
Pigot 509
Pindar 509
Pinfold 630, 696
Pipon 804
Pitt 719
Player 456
Pleydell 549
Plomer 426
Pocock 605
Poole 385, 597, 644, 746
Popham 303, 747
Porter 490
Poulton 476
Powell 119, 363
Powle 385, 618
Powlett 549
Poyntz 214
ARMS of Prigg 807
Prinn 330
Pritchard 500
Probyn 505, 570
Pulton 597
Purnell 426, 821
Pury 726
Pye 411
Pyrke 210
Pytts 302
Radnor, earl of, ſee Bouverie
Rainsford 375
Ratcliff 703
Raymond 759
Rich 326, 415, 840
Ridler 437
Ridley 612
Ridpath 470
Rivers, lord, ſee Pitt
Roberts 630, 747, 794, 807
Robinſon 547
Roche 732
Roe 361, 623
Rogers 340, 371, 414
Rokebye 411
Roſe 747
Rouſe 851
Ruſſel 611
Sackville 287
——— duke of Dorſet 789
Saffyn 281
Sambach 671
Sampſon 497
Sandford 245, 497, 686
Sandys 554
Saunders 730
Savage 472, 732
Saville 803
Scott 532
Scrope 709
Seabroke 138
Seaman 596
Selfe 364, 694
Selwyn 542
Sevill 293
Seymour 298, 456
Sheldon 541
Sheppard 244
Shilling 547
Simons 520
Singleton 565
Skinner 565
Slaughter 666
Small 363, 471
Smart 293, 337
Smith 476, 675
Smithend 227
Smyth 493, 575, 678, 702
Snell 441, 464
Somerſet, ſee Beaufort
Somerville 242, 286
Southwell, lord Clifford 494
Speake 612
Spicer 565
Stafford 747
Stanford 747, 759
Stanley 565
Steight 237
Stephens 264, 291, 431, 660 679, 714
Still 611, 612
Stokes 821, 855
Stowell 565
Strange 710
Stratford 485
Stratton 473
Stringer 298
ARMS of Stubbe 378
Sunderland earl of, ſee Scrope
Surman 777
Swan 547
Swanley 645
Symes 455
Symonds 484
Talbot, lord 263
Talboys 731
Tame 444
Tankerville 705
Taylor 597
Tempeſt 623
Tennent 383
Tewkeſbury abbey 745
Thornhill 547
Thornton 269
Throgmorton 586
Thynne, viſ. Weymouth 259 316, 511
Tippets 426
Toft 809
Topp 775
Townſend 596
Tracy 239, 746, 772
Trevill 679
Trotman 664
Trye 472
Turberville 781
Turner 586
Tyndale 326, 757
Tyſon 759
Vaulx 544
Veel 225, 849
Vernon 305, 689
Villers 416, 417
Viner 539
Viney 641, 726
Ulſter 18
Uvedale 373
Wade 299, 454
Wakeman 268, 747
Waller 447
Wallington 426
Walſh 675
Walter 693
Wanley 666
Warburton 636
Warneford 287, 556
Warner 715
Warren 309, 573, 689
Waſhborne 167, 168, 555
Watts 838
Waugh 163
Webb of Aſhwick and Marſhfield 589, 596
Webb of Hatherop 481
Webb of Avening and Hampton 246, 470
Webley 765
Wenlock, lord 747
Weſton 281
Weymouth lord, ſee Thynne
Wheate 519
Wheeler 543
Whitchurch 694
Whitmore 582, 665
Whittington 583, 727
Whytchyrche 407
Wick 597
Willet 864
Williams of Dingeſtowe 570
Williams of Glouceſter and Winchcombe 119, 829
Willoughby 543
Windowe 841
Winniat 410

ARMS of Winſton 640
Winſtone 694
Wintour, or Winter 411, 429
Woodward 565
Wyatt 694
Wyndham 484, 568
Wyrral 289
Wyvely 801
Yate of Arlingham, Colthrop, &c. 233, 314
Yate of Malmeſbury 821
Yorke 451, 472
Arnold, John, &c. 342, 563, 578, 784
Arthur, king 83
Arundel, John, &c. 251, 356, 372 384, 426, 453, 460, 469, 683 701, 702
Arundel, earl of 216, 251, 253, 372 507, 658, 683, 785
Aſhfield, Michael, &c. 368, 447, 546 757
Aſhley in Charlton Kings 330
Aſhley, ſir Jacob 109
Aſhmead, Mr 724
Aſhton, Robert 235
Aſhwick in Marſhfield, 539
Aſk's rebellion 7
Aſpertone 143
Aſteria columnaris 524
Aſton in Avening 245
Aſton, ſignification of 238, 239
Aſton upon Carrant in Aſhchurch 236
Aſton, Walter, &c. 437, 493, 800
Aſtroites, where found, 516
Aſtry, ſir Samuel 214, 223, 493, 495 800, 806
Athelred 145, 384
Athelſtan 126, 314
Atkyns, ſir Robert, &c. 291, 327 340, 355, 357, 392, 400, 424 490, 551, 643, 679, 722
Atkynſon, Henry 467, 707
Atwood, John 333
At-Yate, John, &c. ſee Yate
Aubeney, ſir Giles de, &c. 285, 327 455, 578, 639, 809
Aubrey, Morgan, &c. 309, 476
Audley, Hugh de, &c. 99, 100, 250 320, 420, 430, 433, 621, 753
Aumerle, duke of 101, 350, 351
Aurelius Ambroſius 104
Auſt in Henbury 494
Avenage in Biſley 292
Avening, and Aven's Green in Tortworth 776
Avenſcot in Berkeley 279
Avon, ſeveral rivers of that name, 46 48, 49, 218, 239, 268, 269, 294 306, 376
Awre, Walter de, &c. 29, 30, 247 308
Ayford in Marſhfield 539
Ayleſford, ſir John de 792
Ayleſmore Houſe in St. Briavel's 308
Aylminton in Henbury 495
Aylworth in Naunton 560
Aylworth, Edward, &c. 330, 560

Bacon, or friar Bacon 468
Baderon, Philip, &c. 247, 533
Badleſmere, lord Bartholomew, &c. 291, 371, 591
Badminton Houſe 253
Bagendon, Richard de 258
Baghott, Thomas, &c. 604, 605, 753
Bagpath in Newington Bagpath 566
Bagſtone in Wickwar 820
Bainton, ſir Edward 338
Baker, John, &c. 224, 292, 371, 501 695
Balacote, William 338, 469, 731
Ball, Robert, &c. 702
Balon, Winebald de 143, 146, 231 430, 580
Bamfylde, ſir Richard 787, 788
Banksfee in Longborough 532
Banniſter, William, &c. 479, 778
Bardone, John 632
Barker, Mr. 219, 265, 308, 443, 483 544
Barnes, William 616
Barners, or Berners, Richard, &c. 356, 501
Barnſley Houſe and Park 259
Baron, account of that title 17
Baronet, origin of that title 17
Barr, ſir John, &c. 296, 298, 529 700
Barr-Court in Bitton 295
Barret, Thomas, &c. 336, 371
Barrington Houſe 262
Barrington in Campden 321
Barrington, John de 30, 286
Barrow in Bodington 301
Barrow's Bridge in Bagendon 259
Barrow, or Berrow, Thomas, &c. 235, 247, 248, 309, 342, 472 550, 551, 568, 787
Barrows found in various parts 244 306, 334, 347, 369, 440, 480 657, 736
Barſtable, Nicholas 537
Bartlet, Richard, &c. 636, 722
Barton in Cirenceſter 356; in Guiting 466; near Briſtol 460; near Glouceſter 144, 206
Barton End in Horſley 502
Barton, Thomas, &c. 410, 622, 632
Baſkerville, Bernard de, &c. 145 238, 240, 265, 292, 312, 322, 805
Baſſet, ſir Anſelme, &c. 273, 285 297, 318, 455, 516, 625, 639 648, 713, 783, 786, 809, 854
Baſſets Court in Uley 783
Bateſon, William, &c. 302, 557
Bath, earl of 251
Bathurſt, earl of, genealogical account of his family 354; his ſeat at Cirenceſter 355; eſtates in Glouceſterſhire 325, 400, 643 660, 661
Bathurſt, ſir Benjamin, &c. 354, 519 524, 528, 529
Batsford Houſe 265
Battle, trial by, ſome account of, 250
Baugh, Richard 781
Bayley, John, &c. 456, 814
Baynham, Thomas, &c. 210, 247 248, 289, 308, 330, 401, 529, 567 568, 635, 690, 792 794, the note to p. 791
Beach in Bitton 296, 297
Beachley in Tiddenham fortified 762 763, 765
Bearcroft, Edward 563
Beauchamp, Guy de, &c. 102, 215 233, 247, 253, 268, 275, 286, 300 312, 314, 318, 327, 332, 333, 338 382, 391, 410, 413, 424, 443, 460, 507, 578, 645, 741, 817, 847
Beaufort, duke of 253, 256, 257, 258 308, 408, 483, 499, 585, 693 699, 764
Beaumont, viſcount, &c. 102, 285 455, 639, 809
Becket, Richard 219
Becket, archbiſhop, his ſhrine 9
—— his death, note to p. 770
Becket's Bury 847
Beckford, Thomas de 266
Bedford, duke of 308, 428, 493, 626 718, 822
Bedlam in Welford 789
Bell, William 30, 567, 640
Bells, why antiently ſprinkled with holy water 596
Bellemont, Roger de 332, 413
Bellers, Richard de, 214, 439
Bellowe, John 236
Benbury Stone 506
Bencombe in Uley 783
Benedictines, what, 2
Bengrove in Beckford 268
Bentham in Badgworth 251
Beranbyrig fight 258
Berkeley, earl of, genealogical account of his family 271
Berkeley, Roger de, &c. 215, 222 232, 247, 251, 283, 296, 308, 310 318, 329, 371, 388, 395, 397 398, 400, 412, 418, 425, 442 493, 512, 528, 537, 566, 574 576, 588, 622, 627, 662, 685, 693 698, 700, 730, 757, 783, 785
Berkeley Caſtle 269 et ſeq.
—— Herneſſe 493
—— nunnery, ſtory of 270
Berne, John 308
Berry Hill at Uley, a Roman camp 783
Beverſtone Caſtle, 282; taken by the parliament in the civil wars 283
Bevington in Berkeley 279
Bickmarſh in Welford 789
Bicknor, Alexander de, &c. 30, 635
Bickſwear in St. Briavel's 307, 308
Bicks in Marſhfield 539
Bidfield in Biſley 292
Bigod, earl of Norfolk 236, 250, 763
Billeſwike hoſpital 224, 283
Billingſley, Henry 664
Binley in Kingſcot 512
Bircher, William 251
Bird, Richard 814
Birdlip in Brimpsfield 311, 394
Birt, William 360
Biſhop, Jordan, &c. 673 et ſeq.
Biſhopſhort, William 608
Biſhopſtone, ſir William 617
Biſhton in Tidenham 765
Biſs, Edward 455
Biſſet, John 356
Biſtort or Snake-weed 585
Bitton, or Button, John de 297
Blachamp, Thomas de 447
Black Friars college, Glouceſter 193
Blakeney in Awre 248
Blacket, John 412, 805
Blackſworth, manor of 461
Blackwell, Samuel 229, 231, 249 385, 618
Blagg, Henry 464, 560
Blake, William, &c. 265, 292, 297 306, 322, 814
Blakenham, Benedict 447, 680
Blanch, Mr. 439
Blank, Richard le 532
Blaſe-hill in Henbury 491
Blathwayte, William, &c. 427, 429
Bleichdein, Henry 578

Bleythe's

Bleythe's Court 573
Blideſlow in Awre 247
Bloet, ſir John, &c. 274, 387, 400
Blomer, William 433, 481
Blount, John, &c. 133, 295, 326 448, 495, 536, 699, 725
Bloodſtone 379
Bloxholm, John 582
Blue-coat hoſpital, Glouceſter 198
Bluet, Ralph 141, 150, 573
Bockholt in Brimpsfield 134, 144, 310 in Stanley 885
Bocland, what 65, 316
Boddingham, Mr. 304
Bodenham, Roger 371
Bodiſaunt, John, &c. 219, 483
Bohun, Humphry de, &c. 230, 247 260, 299, 306, 315, 335, 369, 370 386, 409, 474, 572, 612, 793, 814
Bolloe in Weſtbury 793
Bond, ſir William 535
Bone, a very large one 791
Boner, Thomas 322
Bonhommes, or Goodmen, what 3
Bordarii, what 80
Boroughs, antient, in Glouceſterſhire 571
Boſco, Ernald de 434
Boſeley in Weſtbury 794
Boteler, John de, &c. 229, 238, 253 257, 258, 301, 338, 551, 578, 640 718
Botetourt, lord 50, 59, 256, 693, 699
Botevile, Geofry 259, 510
Botreaux, ſir John 382
Bottoms, a country ſo called 711
Bouleſdon in Newent 564
—— Thomas 564
Bourchier, William, &c. 260, 360 550
Bourne, Anthony 467, 707, 823
Bourton, Walter, &c 302
Bovey, Mr. 450
Bowers-lye in Cam 318
Bowes, Percival 360
Bownham's in Rodborough 629
Box in Minchinhampton 469
Box-wood, a remarkable one 305
Boy, Robert 248
Boyd river 49
Boyfield in Minſterworth 551
Boyſe, John de, &c. 356, 434
Bradeſtone, Thomas, &c. 233, 280 503, 696, 766
Bradſtone in Berkeley 280, 281, 696
Bradley, James, D.D. 649
Bradley in Wottonunderedge 815
Bragge, Charles, &c. 297, 455, 536
Brain, Robert 690
Branch, Mr. 370
Braoſe, William de, &c. 250, 260 290, 632, 729, 730
Braſs-mills, and other large works 294, 601, 663
Brawne, ſir Hugh, &c. 608, 609, 636
Bray of Barrington 262, et ſeq. 563 624
Braybrook, Gerhard 327
Breach Yate in Abſton 212; in Siſton 664
Bream in Newland 568
Breedon Hill 506
Breinton, George 410
Brent, William 615, 617
Brentford, earl of 109
Breresford, Richard 245
Brereton, Randal, &c. 260, 437, 578
Brett, ſir Jeremiah, &c. 107, 414, 415
Brian, Thomas, &c. 223
Brickhampton in Churchdown 340; in Sevenhampton 646, 647
Brictric, the ſon of Algar 91, 244 272, 739
Bridges, or Brugge, Robert, &c. 30 225, 245, 251, 297, 311, 329 355, 368, 370, 372, 388, 396 398, 415, 478, 549, 609, 718
Bridgman, John, &c. 234, 248, 576 609, 682
Bright, Thomas 533
Brimpſcomb in Hampton 469; in Stroud 713
Brimpsfield Caſtle 309 —— priory 310
Brimſham in Yate 855
Briton, Guinar 320
Britiſh Towns, what they were 345
Brives, Robert de 466, 625, 626
Brokenborow in Almondſbury 224
Brockhampton in Cleeve 371; in Sevenhampton 646; in Snowſhill 671
Brockwear in St. Briavel's, &c. 307
Brocton, Charles 407
Brome, colonel 329
Bromfield priory 140, 145
Bromfleet, Edward 517
Bromptone 145
Bromwick, Wido de 314
Brooke, Thomas, &c. 215, 388, 495 563, 590
—— Willoughby, lord 507, 578 766, 767
—— Verney, lord 767
—— Grevil, lord 457, 613, 615 767
Brookend in Woollaſton 844
Brown, Mr. 301, 419, 455, 516 522, 555, 582, 637, 784
Browning, John, &c. 225, 301, 372 398, 448, 495, 499, 522, 560 576, 583, 629, 695, 699
Brownſend in Bromſborow 314
Broxoline, Mrs. 784
Bruce, Robert 99, 446, 625
Bruerne in Sandhurſt 639
Brun, John le 438, 582, 832
Buckholt in Leonard Stanley 685
Buckingham, duke of 100, 102, 103 223, 325, 430, 473, 587, 621 754, 757
Buckland's Place in Badgworth 251
Buckle, Thomas, &c. 441, 443, 742
Buckler, Richard 326
Buckover in Thornbury 757
Buenos Ayres, a handſome ſeat 593
Bulley, or Buſley, Roger de 145, 374
Bullins in Upton St. Leonard's 785
Bumpſted, Chriſtopher 555
Burdet, ſir Thomas, a very extraordinary ſentence executed againſt him, note to p. 275
Burdon, Nicholas, &c. 585, 725
Bures, John de 300, 308
Burgenſes, what 80
Burgh, Hubert de, &c. 96, 291, 320 440, 615
Burgred 131, 146, 332
Burgton, or Bourton, Walter de 302 626
Burgeſs, Mr. 317, 550
Burghull, Roger 418, 792
Burghurſt, Bartholomew 382
Burial, antient manner of 347
Burley in Hampton 469
Burnack, John 615
Burnell, Edward, &c. 416, 435, 625 674, 778
Burton, Thomas, &c. 503, 615, 616
Buſhel, ſir Alan, &c. 600
Buſſage in Biſley 292
Buthrop 432
Butler, William, &c. 280, 292, 370 463, 527
Butler's Court in Bodington 301
Byrd-wood in Churcham 160, 342
Caer, various ſignifications of 82
Caer Bladon 727
Caer Cori 343
Caer Oder, Briſtol ſo called 376
Cain's Croſs 711
Calamine ſtone 818, 854
Calcot in Goln St. Dennis 386; in Newington Bagpath 566
Caldicote in Guiting Power 464
Callow in Dimmock 411
Callow, John de 250, 310, 627, 662 683, 701
Calmſden in North Cerney 326
—— Roger de 326
Calthrop in Standiſh 152, 681
Calybeate water 712
Cam, Ralph de, &c. 318, 410
Cambridge in Slimbridge 669
Cambridge, Richard-Owen 644, 814
Campden, Broad, in Chipping Campden 319, 322, 815
Campden, viſcount, ſee Gainſborough earl of Campneys, Henry 755
Camps, ſee Roman and other camps
Camvill, Richard de 625
Canal, cut from Stroud to the Severn 712
Cann, ſir Thomas, &c. 388, 438 587, 796, 801
Canons regular, and ſecular, what 2, 3
Cantelupe, Maud de, &c. 29, 412 425, 686
Canute, king 131
Capel, Henry, &c. 336, 404, 405
Carent, Alexander 288
Carlton, George 328
Carnarvon, earl of 212
Carpenter, Thomas, &c. 259, 267 285
Carrant, river 47, 219, 268, 369
Carſwell in Newent 563
Carter, John, &c. 238, 239, 330 485, 722
Carthuſians, what 2
Cateſlade in Guiting Power 434, 464
Caſmajor, Mr. 588
Caſſey, John, &c. 404, 416, 551 709, 726
Caſſey Compton in Withington 839
Caſtleman, Jonathan &c. 399
Caſtles, (old fortifications ſo called) in Horton 503; in Kingſcot 512; in Titherington 766; in Abſton 211
Caſtle, at Berkeley 269
—— Beverſtone 282
—— Brimpsfield 107, 309
—— Cirenceſter 350
—— Durſley 424
—— Glouceſter 84, 89, 107, 577
—— Miſerden 552
—— Newnham 571
—— St. Briavel's 307
—— Sudley 716

—— Tewkesbury 734
—— Thornbury 750
—— Winchcombe 825
Catchmay, sir Richard, &c. 34, 308 499
Cateſby, William 608
Caudle Green in Brimpsfield 311
Cavendiſh, William, &c. 531
Cavalcade, ludicrous one, note to p. 650
Ceaulin, the Saxon 427
Cells, what 2
Chadock, John 382, 453
Chalford Bottom 289, 486
Chamberlayne, Thomas, &c. 118 339, 340, 354, 355, 387, 398 410, 551, 582, 584, 605, 626 658, 704, 705, 722
Chambers, John 538
Chancellors of the dioceſe 163
Chandois, lord 217, 251, 304, 311 342, 351, 372, 396, 398, 718, 827
Chandos, ſir Lawrence de 134, 144 313
Chanſy, John de 658
Chantries, what 2
Chapman, Mr. 613, 709
Charingworth in Ebbrington 434
Charlton in Tetbury 731
Charter-horn, account of one 465
Chateline, Gilbert, &c. 385, 435, 481
Chaworth, Henry de, &c. 29, 30 147, 148, 248, 332, 480, 510
Chavenage in Horſley 502
Chaxhill in Weſtbury upon Severn 793
Cheddre, Thomas, &c. 215, 224, 296 388, 412, 425, 495, 620, 686
Chedworth, lord 332, 333, 387, 399 467, 479, 708
Chelardiſton, William 553
Cheltenham, William, &c. 240, 336 632
Chepſtow-bridge 761
Cherleton 290, 291
Cheſbrook, John 297
Cheſter, Thomas, &c. 222, 223, 224 325, 251, 418, 460
Cheſter and Lincoln, earl of 320
Cheſterton in Cirenceſter 356
Cheſterton, William de 786, 828
Chicheſter, John 455, 639, 809
Child of monſtrous ſize 665
Chilkel, John 441
Chilt river 47, 334
Chire, ſee Shirehampton
Cholmondely, Roger 322
Chriſtopher, Saint, a coloſſal figure of him in Bibury church 286
Church, Mr. 304
Church End in Eaſtington 431; in Nibley 575; in Tidenham 765; in Twining 781
Church Lench 370
Churchley in Abſton 212
Churn, river 48, 258, 327, 343, 383
—— Bad etymology of the name 48; ſee p. 343
Cirenceſter taken 350, 351
Cirenceſter, William of 358
Ciſtercians, what 2
Clanricard, earl of 288, 301
Clapton in Berkeley 279
Clapton, Richard 368
Clare, lord 416
Clares, earls of Glouceſter and Hertford 95, et ſeq. 125, 229, 235, 250 285, 291, 320, 326, 333, 372 374, 382, 391, 392, 414, 415 430, 433, 443, 460, 530, 607 621, 667, 704, 739, 740
Clarence, George duke of 235, 291 310, 311, 333, 372
Clareſhull, William 286
Clariſſes, what 3
Clark, Abraham 450, 635
Clavile, John de, &c. 684
Clay-hill in Leachlade 520
Cleeve in Weſtbury 794
Clerk, ſir Clement 583
Clifford, ſir Walter, &c. 31, 106 107, 146, 147, 292, 310, 410, 432 452, 456, 585, 724
Clifford, Southwell lord 370, 455 493, 494
Climperwell in Cranham 396
Clinger in Stinchcombe 696; in Cam 318
Clinton, William earl of Huntingdon 264, 312, 390, 414, 465
Clivedon, ſir John 274, 329
Clopton in Mickleton 546
Clopton, ſir William 615
Clothing Manufacture, effects of 629 701, 842; extenſiveneſs about Stroud 711
Clowerwall 210, 248, 289, 308, 401 567
Cluniacs, what 2
Clutterbuck, Thomas, &c. 235, 592 678
Coaffe, or Cove, John 437, 516, 607
Coal-pits, 26, 459, 854; remarkable deliverance out of one, note to p. 459
—— fiſhing for it 778
Coal, John 345
Coal-pit Heath in Weſterleigh 806
Coat in Eaſtleach Martyn 432
——in Ebberton 435
Cobham, Reginald lord 288
Cock, John 823
Cockbury in Winchcombe 828
Cockbury-farm in Southam 371
Cockleford in Elkſtone 439
Cocks, James, &c. 372, 373, 420, 421
Cockſhot in Newnham 573
Codrington in Wapley 787
Codrington, Simon, &c. 408, 412 483, 610, 678, 787, 788
Coke, John 648
Colcheſter, Maynard, &c. 210, 401 517, 792
Cold Comfort in Dowdeſwell 414
Coleraine, Hanger lord 419, 511
Coleſborn Little in Withington 839
Colford in Newland 568
Coliberti, what 80
Colleges, or collegiate churchs, what 2
Collet, John 560
Coln, river 48
Colſton, Edward, &c. 493, 537, 800 806, 814
Colthrop in Standiſh 681
Combe 145, 287
Combe in Campden 322; in Wotton-underedge 848
Combe Baſkerville in Weſtcot, ſee Weſtcot
Combend in Elkſtone 439
Combs, Mr. 325
Comin, John 288, 505, 558, 593
Commeaile, the Briton 427
Commanderies, what 2
Compoſition for tithes, what 12
Compton in Newent 563
Compton Caſſey in Withington 839
Compton, Walter, &c. 292, 322 477, 606
Condidan, the Briton 427
Condicote, Hugh de 390
Conway, lord 415, 816
Conyers, Thomas 608
Copper-ore 712
Cook, Edward, &c. 127, 128, 251 328, 342, 517, 522, 551
Cook's Folly 802
Cooper's Hill in Brockworth 312, 313
Cope, Anthony, &c. 292, 370, 506
Copper-works 549, 567
Corbet, Peter, &c. 226, 291, 315 434, 460, 664, 766
Corinium, the Roman name for Cirenceſter 344
Cormeiles, Margaret de, &c. 242 265, 657
Corndean in Winchcombe 828
Cornua Ammonis, ſee petrifications
Cornwall, Richard 325
Cornwall, earl of 250, 338, 519 532, 486
Cornwallis, ſir William, &c. 327, 818
Corſe-lawn 111, 390
Coſcomb in Didbrook 407
Coſſins, John 482, 802, 803
Cotes in Winchcombe 827
Cote in Ebberton 435; in Olveſton 588; in Weſtbury upon Trim 796
Cotel, Robert, &c. 322, 454
Cotesſwold, why ſo called 21, 392 much improved ib.;——wool, a vulgar error concerning it 23;----- games, ſome account of 24
Coteworth 456
Cotham Houſe in Weſtbury 796, 797
Cotham Stone deſcribed 797
Cotton, ſir Robert, &c. 386, 388, 816
Couel, or de Coaley, John 784
Country-ſeats, many of them deſerted 420
Courteen, ſir William 722
Coventry, earl of 292, 404, 779, 828
Cowcombe in Minchinhampton 469
Cowell in Thornbury 755
Cowley, Nicholas 243, 395
Cox, Thomas, &c. 235, 315, 390 632, 827
Coxe, Charles, &c. 584, 627, 632 633, 713
Coxeter, Mr. 519
Coxwell, Charles, &c. 285, 778
Cradoc, ſee Newton John, &c.
Cradle of king H. 5. 567
Craggs, James 416
Craven, lord 235, 301, 340, 371 439, 605, 777, 788
Crayle, Crayle, eſq; his ſeat 584
Creed's Place in Upton St. Leonard's 785
Creping, Robert 680
Creſſwell, Eſtcourt, &c. 284, 285 286
Creſwicke, Henry 297
Creſſy, battle of 274, 725
Crickley in Badgworth 251
Crickley-hill, a beautiful proſpect from 249
Crinclewood 358
Cript School, Glouceſter 127
Cripps, Thomas, &c. 538, 730
Criſp, Mr. 539

Criſpin, Miles 338
Crockly in Tortworth 776
Croke, John 443, 587
Croker, John, &c. 265, 356, 455 639, 809
Cromwell, earl of Eſſex, his fall 10; other particulars of 558, 595
Cromwell, Ralph, &c. 320, 322, 362
Crompton, John 279
Crook, Thomas 681
Croupes, Edward, &c. 414, 646, 815
Crowthorne and Minety hundred explained 549, 709
Cryſtal, or Briſtol ſtone 379
Cugley in Newent 563
Culkerton in Rodmarton 632
Culpeper, Thomas, &c. 478, 828
Culverden in Sandhurſt 640
Curtoiſe, Robert 126, 143, 150, 250 325
Cuſons, William 416
Cuſron, Ralph, &c. 355
Cuſtoms particular, in the deſcent of eſtates 336, 595; in Child's Wickham 817; in St. Briavel's 307
Cuthwin the Saxon 427
Cyppan, the ſignification of 319
Dagham-down ſtone 258, 400
Dallaway, William 713
Dalton, Mr. 523
Damery in Tortworth 776
Danet, John 551
Dane-meen Hill in the Foreſt 29
Daneway in Biſley 292
Danvers, ſir John, &c. 354, 357, 660
Darcy, Arthur 223
Darel, Dorothy 236
Daſton, Anthony, &c. 407, 421
Daubeny, Mr. 455
Daunſey, John 657
Daunt of Olepen, a curious letter to him from prince Edward, note to p. 586
Davis, Robert 291
Dawtry, Francis, &c. 301 507, 578
Deacon, Thomas, &c. 362 731
Dean Foreſt 27, 28, 29, 106 141, 142 146
Dean, William de 29 401, 516, 713
Deaneries in the dioceſe of Glouceſter 153, 160
Deans, chapter, &c. 161
D'Aubeny, lord, ſee Aubeny
Deffeld, John 134, 144, 313
Degge, Mr. Staunton 223, 495, 588
Deighton, Job, &c. 374
Deinton, ſee Dointon
De-la-Bere, Richard, &c. 370, 605
Delamere, John 831
De-la-Warr, John lord, &c. 283 304, 819, 820
Denham, ſir John 816
Dennis, Hugh, &c. 212, 226, 240 342, 428, 429, 460, 502, 585, 610 611, 664, 788
Denroſe, ſir John 297
Derby, Ferrers earl of 107, 250, 273
Deſcents of copy-hold eſtates, and particular cuſtoms 336, 595
Deſpencer, Hugh le, &c. 99, 214 229, 250, 260, 273, 274, 290, 291 308, 310, 333, 371, 372, 382, 391 404, 443, 519, 521, 553, 590, 607 659, 662, 674, 676, 683, 740, 809 815, 817, 832
Devereux, ſir Walter, &c. 238, 288 410, 590, 691, 692, 725
Deverty, Thomas 635
Devonſhire, earl of 411, 531, 595 620, 646
Dewe, Edward 328
Dickleſton, William, &c. 220
Dickleſton, or Dixton, ſee Dixton
Didcot in Beckford 268
Digby, lord 111
Dingle, John 279
Dingley, Thomas 336
Dinley, Thomas 371
Dobins, Robert 314
Dobuni, ſignification of 19
Doddington Houſe 412
Doddington, John, &c. 340, 612 613
Dodeſham, William, &c. 693
Dodo, earl of Mercia 403, 734
Dodwell, ſir William 251, 414, 646 647, 666
Doiley, Mr. 286
Dointon, Thomas de 406
Doleman, Thomas, &c. 688
Dolle, James 422
Dolphin, John 368, 667
Domeſday-book, when and how made 64; copy of it 66, et ſeq.
Donnington in Stow 704
Don John's croſs in St. George's 459
Dormer, Fleetwood, &c. 336, 337
Dorn 557
Dorney, Mr. 109, 110, 119
Dorrel, Mr. 386
Dorrington, ſir William 813
Dorſet, earl and duke of 253, 254 789, 808
Dorſington Little in Welford 789
Dover, Robert 319, 691
Dover's Hill near Campden 24, 319
Dowdeſwell, ſir William, &c. 301 391, 414, 415, 442, 523
Dowell, John, &c. 223, 225
Down, Pope earl of 399
Downe, viſcount 229, 230
Downeved, John de 648
Down End in Forthampton 451
Downend in Mangotsfield 537
Draper, ſir William, his ſeat 377
Draycot's Place in Horton 503
Drayton, ſir John, &c 216, 413, 428 429
Driver, Mr. 245
Drogue, Henry le 313
Droiſcourt in Brockworth 152, 153 313
Druffham, or Trougham in Biſley 292
Ducie, ſir Robert, &c. 397, 776, 820
Ducie, lord 397, 458, 576, 633, 684 731, 776, 820
Dudbridge in King's Stanley 684
Dudley, earl of Warwick and duke of Northumberland 285, 333
Dudley, Ambroſe 463, 484, 517
Dudſton 83, 136
Duffield, Richard 338
Dufton, or Doughton in Tetbury 730 731
Duke, a ſhort account of that title 17
Dumballs in Slimbridge 668
Duncan, William 302
Dunch, Edmond, &c. 416
Dunſen, John 326
Dunteſbourne Lyre in Dunteſbourne Abbats 423
Dunville in Kempsford 511
Duny in Minſterworth 551
Durdham-down 796
Durſley, viſcount 277
Dutton, John, &c. 221, 229, 330 336, 399, 558, 580, 649, 681 682, 778
Dymery, Nicholas 809
Dyrham, battle of 427
Eaſtington, or Amney St. Peter 231
Eaſtington in Northleach 580
Eaſtbrook, or Amney St. Mary 230
Eaſtend in Fairford 444
Eaſter-Compton in Almondſbury 224
Eaſton near Briſtol 458
Eaſtwood in Thornbury 756
Ebley in Stonehouſe 702
Eckley, ſir Samuel, &c. 813, 814
Eden, Henry 441, 811
Edgar, king 105, 106
Edgcombe, lord 311, 396
Edge, alias Rydge in Painſwick 595
Edge-hill fight 647
Edmons, Thomas 304
Edric 132
Edwards, Walter, &c. 266, 493, 800
Eel, a large one 232
Effingham, earl of 573
Egbert 131, 150, 332
Eight, an iſland of that name 403
Edbrug in Brockworth 313
Eldeland, ſee Oldland in Bitton
Eldad, earl 104
Eldol, earl 86, 93, 104
Elfrede 501
Elliford, John 317
Elliot, Mr. 416, 688
Ellis, Joſeph 264
Elmbridge in Churchdown 340
Elmbridge, Thomas 551
Elmeley 370
Elmſton Hardwick in Elmſton 441, 442
Elmſtree in Tetbury 731
Elton in Weſtbury 794
Elton, Edward 761
Elvers, 46,---in the Wye 307
Embury, John 781
Emundeſham William 371
Erchebald, Jeffry de, &c. 355, 358
Erdington, Henry 322
Erſkyn, earl of Marr 333
Erſkyn, viſcount Fenton 249, 356
Eſheley, Walter de, &c. 330
Eſquire, ſignification of 18; his wages per diem 273
Eſſex, earl of 109, 110, 558, 595, 814
Eſtcourt in Shipton Moign 653
Eſtcourt, Thomas, &c. 245, 302 425, 426, 439, 516, 566, 653 654, 655, 682
Ethelbald 143
Ethelfleda 125, 314
Ethelred 125, 131, 501, 769
Ethelrick 149, 343
Etloe, or Eteſlau in Awre 248
Evenlode 48, 216, 265, 299, 311
Everend in Woollaſton 844
Evers, Maud de 483, 589, 726
Eveſham, Thomas de 811
Evington in Lye and Bodington 523
Ewe, William de 83
Ewelm, honour of 338, 626
Ewenny priory 146
Ewias 146
Ewilm river 47, 425
Exeter, duke of 253, 350, 351
Eycot in Rendcombe 622
Eyford near Slaughter 667
Eyre, Francis 384
Ezimbury 150

Fabrica,

Fabrica, Walkelyn de 785
Falfield in Thornbury 757
Fane, ſir Ralph 236
Fane, lord 389, 523
Fane, lady 389, 523, 769
Fariemeiol, the Briton 427
Farley in Hardwick 152
Farmcot in Guiting Power 463
Faunton, Henry de 322
Feckenham, John de 811
Fend, Henry le 648
Fennes, William, &c. 608
Fereby, John 324
Fermor, William, &c. 818
Fernham, John, &c. 251, 266, 297 301, 336, 340
Ferrers, William, Hugh, &c. 236 290, 389, 519, 725
Ferrers, lord 238, 275, 288, 300 410, 725
Ferrers, earl of Derby 250, 273, 519
Fettiplace, John, &c. 626, 822
Fibula Veſtiaria, &c. found at Kingſcot 512
Fiddington in Aſhchurch 235, 742
Field, Thomas, &c. 713, 714
Field-court in Hardwick 472
Fiennes, John 108, 811
Fifield in Eaſtleach Martyn 432
Filtham river 211
Filton, Edward 531, 699
Finch, Henry, &c. 508, 590
Firma, whence our word farm, what it was antiently 80
Fiſher, William, &c. 546, 731
Fitz-Alan, Robert, &c. 268, 658, 683
Fitz-Alan, earl of Arundel, ſee Arundel
Fitz-Compte, Brian 93
FitzHaiman 16, 91, 92, 93, 94, 236 302, 325, 404, 441, 621, 739
Fitz-Harding 222, 237, 272, 283 296, 437, 448, 493, 499, 512 575, 576
Fitz-Herbert, Herbert, &c. 29, 260 320, 371, 519, 723
Fitz-Hugh, ſir William, &c. 615
Fitz-Gerald, Gerald, &c. 648
Fitz-John, Euſtace, &c. 593
Fitz-Nicholas, Thomas, &c. 214 238, 279, 448, 499, 576, 699
Fitz-Pain, Robert, &c. 453
Fitz-Peirce, Jeffery, &c. 814
Fitz-Ponz, Drogo 452
Fitz-Roy, Robert 16, 93, 621, 739
Fitz-Walter, Milo 93
Fitz-Warren 226, 251, 529, 593, 632
Fitz-Warren, Bourcher lord 550
Fitz-Williams, William, &c. 328
Fleetwood, Henry, &c. 283, 499, 811
Fleming, Alard le, &c. 623, 624
Flemings ſettled near Briſtol 601
Folcland, what 65, 316
Foley, lord 563, 564, 590
Foliot, Gilbert, &c. 133, 134, 572
Fontevrault, nuns of that order 3
Forde in Guiting Temple 466
Foreſt, what it is 27
——— of Dean, perambulation of 28 king C. 1. diſafforeſted it 30; reafforeſted 20 C. 2. 31
——— courts of, 32.——produce of 35.——timber, great importance of, 35 and note Foreſters, their privileges 33
——— their character 37
Forreſter, Brooke, &c. 385, 618
Forſter, Anthony, &c. 306, 410, 677
Fort, or The Fort in Rodborough 629
Forteſcue, ſir Adrian, &c. 235, 302 322, 371, 390, 394, 678, 777, 788
Forteſcue, lord 434, 599
Fortibus, William de, &c. 673
Fortey in Nibley 575
Forwood in Minchinhampton 469
Foſs, the Romam way ſo called 523
Foſſils, where found in plenty 252 459, 577
Fowler, Daniel, &c. 702
Foxcot, or Fuſcote in Withington 839
Framelode 430, 452
Frampton in Saperton 643
Francigena, what 80
Franklyn, ſir Richard 243
Frantone in Winchcombe 828
Fravelleſworth, William, &c. 407 608
Freame, Robert, &c. 713
Freeman, Thomas, &c. 243, 265 266, 297, 532, 546, 828
Freezewood in Olveſton 588
Frenchay in Winterbourn 834, 835
Freſcheville, Ralph 553
Frethorn, Galfrid, de, &c. 644, 645
Frieries, what 2
Frogmill in Shipton Solers 656
Froome, river 47, 48, 49, 213, 244 310, 376, 452, 710
——— which makes the Back at Briſtol 412
——— an act to make it navigable 712
Froombridge in Frampton, large wire mills there 452
Froomill in Rodborough 630
Frythmore 146
Funeral ceremony of queen Catharine Parr 719
——— of the dutcheſs of Clarence 746
Fuſt, ſir John, &c. 499, 500
Gage, viſcount 288, 690
Gainſborough, earl of 278, 319, 320 321, 811
Gale, William, de 223
Gamage, Gilbert, &c. 386, 410, 794
Gamaſh, William de 616
Gammage-hall in Dimmock 410
Gardinis, William de 541
Gardner, William 464
Garrine, William 415
Garroway, William 683
Gaſcoign, George 231
Gaſtrel, Mr. 731
Gatcomb Houſe and Park 244
Gatcombe in Awre 248
Gatwick, Thomas 301, 578
Gaunt, Maurice de, &c. 223, 224 253, 254, 283, 437, 494, 528, 808
Gaunt's Urcot in Almondſbury 224
Gearing, Gregory 493, 800
Geldum, what 80
George, William, &c. 267, 607
Gerard, William 541, 563
Gernoon, William 414
Giant's hole, and Jack's hole 376
Giffard, ſir John, &c. 106, 107, 134 144, 145, 146, 151, 215, 250 265, 272, 315, 396, 430, 521, 578 603, 627, 662, 683, 698, 701, 811
Gilbert, Thomas 292
Gildable-bridge 403
Gilds, what 2; one at Durham 428
——— at Sodbury 674
Gineton 330
Glamorgan, earl of 255
Glaſs-houſe, the firſt erected in England 572
Glendourdwy, Owen 291
Glouceſter City deſcribed 81
——— antient name of 82
——— ſtrength, walls, gates, &c. 86
——— ſuburbs of 205 to 207
——— honour of 91
——— earls of 93
——— battles and ſieges there 106
——— government and officers of 112
——— privileges, corporation of 121
——— charter of 122, Appendix iv
——— births and deaths of eminent perſons there 125
——— public ſchools, charities, &c. 127
——— abbey, and abbats 131, et ſeq.
——— cathedral, its hiſtory interſperſed with the account of the abbats 131, et ſeq. 171 et ſeq.
——— biſhoprick, biſhops of 151
——— of the pariſhes in that city 181
——— court and parliament held there 105, 106
——— repreſentatives in parliament 120
Glouceſter, Walter of 226, 313
Glover, ſir Thomas 243
Godeley, Elias de 578
Godemon, William 133
Goderick, Richard, &c. 331, 529
Godrum, the Dane 347, 350, 357
Godwell, John 516
Godwin, earl of Kent 270, 282
Golden Valley in Minchinhampton 469
Golding, William 416
Goodinge, Mr. 371, 648
Gorges, Ralph de, &c. 428
Gorney, or Gourney, Anſelm de, &c. 144, 223, 224, 272, 274, 437 494, 512, 528, 529, 607
Gorſlet, John 538
Goſeline, Bogo 551
Goſſington in Slimbridge 669
Gotherington in Cleeve 371
Gough, William, &c. 308, 309, 499 568, 628
Grafton in Beckford 268
Grandiſon, William de, &c. 410, 550 590
Grantmaiſnil, Hugh 315
Grange, Old, in Dimmock 410; in Guiting Power 464; in Tetbury 731; in Wormington 845
Grave, Jeoffrey de la &c. 785, 786
Graves, Richard, &c. 545, 546
Greeding in Olveſton 588
Green-houſe in Dimmock 411; Green, or the Green in Uley 783; Green End in Twining 781
Green, William de la, &c. 297, 587
Greening, John 519
Greet in Winchcombe 828
Grender, John, &c. 210, 248, 280 297, 401, 529, 567, 700, 793
Gregory, Mr. 505
Grenville, ſir Bevil, &c. 240
Greſham, ſir Richard 316, 407
Gretton in Winchcombe 828
Grevile, William, &c. 320, 322, 323 330, 336, 394, 418, 485, 463, 578 599, 616, 624, 645, 646, 767, 769 789, 808, 811

Grevil, Ludowick, his treachery and barbarity 645
Greville, lord Brooke 457, 613, 615 767
Grew, William 306
Grey friers, college of, in Gloucester 194
Grey, ſir Anthony, &c. 292, 356 505, 508, 615, 680
Grove Court in Upton St. Leonard's 785
Grove Houſe in Bromſborough 314
Groveſend, or Grovening in Alveſton 227
Grubb, John, 128
Grubham, ſir Richard 387
Grumbald's Aſh explained 548
Guilford, earl of 646
Guiſe, Henry, &c. 342, 343, 517
Gumſtod in Woollaſton 844
Gundenel, Hugh de 320
Guns Mills in Abbenhall 209
Gunning, Mr. 240
Gunter, James 229, 235, 251, 322 370, 404, 787
Guyſe, ſir Anſelm, &c. 253, 262, 313 326, 440, 622, 793
Gwinnet, George, &c. 225, 251, 418
Gyves, Robert 479, 484
Hagloe in Awre 247
Hai, haia, what 80
Hailey in Saperton 643
Hailward Snow 91, 739
Hailcot in Kingſcot 512
Hale, ſir Matthew 218, 219, 265 482, 483, 544, 620, 704, 820
Hall, Benedict, &c. 288, 372, 690
Hallidaie, William, &c. 610
Halmore in Berkeley 280
Ham in Berkeley 147, 279
Ham in Charlton King's 330
Haman's Downs in Aſhchurch 236
Haman Hay, ſee Auſt
Hambrook in Winterbourne 835
Hamefwell in Cold Aſton 240
Hamfallow in Berkeley 280
Hamme, ſee Churcham
Hampden, Richard, &c. 531
Hampen in Shipton Oliffe 656
Hampton in Minſterworth 551
Hamſteed in Old Sodbury 678
Hancock, Mr. 292, 781
Handelo, John de, &c. 384, 385 416, 481, 625
Handborough, John, &c. 415
Hanger, John, &c. ſee Coleraine
Hangman's ſtone 606
Hanham in Bitton 294, et ſeq.
Hanks, Robert 340
Hanmer, John 501
Harcourt, Simon, &c. 214, 332, 333 806
Harding, William 318
Harduices, what 80
Hardwick in Elmſton 404, 441
Hardwick, lord 118, 119, 472, 475
Hardwick, John, &c. 539, 675, 767
Hareſcomb in Haresfield 475
Haresfield Little in Standiſh 682
Haresfield, Elianor de 248
Harford in Naunton 560
Harine, Richard 567
Harnhull, William de 476
Harpetre, Thomas de, &c. 283, 437 528
Harrington, John, &c. 285, 538, 755
Harris Stoke in Stoke Giffard 699
Hart, John, &c. 617
Hartley, Winchcombe-Henry, &c. 674, 677, 678
Haſel Hanger in Brimpsfield 311
Haſleden in Rodmarton 632
Haſtings, William 447
Hat manufacture 454, 610
Hatfield, Stephen 495
Hatheway's in St. Briavel's 308
—— in Minſterworth 551
—— in Ruerdean 635
Hatheway, Ralph, &c. 30, 308, 527 551, 635
Hatton, ſir Chriſtopher, &c. 236, 304 370, 372, 828
Haughton, Richard 226
Haukeford, ſir Richard 251
Havenpen 469
Haw in Olveſton 588
Haw, and Haw-paſſage in Turley 779
Haward, John 330
Hawcomb in Minchinhampton 469
—— in Painſwick 595
Hawkeſlow, John 314
Hawtree, William 236
Haydon in Bodington and Staverton 301, 695
Hay in Filton 448
Hay, John de la 590
Hayes in Awre 248
—— in Newent 563
Hayley in Saperton 643
Hayles abbey, impoſture diſcovered there 9, 487
Haymes in Cleeve 371
Haynes, Mr. 211, 212, 295
Hayward, Thomas, &c. 235, 237 297, 340, 370, 396, 578, 640 680, 693
Haywick in Brimpsfield 310
Hazlehouſe in Miſerden 553
Hazle in Olveſton 588
Healthineſs, extraordinary, of ſome ſituations 559
Heath-houſe in Stapleton 693
Hedecote, ſee Hidcot Bois
Helvin, Walter 436, 516, 551
Hempton and Patchway in Almondſbury 224
Hengiſt 93, 104
Hennage, Thomas, &c. 292, 430 538, 587
Henvild in Weſterleigh 806
Herba ſacra, or Vervain 587
Herbert, lord, &c. 30, 107, 228, 229 253, 254, 255, 424, 517, 535, 794
Hereford, earl of 146, 147, 214 315, 409, 691, 692
Herick, William 279
Hermer, Edmond, &c. 263
Hermington, Adam de 322, 463
Hermitage in Durſley 425
Herney, William 292, 433, 680
Herring, Mr. 560
Hertford, earl of 415
Heſding, Ernulph de 147, 480, 510
Hewes, Thomas 507
Hewet, John 244
Hewlets in Preſbury 594
Heydon, Henry 657
Hickes, Thomas &c. 233, 279, 281 283, 287, 329
—— genealogical account of that family, note to 837
Hicks, viſ. Campden, and earl of Gainſborough, ſee Gainſborough
Hidcot Bois in Ebberton 435
Hidcot Batteram in Mickleton 546
Hide in Guiting 466
—— in Hampton 469
Higgs, William 383
High Croſs in Aſhelworth 238
Higford, or Hugford, John, &c. 220 221, 228
High Field in Bitton 296
High Leaden in Rudford 634
Highmeadow-houſe 567
Highnam in Churcham 107, 108, 131 136, 141, 143, 145, 342
High ſheriff, of his office, with a liſt of ſheriffs 50, et ſeq.
Hilcot in Withington 839
Hill, ſir Rowland, &c. 217, 223, 226 532, 628
Hill-houſe in Newnham 573
—— in Rodborough 629
Hill End in Twining 781
Hilſley in Hawkeſbury 482
Hilton, Arthur 328
Hinſon, Mr. 251
Hinſwick in Condicot 390
Hinton in Berkeley 279, 280
—— in Dyrham 429
Hirford, John de 615
Hoard, Thomas, &c. 340, 355, 552 722
Hobbey, Philip, &c. 304, 312, 340 486, 613, 667
Hocbury in Rodmarton 631
Hock Crib, a work ſo called 668
Hockerhill in Cam 318
Hoddington, Thomas 266
Hodges, Danvers, &c. 312, 653, 654
Holford, genealogical account of that family 809
Holland, John 463
Holland, earl of Kent 291, 553
Hollifter John 224, 696
Holloway, John de 300
Holm in Olveſton 588
Holmes near Tewkeſbury 96
Holy-brook in Abſton 212
Hook, ſir Humphry, &c. 453, 493
Hope in Thornbury 757
Hopton, perſons of that name 281 506, 531
Hoptoun, lord 111, 212, 338
Horcot in Kempsford 511
Hore, Roger le 230
Horn, —— his ſtory 563
Horn, Edmond 467, 707
Horridge in Corſe 391
Horton, Mr. 439, 578
Horwood in Horton 503
Horwood, Richard, &c. 336, 463 484
Hoſea, Alexander, anecdote concerning him 822
Hoſkins, Kedgwin, &c. 308, 628
Hoſpital. See St. Bartholomew's -Blue-coat,—Infirmary,-St. Kineburg's, &c.
Hoſpitallers, what 3
Hot-well at Clifton 377
Houghton, Richard 828
Howard, Charles, &c. 582
Howard, lord 555
Howe, ſir John, &c. 223, 333, 399 463, 467, 508, 708
Howell, Meredith ap 94, 567
Howell, Mr. 609
Hucklecot in Churchdown 261, 340
Hughes, Thomas, &c. 236, 463, 464
Hullaſed, or Hunlaſeſed in Cotes 392

Hundreds in Glouceſterſhire 38 et ſeq.
——— antient names of 42
Hungerford, ſir John, &c. 216, 220 285, 372, 416, 544, 610, 683, 774
Hunks, Robert 608
Huntingdon, earl of 264, 312, 560
Huntingford in Wottonunderedge 849
Huntley, John, &c. 306, 307, 373 384, 439, 457, 730
Hunt's Court in Bentham in Badgworth 251
Hurmage, Thomas, &c. 787
Hurſt, what it means 502; in Berkeley 271; in Lidney 530; in Slimbridge 669
Huſſey, ſir Edward, &c. 416, 624 642
Hutchins, Edmond 420
Hyde Spaw in Preſbury 604
Hyett, Nicholas, &c. 251, 317
Hygrove-houſe 551
Hyneledene 148, 160
Jackbarrows 832
Jackſon, alias Boothe, William, &c. 688
Jackſon, Richard, &c. 742, 801, 802
Jacob, John, &c. 539, 723
James, Edward, &c. 529, 530, 765
Janeſworth, ſee Yanworth
Jaſon, ſir Robert, &c. 501
Iccomb, Elias de 370, 506
Jeffries, Cann, &c. 226, 388, 438 587, 796, 801
Jenkinſon, ſir Banks 483, 757
Jenner, Thomas, &c. 731
Jennings, John 340
Jerningham, ſir Henry, &c. 437 473, 474, 554
Ikenild-way, a Roman road 343, 348 384, 433
Ilk, John 336
Impoſtures, religious, diſcovered 9
Impropriations, what 11
Infirmary at Glouceſter inſtituted 59
Ingoldſthorp, ſir Edw. 233, 280, 696
Ingram, Arthur, &c. 279, 304, 384
Ingſt in Olveſton 588
Innys, John 802, 796
Innyſworth, ſuppoſed Yanworth 160
Inſcription, a very remarkable one 794
John of Jeruſalem, knights of, their riſe and ſuppreſſion 10
Johnſon, Ralph, &c. 260 822
Joice, William 30, 567
Join, William 297
Jones, Mr. &c. 309, 327, 328, 342 447, 517, 529, 563, 573
Joſlyn, John 320
Ireton, Henry, &c. 385, 618
Irminſtreet, a Roman road 83, 310 312, 343, 348, 349, 400, 606 709
Iron Mills in Minchinhampton 469
Iſbourne, river 47, 420
Iſis, river 47
Itchington in Titherington 767
Ivor Bâch 94
Ivrie, or Ivori, Roger de 144, 315
Ivy, Thomas 224
Juncare, a cuſtom ſo called 328
Juncus floridus 584
Juxton, William, &c. 389, 523, 646 769
Iweley, Peter de 784
Izod, Nicholas 688
Kaerdiffe, William de, &c. 786, 787
Kayleway William 583
Keck, ſir Anthony, &c. 545
Keeble, Richard, &c. 433
Kemble, Thomas, &c. 235, 781
Kemiſh, John 495
Kemp, Anthony, &c. 792
Kemys, Mr. &c. 455, 460, 755
Kendal, John 279
Kendalſhire in Weſterleigh 806
Kenida, ſir John 311
Kenn, John, &c. 471, 551, 640
Kent, earl of 216, 253, 260, 291 358, 505, 506, 519, 553, 659
Kepel, Thomas, &c. 583
Kerlynn, Morgan de 410
Kettleby, Andrew, &c. 659, 660, 823
Keynſham in Woollaſton 844
Kite, ſir John, &c. 435, 811
Kiftſgate diviſion 38, 39
——— hundred, whence its name 810
Kilcot in Hawkeſbury 483
——— in Newent 564
Kildare, Fitz-Gerald, earl of, ſee Fitz-Gerald Kilpeck, Hugh de, &c. 588, 726
Kimſbery-caſtle 592
Kinardeſley, Gilbert de, &c. 522, 567
Kingſcot, Nigel de, &c. 272, 512 513, 566, 663
Kingſholm 578
King's thanes, what 65
Kingſton in Slimbridge 669
Kingſton, ſir Anthony, &c. 30, 140 233, 247, 292, 299, 309, 354 402, 410, 450, 473, 474, 538 554, 558, 568, 572, 595, 618 635, 815
——— ſir William, his ſportive cruelty 554
King's Weſton in Henbury 491, 493
Kingſwood chaſe, bounds of 458
Kington in Thornbury 755
Kinley in Nimpsfield 576
Knap, or the Knap in Hampton 469
Knight, various ſignifications of 18
Knight's Green in Aſhelworth 238
Knight, Richard, &c. 231, 503
Knights Templers, why ſo called 3 ——— of the ſhire 55, et ſeq.
Knole in Almondſbury 222, 460
Knote Cleeve 726
Knovile, Bogo de 29, 30, 494, 528 529, 564, 726
Kyneſton, ſir Nicholas de 775
Kynton in Guiting Temple 466
Lacy, Walter de, &c. 145, 147, 150 401, 465, 466, 593, 618, 625
Laden, brook 213
Laford's-gate Briſtol 196; why ſo called, note to p. 458
Lagebery 290
Lamb, Anſelm, &c. 301, 443, 544 578
Lando, John de St. ſee St. Lando
Lane, Thomas, &c. 236, 542, 656
Lancaſter, Humphry de, duke of Glouceſter 102
Lancaſter, duke of 101, 248, 253 274, 332, 333, 411, 510, 550 761, 793
Lancaſter, earl of 332, 356, 510 550, 761, 793
Lancaught in Tidenham 763, 765
Langford, Roger 297
Langley in Winchcombe 828
Langley, Jeffry, &c. 356, 632, 633 659, 661, 778, 808
Langton, ſir Thomas, &c. 240, 406
Lanthony priory 513
Lapthorn, Mr. Anthony, anecdote concerning him 470
Lark Stoke (in Glouceſterſhire, but a hamlet in the pariſh of Ilmington, or Hilmington, Co. of Warwick) 617
Laſſeburgh, William de 515, 713
Lateridge, or Ladenridge in Iron Acton 215
Latimer, Nevil lord 247, 327
Laverſtoke 151
Laverton in Buckland 316
Le Warr, ſir John, &c. See De-la-Warr
Lawford, John, &c. 588
Lawrence, Robert, &c. 251, 568 646
Lawrence Weſton in Henbury 494
Leach, Thomas 245
Lead-ore found in various places 379, 406, 854
Leaden, river 47, 314
Leauſes in Cirenceſter 346
Le Baily in Newland 569
Lech, river 48
Lechmere, Edmund 591
Leddington in Dimmock 411
Ledene 143
Lee, ſir Edward, &c. 236, 243, 268 563
Lega, Conſtantia de 326
Legge, Robert 215, 233
Leiceſter, earl of 94, 97, 107, 235 276, 279, 280, 313, 410, 540 550, 793
Leigh, ſir Thomas, &c. 217, 218 299, 312, 532
Leightfoot, Thomas 410
Leighterton in Boxwell 305, 306
Lemington Upper, in Todenham 768
Leof, a robber, kills Edmund king of the Weſt Saxons 610
Leſebroke, William de 307
L'Eſtrange, Ebulo 229
Leverſegge, Edward, &c. 433, 680
Leuua, what 80
Lewellyn, William 416
Lewis, William, &c. 229, 251, 322 404, 564, 765, 803
Liberi homines, what 80
Lieutenancy of the county 49
Liggon, Richard, &c. 301, 312, 336 337, 397, 442, 507, 508, 542
Lightpill in Rodborough 630
Lilly, Mr. 370
Limel, John, &c. 335, 399, 521
Linches in Biſley 289
Lineham, ſir John 463
Linet, or Lynet, Robert 482
Lingen, Roger, &c. 615, 616
Linton in Churcham 143, 152, 342
Lippincott, Henry 388, 438, 588 796, 801
Liſle, William de, &c. 624, 642, 643
——— Warren lord 275
——— Talbot lord 275, 575, 608
Littlemore in Weſtbury 793
Littleworth, a ſouth hamlet 680
Llewellin, David ap 166
Llewellyn, ap Griffith 273, 290
Lloyd, George, &c. 644, 814, 827
Lock, Matthew 301
Lodge in Weſtbury upon Trim 797
——— in Painſwick 593
Londres, William de 29

Long, ſir Walter 214, 413, 531, 632
Longbridge in Aſhelworth 238
Longbridge hoſpital 280
Longeſpee, William, &c. 310, 332, 335, 480
Longford 578
Longevity, remarkable inſtances of 533, 659, 729
Lorange, Mr. &c. 351, 371
Lorrenge in Stanley, but near Cam 318, 686
Loſemore in Avening 245
Lovel, Robert, &c. 563, 625
Lovel, Francis, a favourite with king R. 3. and univerſally hated 626, 822
Low, ſir Thomas, &c. 566, 591
Lower Lode 733
Lozinnian, Guy de, ſee Luſignan
Lucy, Thomas, &c. 342, 578, 626, 627, 784
Ludloe's in Campden 320
Ludwell, Thomas 229
Lukenore, Roger 453, 546
Lumley, John lord, &c. 546
Luſignan, Guy de 480
Lutham, Ralph 414
Lutterell, ſir John, &c. 288, 410
Lygrove in Old Sodbury 678
Lyneham 160
Lypiat Upper, Lower, and Middle, in Stroud 713
Lyſons, Daniel, &c. 490, 582
Machen, Thomas, &c. 177, 288, 314, 390
Madeſden, Nicholas, &c. 372, 578
Madocke, John, &c. 765
Magdalen, ſee St. Mary Magdalen.
Mahel 31
Mainers, Tirrel de 480
Malgerſberie, ſee Maugerſbury
Mallet, Thomas, etc. 388, 448, 803
Maltravers, John, etc. 251, 274, 310, 469, 627, 632, 658, 662, 683, 700
Manduit, or Mauduit, William, etc. 332, 807
Mandeville, Geoffry de 95
Manleſs-town in Brimpsfield 310, 311
Manners, Roger, etc. 236
Manners, John, etc. duke of Rutland 610, ſee Rutland
Manſell, William, etc. 291, 713, 775
Mansfield, William, etc. 291
Mara, Robert de, etc. 325, 326, 632
March, earl of 290, 291, 311, 317
Mare-end in Aſhelworth 238
Mareſcal, or Marſhal, Jeffry le, ect. 299, 330, 572, 683, 763, 792
Margaret, ſee St. Margaret Maris in Winruſh 831
Mariſden in Rendcombe 622
Market-towns in Glouceſterſhire 43
Marlewood in Thornbury 756
Marmion, Philip, etc. 297, 588, 614, 615, 726
Marquis, account of that title 17
Marre, William de 326
Marriot, Thomas, etc. 608
Marſhal, Gilbert, etc. 250, 322
Marſton, or Broad Marſton in Pebworth 600
Marſton Meyſey in Meyſey Hampton 544
Martell, Richard, etc. 707
Martin, Chriſtopher, etc. 297, 600, 709
Marys, Robert de 831
Maſham, Henry, etc. 563
Maſſey, John, etc. 329
Maſſie, colonel 107, 108, 110, 112, 282, 283, 315, 717, 736
Maſter, Thomas, etc. 267, 291, 356, 359, 386, 607, 709
Matteſnol, or Robin Hood's Hill 88, 124, 541
Matthews, ſir David 775
Maturines, what 3
Maugerſbury in Stow 704
Maulſwick in Newent 563
Maunder, Mr. 811
Maurice, Francis 292
Maxwell, George 781
Mayor of Randwick 610
Mayſey, John de, etc. ſee Meyſey
May's-hill in Weſterleigh 806
Medantine, or Maunt, Walter de etc. 716, 717
Meen, or Meon in Queinton 616
Meen-hill in Mickleton and Queinton 545, 614
Meez, Gwarine de 529
Melhent, or Mellent, Robert earl of etc. 92, 253, 325, 332, 621
Memorable event at Cirenceſter 350
Mere, ſir Robert de la, etc. 313, 338, 469, 471, 658, 667
Meredith, John, etc. 537
Mermion, Roger, etc. 297, ſee Marmion
Meyſey, or Meyſie, John de, etc. 329, 544
Micklewood Chaſe in Berkeley 279
Middleſex, Cranfield, earl of 789, 808
Middleton, Willoughby lord 493, 800, 814
Milborn, John, etc. 317, 792
Mildmay, ſir Miles 291
Militia, old 49; new 50
Mill-end in Eaſington 431
Milltown-end in Fairford 444
Mills, ſir Edward, etc. 214, 473, 555, 619
Milner, William 322
Milo, earl of Hereford, and conſtable of Glouceſter 29, 31, 92, 94, 133, 474, 490, 593
Milton-end in Arlingham 233
Mine-law court, account of 31
Mineral waters, where found, ſee Spaw-waters
Mines, Thomas 333
Mitchel, Edward 330
Moigne, ſir John, etc. 382, 564, 652, 653, 726
Moiſt air, Dr. Franklyn's ſentiments concerning it 749
Molyneux, William, etc. 320
Monaſteries diſſolved in England 6
Monaſtic orders, general account of them 2, 3, 4, etc.
Monchenſy, or Monte Caniſio, Warine de 250, 558, 593, 813
Monemuthe, or Monemuta, John de, etc. 29, 317, 498, 516, 521, 533
Money, a compariſon between the antient and preſent value of it 80
Monford, Thomas, etc. 224, 648
Monnington, Richard 262
Monox, Richard, etc. 632
Montacute, William de, etc. earl of Saliſbury 291, 333, 410
Montague, Mr. 485
Monumental ſtones, antient ones 346, 347, 515
Monthermer, Ralph de 98
Montfort, Simon de, etc. earl of Leiceſter, ſee Leiceſter
Moody, Henry, etc. 235
Moor, Richard, etc. 224, 301, 360, 388
Moor, Richard de la, etc. 295, 297, 317, 338
Moore, William, etc. 560, 648
Moorend in Mangotsfield 537
—— in Slimbridge 669
Morcot in Child's Wickham, ſee Murcot
Morcote, or Boyfield in Minſterworth 551
Mordac, ſee Murdac
Moreſlade in Sandhurſt 638, 639, 809
Morgan, William, etc. 242, 317, 422, 443, 444, 811
Morgen, Thomas 329
Morley, John, etc. 235, 279, 816
Morris, Mr. 268
Mortimer, Roger, etc. 98, 99, 247, 249, 260, 290, 291, 311, 317, 332, 338, 391, 467, 506, 519, 553, 554, 572, 659, 725, 731
Mortmain, ſtatute of, upon what occaſion enacted 5
Morton in Thornbury 756
Morton, Hugh de, etc. 137, 260, 410
Mortuary, what 12
Mortune 143, ſee Linton
Mortyn, Richard 248
Morwent in Hartpury 477
Morwent, John, etc. 137, 573
Moſier, John 360
Mouſewell in Wapley and Codrington 788
Mowbray, duke of Norfolk 101, 275, 276, 763, 764
Mowbray, earl of Nottingham 250
Mull, Thomas, etc. 292, 424, 473, 475, 535
Mune in Dimmock 410
Muſard, Ralph, etc. 241, 553, 636, 661
Muſgroſe, John etc. 250, 251, 288, 299, 300, 317, 389, 418, 495, 507, 516
Muſtel, Hugh, etc. 301, 439
Murcot in Child's Wickham 818
Murdac, Richard, etc. 422, 603
Myn, colonel 109
Mynchen, what 467
Myners, Gilbert de, etc. 315, 792
Mythe in Tewkeſbury 742
Mythe Hook in Tewkeſbury 742
—— in Twining 781
Nailſworth in Avening 245
Naleſworth 469, 502
Names of places, perſons, etc. explained 13
Napping-mill 841
Naſs in Lidney 529
Naſſend in Eaſtington 431
Natton in Aſhchurch 235, 236
Natural produce of the country 64
Naunton in Cheltenham 336
—— in Winchcombe 828
Nautuli, ſee Petrifications
Nelmes, Mr. 281
Nelthrop, ſir John 356, 778
Nethercot in Bourton on the Water 304, 704
Netherleigh in Weſtbury in the Foreſt 794
Nether Oxlinch 152, ſee Oxlinch

Netheruge in Quedgley 613
Nevil, earl of Weſtmoreland 102
Nevil, earl of Saliſbury 333, 621
Nevil, lord Latimer 247
Newark in Ozleworth 590
Newarne in Lidney 530
Newberg 149
Newburg, Henry de 332
Newburgh, James earl of, &c. 354 660, 793
Newcaſtle, duke of 216
Newdegate, John, &c. 769
New Grounds in Lidney 524
——— in Slimbridge 668
New-houſe in Stroud 713
Newmarch, Bernard de 427
New Mills in Durſley 425
——— in Stroud 713
New Park in Berkeley 279
New Paſſage in Henbury 492
Newport in Berkeley 274, 279
Newport, Edward 279
Newton in Aſhchurch 235, 236
Newton in Rockhampton 628
Newton, John, &c. 138, 253, 296 298, 388
——— origin of that name 296
Niblet, Samuel, &c. 475, 682
Nibley, a battle fought there between lord Berkeley and lord Liſle 574
——— in Weſterleigh 806
Nicholas, Thomas, &c. 709
Noel, viſcount Campden, ſee Gainſborough.
Noel Mr. 546, 616
Noke in Churchdown 340
Nooſe, a bar of ſand in the Severn ſo called 246
Norbury Camp 579
Norbroc in Brockworth 313
Norcot in Preſton 357, 607
Norfolk, duke of 101, 563, 626 755 763, 764, 785
Norfolk, earl of 106, 250, 572, 763
Norman, Roger, &c. 286, 356
North Hamlets 577, 578
Northampton, Bohun earl of 591
Northampton, Parr marquis of 827
Northcote 607
Northumberland, duke of 285, 333 357, 590, 670
Northway and Newton in Aſhchurch 235, 236, 742
Northwick in Henbury 494
Northwood in Weſtbury upon Severn 794
Norton Giffard, including Norton Upper, Norton Middle, and Norton Lower in Weſton Subedge 811
Norwood, Nicholas, &c. 418, 521
Notelin, John, &c. 684
Nottingham, earl of 215, 250, 275
Nottingham, William, &c. 259, 267 291, 301, 356, 362, 392, 404 541, 643
Nourſe, Walter, &c. 564
Numerata, libra numerata, what 80
Nun of Kent, her ſtory 6
Nunhys in Condicot 390
Nupdown in Hill 500
Nup-end in Eaſington 431
——— in Horſley 502
Nupping-end in Aſhelworth 238
Nutbean-farm in Dunteſbourne Lyre 423
Nymphæa major lutea 584
Nynd in Wottonunderedge 849

Oakley-woods and tithing, in Cirencester 356
Oakley Little in Tainton 726
Oakley Grandiſon, ſee Okeley
Oatfield in Awre 249
Oatridge, Mr. 325
Odo, earl of Champaigne, Holderneſs, and Albermarle 674
Odo and Dodo, earls of Mercia 403
Offa, king 141, 147; where buried 222
Offa's Dyke, in Welch, Claudh-Offa 568, 762
Oiley, Roger de, &c. 145, 338, 356
Okeford in Marſhfield 539
Okeley Clifford in Newent 563
Okeley Grandiſon in Newent 563, 590
Okeley Pritchard in Newent 563
Okeridge, or Ockeridge in Biſley 292
Oland, Mr. 539
Old Abbey, a camp ſo called 226
Oldbury on the Severn in Thornbury 755
Oldbury-houſe in Stapleton 693
Oldcaſtle, Richard 410
Oldown in Olveſton 588
Oldland in Bitton 295, 296, 297
Oldney, John de, &c. 339, 340
Old Paſſage, or Auſt Paſſage 47, 492 762
Olepenne, John de, &c. 586, 587
Olington, or Ullington 322, 600
Olliff, Ralph, &c. 656
Onſlow, Richard 356
Ora, what 80
Orcheſton 144, 310
Orlebar, Richard 493, 800, 806
Ormond, Boteler earl of 238
Ormond, ſir James, &c. 563, 590
Orthеſton 144
Oſborn, Peter, &c. 229, 231, 336
Oſwald, ſee St. Oſwald
Otto, Thomas, &c. 326
Over in Almondſbury 222, 223, 225 226, 274, 342
——— in Churcham 342, 343
Over 149, 283
Over Bridge 111, 141, 342
Overbury, ſir Nicholas, &c. 302 321, 546
Over Oxlinch 152, ſee Oxlinch
Overton in Arlingham 233
——— in Mayſemore 543
——— in Preſbury 605
Owdeſwell in Withington 839
Owe, William de 249
Owen, St. in Glouceſter 203, 204
Oxford, earl of 106, 441, 591, 695
Oxlinch in Standiſh 682
Packer, Robert, &c. 677
Page, Mr. 682
Paget, James 236, 292
Pain, John, &c. 267, 761
Pakenhill in Stroud 713
Palmer, ſir Thomas, &c. 555, 769
Pammington in Aſhchurch 235, 236 742
Paradiſe in Painſwick 592
Pariſhes, ſome general account of 44 ——— particular accounts of, from 209, to the end.
Park-end in Haresfield 475
Parker, John, &c. 139, 214, 330, 478
Parliamentum indoctum, why ſo called 5
Parliaments, ſome obſervations on them 55, et ſeq.

Parliament held at Glouceſter 104
Parmiter, Clement, &c. 588
Parr, queen Catherine, an account of her interment 719
Parry, ſir Thomas, &c. 357
Parſons, John, &c. 507
Partridge, Miles, &c. 223, 231, 301 325, 555, 663
Paſton, Clement, &c. 503, 504
Paſtor's-hill in Newland 568
Patchway in Almondſbury 224
Pate, Richard 118, 122, 279, 542
Paulet, ſir John 809, 854
Pauncefoot, Grimbald, &c. 107, 478
Pauntley, Walter de, &c. 598
Paygrave in Barton near Glouceſter 143, 150
Paynel, Thomas, &c. 413
Peach, Samuel, &c. 813, 814
Peachy, William, &c. 656, 657
Peculiars in Glouceſterſhire 154
Peddington in Berkeley 270, 279, 281
Pedewardine, Reginald, &c. 258 410, 616
Peeche, Bartholomew, &c. 310, 648
Peers, why noblemen are ſo called 17
Peggleſworth in Dowdeſwell 414, 415
Pembridge, John de, &c. 286, 616
Pembroke, ſir Richard, &c. 564, 616
Pembroke, earl of 30, 33, 34, 96 247, 250, 285, 460, 558, 573 610, 763, 811, 812
Pen, William, anceſtor to ſir William Pen, buried at Minety 549
Penbrugg, John, &c. 410
Penger, John, &c. 622
Pennington, Robert de, &c. 267
Pen-park in Weſtbury upon Trim 796
Pen-park hole, deſcription of 797, 798
Penrys, John de 314
Penſata, libra penſata, what 80
Perrot, Henry, &c. 259, 260
Perry, Thomas, &c. 291, 516
Perte, Daniel, &c. 235, 236, 244
Petre, lord 721, 768
Petrifications, where found in plenty 218, 241, 243, 252, 294, 304 305, 318, 338, 468, 507, 695
Peverel, Thomas, &c. 416, 428
Philebert, Henry, &c. 447, 680
Phelepot, John, &c. 410
Phelps, Mr. 426, 620, 714
Philips, Francis, &c. 292, 301, 336 360
Pigſtreet in King's Stanley 684
Pigot, William, &c. 296, 508, 584 590, 648
Pilnend in Olveſton 588
Pinbury in Dunteſbourne Rous 424
——— in Edgworth 436
Pinchpool in Winruſh 831
Pinchpool, William 831
Pindar, Reginald, &c. 508
Pindrop in Coln Rogers 386
Pine, Edmund, &c. 215
Pinfold, John, &c. 628, 696
Pin-making at Glouceſter, 124; at Bitton 294; at Mitcheldean 401
Pinnockſhire 466, 602
Pinſwell in Coberley 399, 580
Pipard, Ralph 238
Pipwell, John 240
Pirton in Churchdown 340
——— in Lidney 246, 528, 529
Pitchcombe in Standiſh 682
Pitt, George, &c. 463, 718, 719, 827

Pithouſe

Pithouſe in Dimmock 411
Plants, curious 379, 749
Plaiſtow, manor of 403, 404
Plague at Glouceſter 737
—— at Tewkeſbury 737
Plantagenet, Geoffry, &c. 253, 595 620, 646
Player, William, &c. 214, 406, 455 536
Playn, Robert, &c. 258, 267
Pleſſets, or Placetis, John de &c. 332
Pleydell, John, &c. 229, 230, 231
Plokenet, Alan, &c. 664
Pluſterwine in Woollaſton 844
Poddeſmead in Hempſted 490
Poher, Hugh, &c. 657
Polbury in Weſtbury upon Trim 796
Polland, John 360
Pont de L'Arch, Robert, &c. 235 272, 558, 680, 772, 811
Pontune in Awre 246, 248
Pool, ſir Walter de la, &c. 233, 280 313, 327, 481, 696, 766
Poole, Henry, &c. 354, 356, 357 385, 392, 400, 424, 437, 573 583 598, 643, 660
Poor, origin of the laws concerning them 10
Pope, John, etc. 260, 388, 399, 420 448, 607
Popham, Alexander, etc. 302, 303 340, 371
Portbury 274
Porter, Arthur, etc. 228, 308, 490 564, 603, 612
Portham and Walham, in the North Hamlets 577
Porton 235
Portrey, Chriſtopher 309
Poſtlip in Winchcombe 369, 828
Poteſlip, William de 828
Poulton in Awre 248, 285, 638, 639 773, 809
Poulton, ſir William, etc. 249, 285 455, 639, 793, 809
Pound, what it antiently was 80
—— or The Pound in Dimmock 410
Powell, John, etc. 119, 264
Powle, Henry, etc. 385, 618
Poynings, ſir Richard 372, 683
Poyntz, ſir Nicholas, etc. 214, 215 219, 223, 283, 296, 410, 439 499, 566, 576, 588, 591, 595 610, 806, 813
Praed, Humphry-Mackworth 385 618
Prater, George 356
Praye, Dorothy 546, 609
Pratt, Robert, &c. 407, 463
Prebendaries of Glouceſter 165
Preceptories, what 2
Preſbury, Robert 658
Primogeniture, right of, how introduced 65
Pridgavel, what 551
Prinknaſh 609
Prinne, William 251, 330, 437
Priory, what it is 1
Probyn, Edmund, &c. 505, 523, 533
Proſpects, very fine ones 249, 309 629, 693, 695, 697, 711, 823, 837
Puckham in Sevenhampton 647
Puckrup in Twining 781
Pullen, John, &c. 236, 519
Purceval, Ralph 215
Purton, or Pirton 247, 249
—— in Lidney 528
Purton in Churchdown 340
Pury, Thomas, &c. 550, 725
Putloe, or Putley in Standiſh 682
Putot, William de 536
Pye, Mr. 265, 292
Pyrie, John 516
Pyrke, Nathaniel, &c. 210, 583
Querns in Cirenceſter 349
Quincy, Roger de, earl of Wincheſter 368, 434, 463
Quo warranto, ill uſes of that ſtatute 214
Rache, John 382
Radbrook in Queinton 615
Radcheniſtres, what 80
Radewic, ſee Redwick
Radnor, earl of 422, 610
Rainsford, Charles, &c. 374
Raleigh, Walter, &c. 306, 437, 516 517, 607, 778, 814
Ramſey, Edward &c. 760
Rapſgate in Coleſbourne 383
Rawleigh, George, &c. 292, 607, 794
Rawlins, Thomas, &c. 330, 413
Raymond, Mr. 444
Rea in Hempſted 490
Read, John, &c. 578, 582, 787
Ready Token, why ſo called 384
Redbrook 567
Reddall, Mr. 647
Redland in Weſtbury upon Trim 796 802
Redwick in Henbury 494
Reed, Richard 301
Reeve, Thomas 383
Reimbald 230, 357, 419
Religious impoſtures diſcovered 9
Rice, Mr. 580
Rich, ſir Thomas, &c. 247, 260, 326 414, 415, 656
Riddale, William 522
Ridemiſs in Nibley 575
Rider, William, &c. 233, 235, 236 285, 315, 323, 331, 336
Ridgway in Olveſton 588
—— in Stapleton 693
Ridler, Nathaniel, &c. 437, 663
Rivers in Glouceſterſhire 45
Rivere, or Rivers, John de la, &c. 216, 356, 429, 530, 578, 773, 774
Rivers, lord 549, 718, 719, 827
Rivet, Thomas 591
Roberts, Thomas, &c. 268, 563, 806
Robin-hood's Hill, ſee Matteſnol
Robins, Henry 119
Rockingham, marquis of 291
Rocking ſtone, the uſe of 689
Rodborough, Thomas de &c. 301 469, 522, 583, 629
Rodborough-tithing in Minchin-hampton 631
Rodley, or Rodleigh in Weſtbury 150 533, 550, 761, 793
Roderick, Owen de 292
Rodesford 150, ſee Rudford
Rodney, ſir William 460, 466
Roger of Glouceſter 145
Rogers, William, &c. 219, 220, 234 339, 340, 371, 372, 414, 415 439, 441, 563, 695, 756, 757 828
Roman baths 334, 525
—— and other camps 295, 303 325, 369, 376, 392, 397, 406 424, 437, 447, 491, 503, 512 536, 631, 635, 676, 780, 796 823, 830
—— coins 228, 345, et ſeq. 412 557, 631, 641, 796
—— pavements 345, 397, 400, 525 841
—— ſtations 345, 841
—— ways 348, 433, 796
Rooke, James, &c. 308, 499
Rookſmore in Rodborough 630
Roos, William lord, &c. 591
Roſamond, Fair 332, 452, 456, 480
Roſamond's Green in Frampton 452
Roſicrucian lamp, a ſtrange account of one, note to p. 347
Roſley in Withington 839
Roſton, William 408
Rous, Roger le, &c. 424, 667
Rouſe, John, &c. 302, 473, 599, 808
Rowden, Richard 276
Rowell 484
Rowney, Thomas, &c. 546
Row-Urcot in Alveſton 227
Ruddle in Newnham 573
Rudge in Wottonunderedge 849
Rudge and Farley in Hardwick 472
Rue, Wolpin, or Ulphin le 112, 131 145, 341
Rugbag in Berkeley 279
Rugge in Standiſh 144, 150
Ruggeway in Mangotsfield 537
—— in Stapleton 693
Runwick, little 152
Rus, Roger le, &c. 315, 473
Ruſhout, ſir James, &c. 723
Ruſſel, lord 311
Ruſſel, ſir John, &c. 320, 407, 427 428, 429, 482, 495
Rutland, duke of 610
Rutter, Michael, &c. 265, 615
Ryder, Nathaniel, &c. 435, 811
Ryelands, what they are 411, 597
Ryhale, Richard 410
Sackville, ſir Thomas, &c. 285, 287
Sadler, Ralph, &c. 382, 414, 485 492, 532, 587, 778, 780, 800, 801
Sage, John, &c. 340, 669
Sages in Slimbridge 669
Saint Amand, Almerick de, &c. 327, 338, 371
—— Bartholomew's hoſpital in Glouceſter 201
—— Briavel's caſtle 31
—— George, his ſtory 461
—— John, Oliver, &c. 301, 578 582, 778
—— John's chapel in Chedworth 333
—— Kineburgh's hoſpital, Glouceſter 203
—— Lando, John de 382
—— Leger, ſir William, &c. 109 238
—— Loe, William, &c. 216, 223 530, 774
—— Margaret's hoſpital, Glouceſter 185
—— Mary Magdalen's hoſpital, Glouceſter 187
—— Oſwald's priory Glouceſter 188
—— —— tump 538
—— Waleric, Reginald de, &c. 633, 729, 731
—— Vincent's rocks 376
Saliſbury, earl of 247, 310, 332, 333 335, 350, 351, 370, 572
Saliſbury, John, &c. 648
Saltmarſh in Henbury 495
Saltmarſh, John de 460

Salt-ſprings, where found 241, 638
Sambach, William, &c. 671
Samphire, where found 668
Sanager in Berkeley 279
Sanctuary in Acton Turville 216
Sanders, William, &c. 544
Sandford in Cheltenham 336
Sandford, Samuel, &c. 245, 686, 687, 702
Sandiwell in Dowdeſwell 414, 415
Sandys, Miles, &c. 311, 370, 396, 554, 624
Sapye, Robert, &c. 505, 792
Savage, Chriſtopher, &c. 242, 248, 322, 418, 472, 578, 640
Saunders, Samuel, &c. 730
Say and Seal, ſee Fiennes
Say Mills in Weſtbury 802
Scarborough, earl of 447
Scott, John, &c. 532
Scowls, a cavern ſo called 524
Scrimſhire, Mr. 236
Scroop, Richard le, &c. 591
Scudamore, John, &c. 413, 517, 546, 582, 598, 794
Seaborn, John, 441
Seacole, Richard 408
Secular canons, what 2
Segrave, John de, &c. 763, 764
Seimour, Richard, &c. 233, 235, 242, 266, 280, 291, 316, 330, 355, 356, 372, 382, 455, 486, 495, 502, 527, 544, 696, 704, 742, 827, 828
Seimour, lord 236, 326, 354, 359, 718
Selſe, John 555
Selwyn, William, &c. 542, 785
Senebrug hermitage 196
Sergeant, John, &c. 279, 318
Serlo 132, 141, 320, 663, 815
Serpent, ſtory of one of a monſtrous ſize 402
Servi, what 80
Settlewood in Hawkeſbury 483
Severn, river 45
—— paſſages over it 46, et ſeq.
—— project for joining it by a canal to the Thames 518
Sheldon, Henry, &c. 372, 540, 541, 648, 709, 765, 805, 818
Shenington 647, 648
Shepardine in Rockhampton 628
Sheppard, Maurice, &c. 226, 229, 244, 384, 469, 629, 828
Shepſcombe in Painſwick 595
Sherborne Houſe 649
Sheriffs, liſt of 51
Sherrington, William, &c. 285, 386, 423, 481
Shipcombe in Olveſton 588
Shirehampton in Weſtbury 803
Shire ſtones 388, 556
Shirley, George 413
Shokerſwell, John de, &c. 648
Shoteſhore 150
Shrewſbury, earl of 216, 250, 275, 279, 531, 595, 792, 828
Shuckborough, ſir Charles 532
Shurdington in Badgworth 251, 657, 658, 683
Shuthanger in Twining 781
Siliquaſtra, where found 830
Simondſhall and Comb in Wotton-underedge 848
Singleton, William, &c 582
Sinwell in Wottonunderedge 848
Siward, Otnel de, &c. 48, 519
Skirewell 774
Slade in Miſerden 555
—— in Painſwick 595
Slaughter, John, &c. 666
Sloper, Matthew 245, 788
Small, John, &c. 671, 813
Smart, Mr. 289, 292, 309, 463
Smith, Henry, anecdote concerning him 535
Smith, John-Hugh 678
Smith, Thomas, &c. 264, 320, 322, 323, 338, 355, 410, 476, 438, 523, 535, 702
Smith, ſir John, &c. 493, 495, 537, 800, 806
Smith's Shop in Kingſcot 512
Smyth, ſir Jarrit 493, 495, 537, 611, 800, 806
—— John of Nibley 575
Sneedham in Upton St. Leonard's 786
Sneed Park in Weſtbury 796, 801
Snell, Powel, &c. 404, 405, 464, 682, 806
Socmanni, what 80
Soilwell, or Sully, in Lidney 529
Solers, John de, &c. 598, 657, 811
Soley, John 827
Somerſet, Thomas, &c. 253, 254, 255, 256, 598
Somerſet, lord John 107, 253, 254, 256
Somerſet, duke of 248, 285, 343, 455, 538, 639, 809
Somervile, John de &c. 241, 242
Somery, Ralph de, &c. 273, 320
Southam in Cleeve 369
Southampton, earl of 260, 328
Southend in Nibley 575
Southfield, or Banks ſee in Longborough and Condicot 532
South Hamlets 679, 680
Southmead in Weſtbury 803
Southwell, Richard, &c. 370, 455
Southwick in Tewkeſbury 742
Spaw-water, where found 235, 249, 294, 334, 336, 369, 377, 420, 430, 433, 597, 638, 712
Spencer, Henry, &c. 291, 626
Spencer, lord 288, 300
Spilman's court in Rodborough 630
Spital-gate in Cirenceſter 356
Sponebed in Painſwick 592, 595
Springet, William &c. 483
Spring-Hill, a handſome ſeat 670
Stafford, John, &c. 235, 242, 288, 320, 370, 433, 435, 443, 474, 576, 756
Stafford, earl of 214, 242, 251, 261, 286, 291, 325, 430, 433, 539, 572, 621, 622, 753, 786, 814
Stairs in Newnham 573
Stancombe in Stinchcombe 696
Standiſh-Morton in Standiſh 682
Standon, John de 29
Stanford, Edward 110, 111, 112
Stanley St. Leonard's priory 140, 149, 150, 233, 271, 272, 318, 685, 686, 687
Stanley Pontlarch in Toddington 772
Stanſhaw in Yate 854
Stanſhaw, Robert, &c. 219, 224, 279, 306, 329, 413, 429, 483, 674, 677
Stanton, John de, &c. 690
Stantway in Weſtbury 794
Stapleton, Henry, &c. 321, 322
Staunton, Adam de, &c. 136, 141, 145, 146, 401, 447, 552, 553
Staure 159, ſee Stairs
Staure, William de, &c. 308, 573
Starkey, Mr. 788
Steanbridge in Biſley 292
—— in Corſe 391
—— in Painſwick 595
—— in Stroud 714
Stephens, Thomas, &c. 291, 292, 293, 308, 338, 430, 431, 453, 501, 502, 603, 674, 677, 678, 712, 713
Stidcot in Titherington 767
Stoch 312, ſee Lark Stoke
Stock in Littleton upon Severn 531
Stockwell in Cowley 394
Stoke Archer in Cleeve 371, 658, 683, 740, 742
Stoke Biſhop in Weſtbury 800
Stoke Houſe 796
Stoke Harris in Stoke Giffard 699
Stokes, William 371, 372
Stone, a ſpecies of, in curious ſhapes 400
—— a ſoft and tough ſort 425
—— in various places, ſerving for antient monuments 212, 244, 307, 334
Stonehouſe in Kempley 508
Stonour, Gilbert de, &c. 302, 390, 476, 495, 730
Stourden in Winterbourn 835
Stourton, ſir William, &c. 280, 653
Stourton, lord 653
Stout's Hill in Uley 783
Stower, river 374
Stow Grange in St. Briavel's 308
Stowick in Henbury 495
Strachan, ſir William 340, 370, 371
Strafford, earl of 467, 708
Strange, John le, &c. 250, 288, 320, 481, 648, 725, 755
Strangeways, John 320
Stratford, John, &c. 240, 463, 484, 627, 723, 724
Stratton, Hugh de, &c. 320, 663, 815
Stroat in Tidenham 765
Stroud-end in Painſwick 595
Stroud, Thomas 236, 240, 292
Stubhill-gardens in Twining 780
Stubmarſh-park 280
Stump, John, &c. 338, 577
Sturmy, John, &c. 724
Subterraneous paſſage at Cold Aſton 239
Suburbs of Glouceſter 205
Sudbury in Tidenham 765
Sudgrove in Miſerden 555
Sudley caſtle taken 717
Sudley Tenements in Winchcombe 827
Sudley, John, de, &c. 320, 716, 717, 718, 828
Sudmead, a South Hamlet 679
Sully, ſee Soilwell
Suor, John de, &c. 646
Surman, John, etc. 777
Surnames, why ſo called, and when firſt given 15
Surry, Howard earl of 277
Surry, Warren, earl of 250
Surry, duke of 350, 351
Suſſex, Ratcliff earl of 538
Sutton, Robert, lord Lexington 610
Swageſwick 291
Swaily in Forthampton 451
Swaine 93
Swaine, Arthur, etc. 306, 501
Swanley in Berkeley 279
Swillyate, river 47
Swineborn, Robert de 426

Swinford in Bitton 296, 297
Swinford, brook 294
Swinnerdown caſtle 727
Swinny in Nibley 575
Symes, Henry, etc. 455
Symonds, Thomas, etc. 499
Syreford in Withington 816
Taddington in Stanway 692
Tafarn Bách in Charfield 329
——— in Tortworth 776
Tame, Giles, &c. 261, 414, 433, 443, 476, 576, 583, 622, 730
Talbot, ſir Richard, etc. 250, 288 312, 356, 517, 519, 532, 533, 793
Talbot, viſcount Liſle 215, 275, 558 595, 620
Talbot, earl of Shrewſbury 233, 558 569, 593, 595
Talbot, lord, etc. 262, 263, 264, 437 505, 527, 593, 595, 624
Talboys, Richard, etc. 730
Tatwick in Cold Aſton 240
Templers, knights, what 3
Temple, Nicholas, etc. 221, 315 396, 422, 603
Teſſellated pavements 345, 396, 631
Tewkeſbury, battle of, between the Yorkiſts and the Lancaſtrians 735 ——— taken by different parties in the great civil war 736, et ſeq.
Thames, river 47, 48, 302, 329
Thanes, and Thaneland 66
Theocus, a hermit, no ſuch perſon 734
Thomas, James, etc. 249, 483
Thornall, Walter de 232
Thornbury caſtle deſcribed by Leland 751
——— a later and more perfect deſcription of it ib.
Thorneloe, Mr. 370
Thorp, Thomas, etc. 280, 578, 585
Throgmorton, John, etc. 30, 33, 306 309, 329, 391, 397, 404, 405, 463 484, 499, 517, 568, 603, 616, 640 713, 775, 776, 779, 811
Thucks, Reginald 148, 479
Thurgreen, Richard 266
Thynne, etymology of that name, etc. 259, 316, 317, 510, 511
Tibitot, ſir John, etc. 591
Ticmor-end in Horſley 502
Tilſdown in Durſley 426
——— in Cam 318
Timbercombe-bottom in Biſley 289
Tinkley in Nimpsfield 577
Tinning-well in Charlton Abbats 329
Tipping, Mr. 482
Tiptot, John, etc. earl of Worceſter 248, 308, 401, 569
Tirle, brook 369
Tithes, their inſtitution, etc. 12
——— an opinion concerning the exemption from tithes, note to 449
Tobacco, where firſt planted in England 824
Tockington in Olveſton 222, 588
Toddewell 149
Todenham, Robert, etc. 410
Todeni, Robert de, etc. 226, 623 642, 693, 753
Todgmore-bottom in Biſley 290
Todington Houſe 769
Todmere, John 388
Tog-hill 211, a battle there 212
Toni, Roger de 314, 753
Top, ſir John, etc. 216, 774
Torleton in Cotes 392
——— in Rodmarton 633
Tormin, Robert de 778
Towbery-hill in Twining 780
Townſend, Mr. 356, 419, 530
Tracy, ſir William, his will, note to p. 771
Tracy, lord, pedigree of 771
Trade and manufactures of the county 60
Trajectus, importance of to the Romans 376, 397, 437, 755
Tree, an extraordinary one 775
Treefree, William 279
Treſham in Hawkeſbury 483
Treſham, George, etc. 236, 360
Treviſa, John 275
Trewſbury in Cotes 392
Trim river 49, 376
Trinity-well in Bagendon 259
Trinder, Charles 304
Tropyn, John 438
Trotman, Samuel, etc. 664, 724
Trougham, or Druffham in Biſley 292
Troutbeck, John 250
Trye, William, etc. 471, 472, 475 555
Tuchet, William, etc. 590
Tudor, or Hadam, Edmond earl of Richmond 253
Tuffley 679
Tuke, ſir Brian, etc. 793
Tumuli, ſee Barrows
Tunley in Biſley 291, 292
Turberville, Richard, etc. 216, 655
Turner, William, etc. 224, 292, 338
Turner's court in Cold Aſton 240
Turſtan, Richard 435
Twigworth, a North Hamlet 578
Twiniho, Edward, etc. 657
Twiſel, Hugh, etc. 684
Twitty, Mr. 761
Tyndale, pedigree of that family 756
Tyrone, earl of, his daughter marries a cloth worker 712
Tyrrel, John, etc. 657
Valentia, William de 235, 247, 273 437, 558, 593, 680, 812, 813
Vall, John de, etc. 617
Vampage, John, etc. 599
Vanlore, Peter 306, 370, 814
Van Notten, Mr. 415, 656
Vavaſor, ſir William 109, 110, 111
Vaughan, John, etc. 635
Uckington in Elmſton 441
Veel, Edward, etc. 112, 225, 226 274, 329, 456, 551, 648, 755, 775
Veelham near Berkeley 280, 653
Venables, William 217
Venfield, Giles, etc. 560
Verdune, Theobald de, etc. 291 433, 481, 564, 726
Vere, John de, earl of Oxford 591
Verney, Thomas, etc. 433, 443, 576 730, 767
Vernham, ſir Richard, etc 599
Vernon, Richard, etc. 392, 463, 640
Veſti, William de 107
Villiers, ſir Edward, etc. 30, 416, 417
Vincent, St. ſee Saint Vincent
Viney, John, etc. 639, 726
Vineyards in Glouceſterſhire 25, and note to p. 701
Vineyard Houſe in the North Hamlets 141, 577
Vinon, Petronella de 295
Viſcount, a ſhort account of that title 17
Vitrei, Alianore de 480
Uley Berry 782, 783
Ullington, or Olington in Pebworth 322, 600
Under the Roſe explained 393
Unton, ſir Edward, etc. 333, 443
Uphatherly in Shurdington 658
Upperleigh in Weſtbury 793
Upthrop in Cam 318
Upton in Hawkeſbury 483
——— in Tetbury 730
Upton Cheney in Bitton 294, 296, 297
Urſo de Abetot, ſee Abetot
Wade, Mr. 299, 415
Wakemam, Henry, etc. 236, 243 268, 725
Walbank, Samuel 439
Walbridge in Rodborough 630
Walding de Stanton, Thomas etc. 690
Waleran, Robert 811
Walerond, John de, etc. 291, 399 428, 454, 663, 726, 811
Walham in the North Hamlets 577
Waller, ſir William 108, 109, 111 212, 338
Waller, Edmond 447, 479, 588, 778
Walleyn, William, etc. 635
Walmer in Weſtbury 793
Walning in Olveſton 588
Walſh, Anthony, etc. 413, 438, 494 587, 613, 674, 677, 678, 680
Walſworth Hall in Sandhurſt 638
Walter, John 778, 786
Walters, John, etc. 259, 267, 285
Walton in Derhurſt 404
Walton Baſſet in Walton Cardiffe 787
Walton, William 431
Walwyn, William 210, 248, 288, 401 567
Wanley, William, etc. 368, 667
Wanſwell in Berkeley 280
Wantone, William 397
Warmley-works in Siſton 663, 664
Warneford, Edmond, etc. 285, 286 287, 555
Warner, William, etc. 318, 713
Warr, John la, ſee De la Warr
Warren, William, etc. 308, 309, 501 628, 671
——— John de, etc. earl of Surry 250
——— lord Liſle 295
Warthe in Slimbridge 668
Warwick, earl of 29, 102, 106, 215 220, 233, 235, 236, 247, 275, 276 285, 308, 312, 314, 318, 332, 333 372, 413, 443, 460, 507, 526, 527 529, 621, 704, 741, 785, 807, 808 816, 817
Waſborn, William, etc. 322
Waſhbrook in Winſton 833
Waſſalling, riſe of that cuſtom 44
Waſt in Hawkeſbury 483
Watering meadows, method of 418
Waterley in Nibley 575
Watkin, Lewis 433, 444, 576
Watſon, William, etc. 413, 481
Webb, Robert, etc. 226, 244, 317 538, 539, 566, 632, 776
Webb, ſir John, etc. 433, 481
Wekys, Thomas, etc. 297, 412, 425 566, 687
Welford in Kempsford 511
Wells, Mr. 301
Wenman, Thomas, etc. 410
Wentworth, Thomas, etc. 302, 390 467, 696, 707, 708

Were,

Were, Robert de, &c. 283
West, Thomas, &c. 285, 608, 609 808, 819, 820, 823
Westal in Cheltenham 336
Westby, John, &c. 326
Westbury Court in Westbury 790
——— College 796
West-end in Easington 431
Westington and Comb in Campden 322
Westmoreland, earl of 102
Weston, King's, in Henbury 491, 493
——— Lawrence, in Henbury 494 ——— persons of that name 279, 281 297, 725, 811
Weston's Court in Bitton 297
Westonton in Mangotsfield 538
Westrip in Cherington 338
——— in Stonehouse 702
Westwood, Robert, &c. 233, 285 287, 333, 386
——— a false report concerning one of them 579
Weyland William de, &c. 674
Weymouth, lord, see Thynne
Wheate, sir Jacob, &c. 519
Whispering-place in Gloucester cathedral 178
Whiston, Thomas, &c. 619
Whitbridge 463
White Court in Uley 783
——— Cross House 527
Whitelay stone 818, 854
White-end in Ashelworth 238
Whitefeld, William de 314
White Friers, college of, in Gloucester 190
Whitley Park in Berkeley 279
——— Court in Upton 785
Whitmore, Richard, &c. 267, 581 665, 687
Whitney, Robert, &c. 506
Whitson-sports some account of 23
Whittington, William de, &c. 240 372, 522, 583, 598, 629, 725
Whorend in Nibley 575
Whorwood, William, &c. 484, 517 613
Wibden in Tiberton 765
Wicces, why so called 20
Wick in Abston 212
——— in Berkeley 212, 279
——— in Down Amney 416
——— in South Cerney 327
Wickeridge in Hasfield 478
Wickham, William, &c. 608
Wick-hill 626
Wickwick in Frampton Cotterel 455
Wideslade, Richard de 433
Widows, Giles and Thomas 545
Widows bench, the original of, note to p. 594
Wigate, John, &c. 648
Wiggold in Cirencester 356
Wight, John, &c. 340
Wightfield in Derhurst 404
Wigmore, John, &c. 136, 148
Wihiside 112
Wikes, Thomas, &c. 297
Wikestow in Berkeley 279
Wilecot in Preston 608
Wilderness in Abbenhall 209
Wiley, John, &c. 413, 546
Wilford, Thomas 419
Williams, Thomas 119, 280, 530
Williamstrip in Coln St. Alwin's 384
Willington, Ralph de 134, 143, 242 249, 285, 418, 454, 530, 638 639, 640, 773, 789, 809, 854
Willington Court in Sandhurst 638
Willis, John 336
Willoughby, Edward, &c. 215, 233 292, 301, 382, 418, 493, 507 538, 607, 628, 671, 704, 766 767, 787, 806
Willsbury in St. Briavel's 308
Wilmot, Mrs. 223, 224, 495, 588
——— Edward, &c. 793
Wilson, Richard, &c. 249, 802
Wilstan 132
Wiltshire, earl of 238, 563, 590
Winchester, John de 302
Winchester, earl of 368
Wincot in Clifford Chambers 374
——— in Queinton 616
——— Richard, &c. 616
Window, Henry, &c. 339
Windsor, lord 244, 245, 254, 297 424, 469
Winniat, Wenman, &c. 410, 688
Winnington, Edward, &c. 823
Winrush river 48
Winson in Bibury 286
Winston, Philip, &c. 639, 681, 693
Wintour, or Winter, William, &c. 30, 31, 110, 212, 247, 255, 428 429, 493, 527, 563, 690
Wintour's leap 527, 762
Wisham, John de 30, 340
Wishanger in Miserden 555
Witcombe Little in Badgworth 251
Withepool, Paul 563, 590, 626 822
Wither, Jeffry, &c. 307, 498, 527
Withy-bridge in Bodington 301
Woeful Danes Bottom 468
Wolnough, Henry, &c. 611, 678
Wolstrop, a South Hamlet 680
Woodchester Park 841
Woodend in Bromsborow 314
——— in Cromhall 397
——— in Dimmock 411
——— in Hill 500
Woodend in Twining 781
Wooderlin in Nibley 575
Woodford in Berkeley 279
Woodford, James 229, 360
Woodhouse in Olveston 588
Woodland in Almondsbury 224
Woodman, Mr. 368
Woadmancot in NorthCerney 326 622
——— in Cleeve 372
——— in Dursley 426
Woodroffe, Robert, &c. 528
Woodstock, Thomas de, &c. 101 358, 814
Woolridge 152, 160
Woolstrop, a North Hamlet 680
Worcester, marquis of 107, 255, 256
——— Somerset, earl of 253, 254 498, 667, 764
——— Tiptot earl of 248, 308
Wormington Grange in Didbrook 407
Worth, signification of 221
——— sir Edward, &c. 501
Wortley in Wottonunderedge 274 849
Wotton, a North Hamlet 578
Wotton's-end in Westerleigh 806
Wotton hundred 846
——— William de, &c. 828
Wrath, John, &c. 249, 285, 455 639, 773, 809, 823
Wrilock, Walter 358
Wroughton, Mr. 408
Wulphere 131
Wyat, Henry 479, 713
Wye river 49, 288, 761, 762
Wye, Francis, &c. 328, 713
Wye Seal in Newland 567
Wyk in Duntesbourne 147
Wyke 150
——— in Berkeley 279
Wyley, John, see Wiley
Wyndham, Mr. &c. 240, 308, 484 586
Wyrral, Matthew, &c. 288, 289
Wysham, sir John de, &c. 308, 567
Yanworth in Hasleton 479
Yartleton Hill 504, 533
Yate, William, &c. 232, 233, 234 314, 418, 425, 456, 493, 613 681, 800
Yennington 726
York, duke of 101, 102, 291, 350 815
Yorke, John, &c. 336
Young, Patrick, &c. 388
Ypre, William de 94
Zouch, Radulph de 148, 368, 434 479
Zouch, John lord, &c. 382, 544
Zouch, Alan la, baron of Ashley 463

FINIS.